Levesque may back request

FLQ exiles ask pardon

QUEBEC (CP) — Two members of the Front de libération du Québec (FLQ) cell which kidnapped British trade commissioner James Cross in 1970 want to return home with a clean slate, Premier René Levesque said Thursday.

Levesque told his weekly news conference that he recently received a letter to that effect from Jacques Cossette-Trudels and his wife Louise, currently living in France.

"From their point of view, which I understand, they think the time should be ripe for some sort of pardon ... or something like that," the premier said.

Levesque said he would study their request and consider making representations to the federal government where he said the final decision would rest.

A spokesman for Marc-

André Bedard, Quebec justice minister, said both face criminal charges of kidnapping and forcible detention upon their return.

"There are charges and they must respond," the spokesman said.

He noted that the couple would first have to ask federal authorities for new passports if they decided to return to Canada because they have been absent for seven years and any old passport would have expired.

At the news conference, Levesque noted that the Cross kidnapping "didn't bring any violence in the sense of what happened to (Pierre) Laporte," the Quebec labor minister murdered by another FLQ cell.

In considering the request for representations to Ottawa, Levesque said: "The only thing I can say for the moment is that you get a letter like that and instinctively, (you think) seven years is a long time to be separated from family and friends."

The Cossette-Trudels, who now have one child, were permitted to leave Canada for Cuba in exchange for the safe return of the British trade commissioner.

Legal experts say there would be two ways for the couple or the other Cross kidnappers—Marc Carboneau, Pierre Seguin and Jacques Lantot—to return to Canada and not face trial.

Spokesman Claude Turcotte told the standing committee studying Quebec's pulp and paper industry that the Domtar Ltd. paper mill, the chief employer in the town of 5,000, may close soon.

The company had agreed to keep the mill open beyond Sept. 30 after employees agreed to a wage freeze and the sacrifice of 124 of the plant's 540 jobs, he said, but Domtar still reserves the right to close after 30 days notice.

A "sword of Damocles" is hanging over the town, he said.

Domtar announced May 6 the mill would close at the end of September. The announcement came during a legal strike by East Angus workers who walked out April 1, 11 months after their contract expired.

The company said the mill no longer is profitable.

In addition to granting the mill a reprieve, the company has agreed to participate in a communications committee designed to improve labor relations.

Turcotte expressed hope

Love that sun

It takes just a touch of sun to make a body forget all about all that bad weather and the worse to come. No matter where or when - if the sun shines, enjoy it. Unfortunately, the weather for this weekend bodes no good. The weather people predict a day of showers or steady drizzle tomorrow as a storm moves up from off the Atlantic coast. Sunday, they say, should be fair and cool. We'll see. In the meantime, enjoy it while you can.

MUC Police wanted probe of PQ backbencher Godin

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal police anti-terrorist officer recommended five years ago an investigation of Gerald Godin, now a Parti Québécois member of the national assembly, says an internal police report.

The report, presented Thursday as evidence at a provincial inquiry, suggests that the investigation focus on an unspecified link between Godin and a Front de libération du Québec cell. The cell's members were exiled in Cuba after kidnapping British trade commissioner James Cross in the 1970 October Crisis.

At the time, Godin was an editor at Quebec Presse, a union-supported, French-language weekly newspaper. He had been arrested during the October Crisis and questioned several times about contacts with the FLQ.

The report was presented as evidence by lawyers of the Quebec commission of inquiry into an illegal police break-in at the office of a left-wing news agency, the Agence de Presse Libre du Québec, in October, 1972.

Asked later about the report, Godin said: "It's the job of the police to check things like that. It's normal."

The report recommended the investigation of Godin because of an article published in Quebec Presse from Prensa Latina, a Cuban-based news agency, which is described in the report as "the official organ of the Cuban Communist party."

Godin said in an interview that Quebec Presse regularly received dispatches from Prensa Latina, as do other newspapers, but only published them occasionally because of a lack of interest among Quebecers.

FILED AFFIDAVIT
Earlier, lawyers for federal Solicitor-General Francis Fox filed an affidavit with the commission of inquiry to prevent it from making public confidential RCMP documents relating to the break-in.

The affidavit is more sweeping than two previous ones filed with the commission last September and says disclosure of information in the top-secret documents could seriously threaten national security.

It applies to police reports on papers and files which were stolen from the news agency and later destroyed as well as reports on the results of electronic bugging of the office both before and after the raid.

Godin said he was never in direct contact with FLQ members in Cuba. Quebec Presse dealt only with Prensa Latina agents in Montreal and never had direct relations with the agency's office in Cuba.

But he added that he did have contacts with others such as Pierre Vallières, Paul Rose and the wife of Jacques Cossette-Trudels who was exiled in Cuba with her husband.

"I was the only person who knew both Paul Rose and Pierre Laporte," he said, stressing that his journalist's profession gave him a wide variety of contacts.

Rose was part of the FLQ cell that kidnapped Laporte in the October Crisis and was later convicted of murdering the former Quebec labor minister.

"I have nothing to hide," said Godin.

The Montreal police report is dated Oct. 23, 1972, more than two weeks after the break-in was carried out on the night of Oct. 6-7. It bears the signature of Det.-Lieut. Julien Giguere who was then head of the analysis section of the city force's anti-subversive squad.

Giguere, appearing as a witness, testified that he did not draft the report and could not remember which of his subordinate officers did. He said he signed it and then sent it to police archives without referring it to his superiors.

Giguere said the report was based on a letter, stolen by police in the break-in, from the Cossette-Trudels to Louise Vandelac, a journalist at the Agence de Presse Libre.

Most of the report focuses on the letter itself in which the only mention of Godin was that he had not replied to an offer by the Cossette-Trudels for them to become "voluntary correspondents" of Quebec-Presse in Cuba.

It says the "information from this source is of the greatest interest because of the international character of the support which local activist elements could receive."

NOTES LINKS

It notes in particular links between the Cossette-Trudels and Puerto Rican socialist groups pushing for independence from the U.S.

Rondeau will stay with Socreds

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec MP Gilbert Rondeau, convicted this summer of tax evasion and still facing an arson charge, will remain in Social Credit ranks.

Charles-Arthur Gauthier, chairman of the party's Parliamentary caucus, said Thursday Rondeau has withdrawn a letter of resignation from the party.

At a meeting of the party's 10 MPs—all from Quebec—it was decided that Rondeau should remain within the party, Gauthier said in an interview.

The criminal proceedings against Rondeau involve his private life and not his duties as a Social Credit MP, Gauthier said.

Rondeau, 49-year-old MP for the rural riding of Shefford for 12 of the last 15 years, was fined $5,050 in August in Quebec sessions court after being found guilty on 17 counts of fraudulent tax evasion in connection with a party fund-raising plan.

The Quebec wing of the Social Credit party will meet Oct. 22 and 23 in Drummondville to discuss ways of changing its minor-league image into one of a truly national party.

East Angus group appeals to Assembly

QUEBEC (CP) — About 100 people from the Eastern Townships centre of East Angus crowded into a national assembly committee room Thursday to hear community leaders call on the Quebec government to save their town.

Spokesman Claude Turcotte told the standing committee studying Quebec's pulp and paper industry that the Domtar Ltd. paper mill, the chief employer in the town of 5,000, may close soon.

The company had agreed to keep the mill open beyond Sept. 30 after employees agreed to a wage freeze and the sacrifice of 124 of the plant's 540 jobs, he said, but Domtar still reserves the right to close after 30 days notice.

A "sword of Damocles" is hanging over the town, he said.

Domtar announced May 6 the mill would close at the end of September. The announcement came during a legal strike by East Angus workers who walked out April 1, 11 months after their contract expired.

The company said the mill no longer is profitable.

In addition to granting the mill a reprieve, the company has agreed to participate in a communications committee designed to improve labor relations.

Turcotte expressed hope

the committee will find a long-term solution to keep the plant open and prevent East Angus from becoming a ghost town.

A permanent closure of the mill will mean the loss of 2,000 jobs in the town and a sharp reduction of the municipal tax base.

Turcotte blamed the mill's inability to make a profit on bad management and the attitude of the union.

Union members will have to abandon a style of trade unionism based on principles, he said, and adopt "business unionism."

"It's a sort of new social contract that we are proposing in East Angus," he said, adding that if this attempt does not work the government should intervene.

Turcotte was representing the 12-member Ad Hoc Committee for the Survival of the East Angus Mill. The committee includes union representatives, members of the plant's middle management, mayors from the area and community representatives.

In its brief, the committee outlined a $40-million investment program projected over a 10-year period to modernize the mill and make it profitable. It also suggested construction of a new mill to use hardwood chips.

Pro-unity groups merge liaison—not a fusion, Nolin explained.

The group's position was never made quite clear, except to announce the eventual establishment of a co-ordinating body to avoid the duplication of effort.

Later, Positive Action president Alex Paterson said: "There are two different exercises going on. One is the general issue of Canadian unity and the other is the (Quebec government's) white paper on the independence referendum."

WORK TOGETHER

The group would work together to fight the "more immediate" referendum, Paterson said, but "the Canadian unity dilemma and the question of a 'third option' is larger in scope and will be dealt with later."

But it was learned that at least two of the groups plan to submit separate briefs to the Quebec government criticizing the referendum white paper.

Representatives of the five groups have been meeting for several weeks and agreed to continue on their own because "you have a much stronger argument if you present it in four or five different ways," Paterson said, adding that the two briefs are similar "in the sense that they don't conflict."

There is no political financing for the group, he said, and the five groups independently handle their own funds.

Take the weekend for tour through history

SHERBROOKE — In commemoration of the 125th anniversary of the incorporation of Sherbrooke, the city will stage a 40 stop, 20 mile tour through more than a century of local history this Sunday.

Residents are invited to pick up a tour and history guide at Jacques Cartier Park between 1-3 p.m. on Sunday. Two-hour tour will begin at the Park, where visitors will be invited to stroll the grounds, and at the Armand Nadeau Pavillion, constructed in 1967 to house the offices for the World

Water-Skiing Championships and to mark Canada's centennial year.

Visitors will continue down Esplanade Street to the Paton hydro dam, where they will be offered a beautiful view of the city's west ward.

Street will take motorists to the Queen Tunnel construction. The tunnel, expected to cost close to $4 million will transport used water to the Saint Francis River.

The tour will turn right on to King Street, to a stop at one of the city's oldest factories. Built in 1886, Paton, a textile manufacturer, now employs 350 people.

On Marquette Street, visitors make a stop at Sherbrooke Fire Station Number 1, which was built in 1925 and housed the city's police and fire departments until 1944. There are currently four fire stations in Sherbrooke.

Other stops along Marquette Street will include the Séminaire Saint-Charles, a private secondary and collegial institution, built in 1855, and the Saint Michel Cathedral, built in 1917.

Sherbrooke's first youth hostel, Pin Solitaire, will also be open to visitors. Thanks to a government grant, it was officially opened on June 20, 1977.

On Belvedere Street, visitors can walk the city's new four-lane bridge. More than 290 feet in length, Le Nouveau Pont was one of Sherbrooke largest projects during 1976.

On Frontenac Street, stops will be made at the Kayser-Roth factory. Built in 1922, the nylon manufacturer now employs more than 280 people.

Also on Frontenac Street is the Sherbrooke Court House.

Built in 1906 it was named an historical monument earlier this year.

Now you're downtown - right in the heart of Sherbrooke. The City Hall, built in 1921, now houses the offices of the Mayor, Finances, Municipal Court, and more than 100 employees.

Now at the King-Wellington Streets intersection you will see the city's war cenotaph. The work of George W. Hill, it was unveiled in 1926.

A left turn onto Depot Street will bring you to what was once the center of Sherbrooke railway activities. You will also see the Wellington parking lot, recently renovated at a cost of $492,000.

A trip up King Street East will allow for stops at the Saint Vincent de Paul Hospital, and recently completed public works.

Between Park and Saint-Michel Streets, visitors may tour the parkland used for competition during the 1977 Quebec Games and the 1976 Olympic Games.

Other stops will include the Sherbrooke Sports Palace, Place Olympique, the municipal library, St. Peter's Church, Mitchell Park, and Carrefour de L'Estrie.

De Havilland seeks buyers

OTTAWA (CP) — The builders of the Dash 7 aircraft are still pressing for government orders and federal policies to stimulate sales with only a handful of firm orders on the books as the plane goes into commercial production.

R.B. McIntyre, director of market development at De Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., said in an interview this week that if Canada is serious about asserting authority over its coastal waters it will need 15 to 20 patrol aircraft like the Dash 7.

And de Havilland, a government-owned company, is urging the government to make some commitment to STOL (Short takeoff and landing) air passenger service in Canada, he said.

McIntyre said such federal steps would encourage sales of the Dash 7 in both domestic and foreign markets. Potential foreign buyers asked why there are not more sales in Canada.

The de Havilland official was in Ottawa with other company executives to show the Dash 7 to transport and industry department officials.

The Dash 7, billed as a quiet airliner, passed directly overhead at about 500 feet while people chatted normally on the ground below. The government officials also were taken on a brief flight around Ottawa.

FIRST READY
The 50-seat, propeller-driven aircraft is going into production with the first model ready for delivery in about one month to a U.S. regional airline in Denver.

Wardair, an Edmonton-based charter air carrier, has also ordered two Dash 7s. Two other planes have been ordered by foreign carriers and de Havilland has obtained 15 options, the step before a firm order.

This list has varied little in about two years but McIntyre said de Havilland has been saving its main sales push until now. The plane has been shown to potential buyers in western Canada and in several foreign countries in recent months.

He said it is worrying that de Havilland does not yet have many firm orders. But the Toronto company had no orders at all for the popular Twin Otter when it went into production. About 575 Twin Otters have since been sold, well above the break-even point financially.

De Havilland plans to build about one Dash 7 a month until the end of 1978 when the company will gradually increase production to four a month.

Some airline industry officials have questioned the $3.75 million price for a 50-seat aircraft. They say this is a high price for a local air carrier to pay.

However, Nordair, a Montreal-based regional airline, has indicated interest in buying the Dash 7 if it is guaranteed exclusive rights to a STOL service linking Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and possibly Windsor, Ont.

McIntyre said the Dash 7 price is not much more than the cost of some competitors. Despite the government decision to buy 18 Lockheed Aurora patrol aircraft a year ago, McIntyre said Ottawa will need more planes to patrol coastal waters.

Cattle worming pays, vet tells farming club

AYER'S CLIFF (IH) — Every dollar paid the veterinarian for the treatment of livestock worms means four dollars return - but not overnight, says Dr. James Wadsworth, a biologist for 27 years with the University of Vermont.

Speaking last Thursday to the Ayer's Cliff Club of the Quebec Farmer's Association, Dr. Wadsworth described what the University of Veterinary Medicine in Burlington was doing to control brucellosis in Vermont.

His talk was about internal parasitism such as wire worms, brown worms and bankrupt worms, their life cycle, clinical signs and diagnosis. The tape worm, he said, does not do that much damage, while the lung worm in cattle is visible by a cough.

He advocated medication and said "every dollar you pay your veterinarian, brings you four dollars return, but not overnight". He noted that every farm is different as far as parasites are concerned and said sanitation and regular, frequent manure removal is a must.

Treatment for lung worms must be done in the autumn and he commented upon preventative measures for both worms and lice. A question-and-answer period followed. At the Club's annual meeting, Douglas McKinnon was elected president to succeed Douglas Johnston, who has been president since he organized the Ayer's Cliff club some seven years ago.

Elected Vice-president was Wallace (Joe) Mosher; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. John Brus; representative to the provincial office, John Brus and Arnel Grenier.

Mr. Johnston, who remains Q.F.A. president, displayed two trophies, one for a youth class in the Stanstead County Ploughing Match on October 8, the other for a class for young folk at the Sherbrooke match held October 10.

