FELL INTO TANK OF HOT WATER

HOPED TO GUIDE HER HUSBAND

Workman in Montreal Brewery Succumbs To Burns Sustained in Mishap

Montreal, April 14—Charles Prospolski, 52 years old, of 1429 Lafontaine Street, was a member of the night gang of cleaners at the plant of the Molson's Brewery, 906 Notre-Dame Street East. His nightly task was to assist in the work of sterilizing the huge 17,000 gallon wash vats in the plants.

He in the habit of climbing up the side of the vat by means of a ladder descending on the inside to see that all bolts were tight and everything in order. Prospolski had gone down into one of the vats. A huge revolving spray used in the work had been lowered into the tank. In the tanks which supplied it was water of an even temperature of 212 degrees. Having looked around the inside of the vat and started back up the ladder, Prospolski gave the signal to his fellow workers to turn on the hot water, believing that he would reach the top by the time the revolving nozzle was opposite the place where he had placed the ladder. But the nozzle worked more quickly than he had anticipated and he was sprayed with scalding water. His grip loosened on the ladder and he fell to the bottom of the tank. Other workmen turned off the water and rushed him to the General Hospital where he succumbed to his burns late yesterday.

SOVIET DELEGATES AND FRENCH ENVOYS BROKE BREAD AT GENOA

Appreciable Rise in Expectations That Conference May Have Good Results Even in Most Pessimistic Quarters—Occasion Was At Lunch in Lloyd George's Villa—All Day Meeting

Genoa, April 14—The Bolshevik delegates and the representatives of France to the Economic Conference broke bread together today at the residence today of Mr. Lloyd George and there has been an appreciable rise as a consequence in the expectations that the Conference may have good results even in the most pessimistic quarters here.

The occasion for the meeting of the Soviet and the French delegates at table was a Conference which began at 10:30 o'clock this morning and lasted throughout the day, in which French, Russian, Belgian, Italian and British representatives participated and during which Mr. Lloyd George invited all of them to luncheon.

The meeting was called by Mr. Lloyd George for a discussion of the Russian problem with the purpose of clearing up uncertain points in the London experts' report before the Russians present their final reply to it.

This carrying of the most vital part of the business of the Conference into such an informal gathering, where personal contact may possibly remove much animosity that has been displayed in the public sessions, has created a general feeling in Conference circles that a compromise may be arranged in the Russian problem which will afford a satisfactory working basis for the reconstruction of Russia.

The keynote of the Allied position at the Conference today was that Russia first must satisfy past pledges before obtaining any concessions for the future. In other words, Russia must recognize the debts of the Czarist Government before the Soviet claims against the Allies can be entertained.

To-morrow morning the experts of the four inviting powers, who were present at today's meeting, again will gather at Mr. Lloyd George's villa and in the afternoon there will probably be joined by the principal delegates of the five countries.

Germany has not been asked to attend these private conferences, as she was not a party to the making of the London experts' report.

The straightening out of the points in the report will be effected at informal meetings before Germany is called in. It has been expected that Russia will make her reply to the reports of the experts to-morrow, but this reply has now been postponed indefinitely.

The Russians have caused a statement to be circulated through M. Rakovsky, the Ukrainian Premier and other delegates to the effect that Russia has already enacted laws and made court reforms and regulations affecting foreigners residing in Russia which meet many of the criticisms of the London experts' report regarding the Soviet Government and that they also have expressed a willingness to acknowledge pre-war debts and stipulated their purpose to erase their claims against the Allies arising from the operations of the Wrangel, Benikin and Yudenitch armies against the Soviet regime if the Allied war claims against Russia are wiped out.

Those present at the meeting today were M. Barthou, France, Signor Sihanzer, Italy, M. Jaspard, Belgium, and M. Chitchev, M. Litvinoff and M. Krauss, Russia. The experts of the inviting powers who attended were Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame, Great Britain, Jacques Heydoux, France, and M. Theunys, Belgium.

Mr. Lloyd George invited all his visitors to remain for luncheon in order that the discussion might not be interrupted.

Position of Germany

During the day in Conference circles the position of Germany was widely discussed and also the attitude of France toward the Conference in general. French spokesmen asserted that France would heartily join in the discussion of suggestions which would be helpful to Germany's restoration, and especially looking toward the raising of loans for her. It was declared, however, that questions touching on a postponement of the reduction in the German reparations payments must be left to the Reparations Commission.

A communication issued from French sources during the day had as its aim the exploding of the recent contentions of the Russians that their budget is in a healthy condition.

The statement said that in November last the Russian budget balanced, except for 200,000,000 gold rubles. This deficit was met by printing 45,000,000 rubles in paper money and after this the Russian Finance Commissary, still according to the French, made a statement that the deficit was really 500,000,000 gold rubles and at the end of January 1922, the situation was so hopeless that the Soviet Government decided to lay the budget aside altogether.

SUPPORT FOR NEW U.S. TARIFF

Southern Democrats Promise At Centenary Anniversary Banquet Of Montreal Board Of Trade

(By Canadian Press)

Washington, April 14—Farm bloc members have been assured of the support of a number of southern Democrats in both houses in getting their high tariff program through Congress. These democrats represent what is declared to be increasing protection sentiment in the South.

In view of this support farm bloc members declare there is not the slightest doubt that the high rates which they demand on wheat, grains generally, livestock and other farm products will be enacted, despite a growing protest from the great centers of population where consumers fear they will be hard hit.

POSITIVELY IDENTIFIED AS JOSEPH RACINE

Ottawa, April 14—A body found in Leamy's Lake yesterday afternoon by two rivermen has been positively identified as that of Joseph Racine, 39, notary public, former Reeve of the village of Caselman, and son of Damase Racine, former M.L.A. for Russell.

Identification was made to-night at an inquest. The heart and internal organs were placed in the hands of a specialist, who will investigate with a view to determining how death was caused.

Racine disappeared on November 5, 1920, while on a visit to Ottawa from his home in Caselman.

As to the Russian question now most prominently before the Conference, it is reported that Mr. Lloyd George desires to have this settled in so far as this Conference can settle it, before his departure at the end of the month. The remainder of the questions in issue—those of finance, economics and transport—might be discussed afterward either here at Genoa, or elsewhere, it is pointed out. In the latter case it is probable the Commission on transport would meet at Brussels and that on finance at London.

No locality has as yet been mentioned as a possible meeting place for the Commission on economics.

Bessarabian Question

The dispute over Bessarabia which has entered in a secondary way into the Economic Conference discussions was taken up today by Christian Rakovsky, of the Soviet delegation.

In an interview here placed to the statements yesterday of Foreign Minister Diamandy of Rumania, who set forth Rumania's claims to Bessarabia, declaring this territory had always belonged to Rumania until 1878 when she had ceded it to Russia, he ally, for help given in war time.

It was quite true, said M. Rakovsky today, that the Imperial Russian regime took over in 1878 certain departments of Bessarabia, but not the entire region. M. Diamandy had forgotten, however, the Russian delegate declared, that Rumania received the province of Dobruja in exchange, and also that the Bessarabian departments in question had belonged to Russia until 1864, when, after the Crimean war, they were annexed to Rumania.

According to Rakovsky the question today is whether the people of Bessarabia wish to join Rumania. The Bessarabian peasants, he pointed out, held a congress in Kishinev in 1918, during which hostility was expressed for Rumania, which had occupied Bessarabia under the guarantee of the Entente "which we possess in writing, that the application was only provisional."

In addition, Rumania, Rakovsky promising to evacuate Bessarabian within two months.

Russia, declared Rakovsky, favored self-determination for the Bessarabian people and if in a plebiscite properly and freely organized, the Bessarabians showed their desire to join Rumania the decision would be readily acquiesced in by Russia.

Ultimatum To Russians

London, April 14—A Reuter despatch from Paris to-night says a French official statement issued at the close of today's meeting of the "Big Four" of the Genoa Conference, quoted Prime Minister Lloyd George as having declared that unless the Russian delegation had given a favorable reply by eleven o'clock to-morrow to the proposals presented this week, the Genoa Conference, so far as the Russian question was concerned, would be ended.

In Russian conference circles it was asserted this evening that the Soviet delegation would not be in a position before next Tuesday to give an official reply in writing to the Economic Conference on the report of the London experts regarding the question of what Russia must do in order to obtain a resumption of economic relations with the European Powers.

Although members of the Soviet delegation declined to say anything concerning their attitude on the report of the experts, their general viewpoint possibly may be gathered from a statement made today by M. Rakovsky.

Rakovsky declared to the newspapermen that it would be superfluous to remark that, what the war blockade had failed to extort from Russia in four years, Russia was not likely to consent to now of her own accord.

"We did not come to Genoa to put around our necks the very rope which is going to strangle us," Rakovsky declared.

MANY NOTABLES WILL BE PRESENT

At Centenary Anniversary Banquet Of Montreal Board Of Trade

Montreal, April 14—When the local Board of Trade holds its centenary anniversary banquet here, April 23, the celebration will be attended by at least two Premiers, six Members of the Dominion Cabinet and several members of the Provincial Cabinet and probably by representatives of other Provincial Governments.

Further more the British Board of Trade will also be officially represented.

Among those present will be His Excellency the Governor General, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister, Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works; Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce; Hon. A. B. Gopp, Secretary of State, and Hon. Raoul Dandurand, T. A. Low, and John E. Sinclair, Ministers without portfolio.

Premier Taschereau of Quebec, and, it is hoped, also right Hon. Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Lieutenant Governor, will be present, and Hon. Jacob Nicol, Provincial Treasurer. Other leaders in public life who will attend the function are E. W. Beatty, President of the C. P. R.; General Sir Arthur Currie, Principal of McGill University.

TAILOR MADE ARREST OF COLORED ROBBER

Montreal, Que., April 14.—"Drop that piece of cloth or I'll kill you," was the command promptly obeyed by William Smith, colored, 28, here tonight when he was faced by a revolver in the hands of Arthur Barque, tailor of 895 Rachel Street East. His trials did not end there, for finding that Barque no longer had the drop on him, he edged out of the store and tried to make a getaway, but Barque followed him and after a long chase caught and took Smith to the station.

Possibly the man who ended his life listening to radio the other evening was driven to it by the static conditions.

CHAPTER IX The Capture of Vimy Ridge, April 9th, 1917.

My alarm clock went off at four a.m., on the great day of April 9th, which will always shine brightly in the annals of the war. I got up and ate the breakfast which I had prepared the night before, and taking with me my tin of bully beef, I started off to see the opening barrage. It was quite dark when I emerged from the door of the Chateau and passed the sentry at the gate. We went through the village of Ecoivres past the Crucifix by the cemetery and then, turning to the right, went on to a path which led up to Bray Hill on the St. Eloi Road. I found some men of one of our battalions bent on the entrance of the trench. We got into the field and climbed the hill, and there on the top of it waited for the attack to begin. The sky was overcast, but towards the East the grey light of approaching dawn was beginning to appear. It was a fine morning, and the sun was just above the horizon. The air was calm and the ground was dry. The men were all in high spirits and were waiting for the attack to begin. The sky was overcast, but towards the East the grey light of approaching dawn was beginning to appear. It was a fine morning, and the sun was just above the horizon. The air was calm and the ground was dry. The men were all in high spirits and were waiting for the attack to begin.

Good To Be a Canadian. The sight of the German trenches was something never to be forgotten. They had been strongly held and had been fortified with an immense maze of wire. But now they were ploughed and shattered by enormous shells. The wire was twisted and torn and the whole of that region looked as if a volcanic upheaval had broken the crust of the earth. Hundreds of men were now walking over the open in all directions. German prisoners were being hurried back in scores. Wounded men, stretcher bearers and men following up the advance were seen on all sides, and on the ground the bodies lay of friends and foes who had passed to the Great Beyond. I met a British staff officer coming back from the front, who told me he belonged to Army Headquarters. He asked me if I were a Canadian, and when I replied that I was, he said, "I congratulate you upon it." I reminded him that British Artillery was engaged in the attack and looked forward to glory. "That may be," he said, "but never since the world began have men made a charge with finer spirit. It was a magnificent achievement." Our burial parties were hard at work collecting the bodies of those who had fallen, and the chaplains were with them. I met some of the battalions who, having done their

School Girls' Nerves

"Give my children Nerve Food during examinations, and am sure it helps them," writes a Vancouver lady. AFTER the long school term the children's nerves are keyed up to the highest pitch. The fear and worry of examinations are often the last straw which brings the nervous breakdown. It is usually the naturally nervous child who has the greatest ambition, and by denying his or herself the requisite amount of outdoor exercise comes up to the examination with too little energy and vitality left. Fortunately the child's system quickly responds to such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The blood is enriched, the nerve cells are replenished and health and vigor is soon restored. Mr. S. F. Flarity, Warton, Ont., writes: "My daughter, eleven years of age, was in a run-down condition and suffered from a nervousness which showed a tendency toward St. Vitus' dance. I got a few boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for her, and by the time she had taken three boxes there was a big change in her. She is much stronger, and her system in general is built up. She has recovered from her nervous weakness, and you could not detect a trace of it now." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is in a class by itself as the most popular of nerve restoratives. 50c a box, all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

part in the fighting, were coming back. Many of them had suffered heavily and the mingled feelings of loss and gain chastened their exaltation and tempered their sorrow. I made my way over to the ruins of the village of Thelus on our left, and there I had my lunch in a shell hole with some men, who were laughing over an incident of the attack. So sudden had been our advance that a German artillery officer who had a comfortable dug-out in Thelus, had to run away before he was dressed. Two of our men had gone down into the dug-out and there they found the water in the wash-basin still warm, and many things scattered about in confusion. They took possession of everything that might be of use, including some German maps and were just trying to get a very fine telephone when two other of our men hearing voices in the dug-out and thinking the enemy might still be there, threw down a smoke-bomb which set fire to the place. The invaders had to relinquish their pursuit of the telephone and beat a hasty retreat. I saw the opening of the great drama in the early morning, my heart was full of thanksgiving to Almighty God for His blessing on our arms. I arrived in my room in the Chateau at about half-past two a.m., very tired and very happy. I made myself a large cup of strong coffee, on my primus stove, ate a whole tin of cold, baked beans, and turned in to a sound slumber, filled with dreams of victory and glory, and woke well and fit in the morning, more than ever proud of the grand old First Division which, as General Horne told us later, had made a new record in British war annals by taking every objective on the scheduled dot of the clock.

(To be continued) This Man Could Not Walk a Mile. WILLIAM GRAHAM SHOUTS THE PRAISES OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS. Hurt in 1919 He Searched in Vain for the Remedy He Needed Till He Started to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Lindsay, Ont., April 14th. (Special)—Mr. William Graham, who lives at 142 Queen St. here, is shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills. And when he tells the reason why the story is truly wonderful. "I was hurt in 1919, Mr. Graham states, 'the nerves in my left leg and arm were paralyzed. I was in such shape I could not walk a mile. I could not go out at night as I would be sure to fall over. I tried eleven doctors and used different liniments but got no benefit. They started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and they did me a lot of good. Now I can walk fifteen miles. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all sufferers.' Dodd's Kidney Pills put the kidneys in shape to strain all the impurities out of the blood. That means pure blood. Pure blood means good circulation, and that means new strength carried to all parts of the body. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not make strong, healthy kidneys."

