BRITISH SPEAKER REPEATS STAND ON REPRESENTATION

Repeats That Dominion Should Send Members to House of Lords

OLD REMINISCENCES

Tells in Lighter Vein Experiences of Parliament

Some interesting reminiscences of his experiences as Speaker of the House of Commons were given by the Hon. James Lowther, former Speaker of the British House of Commons, before the Canadian Club this afternoon in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Mr. Lowther again reiterated his belief that representatives from the Dominions should sit in a reformed House of Lords.

As an Englishman who had taken part in the history of the Old Country, Mr. Lowther said he felt a deep interest in this, one of the most important of the Dominions. Before returning next week to take part in important work in connection with the League of Nations, he wished to give a few impressions of his visit to Canada. His first observation was that Canadians could take blood out of a stone, and speeches beyond number from the speechless.

POTENTIAL PULP.

His second observation was the incredible amount of potential pulp for newspapers there was in the Dominion. He hoped he would not have to read all the newspapers which might come therefrom. Even the life of a speechless speaker was preferable to that.

He had not come out with any special purpose of propaganda, but solely to perform a very agreeable function. Though personally desirous of strengthening in every way possible the bonds of empire he had no doctrine to preach.

After twenty-six years as Speaker in the House of Commons, he felt entitled to a change and a rest, but like the great Dr. McGee, he had to admit the hotel keepers had got the change and the waiters had got the rest.

During all his experience as speaker, he had only had the pleasure of seeing the party to which he belonged in power. A peculiar circumstance of his experience as speaker, was that after hearing thousands of speeches, he found a good speech usually caused him to take the opposite view. He believed he was the only man in Parliament who had never expressed an opinion on free trade and protection.

Among the big questions he had seen thrashed out in the house were the Welsh Disestablishment Question, Home Rule, the Suffragette Question, the Finance Bill in 1910 resulting in the curtailing of the powers of the House of Lords; then the war, and later the still more momentous peace—On one occasion he had almost been hit by a bag of flour thrown from the gallery and meant for Mr. Asquith.

BEST SYSTEM.

He understood the Dominions sometimes looked with pity on the grandmotherly methods of the old country. But the Dominions would also some day become old fashioned. He believed the United Kingdom had attained the best possible system of government by the people and for the people.

He did not think the best possible use was made of the House of Lords. They had there as capable a body of men of general ability as were assembled in any such body throughout the world. It was a great waste of energy to give this body a subsidiary place, with little or no useful work to do. He was in favor of reform of the House of Lords. That House had itself passed a resolution in favor of such a reform, and he believed, in addition to the change which had already been suggested, that representatives of the dominions should also sit in the reformed second chamber in Westminster.

As evidence of the continuity of the British Parliament, he mentioned the fact that all messages exchanged between the two house at Westminster are still written or spoken in French, a relic of the practice existing five hundred years ago.

The British Government was representative. The only people who could not vote were vagrants, lunatics, minors and peers (laughter).

The House of Commons was extremely responsive to public opinion. Any question arousing public feeling was at once debated in the House. It was the nation's threshing machine in which all shades of opinion were threshed out for the education of public opinion.

Honor and purity of administration were traditions of the House of Commons, and so long as it maintained those traditions he believed it would hold the admiration of the whole Empire. There were three pieces of advice he always gave to young men on entering Parliament, as to public speaking, namely, stand up, speak up, and shut up, and the latter was what he would now do. (Applause.)

Prince of Wales To Visit India

LONDON, June 17. — (Canadian Press.) — The Daily Express intimates that the Prince of Wales will visit India during the coming cold season. Lord Reading, the viceroy of India, this paper says, has strongly recommended a visit, as likely to have an excellent effect.

Tracing $200,000,000 of Bolshevik Gold

WASHINGTON, June 17. —The Department of Commerce has completed a check on the world's gold supply, it was announced today. The reason for the survey was to run to earth Bolshevik gold. About $200,000,000 of the precious metal was located which could not offer a satisfactory alibi and it is concluded that this amount found its way into the trade marts and banks from Lenin's hoard.

TORONTO POLICE COURT SCANDAL

Charges Made Against Interpreter—Crown-Attorney Mentioned

INTIMIDATION TOO

Alderman Says Witnesses Bribed or Intimidated Into Disappearing

TORONTO, June 17—(Star Special) —With Judge Ward officiating the lid was removed yesterday at the City Hall from the Police Court scandal pot, which investigation Alderman Joseph Singer is sponsor.

The charges, as they were released, were thoroughly unsavory, and were principally that Court interpretor Markovitch had used his office to extort money from those whom he served, but that he had some years ago been engaged in immoral traffic.

At the afternoon session something of a sensation was caused by the charge of Ald. Singer that most of the witnesses he had relied upon to support his allegations had been intimidated, or bribed, and that they had either repudiated their affidavits made to him, or had taken their departure from the city.

He declared that he had been informed that, in two instances bribes of $1,000 had been given, but obstinately declined even under pressure to reveal the source of his information.

SOME STARTLING CHARGES.

His assailant was a woman who alleged that she had been employed by him in an immoral trade for five years, but that she had now reformed and was married.

She had testified that they had operated in Toronto, Winnipeg, Sudbury and Porcupine, that he had terrified her into staying with him and that he had frequently abused her. She was not, she declared in answer to the accusation of counsel R. H. Greer, volunteering this evidence because of an old grudge, but because Markovitch was still trying to disturb her life.

Sadie Gripstein avowed a ten years' acquaintanceship with both Markovitch and J. S. Corley, former crown attorney ,and repeated the story which she had given an affidavit, regarding having seen the crown attorney's equipage outside of an Elizabeth street harness shop and the crown attorney and the interpreter inside in a room in which there was a table with a bottle of liquor standing on it.

She frequently had seen Mr. Corley's carriage outside both this house and Markovitch's residence. On one occasion she had seen Mr. Corley and Markovitch emerge from a house in a intoxicated condition.

"How did you know that they were intoxicated?" inquired counsel.

"Well, they could not walk straight," replied Mrs. Gripstein.

Mr. Corley resigned as crown attorney some time previous to the order granting the inquiry.

HALLAM BROTHERS ARE FOUND GUILTY

Sentence to Be Imposed on Conclusion of Sittings

CHATHAM, Ont., June 17.—(Star Special.)—Stanley and Williams Hallam were found guilty of robbery and assault yesterday by Judge Stanworth in the general sessions of the Peace Court of the County of Kent. The Judge said he would pronounce sentence at the conclusion of the sittings.

The offenses for which the Hallams were convicted took place on the farm of Frank King, Dover Township, on the morning of September 14 last year, when Charles Neal, "slim" Secord and a man named Jackson of Windsor, accompanied by the Hallams, came to the place for liquor.

During the parley for the goods Stanley Hallam, it is alleged, threw an officer's badge on the table, saying that as he was an officer he would take charge of the liquor. William Hallam in the meantime, according to the evidence, stood in a corner of the room with a revolver pointing at the crowd. The Windsor man, Frank King and his hired man were handcuffed, but later released and the Hallams drove away with the liquor.

Judge Stanworth in pronouncing his verdict said that he could not do otherwise than believe the court records produced by License Inspector [illegible] and Sergt. Livingstone of Windsor that the Hallams had been in Windsor on September 14 and 15.

MINERS DECLINE TO ORDER PEACE; BREAK EXPECTED

Ballot Against Agreement, But Signs That Many Will Go Back

RIFT IN RANKS

Only Fifty Per Cent Voted —Leaders Face Much Criticism

LONDON, June 17 — (Associated Press)—The ballot of the coal miners on the question of a strike settlement favors a continuation of the strike, it was officially announced this afternoon.

Serious dissatisfaction has arisen among the rank and file of the Miners' Federation over the vote on the owners latest proposals and many of the men as a consequence are expected to take matters into their own hands and return to work under their own arrangements. The situation is somewhat confused, however, and the miners' executive is meeting today to consider it.

The result of the ballot, according to official announcement was: For acceptance of the mine owners terms 183,827; for rejection 432,511. Thus the vote gave the necessary majority for a continuation of the strike.

The decision of the miners was immediately communicated to the Government when the result of the balloting was learned. The executive body of the miners will meet again tonight.

Only sixty-four per cent of the membership of the union voted on the latest offer of the owners.

It is estimated that more than fifty per cent of the Federation's 1,000,000 members abstained from voting. The miners' leaders are faced with the possibility that the strike must be continued while the Government's £10,000,000 bonus will be withdrawn and thousands of men will return to work.

The way the dispute has been allowed to drift and the failure of the miners' leaders to offer advice or recommendations to the districts on the issue involved in the ballot are said to be causes of serious disatisfaction in some quarters. The ballot appears to have been taken in the most casual way.

ANOTHER VIEW OF SITUATION.

LONDON June 17.—Special Cable to Montreal Star and Chicago Tribune. Copyright.) — The labor situation in England has cleared up considerably, although the nation is not yet out of the woods.

The engineers' trouble has been postponed for a fortnight, with every prospect of a settlement, and the cotton workers have settled their disagreement, except for ratification by the rank and file, which is said to be certain.

The executive, however, have the power to call off the strike, even in the face of an adverse vote, and the Board of Trade believes a majority of the executives will be in favor of calling it off rather than lose the £10,000,000 subsidy from the Government, which will be cancelled if not accepted by Saturday.

LLOYD GEORGE'S CANDIDATE LOST

LONDON, June 17. — (Canadian Press.)—The Lloyd George candidate was defeated in a by-election today when Rear-Admiral M. F. Sueter, running on an anti-waste platform, was elected for the Hertford constituency rendered vacant by the resignation of Pemberton Billing, Independent. The result of the balloting which was announced this afternoon, was: Admiral Sueter, Independent, 12,329; Sir H. Carlyle, Coalition-Unionist, 5,553.

At the 1916 general election Mr. Billing had a majority of 2,470 in a three-cornered contest.

Mr. Billing, when he decided to drop out of public life, wrote to the Speaker and asked what steps it was necessary for him to take to be released from his parliamentary duties as he did not consider it to be "compatible with the dignity or honor of a public man of independent views to remain in an assembly so unwholesome and unfair," as the present Prime Minister had rendered it. The reply to this letter was conveyed in the following laconic and peppery announcement in the official Gazette:

"Treasury Chambers. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has appointed N. Pemberton Billing, Esq., to be steward and bailiff of the manor of North stead."

Australian Census Figures Show Gain

LONDON, June 17.— (Canadian Press Cable.)— Australian census figures show that this commonwealth now has a population of 5,419,702, an increase of 970,000 over 1911. Males outnumber females by about 83,000. Population figures for the different states forming the commonwealth are as follows:

New South Wales, 2,096,393; Victoria, 1,530,114; Queensland, 755,573; South Australia, [illegible]; West Australia, [illegible]; Tasmania, 213,527.

Ask Allies To Reach Agreement With U. S. On Yap and Mesopotamia Mandates

PARIS, June 17.—(By Edwin Hullinger, United Press Staff Correspondent.)—The League of Nations today asked Allied Powers to reach an agreement with the United States on the Yap and Mesopotamian mandates before the next meeting of the League Council.

Gaston Da Cunha, of Brazil, acting for the League, made the request of France, Italy, Great Britain and Japan.

Dr. da Cunha says:

"I therefore venture to ask the principal Allied Powers to be good enough to make every effort to arrive at a solution of the points under discussion between them and the United States so as to enable the Council of the League of Nations to settle the whole question of mandates before the next meeting of the Assembly.

WASHINGTON IS EXPECTING HUGHES TO REVIVE TREATY

U.S. Secretary of State Said to Favor Joining Up

WITH AMENDMENTS

Rumored Hughes Will Shortly Lay Plans Before President

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(By A. L. Bradford, United Press Staff Correspondent.)—With Congress moving slowly toward a declaratory state of peace, Secretary Hughes today was understood to be studying the question of a treaty with Germany.

Hughes is said to be considering the problem of a treaty with Germany on the basis that one of the following two courses must be taken after Congress accomplishes a state of peace:

1.—The United States must accept the Treaty of Versailles, with the covenant of the League of Nations stricken out, and the modifications and reservations necessary to meet objections of the administration to the treaty as it stands; or,

2.—This government must negotiate a separate peace treaty with Germany.

FAVORS FIRST COURSE.

Secretary Hughes is known to favor the first course, and he is believed now to be studying the reservations and modifications which he thinks necessary to allow of American acceptance of the Versailles Treaty. After he has decided on how it shall be edited to meet American approval, the Secretary is expected to send the Versailles treaty with these changes to President Harding with the recommendation that the treaty be re-submitted to the Senate for ratification.

The question of treaties with Austria and Hungary, as the countries which made up the old Austro-Hungarian empire, with which the United States declared a state of war, also is being considered by Hughes.

CHANGES HUGHES DESIRES.

1.—The United States would thereby be given an official and undeniable right to a voice in the economic settlements growing out of the war, such as the German reparations question, which Hughes holds constitutes the key to the general economic recovery of the world, and which he believes vitally affects this country.

Acceptance by the United States of the Versailles Treaty probably would result in this Government's present unofficial representation on the Reparations Commission, through Roland W. Boyden, being made official.

2.—Acceptance of the Versailles Treaty, also, it is held, would give absolute confirmation to the contention of the United States for an equal share or voice with Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy in the disposition of the former enemy territories and resources surrendered to the allied and associated powers as a result of the war.

HINT OF NEGOTIATIONS.

Through long negotiations over mandate and other questions, this Government has had to fight hard for this contention, and it has not yet been fully recognized by the principal Allied powers.

Hughes is understood to be consulting the Allies in reaching a decision on how that Treaty can be accepted by the United States, in order that there may be an agreement with the principal Powers on any procedure decided on. This has taken time.

The course Hughes is taking was advanced by President Harding in his address to Congress. Republican Senators at the time, however, predicted that Harding would never return the Versailles Treaty to the Senate. Hughes, though, seems to be proceeding on the assumption that the President will take this step.

RAILWAYS TELL MEN ABOUT CUT IN WAGES JULY 1

Delegation of Men Met G.T.R. This Morning, and C.P.R. This Afternoon

IMPERATIVE MOVE

G.T.R. Unable to Meet Operating Expenses Despite Every Precaution

One hundred and fifty thousand employes of Canadian railroads are being formally told today that tentative agreements will be submitted to the various units employed inviting them to subscribe to a twelve per cent wage reduction, effective July 1.

Employes of the Grand Trunk Railway met Vice-President Robb this morning. This afternoon representatives of Canadian Pacific men are meeting with Vice-President Hall, and at Toronto conferences are in progress between the Canadian National management and employes.

The information given to Grand Trunk employes is in effect identical to that which will be presented to those representing other roads. It was that despite every economy in management which has been invoked, despite short time in shops and elsewhere, the railways are unable to continue present wages. In the case of the Grand Trunk alone the deficit last year was approximately $11,000,000 between revenues and operating charges and maintenance.

Since the inauguration of the McAdoo awards and later those of the United States Railroad Labor Board Canadian railways have followed every advance in wages, although in two cases at least doing so meant advancing annual deficits. Now the United States Railway Labor Board has decreed a reduction in wages which will average about twelve per cent. The railways expect, the men were told by Mr. Robb, that employes will show the same good faith and co-operation when the decision means a slight reduction in their wages as the railways exhibited when awards went heavily against the companies.

WHAT MEN ARE TOLD.

The delegation which met Mr. Robb, while advancing all argument available against reduction of wages, displayed no hectic hostility. The members were not called together to say what action their unions would take on the proposal but to take back to their unions news which was expected respecting the reduction, together with the information that the companies did not anticipate any refusal on the part of employes to accept.

The delegates were further told that the companies considered a conference or series of conferences should be arranged later between both parties for the purpose of working out discrepancies which now exist against both sides in working conditions.

EXPECT NO REFUSAL.

The men were not told what would happen if they refused the decrease in wages and when railway officials were asked they replied that they did not anticipate any refusal.

Those who met Mr. Robb were the following general chairmen of the various crafts interested in the Grand Trunk operation, W. Maloney, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, T. Todd, [illegible] of Railway Conductors, W. G. [illegible], Brotherhood of Engineers and J. Dowell, Brotherhood of Engineers and Firemen. A large delegation representing the clerical forces [illegible] Mr. Robb after the running [illegible].

OTHERS TO COME LATER.

Maintenance of Way and Shops [illegible] deal directly with all railways through the Canadian Railway Association. They have also been called [illegible] conference, but as the [illegible] has not yet given a decision [illegible] their reductions the matter will have to be taken up again.

The point most strongly insisted [illegible] by men's representatives this morning was that the time between [illegible] and July 1 was insufficient to give thorough consideration [illegible] tentative agreement. [illegible] were quite aware that any [illegible] made by the [illegible] simultaneously [illegible] of the spirit of the precedent [illegible] was to be continued, and [illegible] employes in Canada [illegible].

[illegible] reductions proposed will be [illegible] hands of the various units of [illegible] within a few days.

EVIDENCE REVEALS DETAILS OF GRIM WESTERN TRAGEDY

BLAMES WIFE

Sister-in-Law Has Part in Terrible Events on Farm

INNESFAIL, Alta., June 17. (Star Special.)—J. J. Rutledge, a farmer living nine miles from here, has been charged with murder following the fire in which his wife and four children were burned to death on Tuesday night. The Alberta provincial police laid the charge against him following the inquest Thursday afternoon when statements by Vera Shaw, who is his wife's sister, and by the prisoner, were submitted.

These went to show that there had been trouble in the family over the relations between Miss Shaw and Rutledge. Rutledge claimed that his wife had set fire to the house as the result of a suicide pact, but the Shaw girl said that she did not know anything about such agreement.

The statements signed by the two adult survivors of the family throw some light on the awful state of things at the home and the causes which led up to the destruction of a mother and four children. Owing to the fact that Rutledge was so severely burned as to necessitate his being kept in the hospital, the coroner and jury proceeded there and took a statement from him. On returning to the town hall, the first witness to take the stand was Robert Kerr, a farmer living on an adjoining farm.

Kerr said that he was awakened at 4 o'clock in the morning by Rutledge who had a child in his arms. Rutledge met him with the statement: "This is all that is left of the fire." Kerr inquired; "What fire?" and was told "Rutledge's fire," adding that all the others were dead. Kerr asked the cause and Rutledge said Effie (his wife) had saturated the place with oil and set fire to it. Kerr then went over to the place and found the house burned down.

Mrs. Rutledge's sister, Vera Shaw, was standing near the ruins with her baby in her arms.

Kerr then went over to the Gordon's place and phoned the police, and returned to the scene accompanied by Gordon.

Rutledge and the surviving child were at Kerr's house during this time. Kerr could see some bodies in the fire partically consumed. When Gordon got to the place about 4.45 o'clock, the buildin gwas gutted and nothing could be done. He also saw bodies lying in the cellar on the debris.

SERGEANT GIVE EVIDENCE.

Sergeant Broadribb, of the Alberta Provincial Police, gave a very concise history of the case and the trouble from the beginning.

He related in brief terms that he, with the Rev. J. Orton, went to the Rutledge farm a week previous to investigate a report that Vera Shaw had given birth to a child, of which her brother-in-law Rutledge was the father, but found that the girl was over the age of consent and the man could not be prosecuted in the ordinary way.

He returned to the farm on the day preceding the tragedy in company with Inspector Parker of the Neglected Childrens' Branch. They interviewed Vera Shaw and Mrs. Rutledge.

Inspectator Parker asked the girl if it would not be better to give up the child, in order that she might leave her present surroundings and make a fresh start, unhampered by the baby, but she declined.

On receiving Kerr's phone message at 4.15 on Tuesday morning the Sergeant with Messrs. Orton and Parker went out to the Rutledge farm and found things as detailed by Kerr.

Afterwards Inspector Parker and the Sergeant went to Kerr's and saw Rutledge on a lounge suffering from burns, also a small girl about three years old likewise burned.

He took Vera Shaw to Kerr's house where she made the following statement:

"When Rutledge came home from town, he did not say anything about the trouble. I laid down stairs on the couch about dark. The others were all upstairs except the baby and me. I never heard my sister threaten to do anything.

"It was just daylight when I got up to light the fire and I heard screaming upstairs, and Rutledge came down with Poppy, the girl, in his arms. He was on fire and I threw a pail of water on him, I went upstairs with a pail of water, but could not do anything and came down. Rutledge put Poppy outside, I think he went upstairs.

"I did not take out the clothes [illegible] my baby and me, somebody [illegible] in the night. [illegible] down. I [illegible] see anyone move them.

"[illegible] they had intended [illegible] and he had helped to burn them [illegible].

"My sister told me to sleep downstairs. I [illegible] know who put my [illegible]. Rutledge told me that Effie (Mrs. Rutledge) had [illegible] for me to go. I [illegible] screaming up[illegible] know how they slept [illegible].

"[illegible] the night [illegible] did not to go [illegible].

"(Signed)

"Vera Shaw."

THE IRISH SITUATION

SIGNAL MEN SEIZED AND STATIONS AROUND LONDON WERE WRECKED

Nine Arrests Made—Attempts to Wreck Trains Carrying Soldiers Into Ireland — Ulster Prepares Celebration — New Seizure Information Sent From Britain

LONDON, June 17.—(Special Star Cable.)—Thousands of lives were endangered here early today by a series of Sinn Fein attacks an signal boxes, many of which were burned last night by parties of men, who sprinkled oil over the boxes before lighting them.

At Acton, Uxbridge, Wembley, Bromley and other stations boxes were destroyed, but railroad men prevented similar action at Southall, where a signal man had been overpowered and bound by an attacking party. At Barnes station several men held up a signal man at the point of revolvers and bound him before destroying the signal box.

A signalman at Clapton Junction, an important point on the Great Eastern Railway, was shot and wounded, but he set the signals at "danger," and telephoned for assistance.

Late reports say one signalman was killed and three bound and gagged. Scotland Yard reported nine arrests in connection with the raids.

The official police statement says:

"All the men arrested give local addresses. They are young Irishmen between 17 and 22 years of age. It has been known for some time that the heads of the Irish Self-Determination League in London have been in correspondence with the so-called Irish Republican army which has been directing the murders and outrages in Ireland."

SINN FEIN ATTEMPT TO WRECK TROOP TRAINS CARRYING SOLDIERS INTO IRELAND

DUBLIN, June 17.— (Star-Ledger cable, copyright.) — Fresh troops are arriving in Ireland in large numbers and are being welcomed with characteristic promptness by the Irish Republican Army.

On Tuesday an attempt was made to derail a train carrying about one thousand troops at Drumconda ,on the outskirts of Dublin ,but the unforseen arrival of an empty goods train led to the discovery that rails had been removed.

Yesterday another train containing one thousand troops was attacked at the same spot, resulting in one soldier being killed and two wounded by a bomb which fell into the last carriage. The attackers made good their escape without loss.

Considerable rifle and machine-gun fire occurred in the center of Dublin Wednesday night after the Curfew, and a one-armed ambusher was captured. The change from pre-curfew to post-curfew ambushes in Dublin appears to be the result of a definite policy of the Sinn Fein leaders. The numerous civilian casualties in the former tends to make the Republicans unpopular.

ULSTER PREPARES FOR KING.

BELFAST, June 17. — (Montreal Star and Chicago Tribune Cable, copyright.) — Northeast Ireland will take a holiday, Wednesday when the King opens the Ulster Parliament. Booming guns from the forts will herald the arrival of the Royal yacht at Donegal quay. The King immediately on his arrival will receive addresses of welcome from the harbor board and other personages, after which he will drive in state to the City Hall in a coach brought from London.

His Majesty will address the members of both houses from a throne specially constructed and modelled after the Throne in the House of Lords in London. The Prime Minister of Ulster will then entertain the party at a luncheon. Later, at Ulster Hall, the King will receive addresses from various public bodies. Finally he will drive by a circuitous route to the royal yacht. The King will remain in the city only a few hours.

Troops are pouring into Balmoral show-grounds and the public parks are being commandeered for their accommodation. Elaborate precautions for the King's safety are being prepared.

DE VALERA WIRES A. F. of L.

DUBLIN, June 17.—(United Press) —Eammon de Valera, "president" of Ireland, in a message to the American Federation of Labor today urged support of the Irish cause.

"Recognition of Ireland by the United States will lead to a true democracy here, "De Valera cabled.

O'CALLAGHAN IN IRELAND?

CHICAGO, June 17—(United Press) —Donal O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, who fled the United States after he had been refused political asylum here, has arrived safely in Ireland, it was learned here today.

Headquarters of the Irish mission here announced it had received word of O'Callaghan's arrival. He is said to have made the trip "via the underground route" without a passport.

SAY NEW YORK ARMS SEIZURE ENGINEERED TO REVEAL PLOTTING IN UNITED STATES

LONDON, June 17.—(By A. E. Johnson, United News Staff Correspondent.)—Confronted with the worst gun-running campaign in fifty years of Irish trouble, Great Britain's secret service and coastal patrols ,and confidential agents of the Irish Office are co-operating with Scotland Yard men both here and in America to shut out this source of armament.

Highly sensational developments are expected if the rebel agents do not quit trying to smuggle arms to the Sinn Fein army from America.

The British intelligence services professes that it has long been aware that a certain make of machine-gun was being purchased by American Sinn Feiners. Two consignments of forty and 14 respectively are believed to have reached Ireland.

After a consultation, officials here decided to expose the system by causing the seizure of a shipment in Hoboken, which was done on Wednesday, instead of waiting until it arrived off the Irish coast, the object being to furnish irrefutable proof of the origin of the weapons.

DOCUMENTS TIPPED OFF PLAN.

Captured Sinn Fein documents which I have been permitted to view gave the British authorities their first clue to alleged smuggling of guns from the United States. Other documents disclose that the weapon in question has been designated as the chief weapon of the Irish Republican Army. Elaborate directions as to its operation were sent out accompanied by foot-notes signed by Richard Mulcahy, "Chief of Staff," of the Sinn Fein army.

The gun is 45 caliber United States army pistol shell which is said to be the ammunition most easily available. The gun itself is small and compact and ideal for guerilla warfare against the police as it can be carried under a man's raincoat. The magazines are so small that they can fit into a man's coat pockets.

British destroyers are constantly patrolling the Irish coast to catch gun-runners and have already captured fairly large consignments of various sorts of weapons and ammunition which had been packed in bags and suit cases and thrown overboard attached to improvised marker buoys which enable fishermen later to pick them up.

"We are expecting America to take care of her end of this matter," said an official of the Irish Office. "That is why we tipped off the situation and caused the raid in Hoboken instead of waiting to seize the guns over here."

DONOUGHMORE'S MOTION

LONDON, June 17—(Montreal Star-Chicago Tribune Copyright.)—In the [illegible] last night the Earl [illegible] presented a motion for the amendment of the Home Rule Act.

Opening the debate the Earl of Donoughmore, a Southern Irish peer, referred to the speech of Viscount Fitzalen, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, at the opening of the Ulster Parliament admitting that the Home Rule Act needed amendment and urged the Government to indicate plainly what amendments it was prepared to grant. He congratulated the Lord-Lieutenant on his courage in advocating amendment, and denounced the Government policy or reprisals as a detestable and degrading policy.

Lord Buxton, supported the Earl of Donoughmore and citing the success of Home Rule in the Union of South Africa, where he recently completed his term of office as Governor-General, said it was clear that the Irish Home Rule Act was neither a panacea nor a remedy. On the contrary so far as the South of Ireland was concerned it was a complete failure and in his view, the only thing was for the Premier to put on record specifically and solemnly in detail how far he was willing to go and what reservation he would make. The Premier, he declared, should put all his cards on the table.

Viscount Bryce and others supported Lord Donoughmore, and the debate was adjourned until Tuesday next, when the Government will reply.

A SINN FEIN COUP?

NEW YORK, June 17. — (United Press)—The "phantom crew" which smuggled machine guns and ammunition aboard the steamer East Side was believed today to be a detail of the "Irish Republican Army."

Federal officers who seized the munitions in a spectacular raid just before the steamer sailed Wednesday night for Norfolk, Va., and Belfast, were convinced the shipment was intended for Irish revolutionists, but admittedly were without proof as to who was involved.

In addition to seeking the men connected with the attempted gun-running Government operators were searching for [illegible] machine guns of the original consignment of 600, which had mysteriously disappeared. Three warrants were said to have been issued but were held up by the federal officials without explanation.

The regular engineroom crew of the East Side was beaten up by a gang several days ago, as she lay at a Hoboken pier. At the time the attacking party was believed to consist of marine strike sympathizers.

The beaten men deserted and immediately afterward they were replaced by men who were unknown but gladly welcomed by the ship's officers. After this engineroom crew took charge a number of boxes were taken aboard from motor boats with the explanation they contained "engine room supplies." The mysterious "phantom crew" disappeared just before the raid. The boxes held the munitions.

THE SOCIAL WORLD

Hutchinson—Gardiner.

A very pretty wedding took place last evening at Knox-Crescent Church, when Miss Annie Grant (Nan) Gardiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gardiner, of Windsor, Que., was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick G. N. Hutchinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Hutchinson, of Montreal. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. I. A. Montgomery. The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in grey canton crepe with picture hat of pale blue georgette, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Gardiner, who wore a frock of yellow Swiss organdy with hat to match, and carried mauve sweet peas. Mr. Stanley N. Colcomb acted as best man, and the wedding music was played by Mr. Harry Colcomb. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. McKercher, Victoria avenue. In the evening the bridal couple left for a trip to New York, the bride travelling in a suit of embroidered navy blue tricotine with hat of taffeta to match, and cross fox fur. On their return they will reside on Madison avenue, Notre Dame de Grace. The out-of-town guests present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gardiner, of Windsor, Que., Mrs. T. TORONTO SOCIAL NOTES.

TORONTO, June 17. — At Old St. Andrew's Church, Tuesday afternoon, June 14th, the Rev. Wm. Muirfield officiating, the marriage was solemnized of Estelle, daughter of Mrs. Foy and of the late Mr. Phillip C. Foy, Cottingham street, to Major William John MacKenzie, M.D., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacKenzie, Warwick West. Owing to recent bereavement in the bride's family, the marriage was very quiet. Dr. and Mrs. MacKenzie left for New York en route to Bermuda, where they will spend several months. Dr. MacKenzie was a graduate of Toronto University in 1911. He spent four years overseas, holding several administrative positions in the C.A.M.C. in England, afterwards serving with the 43rd Battalion and 8th Canadian Field Ambulance in France. He was twice mentioned in despatches.

Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., have been staying with Dr. and Mrs. F. N. G. Starr lately.

Mrs. J. Weir Rough, of Montreal, is the guest of her sisters, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Dennis, Spencer avenue.

Mrs. R. J. Christie and Miss Katharine Christie are leaving today en route to Scotland, and are sailing on Saturday from Montreal. Mrs. Christie will visit her sister, Mrs. J. J. Palmer, at Lossiemouth, Elginshire.

Mrs. F. N. G. Starr gave a charmingly-arranged luncheon this week for the wives of the American Surgical Association. A few of the guests were: Mrs. W. J. Mayo, Rochester, Minn.; Mrs. Peck, New York; Mrs. Jonas, Ottawa; Mrs. Coley, New York; Mrs. Brewster, Boston; Mrs. Mixter, Boston; Mrs. W. J. Mixter, Boston; Mrs. Porter, Boston; Mrs. Homer Gage, Worcester; Miss Hupp, West Virginia; Mrs. Stillman, San Francisco; Mrs. Armstrong, Montreal; Mrs. Philther, Mrs. B. J. Nee, Boston; Mrs. Crusdale, Fall River; Mrs. Vanderveer, Mrs. and Miss Harris, Chicago; Mrs. Law, Minneapolis; Mrs. Murray McLaren, St. John.

The wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock in the Rosedale Presbyterian Church, of Miss Grace Ponton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Ponton, to Mr. Lawrence Gooderham Hargraft, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hargraft. Rev. Capt. Paulin officiated, assisted by Rev. W. K. Armitage, brother-in-law of the bride. The bride wore a frock of white kitten's ear crepe over a petticoat of filet lace. Her long court train, which fell from the shoulders, was of pink chiffon brocaded with gold flowers and lined with white. Her long tulle veil fell from a coronet of pearls, which encircled the head, and was caught here and there with orange blossoms. She wore the bridegroom's gift, a diamond and platinum bracelet. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses and lilies and her shoes of white satin. Mrs. W. R. R. Armitage was her sister's maid of honor, and was in orchid georgette with embroidered overdress, sash of silver ribbon, silver shoes and stockings. Her Leghorn hat had a crown of mauve georgette and trimming of pansies. She carried sweetheart roses, marguerites and pansies. Miss Frances Leslie (Barrie), who acted as bridesmaid, wore a gown of the same design, and each carried a silver vanity case, the gift of the bridegroom. Little Miss Margaret Leslie was a pretty flower girl in white organdy made over pale pink with pink ribbons and pink hat, and old-fashioned bouquet of sweetheart roses and pansies. Mr. W. M. Hargraft was best man. Mr. G. Hargraft, Mr. Geoffrey Marani and Mr. W. Doran acted as ushers. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ponton held a reception at Nanton avenue, where the drawing-room was decorated with pink and white peonies. The bride's going-away suit was of navy blue, with grey hat with blue ostrich tips, and grey shoes and stockings and grey fur. Mr. and Mrs. Hargraft on their return from their honeymoon will live at 52 Heath street east.

