WHO IS MRS. WINSLOW?

AS this question is frequently asked, we will simply say that she is a lady who, for upwards of thirty years, has untiringly devoted her time and talents as a Female physician and nurse, principally among children. She has especially studied the constitution and wants of this numerous class, and, as a result of this effort, and practical knowledge, obtained in a life time as nurse and physician, she has compounded a

SOOTHING SYRUP
FOR Children Teething.

It operates like magic—giving rest and health, and is, moreover, sure to regulate the bowels. In consequence of this article, Mrs. Winslow is becoming world-renowned as a benefactor of her race; children certainly do RISE UP and bless her; especially is this the case in this city. Vast quantities of the Soothing Syrup are daily sold and used here. We think Mrs. Winslow has immortalized her name by this invaluable article, and we sincerely believe thousands of children have been saved from an early grave by its timely use, and that millions yet unborn will share its benefits, and unite in calling her blessed. No mother has discharged her duty to her suffering little one, in our opinion, until she has given it the benefit of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. Try it, mothers—try it now.—"Ladies' Visitor," New York City.

OGLE'S
AMERICAN ELECTRIC HAIR DYE

Is as superior to all others as the Meridian Sun to a Candle. All imitate Bogle even to his style of advertisements, which for years have been headed
The Best Hair Dye in the World.
Now others without brains steal and copy this. Their Dyes are as miserable as their invention is contemptible. Avoid them all! Bogle's has been awarded Medals and Diplomas over them all, and to their confusion pronounced "The only Hair Dye fit to be used." No rainbow tints a la "Tittlebat Titmouse." No smut! no skin staining! no humbug, but reliable safe and sure.

The distinctive advantages of this over all other Hair Dyes, are—1st. It is entirely free from all ingredients which can injure the Hair. 2nd. It does not stain the skin. 3rd. It is easier of application, as the Hair can be dyed by it in any weather, whether cloudy, rain, or sunshine. 4th: It acts like magic and is instantaneous in its effect, as the Hair can be washed with Soap and Water almost immediately after application, when it assumes a beautiful silky lustre, and has the most natural and life like appearance. 5th. It is the most permanent and natural Hair Dye ever invented, and neither washing, nor the effects of the Sun or weather destroys its color.

Proprietor, W. BOGLE, Boston, U. S., and for sale by all respectable Chemists and Perfumers throughout the World.

IN THE YEAR 1845

Mr. Matthews first prepared the VENETIAN HAIR DYE, since that time it has been used by thousands, and in no instance has it failed to give perfect satisfaction.

The VENETIAN DYE is the cheapest in the world. Its price is only FIFTY CENTS, and each bottle contains double the quantity of Dye contained in those usually sold for $1.

The VENETIAN DYE is the safest composition of its class. It is warranted not to injure the hair or the scalp in the slightest degree.

The VENETIAN DYE works with rapidity and certainty, the hair requiring no preparation whatever.

The VENETIAN DYE produces any shade that may be desired,—one that will not fade, crock, nor wash out; one that is as permanent as the hair itself Price 50 cents. For sale by all Druggists. Prepared only by

GENERAL PRESS DESPATCHES,

New York, March 26.—The steamer Evening Star, from New Orleans on the 19th, has arrived. On the 13th part of Admiral Porter's fleet appeared off Alexandria, La., and demanded its surrender, which was complied with without opposition. The prisoners captured at Port de Roussy have arrived at New Orleans. General Banks would leave for the field on Monday.

The army of Western Louisiana is moving.

General Lee's advance had occupied New Iberia.

Two of our gunboats had ascended Grand River nearly to Butte a la Rose.

Guerillas had made their appearance in the vicinity of Baton Rouge, and had several skirmishes with the 4th Wisconsin mounted infantry, which resulted in our favor. Several prisoners were taken.

Advices from Brownsville report no prospects of fighting. New roads and fortifications are being made.

A fleet of nine French frigates appeared off the mouth of the Rio Grande, and an attack on Matamoras is expected. Particulars had been received of the capture of Guadalajara by the Liberal Mexican forces under Uraga. 24 cannon and 700 prisoners, French and renegade Mexicans, were captured. The traitor Negra is at San Luis Potosi with 3000 men, expecting an attack. Puebla is said to be besieged by the Liberals, and must fall, the invaders having no reinforcements that can reach there in time to aid the garrison. Vidaurri has positively declared for the French, and Cortenas and Doblato, with a strong force, are marching to attack him.