Marked Increase in Number of Technical Institutions in Recent Years. During the last 10 or 15 years there has been a very marked increase in the number of technical institutions in Great Britain. So many in fact, have been formed that one might well assume every branch of science and engineering to be fully covered. As a matter of fact, however, chemical engineers, who form a most important body, have only lately had a representative association in Great Britain. This deficiency has been filled by the formation of an Institution of Chemical Engineers. Very influential support has been received from leading British industrial chemists and there is every prospect that the Institution will be an early and complete success.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS ALWAYS IN THE HOME. Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little one she always keeps a supply on hand, for the first trial convinces her there is nothing to equal them in keeping children well. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds, simple fevers and making teaching easier. Concerning them, Mrs. Saluete Pelletier, St. Dumas, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past ten years and am never without them in the house. They have always given the greatest satisfaction and I can gladly recommend them to all mothers of little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GRANDMA SHOWS HOW TO BE YOUNG Rejuvenates Herself With Rhythmic Exercises To Help Anti-Fat Squad. New York, April 14.—Every woman has it in her power to defy old Father Time and be a Mrs. Methuselah if she will follow the daily programme of Mrs. Marguerite Josephine Blair, who danced and demonstrated before him Saturday morning on the Waldorf road, according to Health Commissioner Copeland. The Commissioner had been escorted from his office by Mrs. John Marshall Gallagher formerly president of the Chicago Club, and Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards, who were so impressed by Mrs. Blair's self-rejuvenation through the medium of music and rhythmic dancing and a diet of olives, nuts and prunes that they arranged a private exhibition. Mrs. Blair admits to being past 60, has a son 38 and a grandchild. For 35 years she occupied the chair of domestic art in the University of Minnesota and was national chairman of the home economics section of the Woman's Club. At 55 she had rheumatism, was undernourished and had curvature of the spine. Then she got out of bed and danced her way to health. "I'll never be old," she declared, while spinning round to the strains of a phonograph. She was dressed in a flesh colored accordion pleated slip with wing-like sleeves, sandals and flesh colored silk gloves. Her hair is gray and worn simply. Her neck is plump and she wears not an even "pump" shoe. "Some of her friends present," whispered that she really is nearly seventy. She dances this way for an hour every day to keep the waist slim, strengthen the arches, reduce the hips, make the muscles of the neck firm and the body supple, and all the time she feels buoyant and happy. She rarely eats meat and nooked beef, prefers nuts and uncooked prunes soaked for 24 hours in water, eats fifteen olives a day and drinks a quart of milk and quantities of water. "You will never have stiff joints if you eat olives and drinks lots of water," Mrs. Blair said between dances. "How's your heart beating?" inquired the Commissioner. Then he listened to its thumping and pronounced it fine. "I'll pass you," he said. "If people would only live right and eat the right kind of food the doctors would be arrested for vagrancy. There isn't a woman in the world 80 years old who couldn't do just what Mrs. Blair has been doing if she would."

TO TATTOO CRIMINALS ON THEIR CHEEKS. Sofia, April 14.—Criminals in Bulgaria are to be literally marked men if the Minister President Stambuliski succeeds in carrying through his proposed bill providing that transgressors against the law have the Bulgarian lion tattooed upon one cheek. This measure, should it be adopted, would have historical precedents, as it was in use centuries ago in the case of galley slaves, and until recently the inmates of the penitentiary at Toulon in France were decorated with the lily of France on one shoulder.

AMERICAN FIRM TO OPEN BRANCH IN ONT. Toronto, Ont., April 14.—It is rumored that the Auto Light Electric Company of Toledo will open up a branch plant at Leaside in conjunction with the Durant Motor Company. It is also reported that the Durant Company will undertake the manufacture of a cheaper car, and for this purpose will make considerable additions to their Leaside plant.

NEW FOUNDLAND SEALING FLEET HAS DONE WELL. Sydney, N.S., April 14.—The Newfoundland sealing fleet has so far done very compared with captures in recent years, according to wireless reports received here. A total of 85,200 seals has been taken. Individual catches reported to date are as follows: Terra Nova 18,500; Thetis 15,000; Viking 14,300; Neptune 13,200; Eagle 13,000; Ranger 3,700; Seal 1,000.

HARD TIMES HIT TAXI BUSINESS. Even At That New York Travels A Million Miles A Day In Cabs. New York travels more than a million miles a day in taxicabs. Hard times seem to have overlooked this metropolitan business, although reports is to the contrary. Springfield taxi companies say they have fewer parties hiring taxis for a trip to New York or Boston than before the war. In ante-bellum days, such luxuries were common and $75. for a trip to the metropolis was all in the course of events—for some. Now it is only the rushed business man who, perhaps arriving in Springfield, just in time to miss the midnight south and who must be in New York early in the morning, hands out three-quarter of a hundred in order to get himself there.

At the present rate of $8 for Chicago and $5 for Holyoke does not seem to have followed the high cost route. Even at $12 a car for a trip to Northampton, Smith college girls are large patrons of taxis, preferring a couple dollars out of the pocket book to a couple of hours wait in the station for a train. Taking the average daily run in New York as 80 miles the fleet of 10,215 cars in that city daily covers 817,000 miles. The mileage covered by other public touring cars brings the daily figure even beyond 1,000,000 miles. By these means the family purse in the metropolis is relieved on an average of $75 a year in the course of a day metropolitan taxis collect something like $200,000 or upward of $1,500,000 a week.

ANTI-TREATY PARTY STAGED BIGGEST COUP YET IN DUBLIN

Three Hundred Armed Men Seized Four Courts Building, Formerly Seat Of National Court Of Justice, And Four Courts Hotel—Buildings Being Used As Headquarters—Shooting In Belfast

Dublin, April 14—Early this morning the biggest coup yet affected by the anti-Treaty party was carried out. Some 300 armed men, marching in two forces, seized the Four Courts building, formerly the seat of the National Court of Justice, and the Four Courts Hotel nearby. No opposition was encountered. Two or three constables on duty were arrested, but were liberated later.

Guests at the hotel were ejected, and the two buildings were fortified by being pressed into service. The anti-Treaty party set up stacks of books and documents. The seizure was reminiscent of Easter Week, 1916, when the same buildings were seized and similarly fortified.

Great alarm was caused in Dublin when the events of the early morning became known, lasting until the explanation was vouchsafed by the anti-Treaty men that buildings had been taken because they were more fitted for their headquarters than the present headquarters in Rutland Square.

This explanation, however, failed to reassure many people who are apprehensive that the adjournment of yesterday's peace conference may prove significant especially as it is alleged that the Independents gave no guarantee that acts of violence would be avoided.

Commandant O'Connor reiterated tonight his assurance that there would be no revolution; that the only reason for the seizures was that the Rutland Square premises were too small for headquarters. Four hundred men occupied the seized buildings tonight, many of them having arrived in the course of the day from the country districts in cars and lorries.

A van load of bread was seized in the street for the use of the occupants. Strong guards have been posted outside the courts. The Provisional and British military authorities in Dublin Castle were notified of the seizure, but up to tonight no action had been taken. The Republicans some time ago adopted the policy of preventing any but Republican Courts from operating through a protest between the Provisional Government, the Courts were directed to function equally with the Republican Courts. County Court Judges were turned out of their Courts in several of the Irish Counties by men acting under the Executive Council of the dissident Republican Army, but the High Courts continued to function in Dublin without disturbance. It was finally determined by the Republicans to prevent the High Courts from holding sessions and, accordingly, the Four Courts building was seized early this morning. The occupation of the building was made according to the Dublin Mail by a clever ruse. A small party of raiders climbed the railings. They distracted the attention of the police on guard but suddenly presented revolvers and compelled the police to raise their hands. Then a larger body of men appeared from the rear, took the keys from the police guard and opened the gates to admit the main force.

The fortifying of the building was done completely in the open. Forty men who were told off, retired to the courtyard opposite Bridewell Prison, where in full view of the police stationed there, they began filling sand bags which were taken by another party of men into the Court. The police at the Bridewell Prison had an early intimation of the raid, but were powerless to do anything beyond notifying the authorities.

Some firing was heard in the city early this morning and provoked rumors of a conflict between the raiders and the Free Stater forces. These rumors were without foundation. Nevertheless the situation was delicate and some of the residents of the locality, fearing trouble, left their homes. All the raiders were fully equipped with rifles and revolvers. None of them wore uniforms.

More Guards. The Provisional Government has increased greatly the number of armed guards at the seat of Government, the College of Science. Reinforcements have also been assigned to guard other places open to attack as well as the telephone and telegraph systems.

Insurgents Capture Building. Belfast, April 14—Two hundred and fifty men of the insurgent section of the Irish Republican Army under the direction of the newly formed Republican Army executive or army council, seized at midnight the Four Courts building in Dublin which until the passing of the Irish Act was the seat of the National Courts of Justice. It is said in a Dublin despatch today. They also commandeered the adjoining Four Courts Hotel.

A large body of Sinn Feiners entered the Post Office at 11:30 today and took possession of all departments of the office in the name of the Irish Republican Army. They gave instructions that business was to proceed as usual, and left a party to see that these orders were carried out.

Early this morning a strong party of Free Staters arrived at Sligo in an armored car and took possession of the county jail. Later armed Republican troops took over the Victoria Hotel, which was previously used as a military barracks, the Town Hall and the Guild Hall, in

MCCORMACK HAS PASSED CRISIS

But Will Have To Undergo Another Operation For Septic Throat

New York, April 14—John McCormack, famous Irish tenor, who has been dangerously ill with an affliction of the throat, will have to undergo another operation to clear his throat of pus formation.

His physician, Dr. A. C. Dupont, stated that by Monday the singer's throat which was still badly swollen, would be ready for another landing.

"Mr. McCormack has passed the crisis," said Dr. Dupont. "His septic throat is somewhat better. He can swallow with less pain but he will not be able to sing for many months. Mr. McCormack will leave for Ireland next month if his health will permit."

Since last Saturday, it is said Mr. McCormack has fallen in weight from 220 pounds to 200 or less and his friends believe that it will be months before he is well again. He will be 38 years old on June 14.

FRANCE'S STAND ON DISARMAMENT

If Brought Up At Genoa Will Ask To Refer It To The League

Paris, April 14—France's attitude if the disarmament question is brought up at Genoa, will be to demand that the question be referred to the League of Nations, which has had it under consideration for several months. It was stated in an official note issued today.

This attitude it is explained, is in conformity with the agreement reached with Great Britain at Boulogne and is in line with the Government's memorandum on the Genoa agenda, which the French Parliament unanimously approved, the Cabinet maintaining its previous decision.

If this demand for reference to the League were not accepted, the French delegation, the note states, would not take part in the debate, such debate, as Sir Robert Horne, of the British delegation in Genoa had declared yesterday, having been excluded from the program for the Conference.

THERE REALLY WAS A GHOST

Conan Doyle Gives His Explanation Of Antigonish Farm House Mystery

New York, April 14—There really was a ghost in Antigonish, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle declared today. Then he elaborated on the report made by a psychic research expert after investigating queer doings at the home of Alex. McDonald, in Caladonia Mills, Antigonish County, New Brunswick.

The psychic research expert, Dr. Walter Prince, reported that the disturbances in McDonald's home were caused by Mary Ellen, his adopted daughter, during altered states of consciousness. Mary Ellen was not the ghost, but the medium for the ghost, which probably was that, Sir Arthur believes, of some naughty boy whom not even death could cure of his mischievousness.

"I was greatly interested in the Antigonish disturbances," Sir Arthur added, "because it was almost a duplicate of the great Amherst mystery of some years ago. That, too, was a Nova Scotia case, with mysterious fires, etc. Psychic research people then, as in the Antigonish case, said it was the work of somebody in the house.

"I have no doubt at all that the spiritualistic explanation of the Antigonish mystery was correct. Mary Ellen, the medium, acted through some power which was used by something malevolent outside herself. "Yes, there are malevolent spirits on the other side. "Mischievous" would be a better word. But spirits, malevolent or mischievous, are not allowed to do real harm. The Antigonish house really did not take fire, did it? There's a law on the other side that no spirit shall do harm to a mortal. They may alarm people, but that is a good thing; it takes a rough jolt to arouse some people to a realization of things."

MORE CLOSING OF NON-UNION COAL MINES REPORTED

Total Now 35 And Striking Miners 15,000 In One County

Pittsburg, April 14—Continued closing of non-union coal mines in Fayette county by organizers of the United Mine Workers was reported tonight by Vice President P. T. Fagan at headquarters here.

No Frick Coke Co. mines were added to the list affected by the strike today. Mr. Fagan said his reports from Westmoreland County included the closing of fifteen mines yesterday and today, bringing the total of closed mines to 35 and striking miners to about 15,000.

Philip Murray, International Vice President of the United Mine Workers of America, who is in this city today predicted that "there will be a serious bituminous coal shortage throughout the country inside of four weeks."

Without attempting to minimize the magnitude of the struggle ahead of the United Mine Workers, Mr. Murray said the continuation of 100 per cent strike among the Union miners with steady accessions to the strike ranks in the non-union fields, indicates "certain success for our case."

Injunction Issued. Charleston, W. Va., April 14—The third temporary injunction against the United Mine Workers of America by Judge George W. McClintic was today issued in United States District Court on the application of six coal companies and one individual. The International Mine Workers' organization and 176 individual defendants were named, including President John L. Lewis, Lawrence Dwyer, International Board member, John H. Sprouse, President of District Number 25; C. Frank Keeney, President of District 17 and other officers and members of both Districts.

The order restrains the defendants from taking any further steps or doing anything further to cause the plaintiffs' employees to cease their employment and thereby force the plaintiffs to engage in a contract with the said United Mine Workers of America.

It also enjoins the Union men from holding Union meetings or assembling near the plants or mines of the plaintiffs, or congregating about the said mines in a body, whether the same be for purposes of making speeches or any other purpose in prosecution of any design or concerted effort to cause the employees of any of the plaintiffs to cease their employment."

MONUMENT MAY BE ERECTED HERE

To The Memory Of Louis Hemon, Also One In France

Montreal, April 14—Decision was reached at an organization meeting of those interested, held in the office of the St. Jean Baptiste Society here tonight to erect two monuments, one in France and one in Canada, to the memory of the young French author, Louis Hemon, the writer of "Marie Chaperdaine", an idyll of the Lake St. John District. The cost will be between $15,000 and $20,000 and the decision was unanimous that the movement to commemorate the writer's name should be a nationwide affair, calling for the formation of committees to receive subscriptions in the larger cities and towns of Canada. The Canadian monument, according to a suggestion made at the meeting, may be erected in Quebec city.

Mr. Justice E. Fabre, Surveyor, Chairman of the Committee, presided and other officers chosen were Louigny de Montigny, of Ottawa, Secretary and Sir Andrew MacPhail, who translated the book, and Victor Morin, Vice-President for Montreal.