CANADIANS PRAISED

Revelations Regarding New Novelists — Chateau de Ramezay Needs Attention

A REMARKABLE increase in the vogue of serious literature, as compared with fiction and lighter reading, has been noted during the past two or three years by John Lane, head of the English publishing house of that name at The Bodley Head, London, who is visiting Canada again after a lapse of several years. A decided improvement in this city from the artistic point of view was noted by Mr. Lane since his last visit, but he was shocked at the neglected condition of many of the documents and pictures in the Chateau de Ramezay, which he visited yesterday.

"I find that during the past two and a half years in England there has been an incomparably greater publishing business than during any period since I have been in business—twenty-seven years." Mr. Lane said this morning, in answer to a question put to him by a Montreal Star representative, "and, speaking from my own experience, serious books have contributed largely to the volume of business.

"For instance, a book which I published last September, 'The Great Fire of London,' at 25s., sold a thousand copies within a month, and a second edition had nearly been sold out since. The same author's book, published in November, 1919, 'Unknown London,' ran through four editions. This was a cheap book, at 7s. 6d.

"Previous to the war, these books would have been published, probably, at 15s. and 5s. respectively. In November last I published a book by Capt. Monckton, 'Some Experiences of a New Guinea Magistrate,' at 21s. Of course, had it not been for the title, I should have issued it at 25s., but I could not publish even a New Guinea book at more than 21s.

"Volumes of essays, too, have considerable vogue, especially those of Richard King of the series known as 'With Silent Friends,' the first volume was offered to me five years ago and four of my readers advised me to reject it, so the author published it himself. In three years he sold over 20,000 copies. He then published a second volume which did not do so well, and a third which was less successful still. He came to me in June last year, and asked me to relieve him of their publication, and take them over. This I was pleased to do, but, I am bound to say that it showed great forgiveness on the part of the author.

"However, since July many thousands of these books have been sold, and on November 25 we published a fourth volume, 'With Silent Friends Over the Fireside,' and already 8,000 copies have been sold. I am quoting these figures merely to show the real interest arising in more serious books.

"Of course, fiction by writers like Mr. Locke, Stephen Leacock, Muriel Hine and Murray Gibbon had a tremendous success during the war, and I am glad to say that there is no falling-off since. I think the same remark applies to other writers whose new books Iam not fortunate enough to have in my list, like Arnold Bennett, Galsworthy, Max. Beerbohm, Hugh Walpole, Compton Mackenzie, and J. D. Beresford. Of course, I cannot give the numbers sold, but figures do not always imply that the best sellers are the best books.

* * *

"Mr. Kipling, H. G. Wells and Sir Gilbert Parker are, of course, great favorites with the public at large. Perhaps no one author did so much to relieve the horrors of the trenches and the hospitals during the war as your own Stephen Leacock."

"Does anyone read poetry nowadays?"

"I am glad you asked me that. It is an extraordinary fact that although there was a poetical renaissance during the war which brought men like Rupert Brooke, Brian Brooke, E. A. McIntosh, and Herbert Asquith into prominence, I am informed on good authority that their works are seldom called for now, and no new star, so far as I can recall, has arisen.

"You have your own writers here, many of whom are known on our side. I mean men like Mr. Service, Eliss Carman, Basil King, Duncan Scott, Warwick Chipman, and Beatrice Redpath, whose work is well-known and appreciated on our side. There are many other, but their names have not yet reached the English reader.

"Perhaps the most notable achievement to date in Canadian literature is Cyrus Macmillan's 'Canadian Wonder Tales.' These are of the soil.

"I feel I must say how much we in England appreciate the University Magazine which Sir Andrew Macphail so ably edits. It deserves a much larger public in England than it has at present, but the difficulty of handling such periodicals is more formidable than ever.

"It is to be hoped that with the establishment of the Canadian Society of Authors, thanks largely, I understand, to the efforts of Murray Gibbon, a new era may be expected for local talent, of which there is an abundance. I have no doubt that publishing will greatly develop here within the next few years.

"The comprehensive lines of this society will ensure its success. It is established on mutual lines. The author, the critic, the publisher and the bookseller are, in different degrees, members. In England, the Authors' Society is a trades union of the narrowest kind. The secretary (or is it the office boy?) regards every publisher as an enemy. In later years, whenever I have had a dispute with an author, which is seldom, I have stated my case and informed the secretary that I would abide by the decision of the managing committee if he would refer it to them. In every case the committee has upheld my claim.

"Speaking of local publishing, I feel impelled to say a word about a charming book of etchings by Mr. Raine just issued in Montreal. It is an excellent piece of book-making, and the etchings are of a very high order. It reflects credit alike on the artist and the printer. Old Montreal is very picturesque and it is well to put on record the little which remains of its former beauty and historic interest.

"This leads me to remark, after having spent a morning in the Chateau de Ramezay, that the millionaires of Montreal cannot be familiar with the lamentable condition of many of the pictures, engravings and documents stored (I cannot say preserved) in the building. It is a disgrace to a city of such wealth and undoubted taste as Montreal. I am afraid I am going out of my field, but I am nevertheless struck with the beauty of many of the great buildings here. The lighting up or changing of the Bank of Montreal has so changed and improved the ap-appearance of the interior that I hardly knew it again."

"Are there any new writers whom you could point to in England as likely to come into the same class with Arnold Bennett, Wells, and the best writers of today?"

"Well, as regards new novelists, last year I published eight first books, and I was prepared to lose £100 on each. I lost practically £2,000 on the venture, in spite of the fine criticisms written on Mrs. Hicks-Beech's book and 'New Zealand River', by Jane Mander. The immediate success of Jane Mander's book, issued only ten days ago, "The Passionate Puritan, may do much toward rerieving the loss. Of course, my experience teaches me that I have to publish three or four novels by a new writer before I can recoup myself. One of the greatest living novelists told me that he had to publish four books before he made £40.

"I would be inclined to point to Jane Mander as one of the most likely candidates for high honors in the literary world. I have just launched a new novelist, the Hon. Evan Morgan, whose book 'Trial by Ordeal', will be issued in Canada by the Ryerson Press, Toronto. I think this book will have great success. It deals with prominent figures in London society.

"Then, Mr. Ferguson, the author of 'Stealthy Terror', has written a new book worthy, it is said, of Robert Louis Stevenson, entitled 'The Dark Geraldine', which will also be issued by the Ryerson Press. They are also about to issue an edition of 'Some Experiences of a New Guineau Magistrate', which I have already mentioned. I am always on the look out for new and promising authors, and always ready to give them a fair trial."

ODD ITEMS

AN HONEST SPEEDER.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 16—Howard Wilcox, winner of the 500-mile race at the speedway in 1919, heard himself characterized as a "most honest speeder" when he appeared before Acting Judge Ralph M. Spaan in city court Friday afternoon in answer to a charge of violating the speed laws.

Motorcycle Policeman Halstead, who arrested Wilcox as he was hurrying to the Union Station to board a train, said the race driver turned to him and asked:

"What did it show?"

"I got thirty-five," said the policeman.

"That's what I got, too," Wilcox replied.

"Most of them try to argue with you, but he didn't," said Halstead. "He's the most honest speeder I ever arrested."

WITH GUARANTEE BONDS.

TORONTO, June 17.—Premier E. C. Drury sent a communication to Mayor T. L. Church last night expressing the readiness of the Ontario Government to guarantee bonds of about $2,375,000 for the city's share of the radical railway purchase in the "clean-up" of the Mackenzie electrical interests in Toronto and district.

SCOTCH WITNESSES WOULD LIFT BAN

Testify at Embargo Enquiry — Hon. Duncan Marshall Lauded

LONDON, June 17.—More Scottish witnesses appeared yesterday before the cattle commission. One of these said that the Glasgow corporation had consistently for twenty years advocated the admission of Canadian store cattle, which, he said were freer from disease than the home supply. In his opinion all the evidence pointed to the fact that Canadian cattle imports would lower the price of meat.

One witness reminded the Commission that the Minister of Agriculture lost his election at Dudley on the embargo question.

The president of the London Retail Meat Traders urged the necessity of providing the country with a more abundant supply of home killed meat such as would come from Canada.

The Glasgow Herald, commenting on the evidence of Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, says it was notable on account of the Minister's frank presentation of the Canadian case.

"A year ago," says the Herald, "when he attended the Highland show, Mr. Marshall impressed the agriculturists of Scotland as an administrator whose grip on practical affairs was as refreshing as his breezy oratory. His estimate that it would take 14 pounds to bring a Canadian steer over here is important. He used this argument to combat the fears expressed that either Irish or English and Scottish raisers of cattle would be driven out of business through competition from Canada. With freights at the present level only the best of Canada's surplus would be likely to be shipped."

TO CONFER WITH FRENCH.

LONDON, June 17.—Owing to failure to arrange a meeting of the Supreme Council, Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, is proceeding to Paris today to confer with the French Premier on eastern affairs. Italian representatives are expected to join in the discussion.

Pianos for Your Country Home

Montreal citizens have begun their annual exodus to their country homes. We would call their careful attention to the published list of Willis Pianos both new and second hand. Some of these square pianos, which take up very little more room than an Upright, are musically worth more than double the price asked. Willis & Co. Limited, 580 St. Catherine St. W.—Adv.

HORRIBLE DEATH OF GREAT LAKES DIVER

Slowly Drowned When Water Trickles Through Head-piece

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., June 17.—(Star Special)—Death in one of its most terrifying forms came to Damon S. Godfrey, a diver in employ of the Great Lakes Towing and Wrecking Company yesterday when the great copper helmet he wore as part of his diving dress became loosened in some way while Godfrey was down 25 feet on the bottom of Georgian Bay near Little Current, Ontario.

Little by little the water began to trickle inside the diver's rubber suit as the helmet worked still looser. Damon signalled frantically to his mates on the lighter above to be hauled up but in some way it is said his jerks at the life line were not properly understood, owing to the lines becoming tangled, and the men at the air pump continued to send down fresh air.

Finally when no further signals were received the helpers became alarmed and hauled the diver up. When the helmet was unscrewed Godfrey's head toppled over to one side. He had been dead for several minutes.

Godfrey had been in the employ of the Great Lakes Camp for 15 years and was considered one of the most expert deep water divers in the Great Lakes. He was 55 years old and lived at the Canadian Soo. A widow, three daughters and four sons survive.

MARRIAGE LICENSE ISSUE.

TORONTO, June 17.—Re-organization in connection with the issuing of marriage licenses will go into effect by September 1, according to Provincial Secretary H. C. Nixon. After that date all marriage licenses are to be issued by municipal clerks, and jewellers will no longer have the privilege of issuing licenses.

MANSLAUGHTER VERDICT.

FORT FRANCES, Ont., June 17.—"Guilty of manslaughter," was the verdict returned by the jury this morning which yesterday heard the case of Hugh McKinnon, charged with the killing of Hugh Strain, who was shot during a brawl last January. Sentence has not been passed. Evidence submitted showed that McKinnon was so intoxicated at the time of the shooting as to be practically insane.

Walk-Over

New Styles Just Arrived

There is something about the newness of the Walk-Over styles this year that is fascinating. They have that charm you always notice in springtime. The slightly rounder toes, the shorter vamps, the beautiful sport shoes so much in vogue now—

A NEW WING-TIP IDEA.

Women who have welcomed straps will notice the pleasing combination with a wing-tip toe and cleverly placed perforations. It conforms with the latest tendency of fashion to favor decoration. Very effective with clocked hose.

MENTAL HYGIENE MUCH NEGLECTED

Neither Funds Nor Facilities Available in This Province

DOCTOR'S VIEW

Most People Potentially Insane—Greater Provision for Care Needed

"The recommendations of the National Council of Women committee on hygiene are ideal," Dr. G. S. Mundie, associate medical director of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene and specialist in psychotherapy of Royal Victoria Hospital stated this morning, discussing the Council's of Women's annual report. "Every authority on the subject will endorse them," he continued, "but what we specially want to let the public know, is that we have not the means to carry them out. All our asylums are overcrowded. They are short of medical men, orderlies and other staff. At Verdun, there are three doctors, and something like 800 patients. The result is that mental patients cannot get the treatment they ought to have.

"We have at present three cases in the psychiatric clinic at Royal Victoria Hospital, mentally afflicted, but not bad enough to be sent to an asylum. If there were a proper psychopathic hospital we could send them there and they could be cured. If sent to an asylum, they could not get the attention they require there.

"I think if the people of the province knew the facts regarding the care of the feeble minded, they would demand that the Provincial Government take steps to improve the position. There are more patients in our asylums than there are in our hospitals."

"Is it a case of caring for them only, or would the provision of these facilities give a hope of stamping out insanity?"

COULD BE ELIMINATED.

"There is no reason why insanity should not be absolutely stamped out, if the Government of the province would give us medical facilities for doing so. The public must be educated to know that mental diseases can be cured, just as they have been and are being educated regarding tuberculosis. Not only can we stamp out insanity, but also a great deal of criminality can be stamped out in the same way.

"You may take it as established that mental derangement results sometimes from a disease, but more often from an abnormal development of the intellect; practically all crime results from the latter cause. And yet abnormality is not an objectionable thing in itself. To be normal, is to be mediocre, and fit only for hewing wood and drawing water.

"The only people who get anywhere or do anything are abnormal people, and especially if taken young, those people whose abnormality at present carries them to the asylum or to prison, could be so trained as to either overcome their abnormality or turn it into a useful channel and make them much more valuable citizens than the mere normal mediocrity.

"Those who are merely feeble minded, could be given such training as would develop their weak points, and bring them up to at least the normal standard, but we have neither the buildings, the equipment, the medical and orderly staffs necessary for this purpose, nor the money to pay for these things.

"It is disgraceful that the care of mental troubles should be so neglected in a province where the provincial treasurer boasts an annual surplus of nearly a million dollars. Money is not voted to the Government to hoard up in surpluses, but to expend in good government. A few hundred incapacitated citizens restored to full mental health would be the best interest the provincial treasurer could possibly get on his surplus."

"Of course, all this would mean more taxation, Doctor?"

"We must educate the public to pay. No one can complain of the taxation in this province as compared with other provinces. And there are none of us absolutely normal. Anyone who objects to a little extra taxation to pay for the proper care of the mentally afflicted, should remember that for all he knows he may be the next to need it. Just as many people have tuberculosis all their lives and never know it, because they have never let their health run down sufficiently to allow the disease to make any headway, so many of us go through life with a serious mental defect, and unless some severe shock or strain or weakened health or some other influence weakens the nervous system, and allows the defect to become predominant, we may go through life totally unaware that we are potentially insane.

"If the public were educated to these facts as they are educated on other health subjects, they would not stand for the condition of this province as regards the care of the mentally afflicted."

PRIZE-GIVING AT ST. LEO'S ACADEMY

Victoria Hall was crowded this morning with the parents and friends of the pupils of St. Leo's Academy, on the occasion of the annual distribution of prizes.

The program was varied and interesting and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience. The senior pupils, who are writing their examinations at McGill, will receive their prizes in September. The French address was read by L. Dube and the English address by L. Mulligan. Miss K. Hurley was in charge of the literary part of the program and Alfred Farrell presided at the piano.

7th Year—L. Strahan, P. Coffey, A. Grenon.
6th Year—Second Year; G. Trainor, S. Harvey, Jas. Cowan.
First Year—C. Charlevoix, K. McKenna, G. Kennedy.
Fifth Year—K. O'Connor, G. Colins, D. Tansey.
4th Year—E. Scriggie, R. Seranno, L. Quinn.
3rd Year—R. Coffey, E. Casey, E. Massey.
1st Year—R. Brennan, E. Morrissey, F. Bourke.

TENDERS FOR CITY COAL.

Tenders are being called for by the city for the supply of 650 tons of anthracite bird's eye coal for the city pumping station. It was explained by L. C. Ford, the purchasing agent, that this coal was required as a reserve for the steam pumps if anything should go wrong with either of the new electric pumps. Usually the pumping station consumes 50,000 tons a year, but the total stock purchased by the city for a reserve will not exceed 2,000 tons to the end of the year.

FOUR BIG "COPS" MAKE RAID ON BASEBALL GAME

Eleven Small Boys Arrested—Fight and "Drunks" Undisturbed—"Whole Thing Mistake," Says Commissioner Decary—Investigation Ordered

Although the police force is supposed to be undermanned four stalwart plain clothes "cops" could be spared to raid a small boys' baseball match which was taking place on Haymarket Square last night. Eleven of the youngsters were arrested, taken to the Montfort street police station and finally released on bail. Soon after the boys were arested last night a discreditable fight took place at the corner of Murray street. No policeman could be found.

The arrest of the boys took place while a baseball match between St. Anne's and Griffintown Boys' Clubs was in progress. The Griffintown Boys' Club has some 200 members. Capt. E. Phillips, superintendent of the club, in indignant. He says the result of the arrests might have been very serious to the boys as some of them would probably have lost their jobs if their employers had heard that they had been in trouble with the police. Talk of the danger to windows on account of the games, Capt. Phillips says is all nonseense. He had already told the police that, if by any chance, a window should be broken during one of these organized games, he would pay for it. He speaks, too, of the incivility shown to him at the Montfort street police station when he went there on behalf of the boys, especially from one big policeman, who told him "Anyway, we have arrested them," when Capt. Phillips pointed out that the boys were entirely innocent of any illegal act and that their arrest was wrongful. He says that on his way to the police station he passed three men in the last stages of drunkenness but no policeman.

BAD MISTAKE.

E. R. Decary, chairman of the Administrative Commission, when informed this morning of what the police had done to the baseball players in Haymarket Square, declared at once that the whole thing was a mistake. The Commission had had the playground cleaned up on purpose to allow games to be played there, and the police of No. 6 station must evidently have misunderstood their instructions if they stopped any games there.

ASKS FOR REPORT.

Col. F. M. Gaudet, Directer of Public Safety, informed the Star representative that he had asked for a report from the police responsible, and that he was sure there had been some misunderstanding if the facts were as stated in the complaint.

WHAT IS IT FOR?

J. Howard T. Falk, Director of the Department of Social Service, McGill University, said, the Playgrounds Association had set aside $1,400 dollars for apparatus to be spent on the square to make it into a suitable playground. Asked if the ground was an authorised Playground, he replied:—"What is an authorized playground? The ground is the property of the city and is an open space. What are our open spaces for if the children cannot play in them?" Asked if the Playgrounds Association were going to try to obtain a lease on the ground, he said "Why should they try to get a lease? It is city property." Such a thing he said, was unnecessary.

Chief of Police Pierre Boulanger declared today that the arrests were made on the order of the officer in charge of No. 7 Station following complaint received that windows in the visinity of the Haymarket had been broken by balls from the games on the square. He was informed of the arrests, he said, and ordered the boys to be released on personal bail, with a promise that they would attend at his office today. This they did in company with their parents, Ald. Thomas O'Connell being in attendance. After some discussion it was decided that the boys were to play there in future they should fix their playing pitch in such a manner that the balls would be unlikely to go in the direction of the neighboring houses. The boys were then allowed to go home.

IS PLAYGROUND.

Haymarket Square has been used as a playground for years. A bare open square, destitute of grass, bounded by St. Paul street, Inspector, William and Duke streets, with a public weigh station standing forlornly in the middle, it seems an unattractive place enough, but is the only place available for a playground within the area of one mile. Iron stakes mark the area on the Square within which hay-carts may be parked and cart tracks cut diagonally from Inspector street and St. Paul to William and Nazareth streets. The part used for baseball is the Duke street corner which is quite suitable for the game, and the boys use a portable backstop. The ground, it was stated by a resident, is regularly swept and watered and kept in good condition, largely through the instrumentality of Ald. Thomas O'Connell.

A constable whose duties are in the district told The Star that the boys had played there for years and never gave any trouble.

IS DISGRACE.

Ald. O'Connell, speaking to The Star this morning, said it was a disgrace that the boys were arrested. They had played the game there for years. The Playgrounds Association were now negotiating for a lease of the ground covering a number of years and the Kiwanis were putting up the money for swings and other apparatus. "Chief-engineer Doucet," continued Ald. O'Connell, "has made a report to the Commission recommending that the square be made into a playground and I myself am going to see Mr. Decary on the subject today."

Ald. O'Connell is having a fence put up. The boys themselves paid for two windows broken a fortnight ago and were anxious, as were the secretaries of the clubs to which they belonged, to defray the cost of any windows broken.

John F. Pierce, vice-president of the Rotary Club, said that while he was not acquainted with the circumstances surrounding last night's arrest of boys for playing baceball in Haymarket Square, the Rotary Club was giving a great deal of time to the whole question of playgrounds for children in this city, and the club had arranged to have Dr. A. S. Lamb, director of Physical Education at McGill University address the members on "The Playground Question in Montreal."

ALMOST MILLION FOR CITY CHARITY

Municipal Assistance Dep't Deals With Thousands of Cases

Interesting statistics of the work done by the Municipal Assistance Department of the city in the annual report presented by Albert Chevalier, the superintendent to the Administrative Commission. The department dealt with 4,557 cases and hospitalisation at the expenses of the city was given to 2,367 cases during the past year, exclusive of the Meurling Refuge. The city spent $910,946.95 in assistance of which $16,026.06 was for the cost of maintenance. This total is $32,210.86 in excess of the amount spent in 1919 for municipal assistance.

During the same period 1,382 children were taken care of. At the beginning of last year there were 748 children being maintained in the different institutions by the city, and at the end of the year the number left was 847, of which 430 were at Montfort, 347 at the Good Shepherd, 33 with the Montreal Ladies Benevolent Society, and 37 in the Belmont Boys' Home. The city expended $81,125.65 as their share of the cost of maintenance, the provincial government paying a portion in certain cases only. In 1919 the city paid out $87,271.77 for a similar cause. Through the Juvenile Court 464 children had been sent to the Reformatories at St. Vincent de Paul, the Good Shepherd and Shawbridge Boys' Farm, while there were 1,793 cases held in suspension, the totals showing an increase of 73 cases for the year. The cost to the city for these juvenile delinquents was $29,943.94 while $159.91 was paid by parents. In addition the city contributed $6,500 during the year for the maintenance of the Juvenile Court. At the end of the year there were 168 children in St. Vincent de Paul reformatory, 77 at the Good Shepherd and 87 at Shawbridge.

In the asylums there were 1,683 patients at the beginning of 1920 while 367 admissions were made during the year. The total was reduced by 357 deaths or discharges, leaving 1,693 patients detained, at the end of the year, of which 1,311 are at St. Jean de Dieu, 322 at Verdun, 2 at Beauport, 45 at St. Anne, Baie St. Paul, and 13 at St. Ferdinand, Halifax. The cost of maintaining these patients to the city was $174,472.13, an increase of $15,750.81 over the previous year.

TUBERCULAR CASES

The treatment of incurables and tubercular patients undertaken by the city cost $18,245.10 for incurables and $15,555 for tubercular patients, this being an increase of nearly $7,000 for incurables and $4,500 for tuberculosis over the preceding year, the total number of patients being 52 incurables and 102 tubercular cases. Applications for assistance to the poor totalled 781 during the year, of which 55 were looked after in the Public Assistance, and the remainder referred to different charitable organizations. The city buried 169 persons during the year at the public expense at a total cost of $1,864.75, receiving 211 requests for burial. There were 64 cases of deportation dealt with and 54 cases of repatriation, the latter costing $604.47. Twenty-nine cases of pensions or annuities for civic employes came under the consideration of the department, ten were granted, six refused and twelve pensioners died, the remaining case being continued. The cost of this was $88,216.94. Thirty-six applications were made for tag days and 22 permits were granted.

The city made grants totalling $90,100 towards charities, added to which is reckoned $194,820.80 representing one per cent of the valuation of charitable institutions exempted from taxation, and $183,565.45 distributed from the amusement tax.

The cost of maintaining the Meurling Refuge was stated to be $16,226.74. During the year 9,411 beds were provided as against 26,483 in 1919, these being used by 882 persons, as against 2,071 the preceding year. The number of meals given was 21,332 at a cost of twelve and three quarters cents each, as compared with 54,431 meals in 1919 costing a fraction over 6½ cents each. In the laundry 58,108 pieces of clothing were washed as against 105,280 the previous year, while in addition there were washed 23,466 pieces for the fire department, as against 58,108 for the preceding year.

COMPETITION PUTS BERRY PRICE DOWN

Quebec and Ontario Crops Arrive Together at Market

For the first time in many years the Ontario and Quebec strawberries are competing in the Montreal market. Local strawberries are now selling for fifteen cents a short basket, while western berries can be purchased for 18 cents a large basket, or two for thirty-five cents. As a rule the Ontario berries arrive two weeks before Montreal berries are ripe, and when the local crop is finished housewives buy the New Brunswick crop.

The warm dry May here brought the blossoms out earlier than usual, while the Ontario strawberry beds were not so favored in regard to weather conditions. As a result both crops are ripe at the same time. Already the berries on the Montreal market are plentiful and of exceptionally good quality. The fruit from Ontario is also first-class, said a local dealer, but the local berries are firm and unusually large. Next week it is expected the market will be flooded with strawberries and there will be plenty for the housewife to preserve for the winter, for it is not anticipated that the manufacturers will take very many this year, said a fruit merchant, for they have large stocks left on hand that they canned a year ago.

Last year the berries were exceptionally dear, and the cheapest during the season sold for two boxes for a quarter, and this low price only lasted two days. This year it is expected that they will go down considerably lower and may be had for the pre-war price of ten cents a box.

An exceptionally heavy crop of plums is expected in this neighborhood say growers, and the old French varieties which are said to have been brought from France to Canada by the Sulpician fathers are reported to be heavily laden with the new fruit. McIntosh and Fameuse apples will also be plentiful, though the early apple crop which was very bountiful last season will not be so heavy this fall.

TWO WITNESSES IDENTIFY BAKAI

MIXED LANGUAGES

Rooming House Proprietor Tells of Encounter With Accused

Identification of Mike Bakai as the man who sot and killed Nikola Strypka in a rooming house at 313 Cadieux street on the evening of April 1 was made by two witnesses heard this morning at the opening of the trial of Bakai on the accusation of murder. Questioned by D. A. Lafortune, K. C., Crown Prosecutor, Sam Strypka, brother of the deceased, swore that Bakai was one of two men who entered the room occupied by witness and his brother, and after a few words, fired two shots, one of which entered the victim's chest, causing death within a short time.

According to the story told by this man, the two brothers were in their room on the third storey of the building at about 7 or 7.30 on the night in question. Two men entered, one of whom was Bakai, the other was called, witness learned afterwards, Mike Soviak, who is also charged with murder in this connection. The men asked if there was a man nmed Strypka in the house going to Austria. Witness answered that there was not.

"We are from Sudbury, "the two men are alleged to thave said, "and we come from the same village you are returning to in Austria. We want you to take some money home to our friends."

"We do not know you or your village, and we are not going to Austria," the brother replied.

Whereupon accused is alleged to have said: "If you do not know now, you soon will. Hands up—give us your money or I'll fire on both of you." With this remark, Bakai is said to have fired twice, and Nikola Strypka fell to the floor.

HAD INTENDED LEAVING.

As a matter of fact, witness said that both brothers had intended sailing on the following Monday for their own country, and had about $300 between them. They had not told anyone that they were leaving and did not know the two accused.

Appearing for the defense, Dan McAvoy, K.C., sought to obtain admission from witness which would weaken his identification of accused, but, in reply to the Court, witness said that he identified Bakai in the police station a month after the tragedy among the three others.

Dr. Wilfrid Derome, expert autopsist, corroborated by Dr. D. D. McTaggart, specialist at the Morgue, said that Strypka died from internal hemorrhage caused by a bullet wound which entered the left breast, pierced the aorta and lung, and lodged in the back.

Aaron Lublinsky, who kept the rooming house where the shooting is alleged to have occurred, said that he was awakened by the noise upstairs and, when on his way to see what was the matter, saw two men coming down stairs, running. One was the accused, the other, Soviak, he told the court. He grappled with the latter and succeeded in holding him, but Bakai is alleged to have shouted to him to let go of the other fellow or he would shoot. The eight-year-old son of witness, who had to be carried into the court room by his father, was shot in the leg by accused, Lublinsky said, as the men were on their way out.

The trial continues this afternoon. Two interpreters are required to translate the evidence, from French to English and then into Austrian, for most of the witnesses.

CHAMPAGNE'S TRIAL.

Before Judge Decarie in the session's court yesterday, proceedings were taken against Leo Champagne, formerly a motion picture show employee, giving an address on St. Lawrence Blvd., on a charge of procuring. He was arrested by Detectives Tinel and Gagnon on June 9. After hearing evidence Judge Decarie set Champagne's trial for June 21.

EMERITIS PROFESSOR.

Dr. A. B. Blackader, whose resignation from the Faculty of Medicine at McGill University was regretfully accepted at the last meeting of the board of governors, has been appointed Emeritis Professor in the Departments of Pharmacology and Therapeutics and in that of Pediatrics, in recognition of the valuable services which he has rendered to McGill during his forty years' connection with the teaching staff.

CARS STRIPPED

Automobile Thieves Find Way of Making Easy Money

Automobile thieves, knowing that they can only with the greatest difficulty get stolen cars off the Island and fearing to keep them for too long are now turning to a new form of making easy money.

The stealing of cars still goes on, but very often a car is found deserted on some side streets a few days after it has disappeared, but not in as good condition as when it was stolen. All the metal parts clocks, guages and in some cases even the gasoline have disappeared, and also the upholstery, if the quality justifies it. In some cases these furnishings of a car are valuable, and present the opportunity of easy money, and a quick return, as well as being of such a bulk that they can be easily taken away.

TAX INSTALMENT IS DUE SHORTLY

Second Payment Must Be Made by End of the Month

The second instalment of the income tax will be due in ten days time. A reminder that another tax payment would have to be made to the government before the end of this month created great consternation this morning among several citizens who had taken it for granted that the four payments were to be made quarterly, and set them busy devising ways and means of meeting the unexpected demand for funds. While a number of people paid the whole of the tax on their 1920 income at the end of April many took advantage of the clause which allowed the tax-payer to pay three quarters of the amount owed the government in three equal bi-monthly instalments "together with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum upon each instalment from the thirtieth of April till the time the payment is made."

The second instalment must be paid by Thursday, June 30, the third by the end of August, and the total amount of the tax should be in by the end of October.

P. F. McCaffrey, Inspector of Taxation for Montreal said that the Bureau had been receiving taxes right along, but that the week commencing Monday, June 27 would be another busy time for the employees in the Shaughnessy Building. He did not anticipate such a rush as was handled in April, but he was preparing for a strenuous week. The offices on McGill street are now being permanently re-organized, and the Income Tax Bureau will shortly be installed on the first and eighth floors, which it will occupy entirely. New offices are at present being constructed, and the work of re-arranging will soon be completed.

INJURED MAN IS NOW IDENTIFIED

Though still unconscious at 2:30 today, as a result of his accident, 54 hours ago, John Daly, civic employe who was admitted to the Montreal General Hospital at 8:30 on Wednesday morning with injuries to his head, is improving.

Identification of the man was effected early today by the injured man's daughter, who lives on Prospect street, Westmount. According to information given to city detectives by the daughter Daly is 63 years of age, and was living at 259 St. Antoine street.

Daly was working at the corner of Mance and St. Catherine streets with a gang of civic employes laying cement beside the street car tracks. After a street car, going uphill, had passed, his companions noticed that he had fallen to the ground. At the Montreal General Hospital, to which he was immediately taken, it was thought that he had a hemorrhage of the brain and that he fell against the side of the car as it was passing, bruising the side of his head.

"BORN IN QUEBEC, MUST BE FRENCH"

Citizen Complains of Ignorance of Census Taker

"PREPARED" LISTS

Village Resident States Enumerator Showed Confidential Returns

Complaints of the manner in which the census is being taken in some localities are being made. From one district comes a report of "padded returns," while several readers claim that the enumerators are not taking the proper precautions to keep the returns confidential, and that inadvertently they show the big sheets when they are explaining to housewives.

A prominent resident of the city informed the Star yesterday, that he knew of an instance where the householder informed the enumerator that she had her daughter and her child living with her. However, the census-taker, she claims, refused to enumerate the daughter and her child on the ground that he had no room on his sheet for them, as he had prepared his returns beforehand.

From one of the city districts a letter of complaint has reached The Star, in which a resident alleges that the enumerator insisted on putting down her children as French, "because they were born in the Province of Quebec." She protested, but he refused to alter the entry, she claims. While he was writing in the answers to her questions, (or what he wished to put down), she saw the returns for her neighbors, and alleges a number of them were entered as "French" who are really English. When putting down the language spoken by her children and herself, he at first put down only one (French), and it was only after much argument, she says, that he was persuaded to change to English and French. This instance has been brought to the attention of the commissioner for the district, who promised to have the alleged discrepancies checked up, and to have the district re-enumerated if necessary.

