By BILL TREXLER

SHERBROOKE — Local residents packed the YMCA gymnasium here last night to hear four local doctors scathingly indict Quebec's new medicare plan and forecast an inevitable deterioration in the quality of the province's health care.

The meeting was called by the doctors to inform the public of their view of the implications of the medicare scheme.

Dr. T.J. Quintin of Sherbrooke Hospital began the presentation with an outline of the history of medicare in Canada. "I'm reassured to see so many of the silent majority here to learn about a situation which is destroying your medical profession," he said, and continued with a denial that the medical profession in Canada has been hysterically opposed to a medicare system. He described the success of negotiated health care plans in other provinces and condemned the apathy of the Bourassa government toward the opinion of this province's medical profession.

In his opinion, the result of medicare can only be an

Here, we're no more than civil servants, he told the audience. "It sometimes seems as though one were working in a gas station."

"We've been too busy taking care of the sick to play politics," he said, in an attempt to explain the doctors' currently precarious position.

Next on the speakers' platform was Dr. Bernard Mongeau of Hotel Dieu in Sherbrooke. According to Dr. Mongeau, whose topic was the financial complexities of medicare, the new fee schedule designed by the government is "geared to quantity not quality."

He accused health minister Claude Castonguay of making a 30 per cent error in his estimate of doctor's total salaries in a study five years ago.

"He's asked the government to endorse his error," Dr. Mongeau said. "He had projected $266,000,000, so $266,000,000 it is."

"inflationary demand" for health care which will overload already heavy schedules. He suggested that many doctors will be signing their names with a new suffix FLQ, meaning, in his words, "Fellow leaving Quebec."

Most alarming was the speech delivered by Dr. A. A. Dougan of Lennoxville, who told of the beginning of an exodus of medical men from the province. "Only a miracle can save the situation," he said and described the vacancies on hospital staffs resulting from the passage of Bill 41 which ordered the doctors to resume practice.

He said, "41 have resigned from McGill, one major hospital is down to 50 per cent of its former surgical capacity," and added that the University of Sherbrooke Hospital has received five cancellations from future research physicians who had contracted previous to the passage of Bill 41. At Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, he described a rapidly deteriorating situation in which 15 of a teaching staff of 34 who were to arrive next year have made other employment arrangements to avoid the Quebec situation.

Dr. Dougan turned the platform over to Sherbrooke hospital's Dr. James Ross, a well-known surgeon, who spoke on the future of medicine in Quebec in light of the medicare legislation, especially Bill 41.

Closing on a pessimistic note, Dr. Ross said that doctors would be forced to "substitute volume for quality."

"It will take a few years for the decline in quality to become evident," he told the group, and predicted an unavoidable "depersonalization in the practice of medicine under the system of local, community, and regional health centers proposed by the government in which doctors would no longer be functioning as independent practitioners but would be organized into medical teams."

"We'll be locked into a formalized system of state medicine," he said, and asserted that such a development would be completely out of character with this country's democratic tradition of respect for the individual.

The program was followed by a question period. Dr. Dougan was asked by one woman just what an individual citizen could do about the situation. His reply: "Very little."

He was elected to the post at a general meeting of Liberal MNAs.

Stolen car really 'ditched'

AYER'S CLIFF (DM) — A stolen car found abandoned on the outskirts of this community was really "ditched", according to Ayer's Cliff police chief Wayne Little.

The gutted frame of the late-model automobile, owned by Hertel Fournier of Longueuil, was found yesterday in Norrie's gravel pit, three-quarters of a mile outside of this small community.

Chief Little told the Record that those responsible for the theft took the heater hose off the car, attached it to the gas tank and then siphoned the gas over the vehicle before setting fire to it.

The battery and wheels were missing when police inspected the remains of car, he said.

Charge to park at U of S

SHERBROOKE (DM) — Free parking on the University of Sherbrooke campus will soon be a thing of the past.

The university's administration council Tuesday night accepted and ratified a suggestion from a committee on the circulation problem to introduce a parking fee of 25 cents at an as yet undetermined date.