THREE ALLIES HAVE REACHED AGREEMENT

No Evacuation Of Asia Minor Till Angora Accepts Programme

Paris, April 14—France, Italy and Great Britain have reached an agreement that there can be no evacuation of Asia Minor until the Angora Government has accepted the essential points of the peace program arranged at the Paris Conference, says the Journal today. The newspapers adds that the three Allied High Commissioners in Constantinople have been instructed

REHABILITATING EX-SERVICEMEN

Proposals Arrived At By Legislative Committee Of Veterans Alliance

Ottawa, April 14—Proposals for the complete rehabilitation of those ex-servicemen requiring such, were arrived at by the Legislative Committee of the Dominion Veterans' Alliance meeting here today. A new suggestion was advanced that a Commission or a Board be created embracing the Deputy Heads of all the Departments dealing with all affairs of ex-servicemen and with assisted representations from all organized interests affected; such Commission to be responsible to the Privy Council and under the Chairmanship of a Minister of the Crown.

The Committee was unanimous in the decision that the canteen funds should be placed in the hands of a Board of Trustees, composed of representatives of the Government and at least six representative ex-servicemen nominated by the Dominion Veterans Alliance and that this Board be empowered with the administration of the funds and the interest.

Other proposals dealt with the after care of ex-servicemen and included suggestions for free medical treatment for a period of five years following discharge from the army; treatment for dependents of deceased or seriously disabled members of the forces; a definite scheme of after care of soldiers discharged from sanatoria following treatment for tuberculosis; continuation of treatment of ex-servicemen who contracted other ailments while undergoing treatment for war disabilities; free transportation for ex-soldiers suffering from total blindness; more adequate provision for the burial of ex-members of the British forces who die in destitute circumstances and for the dependents of those members of the forces who died on active service; suitable arrangements for full military honors during the burial of those men who served in the British forces; endorsement of a system of post-sanatoria treatment for tuberculous ex-patients; permission to ex-servicemen whose treatment confines them for a period of more than one year in hospital to transfer to other hospitals.

Extension of the period during which applications for supplementary war service gratuities for former members of the Imperial forces previously domiciled in Canada, and further payments on account of war service gratuity be made to the dependent next of kin on an amount equivalent to that which would have been paid had the soldier returned at the end of his period of service, will also be presented to the parliamentary committee.

The Legislative Committee will also seek for the appointment of a returned soldier to the Civil Service Commission and a number of changes to the Civil Service Act designed to correct conditions which have placed ex-servicemen in a less favorable position than they would have occupied but for war service.

EXPLOSION OF MINE IN UPPER SILESIA

Berlin Believes Inter-Allied Authorities Convinced Of Accidental Character

Berlin, April 14—The total number of victims from the explosion of a mine a few days ago in a cemetery at Gleiwitz, Upper Silesia, has now reached 23, says a despatch from Breslau today to the Vossische Zeitung.

Transportation service to Gleiwitz has been resumed, hence the threat of a state of siege did not materialize. This is interpreted here as showing that the inter-allied authorities have become convinced that the explosion was accidental. Nevertheless, says the Vossische Zeitung, the Poles continue in an aggressive attitude, accusing the Germans of authorship of the explosion.

The inter-Allied Commission has prohibited any celebrations or demonstrations on May 1, 2 or 3, May 3 is "Klouschko Day," a great Polish national holiday.

NEW DIFFICULTY HAS ARISEN NOW

Faction Fight In The United Mine Workers Over Appointment

Sydney, N.S., April 14—Just when it seemed that some progress was being made toward straightening out the tangled Nova Scotia coal situation, a new difficulty has arisen in the form of a faction fight in the United Mineworkers over the appointment of Isaac D. McDougall of Inverness, to represent the 12,000 miners of Nova Scotia on the new Conciliation Board which is to rehear the wage dispute between the British Empire Steel Corporation and its mining employees.

On the ground that District President Baxter no longer represents the sentiment of the Districts and that all such recommendations should now come from Secretary J. B. McLachlan, Phalen Local 1, one of the largest divisions of the U. M. W., today wired Hon. James Mordock, Minister of Labor, asking him not to appoint McDougall on Baxter's say-so, but to consult McLachlan as to who shall represent the miners. The movement thus started is certain to be endorsed by many of the more radical locals and is likely to greatly hinder the early settlement of the coal wage problem.

District President Baxter tonight issued a statement in which he charges the Phalen local with attempting to assume the dictatorship of the District by seeking to upset an appointment which was approved by the whole District Executive Board, including McLachlan, and he also charges that the telegrams are inspired by McLachlan for publicity purposes and to further his personal feud with the Minister of Labor.

FLUTTER CREATED IN THE DOVE-COTE

Of British Ministry Of Labor By Select Committee On Estimates

London, April 14—A flutter has been created in the dove-cotes of the Ministry of Labor by the first report of the Select Committee on Estimates. (Canadian Press Cable)

A good portion of the report is occupied with consideration of the salaries of the Chief Labor Adviser, Sir David Shackleton, and the President of the Industrial Court, Sir Wm. MacKenzie.

The report says that Sir David Shackleton was appointed in 1910 as Labor Advisor at the Home Office with a salary of £500 and expresses the opinion that competent gentlemen were obtainable for much less than £3,000 which Sir David is now drawing, after twelve years of service.

Similar comment is passed, regarding Sir Wm. MacKenzie, who is also now receiving £3,000. The Committee expresses the opinion that £1,500 a year, the salary now paid to a County Court Judge, would be sufficient for either official.

It is a curious fact that both salaries are higher than that of the Minister of Labor, who draws £2,000 or the Permanent Secretary of the Department who draws £2,200.

EASTER THOUGHTS ON SPIRITUALISM.

The wave of interest in spiritualism, which is commonly accounted for by bereavements of the late war, has by no means exhausted its force and has, singularly enough, engulfed people of a turn of mind—exact scientists and aggressive materialists—who one would have least suspected of being thus swept off their feet into the quick-sands of mysticism. Vagues of this character have been known before now in the world's history and we may rest comfortably sure that, as its predecessors eventually passed away, leaving no traces behind, so the present vogue will also end in nothingness.

Meanwhile it is curious to note how those who apparently fail to find spiritual satisfaction in the teachings of Christianity will greedily drink in the cant jargon of charlatans and their dupes; that people whose faith, or power of belief, balks at the mystery of the Resurrection of the Son of God, will swallow without difficulty the cheap conjuring tricks of table-rapping and all the rest of the professional medium's sorry repertoire.

It is not necessary to be a Christian to be able to see which is the real spiritualism, to distinguish between credence and credulity. Take the pitiful misadventures of Conan Doyle in what purports to be a description of the sensations of the death-bed:

Death is not painful but a pleasant process, said Sir Arthur; as death approaches, the soul—the etheric body—floats out from its earthly shell and hovers above the human jail, tethered only by the silver cord of which Ecclesiastes speaks. The only sensation is one of delicious languor. The first sight that greets the eye is one of smiling, loving faces bending over the deathbed, continued Sir Arthur.

"Proof?" he asked. "I have stood by the side of the dying, seen hands turning cold in death stretch out, heard words of endearment fall from lips that soon would move no more.

"Delirium," say materialists. No it is not delirium. "Proof?" asked the preacher of spiritualism again. "The disengaging of the etheric body can be, has been photographed. I am fortunate enough to have such a plate." Then he told of eight daughters—all clairvoyant—who had sat beside their dying mother.

"It was lovely to see the etheric body disengage itself," he said. "There was a multiplicity of beautiful lights."

Contrast this tinsel travesty upon the majesty of Scripture with the noble story of the risen Christ, as narrated in the New Testament, and ask yourself which of the two appeals most strongly to the intellect and to the imagination alike.

The real appeal of man-made spiritualism is not that it is spiritual, but that it is material. Its devotees are of the stripe who exact signs as a condition of belief. The Church gives no sign, whereas the medium produces effects that impress themselves upon the sense of sight or hearing but, if concessions are made in this way to feeble or imperfect faith, it is, as we have already suggested, at the expense of a childish credulity that would be ludicrous if it were less pathetic.

Ah but, it may be said, is it not better that those who believe in spiritualism should be left undisturbed so long as it comforts them, even although they may be the victims of error or deceit? By the same reasoning, one might justify the indulgence in a craving for drugs on the ground that it produced pleasurable sensations. If there is no life beyond the grave, then indeed one fiction may do as well as another but if we accept the reality of future existence, which is perhaps the strongest instinct common to all people, then spiritualism must be, in the long run, a cruel form of imposture.

One of our gifted poets by no means, however, conspicuous for his spiritual faith, has declared that: "The moon of Mahomet arose and it shall set. When blazoned, as if on Heaven's eternal noon, the Cross leads generations on."

And this is a truth which applies not only to one particular form, but to every form of error. At the season of the triumph of the Divine Spirit which is now being celebrated throughout the world it is surely appropriate that the fallacy of so pitiful a conceit, which reduces that triumph to absurdity, should be strongly insisted upon. The desire for communion with those near or dear who have passed on is natural but attempts to anticipate the will of an all-wise Providence must inevitably prove futile, where they do not end in actual disaster.

JOIN THE RED CROSS.

References have been made in the local Press for some time past to a contemplated membership campaign by the Red Cross Society and we are now advised that the necessary organization has been completed. In the near future this drive to solicit subscriptions to a humanitarian enterprise will be launched and will no doubt meet with fullest success.

All campaign workers who canvass at private residence will wear Red Cross badges as a sign that they are authorized to receive membership subscriptions and each person who subscribes $1.00 will become a member of the Society for one year and will be entitled to a membership button as well as a receipt. The membership fee for children is 25 cents. Buttons will also be distributed to them. More than two hundred have generously offered their services in this eminently praiseworthy campaign.

The canvassing will be done by ladies of the city, assisted by several gentlemen and the organizers are confident that the local public which has invariably proved open-handed in support of good works, will receive these workers cordially and willingly contribute the small amounts that are being solicited.

It should be understood that the amount realized will be entirely expended in Quebec City. It will not be applied, as in war-time, to military purposes but will be used to help the poor of the city next winter. Those who subscribe to the Red Cross can rest assured, therefore—erroneous reports to the contrary—that their money will remain at home and will be entirely devoted to relieving local distress. The most liberal response is bespoken by the Chronicle for this unselfish work that is deserving of every possible encouragement.

LEGEND OF LORETTO.

It is announced from Rome that the new image of the Virgin Mary, a replica of that destroyed by fire about a year ago in the Holy House of Loretto, will be conveyed from St. Peter's by aviators to its final resting place in the "santa casa" of Notre Dame di Loretto. The original statue, said to have been made by St. Luke the Evangelist, was carved out of cedar wood, as is the substitute; it was very black, having been in a previous fire, but was richly adorned with precious stones. The tradition relating to the "Holy House" is most interesting. Legend affirms that it is the identical house in which the Virgin Mary was born in Nazareth, where she was saluted by the angel, and in which the boy Jesus lived until the age of twelve years. According to an account given in 1771 by Father Gillibrand, an English Jesuit, writing from Loretto, purporting to be a translation from the Latin found in an ancient MS. of the Augustinian library at Rome, the apostles and disciples, after Christ's ascension, reflecting upon the many divine mysteries wrought in the house, decided to consecrate it into a chapel in honor of the Virgin.

The place was held in great honor so long as the people of those parts remained Christian, but when Mahomedanism became a menace, the angels conveyed it to a castle called Fluene, in Slavonia. Even in this new location it was not held in the proper respect, and was again conveyed by the angels over the sea, and "fixed in a wood belonging to a noble woman, called Laureta of Recanat, whence it takes the name of Our Lady of Loretto."

A great concourse of people came to view the miraculous building, which consequently attracted the avaricious and became the scene of robberies and murders, so was once again removed to "a neighboring hill belonging to two brothers, who, falling out about the presents made to it, caused the angels once more to remove it to the high road, where it now stands without foundations, attended by many signs, wonders and favors."

The people of Recanat went to examine it in its new site, and, finding it without foundations, were afraid of its falling, so caused it to be supported "by a more substantial wall and well founded, as is seen to this day." No one knew how the house had come to be there, according to the legend, till one day in the year 1296 the Virgin Mary herself appeared to "an aged person devoted to her service, and revealed to him the whole."

The favored confidant declared the revelation to "several prudent men," who selected "fifteen notable sworn men to visit the holy sepulchre and city of Nazareth." They found the measurements of the chapel and its foundations left at Nazareth "to correspond to a hair, with an inscription upon a neighboring wall, setting forth that there had been such a house there, but that it was vanished no one knew where." Father Gillibrand's translation concludes as follows:

"To render all this the more credible, two worthy men of this town, the one called Paul Ranaudee and the other Francis, alias Prior, have often attested the same to me, the provost Teremannus and governor of this church. The first affirmed that his grandfather's grandfather saw the angels carry it across the sea and place it in the same wood; and that he, with several others, had often visited it in the same wood; the second, who was then 120 years of age, often told me that he himself had often visited it in that wood; he also said to many other credible people that his grandfather had a house in that wood, in which he lived and was tenant to the said chapel; but that it was carried away and set upon the hill of the two brothers as aforesaid during his own time. So ends the story."

Press Comment

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S ATTITUDE. (London Morning Post.)

Mr. Chamberlain's sincerity in his private life is, of course, unimpeachable. We are the more at a loss to understand how he can reconcile his fulfilment of his trust as the leader of a party with political integrity. If Mr. Chamberlain, like the Lord Chancellor, has changed his mind, that is his affair; but whereas Lord Birkenhead is nobody's leader—nor ever will be—Mr. Chamberlain has an obligation to observe. If he no longer holds Conservative principles, surely his only course must be to state the fact, and let the party decide whether or not it desires to continue under his leadership. We know of no instance in which a political leader attempted to commit his party behind his back. Even Mr. Gladstone, when he became a Home Ruler, made no secret of his conversion—or perversion. Becoming Prime Minister in February, 1886, he brought in his Home Rule Bill in April; and when he was defeated he instantly appealed to the country. Mr. Chamberlain's conversion is equally complete and even more extensive; yet he makes no remark on the subject; and so far as he is from appealing to the country he does not even deign to inform the Conservative Party. That he lacks neither courage nor honesty he has proved alike in his resignation from high office and in his support of Sir George Younger. Mr. Chamberlain's present attitude is, indeed, inexplicable.

SENATE REFORM NOT YET. (Red Deer Advocate.)

As Premier King's following is largely composed of Quebec and Nova Scotia members, where they still keep the two legislative bodies, it is unlikely that the new government will make any move to radically reform the Senate or weaken its power or its usefulness in the party patronage system, even though the powers it exercises, as a non-representative and a non-elective body, are utterly out of keeping with the democratic spirit of this age.

HAS BOTTLED UP SUN'S RAYS

Alchemist Claims To Have "Solar Fluid" In Fifteen Different Strengths

Paris, April 14.—A venerable old gentleman in a voluminous cloak and skull-cap, living at Auteuil, has some one better than those who preach the beneficial effects of the sun's rays upon health. He has, or thinks he has, or says he thinks he has, captured the sun's force and bottled it. In 15 different strengths and combinations this "solar fluid," which is declared to be a cure for every ill known to humanity, can be bought in many Paris chemists' shops. The Pharmaceutical faculty, however, is sceptical, and has asked the police to investigate the matter. A detective and a pharmacist expert, therefore, visited a chemist's where this elixir of life was on sale. The chemist hastily disclaimed credit for the achievement of capturing the sun's force, but gave the address of the modern alchemist who prepared the fluid. The two investigators then journeyed out to the address given in Auteuil, and there found a small, one-story house with a piece of apparatus like a lightning conductor sticking up into the air and attached to a long copper cable which led to the courtyard. Within was the venerable captor of the sun's force. He explained that after much meditation and experiment he had found the proper conducting medium for capturing the sun's rays, which was aluminium wood round a strip of wood. He then in the most friendly way showed his 15 vats where he stored different strengths of his solar fluid, composed of water, a subtle ether, a gum, and other ingredients, all transmuted with captured sun's rays. He seemed a little hurt when the investigators declared that they were unable to feel any particular sensation when he asked them to stretch out their hands to feel the sun's force, but he was not seriously perturbed. He seemed to regard that as their misfortune, not his. However, the unbelieving experts carried off samples of the fluid, which is to be subjected to the unsympathetic process of a chemical analysis. ABBE PELLETIER'S PAINFUL MISHAP Knocked Over By Auto Turning Down Palace Hill From St. John St.