A commuter who lives in a nearby suburb announced the other morning that he now knew the age and salary of every resident of the village he lives in. The enumerator who had taken the statistics in his district, it appears, was a very amiable person, and when any of those he questioned were in difficulty as to how to give the proper answers he would assist them by showing them the returns he had gathered so far. In this way many debatable points in the village have been cleared up, and the ages of many of the ancient inhabitants are now authoritatively known.

It is the salary question which bothers the villagers most, however. This alleged abuse of the privilege of asking questions was brought to the attention of the commissioner of the district by an official in charge of a Montreal ward. He informed The Star that the commissioner in question denied that this was going on, although the informant still contends that what he claims is true.

POLICEMAN ACCUSED OF CONDUCTING DISORDERLY HOUSE

Traffic Constable Edouard Van Den Wyngart was suspended from the Montreal Police Force yesterday afternoon by Chief of Police Belanger, the charge being that he was accused before the Recorder's Court yesterday morning of conducting a disorderly house at Number 50 Inspector street. The greatest secrecy regarding the case has been maintained by the police and the trial before the Recorder was in private, but the facts have leaked out through another source.

Details of the charge against Constable Van Den Wyngart are still meagre. From the records of the Recorder's Court it would appear that the accused was arraigned yesterday after being arrested by officers of the morality squad. The charge against him in the Recorder's Court is that he conducted a disorderly house at Number 50 Inspector street.

Appearing before Recorder Semple the date for his trial was set for June 23. Bail in the sum of either $200 cash or a bondsman for $500 was required. The $200 cash bail and a personal bond for $100 was furnished. According to reports on the place alleged to have been conducted by Constable Van Den Wyngart it was a twelve roomed nicely furnished flat.

Constable Van Den Wyngart has been on the Montreal Police Force for about ten years. Previous to being taken on the traffic squad he was on duty at the Bonaventure station. While with the traffic squad he was on duty at the corner of University and St. Catherine streets.

When the report was made to the Administrative Commission yesterday of the constable's arrest orders were given that a full investigation into the charges brought against the constable were to be made, and if found to be true they were to be pressed.

The hearing before Recorder Semple yesterday was held in private.

Wash the Little Folks' Dainty Garments with Lux

It is easy to keep the children's dresses and delicate woollens fresh, sweet and clean by washing them with Lux.

Lux will not harm any garment, however delicate or dainty that pure water itself will not injure.

Lux is manufactured in a very special manner, and is absolutely pure; in fact, no form of soap essence can be made in a purer form.

There is no substitute for Lux. There is nothing like Lux. Lux is in a class by itself.

Lux is on sale at all Grocers, Departmental Stores, etc.

"The Pet Lamb"

Once, when we were very young, we saw a picture entitled "The Pet Lamb." It showed a small boy looking with tearful eyes on a young lamb which was evidently being sold by his parent to a rough looking man with a knife in his belt. In those days our sympathies were rather with the lamb but today, knowing the delights of Roast Spring Lamb, our feelings run more to the father of the child who had evidently to part with his meat supply in order to pay the rent. But no lamb, either real or pictured, was ever quite so tender as that which we offer today

BRITAIN NEUTRAL, BUT WON'T PROMISE NOT TO AID GREECE

Chamberlain's Reply to Question in House of Commons

U.S. INVOLVED?

Reported Greeks Impressing U.S. Citizens Into the Army

LONDON, June 17.—(Special Cable to Montreal Star and Chicago Tribune. Copyright). — Austen Chamberlain gave a non-committal reply in the House of Commons to a query as to whether British assistance was being given to the Greeks.

Apart from the British naval mission no British naval officers are attached to the Greek forces, he said, and no British army officers are serving in the Greek army.

He said he did not know of any assistance being rendered the Greeks, but declared he did not want to commit the Government to a policy of not giving any.

TROUBLE FOR U. S.

SMYRNA, June 17. — (Associated Press.)—United States citizens are being impressed into the Greek army by agents of the Athens Government and George Horton, United States Consul-General here, has made a vigorous protest to Governor-General Steriades against the continuance of the practice.

For many months past, United States citizens, even men who served in the army in France, have been taken forcibly from their homes, or from vessels arriving from the United States, and compelled to join the Greek forces.

There have been scores of such cases in Athens, Smyrna, Patras and Salonikl, and only those able to escape and get into communication with United States Consular officials have obtained redress. In many instances they have been stripped of their clothing, and their passports and other papers have been confiscated. When they have protested, it is charged that they have been handcuffed, thrown into jails and mistreated.

CURZON IN PARIS.

PARIS, June 17.—Lord Curzon, British Secretary of State for Foreign affairs, arrived here today to confer with Premier Briand relative to problems facing France and Great Britain. Great interest was taken in his visit to Paris, in view of recent reports that Prime Minister Lloyd George has decided to confine his attention to home politics, leaving foreign affairs to Lord Curzon.

While it was declared that the conversations of the Foreign Secretary and Premier Briand would mainly concern eastern questions, it was understood in competent quarters that reparations and the Silesian problem would also receive attention. There was an impression that the Entente between Great Britain and France has of late relaxed to a certain extent, and that it was Lord Curzon's business to seek, with M. Briand, to tighten the bonds between the two countries. The Figaro after enumerating the differences in the viewpoints of Great Britain and France relative to Silesia and the Near East said: "All these contradictions show the need of a complete readjustment."

In arranging for his visit to see M. Briand, Lord Curzon specified the near eastern situation as his dominant object. The British Government, he indicated, desires to arrange with France the basis of a peace with Turkey that shall include a definite settlement of British, French and Greek interests.

It is understood that M. Briand does not desire to discuss on this occasion the question of an alliance with Great Britain, even though Lord Curzon should raise the subject, which it is said he does not intend doing, in view of the present unfavorable attitude of French public opinion, the disposition of some members of the French Cabinet in feeling that France should not make an alliance with Great Britain until present differences concerning the Near East have been adjusted, and also until it is seen whether the British-Japanese alliance is renewed. Lord Curzon informed M. Briand he would remain in Paris only forty hours as he came without a staff.

RESUME FIGHTING.

PARIS, June 17.—(By Henry Wales Star and Chicago Tribune Cable, Copyright.)—Greek quarters here learn from Athens that hostilities have been resumed in Syria between the Turks and French.

General Gouraud, en route to Alexandretta-Aleppo, reported he was attacked by Kemalists and the in the bloody fighting that resulted the French dispersed the Turks by field and machine-gun fire.

In Asia Minor, Kemalist cavalry is making surprise attacks in various sectors where it is learned the Greeks are concentrating for an offensive.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 17. — The Greek offensive against the Turkish Nationalists has been halted while final decision of the British to back up the Greeks is pending. In any case, however, the Greeks are expected to launch a local offensive east of Ushak, where the Turks are badly placed. This offensive would be ordered for the purpose of maintaining the prestige of King Constantine. General Ismet Pasha, commander of Nationalist troops at Eski-Shehr, has summed up the Greek position by saying:

"They are in the same position as a man who has started to sneeze and finds himself unable to do so."

It is believed here that the British are waiting to see if the Turkish Nationalists are willing to accept the revised Sevres Treaty, which was discussed at London with Nationalist representatives last March.

The Nationalists are in a dilemma. They are afraid of both the British and the Russian Bolsheviki and are closely watching Enver Pasha, who is acting as a Soviet emissary in the Near East. The Nationalists desire to meet the Allied viewpoint, but Enver is trying to overthrow Mustapha Kemal, head of the Nationalist Government. The Nationalists wish, in case of the acceptance of the London modifications to the Treaty, that the Allies will agree to protect them against the wrath of the Bolsheviki.

LABOR MEN WANT TOTAL EXCLUSION OF ALL JAPANESE

Resolution Before A.F. of L. Convention is Most Drastic

TO ASK CONGRESS

Resolution Has Support of Various Anti-Asiatic Bodies

DENVER, Colo., June 17. — Demand that Congress take action to protect the nation's interest against the growing menace of Japanese immigration and colonization is made in a resolution submitted today to the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

The declaration, submitted by M. M. McGuire of the San Francisco Labor Council, has the approval of the Japanese Exclusion League of California, Los Angeles Anti-Asiatic Association and the Japanese Exclusion League of Washington, various patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations on the Pacific coast.

Labor leaders declare that the resolution is the most drastic measure on the Japanese question ever considered by organized labor. It calls for:

"Absolute exclusion in future of all Japanese immigration, not only male but female, and not only laborers skilled and unskilled, but farmers and men of small trades and professions, as recommended by Theodore Roosevelt. Permission for temporary residence only for tourists, students, artists, commercial men, teachers and others.

"Such exclusion to be enforced by United States officials under United States laws and regulations as done with immigration admitted or excluded from all other countries and not as at present under an arrangement whereby control and regulation is surrendered by us to Japan.

"Compliance on the part of all departments of the Federal Government with the constitution and abandonment of threat, or attempt to take advantage of certain phrasings of that document as to treaties, which it is claimed gives the treaty making power authority to violate plain provisions of the constitution and statutes in the following matters:

"A—To nullify state rights and state laws for control of land and other matters plainly within the states' jurisdiction.

"B—To grant American citizenship to races of yellow color, which are made ineligible for such citizenship.

"Fair treatment, protection in property rights, legally acquired, for Japanese legally entitled to residence in California and the privilege of engaging in any business desired, except such as may be now or hereafter provided by law, provided particularly they may not hereafter lease agricultural lands."

Three cities have already began campaigns to get the 1922 convention of the Federation. They are Fort Worth, Tex., Cincinnati, Ohio, and Birmingham, Ala.

The convention today considered — labor.

Attempts to infuse consideration of outside topics were made by some delegates, but met with little success. The Irish question, prohibition and other subjects brought up were to be laid over for consideration toward the close of the annual convention here. Unemployment, wage-cuts and labor organization had the right of way in today's discussions.

The attitude of the federation toward the injection of foreign topics was shown in the quick refusal to consider a resolution condemning the Ku Klux Klan presented by a delegation of negroes, the resolution asked that Federal and State Governments be urged to take action against the Klan, which was called an advocate of mob violence.

CAN DEFEAT BOYCOTT MOVE.

Some expression of sympathy for Ireland probably will be made before the end of the convention. Leaders of the movement to force a resolution through waited eagerly for the promised cablegram from Eamonn De Valera, which they believed would help the cause.

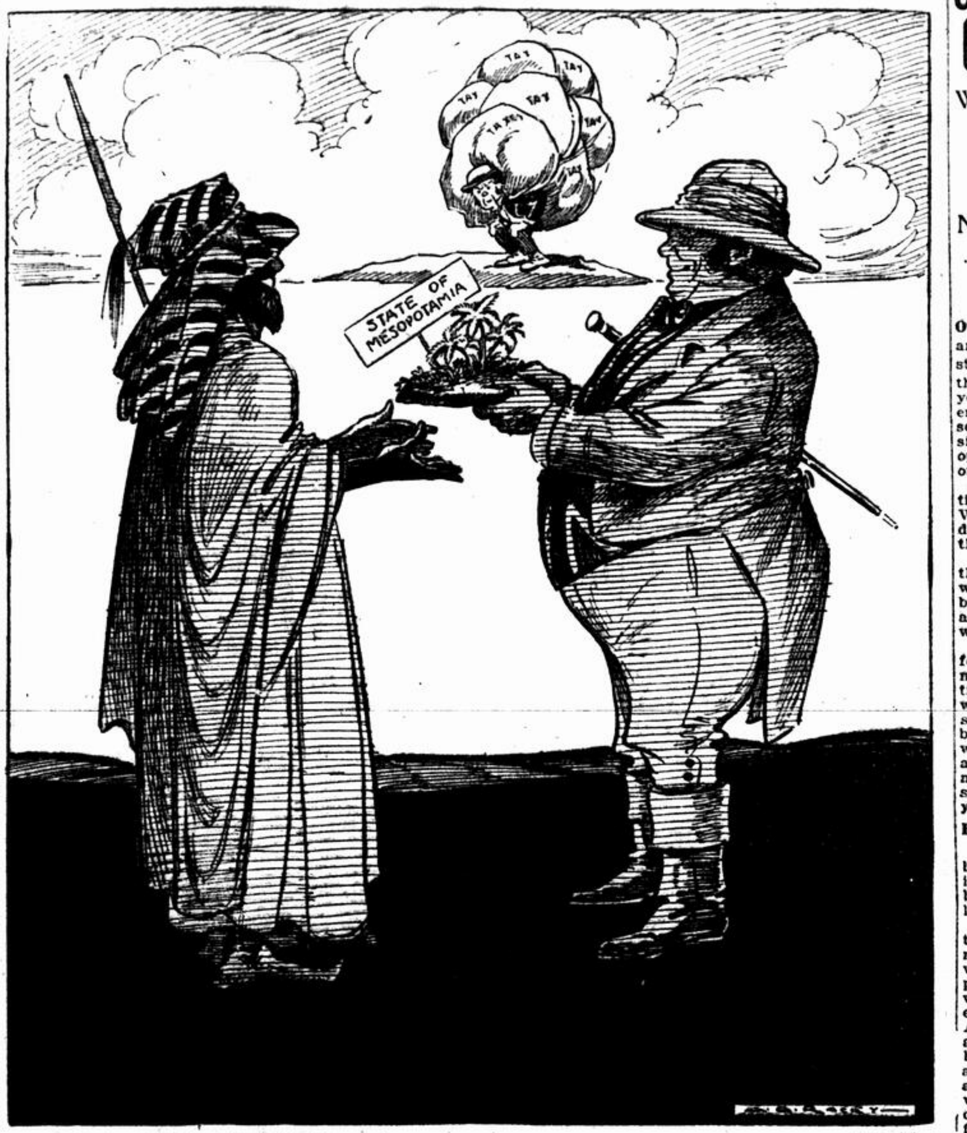
Opponents of a proposal to boycott all goods made in Great Britain, as punishment for the British course in Ireland, declared they had collected enough votes to defeat the move.

A resolution commending Secretary Denby for his action on Admiral Sims' speech in London, also has been sidetracked for the time. The resolution calls for the dismissal of Sims if he made the anti-Sinn Fein speech attributed to him.

All chance of endorsement of and affiliation with the International Trades Union Council was believed squelched in a letter sent the International's headquarters in Holland.

The letter bitterly arraigned the International's advocacy of general strikes, force and socialization. President Samuel Gompers signed the letter which also declared that the International's appeal for workers to cease making munitions of war, was designed to aid Soviet Russia and would have had "a disastrous effect on the democracies of the world" if it had been heeded.

ANY RELIEF WELCOME.



Arab:—Allah and England be praised.

COUNTERFEIT TICKETS FOR BIG FIGHT OFFERED, TWO MEN ARRESTED

READING, Pa., June 17.—Alleged counterfeit tickets for the Carpentier-Dempsey fight came to light here today. Joseph S. Schwartz and William J. Morrow of Philadelphia,, were under arrest on charges of swindling after offering ten $20 tickets and ten $30 tickets for $400. Their tickets were said by police to be bogus.

ONTARIO TO GO DRY ON JULY 18

OTTAWA, June 17—(From Our Own Correspondent.)—Ontario will go dry on the 18th day of July, according to present plans of the Government. The Cabinet has authorized the Secretary of State to formally gazette on Saturday the date when the referendum shall be effective and if it is then gazetted, as is proposed, it will go into operation thirty days later, or July 18th. After that date the importation of intoxicating liquor into the Province will be banned.

A proclamation has also been authorized for holding in New Brunswick a referendum on the question of putting into effect in that Province the new Canada Temperance Act along the same lines as in other Provinces. The date is not yet fixed.

Incidentally steps are being taken at the urgent request of the Quebec Government, in carrying out a petition of the electors of the City of Quebec to hold, at a date in the near future, left to the Secretary of State, a poll on the question of repealing the Scott Act still in operation in that city.

OVER ONE HUNDRED C.S. EMPLOYES OUT

Wholesale Discharges Follow Work of Efficiency Experts

MORE TO FOLLOW

Numerous and Bitter Complaints—Ottawa Offices in Turmoil

OTTAWA, June 17. — From Our Own Correspondent.)—The Post Office and Customs departments are in a state of commotion today owing to the passing of an Order-in-Council yesterday in which over a hundred employees of the inside service and several times that number in the outside are retired as a result of the operation of the Griffenhagen firm of efficiency experts.

In all about 800 are in line for retirement throughout the country. What the experts are doing in these departments will later be repeated in the others.

Sir George Foster stated today that the intention was to carry on the work in all branches of the service but it could not all be done at once and a start had therefore been made with the largest departments.

Nothing that occurred in Ottawa for a long time has raised quite so much of a storm of protest. The retirements are general and apparently without favor. Officials of high standing down to routine clerks are being let out. It has all been done without any notice but retiring allowances are provided. There is a minimum allowance of two months' salary and an extra amount for each year of service in the department.

BITTER COMPLAINTS.

The complaints are numerous and bitter as to the hardships which are involved in the re-organization. It began in the printing bureau where last year several hundred were let out.

From there it has been extended to the Post Office and Customs Department with the others in line. The way was paved by the Calder Act, passed last year. All over sixty-five who are not physically fit to carry on efficiently were supposed to be retired. As this works out in practice, practically all who have attained that age are being let out, and many others who are their juniors. Scores of positions are being abolished. A general plan was adopted and its individual application passed by the Government before any of the officials involved were made aware of it. This has been done to obviate wire pulling. Local M.P.'s are bombarding the Government with protests and bewailing the political effects but without avail.

The work is being done by a sub-committee of the Cabinet with Sir George Foster as the main operator.

ROSE DAY WAS SUCCESS.

TORONTO, June 17—Queen Alexandra Rose Day in this city was the occasion of the I.O.D.E. raising over $14,000 by the selling of artificial roses on the streets, the proceeds to go chiefly to the Preventorium, an institution founded by Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., to help save children from tuberculosis.

LODER GUILTY OF BARRY'S MURDER

PICTOU, N.S., June 17.—George E. Loder, self-confessed slayer of Daniel A. Barry, an aged Pictonian, was yesterday afternoon found guilty of murder. The case was given into the hands of the jury by Mr. Justice Russell at four o'clock, and twenty-six minutes later they returned with a verdict of guilty. Loder received the decision as he had watched his counsel's stubborn but unavailing fight, calm, stoic and seemingly indifferent to the consequences.

Douglas Graham, K.C., Crown prosecutor, in addressing the jury, made a strong plea for the return of the graver verdict guilty of murder. There could be no question of manslaughter in this case, he said. It had been shown that a deliberate crime had been committed. The prisoner had been so cold-blooded about the matter that he had remained by the body of his aged victim for some time and set a fire to cover the tracks of his crime.

MISS CECIL LEITCH WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, June 17.—Miss Cecil Leitch, British woman's golf champion, today defeated Miss Joyce Wethered, also of England, in the final of the French women's open golf championship tournament by 6 up and 5 to play.

Miss Leitch won her way into the final contest by defeating Miss Molly Griffiths of Great Britain in a gruelling match which was not decided until the eighteenth hole was reached. Miss Wethered earned the right to contest for the Stoneham Cup by vanquishing Miss Alexa Stirling of Atlanta, Ga., in the semi-finals yesterday.

Bright sunny weather greeted the players when they reached the course this morning. The fact that there was little breeze blowing was considered an augury of splendid golf during the day. To decide the championship, 36 holes were played, 18 being played this forenoon, and the remainder in the afternoon.

The British champion played a strong game over the first eighteen holes, at the close of which she was 7 up on Miss Wethered.

The cards for the first eighteen holes were:

Miss Leitch:—
Out ....—35
In ....—39—74
Miss Wethered:—
Out ....—40
In ....—45—85

Miss Leitch won chiefly through her superior putting, Miss Wethered showing even more unsteadiness on the greens than she did yesterday in her match with Miss Sterling. Miss Leitch also excelled in approach shots and was the steadier and more consistent in driving. The British champion, who was seven up at the eighteenth hole, allowed her opponent to gain a hole during the afternoon in a strong rally. The cards for the second round were:

Miss Leitch:
Out—444 455 453—39.
In—443 4
Miss Wethered:
Out—435 354 344—35.
In—553 4

REDS APPEAR IN UPPER SILESIA

Bolshevist Outbreaks — Raise Red Flag on Coal Mines

BERLIN, June 17.—(By George Seldes, Montreal Star-Chicago Tribune Cable. Copyright) — Bolshevist outbreaks in Upper Silesia, due to the Entente's incapability of acting firmly and decisively on account of friction between the British and French, are now assuming first importance in certain districts, according to reliable reports from Beuthen and Pless.

Polish workmen have raised the red flag on the coal mines in the central industrial zone. In the Pless district a detachment of Korfanty's army revolted and formed a "commando Polish Red Army," and then terrorized the region in which it was quartered.

Great disappointment is felt in certain quarters in Berlin because of the latest developments as the British were slowly but surely restoring order. The Berlin press is quoting British Liberal newspapers, which claim that the French political control of Upper Silesia prevents General Henniker from carrying out his plan which restored order, without bloodshed, in a part of the disordered region.

Yesterday the British troops occupied Guttentag quietly. The Germans declare the British and Italians can occupy the entire country if they are given a free hand.

PAY-CHEQUE FRAUDS

Militia Department Expects Less Than $6,000 Loss

OTTAWA, Ont., July 17.—(Special)—That the frauds arising out of the cashing at par in Canadian money of soldiers' pay in English money will not exceed $6,000, apart from the $2,000 of forgeries for which the banks are responsible, is the substance of a statement being issued by the Militia Dept. Some six millions was paid out in all, $142,000 of which was through the banks. The audit so far has disclosed $1,100 shortage.

URGE DEVELOPING COAL RESOURCES

Is Economic Necessity, Mrs. McIvor Tells Conference at Calgary

CALGARY, Alta., June 17.— The coal situation in Canada, which one of the delegates to the National Council of Women describes as a burnning question, was brought before the Thursday morning session of that body in the report of the Council of Home Economics. This was presented by Mrs. Jean MacIvor, of Toronto, who urged that the development of Canada's mines was an economic necessity. In the discussion following the reading of the report, it was pointed out that Alberta has one-sixth of the coal deposits of the world, and if cheaper freight rates could be procured during the summer months before the shipment of grain started it would help in the development of the mines, the lowering of the price and the employment of men.

After much discussion action was deferred until the motion could be reworded.

The resolution brought forward by Mrs. MacIvor to endorse the proposed bureau of information and its magazine, a project placed before the council two days ago by Mrs. Sears, of Ottawa, brought forth the opinion that something of this nature was required.

HOUSE ECONOMICS.

Mrs. Muldrew, of Ottawa, said there was no reason why women should not obtain as much for home economics as is needed. While ample provision is made for information and for assistance in the care and the feeding of children, for full information and assistance for the farmer who desires to build a chicken house, there is no help and no provision for any assistance to the housewife in any of her difficulties.

"We believe that the women of Canada," continued Mrs. Muldrew, "should ask for a home economics department in the Federal Government and we also believe that it would be in the interests of national economy that such should be established. There is no doubt that this will be established at some future date in the history of Canada, and it would be of much value to us as a national organization that we were the first to ask for it."

This proposition was objected to by Miss Carmichael, of Pictou, N.S., who thought the council should go slowly in asking the Government to do anything that would add more expense at this time and the matter was accepted as a notice of motion to be dealt with at the next annual meeting.

CIVIC RECEPTION TO FRENCH MISSION

SPECIAL MASS

Senator C. P. Beaubien is Chosen Chairman of Committee

The main items of the program for the reception of the French Mission, under the direction of General Lafayolle, which is expected in this city on the morning of June 25 on its way to express to the Canadian Government the thanks of France for its assistance in the war, were approved yesterday at a meeting of representative citizens in the government offices in the Post Office Building, at which committees to make arrangements for the proposed functions were appointed. The program will include a civic reception, a drive to the top of the mountain and, in the evening, an entertainment of a social and patriotic nature, according to the suggestions made by the chairman, Senator C. P. Beaubien, which were adopted on the motion of Mayor Martin seconded by Rev. E. I. Rexford.

Mr. deLalanne of the Consulate-General of France thanked those present for their good intentions towards his countrymen, coming to represent his native land officially, and asked, in the name of the French Colony of this city, that some small portion of their stay in Montreal might be reserved so that the French residents of Montreal might give them a special welcome to the city. This request received the approval of all present. Canon Harbour, representing Archbishop Bruchesi, suggested that the members of the Mission should be given an opportunity of attending a mass at St. James Cathedral to be held in their honor on the morning of Sunday, June 26, when among those officiating would be Monsignor Landrieux, one of the most distinguished of the French clergy of the city. Dr. Rexford, representing Bishop Farthing, supported this suggestion which was adopted.

GOVERNMENT PAYS.

Senator Beaubien after announcing that the Mission would visit Quebec, Ottawa, Hamilton and Toronto after leaving Montreal, stated that the Federal Government had undertaken to defray the cost of its entertainment but preferred to leave the programs in the hands of the various cities visited.

Senator Dandurand, president of the local branch of the Comite France Amerique, proposed that all present should form part of the general reception committee and that Senator C. P. Beaubien and Senator Smeaton White should be appointed president and vice-president respectively. The honorary presidency was conferred upon Mayor Martin and the honorary vice-presidency upon Lord Shaughnessy. Rene Bauset, city clerk, proposed that Col. Gaudet, Director of Public Safety, and Chiefs Lepage and Belanger should be included in the general committee. Senator Beaubien undertook to communicate with them to secure their co-operation in the arrangements.

The executive committee was appointed as follows:—President, Hon. Senator C. P. Beaubien; vice-president, Hon. Senator Smeaton White; secretary, F. Gallagher; Hon. Senator Raoul Dandurand; General A. E. Labelle, H. W. Beauclerk, Joseph Quintal, H. R. Poussette, C. W. Johnston, James Morrison, E. J. Hebert. Sub-committees will include Rene Bauset, Senator Dandurand, General Labelle, A. Tarut, J. Duchastel de Montrouge, H. W. Beauclerk, Joseph Quintal, C. W. Johnston, James Morrison, J. H. Hebert and General Armstrong, G.O.C.

LEVINE CLEARED OF RECEIVING CHARGE

Iks Levine, 197 Laurier Avenue, was acquitted in the Court of Sessions yesterday by Judge Bazin of the charge of receiving seven bolts of cloth, the property of the Montreal Sponging Company, knowing them to have been stolen. Evidence given by Ike Brunisky, now in jail on a charge of receiving other goods the property of the same firm cleared Levine of all unlawful implication in the affair.

Detective Bogli, who was working on the case had a curious experience of being arrested by fellow officers. He and a special provincial constable were watching a house when a squad of police appeared on the scene and the two detectives were put under arrest on a charge of being suspicious characters. Residents of the district had phoned and complained of them. As soon as the police station was reached, however their identity was discovered, and they returned to their watch, and later arrested their man.

STRESSES RIGHT OF INDIVIDUALS

Prof. Carrie Derick Advises Kiwanis to Prepare for Elections

The relation of the individual to the community was the subject of an interesting address given by Prof. Carrie Derick, of McGill University, to the members of the Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday, held under the chairmanship of President Walter Taylor. Miss Derick pointed out that the whole story of progress had been the struggle of the individual for the right of being whatever is in him, to think as he liked and act as he liked without being subject to the dictates of others. But when the individuals joined together in communities for the common good, then there was no limit to the scope of the service that could be rendered for the common good.

Miss Derick referred to the efforts of the Kiwanians and other organizations in the recent referendum, and expressed the belief that the reason why more success had not attended their efforts was that they did not organize soon enough and educate the public as to the issues at stake. She believed the men and women would think rightly if matters were put before them clearly, and she suggested that if any organized effort was to be made for the October elections those who had the interest of the city at heart, should see to it that the best men possible should come forth as candidates, men with a bigger vision than their own objects or ward interests, who would look at matters from the standpoint of Montreal as a whole. Miss Derick also spoke of the need of some prominent business man at the head of the Federated Committee on Education, and touched briefly on the immigration question, and the duty that rested on the citizens to see that those who came to this country were properly looked after, and education provided for their children. She did not favor a uniform system of education for the whole of the Dominion or even the whole Province, believing that every group of people had the right to carry on its life along the lines it wished, and have its children taught the education and religion suited to them. Organizations such as the Kiwanis had great opportunities to work to make Canada a place where every human being could be an individual and at the same time co-operate with others in securing the greatest liberty for all.

President Taylor remarked that Kiwanians did not indulge in political controversies or fight for individuals, but for principles, and therefore he did not think they would take any part in the coming elections as an organization.

It was announced that John McMillan, manager of the C. P. R. Telegraphs, Montreal, had been elected as a director of the Kiwanis Club. The juvenile delinquents' committee, which will work in conjunction with a similar committee from the Rotary Club and other organizations, has named H. H. Patch as its chairman. They will study the question during the fall with the object of coming before the Government with concrete proposals at the next session of the Legislature. M. V. Codell was announced as chairman of the Haymarket Playgrounds committee.

Kiwanian L'Esperance announced that the charter of the newly-formed Quebec Kiwanis Club would be presented on July 5, and a large number of Montreal Kiwanians are expected to attend. A donation of $100 was voted by the Kiwanis Club to the sufferers by the floods in Pueblo, Colorado.

Community singing, inaugurated by the Kiwanis Glee Club, and under the auspices of the municipal authorities, will commence on Fletcher's Field on the evening of Wednesday, June 29, when patriotic songs will be sung. A choir of forty Kiwanians will lead the singing.

IS BATONNIER-GENERAL.

The Hon. J. E. Perrault, K.C., Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries in the Taschereau Cabinet was elected batonnier-general of the Bar of the province at the annual meeting of the general council of the Provincial Bar held yesterday in the library of the Court House. Victor Martineau, K.C., was at the same meeting re-elected general secretary.

FIRE AT Y.W.C.A. BRANCH.

Slight damage was caused by a fire yesterday afternoon to the premises of the Y.W.C.A. branch at 25 St. Famille street. Firemen in response to a telephone call quickly extinguished the blaze. The work of the institution will continue as usual. Much of the damage having been caused by smoke and water only.

DIPLOMAS AWARDED TO THIRTY NURSES

Montreal General Hospital's Service to Community Extolled

Thirty nurses, graduates of the Training School for nurses of the Montreal General Hospital were presented with diplomas at the graduating exercises which were held yesterday afternoon in the lecture hall. Over 200 guests witnessed the ceremony, together with members of the board and the staff. The members of the graduating class were seated in the centre of the hall and each carried a bouquet of roses given by members of the board of management. The President, Farquhar Robertson, occupied the chair suported by the Rev. Canon J. M. Almond, C.M.G., and Dr. F. G. Finley, C.M.G.

The president in his address said that in the past 31 years the school had sent out 709 nurses, including the present class. This represented a service to the community and to the nation which was too often overlooked when they were speaking of the duties of their general hospital. The hospital stood for two ideals, the healing of the sick and the education of the medical student. He did not think it was asking too much if they coupled with the second of these ideals the education of the nurses. The speaker went on to speak of the opening of the hospital in May, 1822, and the establishment of the Training school for nurses in 1890 under Miss Livingstone, paying a great tribute to the work of that lady whose unavoidable absence that day was deeply regretted.

He had read with pride that Miss Livingstone, Miss Snively of Toronto, and Miss Stanley of London had been made life members of the Canadian National Nurses Association and had received gifts of recognition from this association. Mr. Robertson went on to say that the hospital was now passing through a financial crisis and said that the public within the next year, would be given an opportunity of deciding by their financial support, in the form of a campaign for grants, whether this service should continue or be allowed to cease. He paid a tribute to the work of the Training School and of Miss Young the matron.

The graduating class then received their diplomas from the president, assisted by Miss Young. The recipients were:—

Hazel Alford, Tide Head, N. B.; Anne Allward and Vera Allward, Waterloo, Ont.; Martha Batson, Conception Bay, Nfld.; Edna A. Beck, Montreal; Beatrice Brinton, South Porcupine, Ont.; Alice M. Brewster, Hampton, N. B.; Janie Budden, Carbonear, Nfld.; Frances Clarke, Cardiff, Wales; Helen Elliot, Ormstown, Que.; Winnifred Gardiner, Meadow Junct., N. B.; Ione Gunning, Pictou, N. B.; Marjorie Ross, Toronto; Winnifred Smith, Montreal; Freda Whitney, Montreal.

Miss Martha Batson and Miss Freda Whitney received prizes presented by the board of management for general proficiency.

Following an address to the graduates by Dr. Finley, tea was served on the roof-garden and musical selections were rendered.

FIRE STATION ON FIRE.

An old fire station at the corner of St. Lawrence and Beaubien streets was the scene of a small fire yesterday afternoon. Boys playing with lighted sticks set fire to one of the window sills. Firemen who had previously occupied the premises and who, pending the erection of a new station are quartered at 465 Beaubien street east, were among those who responded to a call and put out the blaze.

SPINNERS ACCEPT CUT.