A workshop on tax inheritance, wills and other legal matters will be given for three days this winter if at least 15 members are interested.

Mr. Johnston reminded all of the provincial annual meeting taking place at Macdonald College on November 2 and plans were made for transportation.

Storms common, Fundy pilot says

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A witness was wrong when he told the National Energy Board that the Bay of Fundy is not subject to sudden storms, a retired harbor pilot says.

Ronald Cobham, 72, told the board Tuesday that he has seen weather on the bay change from flat calm to hurricane-force winds in half an hour and gusts up to 80 knots when the forecast called for 35-knot winds.

Francis Quinn called as a witness by Tenneco-owned companies applying for permission to land and process liquid natural gas at nearby Tiner Point, said earlier that he had never known sudden storms on the bay.

Cobham, called by the province of Nova Scotia which is asking the board to consider a site on the Strait of Canso for the terminal, said the Canso area would be less subject to winds and waves than the exposed point where Tenneco proposes to build.

He also disagreed with Quinn about the effects of currents at Tiner Point on the docking of proposed 125,000-cubic-metre ships which are to bring an average of one billion cubic feet a day of gas from Algeria.

WITNESSES DISAGREE

Quinn said currents would run parallel to the proposed wharf and would assist docking operations. Cobham said the currents would not necessarily parallel the wharf and the tendency for Bay of Fundy currents to reverse directions close to shore could cause docking problems at the 600-foot wharf.

Cobham compared the Tiner Point site to an exposed monobuoy—a floating platform—used by Irving Oil Co. Ltd. to unload oil for a nearby refinery.

The pilot said the monobuoy operation was safer than the fixed wharf proposed by Tenneco although weather conditions at both sites were similar.

Donald Gillis, a lawyer representing the New Brunswick government, entered as an exhibit a letter from Swan-Whorster Engineering Co. Ltd., parent company of Williams Brothers Canada Ltd.—a consulting firm that compiled data used in the Nova Scotia interventions.

Nova Scotia earlier entered figures which indicated that Canso was a cheaper landing site for both Algerian gas and for future production from Eastern Canada.

Railroad man retires after 26 years in CPR

STANBRIDGE EAST — Cyril Melbourne Brown, has retired after 26 years of service with the Canadian Pacific Railroad. He began his service in Farnham in 1951 in the roundhouse working on the locomotives. After a few years, he became assistant clerk to the storekeeper and then promoted to storekeeper and remained in this position until the office in Farnham closed in 1968.

From Farnham, Cyril was transferred to Montreal to work in the office of the signal department and has stayed there until his retirement this fall.

Railroad tradition is very strong in the Brown family as Cyril's father and two uncles were also railroad men.

On his last day of work, Cyril was surprised with a dinner out with his friends, where they presented him with a scale model train numbered with his years of work 1951-1977 plus a brass plaque engraved with the date and the last department he worked in.

Optics replacing circuits

TORONTO (CP) — Light pulses now are being used to replace electrical circuits in refined systems such as engines and computers, says a representative of the optics field.

Louis Scholz, who operates an optics firm in Maryland, was in this city this week to address delegates at the annual conference of the Optical Society of America. In an interview, Scholz outlined some developments in fibre optics—a field based on the transmission of light pulses through tiny, hairlike glass fibres.

Computers might one day run on light pulses instead of electrical pulses because much more information can be carried in this manner, he said.

Experimental projects involving transmission of telephone and television signals with light already are in progress, he said. Optical fibres will soon replace electrical wires in cars and aircraft.

Traditional copper wires that carry electrical pulses are bulky and may be influenced by static when in contact with navigation, radar and other equipment, he said.

Arctic oil spill would last decades

HALIFAX (CP) — If there is ever an oil spill in the Arctic it will take decades for it to break down, the head of a U.S. research team on Arctic pollution said this week.

Dr. R.M. Atlas of the University of Louisville, who has been leading a study on potential Arctic pollution for the U.S. government for the last four years, was addressing a seminar on oil spills in northern marine environment sponsored by the Bedford Institute of Oceanography.

His team placed containers of Prudhoe Bay crude oil in the water, on the ice, under the ice and on the bottom of the bay to determine how long each would take to break down.

After two months, there was a significant degradation, especially on open water, but after that the rate for all samples slowed to almost nothing. The oil's chemical composition also changed little even after two years, he said.

The team's conclusion that it would take decades for the oil to dissipate is supported by studies of an inland spill on the tundra, Dr. Atlas said in an interview. The spill occurred 10 years ago but hydrocarbons still are present in the area.

BREAKS DOWN SLOWLY
Oil degrades slowly in the Arctic because the water is open only about two months a year.

Dr. E.H. Owens, assistant professor at the Coastal Studies Institute of Louisiana State University, said in a presentation that the single most important factor in dispersing oil is mechanical action of wind, waves, tides, changing water levels and ice.

Drummondville firm gets DREE grant

Marcel Lessard, Federal Minister of Regional Economic Expansion, has announced four firms in Quebec have accepted development incentive offers totalling $560,040, including Sixpore Inc. of Drummondville-Sud, which will receive $45,175.

Sixpore has accepted the DREE offer for a new facility to manufacture weatherstripping and metal fencing systems. This project is expected to create 19 jobs and generate investments exceeding $74,500.

Assault or murder?

LONDON (AP) — Doctors switched off the life-support machine for a young woman clinically dead after a brutal sexual attack, and the action has raised a complicated legal issue of whether her assailant can be tried for murder.

In a decision reminiscent of the Karen Ann Quinlan case, the victim's anguished parents and fiancé gave their permission for doctors to turn off a respirator and allow her to die, the coroner in the northern English city of Bradford said Thursday.

Some legal authorities said that, if and when apprehended, her assailant might say that the physicians who disconnected her life support were responsible for her death.

Carol Wilkinson, 20, was attacked Monday while on her way to her job as a bakery sales clerk in Bradford. Her assailant flung her over a wall, sexually assaulted her and battered her about the head. Her facial features were obliterated. She was robbed of one pound (1.93).

Wintario winners

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Five tickets each worth $100,000 were drawn Thursday in the Wintario lottery draw.

The winning numbers were 78684 in series 77; 11883 in series 52; 62221 in series 94; 30655 in series eight and 60543 in series 28.

There was more than $3 million in prize money for a total of 90,000 prizes.

Farm income statistics revised

OTTAWA (CP) — Total net income to farmers in 1976 is estimated at $4,040 billion, 11.1 per cent below the revised 1975 figure of $4,545 billion, Statistics Canada said Thursday.

The total net income includes the value of farm-held inventories of crops and livestock, the statistics-gathering agency said.

Realized farm net income—the amount of money the farmer received for sales of products and supplementary payments plus the imputed rental value of buildings and the value of products produced and consumed on the farm, minus operating and depreciation expenses—is estimated at $3,740 billion, 13.4 per cent below the 1975 figure of $4,320 billion.

Wage-price news next week

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will reveal next week how and when pay and profit controls will be removed, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said Thursday.

He promised to announce important economic policy changes at the same time, although a new budget to stimulate the sagging economy has been ruled out.

Talking to reporters after a 4½-hour cabinet meeting, Chretien refused to specify what changes the government was considering. But there definitely will not be a budget to replace the one introduced by his predecessor, Donald Macdonald, March 31, he said.

Nkomo arrives for talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Joshua Nkomo, a key figure in the Rhodesian political dispute, arrived here Tuesday night to carry the message of his black nationalist group to Canadian leaders and the Canadian public.

Nkomo, co-leader with Robert Mugabe of the Zimbabwe Patriotic Front, said in a brief interview at Ottawa International Airport that he believes there can be a negotiated settlement to Rhodesian problems.

But he indicated the front remains dissatisfied with the British and U.S. plan for transition to black majority rule in Rhodesia, called Zimbabwe by the nationalist groups.

Another hijacking

ABU DHABI (AP) — Arabic-speaking hijackers who took a West German jetliner on a hopscoth journey across the Mediterranean and Middle East forced it to land today in the nearby Persian Gulf emirate of Dubai, but authorities there refused their demand for fuel, Dubai radio reported.

The gunmen, numbering at least two, instead demanded and received fresh supplies of food and water for the Luft-hansa Boeing 737, the broadcast said.

It was not immediately clear whether they were preparing to leave for another destination.

Kidnap victim unharmed

GENEVA (Reuter) — Graziella Ortiz, a five-year-old Bolivian tin heiress kidnapped outside her home 10 days ago, was found unharmed in a parking lot near here late Thursday night after her parents paid a $2-million ransom.

Geneva police said her father, Geneva antique dealer Jorge Ortiz—a nephew of Bolivian metal magnate Antenor Patino—handed over the $2 million Wednesday night.

Cancer involves lifestyles

MONTREAL (CP) — Eating habits, lifestyles and environment contribute in some way to 90 per cent of cancers, most of them preventable, Dr. Ernst Wynder, president of the American Health Foundation, said Thursday at an international conference on cancer and the environment.

Wynder said most cancers can be prevented because they are linked to lifestyle variables which people can control. He said about 40 per cent of cancer deaths are associated with tobacco and about 25 to 30 per cent with certain food factors or eating habits.

Smoking a filtered cigarette as opposed to a non-filtered cigarette over a 10-year period cuts down on lung cancer associated with smoking by 25 to 30 per cent, Dr. Wynder said.

Balloonist's hopes high despite chilly failure

HALIFAX (CP) — Dewey Reinhard's balloon went into the icy Atlantic Wednesday but his hopes of being the first balloonist to make it across that treacherous ocean are as high as ever.

"I'm anxious to try it again," Reinhard, 47, said in a shipboard interview four hours after he and partner Steve Stephenson, 44, both of Colorado Springs, Colo., were plucked uninjured from the sea 50 kilometres east of here by the coast guard ship Provo Wallis.

"We learned enough to see that the principle would work," he said. "I'm just sorry we didn't save the envelope (airbag)."

Reinhard, an electronics businessman, admitted he and Stephenson had just had "one hell of a balloon ride."

He said his craft, The Eagle, hit the water at least a dozen times in the last two days before splashing down on 10-foot waves for a final rest shortly before 5 o'clock local time.

The Eagle took from Bar Harbor, Me., Monday on what was expected to be a 4,800-kilometer, five-day trip—the culmination of two years of planning. Reinhard was optimistic he would get a second chance even though this one cost him close to $250,000.

"We'll be back next year," he said. "The system worked perfectly—it just needs to be fine-tuned. But maybe it'll be a little earlier next year."

Stephenson, an airline pilot who acted as Reinhard's navigator, was not so sure.

"I don't think I'll ever forget that sound when we hit the water. I don't know if I would try it again. But it is better to have tried and failed than not to have tried at all."

The Provo Wallis winched aboard the Eagle's $50,000 orange and yellow gondola and Reinhard said he believes it is in good enough shape for a future attempt.

"That thing is really tough," he said. But he said another transatlantic attempt would require improvements to the communications system.

One of the major reasons for aborting the flight was difficulty in keeping in radio contact with weather stations.

"Not being able to talk to the meteorologists was a real handicap," said Reinhard.

Friday's column by Terry Scott

Hey, Rene, where are you?

You have to give the Quebec Department of Tourism full marks for trying but at times it doesn't appear to be plugged into the same outlet as other levels of the Parti Quebecois government.

It wasn't too long ago that the department resorted to a lavish advertising campaign to convince Quebecers the salt-free waters of the Saguenay could be every bit as enjoyable as the Atlantic. The jingle actually had a pleasant sound to the ear, and it proved far more informative than an ordinary piece of promotion. You were aware after the minute plug that St. Louis de Ha! Ha! wasn't a place that served giggly juice off Cape Cod.

But people failed to heed its suggestions. There were more Quebec license plates spotted at Old Orchard than there were at the Motor Vehicle Bureau on the final day of licence renewal. Even the premier passed up the sweet morning dew of Gaspé for the aroma of seaweed on a Maine resort beach.

The snub by Mr. Levesque had as much effect upon the tourism campaign as a downpour at a Sunday picnic. The government had grown accustomed to the meanderings of an anglophone or two, but it hadn't anticipated a massive exodus by such a large segment of the province's population. And every one of them had a wad of bills in their pocketbook.

To counter this stinging blow to Quebec's tourist industry, the department attempted to reach vacationers outside the province. It's a normal procedure since most areas depend upon the influx of visitors to balance the departure of everyday citizens.

I had yet to see a Quebec Tourism Department ad until I stumbled upon one in a weekly publication called The Vermont Scene, an entertainment brochure published in Burlington. On the back page of an issue for the week of August 7 readers are given an interesting invitation to visit La Belle Province.

The caption at the top of the page is delightful. It states simply "there's only one place in the world where they speak English with a French accent, and French with an English accent: Incomparable Quebec."

The promotional pitch goes on to claim that one will hear a multitude of tongues in the province of Quebec. It lists an impressive resume of landmarks and attractions which will make a visit to Quebec a memorable one, including "hospitality that makes you feel like family."

The advertisement concludes with the message to "Send your clients, your friends, your family, yourself to la belle province: The beautiful province."

Oh, the bitter irony of it all. The government has spent several months attempting to reduce the status of the English language in the province, and now unabashedly promotes bilingualism as a major asset in our tourist trade.

And what's this about hospitality creating the atmosphere of one big, happy family? The government has yet to instill a spirit of camaraderie between the two cultures of its own boundary, so visitors can't help but feel they've walked in on a family dispute.

Perhaps there is a lack of communication within the government.

The stay-in-Quebec campaign apparently never reached Premier Levesque, and the literature destined for vacationers outside the province was obviously sent without consulting Mr. Laurin.

Up rises the valley

For years, the St. Lawrence River seemed like a massive barrier which isolated the metropolitan area from the affairs and concerns of the Eastern Townships. There has always been a steady flow of city dwellers to the ski slopes on the weekend, but perhaps these same hills hid the fact that a vibrant community thrives in the interior.

The month of September has provided unmistakable signs that neglect from Big Brother has come to an end. You can measure it merely in the amount of television exposure received by areas in the Townships during the past few weeks.

It started in Brome County when the CBC arrived to film a half-hour special on the annual fair. A short while later, the Fifth Estate, a program on the same broadcasting network, packed the cameras and headed east to interview a Townships' farmer. The CBC crew then turned up in Bromont for a brief segment on the antique show.

Meanwhile, the cameras have been rolling almost every day in Cowansville, where the CBC French language network has been filming a weekly serial called "Les As" at various rented locations in town...But the steadiest glare of camera lights, may have been focused upon Sherbrooke. Not only did they have seminars of both the Liberals and the Parti Quebecois, but last Sunday night the Townships capital went nation-wide when it hosted Loto-Canada's million dollar draw.

In addition to these three major events, the Marion kidnapping adventure has consumed more reels of film than any of the other events combined. The exposure isn't as welcome as the other events, but an entire nation won't soon forget the location of Sherbrooke.

It's safe to assume the Townships have spent more time on the tube in September than any month in the last year. And each time the electronic media capture a Townships' moment an identity seems to emerge. Almost like the valley rising to meet the mountains.

Local bank robbed

FRELIGHTSBURG (JM) — Four masked men armed with rifles robbed the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce here at 2:10 yesterday afternoon, and fled with $1,700 in cash. Two were apprehended in Sutton about 3 p.m., and one was superficially wounded when he tried to flee from municipal chief, Michel Duplan, who fired a single shot from his service revolver.

Members of the QPF armed robbery squad, apprehended the remaining two on the Eastern Townships Autoroute near Mont-real shortly after 4 p.m., and all the loot was recovered.

Police will not reveal the names of the suspects pending completion of their investigation. No shots were fired during the robbery.

Matthews named ETRSB director

Thomas J. Matthews of Lennoxville has been appointed Director of Elementary Education Services for the Eastern Townships Regional School Board.