Deserters and refugees from the Confederate lines are continually arriving at Brownsville, 2000 in all having reached that place. A party of 150 deserted from a rebel regiment, and 300 were sent in pursuit. The latter overtook the former, and joined them in their flight. Part of them have already got to Brownsville.

Portland, March 26.—The steamer America, from Liverpool, has arrived.

New York, March 26.—The Tribune's Washington special says: A great number of ambulances have gone to the front.

The World's special despatch has a rumour that the entire organized militia of the North is to be called into service for six months, to hold certain points during the campaign against Richmond.

Additional from New Orleans.—The "ree State Executive Committee have adopted the following :—

Resolved,—That the Free State party is uncompromisedly opposed to assuming any debt contracted by the State of Louisiana, while under rebel domination, for the purpose of carrying on the war against the United States.

LATEST FROM QUEBEC.

Formation of Ministry Incomplete

"HERALD" OFFICE,
Monday Morning, March 28, 1864.

We received the following intelligence, at an early hour this morning, from our Quebec correspondent, respecting the formation of the new Ministry :—

Quebec, March 27.

Notwithstanding all the efforts of those engaged in the formation of a new Government, it is understood that the personnel has not yet been decided on, and it is doubtful if it will be announced as completed on Monday. Its friends express themselves as confident of the negotiations, now in progress, resulting in success to Mr. Tache, but say that more time may be asked. John A. Macdonald has finally determined to accept of no position in the projected Administration, surrendering the reins altogether to Mr. Campbell. The Hon. S. Read has come down, but it is stated that he declines to accept office. The Ottawa men met last night, and a meeting of the friends of the projected Government was also held, and, while their proceedings are kept secret, it is not concealed that considerable diversity of opinion was manifested as to the course to be pursued.

VERY LATEST.

An interview is to take place on Monday morning between the Hon. Mr. Blair and Sir E. P. Tache in relation to the formation of a Coalition upon a broad basis, and much depends on this result as to the success of Sir E. P. Tache's efforts. Everything remains in abeyance until after this consultation.

THE MINISTERIAL DIFFICULTIES.—The condition of political affairs at Quebec at this moment well illustrates the peculiar difficulties of working our system of government in a community constituted as ours is. There is something now very much approaching to a dead lock, with only the alternative chances of getting the wheels disentangled, presented on the one hand by a dissolution which might and probably would leave things substantially as they are, and as they have been, more or less exactly, for the last ten years, or on the other a very broad combination of heterogeneous materials. At bottom the difficulty arises from the ancient division of the two parts of the Province and of race in its inhabitants. If Upper Canada were by herself no one would think of Mr. Jno. A. MacDonald or his nominee being accepted as the leader of the Government, though he has held that office ever since he supplanted Sir Allan McNab; and so we may say of Lower Canada, that whatever may be the personal popularity or unpopularity of Mr. Cartier, the habitans throughout the country are most fully represented, so far as can be judged of by their choice at elections, by that party which Mr Cartier leads in the House. If Canada were all English or all French, no doubt the majority in the whole country would be as well developed as are now the two opposing majorities in Upper and Lower Canada. The Prime Minister here is a sort of Siamese twins but if we change the figure a little and consider him not as two bodies, but as the heads of twin bodies forced to act together, we muft confess that there are between the several parts of the joint body none of that extraordinary identity of tastes and feelings which characterized the famous Chang and Eng. Either the head is borne with great dissatisfaction by its own body, or it excites a feeling of permanent and violent antipathy in the body of its twin. Just now the long pending antagonism between the two parts of the Province have reached a climax The majorities and minorities are so nearly equal that it depends upon accident, or the caprice of one or two members of Parliament, to give the joint majority in the House to one or the other section. There may be replaces—one man acquired, and another disgusted by the acquisition which has overlooked his merits for the purpose of conciliating an opponent; but there seems no great reason to expect any material change in this aspect of parties. Sir E. P. Tache cannot form a Ministry. He must go to some Upper Canadian for assistance, and that unity of design which, in the hands of an able man might help him to construct a government, is destroyed by the rigorous condition that he must meet the views of a partner having to deal with different interests. Nor is this the only difficulty, Canada is divided into Upper and Lower; but Lower Canada is again divided into French and English. A certain number of the offices in the Lower Canadian representation are given to persons with English names; but no more can be granted whatever exigency may require, or whatever merits demand an accession of numbers Then the French Nationality being the most numerous, it follows that the Lower Canadian leader must perforce be French, though he may be altogether inferior either in ability or peculiar adaptation to the occasion, to some Lower Canadian of British origin. At present the affairs of the country turn chiefly on Finance. There is, on each side of the House, a gentleman admittedly of the keenest talent and of experience in his own department, which it is no disparagement to others to say, is superior to that of any probable colleague, who may be associated with him. Yet, in order that either of them may have the opportunity to serve the country in the department, which is at the moment of most importance, he must accept a subordinate position to gentlemen who probably in a homogeneous community would not exercise nearly so much influence as he. The natural method of things is reversed, in order that he should be subordinated to a colleague with a French name—in Mr. Galt's case to a colleague generally understood to be by no means of too courteous a demeanour. The result of all this is seen in the strange kind of negotiations and yet failures to negotiate, which have occupied the public attention for a week. The only government which can be formed out of the present house with any hope of success is one adapted throughout to this position The Upper Canadian liberals, upon any view which acknowledges the rights of the two sections of the Provinces to separate recognition, and fair share of influence, must have the lead, just as the Bleus—we use the word for convenience only—must have the lead in Lower Canada. A coalition Ministry which shall leave the Upper Canadian majority under the feet of the minority of their own section is plainly as little to be thought of by them as the reverse of the medal would be in Lower Canada. The late Opposition have now the lead in their hands. If they are willing frankly to accept the above condition they may perhaps concoct some sort of a committee which may blunder along a little further. If not, they will have to attempt to strengthen themselves by a dissolution, and will go to Upper Canada in the odious position of refusing to that portion of the country its fair share in the representation, and yet using their unjustly exorbitant power to force upon it an unpopular government. One cannot contemplate this condition of affairs without some apprehension as to how it is to end; for we see less causes elsewhere lead to frightful catastrophes; and yet taking into account the passions common to us all, and not expecting that one party or race will yield anything it can hold, we can hardly discover any outlet to clearer and more satisfactory ground.