BRUSSELS, June 17.—An agreement has been reached between the cotton mill owners and operatives under which the wages of the operatives will be the same as they were in January, 1920. The spinners accepted a 13 per cent cut in wages, while the weavers and other employes took a reduction of between 18 and 20 per cent.

CONTEMPT OF COURT MOTION ADJOURNED

In the Practice Court yesterday, Mr. Justice Coderre adjourned to June 20 hearing on a motion presented by Elliott and David on behalf of the Hartt Boot and Shoe Company, Limited, of Fredericton, N.B., for the issuing of a rule nisi against Moses Fickler, jobber and manufacturers' agent, of Montreal, for alleged contempt of court.

It is claimed by petitioner that notwithstanding a temporary injunction issued last week restraining Fickler from making use in any way of the name of the Hartt Boot and Shoe Company, Limited, in its business or otherwise, he still persists in making use of petitioner's name.

Robert L. Calder, appearing on behalf of Fickler asked that the motion be postponed to June 20, when the proceedings on the merits of the injunction sought by the Hartt Boot and Shoe Company, Limited, will be heard. This was granted.

POSTPONEMENT OF REID DEPORTATION

Delay is Allowed for Hearing of Convicted Man's Appeal

The deportation of P. J. Reid in accordance with the instructions of the Immigration Department while it will be carried out in the near future, was postponed yesterday to allow Reid to present to the Court of King's Bench his appeal against the judgment of the Recorder's Court, by which he was sentenced to the common jail for a period of three months.

This delay was arranged for yesterday afternoon after communication with Ottawa, the Minister issuing instructions that Reid be allowed to remain in Montreal pending the proceedings in this particular aspect of the case.

Mr. Justice Monet, to whom the application was made to proceed with the hearing of Reid's appeal in the Court of King's Bench, after having been apprised by Frank J. Curran, K. C., for the Immigration authorities; R. L. Calder, counsel for Reid, and G. St. Pierre, K. C., representing the city, set the hearing on Reid's appeal for 10 o'clock, Saturday, June 25.

Meanwhile Reid will remain in the detention quarters of the Immigration Department. No matter what judgment is rendered on the appeal, Reid will be deported immediately afterwards in accordance with the judgment of the Superior Court. The point at issue is that he may be freed of a criminal offence.

NAME OMITTED; POLICE ARE SCARED

When the name of Ernest Lyette was called in Court of Session yesterday for trial on a charge of receiving, he did not answer. It was found that he was not on bail, and a search among the prisoners was made. He was not there, however, and an alarm was at first raised that he had escaped. But the sergeant in charge of the prisoners from Bordeaux on reference to his list, found that the name of Lyette did not appear on it, having been omitted through a clerical error in copying. His case was consequently set for hearing next Thursday.

FIREMEN'S BENEFIT.

The annual entertainment in aid of the Firemens' Benefit Association, is to be held at the St. Denis theatre from June 27 to July 9 inclusive.

Professional performers will occupy the greater part of the program at the entertainment but the firemen themselves will give added attractions. Tickets may now be purchased from any fire station and are on sale at many stores in the city.

THREE YEARS FOR FORGING CHEQUE

Judge Bazin Delivers Sentences in Court of Sessions

Sentences were rendered by Chief Justice Decarie and Judge Bazin, in the Court of Sessions yesterday afternoon. Paul Leclerc, formerly a clerk in the employ of Maxime Raymond, 11 Place d'Armes square, was sentenced to serve three years in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary for forging a cheque for $60.

Alamanzar Brosseau was sentenced to two years in jail for the theft of merchandise and money valued at $50 from Imbleau Freres. Among the articles Brosseau was found guilty of stealing were three boxes of cigars, eight hundred and fifty cigarettes, a fountain pen, two pieces of soap, a box of bonbons and $11 in cash.

Breaking into the hen roost of Joseph Roy, of 13 Hayes street and stealing 14 hens and three roosters, cost Thomas McKaskey and Mike Berlot six months in jail each. The chickens were valued at $60.

Found guilty of receiving cloth valued at $2,000, the property of Kaplan, Samuelsohn and Co., Nathan Goldberg was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by Judge Bazin. This case has been before the courts for a number of months. The offence was committed December 24th, 1920.

LAND COMPANY AWARDED CLAIM

By judgment of Mr. Justice Duclos, in the Superior Court, yesterday, J. Stein and another defendant named Rosenfeld, were condemned to each pay a sum of $1,464.45 to the Dixie Land Company, Limited, being the purchase price of real estate, situated at Dixieland, in the parish of Lachine.

The company at the same time claimed against a third defendant named I. Rosenberg, but finding the wrong man had been summoned the action against Rosenberg was abandoned, and the court, holding the claim against Stein and Rosenfield was valid, ruled that plaintiff could not obtain a joint and several condemnation against them. Their obligation was simply a joint one, and was so stated in the promise of sale. Hence their individual liability was for $1,464.43, being one-third each of the total amount claimed, with interest as from May 1, 1919.

ROTARY CLUBS CONCLUDE CONVENTION.

QUEBEC MAN IS GUILTY OF FRAUD

In the Sessions Courts yesterday before Judge Decarie, J. J. Ouellette of Quebec City was found guilty of obtaining goods under false presences and with presenting a forged cheque.

The accused walked to the store of the Queen's Furnishing Co., Windsor St., and asked to see some overcoats. He chose one valued at $28 and in payment offered the store manager a cheque for $59.60. The manager 'phoned the Bank but found it was too late to get information. He looked through the directory and could find no such name as on the cheque. The cheque had been endorsed before being presented.

Becoming suspicious the manager told his son to detain the prisoner and walking out of the shop found Detectives Charland and Blanchette and put the man in their charge. D. Gillmor prosecuted. The defence stated that prisoner had cashed the cheque in question some days previously for a man who could not now be found.

Sentence will be given on Thursday next.

BAD LUCK FOLLOWS CHANGE.

James Brenan, of 22 St. Paul street west, was yesterday given six months imprisonment or a fine of $50 by Recorder Semple for begging in Bonaventure station. The accused is well-known at the Recorder's Court as the remark of Mr. Semple indicates, when told that Brenan was found begging in Bonaventure Station. "You seem to have changed your beat lately. I always thought your hunting ground was between Victoria Square and Bleury street."

Report on St. Lawrence-Lakes Scheme Not Yet in

SOME BIG DAMS

Advocates Declare Power Obtainable Would Carry the Cost

OTTAWA, June 17. — (From Our Own Correspondent)—The engineering feasibility of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes route whereby ocean tonnage would go to the head of the Lakes, will be reported upon next week to the International Joint Commission by the board of engineers, consisting of F. W. Bowden, Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals and Colonel F. P. Wooten, of the United States corps of engineers. Col. Wooten comes tomorrow for a final conference on the subject.

After the receipt of the engineers' report the International Commission will have three months in which to pronounce upon the economic feasibility of the project, carrying out the joint reference of the United States and Canadian Governments.

It is understood that so far as the engineering part is concerned the board will find the project wholly feasible.

It contemplates the erection of a series of dams on the St. Lawrence and the construction of ship channels in place of several of the existing canals instead of their deepening.

The cost will be very heavy. The exact estimate is not yet obtainable, but it is said to be around $200,000,000, to be borne jointly by the United States and Canadian Governments. In that connection Washington despatches have spoken of a possible international bond issue.

At the first glance, the disposition would be to condemn the scheme because of its excessive cost at a time of financial depression. To meet this there is the argument that the power developed, the potentiality being some three million horse power, will carry the cost of the undertaking. In any event no hurried decision is anticipated.

VISCOUNT FURNESS TO MARRY.

LONDON, June 17 — Reports have today said that Mrs. Julie Phillips Thompson, widow of a Philadelphia man, is to marry Viscount Furness. Lady Furness died at sea last February and was buried off Cadiz.

TARIFF BARRIER NOT SUFFICIENT?

Australian Declares Prohibition of U.S. Farm Machinery Only Hope

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 17. — A special despatch to the Sun from Melbourne says: "The Federal House of Representatives on Wednesday rejected an amendment moved by Mr. Gregory, a West Australian member, reducing the tariff on agricultural machinery. Mr. Gregory asserted that Australian manufacturers had prospered under the previous tariff. The wages of Canadian machinery workers were better, he declared, than those of similar workers in Australia, yet Canadian farmers paid only half the Australian prices for farming implements.

"Massey Greene, Minister of Customs, replying, said that although Australians had invented all the agricultural machinery imported to America, local factories were compelled to close owing to the competition of American manufacturers who marketed goods based on Australian models. A deputation today informed the Minister of Customs that American manufacturers were invoicing automobile bodies at 11 pounds sterling each, adding an extra value to the cost of the chassis. This, the deputation asserted, was compelling importers to take whole cars, thus preventing the employment of Australian body builders.

"Massey Greene replied that he did not expect that an additional 10 pounds duty would prove an effective deterrent. Anti-dumping legislation, in his opinion, would not meet the position. He could see no effective remedy except prohibition."

ASSUMES NEW DUTIES

OTTAWA, June 17.—F. A. Acland, Deputy Minister of Labor, who succeeds Thomas Mulvey as Kings Printer on account of the Government Printing Bureau having been transferred from the Jurisdiction of the State Department to the Labor Department, took over the duties of the position today.

Jellied Salad à la Bovril

Take cold sliced potatoes, tomatoes, a few pieces of onion cut very small, asparagus tips, cauliflower heads, or other suitable cold vegetables. Place in moulds and cover with hot Bovril in which has been dissolved powdered gelatine in the proportion of a heaped teaspoon to a pint. Chill and turn out on fresh crisp lettuce leaves. Serve one mould to each person.

This dainty and unusual dish is not only light; because it is made with Bovril it is nourishing. Bovril contains the goodness of the beef. Use it in all your cooking.

IMPROVE GERMAN-FRENCH RELATIONS

Conference of French and German Ministers Has Good Result

REBUILD FRANCE

Germany Says France Accepts Principle of Reconstruction by Germans

BERLIN, June 17.—(Special Montreal Star, Chicago Tribune Cable. Copyright.) — Following Reconstruction Minister Ratheneau's declarations at the cabinet meeting yesterday, optimism pervaded the Reichstag. It is said that satisfactory arrangements have been made for French and German co-operation—the result of the Weisbaden conference of Rathenau and Loucheur, French minister of reconstruction.

"France has accepted in principle that German industry shall carry out the re-building program for the destroyed areas," one Reichstag member declared.

Larger aspects of the meeting of Rathenau and the French re-construction minister, Loucheur, according to optimistic circles, is the possible rapprochment instead of the present policy of antagonism. Leading members of various parties, but especially Liberals and Democrats, who have been urging friendly relations with France, believe that the meeting between Rathenau and Loucheur is a stepping stone to a changed policy. It is believed that Chancellor Wirth has been accepted as bona fide by France, which, in exchange, will soften tactics in the Ruhr district and Silesia.

Rathenau addressed the cabinet last evening until 8 o'clock and at the meeting all present were pledged to strictest secrecy.

IRON ORE PROBLEM.

While awaiting official declaration before the Reichstag during the next five days, well informed members of the Reichstag believe that one of the most vexing problems of German industry has been solved; the supply of iron ore for German industry. Since the repatriation of Alsace-Lorraine German industry was almost mortally hit. While possessing continental Europe's largest coal deposits, and with industries built up by years of work for utilizing coal and iron, Germany faced a probablé French iron monopoly. But the industries including Stinnes', now are in perfect working agreement with the French.

Harvesting barley Boiling of the grain and hops Transporting the beer

The History of Brewing Begins with Egypt
Beer as brewed in Egypt was a rather crude beverage, which today nobody would care to drink. The difference between it and that brewed by the Frontenac Breweries is as wide as that existing between the primitive means of transportation of those days and the high class automobile of to-day.
It has been the privilege of Canada, through the efforts of the Frontenac Breweries, to set a high standard of purity and excellence for beer never excelled before in any part of the world.
Frontenac
I. P. ALE
Ye Goode Olde Englishe Brewe
scientifically brewed and matured for months, is a real Ale, full strength as allowed by the Quebec Liquor Law, rich in extracts and having the characteristic hoppy tang and satisfying flavor of the choicest English ales.
That is because the Frontenac Brewery, the most up-to-date of America, is specially equipped to brew the strongest Ales as well as the lightest lagers and to brew them as they should be brewed to satisfy the most critical.
If you want the BEST ALE, an Ale that has "Pep" in it, demand FRONTENAC I. P. ALE.

COWHIDE OR VICI KID.

IF Mr. Crerar is speaking as a private citizen, his oratory at Medicine Hat gives us excellent opportunity to gauge his intelligence. If, on the other hand, he is addressing the electors of that riding in his official capacity as the leader of the Farmers' movement, he has offered proof of the shallowness of the arguments upon which the Agrarians rest their claim for political power. In either case Mr. Crerar deserves the thanks of the student of politics for his revelations.

Speaking in support of the Farmer candidate in the Alberta by-election, Mr. Crerar said:

"The Government candidate stands for a system which aims to perpetuate thirteen-dollar shoes and one dollar cowhides." Having so brilliantly epitomized the policy of the present Government in this way, Mr. Crerar proceeded to clarify his epigram by asking certain questions, receiving the expected answers on which his stinging attack was based.

"What is the price of hides?"

"How many pairs of shoes can be made from a hide?"

"Ten."

A story is told of the great Thomas Huxley that in controversy with a man who attacked one of his scientific theories he began that process of macerating his opponent, of which he was so skilled a master, in the following terms: "Mr. B speaks of the lobster as a red fish. I would point out, however, that in its normal state the lobster is not red, neither in any state is it a fish. Outside of that, however, there is no fault to find with the statement."

The analogy might be carried to the remarks of Mr. Crerar. The price of hides is not today one cent a pound, ten pairs of shoes cannot be made from a single hide, and the cost of cowhide boots is not thirteen dollars a pair. There the analogy with the Huxley controversy must stop, for "outside of that" there is considerable fault to find with this argument.

Cowhide boots retail in Western Canada today for from five to seven dollars a pair, although there is now small demand for them. The grain grower, with his dollar-seventy-five bushel wheat and his leaders and organizers with their ten thousand a year jobs, find the cowhide of their fathers too hard for their feet.

Moreover, Mr. Crerar displays his ignorance of the shoe industry when he talks of getting ten pairs of shoes out of a single hide. It is possible to cut ten pairs of uppers from a single hide (although the Western farmer is no Cinderella in the matter of feet), but Mr. Crerar knows that boots and shoes need soles. He surely would never suggest that the Western farmer, through the machinations of the Ottawa Government, is always on his uppers. In men's boots the soles take as much leather as the uppers.

"Cowhides at one cent a pound!" Tut! Tut! Mr. Crerar knows well that the price of steer hides today is something like fourteen cents a pound and that ten cents a pound or five dollars a hide is a low price for cowhide in Calgary, Winnipeg and, presumably, Medicine Hat. Prices for cowhides are lower than they were a year ago for one reason—the grain grower prefers and can well afford vici kid for his footwear.

It would be also fairer if Mr. Crerar had pointed out that it takes more than a cowhide and a long, keen-edged blade to make a pair of shoes. There is the labor in tanning, the labor in cutting and shaping, the labor of a score of different processes before the completed boot is ready to leave the factory. Then there is the cost of transportation and distribution, and even Mr. Crerar would allow a profit on invested capital.

Moreover, the argument is something of a boomerang. Suppose some politician from the "effete East" was to turn the tables and say "The farmer buys seed wheat at two dollars a bushel." "How many bushels does he get out of this one seeding?" "Thirty." How much does he get for a bushel?" "One dollar and seventy-five cents and up." The conclusion seems fairly obvious.

False figures are a poor foundation for the creed of any political party. But when they are used to bolster up an artificial antagonism of West versus East the blunder becomes a crime.

A HARDING "LEAGUE OF NATIONS."

THERE are increasing signs in Washington that the Harding Administration is incubating something in the way of a substitute proposal for the League of Nations. "Candidate" Harding promised the Republican "Leaguers" that he would; and President Harding seems minded—now that he has got settled in his seat—to remember his pledges. Moreover, he and his active Secretary of State, Mr. Hughes, are finding it a decided disadvantage to be left outside the door every time the Supreme Council or any body acting for the other Great Powers reaches a pregnant conclusion touching a matter of world importance. Nor is it much of a comfort to them to have an "observer" present to report officially on what other nations do in affairs which seriously affect American interests. "Present, but neither speaking nor voting" is hardly a position which suits American character.

So if the new Administration will have nothing to do with the League of Nations or the Supreme Council, it is obvious that it must set up an International Council of its own if it is not to be perpetually in the position of protesting with more or less futility against a "fait accompli". It is true that the American protest frequently holds up action. But it does not as a rule change the decision in the sense Washington desires.

There is the amour propre of the members of the Supreme Council or the League to be considered; and there is the fact that the protested decision is usually the result of compromise after the most careful consideration of a lot of forces playing upon the subject. If the Americans had been present, they could have pooled their "force" with the others and possibly deflected the compromise; but it is a much more difficult—not to say delicate—business to re-make an agreed-upon compromise because an outsider, however potent, has thrust a hand-spike into it. All that is likely to result is a postponement of its application.

* * * *

There is not the smallest doubt that, if the American Government desires a new League or Council "made in America", the other nations will willingly co-operate. They may not even pause to point out that the League they did set up with such pains and misgivings was "made in America." If the then American President had not insisted upon this League, it would never have been created in the face of French suspicion and hostility—to say nothing of the indifference of Italy and the lukewarmness of an influential section of British official opinion.

But the American people, having banned and damned Wilson and all his works, naturally will have nothing to do with his League. And we should remember that if President Harding were to decide that this attitude implied complete American isolation from all Old World problems, he would infallibly be supported by his people. If, on the other hand, President Harding and Secretary Hughes decide that it is their patriotic duty to give the American nation a lead in the direction of sharing in the government of the world, Old and New, they will be swimming against—possibly not a settled current of opinion—but certainly against a vast and contented inertia which does not want to be bothered about Europe, except in the way of charity and trade.

Still the Harding Administration can lead the United States into far closer and more responsible relations with the Parliament of Man—by whatever name it may be called—than now exist. Intelligent and informed Americans know that their country has very real interests at stake in a hundred foreign fields. The Standard Oil sees to it that their Government keeps a close eye on the disposition of the various oil deposits; but there is no such power as the Standard Oil to prod up the politicians in many another field of equal importance. If the Administration take up all these other problems with a similar vigor and vigilance, they will be giving their nation the sort of far-sighted and statesmanlike service which it is the highest duty of a Government to give.

* * * *

Canada for her part can hasten to make it very clear that she welcomes the United States back into the international field. In many respects, our interests are identical. American co-operation within the world councils will be of untold help to British policy, even where it enables what may be termed the democratic influences in the British family to draw the policy of our Empire nearer to the line of a broad humanitarianism. There is far too much narrow and even acerbated nationalism in the Old World. The calling in of America—in which term we include Canada—will help redress that ominous balance to the vast benefit of the human race.

TO CROSS THE WHOLE ISLAND.

PUBLIC and commercial bodies in the city have approved of the construction of a splendid boulevard from Ste. Anne's to Bout de L'Ile. Thirty-five miles in length, having accommodation for street cars, sewers, water, light, etc., the boulevard would be of immense benefit to this city as well as to country places.

The idea is a commendable one and it is to be hoped it will receive sympathetic consideration from fronting proprietors, the Legislature, and other sources. The sore need of such a connecting road has long been felt. It has been discussed more than once at public gatherings, but nothing definite was accomplished. It is high time the agitation bore fruit.

It is unbusiness-like, foolish and a handicap to progress, when a city so favored by nature and so important as Montreal should have a reputation for both inadequate and poorly paved thoroughfares.

The tourist trade is a most valuable one, and we shall be enriched by it in proportion to the satisfactory condition of the great arteries of road traffic. Owing to improved road conditions, the United States succeeded in attracting tourists who spent, in a single year, the huge sum of one hundred million dollars. Canada, stretching as it does from ocean to ocean, has its mountains, lakes, rivers and forests, indescribable in their beauty. They are too little known to tourists because of inadequate roadways. Each tourist is invaluable as an advertising medium—and free advertising at that.

Every effort to improve the highways, however small, is of value to the provinces.

THE WORLD'S PRESS

The Spirit of Sportsmanship.

Kansas City Star: The American golfers may recall having heard it said that England always loses all the battles except the last.

Remember the Sardine.

Brooklyn Eagle: Sardines have disappeared from the Spanish coast. That they are reappearing as young herring off the coast of Maine is a fair guess. But no one will mention "Maine" to a Spaniard. It's a sore subject, waiving the sardine issue entirely.

By Their Fruits Ye Shall Know Them.

Seattle Times: There is no country more sincerely favorable to disarmament than America, and none that is so little troubled, in considering this policy, by financial problems. Here is a combination of circumstances which, if skilfully employed, will give to the world disarmament that will disarm.

The Road to Bankruptcy.

Edinburgh Scotsman: It was at the best a tactless thing to say to a House of Commons which is jealous of its power over financial matters, and still unconvonced that a mere increase of rates is the best way to procure increased revenue. It is a method which no shopkeeper who desired to keep out of the Bankruptcy Court would adopt.

The Aim of the Enemy.

London Morning Post: It is Bolshevist policy to separate England and France. That being Bolshevist policy, and the Bolsheviks being the enemies of the British Empire, we are encouraged in our conclusion that all true friends of this country must work for the Entente, and not only for the Entente, but to consolidate the Entente into a solid alliance, against which these secret and public enemies will work in vain.

Oil Ousting Coal.

Westminster Gazette: The decision of the Admiralty to rely for the future upon oil-burning ships means a change greater than it is easy to measure. The special monopoly of Welsh coal, which gave it a constant market at high prices, goes. That will not be without permanent effects on the coal situation, especially as the big passenger steamers are also turning to oil. At present, apart from other advantages, the Admiralty discovers a financial saving in burning imported oil rather than home-produced coal."

The Lesser of Two Evils?

London Daily Chronicle: Which is the least miserable fate: to pick a non-winning favorite in a Derby sweepstake or draw a blank? In the first case you spend a sleepless night of joyous anticipation over the benevolent disposal of your prospective wealth, a morning of morbid exhilaration, and a brief afternoon of tremulous hopes and fears, only to suffer the agony of a vision of fleeting phantom gold. In the second case you are subjected merely to the swift euthanasia of the ballot box, and left delightfully free to speculate on the fortune the great day will bring forth to your luckier friends.

The Acme of Cruelty.

Fortnightly Review: Frenchmen are thinking a great deal about it after the recent debates in the Chamber, and it has to be admitted that in some circles, notably labor, there is a distinct orientation of thought. The suggestion that the Germans should be permitted to return to the scenes of their pillage, plunder and vandalism, to the towns and villages, or what is left of them, where in their fury of destruction and acting against human and Divine laws they committed unspeakable crimes, is ridiculed by authorities in many of the stricken districts of France. They say they would rather keep their ruins than have the Germans back to repair them. And they add: "We have suffered and are still suffering, but save us from that."

Editors Favor Smoke.

Los Angeles Times: If this is to be made a smokeless world, it will have to be accomplished without the aid and consent of the editors. A recent query on the subject was addressed to 13,000 publishers and newspaper men of the nation. Of the nearly 8,000 answers thus far received, 7,393 were of the belief that an anti-tobacco crusade was futile and inadvisable. More than 90 per cent were emphatic in the belief that the sentiment of their community discouraged any special war against tobacco. "If a man wants to smoke, let him do it." That is the opinion of 96 per cent of the editors of America, according to the returns thus far received. It would seem that that ought to settle it. But wait till we hear from the sharp-nosed lady reformers. They have made their minds up differently.

The Imperial Conference.

Times of India: A means for the regular participation of the Dominions in the control of the foreign policy of the Empire seems necessitated and to that the higher organization of Imperial contributions towards the cost of naval defence and a means for Dominion participation in the control of the general naval forces of the Empire seems an inevitable parallel. There are many such problems and how an elaboration of the British Imperial system in accordance with them can be accomplished will be for the Conference and the Constitutional Conference following to discover. Many have tried to devise on paper an Imperial Constitution and have come against insuperable obstacles. But the politics of Britain and the political system and political life of Britain we can understand only by Britain itself. They are wrapped in conventions based on convenience and perhaps the progress of constitutionalism in the Empire will proceed on similar lines.

The New Greek Offensive.

New York Tribune: Constantine has gone to Asia Minor to supervise the new Greek offensive against the Turkish Nationalists. He says, without any undue modesty, that his immediate objective is Angora, Mustapha Kemal's capital. But before leaving Athens he boasted in a proclamation that he was going to Asia to accomplish the "supreme national aspirations" which the Greek people cherish, which include the restoration of Greek control over Constantinople, Thrace and a large part of Asia Minor. Greece, under Tino, was one of the most troublesome elements the allies had to deal with in the first three years of the war. The pro-German inclinations of the royal house contributed largely to wrecking the Entente's Balkan policy. A very modest Greek success might serve British interests to some extent. But a real Greek victory would contribute nothing to that Near Eastern settlement which the Peace Confereuce aimed at, but which the Sevres Treaty utterly failed to attain.

Instruction.

My hands that guide a needle
In their turn are led Relentlessly and deftly,
As a needle leads a thread.

Other hands are teaching
My needle; when I sew
I feel the cool, thin fingers
Of hands I do not know.

They urge my needle onward,
They smooth my seams, until
The worry of my stitches
Smothers in their skill.

All the tired women,
Who sewed their lives away,
Speak in my deft fingers
As I sew today.

Hazel Hall in Poetry.

OTTAWA'S ORATORY

THE man with a reputation as a platform orator does not always succeed in Parliament. To speak in the House of Commons requires its own peculiar method and training, and there have been notable examples of how platform speakers of note have failed lamentably to command the attention of the House.

* * *

A few sessions ago, there arrived in Ottawa a very distinguished public man who was known from coast to coast as an orator. He was a leader in several public service projects, a scholar, skilled in the art of handling an audience. His maiden effort at Ottawa was awaited with eager anticipation. Finally, he arose to address the House in a debate offering abundant opportunities for his peculiar gifts.

The writer has heard many speeches by British, French, American and Canadian public men, ranging in ability from apparent genius to crass mediocrity, but never did any address fall so wretchedly flat as did the much-heralded effort of this Canadian Demosthenes. It was pitiable. The man flapped and floundered like a bird with a broken wing, and as he realized the disaster, he sought to ride out the storm by rising to a greater altitude. Then the dismay of the audience changed to genuine amusement. He shouted rot and pounded absurdities. Some of his gems are still repeated at Ottawa as classic examples of forensic horror.

This speech was not only poor in the hearing; it also read badly. Time and again, this same man tried to reflect in Parliament the glory of his platform triumphs outside, but it was no use. He was a Parliamentary "dud."

* * *

Newcomers at Ottawa sometimes attempt looping-the-loop before they get their pilot's license. It is a dangerous proceeding. The beginner is always advised to go slowly at first, in Parliament or elsewhere.

A wealthy small town merchant, since departed, once startled the country with this: "If the heavens were a blackboard and the Rocky mountains were chalk, the industry of man could not write on that surface the wonderful destiny of this great country."

Older members know it is best to leave ideas so vast as that to the great poets.

Whether a speaker is good or not, most of them feel that they are well above the average. The story told at Ottawa to prove this concerns one of the poorest speakers in the House, Mr. Shouter, now dead, and a journalist with a keen appreciation of human weakness. The latter with a few friends was sitting in the cafe in the old House of Commons, before the days of prohibition. The problem of securing drinks without money came up, and the knowing journalist took charge of the party. Mr. Shouter happened to come in.

"O, Mr. Shouter" called the flatterer, "would you come here a moment? We were just discussing the orators of Parliament and we agreed that Sir George E. Foster was first and you came next."

Mr. Shouter's face glowed like the rising sun. Nobody else could buy drinks that day when he was around. And it is the sober truth that he was one of the poorest speakers in Canadian public life, naturally unfitted for declamation by a weak and rather irritating voice and a presence without distinction.

LEGAL QUERIES

AUTHORITY OF AGENCIES.

Q.—1. Has business rating agency right to list and rate business firms in their published directory, according to their own ideas? 2. If they have this right from what source do they derive their authority? 3.—For instance: Say a firm has net assets of from $10,000 to $15,000, also a line of credit with different firms from $1,000 to $5,000 each, would an agency be within rights in rating the above firm as follows: Capital rating, $500 to $1,000; credit rating limited (the lowest credit rating)? 4. If not within their rights, what legal action could a party take to have name or rating omitted from directory? Also, if proved this rating has been injurious to party in question, would an action for damages be in order?—Enquirer, Que.

A.—1. The business rating agency must publish the true statement, or is otherwise liable for damages. 2. Their authority is derived from their charter. 3. In such case rating will be incorrect, but company interested could very easily have it changed by submitting true facts to agency. You must realize that agency wishes its information to be authentic as possible, because it thereby pleases its subscribers better. 4. If actual damage is found there are grounds for an action in damages. The information is confidential, but only to extent that it is only subscribers to the agency who have the right to demand it.

WANTS MARRIAGE CONTRACT.

Q.—Was married in Montreal during year 1919. Please advise if I can now obtain a marriage contract making my wife and self separate as to property.—J. A. L.

A.—Once you have established a status of community in marriage it cannot be changed. There is one method whereby you could become separate as to property, that is by separation obtained by a judgment of the Superior Court upon an action for separation as to property.

RECONVERTING TOWN LOTS.

Q.—When town lots are converted back into farm lands (where the owner of said lots holds necessary papers proving his ownership), can he claim a refund of amount of money, which he paid for lots, from town authorities or Provincial Government (whoever is responsible for reconverting these lots into farm lands)?—W. M. N., Que.

A.—No.

TO COLLECT LOAN.

Q.—Eight months ago a friend, who is in a trucking business, asked me to lend him $100; I gave him cheque for this amount without getting any paper from him; he promised to repay me in thirty days, and I stated this on cheque. What can I do?—P. O'B., City.

A.—Consult a lawyer regarding this matter. If the facts are as you state, there should be no difficulty in collecting the $100.

THE EDITOR'S MAIL

THE TOONERVILLE TROLLEY.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—It has been rather astonishing in the multitude of Toonerville Trolley letters appearing on your page that so far only one is written from the woman's point of view, and Heaven knows, the women of the South Shore are a long-suffering and downtrodden class. It is all very well for the terrible-tempered Mr Bang to speak of waiting twenty minutes. What would he do if he had to get breakfast for husband and five children, get the latter off to school, do the housework, try to take the 10 o'clock car to town and be home to get dinner for the children at 12:30 and on just missing that car to sit fuming for forty minutes in the station or in the shed at Front street, waiting for the 10:37 to arrive? When that car does come in she finds it filled with the male populace of the "better class"—forsooth, — who do not have to arrive at their offices until a late hour in the morning. Do these gentlemen get up to give her a seat? I trow not! They sit in icy silence while she sways back and forth in the aisle until the terminus is reached. Of course the M. and S. C. cannot afford to run two cars when only women would be accommodated! Could they not run a twenty minute service throughout the day? If so the women of the South Shore would have a little less ground for complaint.

GRANDMA THE DEMON CHAPERONE.

HORRORS OF THE CENSUS.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—What is this census of which we read so much at the present moment? I am inclined to think the method of counting the population, as is being carried out at the present time, to be more antiquated than the checking of the inmates of the Ark by our old friend, Noah. At present, nobody has yet enquired at my address concerning the number of the human race contained within its walls. However, my grandchildren may be able to reply to the various questions, provided the census officer should survive long enough to reach this locality. My experiences of previous occasions of census taking has always been the following: A certain night is set apart for the census, and on that particular night the head of every dwelling has been required to fill in the names, etc., of every person who passed the night under his roof. The necessary forms have previously been delivered to the householder, and immediately after the date of census are collected. Thus the count of the nation has been done in a very short space of time. This present form of invading the privacy of families is certainly most objectionable, and it is small wonder that the inquisitive nature of the official should meet with some turn-downs. Housewives are also dubious as to the credentials of any strange caller, and possibly (in view of recent happenings in Canada's metropolis), rightly so. Personally, I would not like to accept the figures of the present farce as anywhere approaching the correct number. LOOKER-ON.

LEST WE FORGET!

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—Is it not time that someone in touch with public opinion, such as yourselves, took up the cudgels on behalf of the returned soldier, for whom, while the war, was on, so much was going to be done when he returned. No, I am not asking for a further gratuity, but, what is more important to the average returned man, an opportunity to earn a living without fear of discharge or refusal just because a man gave a few years of his life in the fight for so-called liberty.

To quote an instance, my brother has been employed for the past week on police duty at one of the local race tracks. He expected to be retained for duty at one of the other tracks, but on investigation he found that he had been discharged, together with all returned men so employed, owing to the fact that one of their number had broken the rules. If a crime is committed nowadays and the suspected party is a returned soldier one can almost invariably find the fact announced in block letters at the head of the newspaper article reporting the crime. And yet, when you consider the number of men who went over, it is at least a two to one chance that a returned soldier is connected in some way with everything that goes on.