A graduate of Bishop's College School and Bishop's University, Mr. Matthews was a resident of Lennoxville for a number of years.

For the past nine years, he has been employed by the Littoral School Board, and in former years, served the Chambly County and South Shore Regional School Boards.

Magog resident beats B.C. fire

News of a former Magog resident's quick action in quashing a Kelowna, B.C. supermarket fire last month just reached us, but we think it's news. Twenty-year-old Michael Whittier and a companion were passing the store on their way home from a movie when they spotted flames. Breaking into the store, they grabbed fire extinguishers and battled the blaze to a standstill, then called the fire department. Bet they'll be getting some free groceries for a while.

Leblanc School group elected

The Leblanc School, the only English Catholic School in the Sherbrooke area for grades 5 and 6, has elected a new parents' committee for the 1977-78 year.

It consists of Mrs. Lurline Brown, president; Mrs. Teresa Basora, vice-president; Mr. Joseph Szwedzyk, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Louise Morrisette, Mr. Howard Nethersole, Mr. Doug Fletcher, Mr. Rudolph Nassar, Mrs. Diana Parker, Mrs. Sonya Brandt, Mr. Frank MacGregor, teacher liaison and Mr. Harry Allen, school Principal.

The main objectives for the coming year are a book drive for the school library, decoration of the cafeteria and emphasis on student moral development.

Marion kidnapping violence continues

SHERBROOKE (JC) — Despite warnings of continuing violence against Caisse Populaire employees and clients, the kidnapers of Charles Marion remained silent yesterday.

In a four-page communiqué delivered Wednesday night, the kidnapers claimed responsibility for a series of violent acts in the Sherbrooke area, and warned they would continue until Caisse Populaire manager, Claude Stebenne responds to their demands in a local television broadcast.

The kidnapers claimed responsibility for a bomb blast at Steinberg's-Carrefour de L'Estrie Tuesday, a bomb scare at the Loto-Canada drawing at the University of Sherbrooke on Sunday and the previously unreported machine-gunning of the homes of two Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke Est clients last Friday afternoon.

They said a 20-stick dynamite bomb was removed from the University's Salle Maurice O'Bready staff by two members of the kidnap group, after university security staff chose to ignore their threats and not evacuate the 1500 spectators.

Earlier last week, the kidnapers warned of serious reprisals if Mr. Stebenne did not answer their request for new intermediaries by noon on Friday. The deadline passed without comment.

They requested that Charles Marion's son Pierre, 31, and his best friend, Jean-Paul Fouquet, carry out the next ransom exchange.

Reporters Normand Maltais, and Claude Poirier who have acted in three unsuccessful ransom drop-offs, were flatly rejected by the kidnapers, who accused the pair of collaborating with authorities in "trick" plans. In a message dictated to

CKSH-TV on Monday afternoon, Pierre Marion told his father's kidnapers that "...all those close to Charles Marion, so far as they are physically able, are willing to act as emissaries, to put an end to this dramatic situation..."

The accusations against Messrs. Maltais and Poirier followed an attempted exchange in Lennoxville on Sept. 23 when they found that the suitcases, expected to contain the $500,000 ransom, were actually filled with cardboard.

Charles Marion, 57, loans manager at the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke Est was abducted from his cottage in Stoke on August 6. Early in the 68-day drama, his abductors threatened to kill him if all their demands were not met.

In later communiques they claimed they would not harm Mr. Marion but that "he would pass on by himself."

Tuesday's letter said Charles Marion is "nearly crazy," refuses to eat and has attempted suicide.

Dunham man pleads guilty to manslaughter

By JOHN McCAGHEY
(Record Reporter)

GRANBY — Sandy Brown, 26, of Dunham, pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter, reduced from first degree murder in the slaying of Randall Ross Gagnon, 16, in Abercorn, on June 11, in the second trial of the Fall Term of the District of Bedford assizes here yesterday.

Crown Attorney Claude

Noisieux produced a new bill of indictment, which was accepted by defence lawyer Louis Normandin and Justice William Mitchell.

Judge Mitchell adjourned sentence to Nov. 24 to allow preparation of a probation report requested by the defence.

Robert Charles Webb, 50, of Moose Jaw, Sask., was allowed to testify prior to the arguments for sentence.

Dead or alive

Charles Marion's abductors have publicly declared they were the authors of a bombing incident at the Carrefour de l'Estrie last Tuesday. They have further alleged they shot at customers of the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke Est and the police have refused to divulge those events to the public.

The group has further suggested the bombing incident is only the beginning of a reign of terror in Sherbrooke and the surrounding area unless their ransom demands are met.

The investigation of the kidnapping has cost Quebec taxpayers at least $1.5 million to date. This massive cash outlay will only diminish Quebec Police efficiency as detachment heads will be instructed to cut back on overtime, even though overtime is often required to provide funding for crime prevention in the form of police patrols in the more remote areas of the province.

Hopefully, the solicitor-general's office and the credit union involved will soon see fit to offer a reward of $500,000 or so for the apprehension of one or all of the perpetrators of the crime - dead or alive.

Sherbrooke and surrounding areas have been on tenterhooks for far too long to allow a continuation of the investigation which has so far resulted in nothing but blind alleys.

Creating dissension within the ranks of the abductors is surely the quickest and most efficient method of bringing an end to the case. Man's most ugly characteristic is greed and greed reacts to thoughts of easy cash.

The public has everything to gain through a reward offer and the solicitor-general's office and the credit union have nothing to lose if such an offer manages to put an end to the search which enters its eleventh week Sunday.

PCs replace Horner with three-man team

Letters

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives are using three MPs to do work once done by now-Liberal Jack Horner as the party strives for greater efficiency in its parliamentary operations.

The three will handle the general area of transportation that Horner, MP for Crowfoot, Alta., dealt with before he quit the party earlier this year and moved to the Liberals.

Chief spokesman for air transportation will be Jack Murta (Lisgar); for ground transportation, Arnold Malone (Battle River); and marine, Robert McCleave (Halifax-East Hants).

On top of that Don Mazankowski (Vegreville) will be chief co-ordinator for transportation and communications, making sure that all persons working on those subjects work in conjunction with each other.

The names of the new caucus chairmen, the so-called shadow cabinet of opposition MPs who will speak for the party on their specialties, were announced Tuesday by Conservative Leader Joe Clark.

Establishment of the six coordinators was announced in Vancouver last week following a Conservative pre-Parliament caucus meeting.

LIST CO-ORDINATORS

The other five co-ordinators are: Sinclair Stevens (York-Simcoe) economic policy; James McGrath (St. John's East) social policy; David MacDonald (Egmont) cultural policy; Allan Lawrence (Northumberland-Durham) food and resources; Lincoln Alexander (Hamilton West) government operations.

James Gillies (Don Valley) will be chairman of chairmen, the man who rides herd on all caucus committees, and Elmer MacKay (Central Nova) is chairman of caucus.

Walter Baker (Grenville Carlton) continues as House leader of the party with Ray Hnatyshyn (Saskatoon-Biggar) as his deputy.

Steve Paproski (Edmonton Centre) is whip and Jack Ellis (Hastings) is deputy whip.

The six co-ordinators will be to the official Opposition what the major ministers are to the government. The men Clark chose have been outspoken critics of the government for years.

The appointment of MacDonald, who got in trouble with his leader in the last session by breaking party lines and voting against a bill the Conservatives were supporting, indicates that any ill feeling there has been overcome.

WAGNER KEEPS JOB

Claude Wagner (St. Hyacinthe) keeps his job as party spokesman on external affairs but is not mentioned in any other capacity. He is the best known of three Conservative Quebec MPs and was a leadership candidate. He stepped down earlier this year as chairman of chairmen. He has been seriously ill and it is questionable whether he will participate much in at least the early days of the forthcoming Parliament.

Another Quebec MP, Roc La Salle (Joliette), Clark's official representative in Quebec, has received a boost by being given the high-profile responsibility for employment. In the last session he was spokesman for amateur sport, a relatively minor job.

In all, 44 of the 93 Conservatives in the Commons have been given some role—as spokesman or in co-ordination.

A spokesman in Clark's office said the party will propose Ronald Huntington (Capilano) as the chairman of the public accounts committee, the Commons group that spent much of the last session of Parliament looking at alleged payoffs by Crown corporations.

The position is the only Commons chairmanship open to the Conservatives. The governing Liberals get the rest. Lawrence was chairman last session.

CRITICS NAMED

The party's critics on specific subjects:

Agriculture: John Wise (Elgin) with Berg Hargrave (Medicine Hat) dealing with livestock, Frank Hamilton (Swift Current-Maple Creek) with wheat board, and Fred McCain (Carleton-Charlotte) with eastern agriculture.

Carter orders embargo study

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — President Carter has ordered the National Security Council to assess the effects another oil embargo would have on the United States has become and how the government might respond if our overseas oil supplies should be cut off.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger has concluded darkly that the continued flow of Middle East oil into this country is less certain than at any time since the 1973 Arab oil embargo, confidential sources report.

The United States has become more dependent, meanwhile, on foreign oil fields. This country now imports 8.7 million barrels of oil a day. This is two million barrels more than the daily intake only two years ago.

Yet oil is the lifeblood that keeps the nation throbbing. Without overseas oil, the industry wheels would slow down and the highways would start to empty. Even the nation's military machine would have to curtail its operations.

So last June, President Carter ordered a secret review of the nation's vulnerability. The exhaustive, four-month study is now nearing completion.

The findings probably will be too sensitive to release to the public. The security analysts are studying several possible scenarios. They are particularly concerned, for example, that sudden disruption of the international oil flow could cause a confrontation in Europe between the Soviet bloc and NATO nations over oil. One intelligence official stressed: "Oil is terribly important in national security affairs."

The most likely result, according to sources familiar with the National Security Council review, will be tighter control of oil imports and a dramatic acceleration of the strategic oil program.

Overseas oil already is going into the strategic reserves in case of a future emergency. Schlesinger "would like to put as much oil in the ground as possible," one administration source explained.

Critics contend, however, that Schlesinger puts too much emphasis on conserving oil and not enough emphasis on replacing it. Since the world consumes oil faster than nature creates it, they argue, the world inevitably must run short of oil. They believe Schlesinger's first priority, therefore, should be to find a substitute for oil.

Administration officials have indicated to us, meanwhile, that the president will start using his executive authority if Congress doesn't help him reduce oil imports. He may have to resort to using the Trade Expansion act, they said, to curtail imports with fees and tariffs.

Footnote: Foreign oil purchases are also giving Treasury officials a four-asperin headache. "There's no question," an official told us, "that the balance of payments is causing concern at the highest levels."

Panama Pressures: The Carter administration is fully aware of human rights violations in Panama, but has remained silent so far to avoid upsetting the Panama Canal treaty negotiations.

One highly placed State Dept. official conceded privately to our reporter Julia Keller that Panama "has areas in need of improvement," including abuses of human rights.

Another official added that State cannot criticize Panama for such violations "until the Panama Canal treaty is in the bag."

At the same time, presidential assistant Peter Bourne was recently reminded by the Panamanian Committee for Human Rights that, as we reported in 1973, the family of Panama strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos was involved in narcotics smuggling and that the State Dept. tried to cover it up. Bourne told the spokesman the White House didn't want to "ruffle feathers" during the sensitive negotiations.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Leopoldo Aragon, widow of the Panamanian writer who recently immolated himself to protest the canal treaty, plans to tell the House about torture, kidnapping and forced exile under Torrijos.

For the record, however, the administration insists it is "not aware" of any human rights violations in Panama. The Panamanian embassy has also denied such violations.

TV Tussle: The Justice Dept. has been accused of gyping American television makers out of hundreds of millions of dollars in favor of 18 Japanese competitors.

In a scorching confidential letter to Assistant Attorney General John Shenefield, the nation's antitrust chief, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., blasted the department for "incredible deference to suspected anti-trust violators."

Shenefield had promised Congress he would subpoena vital documents in the case. But Bayh charges he has double-crossed Congress by indicating he would drop the case without issuing a single subpoena.

Roared Bayh: "The American television industry has nearly decimated over the past 10 years by the operation of what appears to be a classic and illegal cartel."

But Shenefield told us he is trying to persuade the Japanese and their American competition to voluntarily surrender necessary documents.

What blunder?

EDITOR'S NOTE: When we err, we don't fool around. We had a fair number of calls yesterday, pointing out that to the best of anyone's knowledge, Saskatchewan had not yet claimed Manitoba and our headline on yesterday's Page 4 story on Manitoba's NDP legacy was a real scoop. Read it first in The Record.

Trudeau doubletalk

Editor:

A recent Canadian Press item had Prime Minister Trudeau saying, "I respect those who risk jail disobeying bad laws." In this case he was referring to rebel parents in Quebec.

As a victim of one of Trudeau's own bad laws (I was jailed for doing no more than flying newsmen to the seal hunt) I suggest to Canadians that it should be those who create bad laws that ought to go to jail.

If this were done, it seems the fair way, we should eventually have a lot of bad politicians in jail, but good laws.

Blasting Dr. Hill

Editor:

I would like to comment on the speech made by Dr. Peter Hill at the A.G.R.H.S. awards night. There is a lot of truth in his basic premise that an education should not be regarded as the pursuit of job qualifications. However, I feel that his remarks were inappropriate to the occasion.

Dr. Hill seemed to imply that students attained honour roll status only because failure has become an unacceptable concept. This seemed to be an indictment of the system at Galt. I can assure him that those who obtain 80 per cent averages merit their awards.

He also revealed an ignorance of the area when he maintained that students have no chores to perform nowadays so it was small thanks to them to do well. This is a farming area, many students help out at home, others travel long distances just to get to school and yet others pass out newspapers in all weather. Students have very little choice as far as what they study is concerned. For high school diplomas, C.E.G.E.P. and university entrance and for the job market they are faced with a long list of prerequisites, obligatory courses, minimum averages, etc. In this environment small wonder that few can afford to pursue an education for altruistic purposes.

It was a grave error on his part to withhold his praise. The students present that night deserved recognition of their efforts. I would like to offer them my sincere congratulations for a job well done. Mr. Bruce Patton also deserves credit for a very well-organized evening.

Finally I feel that Dr. Hill's high-minded concepts of education might have carried more weight if backed up by a quotation from a more authoritative source than the trite, jingoism of Kipling.

What about a freedom bill?

Is Canada held together by a shoe string?

At the present time the PQ Government is preparing to have Quebec separate from Canada. Should this occur, all our work in building homes will be wasted for ourselves and our children.

We will all wake up and find we are in a foreign country, an independent Quebec. If we are loyal Canadians and can afford it, we will move - maybe to Alberta. Then, Alberta being the richest province, we feel secure until they decide to separate the same as Quebec.

What assurance do we Canadians have that our homes and hopes will remain in Canada? We have no assurance at all. What kind of a country is this?

Recently I attended a meeting in Augusta, the capital of Maine. There the Americans were amazed and expressed disbelief at the way the Federal Government was standing idly by and letting this separation be decided by one-tenth of the country. I was informed that should Maine, Vermont, or any other state try such a move, the U.S. Congress would immediately step in. This could not occur; they simply could not understand why the federal government was letting this happen.

I stated to them I would like to see a bill passed by the Parliament of Canada that would give all Canadians some assurance of security; of still being a Canadian. A right that does not exist now, for tomorrow we may wake up a foreigner to our country.

Call it a freedom bill, stating clearly that each province has jurisdiction over their internal affairs, with one exception. That exception being: any interference that may cause the break-up of this country; the matter then comes under the jurisdiction of the federal government and the matter is decided by the Parliament of Canada.

This bill could only be passed by Parliament and it could be done if anyone cares. If Levesque can pass Bill 101 without reading all the briefs and railroad the legislation through the Assembly to the dissatisfaction of thousands of Quebecers; there is no reason the federal government could not pass this freedom bill before it is too late.