THE COMMERCIAL BANK SUIT.—It will be remembered by our readers interested in Banking matters that the judgment of the Court of Appeals in Toronto in this case was substantially as follows:—That the Bank was undoubtedly entitled to recover from the Great Western Railway a certain amount, probably some $600,000 or $800,000. That if both parties were ready to accept the verdict at Kingston subject to the modification by the judgment in appeal, the exact amount would be fixed by arbitrators or by mutual agreement. That if the Bank were not satisfied with this—that is if it thought it would not get enough under the limitation of the liability of the Railway Company established by the judgment in appeals, it might have a new trial without paying costs, and that if the Railway Company were dissatisfied with having to pay the sum to be fixed in the manner proposed, it might have a new trial upon paying costs. Either party desiring a new trial was to determine before the 1st April. There remained, however, another alternative open to either party, and that was an appeal to the Privy Council. The managers of the Commercial Bank have determined upon that appeal. Their reasons for this are that it will take the matter in the shortest time possible before the tribunal of last resort, where it is almost certain that it will at last be carried; and they think it more desirable to carry it there now, rather than after another year or two of litigation within the Province. The agents of the Railway Company here have applied for delay to ascertain whether the English Directors will consent to pay a sum calculated upon the basis laid down by the Court of Appeals; but the directors of the Bank see no reason why they should delay, since a proposition by the Railway Company may be made in London. They are, besides, advised by their counsel that the Court of Appeals at Toronto exceeded its jurisdiction as an appellate tribunal, because it gave effect to an objection not taken at the trial, nor urged before the Court of Queen's Bench, and for other reasons, which we cannot enumerate at length—especially because the drift of decisions in England has been opposed to that by the Court of Appeals at Toronto, and has gone to establish that even when the authorization of agents by corporations cannot be fully made out in evidence, the corporations will be held to be liable, when they have availed themselves of the acts of such agents by receiving and using money borrowed by them or otherwise. The Bank Directors believe that the case can be heard by the Privy Council next August, and that there will be a very speedy judgment thereafter.