Abbe Bruno Pelletier, Chaplain of Sister of Charity Church, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon, which is likely to confine him to his room for several days. He was standing near the sidewalk on Palace street, in close vicinity to St. John Street, awaiting a street car, when an automobile driven by its owner, No. 1188 came along St. John Street from the direction of Fabrique Street, and turning the corner to proceed down Palace Hill ran head on into Abbe Pelletier, striking him in the back, and hurling him against a street hydrant. Constable Blodreau of the Municipal Traffic Squad, witnessed the accident from his post on St. John St. John Street and rushed to the assistance of the Abbe, who on being raised from the ground, was found to have suffered several contusions about his face, from the force of his impact against the hydrant, and besides the severe shock by the blow he had received from the hood of the auto. The owner of the car immediately stopped his machine and also came to the assistance of the priest who was conveyed to his rooms, and after the name of the owner, and members of the car was taken by Constable Blodreau, the latter was allowed to proceed subject to call when requested to account for the accident.

THE BENEFACTS OF PRAYER
Ablly Dealt With By The Missioner At St. Matthew's Church
 The subject of the address given last evening by the Rev. C. Ennor Sharp, the Missioner for the Holy Week services at St. Matthew's Church, was "Prayer."
 The first point made by the Missioner was the difficulty of praying and the unsatisfactory feeling which the ordinary person experiences when prayers are said unconsciously or in other words when the mind wanders. The speaker stated that repetition is necessary for success in everything and especially so in prayer, instancing the case of Our Lord in the Garden of Gethsemane when he prayed three times: If it be Thy will let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not as I will but as Thou wilt.
 Another point made by the speaker was "Answer to Prayer." On most occasions the things asked for were entirely material wants or else small things, whereas our Heavenly Father wants to give us the big things.
 The first thing the speaker mentioned that God wants to give us, is a sense of the Fatherhood, God is both our Father and Mother, and never will he forsake us. The feeling which we should have and which the repetition and monotony of prayer gives us, is that we should keep up the name of the family, and always be on the alert to act in defense of the name.
 Secondly, God wants to give us patriotism. God wants us to get a love for the country of which he is the King, as shown by the words in the Lord's Prayer, "Thy Kingdom Come."
 Thirdly, God works and does things for us, and wants us to realize what he is doing. One thought that the speaker brought out, was that when we are continually praying for somebody and apparently getting no answer, God is also praying for the same person and in his own good time our requests will be granted. This is explained in the Lord's Prayer by the words, "Thy Will be Done."
 The next point brought out was the practicability of God, "Give us this day our daily bread." God realizes that we cannot live without food, and naturally it would be only practical to pray for our everyday want.
 All these things are given us by the repetition and monotony of daily prayer. If one lives to seventy years of age, and says prayers regularly morning and night, it is estimated that the Lord's Prayer would be said fifty thousand times. If this prayer then is said so often, repetitions of our ordinary prayers cannot detract from their usefulness or sincerity.
 In spite of the above facts we realize that we are constantly sinning, and we find that in the same Lord's Prayer there is provision made for this. Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them that trespass against us. It is provided that if God is shown plainer in the Lord's Prayer than in any other way in which we can learn it.
 The last of the Children's Mission services, will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock and the concluding mission service at 8 o'clock.
CANTATA WAS WELL RENDERED
Rendition Of "The Darkest Hour" By Methodist Church Choir Much Appreciated
 The Cantata "The Darkest Hour," by Harold Moore, was rendered last evening by the Methodist Church choir and was much enjoyed by a fairly large congregation.
 The choir which consisted of thirty voices was well balanced, and in the softer passages of this pleasing cantata, it was particularly good.
 The soloists who rendered their respective parts very capably, were Mrs. W. J. B. Fraser and Mrs. W. E. Paxonman, sopranos; Messrs. Bert Thom, bass, Mr. W. E. Paxonman, tenor, and Mr. A. J. Carpenter, baritone.
 Miss Kennedy presided at the organ with her usual ability.
 Much credit is due to Mr. C. H. Thom, Director of the Methodist Church choir, for the success that attended the event, and his efforts towards affording an opportunity of hearing such delightful music, such as in this Cantata are much appreciated by the public.
CAMILLE DUGUAY.
 By a special arrangement between the management of the Empire Theatre and Mr. Camille Duguay, this Canadian artist will render Grenier's Hosanna at the intermission this afternoon and this evening.
 This beautiful Easter carol will supply a splendid avenue for Mr. Duguay's fine baritone voice which was heard to such advantage during the week in the "Rosary" and won the sincere admiration of all those who love good music.

MAN ARRESTED IN PRESBYTERY
Suspicious Proximity To St. Patrick's Strong Room Led To Apprehension

Serjt. Thomas Scallen of the Municipal Police was called yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock to proceed to St. Patrick's Church Presbytery, and arrest a young man, who later gave his name as James O'Donnell, a native of Ontario, and recently from Halifax, who was caught in the room where the money of the Church was kept locked up in a safe. When Serjt. Scallen arrived at the Presbytery, just at the close of Good Friday morning service, in the Church, a large number of the congregation who had heard of the holding of an alleged thief, congregated St. Stanislas Street, and when the police Serjt. emerged from the Presbytery with his prisoner, he was followed by a crowd of men and boys and some women to the Central Police Station, where the prisoner was locked up.
 The prisoner is a young man of about 26 or 27 years of age, about 5'10 inches in height, of dark complexion, well built, and fairly well dressed in a tweed suit.
 The facts in the case are alleged to be as follows: On Thursday morning the prisoner, was found in the covered gallery that connects the church with St. Patrick's Presbytery, and only made use of by the Rev. Redemptorist Fathers in charge of St. Patrick's Church. He was making his way through this passage to enter the Presbytery when he was intercepted by Brother Joseph who has charge of the Presbytery office, and in being asked his business, said he wished to have his beads blessed. The Rev. Rector, who was in the vicinity at the time, and on being called by Brother Joseph performed the blessing, when the stranger, never before seen by the clergy or lay brothers returned. The same afternoon, Brother Joseph was surprised to detect the same individual making his way into the Presbytery from the church and going forward to intercept him, again asked his business, when the stranger replied that he wanted to go to confession in order to make his Easter duty. Brother Joseph informed him that the priests were hearing confessions in the church, and he should go there to do so. Becoming suspicious, Brother Joseph spoke to the Rector, Rev. Father Connolly, C.S.S.R. in regard to the matter, who advised the brother to keep his safe locked, and keep a close watch.
 Yesterday morning when the Rev. Redemptorist Fathers were all engaged at the Good Friday Service in St. Patrick's Church, which commenced at 8 a.m., and lasted for over an hour and a half, Brother Joseph, locked his room which was secured by a Yale lock, and proceeded into the church to assist at the service. After an absence of nearly an hour, he had occasion to return to the Presbytery, and on reaching his room which adjoins the office, was astonished to find the door open and on entering the room, was amazed to confront the same man, who had previously entered their premises under suspicious circumstances. He kept in talk for a little while, asking him his business, which the stranger endeavored to explain, saying that finding the door of the room not locked, he had entered after knocking. In the meantime the Church Service coming to a close, and others arriving in the Presbytery, the police hastened to answer the call and took the suspicious character into custody, who later gave his name as James O'Donnell, which is thought to be fictitious. The accused said he was a native of Ontario, but his last place of residence was at Halifax, where he held oil.
 Brother Joseph was unable to say how long the apprehended man was in his room where the safe with the money of the Church is kept, but it is surmised that he could have only entered when discovered as nothing had been disturbed in the room, and there were no signs of the safe having been tampered with. Been searched at the Station no letters or other documents were found on his person. He had a small sum of money and two keys in his pockets. He will be taken to a Court of Sessions this morning for arraignment, and no doubt will be remanded to jail for eight days, to let the authorities to inquire into his real identity, and antecedents.

SAD DEATH OF MR. JOHN O'NEILL
Was Found Drowned In The St. Charles River Yesterday Morning

Mr. John O'Neill, aged about 70 years, a well-known and highly respected farmer, residing on Commissioner's Road Quebec West, met death tragically on Thursday night when he was drowned in the St. Charles River.
 Mr. O'Neill left his home on Thursday afternoon to come to the city. He was last seen alive on St. Vallier street about 10.15 o'clock Thursday night, and his body was found yesterday morning in the St. Charles River at the foot of Marie C. D'Incarnation street. It is presumed that Mr. O'Neill slipped and fell from the Aqueduct Bridge as he was on his way home.
 Needless to say that the news of his death was a severe shock to his family and his many friends.
 He is survived by his widow, three sons, Messrs. Thomas and James O'Neill, of Quebec, and Joseph O'Neill, of Fitzpatrick, P.Q., and three daughters, Mrs. (Widow) Belanger, Mrs. Jules Larue and Mrs. Henri Blondeau, of this city.
 The sympathy of a large circle of friends will be extended to the sorrowing family in their bereavement.

TROUT FISHING OPENS TODAY
Season Again Advanced Two Weeks But Fishing Through Ice Prohibited

L. A. Richard, Deputy Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries, has received notification that the Federal Government, has again this year permitted the opening of the trout fishing season on April 15th, which falls today.
 As far as the district of Quebec is concerned this advance in the opening of the season does not make any difference for the reports coming from lakes and rivers north of the city are that winter conditions are still prevailing there and few of the lakes will be clear of ice before the end of the month unless there is a radical change in the temperature.
 It is a rare thing to get good fishing in the lakes far north of the city before the 15th of May and even then it is only the "barnyard huckle" that will tempt the lusty trout, but such methods are too contemptible for the true disciple of Isaak Walton, although it seems doubtful if that fine old gentleman himself ever used anything else.
 There appears to be a certain anomaly in permitting the season to open here on April 15th, for the law specifically states that "fishing through the ice" is prohibited.
ANOTHER DROP IN PRICE OF BEER
New Figures Announced By Brewers Should Cause General Lowering Of Rates
 There is welcome news in the announcement of another drop in the price of beer by the leading Montreal brewers.
 On all of the ordinary brews there is to be a cut in wholesale prices of 5c per dozen on pints and 10c on the quarts, coupled with a reduction of 50c per barrel on draught beer, to be effective from today. A larger reduction still is being made on the Export brands—10c per dozen on the pints and 20c per dozen on the quarts.
 The new prices, coming on top of the reductions that were made in January, should be followed by a general lowering of retail prices all over the Province.
 The January reductions enabled many of the retailers in the stores and saloons to lower their prices to the consumer, but others claimed that the difference was not large enough to affect the price per glass or bottle.
 Under the conditions that have existed in Montreal, one has been asked on one side of the street to pay 20c for a pint of his favorite beverage, and has been able to cross the road and buy a bottle of identical the same brew for 15c. In many places the 5c glass of beer has made its re-appearance and, although not as large as formerly, has been very welcome to the working men of the Province.
 In the retail stores, there have been difference in prices running all the way from 5c. to 40c. per dozen quarts, according to the neighborhood in which the store is located.
 The new reduction should enable all of the beer-selling establishments to come down to a uniform price for the various brands that they offer, and it is even possible that we may witness the resurrection of the old-time "schonner", the respective sizes of which was always a matter of rivalry between the various retail houses.
 The brewers it would seem are making a determined effort to get the prices of beer back as near as possible to those of previous days. They pressed on to the public the benefit of the removal of the Government tax of 30c. per barrel, and almost before it can be expected they are passing on to them the advantage of the trend towards lower costs of production.

C.M.A. MEMBERS VISIT BERMUDA
Stopped Off For Two Days During Tour Of The West Indies

(Special Canadian Correspondence.)
 Bermuda, April 8.—Members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, on a tour of the West Indies, stopped over in Bermuda for two days and the Trade Development Board and the Chamber of Commerce took advantage of their visit to entertain the distinguished business men who arrived by the Royal Mail liner Chaleur. On Friday, when the steamer docked, a delegation of colonials met the party and after welcoming it, took the visitors and their wives to the Riddle's Bay Golf Course for a day's playing followed by a tea at the Clubhouse. In the evening the two Boards met the Canadians to discuss trade questions and matters of mutual interest. His Excellency, Governor-General Sir James Wilcocks and the Colonial officials were also present. On Saturday the visitors were taken for a tour to St. George's, stopping over at various points of interest, and given at luncheon at the St. George Hotel. In the evening the Royal Mail Line officials entertained the Canadians and Colonials with a dance on board the steamer at the Hamilton wharf. Society had a round of dinners and luncheons as pre-Easter entertainment this week. Mr. E. F. Darrell, of New York, entertaining fifty at dinner in the Hamilton Hotel, Mr. A. N. Jones, D.C. to His Honor the Lieut.-Governor of Nova Scotia, and Mrs. Jones, of Halifax, giving a dinner for twenty-two at the same hotel. The Hamilton Hotel directors gave a dinner on Wednesday to the Mayor and Corporation officials of the City of Hamilton. At the Princess on Thursday Mrs. Weston gave a dinner preceding the dance and Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Sartwell, of Boston, also entertained a party. At the St. George on dance night, when the East Lancashire Regimental Band furnished the music, dancing was preceded by several large dinner parties, among them being those given by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Blackiston, Mrs. R. Robert Gugenheim, Mrs. C. B. Emery, Mrs. E. Percy Tucker, and Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Kohler of New York.
 Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, of London, Eng., are at the St. George. Mr. Robertson is editor and owner of the great English shipping journal, "Fair Play." Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Francis, Toronto, are also at the St. George.
 At the Frascati Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Perigord, of Montreal, are among the guests.
 The Hamilton Hotel will end its season on April 18th after which Manager J. A. Sherrard will take most of his force to his summer hotel, The Preston, Beach Bluffs, Mass., and the Princess will close on April 25th, when Manager L. A. Twonoger will transfer his staff to the Hotel Appinwall, Lenox, Mass., for the summer season.
 Among the members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association on the Chaleur are: W. S. Fisher, of St. John, President of the organization, Sir Alexander and Lady Bertram, Col. and Mrs. R. W. Leonard, Mr. Douglas Mutch, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Whitman, Mr. G. Clifford McAvity, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. J. Lippert, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Payne, Col. Arthur Hatch, Mr. W. H. Shepley, Col. W. V. Greene, Mr. J. D. Emerson, Col. H. H. Edmunds, Mr. W. J. Atchison, Mr. Graham F. Towers, and Mr. C. K. Howard.
 The Canadians are on the last leg of their tour and leave for home Sunday morning.