Personally, I discarded my discharge button a long time ago, and find that in this city I get along much better without it. Cannot you, who have always had a reputation for fair play, do something to combat this prejudice against the returned men who, to say the least, are daily becoming more—

"FED-UP."

SEEING MONTREAL.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star—

Sir,—I happened to read J.A.W.'s letter in your paper, and after digesting the contents, I am constrained to supplement them with another unbiased opinion—this time Irish.

I met my friend at the wharf, and, having dined sumptuously, we were in no particular hurry to reach my place, so I proceeded to "do the city" in my flivver, and show him how we Canadians set the example of efficiency in all municipal matters—for the Old World to follow. To say that he was astonished would be to do him an injustice. He was so delighted, clapped his hands childishly, laughed and cried by turns, and in numerous other ways demonstrated his rapture at our garden city. Well, we went the rounds, visited all the museums, libraries, works of art, exhibitions, places of amusement (such as Sohmer Park), picture galleries etc., and after awhile I began to feel concerned for his sanity, so I decided to make for home via the most picturesque route—Lagauchetiere street, St. Lawrence Main, Mount Royal, etc. (where your correspondent undoubtedly collected his data on excellent paving) through St. Jerome, off Papineau avenue, to Delorimier Park race track.

It was while travelling up Papineau avenue that I first noticed him expanding his chest, filling his lungs full of the wonderful air, and looking from side to side as though searching for something. He did not speak until we reached the corner of St. Jerome and Delorimier avenue, when he turned and said to me: "Faith, an' Oi'm shure av ut this toime, an' if it isn't roses, an' lots av thim, thin 'tis nothing at all, at all."

We then proceeded down Delorimier avenue towards my domicile, when suddenly he requested me to stop the car, so that he could enjoy the beautiful fragrant sweet-scented air. If I remember rightly it was opposite the old disused quarry. When he came to, I related to him how the health of the city was protected first, last, and always, by the city, how fevers and all contagious diseases were unknown here. I explained fully the scientific process of the incineration department by which all contagion was eliminated. How the administration studied the child life of the city, especially with regard to such dangerous spots as quarries, steep embankments, etc., the money that was spent annually in high fences, railings, warnings, notice boards, watchmen, etc.

These disclosures and the sights were certainly a revelation to him after the maladministration of the Old Country, and he sat aghast almost at the contrast. Next day we again took a spin in the car, this time via Carriere street from Papineau through De la Roche, and again he showed his enthusiasm over this wonderful city in an unmistakable manner. I explained why it was these things were so—how such a state of affairs would have been impossible had we not had a mayor and aldermen who were philanthropists pure and simple. I dwelt on the fact that graft is practically unknown in Montreal, that our City Fathers were men who worked solely for the good of the community and their own honor. In further conversation I pointed out our small percentage of crime annually, our efficient and sufficient police force, our safety-first subways, lavatories, libraries, information bureaux, and lastly, described briefly our housing system whereby it is impossible for a tenant to be mulcted of his money for an unworthy dwelling. When travelling on Pius IX., he remarked: "Begorra, it's almost loike roidin' down auld O'Connell street, Dublin," and I guess he knows. He is not staying in the city, although his soul yearns to become a Montrealer, but he says (conscientious fellow that he is) that he feels it is his duty to go back and do his utmost to awaken the Old Country people from their apathy and institute a better system than heretofore has been maintained. He is a brave fellow and is not scared of the "Blimy, strike me pink" man over the water. Some day he is coming back—and then Montreal will have a gala-day. Bless 'is 'eart.

A MAN'S PAST.

I take an exception to an absurd statement made by "Country Girl" in her reply to "Back Woods'" letter telling why he remains single. She says that "as a rule, every man sows his wild oats sooner or later in life," which means that every woman, pure and true or otherwise, when she marries, takes to herself a husband who has a soiled past.

"Country Girl," do you really, honestly believe that your own father, your brother you think the world of, the men everywhere you most admire, are, or have been, immoral? "Every man" includes myself and all my best men friends. Now I am here to tell you that you surely have a very low opinion of men, or else a very low standard of morals.

Why is it that this vicious idea concerning a man's morals is so popular. I will attempt to tell you why. It has for centuries been disseminated both through literature and by word of mouth, by men who themselves have fallen into temptation and like to believe that all men are like themselves, weak; and so, many women have come to accept it as true,—that there are no pure, virtuous men. The manner in which this nasty propaganda has been scattered abroad will be seen by glancing at a recent popular novel. In one place the heroine says to the hero:

"Would it make a great deal of difference to you if several years ago I had been—oh, loose?"

The hero replies: "It would break my heart."

Then the lady continues:

"All right. Now, still supposing that we love each other, ought I to inquire of you if the man of my choice had been perfectly—well, spotless all that time? Ought I to expect that he was saving himself up for me, feeling himself engaged to me, you might say, long before he met me, and keeping perfectly true to his future fiance—ought I to expect that?"

"He flushed a little as he mumbled: "Hardly!"

"She laughed a trifle bitterly. "So we're there already!"

"Where?"

"At the double standard. What's crime for the goose is pastime for the gander."

"Well, it's better to have almost any standard than none, isn't it?"

"I wonder?"

"The single standard is better than the sixteen-to-one—silver for the men and gold for the women."

"Perhaps, but you men seem to believe in a sixteen-to-none."

Here is the "double standard" doctrine which teaches that a man is not and cannot be as pure as a woman, and it is therefore useless for him to try. The hero of this story is described as one of those big, upstanding, so-called "red-blooded" fellows, who, because of their red blood are supposed to be susceptible to passions no man can resist. Our smartest novel writers assume that every normal man has at some time before marriage had certain adventures which would not be fit to print here, but at which they like to hint. Such insinuations are an insult to the real manhood of the human race.

I have been laughed at many a time by "smart" fellows,—fellows who are often very popular and much thought of by many of both sexes, who, jokingly and unblushingly, admit that they are immoral because, they say, they are normal men, and that a fellow who lives to be my age without falling to a single temptation to be loose morally, "must have a lack of manly courage or ambition." I am told that I am one in hundreds, if I'm not a d—— liar. So it goes; from early boyhood the young men are led to believe that it is quite excusable for them to sow their wild oats, that they are not red-blooded, real men if they don't. The same idea is instilled into many young women, also, by men who wish to excuse their own erroneous conduct by accusing all men of the same misconduct.

Now, as I have said already, this statement of "Country Girl" that "all men sow their wild oats some time in life," so roused my indignation that I will not rest until I have said all I can say to prove the contrary. As for myself, I am no angel in thought or action, but I can look the girl I am going to marry in the face and tell her truthfully that I come to her as pure as I expect her to be, and know her to be, having remained true to her always, since long before I met her, just as if I were already engaged to her. Yet I am a full-blooded, strong, athletic man, healthy in body and mind, between the ages of twenty-five and thirty. I am a professional man, a graduate of your best Montreal University. During my college days I met many hundreds of young men, several dozens of whom I got to know intimately. And I could name at least a dozen, yes, twenty, whom I know to be men with a clean past as far as morals go, and I am proud to say that most of them are among the finest men physically and mentally. I could name one, indeed, who is the Canadian champion in his particular line of athletics and lives in Montreal.

Since leaving college I have met many more men and have found many to be real "true blues." Here, at our young men's country club, at a popular summer resort, are three besides myself, all sharing the same room, who, like myself, have not "sown their wild oats." And they are physically and mentally normal, in fact, above the average. And they are by no means the only ones in the club about which the same can be said, I am thankful to say.

Now why should we have a double standard of morals Why should the men insist on their right to freedom, but demand absolute uprightness from their women? The Bible teaches the same standard of morals for men as for women, and upholds many examples of upright men. There is absolutely no reason that I can think of why one rule of conduct should be followed by women and not by men, where morals are concerned. And if the women would only use their reason they would see how absurd it is to believe that they must either marry a man with a sordid past or remain single. If they would only demand the same absolute uprightness from the men they marry as the latter do from them, they could raise the moral standards of the men, and make for a better, stronger, healthier, purer, and nobler manhood. They would save themselves a tremendous amount of suffering and unhappiness and greatly influence the whole race for good.

So, women of Montreal, and all who read Margaret Currie's page, for Heaven's sake abandon that false idea that all men are immoral! Raise your ideals to a higher level, demand only a pure, upright man for a husband, and you'll find one, for I KNOW there are plenty of them, even though there are so many of the other sort.

Now, as for "Back Woodsman," I think he is a splendid type of man to see the folly of his past and to reform. And he should not let his past hinder him from asking the girl he loves to marry him. If he is honest with her and tells her about it, and she is a true, unselfish woman, and truly loves him, surely she could forgive him and forget his past. For are we not all sinners, and which of us should judge another? If we have not committed one particular sin we have many others, no doubt. But every true woman should look for a true man and not take for granted that there are none, and that therefore they may as well be content with the next best in existence. It is just as inexcusable for a man to be loose in his morals as for a woman, and she has just as much right to demand absolute purity from him as he has from her.

I hope you will not find this too long to print, as it will be a big burden "off my chest."

"A RED-BLOODED WHITE MAN, WHO BELIEVES MEN CAN AND DO REMAIN STRAIGHT."

[Ed. Note.—The letter is somewhat longer than I usually care to print, buit it is so interesting that I think all will be glad to read it.]

TOMMY.

I am asking our legal editor to advise you by mail. It was foolish of you to act as you did and I don't know if any good could be served by changing now.

ARTIFICIAL SILK.

Viola T. Hewitt

Most of the artificial silks are made from cellulose, the essential constituent of the wall membrane of plant cells. These silks resemble real silks more or less in appearance, but are very different in character. Until recently the difficulties in the way of successful manufacture of artificial silks have been very great; the stuffs made of the various forms of cellulose, as nitro-cellulose, cuprammonium, and viscose, were difficult to dye, liable to go to pieces when washed, and inflammable. Recent improvements have overcome most of these troubles. The process is in general, to force the cellulose, which has been dissolved by chemicals, through capillary tubes, that is, very fine-hair-like tubes, into another chemical, which sets or hardens it.

Artificial silks have high lustre, but are brittle and inelastic, heavier than real silk, because they do not cover well in weaving. Nevertheless, being inexpensive compared to real silks, they are coming into constantly wider use for hosiery, underwear, sweaters, and dress materials of varied weaves. They are used, as well, in combinations with wool, cotton, and real silk.

One excellent use for artificial silk is in a brocaded material for furniture or cushion coverings; it looks and wears well, and is relatively inexpensive.

The industry of artificial silk manufacture is in its early stages; it will probably have a great development in the next few years. It is rather a pity that this really new material should not have a name and place of its own, instead of seeming to be always an imitation, a more or less satisfactory substitute for real silk.

HEALTH TALKS

By JOHN B. HUBER, A.M., M.D.

CONSUMPTION IS A HOUSE DISEASE.

The Sisters of Mercy at the Hospital for Consumptives in New York City come in contact with consumptives day and night, constantly. They dwell in the same rooms with them, make their beds, keep night vigils over them, prepare their meals, handle their clothing. Yet in thirty years, as far back as the record goes—not one of these noble women has died of consumption.

In the Trudeau Sanatorium at Saranac Lake all the dust in a room occupied by consumptive patients, was gathered together, a culture made from it, and the serum injected into a guinea-pig. The creature's health remained unimpaired.

I cite these instances to prove that much of the fear of "catching consumption" among people generally is groundless, if those suffering from the affliction are cleanly. And the most important phase of this cleanliness is to hold a handkerchief before the face in coughing or sneezing, and properly to dispose of the sputum.

This advice applies to more persons than you would suppose. Cleanliness is not only a necessary habit in all human beings, but it is particularly so with regard to tuberculosis; because every fourth person between 15 and 45 suffers in a degree from tuberculosis, whether they know it or not. Tuberculosis is a house disease, contracted usually in workshops or dwellings where uncleanly tuberculous persons have dwelt.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Kidneys Affected?

I am troubled with bags under the eyes, they extend to the cheek bone; they look so unsightly. I should be pleased if you would give me a remedy for this, for it quite worries me.

Answer—You should lose no time in getting yourself examined by a competent physician. No doubt the kidneys are affected, possibly seriously. When there is puffing under the eyes either the kidneys, or the heart, or the liver are affected. Sometimes all three together, as in cases of hardening of the arteries. When there is puffiness under the eyes it is a sure sign of kidney trouble; when there is swelling in the feet the heart is first affected.

Irregular Pulse Beats.

My pulse beats somewhat irregular. When I turn in bed the beating gets very much faster. No pain in heart, can lie on either side and sleep sound. Sometimes my pulse stops one, or sometimes two beats. It is very much worse when I smoke. I stopped smoking a pipe altogether; very seldom smoke a cigar. I have a buzzing noise in the head as my pulse beats, and sometimes a pain above my eyes and head. The head noise is in time with the beating of the pulse. I can eat and sleep well, and am strong in every way otherwise.

Answer—Your irregular pulse beats are probably not a serious matter, but you have got to stop smoking lest they become so. Not only your heart but your hearing may in later life become seriously impaired. A good doctor should thoroughly examine you without loss of time.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

MISTAH MOCKER PLAYS A JOKE.

(Copyright by J. G. Lloyd.)

Mistah Mocker the Mocking-bird had been very late in coming up to the Green Meadows from way down south. The truth is he had almost decided not to come. You see, he loves the sunny southland so much, and all who live there love him so much, that if it hadn't been for Unc' Billy Possum and Ol' Mistah Buzzard he never, never would have thought of leaving even for a little while. Unc' Billy and Ol' Mistah Buzzard are particular friends of his, very particular friends, and he felt that he just had to come up for a little visit.

Now, Mistah Mocker reached the Green Meadows just after Peter Rabbit had brought little Mrs. Peter down from the Old Pasture to live with him in the dear old briar patch. He knew that little Mrs. Peter didn't know anything about him, for he never had visited the Old Pasture where she had spent her life. But he knew all the bird people who do live there, for he had met them in the sunny southland, where they spent the winter.

"I believe I'll go pay my respects to Mrs. Peter," said Mistah Mocker one day, winking at Ol' Mistah Buzzard. Ol' Mistah Buzzard chuckled and winked back.

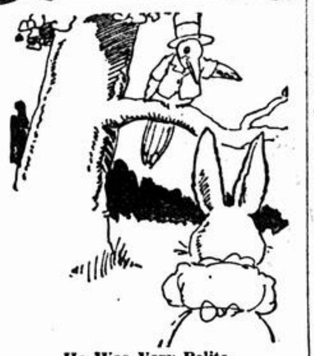
"Ah cert'nly hopes yo'all will behave yo'self right proper and not forget that yo' is a member of one of the oldest famlies in the Souf," said he.

Mistah Mocker looked quite solemn as he promised to behave himself, but there was a twinkle in his eyes as he flew toward the old briar patch. There he hid in a thick tangle of vines. Now it happened that Peter Rabbit had gone over to the sweet clover patch and little Mrs. Peter was quite alone. Somehow she got to thinking of her old home, and for the first time she began to feel just a wee, wee bit homesick. It was just then that she heard a familiar voice. Little Mrs. Peter pricked up her ears and smiled happily.

"That's the voice of Tommy Tit the Chicakdee, and it must be that his wife is with him, for I hear him calling 'Phoebe! Phoebe!' How lovely of them to come down to see me so soon!"

Just then she heard another voice, a deep, beautiful, ringing voice, a voice that she loved. It was the voice of Veery the Thrush. "Oh!" cried little Mrs. Peter, and then held her breath so as not to miss one note of the beautiful song. Hardly had the song ended when she heard the familiar voice of Warbles the Vireo. Little Mrs. Peter clapped her hands happily. "It must be a surprise party by my old friends and neighbors of the Old Pasture!" she cried. "How good of them to come way down here and how glad I shall be to see them!"

With that little Mrs. Peter hurried over to the tangle of vines from which all the voices seemed to come and eagerly peered this way and that way for a sight of her friends. But all she saw was a stranger wearing a very sober-colored suit. He was very polite and told her that he was an old friend of Peter Rabbit's.



He Was Very Polite.

"If you are a friend of Peter's then you are a friend of mine," said little Mrs. Peter very prettily. "Have you seen anybody in this tangle of vines since you arrived. I am sure some freinds of mine are here, but I haven't been able to find them."

"No," said the stranger, who was of course Mistah Mocker, the Mocking-bird, "I haven't seen any one here, and I don't think there has been any one here but myself."

"Oh, yes, indeed there has!" cried little Mrs. Peter. "I heard their voices and I couldn't possibly be mistaken in those, especially the beautiful voice of Veery the Thrush. I—I would like very much to find them."

Mistah Mocker had the grace to look ashamed of himself when he saw how disappointed little Mrs. Peter was. Very softly he began to sing the song of Veery the Thrush. Little Mrs. Peter looked up quickly. "There it is!" she cried. "There," she stopped with her mouth gaping wide open. She suddenly realized that it was Mistah Mocker who was singing.

"I—I'm very sorry," he stammered. "I did it just for a joke and not to make you feel bad. Will you forgive me?"

"Yes," replied little Mrs. Peter, "if you will come here often at shadow time and sing to me." And Mistah Mocker promised that he would.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

A NEW HORROR AT WASHINGTON.

Time was, when a senator's flow of debate
Could last but three hours or four,
For visions of food would arise and intrude
On his speech, if he talked any more.
And wearied out colleagues would smile with content
As he started to sway on his feet,
And whisper: "He's done; It is pretty near one,
And he's got to have something to eat!"

How eager to talk right along,
You always could bet that the limit was set,
For the claims of his stomach were strong.
And though there was never a shortage of breath
Or a lack in his verbal supply,
The time always came when he bowed to the claim
Of coffee and crullers and pie.

With an African waiter at hand,
To juggle the lunch for the statesman to munch,
Is an up-to-date victualing stand.
A senator signals for chow,
Is served with a flourish and bow.

No more do we say, when a Solon begins
To stir up the ambient air,
"He's soon going to feel that he's shy of a meal
So there really's no cause for despair."
He'll talk between bites, and he'll talk right along,
And we feel that there's reason to fear,
That some of those birds with unlimited words
Will talk, when they start, for a year.

THE PASSING HOUR

QUESTIONING THE CASE.

The Ambulance Surgeon — Are you married?

The Victim—No, that was an automobile that hit me.

An Irish youth was in search of a situation, so he went to the gas works. As he was proceeding down the yard he was met by the foreman.

"What do you want?" he was asked.

"Work," answered Micky.

"What can you do?" he was next demanded.

"Almost anything."

"Well," said the foreman, bent on having a joke with the youth, "you seem to be a very smart fellow, but could you wheel a barrow of smoke?"

"Yes, certainly," replied Mickey. "I could easily do that if you would fill it for me first."

The foreman was a sport and he took the youngster on for his smartness.

A SHORT STORY.

Came before Magistrate Short in Fifth Avenue Court, Brooklyn, Sam Short, tailor, 622 Third avenue, Brooklyn, charged with permitting his dog to go about unmuzzled.

"Does Sam Short wish Judge Short to fine him $2 and make Sam Short's purse short?" inquired the magistrate.

Sam Short replied shortly that he did not wish so, and that he was short already, financially speaking. His alleged unmuzzled dog was a small short dog and was not worthy long court consideration, he said, by Magistrate Short.

"Keep your short dog muzzled, Short," said the Magistrate. "Sentence is suspended. I can't say it shorter than that."—New York Evening Post.

NOT DEEP FOR DUCKS.

Coming to a river with which he was unfamiliar, a traveller asked a youngster if it was deep.

"No," replied the boy, and the rider started to cross, but soon found that he and his horse had to swim for their lives.

When he reached the other side he turned and shouted, "I thought you said it wasn't deep?"

U.S. Court Supports ex-Private Who "Beats Up" Former Army Captain

NORFOLK, Va., June 17.—Former Private Samuel Perman of Norfolk, will not have to pay damages for seeking revenge on the person of R. B. Fink, Jr., of New York, former army captain, for wrongs which Perman testified he suffered at the hands of Fink while serving under him at Camp Lee, Virginia. Fink lost yesterday his $10,000 suit for damages brought after he had been assaulted on the street by Perman, after both men had left the service.

Perman told the court Fink had given him "all the dirtiest work of the camp" while the officer "stood by and laughed," at his humiliation.

A HUSBAND TO MARCIA

By CAROLYN BEECHER

CHAPTER VI.

That was a strenuous year for John Aldrich. Marcia had made many friends, principally through the bridge clubs she attended. She usually lost about as much as she made, so keeping herself in a state of nerves, hard for mere man to understand. But these women must have found her society desirable, for they accepted all her invitations and returned her hospitality by inviting John and Marcia to affairs at their homes.

Marcia insisted upon giving a large dinner party. John, as usual, wounded her feelings, although he had no intention of doing so. In fact, he had determined that never should she cry again if he could avoid it.

"Wasn't it lovely! And wasn't my dinner nice?" she asked after the last guest had taken his departure and they stood amid the ruins of a social evening in a small apartment.

"Everything was lovely and the goose hung high every minute of the time," John Aldrich replied, looking with love-lit eyes at the picture Marcia made in her pretty dinner dress, with her flushed cheeks and the glow in her eyes. "And you made a charming hostess. The table looked splendid, and the dinner was fine. Della served very nicely. You are tired, I am afraid."

"Tired! Why, I could start in and do it right over again! What did you think of the dessert?"

"Great! I noticed they all licked their platters clean. But what was it?"

"Brandied peaches with some sort of dressing that Sherry keeps a secret."

"You mean you ordered the dessert from Sherry?"

"Yes, no one else can make it. I am so glad my party was a success." Marcia perched herself upon her husband's knee and ran her fingers through his hair. "I love to entertain. We will give a little series of dinners, say once every two or three weeks. It's a lot of fun, besides wiping out all our social debts."

"But, Marcia, dinners are an expensive way of entertaining. Dinners like the one we had to-night," John tried to be as tactful as possible. "A supper, rarebit party, things like that we might do as often as you like. But I am afraid we won't be able to afford more than one such dinner in a season. Not until your husband is more of a financial success than he now is." John finished with a little apologetic laugh which died in his throat as he saw Marcia's face.

"Aren'tyou making quite a lot of money with all that extra work you told me about?"

"Yes," John replied to her question. "I am making quite a bit extra, but we have lived right up to every cent of it. Prices I realize are high and we are living more extravagantly than when we were first married—before you made so many friends."

"So you begrudge me even my friends." Marcia rose from his lap.

"Don't be unfair, dear. We go out more, entertain more, which all means more expense. We also have to dress more because of it."

Marcia began to cry, not loudly, but with short, racking sobs in her throat. John always felt like a brute when she cried. But often now that feeling was mingled with one of resentment. He was not a selfish man, neither was he an inconsiderate husband. He hated to be staged as one.

"Please, dear—there is nothing to cry about," he said, attempting to take her hands.

"Isn't there? A lot you know about it! You have your business, your men friends. I have nothing. I could sit and twiddle my thumbs all day for all you'd care. Men are so selfish!" she wailed.

"That's a libel." John tried to take a light tone. "Selfish in what way?"

"Every way. I see almost nothing of you nowdays. You used to hurry home early and we would read or talk or take a nice long walk. Now you never get home until dinner is ready."

"But, dear, how can I do extra work and so earn more money for you to spend if I do not stay at the office? And another question, Marcia. What good would it do for me to come home early when at least three afternoons a week you are at some darned old bridge party and don't get home until the dinner is not only ready, but ready to throw away because it is cold?"

"That's right!" call me a bad housekeeper Every one else says I do wonderfully. But that is what I must expect, I suppose, from my own husband," she sobbed in a self-pitying voice.

"Oh, damn it, Marcia!" John exploded. He was not a profane man, but this determination to always put him in the wrong was almost more than he could bear.

"That's right, swear at me!" And crying wildly now Marcia sought the privacy of her own room. For the first time in their short married life John did not follow and beg her not to cry, promising that he would say no more, that she could have her way.

As a result they had their first serious quarrel.

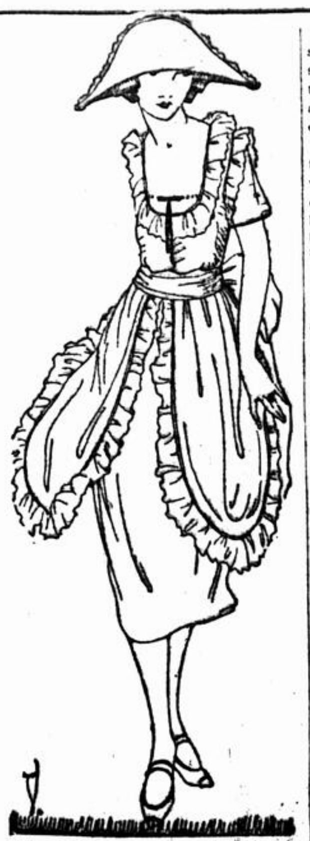
FASHIONS FOR TODAY



Skirt of Organdy a Dainty Midsummer Model.

An arrow might be drawn at one side of this sketch and pointed at the skirt, for it is the skirt part that is the especial feature, the waist and hat and shoes being merely contributed to complete the picture.

This skirt is one of the few out-of-the-ordinary models designed for warm weather wear anl made of crisp white organdy that has been brought out. There is a straight foundation skirt topped by two apron shaped panels ruffled all around, and the skirt is finished at the waist line with an organdy sash which ties in the back in a smart flaring bow.

This skirt may be worn with any sheer lingerie waist, but one of embroidered or tucked net would be extremely chic, and a waist such as the one illustrated, might join forces with the skirt, the two making a dainty garden party costume.

By far the majority of separate skirts shown are for sports or utility wear and sturdy fabrics are generally the ones sought.

One smart sports skirt seen recently was made of a heavy silk crepe in white, with inserts or panels in open work effect running the full length of the skirt, each panel about four inches wide, made of half-inch navy faille ribbon woven in lattice work pattern. A similar edging outlined the slashed set-in pockets at either side.

Scotch tweed fashions, many chic and serviceable sports skirts of the severely tailored type, and one of the newest fancies is for striping plain colored sport silks and crepes by applying braid or heavy embroidery in contrasting color. With a skirt so treated, a jacket of self-fabric sans the stitching or braiding is usually worn.

BROTHERS DROWN AT CONCEPTION

Children, with Companion, Had Been Rafting in Red River

When an improvised raft of logs on which three boys were paddling was caught in a fast current in the Red River at Conception, Que., two of them, brothers, were drowned. The third succeeded in swimming to shore. The fatality occurred near the village of Conception on Wednesday afternoon, according to news which reached this city last night. The victims were Roland Julien, 12 years of age, and Lucien Julien, 10 years of age, sons of Joseph Julien, of Conception.

Their companion at the time was Aldege Boivin also of Conception. According to the account given by Boivin he and his school mates were returning from school and near his home decided to ride some of the logs which were drifting in the Red River from lumber camps higher up the Laurentians. They jumped on two logs which they made into a raft by means of a board placed crossways. They were paddling around the river close to the shore when a swift current caught their craft. They all jumped to avoid being swept into the open stream. The water was deep but Boivin managed to struggle ashore. He ran to his home for help and returned with his mother.

The brothers were still floundering in the water when Mrs. Boivin arrived, but they sank before help could reach them. The bodies had not been recovered last night. The coroner for Labelle district will conduct the inquest.

Two years ago the Julien family was bereaved by the drowning, while bathing in the river, of the oldest child, Julien, then 10 years of age.

MACHIN MAY BE CANDIDATE.

LONDON, June 17.—Stanley Machin of the London Chamber of Commerce probably will be the Unionist candidate for the Chertsey seat, vacant, through the resignation of Sir Donald MacMaster.

Arbitration Board Chairman Doubts Value of Evidence

Statistical problems from J. P. Newell, consulting engineer, continued to absorb the attention of the Grand Trunk Board of Arbitration at yesterday's afternoon session, F. H. Phippen, K.C., for the G.T.R., cross-examining witness. Sir Walter Cassels, chairman of the board towards the end of it crystallized the general feeling by remarking it was very easily understood, and very interesting, but what was it all about? Sir Thomas White and W. H. Taft, the other arbitrators, also expressed doubt of its value, and Mr. Taft thought it might be relevant. Sir Thomas White did not think they would be farther ahead if they kept at it a week, and the evidence then concluded, all hands as much in the dark as when it commenced.

Pierce Butler then filed a letter which gave evidence of being also a complex subject, which caused Sir Walter Cassels, the hour then being advanced, to adjourn the session.

WATERMAN'S Ideal Fountain Pen is the product of an organization that for the past thirty-six years has been making fountain pens exclusively. Today the line of Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pens covers every proven advance in fountain pen construction.

It includes the regular and safety types of dropper filled and pump and lever filling devices of the self-filling types.

Being pioneers and recognized leaders in the industry, we are the natural market for inventors with ideas that in their judgment would improve our product.

No one is or has been keener to investigate these claims than we are, because it has been our intention from the first that if ever a better fountain pen than Waterman's Ideal was made we would make it.

It has happened and will happen again that fountain pens appear on the market with "talking point" devices that during our far greater experience we have already experimented with and found either impractical or inferior to devices of our own intended for the same purpose.

A. Iridium, the hardest metal known, fused to the gold pen for the purpose of securing a smooth, long-wearing point.
B. Gold Pen. Made of fine gold to avoid corrosion, and alloyed to secure the temper that retains its action permanently.
C. These are safety pockets, to prevent over-flow. They act as governors, compensating for expansion, thus permitting the last drop of ink in the barrel to be used.
D. Feed. This is the famous, original, exclusive Waterman Spoon Feed—the most scientifically constructed feed ever put in a fountain pen. It is the secret of the unapproached reputation of Waterman's Ideal for absolute reliability.
E. Air Duct. To permit the automatic circulation of air as the ink is used.
F. To maintain capillary attraction.
G. Ink Reservoir.
H. Barrel. Made of the finest grade of rubber vulcanized in a special way to insure strength, resiliency and durability.
I. This ball permits the clip to slide easily over the top of the pocket.
J. An exclusive Waterman feature. Notice that the clip is riveted to the cap, thus combining the resiliency of the rubber with the spring of the metal. Therefore, it never loses its grip.
K. Cap. This is designed as a protection to the point when the pen is not in use.
L. A scientific vent to equalize the pressure of air in the holder with the pressure of the atmosphere.

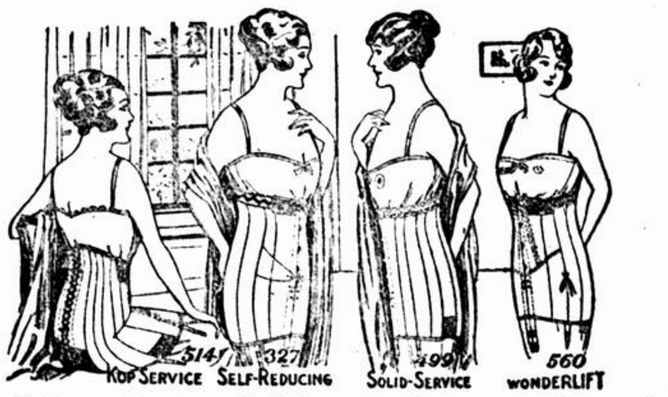
TRIPLE-SERVICE
(ECONOMIC-HYGIENIC-STYLE)
Makes Nemo Corsets Indispensable



The Meaning of Nemo Corset Service
MILLIONS OF WOMEN DEPEND ON IT

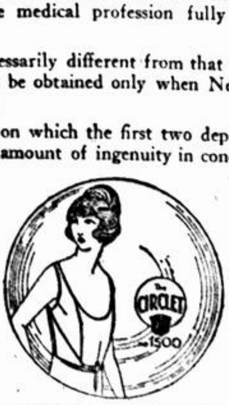
Nemo Corsets comprise many hygienic features of great scientific value and are divided into three distinct services:

Hygienic Service---Style Service---Economic Service

Their Hygienic Service has become invaluable and indispensable from a humanitarian and health point of view. The medical profession fully recognizes its preventive and curative qualities.

Their Style Service is necessarily different from that furnished by other corsets. The scientific and hygienic results can be obtained only when Nemo Corsets fit the figure accurately, comfortably and properly.

Their Economic Service, on which the first two depend represents the long-wearing qualities of Nemo Corsets. No amount of ingenuity in conceiving these valuable inventions would avail if the corsets themselves were not extremely durable. Their intrinsic value is based exclusively on the production cost of the corsets themselves. Their Hygienic Features, although worth much more than the corsets are given entirely free.



The Circlet
The Circlet

MEIGHEN FAVORS DELAY OF POLICY ON NAVAL DEFENCE

Believed Will Have Support of Lloyd George—Await Constitutional Conference

STRONG OPPOSITION

Australian Premier Against Postponement—Conference Suggested

LONDON, June 17.—(By Grattan O'Leary, Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press Limited)—Despite the fact that Premier Hughes of Australia and Premier Massey, of New Zealand, will endeavor to have the Conference of Prime Ministers discuss, and, if possible, decide upon an Imperial policy in the matter of naval defence, it seems practically certain that Premier Meighen will have the support of the British Prime Minister in his demand that the question be postponed and that no steps be taken until after the constitutional conference has been held.