DEATH OF EDWARD SCALLON, ESQ.—As death takes its course among us, it falls to the lot of the journalist occasionally to make a record of the career of the enterprising and benevolent men who depart from among us. We have now this painful duty to discharge in chronicling the death of Edward Scallon, Esq., Justice of the Peace of the town of Joliette, which occurred at four o'clock on the morning of the 15th instant, while on a visit to his lumbering shanties. He was born in 1813 at St. David, in the County of Yamaska, Lower Canada, and was consequently fifty-one years of age when he died. He commenced life very young at the lumber trade, in the employ of the late Sir J. Caldwell, of Quebec; he afterwards spent some time lumbering on the Becancours and St. Francis Rivers. In 1836, he went to the town of Joliette, which was then called the village of Industry, in the employ of the late Mr. Joliette, who had already laid the foundation of the present town which bears name. At the death of Mr. Joliette, in 1850, Mr. Scallon assumed the business on his own account, which he always conducted with the greatest courage, energy, and integrity until the time of his death. He had accumulated a considerable fortune by his hard labour, and was always ready to assist his fellow-creatures in whatever manner lay in his power. Not only did he give employment to some hundreds of his towns people, but he erected for them, chiefly at his own expense, an asylum for the aged and orphans. He has also bequeathed a large portion of his fortune, amounting to several thousand pounds in value, for different benevolent purposes. His remains were followed to their last resting place by an immense concourse of relative and friends, who had come from the surrounding parishes, and from Montreal, to pay him their last respects. The body was placed in the vault of the parish church of Joliette on the 18th instant, after a solemn Grand Mass, celebrated by the Very Rev. Vicar-General Mauseau. The coffin bears the following inscription :

EDWARD SCALLON
AGED 51 YEARS
DIED

TOWN OF JOLIETTE

NEW INVENTION FOR MEASURING THE STRENGTH AND QUANTITY OF SPIRITS.—The attention of the Excise Department of the Government has long been directed to the difficulty of ascertaining correctly the amount of duties which should accrue spirits, and from the distillation of spirits, and we to the public revenue from the distillation of spirits and we now learn that through the perseverance and ingenuity of Mr Edward Payne of this city; they are likely to be furnished with an instrument which will effectually supply the required check. By this 'spiritometer," for which Mr Payne has obtained letters patent, the result of the distillation of any quantity of wash derived from grain or other fermented materials is registered on a dial. As to the strength, it is determined by the known difference in the specific gravity of spirits at various degrees of strength and heat, adjusted by a carefully prepared compensating table worked out by the inventor. We understand that officers of the Department, after witnessing a satisfactory trial of the meter at Quebec, have determined to test it further, and for that purpose are about to have it put up in a distillery for the purpose of adjusting it for practical operation in the distilleries throughout the Province. Having ourselves witnessed the successful working of Mr. Paynes invention, we have arrived at the conclusion that it is likely to fulfil in a very satisfactory manner the end in view.

CITY ITEMS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—To-night, the first of the holiday week heralds Miss Kate Fisher's first appearance amongst us and from the excellent manner in which her merits as an actress are spoken of throughout the United States, we predict an immense crowd at this popular house. From amongst a number of laudatory notices of Miss Fisher, we extract the following :—"It is of our province to say good things about everybody—that is, when we can do so conscientiously; and it may be that we sometimes give too much credit to those whose all depends upon public approval. We feel, however, a degree of independent nonchalance whenever we have to advert to the reigning star of the Varities. Miss Kate Fisher has fully established her claims as a superior artiste in this city, and nothing we could say—would add to her deserved lofty position as a great actress. The encomiums so freely lavished upon her by the press of St. Louis, are well deserved, and our contemporaries can receive them as the honest expressions of public opinion in St. Louis." This evening's performance, will also embrace "the Young Actress" in which Miss Fisher personates five distinct characters, in each of which she introduces a speaking specialty, in one a dance, in another a song and in some both. With such a list of attractive novelties, which all merit applause we are assured of Miss Fisher's unqualified success. The company engaged to support Miss Fisher is composed of ladies and gentlemen individually excellent, and in the manner therefore of the production of the pices will be excellent as regards fitness and talent.

ACCIDENT AT BALL PRACTICE.—On Friday afternoon as a squad of the Royals at ball practice at Point St. Charles was waiting to fire, Mr. Ewen McLennan, Forwarder of St. Antoine Street, was shot through his right hand and left arm, while leaning upon his piece, it having been, as is supposed, discharged by means of his sleeve. He was taken to his residence and attended by Dr. Sutherland.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.—There was no business in open Court to-day in the Police Court.

In the Recorder's Court there were the usual number of cases of drunkenness, none of which require special notice.

Number of prisoners convicted of offences during the week ending March 26, 116; prosecuted for assessments and water rates since the first of January last, 3353.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE INDUSTRIAL ROOMS.