HISTORY'S GREATEST SWINDLE IS CLAIM
Through Sale Abroad Of German Paper Marks And Mark Securities

Genoa, April 14.—The greatest swindle in history is being perpetrated through the sale abroad of German paper marks and mark securities to meet Reparation demands, said Professor Cassel, a distinguished Swedish economist, today.
 "I think North and South America know how dishonest is this system."
 "When France insists upon immediate payment the German Government can only raise money by issuing more paper marks and marketing more mark securities abroad. In other words, foreign investors, largely in North and South America, really are making the reparations payments on the theory that they are buying investments.
 If this system continues, the German mark will fall to a point where it will be virtually as bad as Austrian and Polish money and nobody abroad will touch it."

LIQUOR AND BIG LEAGUE PLAYERS

John Barleycorn Gives Major League Managers Plenty To Think About

New York, April 14.—In a dry country it sounds absurd to figure booze as a factor in the major league pennant race. Despite Mr. Volstead and the law there is enough hooch around, however, to trouble the managers of practically every club on the big time. On the pennant chances of four of the strongest teams in the majors depends in a large part this season on how the players conduct themselves off the field. Branch Rickey, who has lost two "thirsty" players already, is frank enough to admit that the entire chances of the St. Louis Cardinals rest on the drinking factor. "John Barleycorn is the most dangerous factor the Cardinals have as a pennant contender in the National league race," Branch Rickey said recently.

The Giants will be up against the same thing, perhaps in a less degree, and the Pirates, who threw away the pennant in 1921 with wild ways, will have to reform this year or get the same result.

One of Magraw's best pitchers, who starred in the world's series, had to have one of the coaches for a constant guardian all last season, and at that he got away several times.

One of the biggest stars in baseball last fall "threw down" his club in the hottest part of a desperate pennant race. He tried to open a quart of Scotch by pounding the bottom of the bottle on the wall. The neck cracked and he nearly cut out the palm of his hand. He was in and out for the rest of the season and was of little value to his team.

One of the greatest left-handers in the game almost passed out of the big leagues in one season because he couldn't get away from his booze. His team depended on him for another pennant and he flopped. This season he seems to have settled.

The Cleveland Indians and the Cincinnati Reds have had their booze troubles. Every pennant winner has it more than other clubs because the world's series money enables the players to pay $12 and $15 a quart without cutting into their envelope.

TOMMY MILTON BARRED ON COAST

Famous Auto Driver Is Suspended By National Contest Board

Fresno, Cal., April 14.—Tommy Milton, national champion automobile driver, has been barred from all races on the Pacific coast, according to a telegram received by Manager H. E. Patterson, of the Fresno Speedway association, from Wm. Schimpff, chairman of the national contest board of the A.A.A., in New York.

Schimpff said in his message that Milton had been disqualified because he demanded a bonus for entering a Fresno race and because of alleged false representations in advertising.

Tommy Was Surprised
Los Angeles, April 14.—Tommy Milton said he was "tremendously surprised" when he was informed at his home here today of the action taken by Schimpff.

CHANGES MADE IN LACROSSE RULES

Ontario Amateur Ass'n. Compels Senior Teams To Operate Junior Club

Toronto, April 14.—At the convention of the Amateur Lacrosse Association here today, four important changes were made in the rules.

The default rule was taken out of the constitution, and in future all games defaulted late in the season will be counted as played.

Every senior team must operate a junior, juvenile or midget team.

The heavy penalty for a major foul, such as hitting a player over the head, becomes constitutional.

Players who sign up with one team and fall to make a place on the line-up, can transfer to another club, if they secure permission from the O. A. L. A. executive.

Reviewing the history of the past year, Leonard Smith, retiring president, said he had noticed since the war a marked tendency not only towards cleaner play on the lacrosse field but a more friendly feeling on the whole.

VETERANS WILL WORK OUT TODAY

Practice To Be Staged At Exhibition Grounds This Afternoon—Officers Chosen

The Veterans Football Club of the Quebec Football League, will stage a practice at the Exhibition Grounds this afternoon, in preparation for the 1922 season, which will get under way soon.

A meeting of the Club was held the other night, when officers were chosen for the year, and plans discussed for the coming season. This club have secured the services of several players who turned out with Quebec City last season, and in addition have landed some newcomers, so that a formidable eleven is sure to be placed on the field. Captain Morton announces that no less than twenty-one players have been signed up by the Veterans, so that there will be material aplenty from which to select a strong outfit.

The various officials, chosen at Thursday's meeting, are as follows: Patron—Col. Desrosiers, Major Jack Price.

President—Sergt. Plante. Vice-President—T. D. Beattie. Manager—Ivor Bridges. Captain—R. W. Morton. Selection Committee—H. Warner, E. Rose and W. G. Jones. This afternoon's practice will start at 2:30.

124 NOMINATIONS FOR PREAKNESS

Commander J. K. L. Ross Has Four Entries--Morvich May Be A Starter

(By Canadian Press.)

New York, April 14.—Several Canadian-owner horses have been nominated for the $50,000 Preakness Stake, the feature of the May meeting at the Pimlico course, the list for which was announced today.

Commander J. K. L. Ross, of Montreal, has named Mercuti Marble, Spanish Maize and Collings. Mrs. Louise Viau, of Montreal, has entered Firm Friend.

There are 124 nominations in all. While much of this is probably dead-wood, there being no nomination fee, the list is a notable one, and contains the names of the majority of the good three-year-olds of the continent. The unbeaten Morvich has been named by Benjamin Block. Should he start he will be compelled to make a 13-pound weight concession to some high colts. Other horses that carry top weight if they start are Bunting, Kai-Sang, Gallant Man, William A., Little Chief and Relay.

"Hello, papa!" said his little daughter, calling him up on the phone.

"Hello, dear! What is it?"

"I wish you'd bring me some c-a-n-d-y when you come home this evening."

RADIO AND ITS POSSIBILITIES

In Realms Of Education Pointed Out By Chairman Of Board Of Directors

The wonderful possibilities of radio in the realms of education were pointed out by Owen D. Young, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Radio Corporation of America, in a statement made just before he sailed for France to attend a radio conference at Cannes.

"Every little red school house in the country has potential possibilities for becoming a college," he said. "What is to prevent boys and girls from receiving courses of lectures via radio on various subjects so that they might take examinations and receive diplomas for good work? Mathematics, science, literature, history, art — all could be taught by authorities. Another case of bringing the mountain to Mahomet, if it happens that the prophet doesn't find it convenient or profitable to go to the mountain. "Of course it is perfectly natural that the broadcasting of messages which have to do with entertainment etc., should at present be the popular phase of this fascinating study but the matter of international communication is of tremendous importance and it is this question which will occupy our attention at Cannes. A station is now being built in Poland and another is contemplated in China. That will complete the girdle around the globe. Have you noticed how youngsters accept all these radio discoveries with perfect equanimity? It is funny but natural. They take it for granted. It is their day. "It seems more marvelous to us 'oldsters' because we can make comparisons. We can figure back to the non-automobile, non-aeroplane, non-wireless days — and the strides made in electrical science are colossal."

HALF MILLION DOLLARS FROM LAND FILING
Calgary, Alta., April 14—The extent of land filing in the province of Alberta is indicated in the fact that during the year 1921 the local land titles office produced a revenue of more than half a million dollars.

Save the Children Fund is receiving many thousands of children such as these.

Ten Million Starving Children Knock at our Door

You wouldn't—you couldn't—refuse to feed a starving child, standing at your door. You wouldn't ask—you wouldn't care—about race or nationality. Ten million starving Russian children knock at our door, crying for food. They are the unconscious victims of the most terrible famine in world history; and, as Mr. Lloyd George says: "This is so appalling a disaster that it ought to sweep every prejudice out of one's mind and only appeal to one emotion—pity and human sympathy."

It is not a case of Russia, or Soviet Government, or Bolsheviki. It is the plea, in the name of humanity, for ten million helpless little children who will inevitably die in the slow agonies of starvation unless we feed them. Will you heed this knock on the door? 25c will feed a child for a week. $1.00 will ensure sufficient food for one child for a month. $500.00 will establish a kitchen and feed 100 children until the next harvest. Cheques and money orders may be forwarded through your bank or local committee, or sent direct to Sir George Burn, Treasurer, Save the Children Fund, Elgin Building, Ottawa.

MAKE HABIT OF TESTING BRAKES

More Accidents Due To Faulty Functioning Than Any Other Mechanical Failure

More automobile accidents are due to failure of brakes to function quickly and efficiently than to the collapse of any other mechanical unit of the car. This does not necessarily mean that brake failure is a prolific cause of accidents. The greater proportion of mishaps are to be ascribed to errors of human judgment, not necessarily the motorist's judgment of course, to skidding, inadequate traffic regulations, etc.; but brake failure has a prominent place among these contributory causes of accident which are most easily eliminated.

Daily inspection of brakes is a simple way of overcoming the danger constituted by their failure to operate efficiently. Before proceeding half a block from his garage the motorist should throw out the clutch and apply the brakes. If possible, he should select a dry spot for making this service test and if the brakes do not operate properly he should take the car no further until the defect has been remedied.

Frequently inefficient brake operation is due to amateur work in installing brake lining. None but an experienced mechanic should do this work. The lining must be properly stretched, so that it can not wrinkle, the rivets should be properly countersunk, so that they will not score the brake drum and interfere with the proper gripping of the lining. A good lining, and good brake lining is easily obtained in any part of the Dominion, will need but infrequent replacement, and that replacement is not an expensive job. But in order that the best service be secured, some care must be given to this lining. Every sixty days the rear wheels should be removed and the brake lining should be washed with kerosene. This removes any oil or grease that may have found its way into the brake housing and restores the "bite" of the brakes.

Squealing of brakes due to glazing of the brake lining or to improper adjustment. If this lining is glazed it may be roughened up with a file. Squealing may also be due to wearing down the lining to the rivets. In this event the rivets may sometimes be sunk still further in the lining; but it is better, when the rivets begin to scrape the drum, to renew the lining.

The brake mechanism should be cleaned and oiled at least once a month. Systematic brake inspection should be a habit. The loss of a cotter pin may easily lead to a serious accident. When a lock washer is removed do not put it back, but use a new one.

The brakes must be kept properly adjusted. They should not drag nor should they be too loose. Different adjustments are made according to the type of brake used. On the shaft brake there is a nut on the brake band which can be adjusted to make the brake neither too tight nor too loose. The brake rod may be turned either to right or to left to make it the proper length for the efficient use of the brake. On the axle or wheel drum brake where an equalizer is used the brakes should be set when the engine is not operating, and the equalizer should be adjusted until it parallels the axle. On the external type of wheel drum brake, tighten or loosen the adjusting nuts on the brake band, and equalize the length of the brake rods. On the internal type of wheel drum brake it is necessary to remove the rear wheels. The cam plate should then be adjusted, also the nuts, and the brake rods should be equalized.

After the brakes have been adjusted so that they are either too tight nor too loose they should be tested every thousand miles, or once a month, to make sure that the braking power is equally divided between the two rear wheels. This may be done by jacking up the wheels and applying the brake far enough so that it is just possible to turn one wheel by hand. Adjust the brake on the other wheel so that the same amount of energy is required to turn that wheel by hand. Proper application of brakes is essential. When coming to a stop on a straightway, shut off the gas throttle and leave the clutch engaged until just before you come to a stop. This method of stopping is very desirable in wet weather as it minimizes the tendency to skid.

GORGEOUS BUT HEAVY CLOTHES

Valentino Wears 105 Pounds Of Clothes in "Blood And Sand"

One hundred and five pounds is the total weight of the three Spanish bull-fighter costumes worn by Rodolph Valentino in the motion picture "Blood and Sand" by Vicente Blasco Ibañez. The gorgeous—but-heavy—impediments the film star must carry about while interpreting the dashing Gaillard, hero of the popular Ibañez tale of Spanish life, weigh thirty-five pounds apiece. He who fights the "toro" in Madrid or Seville must be "all dolled up," a mold of fashion and a glass of form, as it were. The suits are of brown, purple and blue velvet, respectively, overlaid with pounds of silver brocade, the hand labor of months. The dress cape is of pink silk with an underlining of red; decorated with gold brocade. When fully dressed a bull-fighter tinkles and rings like a battery of bells on a busy Sunday.

GO EASY WITH NEW MACHINES

Special Care is Needed From The Very Beginning With Autos

The dealer has just left your new car at the door, and promptly you invite the family to go for a short ride. Doesn't the engine sound powerful and quiet? Your critical tests all meet with satisfaction and you realize that it means sun, flowers and red blood, and that it will pay its cost in health for you and yours. But—are you interested in your car's health? Do you intend to keep it fit from the start. Of course you do!

After the first trip, take a wrench and go over every nut and bolt on the car to make certain that they are all tight. The engine parts should be given special attention, for the slightest defect here will result in misfiring and poor carburation. Make your inspections frequent for the first 1,000 miles until the car will have worn in somewhat, then you can relax your vigilance a bit.

Make a thorough study of the instruction book. Look at the lubrication chart and familiarize yourself with the location of every grease cup and oil hole, then see that they are kept filled properly. This will insure you against worn parts or scored bearings and, incidentally, allow you to learn the lubrication system thoroughly. When an automobile is built the engine has been run but little, and every part is fitted tight to make them snug, after the roughness has worn off. Consequently the car is very stiff and will not show much speed until these parts wear in. So don't exceed 25 miles an hour until your speedometer registers 1,000 miles. By so doing each part will "find itself" and you will be perfect ly safe in exceeding 30 miles per hour. If you force a car before it has obtained the 1,000 miles it will result in a noisy engine and premature repairs. Drain the oil every 500 miles and replace it with fresh. You will be surprised at the quantity of grit and dirt that comes from the crankcase. The bearing and pistons throw off small particles of metal, which, if you don't remove with the old oil, will work into the bearings and cause serious results. Perhaps your motor shows a tendency to overheat when new. Don't let this worry you, for it's merely the friction caused in wearing off the rough surfaces of the engine. Drive intelligently and just give her plenty of oil and water and soon this trouble will disappear. Every now and then the new car should be jacked up, the wheels shaken and the looseness removed. As the bearings become accustomed to their work the need for adjustment will go away as do the other ills. Be careful of your gasoline adjustment on the dash. Do not leave it "rich" any longer than is necessary for this results in an extra amount of gasoline getting into the engine, which will, of course, thin the oil. Keep the tires fully inflated—soft tires consume power as well as destroy themselves.

Keep the carburetor adjusted at the leanest possible mixture—a lean mixture reduces carbon deposits. Don't try to economize by purchasing the "just as good" oil. Buy the right, best grade and change the supply every 500 miles. You will find this the most economical in the long run. If you follow the car driven by an expert, you will notice that he maintains a constant speed; that he does not loaf along and then suddenly jump to 40 miles an hour. You use more gasoline when you accelerate. Select a safe driving speed, making only gradual speed change when it is necessary. Observe how the other fellow does it and profit by his experience. All of the things previously mentioned are good for both passenger cars and trucks, but it must be remembered that the pounding and vibration of a motor working at full load, as is usual in a truck, require perhaps greater care and attention at first than a passenger car.

To-day's Dunlop price for a 30 x 3 1/2 Improved "Traction" Casing (Fabric) is $16.50. Never in the whole history of rubber manufacturing did a tire boast as many merits.