To understand Canada's position on this question, it is necessary to go back to the Imperial Conference of 1917. At that conference the Dominion Premiers asked the Admiralty for an expression of opinion as to the best naval policies for the Dominion to pursue. The Admiralty promptly replied with a memorandum urging a single navy for the whole Empire under centralized control. The Dominions were to be given representation on the Board of Admiralty, but the parliaments of the Dominions were to have no voice in the disposition of their fleets in either peace or war, the control being vested exclusively in Britain.

TOOK STRONG EXCEPTION.

To such a remarkable proposal the Dominion Premiers undertook strong and prompt exception. They replied with a memorandum drafted by Sir Robert Borden repudiating the principle of centralization and laying down as an essential basis of any scheme to be adopted, complete control of local fleets by local parliaments. It was admitted that centralized direction was necessary during the war, but emphasis was laid on the fact that the question of actual participation, as well as the control and supervision of the fleets during peace must rest with the Dominions.

To this the Admiralty made no reply, but upon the suggestion of the Dominion Premiers, Lord Jellicoe was commissioned to visit the Dominions and report upon the character of the navies best suited to their needs.

This report, it will be remembered, was tabled in the Canadian House of Commons two sessions ago when the Government and Parliament took the ground that no action should be taken with respect to it until the constitutional conference determined the precise mechanism under which the Dominions are to express their voice in the foreign affairs of the Empire. There the question stands today and Premier Meighen holds that as the present conference is not a constitutional conference, and therefore cannot deal with or settle the question of constitutional relations, it has no right to deal with the naval question at all. He will, of course, urge the postponement of the matter on other grounds, including that of the general desire for disarmament and the wisdom of awaiting international developments, but it is mainly on the ground of standing by the decision of the Canadian Government and Parliament regarding the Jellicoe report that he will rest his case.

STRONG OPPOSITION.

The question is more or less bound up with that of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, and Premier Hughes, backed by certain influences here, will put up strong opposition against having the treaty denounced and the naval question postponed. It is not improbable that this difficulty may be met by a proposal for a conference of all parties interested in the Pacific, which would include the Governments of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Such a conference, it is felt, might do more to settle whatever difficulties and problems exist in regard to the Pacific than any policy or alliances or navies, and it is believed that if Canada took the lead in the matter the object could be achieved. Australia might offer opposition, but Lloyd George, who it is thought, is luke warm toward renewing the Japanese alliance and anxious to cut expenditure to the lowest possible minimum, would probably support the scheme.

His Government is at present encountering difficulty on the question of expenditure, the press of all shades of politics crying out against commitments of all kinds, and any proposal which promises to reduce naval outlay is not unlikely to receive his hearty welcome.

Meanwhile Premier Meighen, who is preparing his position on the various questions to come before the conference with great care is having the utmost difficulty in avoiding engagements of all kinds. Representing as he does the senior Dominion at the conference, he is naturally the centre of considerable attention. This being increased by a suspicion already being voiced in the press that his attitude in the conference is likely to run counter to that of some of the other Dominions.

STRIKING DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

LONDON, June 17.—(By Canadian Press.)—Although the Imperial Conference does not meet until Monday next, a striking divergence of opinion has already developed as between Canada, represented by Premier Meighen, and Australia, represented by Premier Hughes.

The "down-unders" are all for a renewal of the Japanese alliance and a strong British navy in the Pacific. Australia, vulnerable in its trade and its long seaboard, must have these guarantees, says Premier Hughes.

Premier Meighen has an entirely different orientation, that of the North American continent, and on behalf of Canada places first a friendly understanding with the United States. He meets Premier Hughes' plea for either a Japanese treaty or a naval guarantee in the Pacific by suggesting that a conference be held of all powers interested in the Pacific, namely the Governments of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, which could do more to settle whatever difficulties and problems exist in regard to the Pacific than any policy of alliance or big navies.

It is believed if Canada took the lead this object might be achieved. Australia might offer opposition, but the British Prime Minister, Lloyd George, who is said to be lukewarm toward renewing the Japanese alliance and anxious to cut naval expenditure to the lowest possible minimum, would very probably lend his powerful support to this scheme should it be advanced at the proper time by Premier Meighen.

SLAYS AGED WIDOW; JEALOUSY THE MOTIVE

CHICAGO, June 17.—Mrs. Margaret Ennis, 72 years old, a wealthy widow, was shot and killed in her apartment yesterday by Sergeant Thomas Smyth, 50 years old, of the British Army, and former middleweight pugilistic champion of Ireland.

After slaying Mrs. Ennis, Smyth committed suicide. The slaying was the result, according to the police, of Smyth's jealousy.

Mrs. Ennis met Smyth, it was said, after the war. He became her suitor, but later, the police say, was displaced by another man.

Fearing Smyth's threats, Mrs. Ennis recently sold the apartment in which she lived for one hundred thousand dollars, and was preparing to leave Chicago.

POSTPONE DISCUSSION FORMER KAISER'S TRIAL

Senator Duplantier Renews Demand Before French Chamber

PARIS, June 17. — (Associated Press.)—Senator Duplantier in the Senate yesterday afternoon with Premier Briand attending the session, renewed his demand of Tuesday to know "what measures the French Government intends to take concerning the execution of the treaty of Versailles relative to bringing William Hohenzollern, ex-Kaiser of Germany, to trial for his crimes against humanity."

The Senator asked for immediate discussion of his interpellation.

Premier Briand argued that it might be advisable to await to see what action the Leipzig court which is trying war criminals, takes and what verdicts it reaches in cases submitted to it for trial by France. Up to the present, the Premier added, the cases decided by the courts have been exclusively on British and Belgian demands.

Later the Senate voted to postpone discussion of M. Duplantier's interpellation and ordered that it be entered in its regular turn on the order of the day. This is equivalent to an indefinite postponement of debate on the interpellation.

SIR AUCKLAND GEDDES HONORED AT CLEVELAND

Makes Plea for Better Relations at Western Reserve University

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 17.—Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States, received the honorary degree of LL.D. from Western Reserve University yesterday and delivered an address at the commencement exercises.

A total of 360 degrees were conferred upon graduates.

President Charles F. Thwing presided at the commencement. He resigned this week after thirty-one years as president.

"There is no sane man either in Great Britain or the United States who desires any but the best relations between the two countries," the Ambassador told the graduates in his address.

"There are only two alternatives before the world," he said. "One is a feverish competition for markets ending in the bloody destruction of civilization.

"The other is the evolution of machinery which will keep the peace of the world for all time."

AMERICAN LABOR BODY REPUDIATES "ONE BIG UNION"

Convention Sustains Committee in Non-Concurrence of Resolution

NEGRO DELEGATION

Unable to Introduce Proposal Condemning the Klu Klux Klan

DENVER, June 17. — (Associated Press.)—The American Federation of Labor yesterday unanimously repudiated the "One Big Union" idea.

Without discussion the forty-first annual convention of the federation sustained the action of its committee on organization in non-concurring on a resolution calling for "one body of workers through Amalgamations, federations and protective agreements."

The declaration presented by J. L. Pauley, of the West Virginia State Federation of Labor also urged all national and international unions to insert clauses in their working agreements whereby they can "render such assistance as is needed by any and all crafts, when called upon to do so." It asked that all unions arrange the dates of their contracts so that they would expire at the same time.

The convention was thrown into confusion when several delegates by objections denied the negro delegation permission to introduce a resolution condemning the "mob violence" of the "Klu Klux Klan or White Caps" of the South.

President Samuel Gompers had great difficulty in restoring order, as nearly a score of delegates jumped from their seats and demanded the names of the delegates who had objected.

He declined to give the names. As the confusion increased President William Hutcheson, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners arose and said:

"If you want to know who the objector is—it is I."

WOULD ABOLISH KLU KLUX KLAN.

The resolution also urged that steps be taken to have the government "abolish this unlawful organization known as the Klu Klux Klan or White Caps," and that the federation use its "best endeavors to protect organized labor as represented by the colored workers."

A great ovation was given the Rev. G. S. Lackland, of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, of Denver, who discussed "the duty of the Church to labor." He was cheered repeatedly as he condemned the enemies of organized labor.

"The dense ignorance of the other side will win the fight for labor," he declared outlining alleged attempts by business men and others to suppress the church investigation of the tramway strike in Denver last summer.

He declared the American Legion should "get together in the fight for the masses," adding "I believe they will."

Colonel Olney M. Ousley, director of the American Legion, brought a fraternal message from that organization to the labor men:

"The harmony of this nation and its honor can only be preserved by upholding the constitution of the United States," he said, closing with an appeal for justice to "each and every man."

During the afternoon session, Mrs. Lucy Robbins, of New York, secretary of the Central Labor bodies conference, which has been making efforts to get amnesty for prisoners held under war-time laws, described conferences between labor leaders and Government officials.

She said refusal of president Wilson to pardon Eugene V. Debs was due to the fact that the committee was unable to get a personal interview with the President.

"A remnant of political prisoners remains," Mrs. Robbins said, declaring that credit for the release of those already free was largely due to the efforts of the American Federation of Labor.

A letter was read from Debs, thanking President Gompers and his associates for their efforts to obtain his release and the release of other "Political prisoners."

Debs declared that they had done everything possible, adding, "the longer the struggle the greater the triumph."

Reports that President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers would announce his candidacy for the presidency of the federation in opposition to Mr. Gompers within the next few days could not be confirmed last night.

The miners' leader declined to make any statment. Representatives of several unions supporting Lewis, claim that a canvass of delegates show that Lewis is assured of from 14,000 to 22,000 votes of the more than 35,000 votes in the convention.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has finally and completely repudiated the International Federation of Trade Unions as it is now conducted.

This announcement was made last night at the convention headquarters of President Samuel Gompers who made public a copy of a letter sent to the secretariat of the European trade union movement at Amsterdam.

After denouncing as "offensive and insulting" a recent communication from the International Federation asking the council to re-consider its action in withdrawing its affiliation, Mr. Gompers, on behalf of the council, in the letter said:

"Insofar as our affiliation with the International Federation of Trade Unions at the present time is concerned we must repeat the former declarations made in our communications to you, emphasize them, if possible, and await the hour at which it may be possible to fulfil our hopes of a united movement on a basis that accords with the philosophy of democracy, with autonomy for all, freedom for all and a common goal of a better time for all the toilers and all the peoples."

Reviewing the alleged revolutionary activities and war manifestos of the International which caused the council to sever connections with the European movement several months ago, Mr. Gompers further stated that American labor must "decline to accept your declarations and proclamations as truly expressive of the sentiments of the whole trade union movement of Europe."

"We have faith," said President Gompers', letter "in the good sense and understanding of the labor movement with whom we proudly stood side by side in the great war for democracy and human freedom, and we are hopeful that the time is not far distant when the trade union movements of all the nations of the world may co-operate on a basis of common good will, understanding and constructive effort."

HONOR ADMIRAL ON RETIREMENT

OTTAWA, June 17. — (By Canadian Press.) — On his retirement from the directorship of the Canadian Naval Service, Admiral Sir Charles E. Kingsmill was yesterday presented with a handsome silver flagon and tray, suitably engraved, by the officers of His Majesty's Canadian Navy serving in Canadian and Imperial ships, and by senior civil officers of the department, at headquarters, the Royal Naval College, and the dockyards. The flagon is a replica of one taken from one of the captured ships of the Spanish Armada.

FOUND B.C. SALMON MOST SATISFACTORY

LONDON, June 17. — Rt. Hon. Sir Alfred Mond, Minister of Health, referring in the House of Commons yesterday to the gift of canned salmon from the British Columbian Government during the war, concerning which criticisms have recently been published, declared that it was inspected by officials of the Ministry, who also undertook its distribution and found it entirely satisfactory. No complaints were ever received, he said, from participants in the gift.

ANTI-BOLSHEVIKI HAVE TAKEN OMSK

Late in May Fortress Was Captured—Many Upheavals Occur

TOKIO, June 17.—Semi-official advices from Siberia claim confirmation has been obtained of the capture of Omsk by anti-Bolshevik forces the latter part of May. Later they advanced in the direction of Yekaterinburg, the advices state.

Anti-Bolshevik upheavals, according to these advices, are occurring in Novo Nikolaevsk, to the east of Omsk, and in Chelabinsk, south of Yekaterinberg.

Growing discontent and a scarcity of provisions in Chita, capital of the Far Eastern republic, is said to be causing rioting and rifle firing nightly.

General Semenoff, the former anti-Bolshevik leader, is variously reported to be in the Amur region, in Grodekova, which is in the coast province of Siberia, and back on the steamer Kyodo Maru on which he went to Vladivostock, where he was refused permission to land.

FIND SERUM TO FREE CATTLE FROM DISEASE

PARIS, June 17. — (Associated Press.) — The discovery of a serum rendering cattle immune to foot and mouth disease has been made by Professors Vallee and Carre, of the Alfortville Agricultural Research Laboratory. This announcement was made yesterday to the agricultural commission of the Senate by Senator Beaumont.

The discovery is the result of years of experimenting with blood elements and microbes in order to make possible the fixation of the bacillus of foot and mouth disease, which is so infinitesimal that it could not be retained in the most minute filters. Once this was accomplished it would be possible to cultivate the germ. Fixation now has been accomplished, and the serum has been made in small quantities through a phagocytic process.

BROCKVILLE ROTARY CLUB GETS CHARTER

BROCKVILLE, Ont., June 17.—With 150 visiting Rotarians, including representatives from Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Kingston, Niagara Falls, Ont., Watertown, N.Y., and Ogdensburg, N.Y., the Brockville Rotary Club was presented with its charter at a banquet here last night by W. J. Cairns, of Ottawa. Among the speakers were Mayor Dobbie, Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Lieut.-Col. M. W. Macdowell, Brockville, F. D. Burpee, Ottawa, and Karl George, Watertown, N.Y.

IMPENDING CABINET CRISIS IN HOLLAND

Result of Rejection of Clause in New Army Bill

THE HAGUE, June 17.—(Associated Press.)—A cabinet crisis is impending through the rejection Wednesday by the Second Chamber of what was deemed an essential clause in the new Army bill proposing a reduction in the army.

The cabinet met yesterday morning and decided to suspend all parliamentary discussion of government business. It is probable the actual resignation of the cabinet will be postponed until after the departure of Crown Prince Hirohito of Japan, who is to remain in Holland several days longer.

When the resignation is presented Queen Wilhelmina is expected to request Jonkheer C. J. M. Ruys de Beerenbrouck, the Premier, to reconstruct the ministry as owing to the fact that the cabinet's regular term expires in 1922 it would be difficult to form a new ministry for such a short period.

REFUSES DAIRY COUNCIL APPLICATION.

OTTAWA, June 17.—Chief Commissioner F. B. Carvell of the Board of Railway Commissioners, yesterday refused the application of the National Dairy Council of Canada for a re-hearing of the application to have ice cream graded as second class express matter. In a judgment issued recently the Board refused to change the express status of ice cream on the ground that while it was a food it was essentially a luxury.

RATIFY AGREEMENT WITH SALARY CUT

U.S. Shipping Board and Marine Engineers Agree on Pact

WASHINGTON, June 17.—A new working agreement embodying a 15 per cent reduction in wages was ratified by the United States Shipping Board and representatives of the Marine Engineers yesterday and deposited with the Secretary of Labor.

The new wage scale became effective June 14, it was announced, and will continue in effect until December 31 next. A similar agreement was reached with radio operators, it was added, and others will be negotiated with representatives of the seamen, firemen and cooks.

NEW YORK, June 17. — American Steamship Owners' Association, representing a large percentage of privately owned United States flag tonnage yesterday declined to join with the U. S. Shipping Board in ratifying a new working agreement embodying a 15 per cent wage reduction, with striking marine unions.

A telegram, signed by President H. H. Raymond, and addressed to Chairman Lasker of the Board, stated the owners were unable to alter their previously announced position—that of declining to enter into signed contracts with any sea-going union.

In this action, Mr. Raymond said, they are joined by the Pacific American Steamship Association and the Shipowners Association of the Pacific coast.

SALARIES REDUCED

School Teachers Agree to Ten Per Cent Cut

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., June 17.—Public school principals and women assistant teachers have agreed to revision of salary schedule as called for by the Board of Education, making effective a reduction of ten per cent in salaries above the minimum for the period from January to August next year. The collegiate teachers have not yet defined their attitude toward the board's resolution, which embraces all employes.

MUCH CRITICISM AT LABOR COUNCIL

A. Mathieu Blames Manufacturers for Present Unemployment

The City Council, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the members of the labor unions in general and the press were criticized at the meeting of the Montreal Trades and Labor Council last evening. The criticisms were evoked when the consideration of a proposal from the Toronto council that the Labor body should organize for a Dominion convention of the Trades and Labor Council came before the meeting. The communication asked the advisability of calling such a convention to deal with the present unemployment condition, but after debate, the amendment to the motion in support of the suggestion, allowing the request to lie on the table was passed.

In discouraging the proposal on the grounds that this emergency convention would take too long to prepare for and that it would occur just a month before the September convention, Alph. Mathieu laid the blame for the lack of unemployment upon the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which, he said, had organized a campaign of unemployment, along with other corporations and financial bodies in order to bring down wages and lengthen hours of work. Thus, the speaker said, the advantage gained by labor in the last few years would be lost.

The city council and the delegates themselves were criticized by J. T. Foster, who said that the unemployed had defeated their own interests in voting down proposals that would have helped them and supporting measures that were not in the interest of labor and employment. The press, he said, in some instances, had sought to minimize the acuteness of the situation. Joe Lynch and Alfred Mathieu also expressed themselves on the motion, and the amendment was finally carried.

That the Administrative Commission be asked to set a minimum age for drivers of wagons was recommended by the meeting. The employment of union labor in the construction of the new City Hall in Quebec will be asked of the Provincial Government, it was also decided.

The Comfort Costs You Nothing

Usually you pay for comfort and style,

But not in Goodyear Cord Tires.

The comfort from resiliency of these fine tires is a bonus. On the basis of mileage alone they cost less to use. The saving in car-depreciation, the saving in gasoline, the easier riding, are all clear profit to you.

Ask any motorist who uses Goodyear Cords if you want to know what real comfort is. Look over the cars which have been run thousands of miles on Goodyear Cords and note their good mechanical condition.

Inquire regarding Goodyear Cord Tire mileage for economy's sake. Note the tremendous increase in sales of these tires—because they cost less to use.

Certainly truck-owners are not much influenced by comfort or looks in buying tires. But Goodyear Cords dominate the pneumatic truck tire field. That's because both truck and tires cost less in the end.

SYMPATHY NEEDED TO TRAIN BLIND

P. E. Layton States Sightless Happier When Working

SCHOOL CLOSING

Two Pupils Will Try McGill Matriculation Examinations

In a short speech containing an eloquent appeal for help and support for the work he has at heart, P. E. Layton, president of the Montreal Association for the Blind, opening the summer concert and closing exercises of the school of the institution said: "The work for the blind is two-fold. First, in addition to receiving the ordinary education pupils have to be trained in some occupation that will enable them to become self-supporting. It is not an easy task to train the blind, much sympathy and interest are necessary for the work, but we are glad that we have always had with us teachers possessing these qualifications, and on behalf of the board of management I want to thank all these teachers for the good work they have done this year in helping the blind to help themselves.

"The dominant thought in a school for the blind should be how to train the blind so that when they leave the institution they will be able to earn their own living. Parents and guardians send their children to the school for this purpose and any institution that does not follow this principle is not fulfilling the objects for which it was founded. Blind people are happier when they are working, they do not ask for charity, but they do desire to be put in a position whereby they can become independent. This school has only been in existence nine years, but I have reasons to know that a far larger per cent. of our graduates are self-supporting than is the case with similar institutions on the continent."

Visitors were conducted through the different departments of the building by Mrs. R. E. Layton who took great pride in the display of work put on exhibition by the pupils of the school. Demonstrations were given of chair-canining, shorthand and typewriting, machine stocking knitting, Braille reading and writing and dictaphone.

BRILLIANT CAREER.

In reply to the president's invitation, Rev. Malcolm Campbell, who occupied the chair, stated how pleased he was to be able to do something to help the blind, and, by relating the career of Charles McInnes, a blind Canadian of Calgary, who five years ago took his B.A. at Dalhousie College and from there went to Oxford University and is now a Professor of History at Bristol University, gave a striking example of what an ambitious blind person can accomplish.

Henry Birks, one of the very first subscribers to this institution, was asked to distribute the prizes. The two matriculating pupils are Lillian Hungerford and Edward Kennedy, who received prizes for English and Latin respectively.

These two scholars are sitting for McGill University matriculation, and C. N. Crutchfield, B.A., superintendent, said he was confident they would succeed in their effort.

P. S. Layton particularly impressed the audience with the fact that blind people are not unhappy. It hurt him very much, he said, to hear people say that they would feel blue if they were to visit a blind institution. He wanted people to visit the school it would help all round if they would.

The pupils, assisted by the school jazz band, rendered a very entertaining concert. Mostly all musical numbers with two or three reading selections by the blind pupils. Miss Dorothy Hill, a graduate of the Royal Normal College of London, England, who is totally blind, received great appreciation from the audience at the close of the program.

GIFT CANCELLED.

In the Superior Court yesterday afternoon, Mr. Justice Duclos maintained an action taken by Mathilda Liard, widow, and quashed a deed of gift under which she transferred her household effects, at 172 Champ de Mars street to Dame Maria Saint-Louis and her husband on condition that they would take care of her as a mother. Mr. Justice Duclos found that defendants had been ungrateful towards plaintiff and ordered them to restore whatever they had which had been given them by Dame Liard, or, in defaut, pay her the sum of $750. In any event defendants are taxed with the costs of the action.

EXPERTS ATTENDED BEAUHARNOIS SHOW

American Exhibit of Shorthorns Wins Approval

ORMSTOWN, Chateaguay County, June 17.—(Star Special).— The interest taken by the people of the province in the development of high-grade stock cattle was very evident at the Beauharnois Live Stock Spring Show which opened on the 14th, and lasts until the 17th. That the movement is growing seems clear from the very large attendance and the presence of such distinguished guests as Hon. Walter Mitchell, Hon. Honore Mercier, Mr. Justice Robidoux, James Robb, M.P. for Chateauguay-Huntingdon, Andrew Philps, M.L.A. for Huntingdon, and experts from Macdonald College and various parts of Ontario, as well as from the United States.

Ontario farmers were among the exhibitors, and Willard S. Martin of Plainfields Farms, Vermont, the first American, to show at the fair, was widely commended on his exhibit. No distractions had been provided from the straight interests of farming, which won approval from Mr. Grenier, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, representing Hon. J. E. Caron the Minister.

The judges were: Robert Graham, of Toronto, on heavy horses; Dr. Sinclair, of Cannington, Ont., on light horses; Alex. Humes, Campbellford, on Ayrshires; R. W. Holtby, of Port Perry, Ont., on Holsteins and beef breeds; J. W. Clarke, on poultry; A. E. Whitlaw, of Guelph, Ont., on sheep; J. E. Brether, of Burford, Ont., on swine, and Alex. Ness, of Macdonald College, on Jersey and Canadian cattle.

Others present among the experts were Professor Arkell, live stock commissioner of the federal Government; Dr. Harrison, dean of the agricultural department of Macdonald College; Sydney E. Francis, of the Sherbrooke Exhibition; and Dr. Mignault, president of the Three Rivers' Fair.

Hon. Walter Mitchell, Provincial Treasurer, made an interesting speech at the dinner given by the association, Neil Sangster, the president being in the chair. Referring to the visitors from Ontario, he urged them to preach the gospel of goodwill between the provinces on their return. He emphasized the necessity of co-operation between capital, labor and the farmer. Professor Arkell, prophesied the return of the horse, and bade farmers not to be discouraged by the present decline in prices of farm products.

RESULTS OF JUDGING.

Ayrshires, aged cows in milk: 1, Tenace Bank Fanny, C. F. Hyde; 2, Flossie Vernon, J. W. Logan; 3, Burnside Pearline, R. R. Ness; 4, Knochinlan Fanny, R. R. Ness; 5, Garclough Annie, D. T. Ness.

RETAIN MEN OF 65

Government Employes' Age Doesn't Matter

KINGSTON, June 17 — A special despatch from Ottawa yesterday to the Standard states that there has been a misunderstanding in the matter of the Government's decision to retire all men of 65 years or over in the customs and inland revenue department, which reported decision was deprecated in an editorial in the Standard a day or two ago. The despatch says there is no intention on the part of the Government to retire anyone, even if over 65 years of age, who is able to do his work.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL HAS BEEN SUCCESS

Record Attendance Reported at Annual Graduation Exercises

The Montreal Technical School held its annual graduation exercises in the assembly hall of the institution, 70 Sherbrooke street west, last night. The hall was filled with the parents and friends of the pupils who were reaping the reward of their labors of the last year.

Alphonse Belanger, principal of the school, opened the ceremony with the presentation of his annual report. He drew the attention of the audience to the fact that the occasion was the passing of the first decade in the history of the school. Founded in September, 1911, with a total of 101 pupils attending day courses and 250 following night classes, the institution had expanded from year to year so that at the present time he read 333 pupils attending day classes, 774 following night courses and 141 taking up special courses. Bringing the grand total for 1921 to 1,248 pupils.

During the past ten years 7,931 pupils had passed through the school, of this number 2,007 had taken the day courses and 5,924 the night classes. Professional certificates had been awarded to 783 students, and 189 had received diplomas on the completion of the three year course.

THEORETICAL KNOWLEDGE.

The absolute need for a theoretical knowledge of the manual labor one had in hand was emphasized by Mrs. Belanger, who said it was for this reason it had been deemed advisable to raise the standard needed for the entrance examination. Concluding, the principal asked the students to persevere in their studies and congratulated them on their successes to date.

Day Baldwin, M. A., professor of machine drawing and mathematics, translated Mrs. Belanger's speech into English and as an example of perseverance repeated the story of "Robert Bruce and the Spider."

ANXIOUS MOMENTS.

A. L. Caron, president of the Montreal Technical School, laid great stress on the many anxious moments the founders of the school had in the days when the present grand building was nothing more than heaps of brick and mortar. Would results prove the Provincial Government wise in undertaking to construct the school? Ten years had passed and the hopes of all concerned in the foundation had been more than realized. "To Sir Lomer Gouin is due our thanks for having shown such foresight and, while still Prime Minister, to have endowed our Province with Technical Schools such as ours."

Hon. Walter Mitchell was called upon for a speech, said how proud he was of the work carried on by the school. He gave some very interesting facts of figures concerning the Province of Quebec and thoroughly agreeing with Mr. Caron's tactfully arranged appeal for support, said that the Government should dig deeper and deeper into its pockets for help for the advancement of technical education.

Senator Lorne C. Webster, on behalf of the Board of Trade congratulated the pupils on their success and said how pleased he was at the cooperation of the Provincial Government in supporting technical education.

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED.

Among those on the platform were: E. McG. Quirk, vice-president of the corporation of the school; Theo H. Wardleworth, member of the corporation; J. P. L. Berube, secretary of the Council of Arts and Manufactures; Henri Laureys, pricipal e'Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales; Paul Seurot, vice-president Chambre de Commerce Francaise; Ludger Gravel of the corporation of the school.

The exhibition of work and models—open to the public, bears ample testimony to the diligence and teachings of all concerned in the welfare of the students.

YOUNG WOMEN ENTER POLITICAL FIELD

At a meeting of the newly inaugurated Junior Branch of the Women's National Liberal and Conservative Organization held yesterday afternoon at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, the nominating committee presented its report and the following officers were elected:—

President, Miss Mona Prentice; first vice-president, Miss Martha Allan; second vice-president; Miss Elizabeth Cains; third vice-president, Miss Gertrude Macaulay; fourth vice-president, Miss Phoebe Campbell; convener of program committee, Mrs. Basil Nares.

Mrs. Henry Joseph presided and spoke of the new responsibility which had come to women with the conferring of the federal vote and the onus upon them to study the questions of the day. This was the first junior branch to be formed in Canada and it had a real part to play in building up a strong body of intelligent thought in political affairs among the younger generation. She congratulated the nominating committee on the excellent list of officers chosen and urged the members to use their best endeavors to get new recruits this season.

Mrs. I. C. Sharp also spoke, pointing out that members of the junior branch could be daughters to their country just as they were daughters in their homes and could be just as helpful in the larger sphere of the world as they were in their homes.

A. I. Morison, party organizer, was also present.

FIRE IN HAVRE.

HAVRE, France, June 17—Considerable damage was caused by fire which broke out early today in the workshop of the French Line on the wharves used for steamers in the service between this port and London and New York.

ASKS REVISION

Paper Company's Inability to Build Mill

TORONTO, June 17 — The Spruce Falls Pulp and Paper Company is asking for a revision of their agreement with the Ontario Government which calls for the construction of a pulp and paper mill on the Kapuskasing townsite before January 1. Representatives of the company saw Premier Drury yesterday and asked for an extension of time. Building costs, they said, were now four times greater than the company had planned to expend. The Premier promised consideration.

PARIS, June 17 — Announcement was made today that the Government had authorized the city of Verdun to issue bonds to the extent of 60,000,000 francs, the proceeds to be devoted to reconstruction.

Mob Fury and Race Hatred As a National Danger

"There is one problem in American life for which I foresee no solution. It is the race problem, the negro question." These words of Grover Cleveland are recalled by the Louisville Courier-Journal in its editorial discussion of the sudden and appalling flare-up of mob fury and race hatred in Tulsa. In this Oklahoma city, which according to one of its journals "has the highest per-capita wealth of any city in the world," the rumor that a colored boy was to be lynched brought a crowd of armed negroes to the jail to prevent it. With the white mob and the black confronting one another, somebody fired a shot, and the result was a pitched battle with scores of casualties, the burning of the city's negro section, and the addition, as the New York Evening Post remarks of "a ghastly chapter to the record of national disgrace."

THE LITERARY DIGEST, in this week's issue dated June 18th, presents the editorial opinions of newspapers, including the negro press, published in all sections of the country upon the Oklahoma riot. It shows the causes that animate such outbreaks, the remedies suggested to prevent them, and the effect that the reports of them have in the eyes of foreign nations.

MORE SOCCER PLOTS---CARPENTIER WRITES FOR THE STAR

GOLFERS TUNING UP OVER WEEK-END AT LOCAL CLUBS

Tomorrow and the next day will be "tuning-up time" at the different golf links in the province.

There are many matches scheduled for Saturday, so that only some of the local clubs will be devoting the play to trials for the coming championships, but the day after will be a general one for judging-form. It looks like a week-end of hard work for players of the Royal and Ancient, and golfers work at play perhaps more than any other sportsmen.

ROUNDING INTO FORM AT DIXIE.

Medal play competition, gross scores for eighteen and thirty-six holes, are carded for the features of the play at the Royal Montreal Golf Club's Dixie links for Saturday. This week-end is a fairly quiet one at the course, but it will give a chance for a greater number of members to compete for honors.

Golfers at Dixie will be getting into their best form for the provincial golf championships, which take place next week. All their time will be devoted to rounding into shape, as the prospects are very bright for members of this club in the coming title play. There are some of the strongest players in the Dominion in this club's line-up.

ST. LAMBERT'S 2-BALL FOURSOME.

A two-ball foursome for the two shields presented by A. E. Eaves will occupy the honor position in the place at the Country Club of Montreal, at the St. Lambert course tomorrow afternoon. In this play there is no draw for partners made, but each pair are permitted to hook up as they wish.

At this club also the chief thing in the play, as well as the chief topic of conversation around the club house, is "getting ready to uphold the club's honor in the title events so near at hand."

The recent rain has left the course at St. Lambert in a better condition than it has been for some time, and in fact most of the local links are the same way.

TRIALS AT LAVAL LINKS.

A special handicap competition will take place at Laval-sur-le-Lac golf course tomorrow afternoon, and the day after, which will be for the purpose of making a final decision on the team to represent that club in the championships of the province at Beaconsfield next Friday and Saturday.

There are several who now are looked upon as sure entrants in the play, but one or two gaps have to be filled in the team, and the results of this week-end's handicaps will decide who will be the men to fill them.

Laval golfers are very enthusiastic about the coming events, and are all working hard for the honor of being amongst the representatives of the club in the play.

OUTREMONT FIXTURE.

The special golf fixture for the Outremont Golf Club for tomorrow is the qualifying round for the President's Cup. This is the second of the club's season's fixtures, and there are several of the members entered in the competition, which is a medal play handicap, sixteen to qualify and play subsequent rounds.

The Outremont Club, which was predicted would be no more this season, is alive with enthusiastic golfers now, and some fine golf is played by the members. There is always a large number on hand every week-end, and one would never imagine that closing down was ever thought of.

PROS. GATHER.

The professionals of all the local and neighboring clubs will be out on the links at Beaconsfield the day after tomorrow, trying over the course.