To the Editor of the MONTREAL HERALD.

SIR,—In my letter addressed to you on the 19th inst., in reference to the "House of Industry," my desire was solely to further an object which would appear to be approved of by yourself, the managers of the Industrial Rooms and Miss Harvey, viz, the bringing of the Industrial Rooms under the same roof with the House of Industry. I regret an inference has been drawn from my letter, tending to make it appear that the Industrial Rooms are not in connection with the House and School of Industry; it was not my intention to infer anything of the sort. What I mean is, that the Industrial Rooms are managed by a seperate lady superintendent, seperate committee, and has seperate funds from the Home and School, as no part of the Government grant to the Home and School has ever been used for the Industrial Rooms since they were opened. Miss Harvey as first directress of the Home and School of Industry, is an ex officio member of the Committee of the Industrial Rooms. I quoted a few figures merely to shew the rapid increase in the work of the Industrial Rooms, and stated only the sums paid to women for work.

You state that for the four years preceeding 1861 the sum of £596 2s 7d was expended in carrying on the Industrial department of the Home and School of Industry. I have no desire to question so good and laud-able an object, but in the report you refer to states that only £218 15s 7d of the above amount was paid for work for four years, and that £38 11s. 9d was received by Miss Harvey in aid of the poor. As I said before my desire being merely to shew the increase in the amount of business done since the opening of the Industrial Rooms, I will reproduce some figures and shew the whole expenditure for this industrial effort for a few years previous to and since the opening of the Industrial Rooms.

HOME AND SCHOOL OF INDUSTRY.

Total expenditure for	1857	$494.11
"	1858	895.15
"	1859	507.17
"	1860	902.09

INDUSTRIAL ROOMS.

Total expenditure for	1861-62	$1507.45
"	1862-63	2092.77
To this date	1863-64	3168.00

The forgoing will, I hope, shew so steady an increase as to recommend the Institution to the Committee of the House of Industry, and I may state that during 1862-63 the increase would have been greater, had not the work of the Rooms for the summer months been brought back to the Home and School. This was, however, found not to suit, and a seperate House was again taken for the Industrial Rooms.

I regret being under the necessity of making these explanations, knowing the ladies managing the Industrial Rooms did not wish their names to be paraded in the newspapers.

I presume there is no person who knows the Home and School of Industry but knows also that they were originated here by Miss Harvey and all must admire the perseverance with which she has for so many years conducted it.

I am Sir, yours truly,
INDUSTRY.

Montreal, 25th March, 1864.

FROM THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

CORRESPONDENCE OF THE "MONTREAL HERALD."

QUEBEC, March 24, 1864.

The House has adjourned until Monday, by which time those who are engaged in the work hope to be able to announce that they have succeeded in forming a new administration. It is understood at present, that if they succeed an adjournment of three or four weeks will be moved, in order to allow the new Ministers time to go back to their constituents for re-election. Mr. Cartier is endeavouring to escape, should whatever ridicule may attach to a failure by pretending that he was not called upon by His Excellency the Governor General to form a new Government, but merely to consult with him, and that it was on his recommendation Colonel Tache was called and through his efforts that that gentleman was persuaded to enter once more into active political life. It is therefore announced that Mr. Tache is now at work, but the task appears to have proved more difficult than was anticipated. John A. Macdonald, who at first consented to assume the leadership of his section, in the Lower House, has already found it necessary to withdraw from the prominent position he at first accepted, and according to reports which are believed to be reliable, he will be obliged to content himself with a subordinate office. He is far too unpalatable now to meet with much success, and it is hoped that Mr. Campbell, the late Speaker of the Upper House, may be able to accomplish something. Mr. Campbell was not here, and up to Prussia it may be concluded that urgent forward by the ingenious Bismarck, she has decided to brave at once the eagle and the lion. But according to my view the entrance upon Jutland will not have that gravity, which may at first sight seem to belong to it. On that point the Cabinet of Vienna has offered explanations which may be taken as more or less satisfactory. "Duppel and Alsen" says Count Rechberg, "are almost impregnable positions before which in any case, we must lose a great many of our troops. To seizing Jutland we have a pledge, which we shall always be ready to exchange for these two places and we may thus acquire them with a great saving of bloodshed."