Thirty-nine years ago the Federal Government called on Quebecers, both French and English, to go and defend these freedoms. Many of us answered Canada's call. The veterans of Hong Kong spent five years, in prison hoping their sacrifice would bring justice to Canada. Many of us helped free France so that DeGaulle could once again be free.

He then came over here with his famous speech, vive le Quebec libre - this was the first seeds of separation. It was his dirty separatist way of showing his gratitude for his freedom. We should have left his fate for the Germans to decide.

In 1967 I received from the Canadian government the Centennial Medal along with a plaque on which were the words, "For outstanding service to your country". I cherish this very much; but I would willingly give it to any federal M.P. who would have the guts to present this freedom bill to Parliament to be passed immediately.

If the bill was passed, then all Canadians would feel assured of some kind of freedom and a country they can call "Canada".

We answered Canada's call in 1939. Now, it is up to Canada and the federal government and its members to answer our call; to intervene now with a bill of this sort.

If Canada and the federal members choose to sit idly by and let Quebec separate, then there will be no more faith in Canada as a nation. If Quebec does separate, I, for one, will not live in an independent country I cannot call Canada.

I will fight again for these freedoms we fought for before. I know there are many, many more who feel the same way.

Let's pray to heaven that violence does not happen. But, if Canada deserts us, we have but one alternative.

Bury's Anglican Mission marks 140th anniversary

By MRS. H. ROWELL (Record Correspondent)

BURY — On Sunday morning, October 2nd, St. Paul's Anglican Church celebrated the 140th anniversary of an Anglican Mission in Bury, at Holy Communion.

The service was conducted by the incumbent, Rev. L. Westman, assisted by Mr. David Wright.

The sermon was delivered by the Rt. Rev. Allan Goodings, Bishop of Quebec, who portrayed an image of how our forebears had worked to build this beautiful church, worshipped here on many occasions, both sad and happy.

With John Foster as organist, a combined choir of St. Paul's and St. Alban's of Scotstown, rendered several hymns chosen for the occasion.

Following the service a reception was held in the Parish Hall, and a delicious luncheon of assorted casseroles and sweets was served by members of St. Paul's Guild to approximately fifty people.

Records of the Church date back to 1838, when Rev. Wm. Arnold was appointed the first resident clergyman, the years prior to this, services were conducted by the Church of England minister from Cookshire. The Church of England was the first to hold religious services in the Township of Bury.

At first, services were held in the village school house. In the early 1840s, during Rev. Wm. King's incumbency, a building was erected which was a school, church and a dwelling house, all under one roof. This building, as well as the rural schools, were used for services. During this time, St. John's Church, on the Dudswell Road, and St. Thomas in Bown were built.

In 1860, a commodious church was built (St. Paul's) in 1873 a chancel was added and in 1881 the present Parsonage was built.

Around the year 1903, this church burned, a new one was built on the same site and was dedicated in 1910. During this time services were held in the old Methodist Church, a short way below the cemetery.

The present St. Paul's Church is acknowledged to be one of the finest country churches in Quebec. A fine structure of classic design, having beautiful interior furnishings, memorials and magnificent stained glass windows. Several of these windows were saved from the old church that burned. The three windows at the altar were in memory of Rev. Thos. Richardson, who was here from 1864 to 1869. The window on the right side of the choir was in memory of Rev. H.S. Fuller's little girl.

According to legend, after the first church burned, Rev. Washer went to England to procure financial help to rebuild the church, during his absence construction was commenced. Upon learning this, and because it was being built north and south instead of the window facing the east, which had been an old custom of the Church of England, he gave up his endeavors and came home.

The Parish Hall and Sunday School Room was completed and dedicated at the 100th Anniversary Service in September 1937. This is a beautiful room, finished off in B.C. fir, seats built on three sides and a kitchenette. Forty years later, the Parish Hall was enlarged and dedicated by the Lord Bishop of Quebec, Timothy J. Matthews, following a confirmation service on Sunday May 22, 1977.

On September 22, 1937, a centennial celebration service was held in St. Paul's Church, followed by a dinner at the Town Hall by the Ladies' Guild, to over 150 people. This service was conducted by the incumbent, Rev. W.W. Smith. Other officiating clergy were Ven. Archdeacon Jones of Lennoxville, Rev. Canon Murray D. C.L., of Lennoxville, Rural Dean Rev. A.E. Tulk, of Cookshire, and Rev. S.A. Wood of Scotstown. Messages were read from the Bishop, the former rector, Rev. C.T. Lewis and Rev. Bown of East Angus.

Late that afternoon a dedication service was held in St. Paul's Cemetery at the Memorial stone of a beloved priest, Rev. H.S. Fuller, his wife and family.

Clergymen who have served this Mission have been: 1838, Rev. Wm. Arnold - first resident minister; 1839, Rev. C.P. Reid - afterwards rector at Sherbrooke; 1840, Rev. F. Brooms; 1841, Rev. Wm. King - school, church and residence under one roof, St. John's and St. Thomas' Churches were built; 1847, Rev. Charles Forrest; 1847, Rev. John Kemp; 1864, Rev. Thos. Richardson; 1869, Rev. R. 1887, Rev. H.S. Fuller; 1896, Rev. C.B. Washer; 1909, Rev. C.T. Lewis - Through him, all debts were paid, the Mission became a self supporting parish, later became a mission again; 1935, Rev. W.D. McChristie - Bishop's graduate - stayed a few months; 1936, Rev. W.W. Smith - transferred to East Angus; 1939, Rev. W.J. Rowe - spent war years in Bury, helped comfort families of prisoners of war, later transferred to St. Stephen's in Coaticook.

1949, Rev. S.R. Foreman - later went to Winnipeg; 1952, Rev. J.E. Secord - moved to Grand Manan, N.B.; 1954, Rev. G.L. Norris - moved to Waterloo; 1960, Rev. W.E. Walker - was in Scotstown prior to coming to Bury, now Canon Walker of St. Anne's, Richmond; 1965, no resident for a few months, services were taken by various ministers and students; 1965, Rev. Richard Blyth of South Africa - now at St. Matthews in Quebec City, 1966, Rev. M.C.M. Jones - formed Victoria Parish, linking congregations from St. Paul's, St. John's of Brookbury, Christ's Church of Canterbury, St. Alban's of Scotstown, St. Agnes of Lake Megantic, St. Barnabas of Ditchfield, and St. Lawrence of Lawrence, being in charge of services in the seven churches. Rev. Jones is now semi-retired, living in the Lennoxville area.

1976, Rev. L. Westman - present incumbent, lives in Randboro, became Rural Dean in 1977.

Globetrotters to visit Sherbrooke soon

Globetrotters' No. 36 MEADOWLARK LEMON reaches to block a free ball.

The Harlem Globetrotters will show once again why they have been called the "World's Greatest Family Entertainment" when they come to Sherbrooke Palais des Sports on October 27.

Now in their second half century, the Trotters continue to amaze fans with their superb basketball skills. Long-time fans will marvel at new dimensions of basketball wizardry now part of the Globetrotter show.

"The fans make it happen," says Trotter president, Stan Greeson. "They supply the energy which makes the Trotters tick."

Throughout more than fifty years of Globetrotters successes, of which there have been many, the fans have always played a major role. Globetrotter fans are unique, for geographically they have no bounds. They are found throughout the world. Wherever they play, the famed Magicians of Basketball are hailed as the "home" team. It is a distinction other teams only dream about.

Sherbrooke will be just one stop on a tour that will bring smiles to the faces of thousands. But the Trotters are the lucky ones. They'll be sharing those smiles every night.

The Harlem Globetrotters have played before more people than any sports team in history. But to the Globetrotter players, three of the team's most memorable appearances were before audiences of one.

These are the three occasions that the Globetrotters have been invited to meet with and perform for the Pope.

The Globetrotters have been granted audiences with the three most recent Popes of the Catholic church, His Holiness Pope Pius XII, His Holiness Pope John XXIII, and His Holiness Pope Paul VI.

Of the three, perhaps the most memorable appearance was the audience with Pope John XXIII in 1959.

The audience was at Castel Gandolfo, the summer residence of His Holiness. After meeting with each Globetrotter, the Pope asked to see a sample of the famed Globetrotter trademark, the Magic Warm-up Circle.

The players immediately formed the circle and began passing a ball around, while "Sweet Georgia Brown" was hummed by other members of the Globetrotter party.

The Holy Father not only laughed with the others, enjoying the Trotter tricks, he even tapped his toe in time with the music.

The Magicians of Basketball hold the world attendance record for an outdoor basketball game, and also hold the indoor pro basketball record. The outdoor record was set when 75,000 saw the Trotters play in Berlin's Olympic Stadium in 1951, while the indoor mark was set when 31,112 watched the Trotters in the Louisiana Superdome in 1975.

Last season saw the Trotters set new attendance marks in such cities as Philadelphia, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Oakland, St. Petersburg, Vancouver and Seattle.

The Trotter 1978 World Tour will carry the harlequins of the hardwood to more than 400 cities on four continents, stretching from South and Central America to Australia and Europe.

In the early days the Globetrotters consisted of five players and owner Abe Saperstein, driving from village to village in an old car. Today the Trotter tour includes a small army of more than 30 people.

In addition to the basketball magic of the Globetrotters, fans in Sherbrooke will be treated to an all-star, all-family variety spectacular at haltime.

CURLY NEAL, 'Magician of Basketball' No. 22, jumps up in the air to shoot.

Riverboat Marty

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin, baseball's riverboat gambler, flew west Thursday, trying to figure the odds on winning a World Series with a short deck.

Martin had taken some criticism for starting Catfish Hunter, who was tagged for three early homers in the second game Wednesday night, a game the Dodgers won 6-1 to even the Series.

It was a gamble that didn't pay off, and when a gambler loses, some people tend to forget the gambles that did, such as benching Reggie Jackson in the final game of the playoffs in Kansas City and letting pitcher Sparky Lyle lead off in the bottom of the ninth of the first Series game.

When Martin appeared for a news conference Wednesday, he was shuffling a deck of cards, almost as if they were ball players.

Rugby falls by the wayside

Australians switch to soccer

SYDNEY (Reuter) — Once upon a time every Australian boy or his father had to make a decision: Should the youngsters play Rugby Union, Rugby League or the National Game, Australian rules?

Of course there were always the rebels who decided against all types of rugged in favor of soccer. But they generally ended up with fewer friends or, in extreme cases, a black eye.

But if recent trends continue towards more Australians playing and watching soccer, those days may be over.

The reasons for the turn away from the traditional codes have been the growing reputation in international football of the national side, the Socceroos, and the success after only half a season of a national league.

The surge of interest in soccer started when for the first time Australia reached the final round of the World Cup at Munich in 1974 and now the Socceroos are making a strong bid to reach the 1978 finals in Argentina.

After the 1974 World Cup debut most soccer officials thought it would require at least one more appearance in the finals to sustain the buildup of interest.

But some officials now believe that even if the Socceroos do not make it to Argentina, the game has become so entrenched that it will continue to grow.

They base their optimism on a 14-team national league which was started only last April, more in hope than confidence, but which has drawn far bigger crowds than expected.

The most optimistic attendance figure soccer officials hoped for at the start of the season was 10,000 at a game. Within a few weeks, 13,000 people had turned up to watch a game in Adelaide, outdrawing the city's main Australian Rules game.

Later in Melbourne, 15,000 people attended a match between St. George and South Melbourne in which English stars Charlie George and Malcolm MacDonald were playing.

PAID BIG MONEY
The two English players were among 80 overseas footballers, who came to Australia to show their skills, during their own country's non-playing season.

Australian clubs have paid hundreds of thousands of dollars to bring the foreign players here. Canberra City and Sydney Olympic have 10 overseas players each and most other sides include a number of imports from Europe, South America and Asia.

The result has been a higher standard of play which has won over even fans who do not completely understand the rules.

Other spectators have turned to soccer as a protest against poor amenities at rugby games.

Because soccer is relatively new to Australia most of the grounds are modern compared with facilities provided for rugby.

Rugby League authorities have recognized the fall-off in attendance and ordered clubs to improve their grounds.

Several recent accidents in school Rugby matches in which young players have been badly injured also have encouraged parents to push their children to play soccer, in which the chances of serious injury are less.

Major sports stores report greatly increased demand for soccer equipment and local councils are hard pressed to keep up with the requests for soccer pitches.

Weekend sports schedule

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Amateur sports buffs have a wide variety to pick from this weekend in the area.

In high school action tomorrow at Bishop's College School, bantam and junior boys soccer host Seminaire Salesian at 10 a.m., while the BCS seniors meet Lower Canada College at 10:30. Also at 10:30, senior football between LCC and BCS will be played, vying in this annual event for the Shirley Russell Trophy. At 2 p.m., bantam footballers oppose Laurentian Regional.

Up the highway at Alexander Galt Regional, another full athletic slate is on tap. Beginning at 10 a.m., a girls' soccer tournament comprising bantam, junior and senior teams from three schools will be held. At noon, senior girls' field hockey pits AGRHS against Massey-Vanier Regional. Senior football competition starts at 1 p.m. when Galt hosts MVRHS in a battle for league standings.

Champlain College also gets into the action with a football game on Saturday against Trois-Rivières at 2 p.m. Women's soccer versus Sherbrooke CEGEP will be played at the Terrill St. field in Sherbrooke at 1 p.m.

Monday games have Champlain-Bishop's squads competing at 4 p.m. Galt will host the field hockey team, while Lyndon State College from Vermont visits the Lennoxville campus.

Royals defeat Beavers 7-4

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Bob Crawford's second goal of the night at 4:31 of the third period broke a 4-4 tie and Cornwall Royals went on to defeat Sherbrooke Beavers 7-4 in Quebec Major Junior Hockey League play Thursday night.

Cam MacGregor, Graeme Nicholson, Rick Patterson, Danny Geoffrion and Dave Allison scored the other goals for the Royals with Ricky Vaive, Louis Begin, Sylvain Locas and Ron Carter replying for the Beavers before 2,675 fans.

Referee Pierre Gibeau of Montreal assessed seven of 12 minors to the Beavers and each team picked up a major. Cornwall plays in Sherbrooke in one of four games tonight. Elsewhere, Verdun visits Chicoutimi, Shawinigan goes to Quebec and Montreal is at home to Laval.

AGRHS sweeps track meet

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Alexander Galt Regional High School took away top honors Wednesday in the annual Zone 14 cross-country meet at Bishop's College School.

AGRHS runners captured five of the six categories, failing only in the midget boys' section to make a clean sweep.

In what was termed by Bob Perrier, co-ordinator of the meet, as the biggest and most competitive event in several years, 130 students from five schools participated in bantam, midget and senior categories of boys and girls.

In addition to AGRHS and host BCS, Richmond Regional, Stanstead College and Seminaire Salesian competed.

Vicki Smith took the bantam class, with Louise Lepine and Jane Wright clinching top place in the midget and senior girls' events. Louis O'Neill and Peter Stevens rounded out the Galt victories in the bantam and senior sections. Jean-Francois Moreau of Seminaire took the midget boys category.

The top 10 runners in each of the six sections now advance to the "zones" (regional) competition, with Galt heading the list with 35 runners.

Coody takes golf lead

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A relaxed Charles Coody took a one-stroke lead into today's second round of the $150,000 Texas Open golf tournament after leisurely fashioning a near-record 63 over the opening 18 holes Thursday.

Torrez ready for tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Torrez, the major league tourist who has averaged a new ticket every two summers in his 10-year major league career, stops in Los Angeles tonight to pitch the third game of the World Series for New York Yankees.

Presumably, he'll be concentrating on the Dodgers' hitters, but money is on his mind these days, too. If Torrez doesn't get what he wants from the Yankees, he may soon be buying traveler's cheques and heading for Boston ... or maybe Montreal.