The pros., including the Murrays, Geo. Ayton, Jimmie Black, Frank Grant, Arthur Woodward, the two Desjardins and others, will make it their business to find out the tricky parts of the course, and Jimmie Black, the Beaconsfield pro., will not have so great an advantage over them as he might have had if they did not get accustomed to the course on which they are playing.

BROME LAKE STARTS.

What ought to prove one of the most attractive golf courses in the vicinity of Montreal is now being played upon at Knowlton, Que.

The Brome Lake Golf Club, picturesquely situated on the shore of Brome Lake, not half a mile outside the town of Knowlton, the construction of which was only begun last September, is now pronounced ready for play and this Saturday will see many of the members swinging their clubs over the nine holes which have been completed and which will be used in the meantime until the full course can be gone ahead with.

Though members will be playing this week-end, an official opening is planned for the beginning of next month. On Saturday, July 2, members and their friends will be invited to a formal opening, and special free-for-all competitions for both the lady and men members will be arranged.

The club is planning an extensive program for the season. As soon as the club gets well on the way, handicaps will be started and there is a possibility of several trophies being donated for these.

The course, which was laid out by Albert Murray, the well-known professional of the Country Club, of Montreal, could not have been constructed in a more ideal spot. The property chosen was formerly a farm belonging to John Baillie. On one side is the residence and farm of James Roger, while on the other, Senator Foster, who is the honorary president, has his Blarney Castle and farm. The rolling ground makes a very sporty course and as there is an elevation at the back of the property, on which one of the tees is placed, an excellent view of the lake and surrounding country is afforded.

Over sixty members are on the club's books up to date and it is expected that before the end of the summer there will be at least one hundred enrolled. Besides the regular membership fee, the executive has arranged for special monthly and even daily amounts to be charged visitors, who are introduced by members of the club. Of interest is the fact that not only the summer residences from Montreal are supporting the club, but also those who live at Knowlton all the year round.

The club will not employ a professional this season, but arrangements are being made at the present time to have one of the local professionals at the links two or three times a week at the beginning of the season in order that beginners of the Royal and Ancient may have instruction. The selection of this professional is left to Albert Murray.

The club house which has just been completed has ample accomodation and locker space for both the lady and men members.

SCOTTISH SOCCER TRIP HALF OVER—TRAVELLED 3,000 MILES 60,000 PEOPLE SAW THEM

With its arrival at Vancouver this week-end, the Old Country Scottish soccer team has virtually finished the first half of its remarkable trip. It has travelled, since it arrived in Canada, approximately 3,000 miles, and sixty thousand (60,000) people have flocked to see it play in the various cities it has visited. Its trip has been a triumphal march, and even the most pessimistic and critical of the Eastern soccer men now have to admit that it is a success from both a financial and sporting point of view, while it has taught Canadian soccer players many a twist and wrinkle.

DanMcNeill and David Roy, of Winnipeg, who originated the trip, may be proud of themselves, for with the continued good weather they will have put over in another three weeks, the biggest thing ever successfully carried out by the active heads of soccer in Canada, and that is not forgetting the great services to the game of such men as Baillie Fisher, Barter, Calder, Campbell, Davis, Spencer, Guthrie and others.

SPORT LETTERS

Sporting Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—The Bank of Commerce Football Club noted with amusement a statement made by the Royal Bank Football Club to the effect that they are the undefeated champions of the bankers' soccer world. They wish to point out that the Royal Bank went down to defeat to the tune of 2-1 on the 9th May at the Grand Trunk football grounds by a scratch team from the Bank of Commerce, who took the field without any previous practice.

A return game will be played in the near future, when the Commerce boys hope to repeat their victory.

BANK OF COMMERCE SOCCER BOARD.

A special general meeting will be held in Rosemount Rovers Club House, corner 10th ave., and Masson st., at 8:15 this evening. All members and players are urgently requested to attend, as matters vitally affecting the future of this club will be discussed.

PITCHING MACHINE BAFFLED RUTH AND BALLS EVADED HIM

Ruth failed away yesterday at balls delivered by a pitching machine operated by compressed air. Slow balls, highballs, low, fast and curved balls floated from the nozzle of the machine and Babe couldn't touch them.

He declared the difficulty was that the batter cannot tell when the ball will be let loose.

MACHINE GUNNERS WON.

In an exhibition game at Westmount Park last night, the Motor Machine Gunners defeated Westmount Y.M.C.A. Senior Team 11 to 8. Battery for Y.M.C.A., Paterson and Smith; for the Machine Gunners, Kane and Hamilton.

"UNO" DISCLOSES PLOT TO OUST THE P.Q.F.A. HEAD

NEW YORK, June 17.—The Third Lanark Football Club team of Scottish International soccer players, which has been playing a series of matches against leading Canadian teams, will open its tour in the United States on July 10, playing at Jersey City. The tourists will play six games in the United States, at Bethlehem, Pa., July 13; Philadelphia, July 16; New York, July 17; Boston, July 19, and Fall River, Mass., July 21.

The tour in the United States in under the direction of Thomas A. Cahill, secretary of the American Soccer League.

There has developed in local soccer circles these latter days an undercurrent of personal spleen which instead of abating what would seem to be growing in volume. Without question, the attack is directed against Neil Hepburn. The President of the P.Q.F.A. Just why he has come in for so much criticism of a decidedly unhealthy kind, is really a matter of personal opinion, but I do not hesitate to advise President Hepburn. He is being surrounded by false friends, and I would be the more confident in his ability to beat the band did I know that he looked upon them as avowed enemies, and then I know he would beat the band.

I may say I am watching events from a convenient hill top. Unseen, I am seeing all. The Third Division would seem to have it in for the President. An effort has been made, is being made, and will be made to oust the President from his position. What for?

Oratorically I would not suggest that Neil is a Lord Rosebery, nor do I suggest that he has the forensic skill of Rufus Isaacs as we knew him at the bar, but I do know that he is very plain spoken. Right or wrong, you get it straight.

I wonder just how some of these people who are clamoring for a niche in the football temple would figure in the chair? I wonder how the affairs of the council would be attended to, "they" were in office and were given presidential power? The P.Q.F.A. never will be able to dish out palatable dishes. Their duties involve the serving out of the sort of stuff which nobody likes. It is impalatable, and has given indigestion in its most acute form to several people who are searching around now for a whole host of physicians in the hope of effecting a cure. It cannot be done, Sirs.

I am not priveleged to abuse the confidence which has been reposed in me, but let me assure you of this, that assuredly there is going to be "dirty work at the cross roads." Nothing more certain. Certain people will have to walk very warily, people for instance, who wrote letters not so terribly long ago, and who think that these letters do not exist. And I may tell you that men versed in law are beginning to take an interest in certain matters. All this is very vague, you will say. True. But because I do not clear the air is due to my knowledge of law. Did I not have that "little knowledge" which is so highly dangerous, I would come out with my customary frontal attack, but I think we can afford to await developments.

CARPENTIER TO DESCRIBE HIS DAILY DOINGS FOR MONTREAL STAR READERS

Beginning tomorrow the Star in addition to the humorous review of the heavyweight world championship fight situation presented daily by Ring Lardner, an old favorite with Star readers and the regular full news services will present graphic special reports by direct wire from the training camps of Georges Carpentier and Jack Dempsey.

CARPENTIER IN PERSON.

The happenings at Dempsey's camp will be described by "Igoe" a famous New York pugilist expert, who is a man of wide reputation amongst fighters and their followers not only in America but in the Old Country, and one of the few newspaper correspondents who has the "open sesame" to Dempsey's private quarters.

MANHASSET, N.Y., June 17—(United Press.)—With Georges Carpentier down to within a pound of fighting weight, Manager Descamps today outlined his probable program for the remainder of the training.

"One day, easy boxing. Next day, rest. So on."

The diminutive Francois kept his charge close to the front porch today, the morning work in Sherry Park was lighter than usual, and the gloves were forbidden.

Georges himself says that he doesn't feel in the least overtrained; at his public workout he called for another round against Joe Jeannette after Descamps had said "Fini."

Antoine Pollet, the latest addition to the Carpentier stable, is enthusiastic about Georges' chances against Dempsey. Pollet stopped a couple of flying rights during a secret session, and claims the challenger hits like the kick of a mule.

"He eats like a mule, too," said Pollet, who trained with Carpentier in France. "I never knew him to have such a fine appetite, or to be in better shape."

Bill Brennan, the last man to meet Dempsey, watched Carpentier's public workout, and praised the Frenchman's boxing. Georges, however, was keeping a lot up his sleeve, according to Descamps, who winked his hypnotic eye and whispered that Georges had more stuff than was meeting the public eye.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., June 17.—(By Jack McAuliffe, Undefeated Lightweight Champion; Written for The United Press.)—Jack Dempsey is in better condition today than he was two years ago at Toledo. Jack's wind is not right yet, but that is a natural condition after a ten-day lay-off. He still carries a lot of inside fat, but that is in his favor. He will have something to work off in the next ten days.

Dempsey is a worker. That is one of his greatest assets. The champion has improved a lot since he won the title. He has not made the mistake of trying to learn boxing. He knows he is a "socker" by trade, and he is sticking to it.

His foot work is much better. In fact, I think it is better than Carpentier's. He has a glide in and out without getting upon his toes, as the Frenchman does. He steps to the side better than he did at Toledo.

I have maintained from the start that wind is going to be the biggest factor in the fight, and Jack needs to get his breathing apparatus in better condition.

MONTREAL DOGS TOOK 23 PRIZES AT QUEBEC SHOW

QUEBEC, June 17. (Star Special) — The second annual Quebec Dog Show came to an end at the Drill Hall last evening, when the cups and prizes in each class were awarded. Montreal dogs captured twenty-three prizes and two of the magnificent cups that were offered for competition.

The winners of the cups were Miss C. J. Laviolette, special cup, won by Mrs. Alfred Cobb, Montreal, with Pomeranian Goldset, and the cup offered for competition, open to members of the Quebec Kennel Club only, was won by Mrs. Paul Malovitz with English bulldog Challenger Cracker. The various winners in the different classes were: Open dogs, over 45 pounds, and winners dogs, Mrs. Malovitz, Montreal; open bitches and limit bitches, Mr. W. Ogden, Montreal; open bitches and winners bitches, Mrs. E. J. Smith, Montreal; in the English bulldog class, Canadian bred bitches, novice bitches, junior bitches, limit bitches and winners bitches by J. Kilby, Montreal; in the Irish terrier class, Irish setter, in the sporting variety, won by Patrick Doyle, Montreal; Irish terrier in terrier variety, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Kilby, Montreal; Canadian bred variety, Patrick Doyle, Montreal with Irish setter.

Altogether there were fifteen cups offered for competition, five of them staying in Quebec, three to Toronto, five to Humber Bay, Ont., and the other two going to Montreal. The cup donated by Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province, was won by Mrs. R. S. Richardson, of Toronto, with her Pekingese spaniel Champion Prince Cha of Alderbourne. Norman McKenzie, of Humber Bay, Ont., made the best individual showing of any outside competitor, taking away exactly one third of the cups that were up for competition.

POOR SUPPORT LOST GAME FOR THE INDIANS

What should have been an excellent pitching duel between Fraser and Reynolds, with the latter having a slight edge, was spoiled last night at Atwater Park by the poor support which the former received from his fellow Indians.

Indians were out-hit 10 to 6, but the vital factor lay in the errors, of which they made 6 to St. Arsene's 2. The result was Indians, 0; St. Arsene, 7.

The culprits were Baily, whose wild throw to second fortunately had no serious consequences, Charlie Watson, with two errors, was not so lucky; neither were Silver, Maxwell and Conlin. Charlie's errors let in three runs directly, and Conlin's one. Maxwell's muff of an easy fly in left field put Wingo on first, and he eventually scored.

The runs were scored as follows: In the third Crevier grounded out, Carter got a base on balls. Murphy sent a hot one to second, which went on to right field, and two errors placed Carter on third, whence he scored on Reynolds' sacrifice fly. In the fourth, Wingo took first on error, and Major and Marion brought him home. In the sixth, Sheedy singled, Wingo bunted, Major singled, Marion walked. Lavarrier sent three runs on yet another error, and Conlin presented them with one more for luck.

The Indians were in the limelight in a way that they will not appreciate, and which has not been their way of old. Never, within the past two or three seasons, a very heavy hitting team, their defence has been their strong point, and their supporters will hope that the mid-game shuffling referred to is full and sufficient explanation of last night's rout.

Next Saturday afternoon—Athletics vs. St. Arsene; Crescents vs. Indians.

PRESIDENT NEIL HEPBURN, P. Q. F .A., BACKS UP STAR ON INVESTIGATION MATTER IN SIGNED STATEMENT

The following official statement has been issued by President Neil Hepburn of the Province of Quebec Football Association in regard to the wild rumors that have been widely circulated about the gate of the Scottish-All Montreal match:

"Replying to the Winnipeg Free Press despatch from Edmonton, I beg to say, that the P. Q. F. A. officials are perfectly satisfied that the gate receipts were O.K. Bobby Muir, of Toronto, second- vice-president of the D. F. A. journeyed from Toronto for the purpose of checking up the gate receipts. He expressed satisfaction when three hours after the game he was presented with a cheque for $3,962 also with cash to the amount of $900 which was an absolute return of the takings. The enquiry now under way will cast no reflection on the men who handled the game, but statements have been made and are now public property. It is upon this issue that the enquiry is being held and after next week's sitting I have no doubt that a statement of the alleged infringement will be issued to the public. Arrangements for the big International July 9 are almost icompleted and I feel sure that Montreal will this time as before make a record in Football."

EVENING RACES TONIGHT AT DORVAL

The Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club will hold another series of evening races tonight at Dorval, starting on the arrival of the 5:15 train from the city.

These races are being held for the purpose of rounding the crews into shape for the International Races with the White Bear Club, which are to be sailed on July 23, 25, and 26, for the Royal St. Lawrence Challenge Cup.

On Saturday afternoon the last race for the cup presented by Vice-Commodore J. M. McIntyre will be sailed. This race will be sailed over the Pointe Claire course, starting immediately on the arrival of the Yacht Club launch Dorval.

The launch will leave the Club pier, Dorval, at 2:30 p.m. sharp, and all members who desire to follow the races from the deck of this boat must be on board at that time.

In accordance with the policy of the committee of having several short races in the afternoon instead of one long one, a number of races will be sailed, the courses being decided on by F. P. Shearwood, who will act as officer of the day, according to the direction of the wind.

The following yachts will start in the 1st Division, while several of the 2nd Division boats are expected out:—

WAR CANOE RACE AT G.T. SPRING REGATTA

The annual spring regatta of the Grand Trunk Boating Club will be held on Saturday next on the club's course at Verdun. The regatta was to be held last week, but on account of the weather it was postponed for a week.

The feature of the program will be the war canoe race, in which three crews composed of all club members who have been training for the past month will take part. Several other events, among which are some for ladies, will make up a very interesting program.

Timekeepers—F. Wall, Col. H. Harrison.

Referee—J. Munden.

The events are: Sailing race, junior single, senior single, intermediate single, junior members' single, senior tandem, ladies' and gent's tandem canoe, ¼-mile; junior four, senior four, junior members' tandem, intermediate tandem, gent's double skiff, junior tandem, junior members' four, intermediate four, war canoe.

LAWNBOWLING

Outremont lawn bowlers defeated Montreal West in the closest match of the evening in the competition for the M.A.A.A. trophy, which was competed for among the various clubs of the city last night. The north end rinks were the victors by the small margin of 107 to 94. Westmount rinks rolled a large total against the St. Lambert Club, which lost by 144 to 68.

Spalding Baseball League

The following games are scheduled for this Saturday, in the various Spalding Baseball Leagues:

Intermediate League.

Junior League.

Champetre vs. Western at Fletcher's Field, Diamond No. 1, from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock.

Juvenile League.

Victory League.

Playground League.

On June 19, Royals will meet Montreals at Fletcher's Field, on Diamond No. 1, starting at 2 o'clock p.m.

EARLOCKER WON.

NEW YORK, June 17.—J. E. Davis' much improved fencer, Earlocker, scored the most important triumph that he has yet won through the field at Belmont Park yesterday, when he captured the $3,500 Grand National Steeplechase Handicap over a distance of three miles. He won by five lengths from the Westmont Stable's Ticket, while Mrs. G. W. Loft's Sweepment was third, a very tired horse, but still twenty lengths in front of Decisive, which was outrun all the way.

Another double was scored this time by the Redstone Stable, which won with Gladiator and Devastation.

M.A.A.A. TO PLAY KENSINGTON A.A.A.

Probably the most interesting of the City and District Int. League fixtures for Saturday afternoon will be the match between M.A.A.A. and Kensington. These two teams were respectively runners-up and champions of last season's race. Both have always been rivals, and have in the past played some great exhibitions. Some new faces may be seen on the N. D. G. representatives line-up. A. Laverdure, their crack shortstop, has broken his thumb and will be out of the game for a while, but nevertheless will be suitably replaced. The game takes place at 3:00 at the L.C.C. grounds on Royal avenue, and is Kensington's first contest at home. Judging from hearsay, a great crowd of supporters will witness the match. The other game in the league will be at Shamrock grounds between Motor Machine and Fargo. This will also be a good game, as both teams are in the running.

SPORT ANSWERS

J. A. T., St. Albans—During the winter months there are several golf schools in the city where one may have instruction, but in the summer time, the only instruction available is at the different clubs, of which one has to be a member.

Ross, Montreal—There have been so many outstanding stars in tennis in the Old Country that it would be hard to pick out two of the greatest.

L. M., Morden, Mass.—Bob Fitzsimmonsmons was an Englishman from Cornwall, Eng.

J. L. Sullivan died in 1917. Last question—No.

R. D. P.—These crews were published in The Star of March 29 and 30.

Verdun—Yes, Fair and Warmer was found and is now in the possession of J. S. Watley, the owner.

W. D. K.—Sinking an opponent's ball in English billiards is generally conceded to be unsportsmanlike.

AMERICAN OAKS.

NEW YORK, June 17. — The spring meeting at Belmont Park came to a close yesterday with the running of the Coaching Club American Oaks for three-year-old fillies at a mile and three furlongs, in which the entry of P. A. Clark ran one, two. His Flambette, a handsome daughter of Durbar, was the winner by a neck from her more noted stablemate, Nancy Lee, winner of the Kentucky Oaks. Ten lengths further back was the Ascot Stable's Ten Buttons.

THE NEW UNDERWEAR

as well as the new shirts, socks, neckwear and all other toggery for spring wear is here and waiting. But it will not wait here long. The qualities are so fine and the prices are so much below the expected that wise men will act at once and secure their outfits of spring furnishings while the picking is still good.

N. Y. PRICES FORCED LOWER--LOCAL STOCKS LOOK WEAKER

LIST WEAKENED WITH STEEL CO. AT SHARP LOSS

Easiness again developed in the local stock market. Prices showed further fairly broad net losses around the close this morning. Industrial issues were lower for the most part, some of the paper stocks being included in the declines which ranged all the way from fractions in the general list to 2¼ points in the case of Steel of Canada. In all nine stocks showed net declines, three issues small gains, while four issues closed unchanged from last night's final levels.

Steel of Canada has during the past few days shown a softer tendency. This morning the stock was offered down the only sales recorded being at 49, a net loss of 2¼ points. This is a new low for this leading Canadian industrial. The high price reached by the issue in the bull market of 1920 was 88¼. This year the stock has declined from a high of 64. The stock pays 7 per cent dividend the next payment of which is due on August 1. The decline in the issue is coupled with fears that the payment will be either reduced or passed entirely, in view of the stagnation of the steel industry both in this country and in the United States. Dominion Steel eased a net point at 26 to 25.

Atlantic Sugar was another weak feature of this morning's stock market, probably in view of the involved sugar situation in the United States and Cuba as well as in the face of a reduction this week by Canadian refiners of 75 cents a hundredweight in the price of refined sugar, bringing the commodity to 9¾ cents a pound. The stock opened lower this morning at 27½ following which it declined to a new recent low at 26½ and closed at 26¾, a net decline of 1¼ points.

Canadian Converters showed a distinctly easier front this morning, the stock selling at a net loss of 2 points at 62. The stock has declined from 69 early this month. Dominion Textile was also easier, the price falling further from 129 to 128½, a net loss of 1 point. National Breweries was under some pressure during the session, the stock easing from 50½ to 50 and closing at 50¼, down a net ⅜ point.

The paper group was divided in tone. Laurentide lost during the trading, the stock changing hands at 83, a net loss of 1, which brings the price to within 2 points of the low point reached by the issue. Spanish River sold at 62¼, down ¼ point, with the preferred ranging at 71½ to ¼, up ¼. Wayagamack was unchanged at 66¾; Abitibi up ½ at 30¼ to 31¼; Brompton firmer at 29¼ to ¾, up ¼.

The balance of the list ranged as follows: Bell Tel. 102½, unchanged; Brazilian 27¼, down ⅝; Cement 50¾ to ½, up ¼; Dom. Canners 19, unchanged; Mont. Power 82, unchanged; Quebec Ry. 25 to ¼, unchanged.

CRUCIBLE DIVIDEND CUT

NEW YORK, June 17.—Directors of the Crucible Steel Company of America have cut the common stock dividend in half. The dividend declared was of $1 for the quarter, compared with $2 per quarter, which has been paid since July, 1920. "The value of business has gradually decreased during the last six months," the chairman said, in his statement. "This has made necessary a readjustment of wages and salaries at this time, and it has been thought also to be in the best interests of the stockholders to reduce for this quarter the dividend heretofore paid on the common stock."

CUBAN MORATORIUM ENDS; ONE MORE FAILURE

HAVANA, June 17.—(Special to The Star.)—Suspension of payments by the Banco de Propietarios, Industrialey Arrentatios, announced yesterday by the Federal Bank Liquidation Commission, marked the last day of the moratorium, declared January 31 last for the purpose of preserving Cuba's financial system from the results of the collapse of the sugar market.

Since the plan for allowing banking institutions to meet their obligations in four installments, the last falling due June 15, went into effect, three large institutions and twice that number of small concerns have been forced to ask the liquidation commission to take charge of their affairs.

Re-organization of large banks, the Banco National, Banco Internacional and Banco Espanol, is now being carried on by representatives named by the liquidation commission. It is expected that these institutions will be ready to resume business by the time Congress enacts financial legislation which President Zayas and his advisers, including General Enoch H. Crowder, are now outlining.

CATTLE INDUSTRY LOAN

NEW YORK, June 17.—Arrangements for a loan of $50,000,000 to be extended to the United States cattle industry were expected to be completed today at a meeting of some twenty-five bankers of the East and West. The conference was for the purpose of whipping the details of the loan into shape and to insure making the funds available immediately.

Between fifteen and twenty New York banking houses, it was understood, have agreed to combine forces and advance $25,000,000 toward the cattle industry with a like sum to be raised among banks in Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and other western cities.

Mining Notes

TORONTO, June 17.—A letter addressed to shareholders of the Clifton Porcupine Mines, Limited, admits that the directors have been unable to dispose of an additional block of treasury stock. When gold mining conditions began to improve it was felt that such a step was feasible. Proceeds would apply to development of the property, and building a mill. The board looks forward to a completion of the deal in the fall, however, and feels that under the circumstances shareholders should exercise patience.

BEAR RAIDERS ARE DOMINANT IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 17.—The proposed stock dividend on Louisville & Nashville and the 50 per cent reduction in the Crucible Steel dividend were reflected in the irregular trend of prices at the opening of today's stock market. Louisville & Nashville rose 2 points and Crucible Steel fell 2¾ points.

Within the first half hour, however, the market again lapsed into its recent weakened condition Atlantic Gulf common and preferred, were especially weak, losing 1½ to 3 points at low record. New York Air Brake, Harvester, Studebaker, American Car, Mexican Petroleum, Sumatra Tobacco and American Woollen showed losses of 1 to 1½ points. A few trifling gains among sugars and related specialties soon were cancelled.

A vigorous drive around noon caused the worst reaction in the stock market this week. Steel common was pushed down to a new low for the year, under 74, while Baldwin broke 5½ points to 60½. American Locomotive dropped 3¼ and Asphalt fell below 70. Mexican Petroleum, after its early high at 109¾, reacted five points, but was still above Thursday's low.

Steels and equipments led the more extensive decline of the morning. United States Steel fell 1 point to 73¾, its lowest price in several years. American and Baldwin Locomotive, General Electric and Harvester lost 2 to 4½ points. Mexican Petroleum broke to 104¼ after rallying to 109. Louisville & Nashville reacted 5 points and other rails were inclined to fall back. Corn Products, General Leather, common and preferred, Studebaker, Baldwin, American Woollen and Sears-Roebuck forfeited 1 to 4 points. Offerings of call money extended into next week at 5½ per cent were without influence on the stock market.

After the market had slightly recovered from the effects of the bear pressure in the first hour it developed generally very little change between midday and 1:30 p.m. The low for Mex. Pete. was 104¼, compared with an early high of 109¾, with the price holding around 107 at 1.30 p.m.

Crucible had a fair improvement rallying to 55¾, compared with the early low of 53¼. Am. Car and Baldwin were two stocks under special pressure and both had fair rallies after the bears eased up. Car fell from 117½ to 115¼, recovering 2 points, while Baldwin fell sharply from 72¾ to 67, and rallied to 69¼. Steel touched a new low at 73½.

Other features of the list were: C.P.R., 110⅝ to 111 to 110¼; Scotia, 21¼; Locomotive, 78 to 75½ to 76½; Asphalt, 52⅝ to 49¼ to 51⅛; A.L.C., 35⅝ to 36¼ to 36 to 35¼; Sumatra, 48¼ to 49½ to 47; A.G.W., 20¼ to 18 to 20⅝ to ¼; Beth. WM. MOFFAT DECEASED

TORONTO, June 17.—William Moffat, general manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, died yesterday at Pembroke, Ont., from pneumonia after an illness of four days. He was born at Pembroke in 1854, and joined the Imperial Bank as a clerk in 1881, and had been manager of the Imperial Bank in Toronto from 1901. In 1919 he was promoted to the position of general manager.

Opinions from Wall Street

Laidlaw & Co.—Little encouragement can be held out as yet for change in general character of market despite certain more promising developments.

Hornblower & Weeks wire O'Brien & Williams:—We look for more weakness after irregular rally, and it will be surprising if bears, flushed with success, do not send bullish traders home in despair over week-end.

Post & Flagg:—Chief trouble at moment seems to be that persons who would ordinarily come in and buy stocks after big decline are frightened away by amazing succession of sensational breaks which have occurred recently. Eventually, of course, these bargain hunters will become an important factor in situation, but just at this moment there is no initiative in this direction.

E. F. Hutton & Co.—One of most conservative bank presidents thinks that much of recent liquidation has been under emotional pressure and that passing of dividends of quite number of companies will prove to be only temporary.

Hayden Stone & Co.—It would seem as if with prostration of farmer buying power and generally poor business the 1921 automobile business must continue for some months to operate its present greatly reduced rate of capacity.

INCREASED ACTIVITY IN WHOLESALE TRADE

Bradstreets Montreal weekly trade report says: There appears to be an improvement in the wholesale trade in some lines. Some of the retailers say that their total sales show an increase. Some departments show more activity than others, which are on the quiet side. Clothing manufacturers who have been working on part time, expect to increase their staffs between now and the 1st July, in order to cope with the fall business, as retailers are purchasing more liberally at the reduced prices. The low price of wool is attracting more buyers.

The iron and steel industry is dull, a great number of shops being closed down. Whole sale hardware houses report a fair volume of business, retailers say their counter sales are good. Lower prices on paints and oils are bringing in better orders.

Outside of the movement in grain and cheese, the export trade in other commodities has fallen off. Wheat in the public elevators show a decrease of 947,419 bushels. Crop prospects are excellent. Government reports are bullish.

Topics of the Street

If it had not been for the accumulation of some little demand for Abitibi and Wayagamack and some active trading in Breweries, the local market this morning would have been an extremely dull affair. The total turnover for the session was 3,568 shares, or 676 shares more than yesterday morning.

Abitibi was the active feature with a total of 790 shares, while Wayagamack was second with 545 shares, and Breweries third, with 350 shares. The rest of the list was dull with the more active features as follows: Dom. Steel, 225 shares; Atlantic Sugar, 175; Textile, 150; Can. Steamships, 140; Mont. Power 124; Can. Cement, 110; and Can. Converters, 110.

It is only necessary to look over the local lists of transactions to verify the statements made in the Street that the buying power of the market is at low ebb.

It is not that people have not money to buy but because they are scared. Many of course have been hard hit in the last year or two and have had their resources seriously impaired.

The success which it is hoped will attend the efforts to financially rehabilitate the Riordon Company would have a good effect on the general market giving the investing public assurance that a once powerful concern with tremendous assets cannot be allowed to disappear. A good deal now hinges on the outcome.

So far as the list as it stands is concerned the dividend issues are divided into two classes. These are the ones on which dividends ar safe and those on which they may be regarded as uncertain. In the case of the first group it is pointed out that they are selling at prices which are far from bargains and they are therefore not particularly attractive to the potential buyer.

On the other hand those dividend issues which are selling at attractive levels are regarded as being in the position where an extension of the present business stagnation would bring seriously before the boards of directors the question of the advisability of continuing to disburse their available liquid resources with their earning power so seriously curtailed.

Those who would care to avail themselves of the present opportunity to make purchases thus have to face the risk of buying stocks with uncertain dividends, pay relatively high prices for the safe ones, or buy bonds. Those who like something with a better yield than bonds and with a speculative flavor are thus holding back.

This renders the buying power very weak with the consequence that when liquidation does develop in any quarter it uncovers a weak undertone. Even some of the purse proud stocks are beginning to feel the effects of this as holders are liable to resort to the good ones to raise money in a period of stress.

The raiding tactics which have been in evidence in Wall Street for some time back were continued today, and some of the leading issues were picked for attack.

The way they were hammered indicated considerable manipulative skill and it is evident that the market is at the mercy of one of the most daring and well equipped bands of bear raiders the Street has had experience with for some time.

One of the amazing parts of the situation is the comparative lack of resistance displayed. Prices melted away so rapidly that the buying power seemed to be seriously impaired notwithstanding the apparent strength of the company.

The fact that call money is said to be more or less of a drug on the market being offered down as low as 4 per cent and in one case reported on high grade collateral at 3 per cent, had no effect in reviving a demand or even encouraging resistance. The bear party was king and that was all there was to it.

It is reported on the Street that the recent meeting of National Brick bondholders was rather a lively one, several of those present expressing themselves pretty forcibly touching the power, stated to be conferred by the trust deed, of the majority to compel them to exchange their bonds for preferred stock while the property to which they thought they held indisputable title is to be hypothecated to secure a fresh issue of bonds.

One of the bondholders undertook to answer the question: "When is a bond not a bond?" and gave a definition more cogent than complimentary.

The management also came under criticism in connection with the company's present difficulty, and a suggestion was made of a possible way of getting new blood and a more aggressive spirit, but the plan proposed fell through.

No class of investors have had a more uncomfortable or expensive experience than those who put their capital into the Canadian incorporated companies engaged in the railway and hydraulic power concerns which attracted so much money to Mexico in the past decade. Everything from revolution down has played against them and the outlook has been black for several years.

A gleam of hope comes from the latest developments, and if the Mexican Government develops more stable conditions and secures recognition from the United States something may be saved out of the financial wreckage which years of revolution and the world war caused.

A report on the affairs of the Mexican Light, Power, and Tramways group of companies, signed by E. R. Peacock and his associates of the bondholders' committee, announces dates for the resumption of payment of interest in some cases, announces an issue of $12,000,000 six per cent income bonds, gives a rather favorable statement of recent earnings and asks the approval of bond holders to the plan set forth in the report.

No interest has been paid on the various issues of bonds and on funded debts for over six years, and the aggregate of funds now available falls far short of the amount required to discharge the interest, quite apart from the principal of the unfunded debts, which are long overdue. The aggregate debt of the associated companies, as at the end of December last, were over $8,897,000. No dividend has been paid since November 1913 on the $6,000,000 preference shares of the Light and Power Company.

"The default of the associated companies," the report says, "is a direct consequence of the conditions prevailing in Mexico since 1911."

An outline of the provisional agreement gives in considerable detail plans for payment of a number of coupons forthwith, further payments by the end of June, 1922, and others a year later, but sinking fund payments to be resumed in 1928 with all payments to that date to be waived. Bondholders are urged to accept the proposed plans as "being the best arrangement that can be effected in their interests."

"Although the position in Mexico remains difficult," says the report, "the outlook is certainly more hopeful than it was."

SASKATCHEWAN BOND BOYCOTT, SAYS MINISTER

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., June 17.—(By Canadian Press.) — "Beyond all question there is a determined boycott afoot in connection with all debentures of this province," said Hon. George Langley, Minister of Municipal Affairs, in addressing the Union of Saskatchewan Municipalities here yesterday afternoon.

While the province was able to dispose of the bonds to the dealers at considerably better terms than could be secured by either Alberta or Ontario, the fact remained that the dealer will be unable to dispose of them.