The Archduke Maximilian has been in Paris for eight days and seems to have had for mission the reassuring of the Cabinet of the Tuileries on the policy of Austria. His journey has indeed been regarded as a pacific step, from its seems hard to suppose that Maximilian would accept a throne from the hands of Napoleon III, if he thought the latter was on the point of making war against his brother Francis Joseph. Lastly, as one who is drowning catches at straws, public opinion has regarded with pleasure a note in the Moniteur, intended to remove from the nomination of Marshal McMahon to the Camp at Chalons, all appearance of a warlike signification. An accident totally unforeseen has, however, more than all the rest served to comfort the friends of peace. You are aware that the wounded Duke of Gloucester has formed a kind of moral league among themselves against Prussia and Austria, for the purpose at least of forcing these two powers to bring Holstein and Schleswig into the German Confederation. The chief of this league was the King of Bavaria, Maximilian, and this monarch has suddenly deceased of erysipelas on the chest—the same malady which a few months ago carried off so unexpectedly, the King of Denmark. Death is decidedly the friend of M. de Bismark. However, Bavaria falls into the hands of the son Maximilian, a young man of seventeen, who it is not probable will have sufficient strength to resist the two great confederates.

You thus see that the reasons for hoping are numerous; but unfortunately those for fearing are not less so. Thus the rumor runs that at the end of a conversation with the Emperor on the subject of warlike eventualities M. Fould, the peace Minister par excellence, sent in his resignation. The replacing of old Marshal Randon by Marshal Fleury as minister of war, and side-de-camp of the Emperor, is also noticed, as Marshal Fleury is a declared partizan of European intervention. Lastly it is reported in this connection that the French conscription of the class of 1864 is to be raised to 120,000 men. Though I do not venture to confirm this piece of news, it seems to me that if true it betrays very grave intentions on the part of the French government. It is not, however, astonishing that at a moment when all Europe is in arms, France should seek to hold herself ready for all contingencies.

I persist in believing that the statu quo is impossible, and that nothing can prevent Europe from falling by the ears There have lately been enacted at Rome a series of scenes which prove at a moment when all European is in arms, France that the Liberal Government of the Pontifical States have found themselves pursued for some time past, have taken refuge in Rome, calling themselves political victims. It has followed that the Eternal City has become a kind of chapel of ease to the Forest of Bondy.

All I have already mentioned, the ArchDuke Maximilian has arrived in Paris with his wife. He has been received with great rejoicings. From Paris he goes to London, where he will be received by Queen Victoria and his father-in-law, the king of the Belgians. Then he will return to Miramer, and thence, in quality of Commander-in-Chief, but the French arms will be replaced by a foreign legion. The Archduke should make the Fenians an offer. Mexico would just suit them.

The Viennese correspondent of the Times, usually cautious and accurate, announces that Austria and Prussia are pledged to stand up to the last together in the event of a general war, and that Austria and Russia have come to an understanding with respect to Poland. This amounts to a revival of the Holy Alliance, of which rumours have for some time been afloat, and will do more to re-cement the entente cordiale between England and France than reams of Earl Russell's letters One of the first fruits has been the consent of Austria to the conquest of Jutland. The pretext is the Danish attack on German fleets, the real motive a desire to compel the Danes to evacuate Alsen without inflicting on the invaders the task of storming the works. With this exception, the week has been passed by the Danes in improving their position at Duppel, and by the Germans in bringing up a heavy siege train.

The correspondent of the Times affirms that in the entire army in Alsen there is not a man who cannot read and write, and that the mails are broken down by the mass of letters sent and received. Most of the men are small freeholders with whom Denmark is covered Other correspondents less friendly to the Danes still affirm that in Jutland there is no poverty, that the entire people is one of the healthiest, best fed, and happiest in the world, with barns overflowing with produce and farms with stock and poultry. It is on this race that the South Germans, the Hungarians, and the motley savages who make up the Austrian army, are to be let loose; Marshal von Wrangel has informed the Danish General that he shall levy requisitions throughout Jutland, which means that the whole peninsula will be scientifically plundered. The country, we fear, is unfitted for guerilla war; but every man has been drilled, and this threat will recruit the Danish ranks more rapidly than a conscription.

The annual vote for flogging the British soldier was carried on Thursday by a majority of only one, Mr. Bright making a good speech against it too late for the division. The stock arguments were, of course, all repeated, but no one touched this question. Is not the retention of flogging the reason why respectable men do not enlist except when in despair? If we want the sort of men who fill a conscript army, we must abolish disgraceful punishments, and give privates a fair chance of rising. That, replies the Marquis of Harrington, would involve shooting, and flogging is more humane. His Lordship knows perfectly well that he would encounter the certainty of death much sooner than the risk of the triangles, and Hodge in such matters feels exactly like Cavendish. A more severe but more honourable discipline is precisely what the army wants.—London Spectator.