In 1911 you had to pay $35.25 for a 30 x 3 1/2 "Traction" (Fabric) that could not hope to compare in cost-per-mile to you with today's "Dunlop."

When you buy a 1922 Dunlop Improved 30 x 3 1/2 "Traction" (Fabric) tire you are buying a very superior article. Our dealer sells you a full size 3 1/2-inch tire—

- With an extra thick tread;
- With heavier side walls and side bars;
- With heavy connected centre bars;
- With more rubber cushion between the plies of fabric;
- With non-skid features that cannot be surpassed;
- With the highest-priced, long staple, combed Egyptian Cotton.

This new "Dunlop" has made a tremendous hit. Before you buy your next tire, ask the dealer to show you this Master Mileage-Maker.

It makes no difference what size tire you use, or what tread you prefer, Dunlop prices are at rock-bottom to-day and Dunlop Quality at Top Form.

What motorist is there who would invest a dollar in one of the many shoddy-built, low-mileage tires, when he can obtain Dunlop "Double-Life," "High-Mileage" Tires for such a small original outlay?

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds, those that find lodgement in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter are the most destructive, as they cling to the walls of the intestines and if not interfered with work havoc there. Miller's Worm Powders dislodge both kinds and while expelling them from the system serve to repair the damage they have caused.

ACTION AT SHIP SALE PERPLEXES

Policy Of Shipping Board In Retaining West Hartland Furnishes Problem

Portland, April 14—Action of the Shipping Board in bidding against private interests at a public auction on the steamer West Hartland Monday at Seattle, the Government raising its bid to $135,000 to retain ownership, while the private corporation had increased its offer to $134,500 before withdrawing, has renewed discussion as to the policy of the organization as regards the disposal of idle tonnage.

Portlanders interested in the transaction were in a state of wonderment yesterday as to why the Shipping Board should have sought to prevent the steamer passing to private hands. It is understood that all liabilities for the collision between the vessel is denied by the Government, but steamship men do not feel that possession of the steamer or will aid the defence in the case. On the other hand, she has been idle since the accident and considerable money must be spent for dry-docking and overhauling.

Besides government tonnage is out of commission in the principal ports of the country, including Portland, where half a dozen are tied up and more are to follow, and the Shipping Board has offered ships for sale, various interests being urged to purchase to aid in maintaining a merchant marine. Ex-German vessels have been disposed of by the Shipping Board recently. The Wabaah, here last month in the service of the Navisco fleet, was sold for $50,000 at public sale, and the Rajah, also an ex-German was disposed of for $35,000.

It has been the Shipping Board's policy at times, in cases where ships were offered from the fleet at large not involved in litigation, to accept bids, and in the public auction on Monday it is felt here that the top-notch bids of private interests represented the open market value of the ship.

CONVERSATION BY MEANS OF EYES

Visual Method Of Communicating With Deaf And Dumb Discovered

Communication with the deaf and dumb through the medium of the eyes instead of by manual signs and gestures was shown to be possible in a demonstration which was given in Montreal a few days ago by Aaron Honigman, inventor of the new system.

Mr. Honigman is a civic employe in Montreal and a Russian by birth. The demonstration which he gave with the aid of his two little girls, both of whom are perfectly normal children, indicated says the Gazette of that city, that he had hit upon a device for transmitting language to them by movement of eyeballs. At the same time it was evident that the new method was in its experimental stage, and, moreover, the demonstration in question was with children who were not deaf mutes. In addition, Mr. Honigman gave evidence of study in other methods of communicating with the deaf and dumb, as he appeared to have various manual methods of transmitting language, such as could be used in the dark and under special circumstances.

The experiment was made by Mr. Honigman with his two daughters of twelve and fourteen, who seated opposite their father, about four feet away were scrutinized as though he had the intention of hypnotizing them. In the meantime members of the audience had selected at random a word each from children's readers that were passed round. Ships containing these words were placed in the hands up in turn and then riveted his attention on the young faces opposite him. At short intervals of four, five or even thirty seconds, they would utter such words as "day", "divide", "storm", "school", each which was admitted by some person present. Once or twice there was some hesitation, but generally only of a momentary kind. One or two short sentences were also spelled out in the same way, and later by various manual methods.

The demonstrator was cross-examined by Bishop Farthing, Sir Arthur Currie, Dr. Wellington Dixon and Rev. Dr. George Duncan as to the actual utility of his invention, the question in their minds being as to whether it was claimed that this new system could show any advantage over the present system of communicating with the deaf mute. Miss McLeod and Miss Daly of the Mackay Institute for the deaf and dumb asserted that the methods used in their institute language were not rapid. In view, however, of the admission of Mr. Honigman that he had had no opportunity of experimenting with deaf mutes, and that he had not even had time to carry these experiments beyond the A.B.C. stage with his own children, it was conceded by those present that he had at least justified his claim in principle sufficiently to make it desirable to develop his system so that it might perhaps become an additional mode of communication with the deaf and dumb.

If the sewers of Greater New York were placed end to end it would mean a tunnel just about long enough to reach San Francisco. If it did not quite reach that city it would be close enough to alarm the good people of the Golden Gate. Manhattan alone has 636 miles of sewers.

PREMIER LIKES TO TELL TALES

Lloyd George Never So Happy As When Swapping Stories About Boyhood Days

Criccieth, Walth, April 14—Premier Lloyd George is never so happy as when swapping stories about his boyhood days with old cronies of his native Wales.

During his last visit here he gave a tea party to 199 ancients who were his father's pupils at Tridryall school, more than 60 years ago. The senior "old boy" was John Jones, 91, who still works as a carpenter. Next to Jones was William Davies, an assistant teacher under the Premier's father, who testified to the latter's handiness with the cane on occasions. Another guest, was John Williams, now blind, who used to carry love messages between the Premier's father and mother.

The "old boys" told their best many stories of his father he had never heard before and all were in the best of spirits. Old John Jones made the Premier roar with laughter by the quaint way he told a story of the local indignation many years ago, when a minister preached from a text which another minister had used the previous Sunday.

Mr. Lloyd George always tries to take things easy while here, but members of his cabinet and newspaper men seldom let a day go by without appropriating part of his time.

Getting up late in the morning, working in the garden, and listening to Welsh music are his chief pleasures during his visits and when the weather is threatening he sits on his covered balcony wrapped in a gaudy shawl.

"They say, he remarked on his last visit, "that I must go back to school in a few days. They say I am playing truant. Yet they all followed me, including the newspapers I wish they would leave me alone for at least a fortnight; it would be better for them, and certainly better for me."

BIG PRODUCTION IS FILM "NERO"

Fox Vehicle, Shot in Italy, Now Being Assembled at Studios in New York

Probably the most interesting topic for discussion in film circles these days is the William Fox production, Nero which was recently completed in Italy, and which is now being assembled at the Fox studio in New York. Interest in this picture is heightened by the fact that very little has been made public concerning it. It is known, however, that the Fox executives consider it the most stupendous production in the history of the motion picture industry. Only a very few of the Fox officials have as yet had the opportunity of viewing Nero, but those who have are unanimous in declaring that it will create a sensation.

From time to time, cables have reached this country which have given some idea of the magnitude of the production and of the difficulties which the Fox executives had to overcome. These difficulties included everything from securing permission from the Italian government to photograph certain historic structures and scenes, to riots incited by disgruntled workmen who had failed to obtain employment with "the rich Americans". So serious did one of these riots become, that both police and mounted troops were called out to suppress it, and a detachment of troops was thrown about the American Embassy to prevent an additional demonstration.

With the majority of Italians, however, the Americans were highly popular. Not only did they spend huge sums of money, but they gave employment to thousands at a time when unemployment was a serious menace to the national welfare. The Americans were treated with the utmost consideration by the government and by the people in general. Only a small group of radicals and a few radical newspapers professed to see in "the Americans invasion" a danger to the Italian motion picture industry.

While most of the scenes in Nero were photographed in Rome and its vicinity, some were taken near Naples, and in the Alps. Those members of the expedition who have already returned to this country declare that for natural beauty the backgrounds used in Nero have never been surpassed. In addition to the many historic buildings and places shown in Nero, the Fox organization built an entire city on the outskirts of Rome only to destroy it.

The cast of Nero, now made public for the first time, is truly an international one. It includes American, French, Russian and Italian motion picture actors and actresses, as well as several members of noble Italian and Russian families who had never acted for the screen before.

Jacques Grettillat of the Theatre Odeon who plays the role of Nero, is one of the most popular actors in France. He has two principal roles in some of the most famous successes on the French stage in recent years, and was recently engaged by Sarah Bernhardt to support her in "La Gloire" by Maurice Rostand. During the war Grettillat served for three years at the front, was wounded eight times, and was on several occasions decorated by the French Government for bravery.

Paulette Goddard, who has one of the leading roles in the picture is another player who is a warm favorite in Paris. She is considered by many to be "the most beautiful woman in France" as well as one of the most charming actresses and dancers. The American screen is represented in the cast of Nero by Violet Mersereau, whose blond beauty is in decided contrast to the brunette loveliness of the majority of her fellow players.

Eddy Darceia who heads the long list of prominent Italian screen stars in Nero is of Italian American stock, her mother having come from Baltimore and her father from Rome. Before entering motion pictures, Miss Darceia had studied for grand opera and had already made an auspicious beginning on the operatic stage, when she decided to adopt a screen career. In spite of her youth, she is one of the best known motion picture actresses in Italy today.

Alexander Salvini, who has a very prominent role in the picture, is a member of the famous Salvini family. He is the son of the famous Gustav Salvini and a grandson of the even more noted Tommaso Salvini, and is himself well known both on the legitimate stage and in pictures.

The cast of Nero also includes: Guido Trento, Enzo De Felice, Nera Bernardi, Adolfo Trousche, Nello Carosino, Alfredo Galzer, Lydia Yaguinto, Mimi Tallywhisk, Puvia Ademari, Mary Stella, Ester Raffi, Fernando Celesia, Enrico Kant, Tity Tallywhisk, Claretta Cespri, Michele Di Salvo, Amedeo Trouche, Aldo Fortunato, Lina Bekisario, Lina Troppedo, Julia Troppedo, Dalvati Aldemiro and others.

The Fox forces in Italy were in command of J. Gordon Edwards, dean of the Fox directors, who has made many notable productions for this organization including "Queen of Sheba" and other big spectacles, and who is now in the Holy Land at work on a spectacle founded on the Old Testament story of King David.

Miss Virginia Tracy, who wrote the story of "Queen of Sheba" also wrote the story of Nero.

The expedition was under the general supervision of Abraham Carlos, for many years representative of the Fox organization on the continent.

John D. Bradton was the technical director, and was assisted by a large staff of American and Italian architects, artists, sculptors and artists.

Harry Plimpton was in charge of the photography, and was assisted by twenty-six additional cameramen. Over one hundred and twenty-five thousand feet of film was exposed before Nero was completed.

In view of the extravagant claims which have been made as to the number of people taking part in some of the European productions shown in this country in the past, it is interesting to note that sixty-five thousand people actually took part in some of the scenes in Nero. As yet, no definite date has been set for this picture's premier, but the film world and motion picture fans in general, are awaiting its initial showing with the keenest interest.

Married by a preacher stuck in a swamp!

There have been thousands of methods of wedlock displayed in various motion pictures but local playgoers are promised a new sort when "Tillie" arrives at the Empire Theatre for four days beginning tomorrow.

The little Mennonite girl and her lover have just been reunited after a series of dramatic scenes involving stern members of the little Dutch Pennsylvania community. And then comes the unusual marriage scene to relieve the tension, and give a laugh right at the proper point.

But there was no laughing for the poor chap picked to be the mud-caught Mennonite elder. For a whole day he stood to his waist in mud, and when it came time to haul him out, the mud had dried so that he had to be pried out with a two by four, at the expenditure of much skin and profanity!

The "mud-marriage" is said to be but one of the many interesting scenes which go to make up the strong photoplay which Alice Eytan adapted from the Helen R. Martin novel and play by Frank Howe, Jr. The part of "Tillie" is said to be one of the most appealing in all Miss Minter's career.

At the performances to-morrow Mr. Camille Duguay the talented baritone will sing an appropriate Easter song.

THE VICTORIA

The management of the Victoria Theatre promise a bill of unusual attractiveness for the coming week, commencing to-morrow afternoon. The glamor and the lure of night life in Paris and New York are vividly reflected in "Peacock Alley", in which the exotic Mae Murray will be the leading artist. It is reported to give her the best opportunity for acting of her entire screen career. The critical comments upon this film are of an exceptional character. Cinema Art calls it "the last word in pictures".

The brilliant little blonde screen favorite plays the part of a Parisian dancer, the darling of the famous city of pleasure. She is feted and adored for her daring dances and her astonishing costumes. She falls in love with a youthful tourist, an American small town lad, marries him, and goes home with him, only to discover that her husband's folk are scandalized by his French wife. Then comes a rude awakening on Broadway, giving to this story a strangely dramatic and intensely interesting turn. The scenes are brilliant, and the acting is reported to be on a high level.

A good comedy and other short subjects will be shown on the same program.

THE CLASSIC

"At the End of the World" will be the feature picture which will be shown at the Classic Theatre for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Betty Compson the young talented screen star has the leading feminine role in this film. The star is given plenty of opportunity to demonstrate her ability and advance notices state that her acting is of a very high calibre. Miss Compson is supported by an all-star cast.

A two reel comedy, Paramount Magazine and other short subjects will also be shown on the same program.

THE AUDITORIUM

A very good bill of vaudeville and moving pictures has been booked for the Auditorium for all of next week starting with a matinee Monday afternoon. The picture part will consist of "The Wise Kid" with Gladys Walton playing the leading role, a good comedy and Pathe Weekly.

The first act of the vaudeville program will be The Halkings, man and woman, in a comedy shadowgraphic novelty with should made a hit with the audience.

A singing comedienne in the person of Frances Dougherty will entertain in the second number, while The Dancing Kennedy will give an exhibition of the terpsichorean art as the third act on the bill.

Some real comedy is promised by Coakley and Dunleavy, two black face comedians while the fifth and final number will be the Weber Girls in an acrobatic offering.

THE VICTORIA

It is not often that motion picture fans are given the opportunity to see the latest and most stylish costumes presented by one of the most attractive artists of the screen in a story vibrant with romance and adventure, but that is what Mae Murray's latest picture, "Peacock Alley," is. It will be shown Sunday at the Victoria Theatre.

In this Metro release for Tiffany Productions, Inc., presented by Robert Z. Leonard, Miss Murray portrays the part of a Parisian dancer, who, as the darling of the famous city of pleasure, is feted and adored for her daring and artistic creations. She falls in love with a youthful American, a small town boy, and goes back to his home only to find that the people of the little village are scandalized at his French wife. The rude awakening among the bright lights of Broadway gives this story a turn which makes it one of the most dramatic offerings of the screen.

"Peacock Alley" is typically a Mae Murray picture. Its gorgeous settings and the costly costumes of the star are outstanding features in an offering which at its special showing in New York won the unstinted praise of the critics as being the most beautiful and gorgeous production of the screen. The cast supporting Miss Murray is a most notable one and includes Monte Blue in the leading male role, Edmund Lowe, W. J. Ferguson, Anders Randolph, William Foster, Howard Lang, William Frederick, M. Durant, and Jeffry Lewis. "Peacock Alley" is by Edmund Goulding, based on a story by Ouida Bergere. It was directed by Robert Z. Leonard and photographed by Oliver T. Marsh.