The Provincial Government, he said, had never defaulted one moment in the matter of interest or principal of its bonds, but owing to the defaulting of several municipalities this "insidious campaign" had commenced and been promulgated to the detriment of the province and to those municipalities which had maintained their standing and loyalty to meet their liabilities.

He said that this defaulting had caused him many weary hours, and he had to admit that in some cases there was a deplorable spirit displayed by some of the tax payers who were lacking in the appreciation of their duty which their liabilities should have prompted.

The Government, he said, contemplated legislation next session on the question, but he did not give any indication as to what line it would follow beyond saying that it was absolutely imperative that the credit of the province and its municipalities should be restored and placed upon a sound and lasting basis. The wealth of the province and all the activities from which it sprang was contained in the top six inches of soil, he claimed, and he viewed with alarm the return of the price of farm products to the normal while freight charges now amounting to 10 cents per bushel were mounting.

The result of it all was that there would have to be stern retrenchment both in provincial and municipal expenditures, and he asked the convention to lend its aid in securing this.

EGG MARKET FIRMER

The Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, reports the egg situation as follows: Toronto firm and higher, specials jobbing forty-one, extras thirty-nine, firsts thirty-seven. Receipts reported only sufficient to supply local demand. Several cars of States eggs reported rolling this market. New York current extra firsts twenty-eight thirty, firsts twenty-five seven half.

MOTION PICTURE MERGER

E. A. Cousins, president of the United Amusements, Limited, who own and operate the Regent and Papineau Theatres, announces that this company have taken over the interests of the St. Lawrence Amusement Company and the Northern Amusement Company. The St. Lawrence Amusement Company operated the new Belmont Theatre, situated on Mount Royal avenue, close to St. Lawrence Boulevard. The Northern Amusement Company's interests comprised the new St. Hubert st. theatre (near Beaubien), now under construction and a valuable north end site, for which plans are now underway for the erection of a theatre this fall.

SUGAR DECLINES AGAIN

Another decline of 25 cents per 100 lbs. for all grades of refined sugar was made by local refiners yesterday, owing to the continued weakness for raw and refined sugar in American markets. Granulated sugar is now selling at $9.75 per 100 lbs. in bags. This makes a net reduction of 75 cents per 100 lbs. so far this week.

WHEAT MARKET OPENED HIGHER, HELD STEADY

Wheat started sharply higher on buying by commission and eastern interests as well as overnight shorts, because of hot weather. The advances failed to bring out important outside support, however ,and the market eased off under selling by locals. Volume of business was only moderate. Weather forecast is for continued hot dry weather over the winter wheat belt.

Corn met with general buying and advanced easily in the first hour. The upturn attracted selling from locals. Market tone was strong. Crop and weather conditions continued most favorable.

N.Y. SUGAR TRADE IN DEMORALIZED STATE

NEW YORK, June 17.—(Special to Star)—Buyers of raw sugars persisted in holding off yesterday, notwithstanding that Porto Ricos in prompt and attractive shipment positions were being offered at four cents delivered, upwards of 40,000 bags being reported available at these quotations. These did not find a market, and while there was no tendency among sellers to press offerings on the market indications were not wanting that the raw market generally was pointing toward a 3¾ cents delivered basis.

The prospects for marketing any considerable quantities of raw sugars were not regarded as of the best in view of the generally unsatisfactory conditions prevailing in the market for refined, the recent general cut to a level of 5¾ cents having failed to stimulate buying in any manner. Despite this it was not thought that holders of raw sugars were yet prepared to break the market.

In the absence of confirmed new business, it was difficult to quote accurately on the bond values of full duty sugars. It is evident that the duty of two cents a pound on non-preferential raw sugars is causing producers of these sugars to find other outlets for them. At the close yesterday the sugar trade was said to be in a demoralized condition as it is generally agreed there is enough sugar in the world to meet all the buying power than can develop for a long period. There was no announcement from the Cuban Finance Committee.

FLOUR EXPORTS DECREASE

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Exports of grain and flour from the United States fell off heavily during May as compared with the same month last year, while cotton exports rose sharply, according to trade figures issued tonight by the Commerce Department. Grain and flour exported during May aggregated sixty-three million dollars against one hundred million dollars in May a year ago, while for the eleven months ended with May the total was one billion dollars compared with seven hundred and twenty million dollars for the corresponding period of 1920.

REPORT TWELVE FAILURES FOR LOCAL DISTRICT

TORONTO, June 17. — Retailers throughout the country are still operating on a hand-to-mouth basis, and the wholesale trade, therefore, continues light, says R. G. Dun and Company's weekly trade review. Dry goods houses are getting a fair number of sorting orders, and the grocery trade was featured only by a refiners' cut at half a cent in the price of sugar. Quotations for new California prunes are much below those of a year ago. The following are the district reports:

Montreal District. — Foundrymen are only partially employed, and there is no improvement in the demand for position. A further cut of $2.00 a ton is noted in the quotations for domestic brands, making the present spot quotations for ordinary foundry iron $34.80, as against $56.00 this time a year ago. There is some enquiry for bars and rods in connection with contracts for concrete work on several very large buildings projected and in course of construction. Late rains have been of great benefit to district crops, particularly to hay which has been light and backward. Twelve district failures are reported for the week, liabilities aggregating $239,000.

Toronto District.—Food and clothing is cheaper, while other commodities gradually decline to a value proportionate. Crop conditions are promising and stocks of merchandise in the hands of both retailer and wholesaler dwindle without replenishment. New goods are now being produced at a price commensurate with the public's purchasing power ,and a normal trade could be done in these if the retailer would make a little more sacrifice on his present holdings. Demand for summer hosiery, shirts, neckwear, dresses and dress materials was stimulated by a sustained spell of hot weather. Millinery prospects are good, although some buyers are more cautious than usual. Furniture dealers dispose of cottage and verandah equipment in satisfactory volume. Fur merchants do business in odd lots at a price and frequently ask cash. The leather trade is brightening somewhat. Lumbermen find it difficult to move any great volume. Orders received from Western Canada are usually small, but a better feeling is evident out there, due possibly to the holding of wheat prices. Fear was expressed that the American revised tariff would have a detrimental effect upon grain growers in Canada, but this is disappearing as wheat grown in Western Canada possesses a quality of hardness that guarantee it a market. Payments are slow to fair. Six failures reported in the district for the week.

QUEBEC DISTRICT.—Heavy rain in the early part of the week improving farming conditions, and extinguished forest fires; but during the past two weeks there have been a series of conflagrations at different points throughout the district, and general trade is moving very slowly with no very great expectations for the immediate future. However, the shoe industry is taking up, and there have been no failures recorded in the past week.

Saskatoon District. — Local showers are proving beneficial for growing crops, although some damage is being done by grasshoppers in certain districts. Some assistance is being offered by municipalities by way of free distribution of grasshopper poison. Wholesale and retain business remains quiet in practically all lines, collections are slow, and failures during the past week were numerous. Outside of a few buildings for which contracts were let last year and early spring this year, there is practically nothing doing in the building line.

CAME TOO LATE TO SEE BODY

Brownsburg Woman Believes Drowned Man Was Her Husband

Almost certain identification of the body of the drowned man found with cut throat and broken leg in the Lachine Canal at the rear of the Ogilvie's Flour Mills on Tuesday, June 7, was effected this afternoon by Mrs. James England Prosser, of Brownburg, Quebec.

Mrs. Prosser visited the city morgue this afternoon, but owing to the fact that the body was buried yesterday could do no more than describe the man to officials. She had read the description of the body given in The Star, she said, and had daily followed the investigations carried out in the vain endeavor to identify it. She had come to the conclusion that deceased was her husband who left her four years ago when living in Lachine.

The description given in The Star, Mrs. Prosser said, tallied almost exactly with that of her husband. The clothing's description was strange to her but this was not singular as she had not seen her husband for some years. She declined to see the garments and articles found in them, in spite of the requests of morgue officials.

Attempts will be made by Mrs. Prosser to find some relative or friend in the city who had seen Prosser more recently than herself, in order that his movements until June 7, or since, if he still lives, may be followed.

Until some definite trace of her husband is found or until she is able to find some way of making an absolute identification of the body Mrs. Prosser will not know whether she is a widow or a wife. Referring to her husband she said that he had been "strange" and she would not be surprised to find that the body is really his. He had not provided for her during the past four years. Morgue officials were unable to tell the woman of any mark on the body by which she might identify it. It was in an advanced state of decomposition when found, they told her.

When the body was found a piece of paper bearing the name Walker and several addresses in Toronto was found in the clothing. Mrs. Prosser did not recognize this name or the address at the morgue this afternoon.

No Anglo-Japanese Action Against U. S.

LONDON, June 17.—(Associated Press.)—Austen Chamberlain, Government leader in the House of Commons declared in the House this afternoon with regard to the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty:

"Although I do not in any way wish to pre-judge the action of the Imperial conference, it is right to say at once that we shall be no party to any alliance directed against America, or under which we can be called upon to act against America."

BOY CHASED CAR TO SEE DRIVER

Richard Ryan on Trial for Causing Death of Little Girl

Richard Ryan, contractor, of 25 Regent street, appeared before Judge Cusson, in chambers, this morning, for preliminary hearing on the charge of being criminally responsible for the death of Mathilde Pettrucci, who, it is alleged, was run over by an automobile driven by Ryan. In his defence Ryan produced witnesses to prove he was not driving the car at the time of the accident, and that his car had been stolen from him half an hour previous to the accident. Leonce Plante appeared for the accused, with James Crankshaw, jr., as counsel. Argument will take place before Judge Cuson on June 23.

Only one of the numerous witnesses was able to identify Ryan as the driver of the car. She is a young lady who works in a gasoline station a short distance from the place where the accident occurred. She positively identified Ryan as the man to whom a few moments previous to the accident she had sold gasoline. She was closely cross-questioned by Ryan's attorneys, and at times was rather confused in her evidence, making several contradictions.

The most interesting witness to be heard, although he could not throw any light on the identity of the man who was driving the car which killed little Mathilde Petrucci, was Rene Contin, an eight year old boy, who resides at 125 Wolfe street. This youngster saw the accident and chased the car, trying to see the driver.

NEW SWINDLE IS BROUGHT TO END

Men Accused of Passing Bogus Money are Arrested

Accused of securing money by false pretences by exchanging for bills cartons supposed to contain $10 in twenty-five cent pieces, Jean Vaudry, of 116 Workman street, and Alphonse Daoust, of 206 Canning street, were arrested near the corner of St. Catherine and St. Denis streets at 6:30 last night by Detectives Gorman, O'Donnel and Savard. They appeared before Judge Lest this morning and were remanded without bail until June 24.

Fraser, Viger Co., 211 St. James street, and the North Eastern Lunch, corner of Clarke and St. Catherine streets, were the complainants. The young lady cashier for Fraser, Viger Co. told the detectives that yesterday afternoon she had received a telephone message from a neighboring cigar store, asking her if she wanted any change. She replied in the affirmative. In a few minutes one of the accused came to the store and handed her a carton purporting to be full of twenty-five cent pieces to the value of $10. The carton was open and the young lady did not suspect anything wrong. She gave the young man the ten dollars.

Wanting some change shortly afterwards she opened the packages and found that it contained only two twenty-five cent pieces, one on the top of the carton and one on the bottom. The other supposed twenty-five cent pieces were merely pieces of brass, with milled edges and covered with tinfoil, taken out of tobacco packages. In a similar manner the North Eastern Lunch was victimized, it being telephoned to from the MidwayTheatre on St. Lawrence boulevard. An account of the trick was published in The Star yesterday.

While searching for suspicious characters and pickpockets yesterday afternoon, detectives Gorman, O'Donnel and Savard, saw two men acting in a suspicious manner on St. Catherine street near St. Denis. They followed them. The two separated and wishing to question them they stopped the smaller. He evinced great uneasiness and held his hand in his left pocket. The officers asked to be shown the contents of his pocket. The man produced three cartons of "phoney" twenty-five cent pieces. The detectives had never seen a trick like this before, but they had read The Star and understood what the metal was for. The other man was arrested shortly afterwards in a saloon.

TENDERS FOR BONDS

Protestant School Commissioners of Pointe Claire and Beaconsfield

$50,000 Serial Coupon Bonds

Sealed tenders, endorsed "Tender for Bonds" will be received by the Secretary-Treasurer, P. O. Box 125, Station A, Montreal, until 12 o'clock noon (daylight saving time) Wednesday 29th June, 1921, for the purchase of $50,000 serial coupon bonds.

Full details as to the purpose for which the bonds are issued and amounts maturing annually will be furnished on application.

The legality of the issue has been approved by Mr. E. N. Brown, K.C., Montreal.

The bonds are issued in coupon form and are of the denomination of $500.

They are payable both as to principal and interest at the Bank of Hochelaga in Pointe Claire or Montreal and carry interest at the rate of 6% per annum payable half-yearly at Nov. 1st and May 1st. They are dated May 1st, 1921, the first maturity date of principal being May 1st, 1922.

Engraved bonds will be ready for delivery on or about July 15th, 1921. Delivery and payment with accrued interest are to be made by the Secretary-Treasurer as above.

Cheques in respect of unaccepted tenders will be returned forthwith.

By order of the Board,
June 15, 1921.

You Can Get What You Want

WOMEN in quest of husbands long ago discovered this truth.

MEN in search of wealth can capture it, if they make up their minds as to precisely how much they want. Even the poor man able to spare only five dollars a month can become a holder of gilt edged bonds by buying them on the instalment plan.

IF YOU would get a jump or two ahead of your salary, sit down right now and decide how much in stocks and bonds you want to own in—say—twenty months. Then divide the total into twenty equal payments, and determine whether you can save that much after meeting your living expenses. If the burden seems more than you can bear, reduce it until you strike your capacity.

BY strength of will, you will boost yourself to your mark.

BESIDES, you will have acquired the habit of saving systematically and no longer will you be without reserves against a day of need.

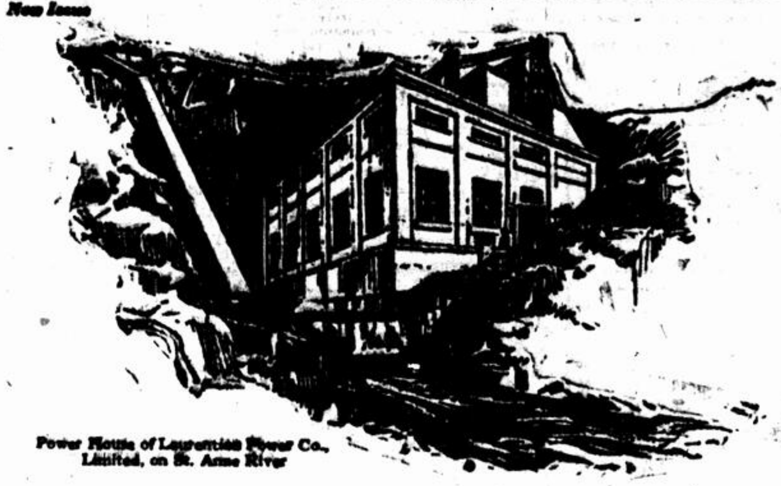
New Issue



Power House of Laurentian Power Co., Limited, on St. Anne River

Invest for Safety —and to build Quebec

THE water powers of Quebec hold out great possibilities. With coal high in price and not likley to be low again, the ability to get water power at a fair price and in adequate supply gives a great advantage to Quebec Industries.

Water power offers a strong inducement also to American Industries to locate in Quebec Province. Every new factory located adds to the taxable property and consequently tends to lower taxes.

The Laurentian Power Company Limited

This Company has an installed capacity on the St. Anne River (33 miles from Quebec City) of 18,000 H. P. and a total capacity of 24,000 H.P. Of this, 10,000 H. P. is being delivered under contract, over a 25 mile high tension transmission line of galvanized steel towers set in concrete, to the Quebec Railway, Light, Heat and Power Company at Montmorency.

The contract with the Quebec Railway, Light, Heat and Power Company runs until September, 1940. The net earnings under this contract alone for year ending March 31st last, according to Price, Waterhouse & Co., are equal to twice the interest charges on the outstanding bonds after deducting operating and maintenance charges. The replacement value of the property has been estimated at $2,400,000.00 or $1,000,000.00 more than the outstanding bonds.

All of these facts make the 6% First and Refunding Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds of the Laurentian Power Company Limited, an ideal investment for Quebec people. It combines a high degree of safety and stability of earnings with an opportunity to put money at work in Quebec for the development of Quebec.

The unsold balance of this issue is now offered at 88½ and interest, to yield 7¼%

GENERAL EXODUS FROM THIS PORT

Megantic, Saturnia, and Montreal All Sail for Europe Tomorrow

NOTABLES LEAVE

Scandinavian Sailed Today, Following Metagama Yesterday

Despite the hard times through which the world is passing there is very little indication of financial stringency among the crowds of tourists who are filling to capacity the cabin accommodation of the big passenger liners leaving Montreal for Europe this month.

Although two passenger steamers have already left port this week for British and European ports, and three more are due to leave tomorrow, all are booked to capacity so far as the cabin accommodation is concerned, although the third class is not so well filled.

The Megantic, of the White Star-Dominion line, sails tomorrow at 11 a.m., city time, for Liverpool with 250 first class, 300 second class, and 300 third class passengers, which is in marked contrast to her complement coming out this trip, when there were only 48 in her first class. Many notables are included in the Megantic's cabin list, including Senator J. M. Wilson, Judge Martineau, of the Superior Court; Mr. and Mrs. Wright, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner Hill, of the Fuller Construction Co.; Mrs. C. Bethell, Miss M. Bethell, John, Charles Jeffrey, Philip Bethell and Miss Dyer Bethell, of Nassau, B.I.; U.S. Senator McWilliams and Mrs. McWilliams; Reverend Wm. Herman Van Allen, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Acland and Miss E. Acland; Dean and Mrs. Moyse, of McGill; Mr. and Mrs. E. Gus Porter, M.P. for Belleville.

Among the Montreal first class cabin passengers are:—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Vipond; A. L. Whittall, of Whittall Can Company, and Mrs. Whittall; Misses Berdie, Edna and Eva Whittall; Mr. and Mrs. W. Ferras; E. Wilson Mellen and Mrs. Mellen; H. G. Thibadeau Rinfret; A. Maillhiot; Mr. and Mrs. S. Wener and Miss Wener; Mr. and Mrs. Hazen Porteous; Mr. and Mrs. Neill Barclay; F. H. Markey, K.C.; Chas. Ogden, K.C.; J. Marr; D. Henderson; Dr. and Mrs. P. H. Gettleson; Mr. Chas. Percy; Miss Norah Gumlick; A. C. Halzpfel; M. Auerbach, Misses F. and M. R. Auerbach, jewellers; Miss J. Williams; Miss H. Williams; Mrs. H. G. Domville; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Skeoch; Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Prattley; Mr. and Mrs. Goldschmidt; Miss M. Coghlin; B. Bristow; Mrs. Forbes Sutherland; L. O. P. Walsh; G. M. Wright; F. Perry; W. T. Grosse; A. Thiberge, K.C. and Miss E. Thiberge; Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Illievitz; Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hancock.

In the Megantic's second cabin is travelling Mrs. Tommy Burns, wife of the famous boxer. Montrealers in the second class are:—Mrs. A. Whitton; Miss E. Whitton; Miss N. I. Brown; Miss Mary Brewer; Rev. Henri Guilbert; Rev. J. B. Porcher; Rev. Eugene Goilot; Rev. A. Mordasini; Miss W. M. Collingwood; Miss A. F. Steele; Mrs. E. Scriver-Hatcher; Miss Poulson, Master Eric Poulson; Mrs. P. Hanson; Mrs. J. W. Johnson; S. A. Mitchell, Mrs. Mitchell; Mrs. A. Breach, Miss V. Breach; Walter Rae, Mrs. Rae; Rev. Fr. Herrouet; Rev. E. G. Guthrie; Rev. Fr. E. M. Salmon; I. Shane; R. T. Press; C. S. Ogden; R. Read; Allan C. G. Mitchell; Mrs. H. F. Hobbs; M. C. Pilicodas; H. Nagant; Mrs. H. Gurr; Clifford Hanson; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wovenden; the Misses E. and M. Hamer; W. H. Payne; W. C. Nicol; Mrs. Burgin; Miss Hilda Burgin; Miss Rose Campbell; Miss Minnie Moon; Mrs. A. Goodchild, Master Theodore Goodchild; Miss G. Mayhew; Miss A. Buttanshaw; Miss M. L. Brown; Master John Buchan; Master John Curr, Master Stewart Gurr; Mrs. Fred Holland and child; Mrs. Ellen Newbold; W. J. Tomlin, Mrs. Tomlin; Mrs. Geo. Cook, Miss Doris Cook, Master Andrew Cook; Mrs. C. Smith; Miss Andra Smith; Miss Mary Burrell; Mrs. Hattie Cirsch, Master Sydney Cirsch; Miss Julia Douglas; Miss Ellen Davis.

SATURNIA AND MONTREAL ALSO.

The Montreal, of the C.P.R., also clears tomorrow with a heavy passenger list for Havre and Antwerp.

SCANDINAVIAN SAILED TODAY.

With 450 cabin and 500 third class passengers aboard, the Scandinavian, of the C.P.R., sailed this morning for Southampton and Antwerp.

NO CHANGE IN WATHENA'S POSITION.

No change is reported today in the position of the American steamer Wathena, which went aground opposite Longue Pointe yesterday morning while proceeding to the Imperial Oil wharf to take on fuel oil. The work of lightering the vessel's grain cargo is proceeding.

FIRST BALTIC SAILING.

The first sailing from Montreal of the re-organized Canada Line service to Hamburg, Danzig and Libau is announced by the White Star-Dominion Line, local agents, as being on August 10, when the Red Star liner Poland, under the Belgian flag, carrying third class passengers and freight will reopen the service after an interval of several years, due to the war. The Poland, which has accommodation for 1,102 passengers, is being entirely reconditioned for this service and will provide a comfortable means of transport to the Baltic. She leaves Antwerp for Montreal on July 16, and will touch at Rotterdam and Cherbourg en route.

The Poland will be followed at a date to be announced later by the Maasdam, a new vessel of the Holland-America Line fleet. The winter port of the service will be Halifax.

The Canada Line service will be run in conjunction with the regular Baltic service of the Gothland and Samland from New York and Philadelphia, the former of which sails from Philadelphia on July 15, and the latter from New York on July 10, both carrying third class passengers only.

PROTEST CLOSING OF RADIO STATIONS.

The announcement by the Department of Marine and Fisheries of the closing of six radiotelegraph stations has called forth a strong protest from shipping men using the St. Lawrence, who are making representations to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries on the matter. It is claimed by mariners that in view of the dangerous iceberg situation the continuance of at least three of the abandoned stations is absolutely essential to the safety of navigation although the Department maintains that increased efficiency of apparatus has rendered the affected stations unnecessary. The stations concerned are situated at Point Amour, Rich Point, Cape Ray, Heath Point, Pictou and Three Rivers. It is the closing of the first three named that mariners are protesting against.

U. S. SUBMARINE HERE.

The United States Navy submarine N3 arrived in port yesterday afternoon from New London, Conn., on a practice trip, en route to Toldeo, Ohio, and will leave for the lakes tomorrow. The war vessel, which is in command of Lieut. J. P. Compton, commanding a crew of two officers and nineteen men, is berthed at No. 1 basin of the Lachine Canal.

MONTREAL-LONDON SERVICE.

With the sailing of the freighter Tarantia from Glasgow for Montreal yesterday, a sixth vessel has been added to the cargo fleet of the Cunard Company operating between Montreal and London thus making possible a regular weekly service. The Tarantia is due to leave here July 15, on her first trip on the Montreal-London service, and will be handled here by the Robert Reford Company, agents for the Allied Lines.

EMPRESS OF FRANCE AT QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, June 17. — The C. P. O. S. Empress of France reached Quebec yesterday afternoon from Liverpool at 4.30 p.m. and was docked by 5.10 o'clock. She brought a large number of passengers, the total being 1,125, composed of 133, saloon, 464 second and 525 third class. The Empress was two days behind her scheduled time owing to fog; several large icebergs were also seen. Outside of these inconveniences a good trip was reported.

The first and second class passengers were soon landed after their examination and underwent the customs inspection. The special train for the saloon passengers left at 10 o'clock and that of the third class at 10.30 p.m.

The third class passengers were with few exceptions of British stock, being largely English and Scotch, with a sprinkling of Irish and Welsh. These new Canadians measured up well in comparison with those who have already arrived here this season.

The ship made a fine appearance coming in late yesterday afternoon and a goodly number of people were present to see their homecoming relatives and friends.

The prominent saloon passengers included R. B. Angus, Mrs. W. R. Baker, wife of W. R. Baker, C.V.O., Mr. C. E. Benjamin, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Fraser, Geo. Sumner, Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wilson and the Misses Wilson, all of Montreal. Others were Captain C. A. and Lady Edith Windham of Horsham, Eng., Major General G. S. and Mrs. Ryerson, Niagara on the Lake Ont. The Quebecers on board were Noel Belleau, S.L.L.L., B.A., of Levis, Mrs. L. B. Garneau, Miss B. Garneau, Mrs. B. M. Judge and Mrs. A. C. V. Roy of this city.

In conversation with many of the passengers The Star found a note of optimism for the future, that was not evident among the people arriving from Europe previously this year. The general feeling was that Britain is slowly but surely emerging from here precarious position, that Lloyd George has won out, and that the next few days will see great improvement.

One of the most venerable figures of Canada, and even the Empire, R. B. Angus, former president of the Bank of Montreal, returned from a three months' trip to Europe, most of the time of which was spent on the continent. Mr. Angus is past his ninetieth birthday but is yet very active and his brain is as clear as ever. To outward appearance his strikingly handsome face betokens not more than sixty-five years.

He stated that he had spent considerable time in Italy, where the situation, which was acute, is slowly improving. "I believe that Italy will recover," he said. "She has been in great danger of revolution, but her people are working hard, as are all the continentals, and that is the only solution. In France the people do not stop working when night falls but toil long into the late hours. The spirit being displayed by France is wonderful. While British labor has not been working well, I think that the present difficulties will soon be solved and England will mount to new heights of greatness."

G. B. Fraser, director of the Bank of Montreal and Greenshields, Ltd., also returned, having spent six weeks in England and Scotland on business. He spoke likewise in an optimistic vein and expressed himself as confident that Britain would emerge from out this dark period, heralding new triumphs. "The strike is fast being settled and it is expected that by next Monday all will be well. Lloyd George has shown great courage and he has won decisively. Radical labor has lost. Prices for the most part are still remaining at skyward heights, but with the near solution of the labor problem, there will be assuredly big reductions.

The Montrealers on board were Jas. B. Allan, Travers Allan, R. B. Angus, Mrs. W. R. Baker, C. E. Benjamin, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Fraser, Miss H. E. Fraser, P. M. LeMaistre, Mr. and Mrs. G. Percival, G. Stumner, A. D. Swan, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wilson, Miss L. Wilson, J. Wilson, B. Giacosa, W. N. Lipney, Mr. and Mrs. E. Ratchelous, Master E. Ratchelous, the Misses P. and M. Ratchelous, Miss M. Wright.

HAMBURG-AMERICA RECONSTRUCTION.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Hamburg-American Liner has prepared to re-construct one-third of its pre-war fleet, Dr. William Cuno, director general announced here today before he sailed for Hamburg. The new fleet will consist largely of freight ships, he said. Cuno also announced he had conferences with W. Averill Harriman, head of American shipping interests with which the Hamburg Line is allied and that they had decided to continue the alliance.

HONORARY DEGREE FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

Sir Charles Fitzpatrick Speaks at Bishops College

LENNOXVILLE, Que., June 17.—(By Canadian Press.)—Lieut.-Governor Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, P.C., G.C.M.G.; Col. Blaylock, C.B.E., and Rev. Canon Gould, M.D., C.M., were the distinguished visitors at Lennoxville today, when they received from the University of Bishops College the degree of D.C.L. The Governor-General was unable to attend, owing to his departure shortly for England.

Convocation was opened shortly after 3 o'clock by the Chancellor, who briefly welcomed Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, and touched upon the aims of the University.

Presenting his report, Dr. Bedford Jones, principal of the College, commented upon the very high standing of scholarship which had been attained this year. During the year under review, Dr. Bedford Jones had travelled some 8,000 miles in the province, with the object of getting into closer touch with schools and their scholars.

Degrees were then conferred upon the following: D.C.L. Honors Causa, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, P.C., G.C.M.G., Lieut.-Governor; Colonel W. Henry Blaylock, C.B.E.; Rev. Canon Gould, M.D., C.M.; B.D., in course, Rev. H. Chapman; M. A. in course, Rev. R. H. Hayden, B.A.; Miss H. K. Brown, B.A.; Mrs. Silliker, Miss D. A. Goodwin, B.A.; Mrs. D. Clark, Rev. R. Heron, B.A.; B.A. in course, first class, A. T. Carson; classical honors grade, two gold medalist, H. O. Donnell, philosophy honors; C. L. Hall, Latin and French honors; Miss Buckland, mathematical honors; Misses M. McLeod and R. Hopkins, modern languages; Miss M. MacKenzie, philosophy, and I. K. Lowry, science, second class; Miss I. Nichol, history honors; R. J. E. Moore and K. McEwen, mathematics; Misses D. Wright and H. Bennett, philosophy; Misses E. Hall and E. Sangster, history, third class; Misses M. Goodhue and F. Dinning, modern languages.

Testamur was granted to Rev. R. Heron, B.A., and the following matriculants took the oath of allegiance: Messrs. C. C. Savage, K. M. McEwen, S. E. E. Howse, Misses J. E. Ryan, D. E. Dickson McMurray, D. C. Baldwin, F. D. Tanner, H. G. Boyce, L. F. McEwen, M. S. McHarg, E. F. Brock, P. E. Burton.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES.

The prizes were then distributed by the Lieutenant-Governor to the following: Faculty of Arts, Governor-General's medal, A. T. Carson; Prince of Wales' gold medal and scholarship, A. T. Carson; Department of Public Instruction prize for French, Miss McLeod; R. Lemieux's prize for French, C. L. Hall; Rev. Canon Scott's prize for English literature, Miss Hopkins; first class aggregate prizes, third year, Messrs. Carson, Hall, O. Donnell, Lowry, Misses Buckland, Hopkins, MacKenzie and McLeod; second year, Geo. F. Savage, first year, Misses McHarg; aggregate average 92 per cent., Murray and Dickson, Faculty of Divinity; Hansel reading prize, Messrs. R. Heron, B.A., and A. W. Freeman, B.A., who also received first class aggregate prizes.

After the valedictory had been pronounced by H. O. Donnell, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, made a striking speech relative to Religion, Crown and Empire. A religious basis for education he considered was essential, and he was bold enough to prophecy that the daily services in the chapel at Lennoxville would ensure the continuance of that fortunate career with which God had blessed the University in the past.

The Lieutenant-Governor said that nowhere in the world could the Roman Catholic Church enjoy greater freedom than in the Province of Quebec, and he believed that at heart the Roman Catholics were grateful and loyal to the Crown.

Canon Gould and Colonel Blaylock also spoke.

TO RAISE THE ESPERANTO.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., June 17.—The steamer Fabia, equipped with wrecking apparatus, left here yesterday to raise the schooner Esperanto, winner of last year's international fishermen's race, which sank May 31, off Sable Island. Officials in charge of the expedition said that under favorable conditions they hoped to tow the sunken schooner into port in two weeks.

THIRD INTERNATIONALE TO BE OPENED TODAY

Delay Caused by Disagreements Over Various Policies

RIGA, June 17.—After more than two weeks' delay, due, it is reported to disagreements regarding the various policies among the leading delegates, the Third Internationale, according to a Moscow despatch will be officially opened today. A general holiday has been proclaimed in that city. During the past week many preliminary conferences have been held.

The World Congress of Communist Trade Unions, which is meeting in connection with the Internationale, has issued through the newspaper Pravda an appeal to the British miners to continue their strike.

Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush

TWO regular habits will save your teeth for a lifetime:

Visit your dentist for slight attention four times a year and brush your teeth twice a day with a Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush.

This tooth brush really cleans every part of every tooth. The tufted bristles readily get between the teeth, while the curved handle makes it possible to reach even the backs of the back teeth.

Made in adult's, youth's, and child's sizes. Look for the name Pro-phy-lac-tic on the handle. Always sold in the yellow box. For sale by leading Canadian druggists.

Sometimes its the oven, and sometimes its the cook, but most often its the flour

OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR

is not a panacea for all baking ills. It is merely the best flour that you can buy. It gives you the best chance of good results.

We live in the World's greatest wheat producing country. We should know the best and use it. Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour is made from the choicest Manitoba Hard Spring Wheat. And just the centres of the kernels are used. When this has been ground into flour and passed every Ogilvie test; when its samples have been baked in an oven and made perfect pastry, cakes, biscuits, dough-nuts and bread, it is labelled and sold as Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour.