THE CHRISTENING OF THE INFANT PRINCE.

(From the Court Circular.)

The baptism of His Royal Highness the Infant Prince, grandson of Her Majesty the Queen and of His Royal Highness the Prince Consort, son of their Royal Highnesses Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, and the Princess of Wales, took place yesterday, at one o'clock, in the chapel within Buckingham Palace.

The due arrangements were made in the Chapel for the performance of the sacred rite. Two rows of chairs, were appropriated to the use of the Queen, the sponsors, and the Royal personages invited to be present. The principal compartments, of which there are four, were assigned to the representatives of Foreign Powers connected with the Royal family, to the Cabinet Ministers, and to the other official dignitaries who were present without taking an active part in the ceremony.

The altar was lined with crimson velvet, panelled with gold lace, and on the Communion Table were placed the golden vessels used in the Sacrament.

Seats of crimson and gold were ranged within the rails of the Communion Table for the officiating clergy.

The font is a beautifully formed tazza of silver-gilt, the rim representing the leaves and flowers of the water lily, while the base, from which springs its graceful stem, is grouped with cherubs playing the lyre. In front are the Royal Arms.

The font was placed on a fluted plinth of white and gold.

Over the altar was a fine piece of tapestry representing the baptism of our Saviour.

The band and choir were placed in the gallery.

The following is a programme of the music performed on the occasion :—

March .. .. "Scipio" .. .. Handel.
Chorale .. .. H. R. H. The Prince Consort.
(The words by Thomas Oliphant)
Praise the Lord with heart and voice,
Thro' the land let all rejoice,
While our Prince's new-born heir
To the holy font we bear.

From the dawn of early youth
May he walk in faith and truth;
Bless, O Lord, this holy song,
Bless our Princess, Prince and Queen.
Hymn .. .. "Palestrina.
I will give thanks to Thee, O Lord,
And magnify Toy holy name;
How great and wonderful art Thou
In all the world, holy, holy, Lord God of Ghores .. .. "Creation" .. .. Haydn
The Heavens are telling the glory of God,
The wonder of His works displays the firmament.
March .. "Full of Babylon," .. Spohr.

The Heralds and Kings-of-Arms were in attendance to assist in marshalling the processions.

The Royal personages having been conducted to their seats, and the great officers and other attendants having taken their appointed places, the service commenced with the performance by the band of the chorale, "Praise the Lord with heart and voice," and the hymn, "I will give thanks to Thee, O Lord."

When the music ceased the Lord Chamberlain accompanied by the Groom of the Stole to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and the Chamberlain to her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, conducted the infant Prince into the Chapel, his Royal Highness being carried by the head nurse (Mrs. Clark), and attended by the Countess of Macclesfield, one of the Ladies of the Bedchamber to her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.

The Royal infant was attired in a robe of Honiton lace—the same that was worn by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at his christening, with a cap of Honiton lace, a cloak of crimson velvet lined with ermine, and a mantle of white satin edged with Honiton lace.

When the Archbishop of Canterbury commenced the prayer "Almighty, ever-living God," the Lord Chamberlain gave the infant Prince to the Queen, who handed his Royal Highness to the Archbishop.

The Archbishop demanded of the Sponsors how it should be named. The Queen answered "Albert Victor Christian Edward," and his Grace the Archbishop baptized it in those names.

After having received the sacred symbol his Royal Highness was restored to the arms of the Queen.

The Countess of Macclesfield afterwards took the young Prince who was conducted from the Chapel in the same way as on entering.

The exhortation and blessing having been given by the Archbishop, the ceremonial concluded with the performance of Haydn's grand chorus from the Creation—

"The Heavens are telling the glory of God."

As soon as the ceremony was concluded the Queen, attended on entering the chapel, was conducted by the Lord Chamberlain to the White Drawing-room, where the Royal Sponsors joined Her Majesty, after retiring from the Chapel in the same order as in proceeding to it.