"I like New York and it's a great place to play," Torrez said on the eve of his Series outing. "But I would be just as happy playing in Boston."

Torrez, the Yanks have-fastball, will-travel right-hander, becomes a free agent at the end of the World Series. Earlier this season he indicated that he'd like to return to Montreal, where he had pitched for three years with the Expos.

Torrez's agent, Gary Walker, is scheduled to meet with Yankees president Gabe Paul in Los Angeles today to discuss his client's future.

The 31-year-old Torrez played for St. Louis Cardinals, Montreal, Baltimore Orioles and Oakland before being traded by the A's to New York last April.

Torrez had a 17-13 record this season, and was 14-12 after coming to the Yankees.

Beavers work on defense

By LEN O'DONNELL
SHERBROOKE — "If we improve our defense, on all angles, we'll be able to stop the Royals of Cornwall. Our forwards must play their share by coming back to help the defense and goalie, otherwise things will turn out bad," said Coach Ghislain Delage yesterday before leaving for Cornwall.

The Beavers will tangle with the Royals at the Sports Palace tonight and it will be a real tough game. "I figure our club will play better because they will have to be on their toes if they wish to stop the fast-moving Royals. We have been thinking a little too much in chalking up goals and have forgotten the defensive end of the game," added Coach Delage.

"Prior to last night's game we have registered a total of 67 goals in ten games while giving up 59. The difference is too small and this week we have been working on our defensive play."

The Royals are leading the Lebel division in the league by four points. They have dedented the visitors nets 65 times while allowing only 37 goals.

After tonight's tilt the Beavers play in Chicoutimi Sunday and return to the Sports Palace next Friday to tangle with Hull. Sunday evening they will take on the Quebec Remparts. All four games are very important for the Beavers and they will be out gunning for victories.

"Louis-Marie D'Aoust will be in the nets this evening and will remain there for a few games, then Alain Reindeau will be given the opportunity to show his wares," said Delage.

"Then I will decide just who will be our regular goalie and back-up man. I have told them and they know what they must do ... I am satisfied with their work but I think they can do better."

Coach Delage will use his usual defense duos, Allen Demers will work with Jeff Leverman while Ken Johnston and Francois James will be another unit. Joe Martin will be used in the alternate role when the situation presents itself.

Coach Ghislain Delage says he will decide on a starting goalie after a few more games.

NHL roundup - Sabres down NY

Buffalo Sabres felt they had a score to settle as they opened their National Hockey League season Thursday night, while coach Marcel Pronovost struggled with a different problem—making his NHL coaching debut a successful one.

Both objectives were accomplished as the Sabres got a pair of goals from Rene Robert and one from Jim Lorentz to down New York Islanders 3-2 before 16,433 fans at Buffalo's War Memorial Auditorium.

In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings tied 3-3, Atlanta Flames and Boston Bruins played to a 2-2 deadlock and Philadelphia Flyers dumped Chicago Black Hawks 5-1.

"These guys beat us in the playoffs and we knew we wanted to go out and win it against them," Robert said of the Islanders, who swept the Sabres in last season's Stanley Cup quarter-finals.

Pronovost was jubilant after his first game as a coach.

WILL KEEP PUCK

"I'm very, very happy about winning. One of my players, Craig Ramsay, gave me the puck at the end of the game," he said. "I'll keep it for a long time."

The Sabres scored first on Robert's power-play goal on a shot from point at the 8:55 mark in the first period, but Michel Bossy came back with a goal for the Islanders 29 seconds later.

Jim Lorentz and Robert scored second-period goals to give the Sabres a 3-1 lead. Dennis Potvin narrowed the score late in the third period when he intercepted a clearing pass and fired a 45-foot drive in off the pads of Sabres goaltender Don Edwards.

The Sabres were without captain Danny Gare, who was sitting out a one-game suspension for leaving the penalty box to join in a fight during an exhibition against Boston.

At Detroit, the Red Wings got a goal from rookie Rick Bowness and captain Dan Maloney in the last 4½ minutes to salvage the tie with the Maple Leafs.

Maloney's goal came on a power play with just 1:36 remaining, with No. 1 draft choice Dale McCourt assisting. About three minutes earlier, Bowness scored his first NHL goal to move the Wings to within one goal of the Leafs who got two goals from Pat Boutette and another from Jim McKenny. Jack Valiquette assisted on all three.

The game also marked the NHL coaching debuts of Detroit's Bobby Kromm and Toronto's Roger Neilson.

Detroit centre Dennis Hextall missed the game due to his two-game suspension by the league office for a spearing altercation against Washington Capitals during an exhibition game.

Willi Plett, the NHL's rookie of the year last season, accounted for both Flames goals in their game with Boston. His second goal came at 14:46 of the final period when Boston defenceman Doug Halward poked a loose puck into his own net.

No. 1 draft pick Dwight Foster, with his first NHL goal, and Bobby Schmautz scored for the Bruins before a home crowd of only 9,423.

SCORES TWICE

At Philadelphia, Don Saleski scored twice and assisted on a third goal as the Flyers spoiled the coaching debut of the Hawks' Bob Pulford.

The Hawks took a 1-0 lead at 2:28 of the opening period on Pit Martin's unassisted goal. But the Flyers scored three times before the period ended and took a 5-1 advantage into the final 20 minutes.

Philadelphia played without forwards Bob Kelly and Paul Holmgren and defenceman Jimmy Watson, all serving suspensions for pre-season brawls. Forward Mel Bridgman, however, received the league's permission to play despite being under a one-game suspension. He will sit out Saturday night's game in Pittsburgh against the Penguins.

Washington and Colorado open their seasons tonight with the Capitals entertaining Pittsburgh Penguins and the Rockies playing host to Vancouver Canucks.

Canadian soccer players jeered at World Cup games

MEXICO CITY (CP) — A thick hide is a necessity for members of Canada's national soccer team playing in the six-nation World Cup qualifying tournament in Mexico.

As Canadian coach Eckhard Krautzun puts it: "Every match is an away game because the spectators support the other team."

There are a number of obvious reasons why Mexican fans cheer for Canada's opponents and whistle in derision at just about everything the Canadians do.

One is that Canada came to the qualifying tournament as a threat to upset the Mexicans, who have represented the North and Central American and Caribbean Zone in every World Cup but one in the last 30 years.

Haiti was the zone representative in the last World Cup three years ago because it had a better win-loss record although it lost 1-0 in its qualifying-round game with Mexico.

This time there was respect for Canada because in last year's North American zone playoffs, the Canadians defeated and tied the Mexicans in their two games.

CHEER FOR LATINS

Another reason is that Mexican fans tend to identify with Latin America and so-called third world countries, and the nations represented here, besides Canada and Mexico, are Surinam, El Salvador, Guatemala and Haiti.

In Canada's opening game, a 2-1 loss to El Salvador in the northern industrial city of Monterrey, the crowd roundly jeered the Canadians until they slyly unfurled a Mexican flag at centre field.

They were delighted when El Salvador's strike, Luis Ramirez Zapata, scored both goals and were quiet when Brian Budd scored Canada's only goal late in the game.

The reactions were roughly the same when Canada played Surinam before a crowd of 80,000 in Aztec Stadium in Mexico City. There was little enthusiasm when Canada won 2-1 on goals by Buzz Parsons and Mike Bakic.

But, in fairness, they did show appreciation for some fine saves by Tony Churski, who played goal in the first half, and by Zjelko Bilecki, who replaced him in the second half after he hit his head on the goalpost and suffered a concussion.

Only one of the six teams

here will go to the World Cup in Argentina next year and Mexico is clearly the favorite after beating Haiti 4-1 and El Salvador 3-1.

Canada has a mathematical chance of finishing on top but it must win its remaining games—Sunday against Guatemala in Mexico City; Thursday, Oct. 20, against Haiti; and Saturday, Oct. 22, against Mexico.

The Canadians' last two games are in Monterrey where the heat and humidity were a problem for them in their opener.

Even if they manage to win their remaining games, however, they must look for someone to tie or defeat the Mexicans. Otherwise, goal spread will determine the ultimate winner and the Mexicans are building a solid edge in that department.

If the heat of Monterrey and the altitude of Mexico City don't do the Canadians in, injuries might just finish them. Bob Bolitho, a winger, suffered a leg injury in the first game and didn't dress for the second.

Then Brian Budd, Bolitho's replacement, and Victor Kodjelja, who set up both Canadians goals in the El Salvador game, suffered leg injuries that may either sideline or hamper them in future contests.

8 CFL teams have quarterback blues

At least three of the eight Canadian Football League teams scheduled to play this weekend have quarterback troubles, but few are more concerned than Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Conference.

The Eskimos brought in Bill Bowerman on Wednesday and Karl Douglas Thursday in case their perennial second-stringer, Bruce Lemmerman, cannot play Sunday against Saskatchewan Roughriders in an important game for both teams.

In the other Sunday game, Winnipeg Blue Bombers face the suddenly-sharp Argonauts at Toronto. Hamilton Tiger-Cats visit Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes meet British Columbia Lions in Saturday action.

The Montreal-B.C. game pits the leaders of the two conferences head-to-head at Vancouver.

Lemmerman suffered a broken thumb last week in a victory over Winnipeg that thrust Edmonton back into the playoff picture. Tom Wilkinson, the other Eskimo quarterback, also was injured but is scheduled to start despite a broken nose and bruised left shoulder.

Eskimos head coach Hugh Campbell did not speculate which of the newcomers might be added to the lineup. It was still possible Lemmerman would play with a specially-constructed cast.

Douglas finished his CFL career last season with Calgary Stampeders, while Bowerman failed training camp trials with Winnipeg and Calgary.

Some Winnipeg observers have suggested Harry Knight, a backup man most of the season, should be given the starting job over Ralph Brock, but Brock had an outstanding first half against the Eskimos last weekend.

Despite the criticism, Winnipeg leads the league in points with 303 points. The Argos have given up the least points, 197 in 12 games compared with 200 points scored against Montreal in 13 games.

Jeff Hart, a recent National Football League cut, will be in the Winnipeg lineup, replacing offensive guard Buddy Brown, who fractured his toe and is on the 30-day injured list.

Toronto lost to British Columbia and Saskatchewan in previous interlocking games this season.

Former Argo wide receiver Mike Eben—also a former Tiger-Cat and Eskimo—is expected to play for Ottawa on Sunday. Other former Tiger-Cats on the Ottawa roster are Canadian linebacker Tim Berryman and import defensive back Larry Brune.

ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

Oct. 15, 1977

This coming year you will have some extremely interesting experiences. They'll have a great influence upon expanding your outlook and making you a wiser, more profound person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, take care not to be maneuvered into making a loan to a friend who never returns what he borrows. History could repeat itself. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It will tarnish your image if you're too self-serving today. You'll chalk up points, however, if you are equally concerned with pleasing friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Unless you're on your guard today, there is a possibility you could repeat a mistake that got you in a serious bind before. Profit from experience.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'd be wise to avoid activities today where you might have to associate with people who make you feel ill at ease. No use spoiling a fun day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An opportunity may arise today for you to rectify a misunderstanding with an associate. Take advantage of it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be a lion in his den today. When you confront that which you fear, you will find it to be but a figment of your imagination.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Disappointments are likely today if expectations of what you feel others should do for you are unreasonable. Try not to be demanding.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Fixity of purpose is admirable, but sheer stubbornness has no redeeming value. Today you must be able to distinguish between the two.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Tasks that should be attended to today are apt to be neglected for a more pleasurable pursuit. Unfortunately, this will mean a heavier workload later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, stay well within your budget. Should you splurge beyond your means you could suffer a severe case of buyer's remorse.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Things will come easy to you today if you remain calm. The more uptight you get, the more difficulties you're likely to have to contend with.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Just because you were unsuccessful in a past attempt doesn't mean you have to fail again today in a similar situation. This is a new ballgame.

Oct. 16, 1977

The coming year will be a stimulating and interesting one, with much new knowledge gained in the process. Lots of pleasurable short junkies will alter the tempo and pace.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Use your inquiring mind to seek new knowledge today. You can absorb subjects you may have found difficult to understand previously. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Search for hidden bargains in out-of-the-way places today. You'll be quick to spot valuable items others could overlook.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Fortunately, you're in a gregarious mood and eager to exchange ideas with others today. Beneficial information will be disclosed in your discussions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone in a position to help further your ambitions will feel he can confide in you today. Keep it confidential.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Carefully observe associates today. You can gain valuable insights into their character to enable you to deal with them more comfortably later on.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your best chances for success today come from your ability to act upon the ideas of others. You know how to turn them into something profitable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be willing to discuss things frankly today. You'll find matters can be worked out beneficially for everyone concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A good day to catch up on a neglected project of a mental nature requiring concentration. You're more than up to it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your mind reacts quickly and soundly today and you'll be able to transform any sticky negotiations into a fun affair.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Making creative changes in the home is a good idea today. The project should prove enjoyable. The results will please the entire family.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be restless today, needing mental stimulation. Plan a day visiting interesting friends or going to interesting places.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Shopping for household items today could prove a fun adventure. Chances are you'll find what you're looking for at just the right price.

For Monday, Oct. 17, 1977

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Oct. 17, 1977

A change may come about this year that you'll resist because it's not the way you planned things. Better to go along with it, however, because it could work better than your original program.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Quickly rid yourself of the tendency to feel you might be more equal than anyone else today. Looking down on or talking down to others causes only trouble. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Flattery will truly get you nowhere today. The target of your blarney will sense your words have a false ring, and be more annoyed than pleased.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you run a little short this week, today could be one of the culprits. You tend to spend money like it's going out of style.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Where normally you're a good judge of people or situations, today that instinctive common sense might desert you. Underestimation can be costly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't expect more today than you have a right to. Others have their own problems and responsibilities and won't chuck them to bail you out.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) When you wish upon a star you depart from the real world. You may indulge in some fantasy today, but don't count on it to come true.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's a possibility you'll go out of your way today to impress the wrong people. Unfortunately, they can't or won't help you anyway.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It may be difficult to look reality square in the eye today. You'll find it much easier to rationalize situations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extra careful today in involvements where money is an issue. Unless everything is handled very properly someone is bound to come up short.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be an easy mark for a sharpie today. Be on your guard so that one doesn't sense your vulnerability and take advantage of you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Chances are your day won't be the most pleasant ever. There'll be a shortage of volunteers for tiresome details. You'll chafe at doing them yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is certainly not the day to take chances on an "if." You might succeed for a little while, but your bubble could quickly burst.

GO WITH HIM TWAIN

(Dedicated to the sponsors of the Second Mile Senior Centre, Sawyerville, and the Ministry of the Second Mile, Birchton.)

When we, compelled by force or fear do go
A certain mile, we are so angry that We don't foresee an opportunity
To pay back good for evil done to us;
Or heap the coals of fire upon his head.
But how? What method use? ... Go With Him Twain!
Can give to us our self-respect again.
For when we choose to go another mile
We show a spirit true, unconquered yet,
A spirit that will bend but never break.

Great effort is what pays the dividends;
Transmutes bleak drudgery to a form of glory
And goes beyond the call of duty done.
Besides, the lesson meant some other things
No doubt, such as some organization
That makes one be a leader for a time.
"Too busy, and no time, why can't you get Somebody else? But no, you have to pick On me. I'll finish this term, but no more."

Now don't forget that other mile, my friend,
Or spoil this work you under protest do.
For doing merely what you are compelled,
That merits no applause, no great esteem,
No panegyric will be won for this.
But if you go that other mile, forsooth,
Your thankless task takes on a deeper sense.
Your spirit has a chance to choose, regain Its self-respect, real contribution make;
If great the trial, then great reward must come.

It's easier a thousand times, to tell
What should be done, than to do it oneself.
So many glib excuses will come to mind:
"Such testing should not be expected here;
This time does not count," we cry. Alas,
We cannot pick and choose, but go the twain.
So when my time runs out, may this then be My epitaph: HE WENT THE EXTRA MILE.