PARAMOUNT WEEK STARTS MONDAY

Second Annual Canadian Event Brings Special Pictures To Ancient Capital

As the name Paramount Blue Ribbon Week implies, this annual celebration was advised in order to bring to the Canadian public immediately following the Lenten season, the very finest array of motion picture attractions that could possibly be programmed within a week, in each and every city and town of the Dominion containing a theatre. To this end the Booking Department of the gigantic corporation has been working night and day for the past month arranging these programs so as to include the greatest variety of productions and stars, eliminating those that could not be classed among the very highest grade, and ordering many additional copies of the films that have proven in most demand.

In order to acquaint the public with Paramount Blue Ribbon Week the Famous-Lasky concern is now in the midst of the most far reaching film advertising campaign in the history of Canada. This includes pages in many of the nationally circulating magazines, advertisements in 60 of the principal newspapers from coast to coast, posters, etc., and each theatre playing Paramount Pictures during Blue Ribbon Week will distribute novelty folders to their patrons showing the latest photographs of all the Paramount stars and containing a rhyme about each one. This is styled the "Paramount Alphabet."

The design used in all Paramount Blue Ribbon Week announcements was created by Miss Fern Thompson of Brantford, Ontario on the occasion of the first Blue Ribbon Week last year. Miss Thompson winning a trip to the Paramount studios on Long Island N.Y. as her prize for the best design submitted from all over Canada.

Paramount stars that will shine their brightest during Blue Ribbon Week include Gloria Swanson, Wallace Reid, Wm. S. Hart, Elliott Dexter, Theodore Roberts, Agnes Ayres, Betty Compson, Rodolph Valentino, Dorothy Dalton, Thomas Melghen, Lois Wilson, Marion Davies, Ethel Clayton, Lilla Lee, Bebe Daniels, Wanda Hawley, Constance Binney, Jack Holt, Lionel Barrymore, Conrad Nagel, Leatrice Joy, Mildred Harris, Edith Roberts, Theodore Kosloff, Monte Blue, Will Rogers.

MARION DAVIES' TASTE IN MUSIC

Keeps Director Busy During Time She is Making Pictures—Chooses Her Own

Marion Davies, star in Cosmopolitan Productions, keeps her musical director busy. Miss Davies, before taking up screen work, appeared in several successful musical comedies and one of her favorite pastimes still is attending Broadway shows. From an evening at the theatre she will return to the studio humming or whistling a melody heard the night before. This she requests the musical director to play during the scenes she is making. One of her present favorites in "Rosey Posey" from "The Blushing Bride." It is lulling and joyous and seems to have a good effect on the spirits of the whole company which is now engaged in producing the elaborate "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

Miss Davies selects the orchestral music to be played during the filming of her pictures. For "When Knighthood Was in Flower" she chose "Merry Wives of Windsor" and selections from "King Henry the Eighth." That stately, dignified music should accompany a picture portraying the lives of kings and queens and princesses is the star's contention. Yet, jolly "Rosey Posey" bursts forth frequently from organ and violins during rests between scenes and the star's little buckskin shod feet execute many a merry dance while the electricians and stage hands form an admiring audience instead of the throngs which used to see her in "Chin Chin" and "Oh Boy!"

In fact, Miss Davies takes little time to rest even when she has a chance because whenever "Rosey Posey" is played it invariably brings her to her feet either to dance or to practice fencing.

The Chinese, of all peoples, attach most importance to etiquette, their Book of Rites dating back to the first century B.C.

Ann Forrest, David Powell, Elsie Ferguson, Matt Moore, Mary Miles Minter, T. Roy Barnes, May McAvoy Forrest Stanley, James Kirkwood, Seena Owen, etc. The public is urged to see at least two Paramount Pictures next week.

A TWO-FAMILY BUNGALOW

DESIGNED BY C.M.A.S. S. SEDGWICK

IN these days of business depression, it behooves the home builder to look after ways and means of financing his home. And one of the surest and easiest ways to do this is to build a two family house. Such a home is economical in every way and with two bath rooms, as in the house shown today, the owner's privacy is in no way interfered with.

As a glance at the floor plan will show each apartment in this house has its own private entrance, its own bath room, its own porch and its own basement. Each also contains living room, kitchen, bed room and bath, also two porches and several closets. The rooms are comfortably and attractively arranged, and for a young married couple or for mother and daughter or, indeed, cially for a corner lot, but it could be adapted for an inner lot just as well. There is a central chimney with flue for each apartment, and the kitchens are conveniently arranged. Of frame construction with wide colonial siding and with the upper sections and gables stuccoed, this bungalow makes an exceptionally pretty appearance, and looks from the outside like one large low spreading bungalow rather than a two family house. Each basement has concrete foundation and is fully equipped for laundries, heating rooms, coal bins, etc. The floors of this house are of oak and castings are of pine, enameled white. Exclusive of the plumbing and heating, it is estimated that it would cost between $5,000 and $6,000 to build.

for two young business girls, these apartments are particularly suited. All corresponding rooms are the same size. This bungalow is designed espe-

Shell-Shocked Men Not Cured

M. Emile Coue, of Nancy, France, may be the remarkable man his friends believe, but it is plain that he made a great mistake when, at the solicitation of Lady Beatty, he visited an English hospital for shell-shocked soldiers and sought to cure some of them. He was passing his hands over the body of one victim of the war who was suffering from bodily tremors, when the soldier began to shriek. The effect upon the rest of the soldiers was "indescribably hellish," in the words of one witness, some such effect, one might imagine, as though a bomb had been dropped among them. Lady Beatty and Coue had to depart hurriedly and the demonstration, which was intended to be the crowning triumph of his English visit, was a lamentable fiasco. Hospital attendants say that the effects of M. Coue's visit will not be obliterated for a year. The incident, however painful to the unfortunate soldiers, is not likely to injuriously affect M. Coue's reputation. He is as famous in France and England today as Einstein.

By Will Power
He will have a reasonable excuse too, for his failure to do anything but harm to the mentally unbalanced soldiers. Hitherto his experiments and his successes have been confined to those in possession of their mental faculties, but suffering from physical disabilities, and since M. Coue does not profess to be a neurologist, he could not have been expected to know the probable effect of his efforts upon the mentally afflicted. Moreover, he accepts no pay for his work. He lays claim to no supernatural powers, to no powers at all out of the ordinary. He cures by auto-suggestion, or, rather, he is able to make the patient put forth a strong effort of the will to cure himself. There are witnesses to prove that in thousands of cases he has succeeded and that the cures have been permanent. In an event, he is no faker making a profit out of the sufferings of the unfortunate and inebriating them with hope impossible to realize. There is, however, a suspicion that M. Coue has been exploited by well-meaning neurotic women.

The Faith Cure
Two years ago M. Coue was engaged in a small business in Nancy and found his hobby in the cultivation of flowers. His health was generally good, but he was troubled with rheumatism. Then he came across the advertisement of some American publisher recommending a pamphlet by an American medical man on this subject of auto-suggestion. M. Coue forwarded the pamphlet and received the book. It made upon him a profound impression upon him. The American, who seems to have been a disciple of Mary Baker Eddy, said that there was no disease. When one thought he was ill he suffered merely from a belief in illness. If he could rid himself of the belief he would discover that just as beauty lies in the eye of the observer, so pain lies in the imagination of the sufferer.

Healed Himself
M. Coue began to experiment upon himself. He vigorously French idiom he assured himself that he was not ill that he was suffering because of a hallucination of illness. "Dispossess yourself of the idea," said Coue to himself. "Get up and walk without pain—go about your business as you should." Thus admonished, M. Coue dispossessed himself of the idea and got up and walked without pain. He discovered that if each morning before rising, or each night before falling asleep, he dogmatically assured himself that he had no rheumatism or no pain, he was able to rise and move about more freely than for years past. In a short time he was cured completely. It occurred to him that others might be cured, and one morning when he met a groaning and rheumatic neighbor he asked him with astonishment what was the trouble. The neighbor at first thought he was joking, but M. Coue assured him that there was nothing whatever wrong with him but his imagination.

Remarkable Cures
Acting on Coue's instructions, the friend cured himself, and news of the miracle spread abroad. Acquaintances and strangers began calling on M. Coue, and he told them just what he had done for himself and what he had done for the neighbor. He was able to do the same thing for them. On one occasion, it is related, he restored a paralytic. He professed no knowledge of medicine, not even an acquaintance with anatomy, but the cure after cure was effected and

MORE NECESSARY THAN LOW PRICE

Maintenance Most Important Factor in Sales, Says Service Expert

Reduction in cost of car maintenance is pointed to as what is needed if rather than reduction in initial cost the industry is to expand its market, by R. H. Cobleigh, secretary of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

"One of the most encouraging signs of the times," says R. H. Cobleigh, "is that the falling off in demand has stimulated concern for the customer's satisfaction and has been an incentive to improve service rendered to car owners. We see an increasing manifestation of desire to cater to the motorist's want and on the part of all elements in the industry, the manufacturers to design and produce a car that will give better performance and be more convenient to attend and more accessible for repairs, and on the part of the dealers, garages, and repair shops, to increase the efficiency of their repair and overhaul work, all to the end of reducing the car owner's cost of maintenance."

There are very, very many people who would so far as desire is concerned, and should so far as need is concerned, own automobiles, but cannot, because of the upkeep cost. We know that the first cost of automobiles is not the deterrent for more sales at present. If that were not so we could sell instead of giving away our used cars, as at present. We know that the desire to own automobiles is universal, therefore the inevitable conclusion is that it costs too much to keep them. Conversely, if we can make it cheaper to own cars the market for them will be immeasurably widened.

To Lessen Cost of Overhauling.
Repairs and overhauls represent the bulk of maintenance costs and in these the biggest reducible element is the labor cost. Improved design to increase accessibility and reduce the time for overhaul operations will have increased attention from now on and go far toward accomplishing the desired end, but there will yet remain a great deal to be done and the most promising agency at hand is education toward the employment of better ways and means by all the factors engaged in rendering service to the car owner.

Buyers Concerned About Service
While the industry has been developing, and the mechanism and appointments of the product have been approaching more nearly perfection, the users have been developing a clearer understanding of what they can reasonably expect. We find ourselves selling now a motor-car to the public. At least eighty per cent of our sales—if not more—are to those who have already owned cars and naturally we find they paying more attention to the reputation of the car as an instrument than to mechanical features or eye-appeal, that have heretofore made up the bulk of the salesman's arguments. The customers are becoming more concerned as to the character of service the dealer renders than with pride of ownership of the new vehicle. First cost is seldom now the sole determining factor in choice of purchase. Best or greatest consideration is given to its value as judged by performance and low cost of upkeep.

CRIME WAVE IS SWEEPING RUSSIA

Land of Soviets Swept by Street Banditism Rivaling Even United States

Moscow, April 14.—Soviet Russia has been swept by a wave of street banditism that rivals recent crime epidemics in the United States.

Until a few months ago, Moscow surprised foreign visitors by the safety of its streets, and late at night, but now is no safer than New York or Chicago and the list of crimes is growing steadily, while Petrograd, Odessa, Kiev and other cities are reported to be even worse. Holdups, burglaries, murders in the principal streets and battles with the Moscow police have occurred in such great numbers that the Moscow Soviet has decreed that immediate steps shall be taken to "liquidate" the situation.

"Liquidation" of such situations in Russia generally means shooting on sight of persons caught in the act of robbery, or speedy execution after conviction. One issue of the newspaper Pravda reported some 15 holdups, several burglaries and the discovery of two bodies, apparently of persons who had been robbed, killed and thrown into cellars. Some of these affairs have occurred in the principal streets.

Russian highwaymen generally take not only the money, jewelry and watches of their victims but also their outer and sometimes inner clothing, leaving them to run home naked or nearly so. Clothing is worth more than money in Russia. Some of the highwaymen, according to reports, adopt quite polite manners. At Petrograd one bandit is said to have stopped a number of men in the street, asking them, politely, after pointing at their overcoats if they wished to buy the garments.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

YOU know the real human doctors right around in your neighborhood: the doctors made of flesh and blood just like you; the doctors with souls and hearts; those men who are responding to your call in the dead of night as readily as in the broad daylight; they are ready to tell you the good that Fletcher's Castoria has done, is doing and will do, from their experience and their love for children.

Your physician knows that Castoria is purely a child's remedy. It was sought for and discovered as a substitute for Castor Oil in the ailments of Infants and Children.

Your physician will tell you this for he knows that preparations put on the market for adults are not adaptable for the very young and he is particularly interested in your baby.

Children Cry For Fletcher's

Is Baby Well and Strong?

Your heart aches when your baby falls sick. You feel so anxious to help the little sufferer, yet so helpless because baby can't tell you where it feels bad. But, if you are wise, you know that generally baby sickness comes from a disordered stomach or bowels. You can tell easily that baby is constipated or has pain, eructations, flatulence, diarrhoea, is restless, feverish, wakeful, fretful. Good mothers use Fletcher's Castoria, a powerful, purely vegetable, discovered by a family doctor and used in the best families for over thirty years.

Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria. It is a comfort to babies, the mother's unfailing friend. Any Mother who has used Fletcher's Castoria will advise you to use it for your baby. Give your sick baby a dose of it and note how soon baby begins to feel better. A few doses and you will realize what a wonderful remedy Fletcher's Castoria is for babies, what a comfort it is for mothers to depend on.

Never try to relieve baby with a remedy that you would use for yourself. Don't say tomorrow, get it today.

DO YOU EAT ENOUGH GREENS?
A man came to a stomach specialist in despair over his digestive troubles. Every remedy had failed. The doctor asked him what he ate. "Doctor," the patient replied "I can't possibly be on my diet that upsets me, for about all I've eat for years is flour waffles."
This man had ruined his stomach, not by eating indigestible foods but by a one-sided diet.
His cure was comparatively simple: He was given, besides "flour waffles," plenty of salads, green vegetables, fruit, milk and eggs.
In planning your family's meals remember that their digestions and their general health demanded plenty of green foods, fruits and dairy food.—From the May Delinestor.

FEDERAL HOUSING SCHEME IN ISLAND
Charlottetown, P. E. I., April 14—The Federal housing scheme is at present engaging the attention of the Island's cities and towns, and it is probable that provincial legislation will be enacted to qualify for the Federal loan. An endeavor is being made to ascertain the number of people interested in having houses constructed under their own ideas and plans with Federal aid, and provincial legislation will be governed largely by the number of requests.
SYDNEY'S COAL PRODUCTION GROWING
Sydney Mines, N.S., April 14—Sydney's coal production is showing a pronounced upward tendency with the daily output swinging round the two thousand ton mark. The coal bank now contains about 45,000 tons and this amount will be doubled by the time spring navigation opens, making prospects for an active summer of shipping.

BIG POWER PLANS FOR KOOTENAY DISTRICT
Vancouver, April 14.—(Special)—It is learned here that important power plant will shortly be carried out in the Kootenay District. For some time past it has been known that there was an urgent demand for increase power, owing to the strides that have been made by the undertaking of the Canadian Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company. In addition, a number of new undertakings have been started which have given such promise that they now require additional power for their proper development.
Up to the present time, the power development has been the greatest in the West Kootenay District, but present plans, it is stated, will result in increased expansion in East Kootenay District. One of the most important features of this field is said to result from the progress made in connection with the big Sullivan Mine, now regarded as one of the most important undertakings of its kind in the world. Recent progress has indicated that it is urgent that a large concentrator should be built right next to the property of the Sullivan Mine and this will only be done as it is possible to make the necessary arrangement for permanent requirements of electrical power.