The infant wore a black silk dress covered with deep black crape, and edged with jet gimp; a cap of white crape lisse, in the style of the cap of Mary Queen of Scots, with diamonds round it and a long white crape lisse veil attached to it. Her Majesty wore the riband, star, and badge of the Garter, a diamond necklace and a large cross containing the Prince Consort's miniature, and a brooch composed of a large sapphire set in 12 large diamonds

Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales wore a white satin dress with rouches of tulle and two flounces of rich Brussels lace deck'd with flowers, water lilies, ferns, and grasses; a tiara of diamonds, necklace, brooch and ear-rings of pearls and diamonds, a corsage of the City diamonds round the top of the dress; the Portuguese order of Isabella, and the Victoria and Albert badge.

The Princess Helena wore a white satin dress trimmed with a deep flounce of old lace, white roses, lilies of the valley, and green leaves; a diamond and opal necklace, with the Portuguese and Victoria and Albert orders. The head dress was of flowers and diamonds, to correspond with those on the dress.

The Princess Louise wore the same as Princess Helena, but with diamonds and turquoises.

The Princess Beatrice wore a white satin dress and a velvet band on her head, with lilies of the valley.

Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cambridge wore a violet velvet dress trimmed with ermine, head-dress of violet velvet, feathers, and diamond stomacher; necklace and earrings in diamonds.

Her Royal Highness the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz wore a dress of white gros d'Afrique trimmed with point lace; head-dress composed of white feathers, with tiara of diamonds and saphire necklace, stomacher, and earrings of diamonds and sapphire.

Her Royal Highness the Princess Mary wore a white satin dress, with tunic of Brussels lace trimmed with water lilies; head-dress, a diadem of diamonds and water lilies; stomacher, necklace, and earrings of emeralds and diamonds.

His Majesty the King of the Belgians wore the uniform of a Field-Marshal.

His Royal Highness Prince of Wales wore a General's uniform, with the collar of the Garter.

His Royal Highness Prince Alfred wore a naval uniform.

Their Royal Highnesses Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold were attired in Highland costume.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge wore the uniform of a Field Marshal.

The Ministers of State and the officers of the Royal household all wore their full-dress uniforms, and the principal members of the orders of knighthood wore the collars of their respective orders.

The supper-room had been beautifully prepared for the occasion. Much of the most curious and costly of the plate belonging to the Palace was displayed upon the tables and upon the buffet, and conspicuous among the viands was a superb christening cake.

During the collation the Lord Stewart gave the following toasts :—

"His Royal Highness the Prince Albert Victor of Wales."

"His Majesty the King of the Belgians."

"His Majesty the King of Denmark."

"The Queen."

"The Prince and Princess of Wales."

GROCERIES.—Some little stir in Tobacco, both in leaf and manufactured, but prices remain without alteration.

Respecting the movements of the Tea market in Great Britain, we quote from the London Economist of the 12th inst. :

Arrivals of tea continue extensive, and advices from China state that the export to Great Britain since June 1 had exceeded 100,000,000 lbs. The trade during the week has been dull, and the value of inferior qualities has had a downward tendency. Indian tea, however, at public sale, has ruled tolerably firm in price. The quantity of tea now afloat is estimated at 34,862,000 lbs against 26,849,000 lbs last year Last week, duty was paid on 1,085,000 lbs, and the exports for the week ending March 3 reached 466,832 lbs.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

CROWN SIDE.—March Term.

Present :—Hon. Mr. Justice Mondelet, presiding.
Saturday, March 26.

The Court opened at the usual hour.

WITHDREW HIS PLEA.

Ferdinand Spiegel with the consent of the Court withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty.

AGGRAVATED ASSAULT.

The case against Eugene O'Rourke for aggravated assault, was called, when Mr. Laflamme, Q. C., moved that the trial be postponed until next term in consequence of the absence of witness who was supposed to have been sent out of the country by the defence.

Mr. Devlin opposed the motion, insisting that the trial should be proceeded with immediately. The Judges who liberated the defendant on his personal recognizance had thus shown their contempt for the frivolous character of the prosecution.

Mr. Laflamme characterized the action of the Judges in liberating a prisoner charged with a capital felony, on his personal bail, as iniquitous.

The Judge asked if Eugene O'Rourke was in Court, and was informed he was. He then directed that he should appear, whereupon, he said that he differed in opinion from the Judge who liberated the prisoner on his personal recognizances, and instructed the jailer to take him in custody.

The trial was fixed for Monday.

James Elder, jointly indicted in the preceding case, made default.

The Court adjourned until 3 p.m.

After recess,

Mr. Kerr made application on the part of Eugene O'Rourke to be admitted to bail.

The Court declined to grant the application.