Smarter than a jackass...

By NICK FONDA
(Record Reporter)

Seven years ago, Sybil Sewell, an avid horsewoman, noticed a pair of extremely long ears sticking out of a herd of horses. The ears turned out to belong to a young jenny, a female donkey. The jenny changed hands, changed name and became the founding mother of Quebec's first donkey breeding farm.

"We bought that first jenny as a pet," explained Mrs. Sewell, and in fact its real owner is my son, Ken. At the time I had a horse and I felt the donkey would be good company for it, as well as being a fine pet for Ken. We named it Eeyore, after the donkey in Winnie the Pooh. We enjoyed the animal so much that we soon found ourselves with two and we now have a herd of 10, including four brood jennies and two jacks."

Donkeys have been much maligned through history. The term jackass is often used to describe a stupid person; until seven years ago horse traders would ship donkeys with horses using the small beasts as buffers between the horses and the livestock trailers. If the donkeys died - as they often did - the traders felt the $10 or $20 investment was well worth it, as it kept their more expensive animals from getting cut or scratched.

"It's unfortunate really," said Mrs. Sewell, "because donkeys are surprisingly intelligent, hard-working and affectionate animals. Donkeys are very quickly broken to the saddle or to drawing a cart. Unlike horses which need days, if not weeks, of patient work, a donkey understands what is asked of him within hours. They are very mild-tempered and they seem to have a special affection for children."

"It isn't until you've worked with donkeys that you appreciate how intelligent they are," added Carl Sewell. "The very first time I hitched a donkey to a cultivator the animal couldn't seem to pull it. I stood back to try to find out what was wrong and the donkey started throwing himself to one side and then the other, dragging the cultivator a little to the right and then a little to the left to drag it forward. It wasn't until later that I found the trouble - the cultivator had been designed to be pulled by a team of two horses!"

While few people do it, donkeys can be housebroken. "We found out a few years ago when the Uliverton Church put on a Christmas pageant. One of our foals was drafted for a part and since we worried about it dirtying in the church we brought it into our kitchen a few times to try to train it. The animal seemed to understand right away. One of our animals was used in an Eaton's promotion a few years ago and the man who stood by with a broom and shovel had no work at all."

Near children, donkeys display a unique gentleness. "I've never seen or even heard of a donkey hurting a child," said Mr. Sewell. "If a donkey is being abused by a child, and children can be quite cruel with animals, the donkey will show its annoyance by a switch of its tail or by raising its back in a

EYORE THE DONKEY was named after a donkey in Winnie the Pooh and, like his namesake, he loves kids and kids love him. Mrs. Sybil Sewell bought Eeyore as a pet for her son Ken.

quick gesture, but it will never kick or bite." Among themselves this is a different matter. Sometimes in fun, sometimes in earnest, donkeys will kick and nip at one another.

Donkeys are strangely shaped creatures. Their heads are disproportionately large, their feet are remarkably tiny. They come in an assortment of colors - black, brown, grey, white, a pinkish shade of red, piebald and dun. Almost all donkeys have the cross of Christ on their backs: a dark line running the length of their back and a transverse line running across their shoulders. According to legend this is the shadow of the cross on which Christ was crucified. While donkeys have a thick, almost woolly coat which makes them impervious to snow and cold, their muzzles have short hair, light in color.

However donkeys are hardy creatures which thrive on hard work and get by on little food. Much like humans, donkeys are happiest when they have work to do and they are quick to rise to the challenge of a new job. Pound for pound they out-work horses and they also do it on relatively little food. Donkeys get by very well on a handful of feed and a few flakes of hay, in fact too much food or too much protein in the food is very harmful to a donkey.

The Sewell's Windy Ridge Farm is one of a handful of donkey breeding establishments in Canada. "To the best of our knowledge," said Mrs. Sewell, "there are only a dozen or so people breeding donkeys in this country. All of our animals are registered, but so far we've had to register them in the United States. We've been working towards setting up our own registry and we hope that the Canadian Donkey and Mule Association will become an affiliate of the Canadian Equestrian Federation."

Adult donkeys are hardy creatures but the breeding of donkeys is a tricky operation. "Donkeys have a very long gestation period - it can run from 11 to 13 months with 12 being the average. One problem with donkeys is 'lethal genes' - if you cross two white donkeys the offspring is almost always stillborn. There are still white donkeys around because unlike many other animals they don't breed true to color. One problem which we have had is the naimal's desire to foal outside. We like to have the animals foal in the barn but the jennies seem determined to foal in the pasture."

So far the Sewells have found a ready market for their animals. "We haven't had problems selling our foals, in fact we often have to put people's names on a waiting list. We tend to be discriminating; we don't like to sell unless we're sure that the animal will be well looked after. We've had inquiries from as far afield as the prairie provinces, but most of our animals have been sold closer to home." The majority of people buying donkeys are looking for a pet. Besides being intelligent and docile donkeys are long-lived - an average of 40 years.

People wishing to see donkeys first-hand can drop in to the Sewell's farm in Uliverton. "We have a lot of visitors," Mr. Sewell said, "and they're always welcome." With a smile, Mrs. Sewell added, "People seem to enjoy seeing them and it's surprising how much we can learn from watching donkeys."

Snow geese wildlife dream turns into nightmare

ESKIMO POINT, N.W.T. (CP) - What began as an incredible wildlife success story has turned into a nightmare for snow geese nesting on this coastal plain halfway up the western shore of Hudson Bay.

In 1954 only 12,000 pairs of breeding snow geese were counted in a small area at the mouth of the McConnell River. This led to the establishment of a federal migratory bird sanctuary in the area.

By 1973, biologists estimated 163,000 nests at the mouth of the river alone.

Now the entire sanctuary area only supports a fraction of that number.

The geese, in their search for the vast quantities of grasses and sedge it takes to feed them, have moved farther north and south.

Driven by their hunger, they have sought out every blade remaining, even within the confines of this peninsular community.

Goslings hardly big enough to tumble through sodden tundra have scrambled as far as 50 miles in a desperate search for food.

AFFECTED BY CROPS

"The problem with these geese is that they never have a poor year," Kent Brace, a Canadian Wildlife Service (CWS) biologist, said in an interview. "Every year they're able to bring off their broods."

Brace said presence of the geese in the area may be due to agricultural developments farther south as well as local conditions.

"I feel this flock was one that stayed longer on the Prairies because of crops such as winter wheat. Instead of just staging in the McConnell area, they began to settle down."

More traditional nesting locations such as Southampton Island, high up in Hudson Bay, and Baffin Island produce young geese only during those years when snow leaves the ground early.

Brace said the McConnell sanctuary and surrounding territory may be too much of a good thing.

"We have more than just our observations on the spread of this flock to conclude that the McConnell geese may be in serious trouble."

"There have been some unusual changes in nesting behavior with females abandoning nests."

"The young goslings here are in relatively poor condition and it is doubtful that a good percentage will survive until they can fly."

Even more unusual was the disappearance of more than 500,000 geese too young to breed from the area.

Brace said the CWS has no idea where they went although "we suspect they went on a moult migration to some other area."

The biologist said snow geese are easily the most numerous of North American geese and the emergence of ever increasing numbers was considered good by naturalists and hunters. But because of their remote nesting locations little is known of the dynamic forces governing their population.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

"There are no historic records to indicate there ever have been such large concentrations in the Eskimo Point area. We have no idea whether to expect the population to spread into new areas, crash or just gradually decline."

"We do know that when they were first discovered here the coastal plain was covered in a tufted plant species called cottongrass and now it is in short supply."

"We also have our observations on the condition of the geese and their distribution to unlikely areas as an indication that all is not well."

"And we suspect that without some management initiative to counterbalance this combination of human and natural forces that created this strong population, it may be a long time before we enjoy such vast numbers again."

Action is being taken by local Eskimos, the CWS, which is jurisdictionally responsible for migratory birds in Canada, and game agencies of the midwestern and southern United States.

They are working on a project to band 35,000 or more geese during each of the next 10 years, a project considered massive in the annals of wildlife biology.

Management alternatives for the population include artificial feeding on wintering and staging areas farther south, so the breeding birds return in better condition, or increased cropping through hunting, permitting fewer returning birds to utilize the breeding range more successfully.

Brace said the banding is being done because of the need to know the distribution of the geese on their migration.

"Any data we have show us only that there is a general mixing of various populations on the migration routes."

"What we need to identify are the prime southern areas where these birds turn up on their southern migrations so that any management scheme proposed will affect the McConnell birds primarily and avoid any detrimental effect on other less viable populations."

He said banding must be carried out on significant numbers of geese over a long period to be statistically valid.

Ferrets vanishing

WASHINGTON (AP) - Three years ago, a pair of black-footed ferrets emerged from a prairie dog burrow in South Dakota. The small weasel-like predators scurried across the dry earth before suddenly disappearing down another hole.

Since that dawn patrol in August, 1974, the rare animal is not on record as having been sighted in the wild.

The black-footed ferret is one of North America's most beautiful predators, with deep bronze fur, black feet and a black mask across its eyes that gives it a Lone Ranger appearance.

Biologists fear the animal is becoming extinct in the wild. And there are problems with the only ferrets held in captivity.

Efforts to breed two pairs of the animals at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Centre in nearby Maryland have failed.

One male, suffering from what is believed to be terminal cancer, is not expected to live more than nine months. And one of the females is reluctant to breed.

ARE HOPEFUL

But biologists have not given up hope of saving the species.

Keith Schreiner, associate director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, says he thinks there are still some ferrets roaming the wild.

"I am convinced that we have a small population of blackfooted ferrets, and probably over a good-sized area," he says.

There have been several unconfirmed sightings since the South Dakota incident. And no ferrets have been found dead alongside highways for seven years.

The mink-sized mammal lives in prairie dog towns, spending its days sleeping in abandoned burrows. It hunts at night, invading occupied burrows in hope of killing a sleeping prairie dog.

This nocturnal, subterranean lifestyle makes it extraordinarily difficult to spot.

Ferrets are believed to have once ranged from southern Canada to Texas and New Mexico. But the coming of the white man destroyed the once-vast prairie dog towns.

Schreiner says the wild population may have diminished to the point of no return.

Birds' bubble bath

HALIFAX (CP) - Ordinary dishwater can scrub an oil-soaked seabird clean but the bird would probably die anyway, a British conservationist says.

Prof. R.B. Clark of the University of Newcastle-upon-Tyne headed a study for the British government on saving seabirds following the sinking of the tanker, Torrey Canyon in 1967.

He told about 160 scientists at a seminar on northern oil pollution that it is better to prevent the birds from getting oiled, by dispersing oil slicks or scaring the birds away from oily water.

After the Torrey Canyon sinking, 8,000 oily birds were picked up and sent all over England for cleaning. Only one or two birds survived. The rest died either during the cleaning process or afterwards because their feathers were no longer waterproof.

Researchers later found that warm water combined with ordinary liquid detergent, "the cheaper the better," is the best cleansing agent. The detergent does not destroy the birds' waterproofing and the warm water prevents them from getting chilled.

Clark said his group had some success with a large number of storks caught in oil in the Firth of Forth. Of the 249 birds, 104 survived.

But cleaning birds from a major spill would be futile unless a central facility were set up, capable of feeding, housing and bathing large numbers of birds, he said.

Even this would have little value from a conservation point of view, except for saving rare birds, because "the overwhelming majority" of rescued birds are likely to die anyway, he said.

Saving seagulls would not be a good conservation measure because Britain is trying to curb gull populations in some areas. Other species such as eider ducks have been found to replenish their populations rapidly after oil kills.

Worms thrive on oil

HALIFAX (CP) - Arenicola marina is a common marine worm that looks almost identical to its smaller terrestrial cousin, the earthworm.

But the underwater burrower has a characteristic that is arousing scientific interest at the Bedford Institute of Oceanography here.

It thrives on oil pollution. Dr. Donald C. Gordon, Jr., who led a study of the worm for the institute, told a scientific seminar on oil pollution in northern waters today that Black Duck Cove at the rim of Chedabucto Bay supports the largest population of the worms he has ever seen in the Maritimes.

The sheltered cove was among the most heavily polluted areas when the tanker Arrow sank in 1970 and it remains heavily polluted with bunker C.

Dr. Gordon's team studied worms from Black Duck Bay and from an unpolluted bay, Petpeswick Inlet about 45 miles from Halifax.

His studies showed that the worm's casings—the excrement it heaps at the mouth of its burrow—acarbon content than the polluted sediment on which the animal fed.

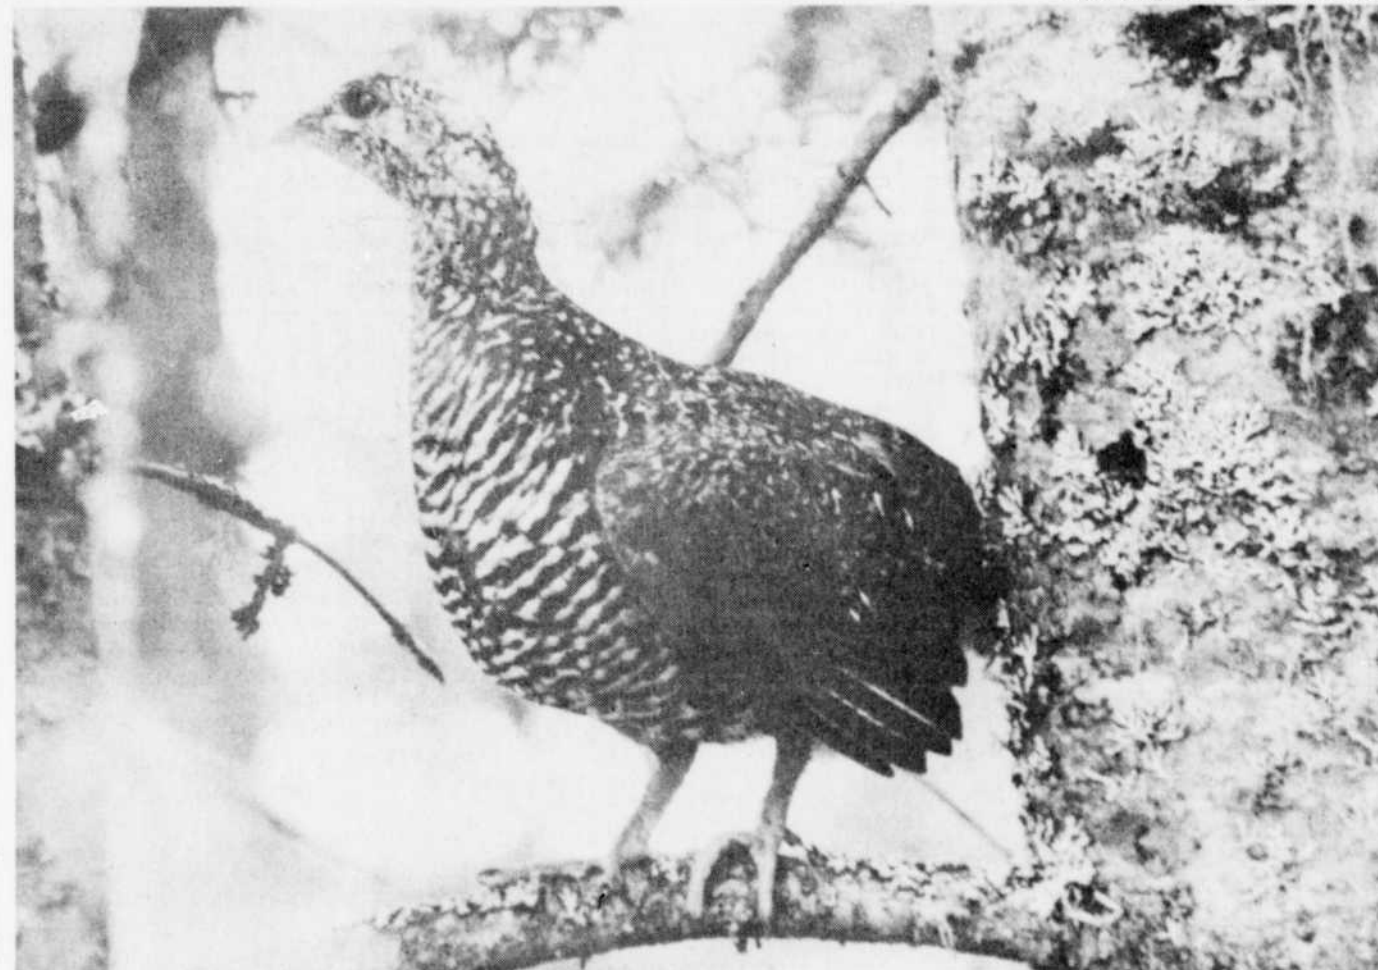

CASUALTIES HEAVY

The study showed that in heavy concentrations of oil many worms die or leave their burrows, so they probably suffer heavy casualties when the oil first comes. But when weathering reduces the oil's toxicity the species comes back faster than any other species and has a population explosion.