R. T. Scott Company To Operate On Bigger Scale Than Ever Before
(Special to The Chronicle)
The R. T. Scott Company, Limited, under the personal direction of R. T. Scott, and embodying all the principles of Scott service: Clean promotion, public ownership and a square deal to the investing public, which R. T. Scott and the R. T. Scott Company, Limited, has stood for in the Dominion of Canada for the past two years, and during which time they have built up a clientele of over four thousand people who have purchased securities through the Scott organization, aggregating three million dollars, will continue in business in the Dominion of Canada on a bigger scale than ever before, with the opening of additional branch offices from Halifax to Vancouver.
On the 24th of this month the public will announce through the public press details of a new five million dollar Canadian Financial Security with a representative Board of Directors, all Canadian. The new security will not have one share of promotion stock, will pay eight percent interest on deferred payments from date of first payment, with by-law of limitation on salaries of officers and directors that can never be changed except by unanimous vote, and many other radical out of the ordinary features, as well as being a concrete representation of the Scott idea and everything that it stands for in the minds of the Canadian public.
R. T. Scott, or the new R. T. Scott Company, Limited, will have no connection in any manner, shape or form with the Detroit-Windsor bridge or the proposed A. F. Healy Company.
Mr. Scott's withdrawal of any connection with the Detroit-Windsor bridge does not mean that the interests of those clients having purchased this security will be jeopardized in any way. A general meeting of all the sales managers and all Scott service salesmen will be held in Toronto at the King Edward Hotel on Tuesday April eighteenth at ten a. m.
Daily Gossip On Leading Stocks
Within the last two weeks 125 claims have been staked in the Goudreau Gold area, near Sault Ste. Marie making the total number of claims recorded to date over 600. An electric air condenser has been put into operation at the Murphy Mine since the completion of the power line from Steep Hill Falls.
Some of the latest claims are being staked eighteen miles west of Goudreau, and good finds are reported, according to Mr. C. H. E. Routhwaite, of the A. C. R. Lands Office. The surface showings of these out of the way claims amount from $7.00 to $15.00 a ton. From the eastern extremity to the western, the Goudreau gold field west of the A.C.R. now covers eighteen miles, and from the north to the south it stretches for four and one-half miles. Altogether about eighty-one square miles of the A.C.R. land is now included in the staking.

ODESSA SEEKING LOST PROSPERITY
Looks Like Long Hard Road—Factories Have To Be Rebuilt And Financed
Odessa, April 14.—This once rich port of the Ukraine is struggling to regain some of its former prosperity but it looks like a long, hard road for its 60 factories must first be rebuilt and financed by foreign capital. Just now there is none to be had.
How difficult will be Odessa's climb back to business may be gathered from the fact that, of 20,000 workmen employed about her port and in her industries before the big war but 10,000 now have any sort of work. All are soviet employes.
The chief production of the 12 factories in operation is in leather, agricultural machinery, grain bags, nails, cloth, varnish, shoes, glass and very poor matches.
The cost of production is constantly varying with the exchange, the price of food and labor and at the present time no fair comparison could be made with imported goods.
The cost of labor so far has been negligible due to the forced nationalization of factories and mobilization of the workmen, but it is steadily increasing as the men are free to find work. Those employed do piece work earning daily about 300,000 rubles, or 60 cents, whereas the regular wage scale is 100,000 rubles, or 20 cents. But these figures are unreliable, as workers often get permission to do outside work, receive a little food in addition or else their thefts of goods are winked at.
It requires a minimum of 200,000 rubles daily, or about 35 cents to feed one person. Rent is free. A pair of shoes costs $10 to $15; a poor suit of clothing twice as much.
It may be said that the working man has lost vastly in a material sense by the revolution. Today his cry is for bread and bread only. If it is an advantage, the working men now partly control this city, once one of the richest and most comfortable ones of all Europe, and perhaps, destined to be so again, in years to come, when its 60 old factories are rebuilt and reorganized through private capital. This capital must come from abroad. In pre-war days 50 per cent. of the industries were owned by French, German, Austrian and English firms and directed by them.
The prosperity of these industries depended on production of wheat, sugar and hemp, in the rich black earth hinterland of the Ukraine. When that hinterland is restocked with seed grain, agriculture, machines, horses and cows and intelligent farmers, in the next couple of years, then the city will again raise its head, repair and repair its handsome buildings and homes and again be called Russia's Chicago.

SEVEN CITIES, ONE ON OTHER
Amazing Discovery Made By Pennsylvania Archaeologists In Holy Land
Philadelphia, April 14.—Presence of a civilization dating back to 1700 B.C., has been discovered at the site of Beisan, the Beth-Shan of the Bible, according to word received here from Dr. Clarence B. Fisher, head of the University of Pennsylvania archaeologists working in the Holy Land.
The reports stated that relics of this civilization were found in the seventh sub-cellar of the hill of Beisan, and that on top of it were piled in distinct strata six other cities or civilizations. However, extensive digging thus far has proceeded only to the third level, uncovering the remains first of an Arab city, below it a Byzantine community containing pretentious edifices and below this the ruins of a Roman city.
The most important find was hieroglyphic stela of the fourteenth century as yet undeciphered. Dr. Fisher reported he hoped to find one or more of the iron chariots for which the place was famous in Biblical history.
The University of Pennsylvania has engaged in this sort of work since 1889, when the university museum was founded as the department of archaeology. This institution became the beneficiary of the results of four Babylonian expeditions which operated on the side of Nippur for extensive periods between 1888 and 1900.
The Temple of Bel, probably the oldest known edifice in the world, was brought to light in these investigations and the collections of 20,000 clay tablets brought to this country made the university a shrine for delvers into ancient history. Portions of the code of laws

JAPANESE TOUR OF THE PRINCE
Visiting Country In Cherry Blossom Time, Most Delightful Season Of Year
Tokio, April 14.—The Prince of Wales is visiting Japan in cherry blossom time, the most delightful season of this "Land of Sunrise". Some of the ceremonies which will attend his tour will be made more attractive by the festivities in which the Japanese indulge during this time when all Japan puts on its loveliest appearance.
As soon as the cherry buds begin to open the whole country, including even the city streets is transformed into a fairy land enticing all its people into the open or for the national fete of flower visits.
In this season the holiday spirit is abroad and all who can give them selves up to gaiety. The people gather at all the well-known resorts dressed in their best or in fantastic costumes that match their feelings and keep festival all day long under the pinkwhite blossoms.
The genial influence of the season warms everyone into joviality and their buoyant spirit finds expression in joyous festivals. These occasions of popular rejoicing which follow one another through the spring are excellent opportunities for the British Prince to see the Japanese at play.
The Imperial Garden Party or cherry party is one of the most interesting of these spring festivals and one of the two outstanding social functions of the year in Japan. Government officials, prominent business men, merchants, social workers and distinguished foreign visitors are guests of the Emperor and Empress on this occasion and it is expected that the Prince of Wales will attend the function this year.
The party is held when the cherry blossom is at its best in the imperial garden at Shinjuku, a suburb of Tokio where the spacious lawns decked out with buds of spring flowers and blossoming trees and shrubs provide ample accommodation for a big assemblage.
A welcome innovation of recent years has been the removal of all restrictions on women's dress. Heretofore a regulation that women could appear only in European costume or in ancient court dress, prevented many from accepting the Imperial invitation.

5 1/2% Bonds of Canada's Largest City—at Par
With high grade bonds in such keen demand that even comparatively small municipalities can borrow at costs approximating 5.50% to 5.60%, the 5 1/2% bonds of Canada's largest City, at par and interest, should appeal strongly to careful investors. We are therefore fortunate in being able to offer
City of Montreal 5 1/2% Bonds
Due 1st March, 1932
At Par and Interest, Yielding 5.50%
The security behind these bonds is beyond question; 5 1/2% bonds of leading Canadian cities are scarce, and by purchasing these bonds the investor has the added advantage of collecting each half-year, in actual cash, the full interest return afforded by his investment.

I Have Gained Twenty-Five Pounds By Taking TANLAC

and a stubborn case of stomach trouble that had kept me miserable five years has entirely disappeared, states Wm. J. Saunders, Gondola Point, N. B.

Gains in weight by thin, run-down people frequently result from taking Tanlac, because it enables the stomach to digest its food properly. At all good druggists.

Education.

Mr. Cunningham respectfully informs his friends and the public that he proposes opening a school in this city on the 1st May next, for the instruction of the youth of both sexes in the various branches of English and mercantile education. French will be taught by a Canadian gentleman, whose qualifications are of the very first order. Mr. C. proposes by the distribution of premiums in his school to the most deserving children, to introduce a system of encouragement, which he trusts will eventually supersede the necessity of corporal punishment, and by which method he has found them acquire more in one quarter than they would in four from any other mode of teaching. Mr. Cunningham has had the honor of instructing in some of the first families in Quebec, and he flatters himself that the progress of his pupils has been such as to give entire satisfaction to their parents. Specimens of the handwriting of Mr. C. and his pupils may be seen at No. 9 St. Joseph street, Upper Town. N.B.—Terms moderate and no money required on entrance.

ACTIVE BUILDING DURING THE YEAR

Indications Point to Sound Volume of New Construction for 1922

On every side are indications that there will be a sound volume of new construction for the year 1922. The volume of contemplated new work reported in Canada during March according to MacLean Building Reports Limited amounted to $23,773,100. Construction contracts awarded throughout the Dominion amounted to $11,455,000 compared with $10,718,500 in February and $10,256,700 in March, 1921. Residential building accounted for 44.6% of the March total and amounted to $5,930,800. Business buildings amounted to $5,247,200 or 39% of the total; industrial buildings $20,000 or 1.9%; public works and utilities $2,007,000 or 14.5%. A significant feature of the March construction record is the increase in business buildings over February. During February the Wholesale Price Index of 48 Building Materials advanced slightly and is now 82.2% above 1913 compared with a peak of 132.8% reached in May, 1920. Prices have now declined 51.6% from the high. Stable Economic Levels The construction industry has just passed through two extremely uncertain years, and 1922 ought to be hailed with satisfaction by those engaged in the industry, because of the fact that it holds promise of laying low the uncertainty of the past two years particularly, and in varying degrees for the last seven years. The degree for this period of freaky markets and scattered demand points the way to a substantial resumption of activity throughout the industry. During the years of, and immediately following the war, construction costs advanced tremendously, and much divergence in the cost bases of the various commodities and materials existed, but these costs are now approaching a new average level, higher than 1914 it is true, but evidently constituting a new normal on which business may be soundly transacted. This new normal will likely gradually recede during the next decade or more, and there will undoubtedly be frequent fluctuations during that period. While, as just said, the level of construction costs will probably recede for ten or more years, this recession will not be sufficient to postpone contemplated owners to postpone contemplated projects in anticipation of this reduction in costs. In fact, the price level today is economically sound, and it will pay owners to proceed with construction.

I. C. R.

A very anxious feeling exists among the wholesale trade in this city as to the proposed extension of the Intercolonial Railway to Montreal. It is declared that if the Railway is extended the Montreal merchants will obtain through rates of freight to points on the Lower St. Lawrence and Northern New Brunswick, which have heretofore been controlled by Quebec houses, and that the small trade that is left to us will thus be taken away. The Board of Trade should look into the matter before it is too late.

The Fortification Walls

A large portion of Quebec's famous old fortification wall on the Western side of the city has been allowed to fall through the criminal negligence of the authorities. The fallen part is almost directly opposite the Central tower of the Parliament House, and much of the rest of the wall threatens to fall and will very shortly do so. The fallen wall on Mountain Hill still obstructs the sidewalk on that thoroughfare, and a large section of the wall retaining the site of the old Parliament House also threatens to fall and entail heavy loss of property.

Despite Difficulty in Arranging Trade Convention—Poland Sends Russia Cloth

Warsaw, April 14—Poland and Soviet Russia are doing some trading despite their difficulty in arranging a trade convention. For months Poland has been sending into Russia, by wagon and by packs on horseback great amounts of cloth and some food supplies, most of the business being carried on at night, away from the beaten path where either Soviet or Polish soldiers are on watch. In return the Russians have been receiving some of the old Russian gold rubles, which peasants had buried, hides, furs and in some instances, diamonds. Dress material and bright colored shawls which the Russian peasant women wear over their heads on Sunday when they go to church are in greater demand than at any time since Russia's troubles began and, according to travelers, bring a fancy price once these goods are landed on the other side. A Soviet Russian trade commission has been in Warsaw some time, arranging purchases from the Poles and it was announced recently that the first consignment of goods purchased officially by the Soviets would leave soon for Moscow. This consignment is made up chiefly of clothing materials manufactured in Lodz. The goods will be insured against theft, the insurance company consisting of armed guards to convey the freight cars all the way from Warsaw to the Soviet capital. Despite the famine in Russia the government has permitted caviar to

Do You Envy English Woman's Complexion?

Mrs. Anghit, famous diarist, in a recent interview took occasion to remark that the Englishwoman's complexion is far more beautiful than that of the average American woman. The cause of this assertion is well stated, it is that all who have been in England, but Margot did not mention the fact that the latter of her country are much given to the use of what is commercially known as mercolized wax, remarkable as a facial rejuvenator. This wax has the peculiar property of absorbing the soiled and lifeless particles of acer skin as they appear, the fresh new skin underneath with its bloom of youth and health, then being in evidence. The process is quite harmless, causing no inconvenience. Mercolized wax can be had at drug stores here, as well as abroad, and if you will procure about an ounce of it and apply a little at bedtime, the next morning, washing it off in the morning, you soon will behold in your growing cheeks a close resemblance to the wonderful transparent beauty of the Englishwoman's complexion.

Prince of Wales to Visit Magnificent Memorial Building and Park

Tokio, April 14—A visit to Japan's magnificent memorial building and park, dedicated to her beloved Emperor Meiji, is included on the program to be followed by the Prince of Wales during the week he will spend in Tokyo as guest of Prince Regent Hirohito and the Imperial government. Although Emperor Meiji died just a decade ago, his mausoleum and the beautiful four-mile park surrounding it has taken a place in the hearts of the Japanese that is not rivalled by the reverence America holds for her Arlington Cemetery or England for her Westminster Abbey. This may be traced to the fact that the Meiji Shrine, unlike the national memorials of most other countries, is a product of the present generation. The millions of yen to construct it were raised by popular subscription and the tremendous amount of labor entailed was given by the young men of the nation. The buildings are of pure Shinto architecture. The massive pillars and cross beams of the Torii at the entrance to the shrine, were cut in the Arisan mountains of Formosa and brought to Tokyo. Scores of giant trees, gnarled and twisted by centuries, were taken bodily, with tons of their native earth, from the high-road between Kamakura and Kyoto and transplanted in Meiji park. Volunteer workers and freely given funds accomplished this almost Herculean task. Although the park was first opened to the public less than a year ago, millions of pilgrims from all parts of the empire have come here to pay their tribute of homage and respect.