Dr. Gordon said later the worm does not appear to actually feed on the oil but its body does absorb much of the hydrocarbons in the sediment it takes in.

Hydrocarbon content in the worms' bodies sometimes exceeded that of the soil, probably because the worm also takes in some oil from the water. Its body appears to contain some enzymes that are capable of breaking the oil down, Dr. Gordon said.

However, Dr. Gordon said in an interview he did not foresee the worms ever being deliberately planted to break down oil pollution.

The partridge is much sought after by hunters in Quebec and is ultimately in danger of extinction. The minister of Tourism, Game and Fisheries, Andre Delage, has asked that hunters use their own judgement and cut down on the number of partridges killed per season.

Oil pollution selective -- Mollusks die, trout expels oil

HALIFAX (CP) - Oil hurts some marine animals but not others, speakers at a seminar on northern oil spills said Tuesday.

The 160 scientists at the seminar were told that clams and other mollusks can't cope with oil but a common marine worm thrives in it and even helps break it down. Flatfish suffer liver damage and fiddler crab populations are severely reduced. Mesidotea entomon, a common Arctic Ocean crustacean, is highly resistant to oil pollution.

Dr. J.H. Vandermeulen of the Bedford Institute of Technology here said his study of clams, oyster and mussels that had been exposed to oil showed the mollusks were unable to stop hydrocarbons from building up in their bodies because they lack the enzyme mechanisms that vertebrates use to do the job.

In an interview later he said it is not known what harm the hydrocarbons cause to the clams' organs or how the hydrocarbons affect animals that eat clams.

Vandermeulen said trout that had been exposed to bunker C and crude oil were able to expel much of the hydrocarbons but the clams could not.

He used some clams from a cove on Isle Madame in Nova Scotia's Chedabucto Bay, where large amounts of bunker C oil remain from the sinking of the tanker Arrow in 1970.

A separate study by Dr. E.S. Gilfillan of Bowdoin College in the United States and Vandermeulen discovered that clams from the polluted Janvrin Lagoon in Chedabucto Bay have a slower-than-normal growth rate and their population has been thinned.

However, the common marine worm Arenicola marina, which looks much like an earthworm, has thrived on bunker C oil.

Dr. Donald C. Gordon of the Bedford Institute said the worm even appears to help clean up oil deposits.

In heavily-polluted Black Duck Cove near Chedabucto

Bay, the worm has proliferated since 1970 into the heaviest population Gordon has seen in the Maritimes. Its castings—the soil it excretes in heaps at the mouth of its burrow—are significantly lower in hydrocarbons than the sediment on which it feeds. He said the worm appears to play a significant role in reducing oil levels in the cove.

Dr. K.I. Johannessen of the Institute of Marine Research in Norway said crude oil lowers the hatching rate of caplin eggs but there is no acute mortality. Once they hatch the offspring survive just as well as their clean-water brothers.

Dr. B.B. McCain of the United States Marine Fisheries Service in Seattle said English sole, a flatfish, developed hydrocarbon buildups in the liver, skin and muscles after 11 days in an oily environment. Then the buildups declined and were barely detectable after 27 days, probably because the fish were developing enzymes to dispel them.

However, the exposure did lasting damage to the livers, he said. Oiled fish also suffered more from gill parasites, were less active and grew more slowly. After four months one oiled fish was dead and two others were emaciated.

Dr. Jonathan A. Percy of the Canadian Arctic biological station at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., said the bottom-dwelling crustacean mesidotea entomon resists oil pollution well.

Dr. C.T. Krebs of the Woods Hole, Mass., Oceanographic Institute said a 1969 oil spill at West Falmouth, Mass., severely reduced the population of fiddler crabs in an affected marsh. High oil content killed adult crabs and a lower content killed juveniles. At the most polluted spot, there were few of the crabs for three years after the spill but the population now is recovering.

A surprise bridal shower

DERBY LINE — Miss Janelle Sykes, a popular October bride, was the guest of honor at a surprise shower held at her parents' home.

Janelle had gone out to dinner with her fiancé Michael Flagg and later returned home to find a number of friends awaiting her. As she entered the house pictures were snapped and she was presented with a corsage of bronze mums.

The chair reserved for the bride elect and the gift table, were decorated in blue, green and white. Janelle opened the gifts which were circulated and admired. Janelle, in her usual nice way, thanked everyone.

All had a grand time playing charades and prizes were awarded to the winners.

Buffet refreshments were served from a dining table centered with an arrangement of autumn flowers. Refreshments included sandwiches, chips, squares and beverages. The attractively decorated shower cake was cut and served by Janelle. Guests attended from Newport and border communities.

The hostesses were Mrs. Alta Brooks, Miss Mary Downing and Miss Linda Kennison.

Open House

SHERBROOKE — Mrs. Arnold Baker will hold an "Open House" for family and friends on this Sunday October 16 from 3 to 5:30 p.m. at 307 High Street. The party is to celebrate her mother's (Mrs. Sadie Shufelt) ninetyeth birthday.

Anniversary party

BURY — The Bury Town Hall was the scene of a very happy event on the evening of Sept. 29 when friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Quinn gathered to help them celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary.

Edgar and Irene were invited to the home of their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Osmond Aulis, for supper and were brought to the hall later in the evening under the pretence of hearing Mrs. Aulis play.

On arrival at the hall they were met by their grandchildren, John and Margaret Quinn, Mr. Ephrem Gaulin and Mrs. Honore Dupuis, their best man and matron of honor of forty years ago.

Mrs. Quinn was presented with a corsage of yellow carnations and Mr. Quinn with a white carnation and they were escorted to the front of the hall to the accompaniment of the Anniversary Waltz.

The head table for the bride and groom was decorated with gladioli and autumn leaves and centred with a three-tier cake iced in white and trimmed with yellow roses. The cake was decorated in the centre with the number 40 and a bride and groom.

Garth Harrison, master of ceremonies, spoke a few words to the bride and groom of 40 years and said how happy everyone was to be there to help them celebrate that event.

Gifts were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Quinn by Crystal and Holly Gillam, Margaret Quinn and Marilyn Anderson.

In a few well-chosen words, Edgar and Irene thanked everyone for giving them the party and for the many gifts they had received.

Smoking may cause pregnancy problems

BOSTON (AP) — Women who smoke during pregnancy are nearly twice as liable as nonsmokers to lose their babies through spontaneous abortion, a study says.

The researchers recommended that women give up smoking to increase their chances of having full pregnancies with normal childbirth.

This study, conducted at New York's Columbia University, adds another argument to the growing case against smoking during pregnancy. Earlier studies have shown that babies of women who smoke are smaller than normal and more likely to die at birth.

A report on the latest study was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The researchers are not sure why women who smoke have more spontaneous abortions, but they said there are two main theories. One is that smoking women eat less than non-smokers. The other is that fetuses of smoking women do not get enough oxygen.

Researchers compared the smoking habits of 574 women who aborted spontaneously with those of 320 who delivered after full pregnancies.

They found that 41 per cent of the women who aborted were smokers, compared with 28 per cent of the women who had normal pregnancies.

Cross-multiplying figures for the number of women in both groups who smoked and did not smoke, the researchers calculated an "odds ratio" of 1.8 for "the highly significant association with smoking." They said that meant a woman who smoked was 1.8 times as likely to have a spontaneous abortion as one who did not.

The researchers found no link between the risk of spontaneous abortion and the number of cigarettes smoked. However, they said they may not have examined enough women to discover such a pattern.

Art of eating declines

PARIS--(NEA)--The French have long enjoyed the reputation of connoisseurs in the art of eating.

But in this, as in many other ways of life, a bloodless revolution has taken place. Jean Dupont (the John Doe of France), beset by the vitamin obsession, fear of the effects of cholesterol, the battle to avoid overweight by sidetracking greed, the fifth major sin, has awakened to the fact that the traditional ritual of two daily major meals has been radically undermined.

The French revolutionary masses once demanded bread and freedom. In 1936, with the appearance of the Popular Front, it was steak and paid vacation. In 1977 they think in terms of health and leisure.

The "bouffe" (slang for food) according to recent polls today becomes a relative item, no longer dominating the family budget—which does not mean that it no longer represents a major expenditure. But it is a far cry from the 15 dishes or courses once considered a must to celebrate a birth, marriage or any other great family occasion to the more calorie-conscious five courses which represents a formal repast today.

This same approach is evident in the simplification of the interminable official dinners given by the president of the Republic to visiting royalty or heads of government. In 1965 no fewer than 17 courses were served at the Elysee Palace in honor of King Alfonso of Spain. But when President Charles de Gaulle entertained President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy in 1961, a relatively simple menu consisting of six courses was served.

It appears that fewer Frenchmen today suffer from "mal de foie" (liver trouble) because they have simplified their eating habits, not because they have tried especially to limit their expenses. They are also decidedly more weight-conscious.

Because the French are generally more prosperous today food specialists say that they want more variety in their meals. The image of the Frenchman wearing a beret and carrying a yard of bread under his arm has now become folklore. Bread consumption, which really was the staff of life for many, has dropped phenomenally—in 1970 it was 160 pounds per year per person, a third of what it was less than 100 years back, and it is estimated that by 1980 the figure will be around 125 pounds.

For most big receptions today, refreshments are limited to buffets consisting of reconstituted hams, fowl, cheese and fish cut into bite-pieces stuck on a slender stick.

"Although rich in proteins, potatoes, beans and lentils have met their Waterloo in all collective canteens in factories, schools, barracks and hospitals," says Marcel Forget, president of the co-ordination committee which supplies something like 12 million meals daily.

Now time-saving housewives are thankful for the appearance of deep-freezers in supermarkets and smaller stores where they can buy packaged french fries, dehydrated purees, milk and other articles which their elders tend to despise, believing that the process leaves any product tasteless.

Frenchmen have become carnivorous, says Professor Bourg, who lectures on human feeding at one of the leading city hospitals. "This is the new form of daily bread," he points out. Trouble is, according to the butchers' syndicate, housewives now demand thick steaks, legs of lamb and other choice cuts because they have not or will not take the time to waste on a less-expensive pot roast or fish stew.

Fish comes next in popular favor. The variety of deep-frozen fish is wide and it is slightly less expensive than meat and all restaurants offer a varied selection of fish dishes on their menus.

Cheese is still a greatly appreciated staple in the French eating habits. For 1974 records show a consumption of 28 pounds per capita per year and this figure is supposed to reach 36 pounds by 1980, or eight times more than one hundred years ago. But refrigeration has endangered the quality of the 460 varieties that France produces.

The French have not yet acquired the habit of drinking a glass of orange juice with their breakfast, but since time immemorial fresh fruit appears at both lunch and dinner, usually replacing a dessert or ice cream. The last once was reserved for special occasions.

Go to the few open-air markets left in the Paris area and here you will see piles of seasonal fruit on sale. They are bigger than 20 years ago but the older generation sighs and say they have lost their savor by being picked before maturity. When a market gardener whose small holding is situated 10 or 15 miles from Paris comes along with his crop of seasonal fruit and vegetables, his stall is devastated by a crowd of buyers who know the produce has never been near a block of ice.

Wine is still a staple in French families. But the rough "gros rouge" (red wine) has been abandoned for a better quality.

Kay's Kitchen Korner

by Kay Taylor

Here is an all-year favorite, although it is particularly recommended for serving guests, perhaps for the weekend during the summer. One caution: the frosting is super, but do watch it please. If overcooked it will be a hard fudge instead of a delicious icing. I omit the brazil nuts - but sounds good!

SPICE CAKE (with Brazil nut icing)

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 3 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream shortening and sugar until light; add eggs, one at a time. Add soda to sour milk. Add alternately with sifted dry ingredients. Bake in a greased pan 12 x 8 inches in 350 degree oven for about 45 minutes.

ICING:

- 2 cups sugar
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup rich milk or cream (thin)
- butter if milk is used
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup chopped Brazil nuts (optional)

Mix sugars together with milk and butter. Cover and bring to boil. Remove cover and cook to 238 degrees on candy thermometer. Cool in water until the bottom of pan is just warm to hand. Then beat.

Some time ago Mrs. Page of Sherbrooke sent this "Recipe for a Happy Home".

First get out the utensils you will need - one husband and wife and children to suit yourself.

Next cream one cup of love until it is fluffy and mellow; add one half cup of tears and hardships and stir gently. Whip in a cup of joy. When smooth add one teaspoon each of thoughtfulness; heartfelt tenderness; sympathy. Add one cup of ambition with two cups of christianity. Bake in a moderate oven. Top with kindness and serve repeatedly.

Badger-Gaylor wed

FULFORD — The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Elsie Badger, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Badger of Fulford, to Mr. Lawrence Allan Gaylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Gaylor of R.R. No. 3, Foster, took place on Saturday, September 10th, 1977 at 3 p.m., in the Fulford United Church. The Rev. Murray McFarlane officiated.

Mrs. Beulah Whitchee of Foster played the wedding music.

The church was decorated in a variety of summer flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white Victorian-style wedding gown and a large picture hat. She carried a bouquet of yellow rose buds and white carnations.

Mrs. Brian (Cindy) Willey, matron of honour for her sister, wore a yellow floral dress and a picture hat. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white daisies.

Mrs. Michael (Christina) Dubois, bridesmaid and sister of the groom, wore a beige floral dress and picture hat. She carried a bouquet of bronze and yellow mums.

Miss Linda Badger, bridesmaid and cousin of the bride, wore a blue floral dress and picture hat. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white daisies with blue carnations.

Mr. Gary Lucas of La Salle was best man. The ushers were Mr. Michael Dubois, brother-in-law of the groom, of Calgary, Alta., and Mr. Michael Badger, cousin of the bride, of Fulford.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length beige gown and a corsage of tangerine carnations.

The groom's mother wore a floor-length pink gown and a corsage of pale pink carnations.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Ernest Banks Sr., of Fulford wore a floor-length rose gown rose coloured and a corsage of pink carnations.

The groom's grandmother, Mrs. Sue Ounsworth of R.R. No. 3 Foster, wore a floor-length green gown and a corsage of yellow carnations.

The reception was held at the Waterloo Legion where music was supplied by Mrs. Real Charland of Granby.

Wins flower award

KNOWLTON (KT) — Friends here extend congratulations to Marguerite and Bill Rousseau of Red Bank, N.J., for their recent achievement.

In a recent telephone call,

(Mrs. Rousseau is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Taylor of Knowlton.)

It was learned they had just been awarded the Bronze Certificate from the American Rose Society, the third top honor in the Arrangement Section at the Rose Show held in Eatontown Mall, Monmouth Shopping Centre in New Jersey. (This happens to be the largest Centre in the State of New Jersey).

The title of the theme of the show was "Gifts from the Sea" and the classification they won the award in was "Gusty Wind". (Marguerite said she made the arrangement by attaching roses to branches of a root she had pulled up earlier, bent over and dried in that position, so that the arrangement, when completed, looked like a rose bush being blown in a strong wind). This award comes from Louisiana.

They also won a gift certificate for the second best of all the miniature arrangements. This was judged from the firsts after each arrangement had been judged.

A footed cake plate was their prize for best Open Bloom of the entire show. They also won other firsts, second and third ribbons.

Opening lead — Q♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand appeared as one of our July articles. South's four-club bid was a slam invitation and North's four-diamond call was a below game acceptance. South felt that when he made a slam try, he had done all he could. He merely rebid to four spades, which North elected to pass. Six spades won't make against a diamond lead even if trumps break and we stated erroneously that even five spades would be impossible against the actual trump break.

We were way too strong when we used, "Impossible," as several readers have pointed out to us. Actually, declarer can and really should make five odd against that 5-0 break. He either wins the first diamond or ducks. That makes no difference. Assuming he ducks he wins the next diamond, cashes dummy's king of spades and gets the bad news, ruffs a third diamond, cashes the top hearts and top clubs, ruffs his last club, and leads a third heart.

West has to ruff and lead up to the ace-queen-jack-nine of spades.

Ask the Jacobys
A Pennsylvania reader wants to know if we recommend any bid with:

♠ K J x x x x ♥ x x x ♦ x x x ♣ x x x

The game is match point duplicate. A vulnerable opponent on your right opens one diamond. We are not vulnerable.

Yes, we recommend a pass. If you play very weak jump overcalls you might try two spades, but this hand is really too weak for a weak jump overcall.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Sure enough, Victor has the Rabbit make that play, but not because he knew what he was doing. It seems that North had mixed his four of spades with his clubs, so the Rabbit thought that dummy was void of spades.

Thus, after taking the ace of clubs and playing the ace of trumps the rabbit led the deuce of spades and attempted to ruff in dummy only to be told by an opponent that dummy held a spade.

After this start there was nothing the defenders could do. The Rabbit ruffed a club, led another low spade, ruffed with the king of trumps, finessed against East's 10 and was home with the bacon.

Ask the Jacobys
A California reader asks if we have ever held or seen a 13-card suit.

We have never seen nor held a 12-card suit in rubber bridge. We have seen a couple of 11-carders. We have seen 12 and 13-card suits in duplicate games, but have always suspected that someone was stacking the cards in those cases.

(For a copy of JACOBY MODERN, send $1 to: "Win at Play of Leading a Low Spade after he finds that 4-0 heart break."

HUNTINGVILLE (MD) — Mrs. Billings' grandson, Wallace Billing of Elmira, Ont., was visiting her recently.

Guests of Mrs. Hanson were Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Asher, Edmonton, Alta.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Mearns, Miss Louise Mearns and David Mearns, Pierrefonds were guests of Mr. J. Mearns.

Overnight guest of Mrs. Porteous, was Mrs. Jean Mackay, St. John, N.B.

Visitors of Mrs. Stevenson were Mrs. Ronald Husk and Mrs. T.H. Stevenson, Otterburn Park.

Mr. Glass and Mr. Leslie Wright of Dixville were on a trip through the White Mountains and report seeing snow on some of the mountains.

Visitors of Mrs. Beattie and Mrs. Savage were Mrs. Lily Rothney, Wales Home and Mrs. George Rothney, Lennoxville, also Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Riff, Lennoxville.

Mr. Wilfred Buchanan, Drummondville, was visiting Mrs. Buchanan at the Home.

On Saturday afternoon, the ladies of the L.O.B.A. served tea to the residents; this is always much appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McHarg, Stanstead, called on Mrs. Mae Sawyer on their way home from Richmond. Mr. and Mrs. Olson of British Columbia were visiting the Home. They are relatives of Mr. De Grace.

On Oct. 6 a birthday party for Mrs. Elliott was held to help her celebrate her 91st birthday. She had a lovely birthday cake and received many cards from relatives and friends. Her sister, Mrs. Barber of Sawyerville, was also a guest. The Johnson children of Huntingville sang and played the piano, at the party.

Dr. Cecil Meade of Coaticook gave a musical program at the Home on Wednesday afternoon. A spectacular pianist and an excellent memory, as he played without notes.

Some of the staff took the residents for a tour on Wednesday afternoon to enjoy the colored foliage. They report the trees are just beautiful in their fall colors.

Sunday visitors of Mrs. Pety were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crawford, Sherbrooke, Mrs. Sadie Ross and Mrs. May Beattie of Lennoxville.

Mr. and Mrs. Gentry of Haley Station, Ont., visited friends in the Home Sunday evening. Mr. Gentry used to live in Huntingville and was pastor of the church here.

The Lennoxville United Church ladies served afternoon tea on Monday, Oct. 3rd.

Mrs. Edna Wilson, Waterville, was visiting Mrs. Mae Sawyer on Monday afternoon and also visited others in the Home.

Mr. Leslie Picard took the morning devotions at the Home on Tuesday. We are pleased to hear that Mr. Picard will be taking the Services in the Church here, after Nov. 1st.

THANKS TO YOU

McHappy Day was a huge success. Thanks to you. Because you took the time to come into our restaurant and have a Big Mac, the money from which went to help crippled children in our community. Many of you also gave some extra change towards the same cause. Because of you some crippled children will be a little better off. Pat yourself on the back, have a McHappy Day and again, thanks.

YOU HELPED CONTRIBUTE: $3338.00

BEDFORD Guy Martindale 248-7906

Mrs. Marguerite Miller is spending a few days in Ingleside, Ont., guest of her sister, Mrs. Philip Martin and family.

Several from here and from surrounding areas, accompanied friends of Philipsburg and St. Armand on the fall foliage bus trip, sponsored by the Philipsburgh United Church, to Jay Peak and St. Johnsbury, Vt.
The colors of the trees were gorgeous, and the weatherman co-operated;
the sun came out, the first time in three weeks; the dinner was superb, and the return trip via Newport, Highwater, Mansonville, and through Bolton Pass, was all to be expected. All in all, it was a perfect day.

Recent callers of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Watson included Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Burns, and Mrs. L. Lahey of Huntingdon, and Mr. and Mrs. Murray Mason of Cowansville.

Friends of Mr. Keith Lampman are sorry to learn that he is a patient in a Montreal hospital as the result of a severe heart attack.

Mr. Warren Watson had the misfortune to suffer a fall in the basement. Recovery is slow, but fortunately no bones were broken.

BEEBE Mrs. C. Aulis

Mr. Ray Valley and friend of Warehouse Point, Conn., spent a day as visitors of Mr.
and Mrs. George Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller of Somerville, Mass., spent the holiday weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G.
Brown.

Mrs. Bessie Woods has returned to Elora, Ont., after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Phaneuf and other relatives.

The news of the death of Mr. Philip Lecours, who has been confined to the Yoville Hospital, in Sherbrooke for several years, reached town.
Funeral was held Oct. 8 with burial in Mont. St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mr. Kevin Eryou of the University of Waterloo, Ont., spent the holiday weekend with his mother, Mrs. Stella Eryou and visited other relatives in town. He also was in Sherbrooke to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Angus Eryou, a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Alexander Galt Awards Night

Steve Gillam of Lennoxville accepts the Whitman Haines Citizenship Award during the recent awards night at Alexander Galt Regional High School. The award, given to a student displaying outstanding qualities of participation, attitude, contributions and community involvement during the 1976-77 school year, was presented by the co-ordinator of student activities, Bob Halsall.

Wheeler reunion is held

KNOWLTON (KT) — The 10th annual Wheeler reunion took place recently at the residence of Mrs. Rhoda Northrup, who acted as hostess for the first and second such gatherings and again this year. The guests numbering 48, were from Ontario, Quebec, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Vermont.

It was a lovely day and lunch and supper were served outdoors. The customary business meeting was held following lunch when arrangements were made for the next year meeting to be held at Putney, Vt., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thrower.

Norman Scally of Nashua, N.H. was named as new president and John Thrower of Putney, Vice-president.
Cedric Wheeler of Brownsburg was appointed secretary-treasurer.

One of the highlights was Linda Wheeler's account of the two years she had spent in England with the American Armed Forces, during which time she searched for the family roots there (chiefly in the Dover area) and reported her findings at this family gathering.

The oldest member of the family present in 1977 was George Wheeler of Woodham, Ont., 77 years of age. The youngest was Sara, daughter of Joan and Lowell Pugh of Minesing, Ont., 10 months old. Qualifying as the largest family group there, Rhoda Northrup and George Wheeler tied, each claiming nine members of their family present. The "farthest from home" at the reunion was claimed by Elsie Maskell of England, a cousin and guest of Mrs. Cedric Wheeler. The couple "the longest time married" were George and Eva Wheeler and the "longest time unmarried", a category suggested by Julia Northrup was claimed by Norman Scally with Eric Northrup, close runner-up.

The day was marked by lively conversation and catching up on all the news.
Reunion 1977 was thought by all to be a great success.
Those spending Saturday night in the immediate area enjoyed breakfast of waffles and maple syrup at Rhoda's on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Velmer (Anna)
Richardson of Nesa, Arizona, accompanied by her granddaughter Susan Richardson of Golden Eagle, Ill. spent about a week with her sister Mrs. Rhoda Northrup during her three week stay in Canada.

During her visit, Mrs.
Northrup entertained all her own family with the exception of Ann (Fowler) during the time her sister was with her. Ann visited her aunt at her sister Joan's home (Mrs. Lowell Pugh).
Mrs. Richardson also visited, in Ontario, Cedric and Ivy Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. George MacVicar, all of Brownsburg, Mr. and Mrs.
George Wheeler and family at Woodham, Reverend John Wheeler of Elora, and Mr.
and Mrs. Lowell Pugh at Minesing. While in Knowlton, Rhoda entertained as many of the cousins as possible at a cookout, there being 21 cousins there in all; and a picnic attended by 19 guests including Donna (Mrs. Arnold Carter), her niece, her children and grandchildren.

It was a most happy time for Mrs. Richardson, renewing acquaintance with others she had known in her youth, including Mary Taber, Mary McCutcheon,
Mrs. Hugh Miller and others.

Card Party

STANBRIDGE EAST
(KDT) — The card party
sponsored by Century Lodge
No. 24-I.O.O.F. held in the Anglican Church Hall, Stanbridge East on Friday, in aid of the Edith Kathan Home, West Brome, proved very successful.

Cards were played at 18 tables, after which a lunch of sandwiches, cakes and coffee was served. A lively auction sale took place after lunch, when the chairman, Armand Gendreau acting as auctioneer, sold several new and antique articles which were donated by business houses and individuals. Mr.
Gendreau thanked all those who assisted in any way and expressed his pleasure at seeing so many who braved the weather to come out.

The proceeds are being used to aid the Edith Kathan Home at West Brome, which is a home for senior citizens, that is open to the public. It is owned and operated by the Oddfellows of the Province of Quebec. Additional information may be obtained from any Lodge in the Province.

A hearty "thank you" is extended to everyone who supported this effort.

Much credit is due Mr.
Armand Gendreau, who, through his efforts is mainly responsible for raising the $1500.00 and over for the Edith Kathan Home by canvassing this community for donations and by organizing the card party.
His wife also deserves much of the credit.

Card party winners: Door prize, Kevin Doherty; 500 - Ladies' 1st, Johanne Ten Eyck, 2nd, Eliza Rhicard; Men's 1st, Cecil Soule, 2nd, Maurice Gendreau; Floating prizes - Edie Westcott, Johanne Ten Eyck;
consolation prizes: Mrs.
Short and Daniel Gendreau; Bridge - Jean Broekhart, Consolation - Paige Knight.

Red Cross meets

HIGH FOREST — The Red Cross Group met on Oct. 4 at the home of Mrs. Raymond McConnell with a good attendance. The hostesses were Mrs. McConnell, Mrs.
Russell Blair and Mrs.
Hazen Lowry and all enjoyed a delicious dinner.

Two large quilts which had been on order were tied and some knitting done.

The business meeting was presided over by the Pres.
Mrs. Roland Lowry and opened by all repeating The Lord's Prayer.

Two more large quilts have been sold. Some work was turned in and more given out.

A quilt top and some other articles were donated by a member and some thank-you notes are to be sent.

It was decided to send three crib quilts and some mittens to Red Cross
Headquarters for their sale.

Tem dollars was voted to Mr. LaForest to help in needy work and some clothes are also being given for relief work.

A card is to be sent to a shut-in member.

For the next meeting members will go to a restaurant for dinner, then meet afterwards, at the home of Mrs. Hazen Lowry.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy
Jackson of Birchton and their house guest, Mr. Carl Pheips of Wappingers Falls, N.Y., were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Lowry
and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland
Lowry spent a long weekend when they were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Pease in Orford, N.H., and also visited other places of interest, including the Flume, Lost River and through the White Mountains. On the way home they were overnight guests of her brother
Mr. Merrill Jackson and Mrs. Jackson in Tilton, N.H.

WI meeting

WATERLOO — On Wed.,
Oct. 5, the meeting of the Waterloo-Warden W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. W.
Copping on the Granby-Waterloo Rd.

Mrs. M. Hilliker, presided, welcomed members and guests and opened by repeating the Club Creed in unison and singing the Ode.

Roll call answered by 14 members and two guests who each named a Prime Minister since 1867. Minutes and correspondence was read by Sec. Mrs. Thompson, after which Mrs. Sicard gave the financial report.

A very enjoyable dinner,
at the Green Dragon Restaurant, had been attended by most of the members and two friends on Sept. 21st, in recognition of the 50th Anniversary of the Branch.

Mrs. Marcotte gave a report of the semi-annual meeting of the County, held recently in Granby.

Plans were finalized for the card party to be held at the Elementary School on Friday eve. Oct. 21st, 5:00 and Bridge will be played.

Some knitted articles were handed in for Cansave and wood taken for others to be made.

Pennies for Friendship collected and for Ways and Means, each paid 31 cents for Goblins night. The mystery package for Care, was drawn for and won by Mrs.
H. Smith.

Conveyor of Citizenship, Mrs. M. George had prepared a contest to which each gave serious thought.
Prizes in this went to Miss C.
Mountford and Mrs. W.
Copping.

A delicious salad lunch was served by hostesses
Mrs. Copping and Mrs.
Thompson, also a birthday cake with lighted candles was presented to Miss Mountford who was, that day, observing her 79th birthday. This was enjoyed by all.

The Nov. meeting will be held at the home of Mrs.
Sicard on the 2nd. The program that day will include a Silent Auction with proceeds going to Care.

Cemetery & Restoration meeting

SUTTON — A combined meeting of the Restoration Committee and the Johnson Cemetery Committee was held on Saturday, October 1st, 1977, at 7:30 p.m., in the Council Room at Sutton.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read, and it was moved by Mrs. L. Royea and seconded by Mrs. A.
Chalifoux that these be approved as read. Carried.

Mr. L. Royea was reappointed Chairman and Mrs. C. Hazard, Secretary.

Mr. Sydney Booth was also appointed as a Director on the Johnson Cemetery Committee. The Restoration

Fund has spent $956.10 on the Johnson Cemetery.

Those present at this meeting were Mrs. K.
Woodard, Mrs. C. Boright,
Mrs. A. Chalifoux, Messrs
Geo. Dymond, Chas.
Dymond, Clark Hazard, P.J.
Shepard, O. Baker Sr., O.
Baker Jr., Mr. and Mrs.
Lyndon Royea and Mrs. C.
Hazard.

Mr. P.J. Shepard extended a sincere vote of thanks to Lyndon Royea for his untiring work on these Committees.

A motion of adjournment was made by Mr. G.
Dymond.