The action came as a result of the present problem of traffic control and the provincial government's reluctance to provide grants for the management and servicing of the university's parking facilities.

The committee said that it was up to those who avail themselves of the service to defray the costs.

The committee consisted of representatives from administration, faculty and students.

Langelier gets symphony post

MONTREAL (DM) — A Coaticook native has been appointed to the post of general-manager of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra.

Denis Langelier, currently on the administrative staff of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, will assume the responsibilities of Pierre Beique on Jan. 1.

He was born in Coaticook in 1940. He attended elementary and secondary school in Ste Hyacinthe and studied philosophy and political economics at the University of Montreal. He was a reporter and announcer in Ste Hyacinthe and Granby, joined the public relations department of Bell Canada in 1960 and moved to Toronto to work on TV commercial production in 1964.

Langelier joined the Toronto Symphony in 1967 as subscription manager. Four months later he was appointed assistant to the managing director, the position he now holds.

The injured were not identified, but police did say they were soon released from hospital.

The fire broke out around 5:15 a.m. in the basement of 13 Depot Street, one of a row of houses near Town hall, occupied by owner Mrs. Berthe Beaudoin and her family, five elderly persons, and some students.

Mrs. Beaudoin's son, Roch, 19, noticed the fire first and blew a mighty blast on his saxophone to alert the other residents.

Lennoxville police and firemen were on the scene "within seconds", as one bystander put it, and all 13 occupants were rapidly evacuated from the building.

Firemen had the blaze under control within two hours, but were unable to say what caused the fire.

Damage was restricted to the ground floor and to the basement, which was gutted.

May present tax cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield says Finance Minister Edgar Benson should "be required to sing or get away from the piano."

Mr. Benson is expected to sing a Santa Claus tune for Canadian tax payers next week or soon after.

Informants said Wednesday

the government will announce soon, probably this week, its decision whether to present a late fall budget or a less lengthy statement on means to stimulate the economy and employment.

The budget or statement will be presented in the Commons next week or early in the following week and, sources indicate, it will include tax cuts.

The form of any such tax cuts is secret. Works Minister Arthur Laing told the Commons Nov. 13 when he was acting prime minister that the government's measures "will have the effect of stimulating employment in the field which is the total responsibility of the government and encouraging it in the private sector."

Mr. Laing's reference to the private sector led to speculation about tax cuts. One authority said such cuts and other measures might amount to $300 million or more.

Mr. Stanfield has advocated elimination of the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials to provide some incentive to the construction industry.

He said it would not be enough for the government simply to eliminate the three-per-cent surcharge on personal and corporation income taxes which is scheduled to expire—but can be renewed—at the end of next month.

He has suggested that as well as letting the surtax expire, the government should allow an income tax reduction of at least six per cent.

Nixon fires Hickel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Claiming lack of "mutual confidence" between them, President Nixon fired Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel Wednesday and named Republican National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton to the job.

Hickel told reporters two hours later that in doing his job as secretary and being true to himself, "I had to do it my way." He refused to answer questions, but read only a short statement.

Hickel's dismissal was the first outright firing of a cabinet member in years and came in a surprise, face-to-face meeting to which Nixon summoned Hickel.

An aide said Morton was on a personal business trip to London, but declared that the interior post "was what he originally wanted to do."

The aide, Jim Allison Jr., said Nixon had promised the job to a Western governor after his election but asked Morton to take the interior post should a vacancy occur.

Allison denied Morton's appointment had anything to do with reports of growing friction between the White House and the Republican National Committee.

At his brief news conference, Hickel did not discuss his immediate situation or his future but a spokesman said the dismissal apparently is effective immediately.

Congressional reaction was swift and mostly critical from legislators getting ready to leave for the U.S. Thanksgiving weekend.

Senator Charles E. Goodell (Rep. N.Y.) said "a good and decent man has been purged by an administration that either cannot or will not tolerate even the slightest display of independence."

Senator Gaylord Nelson (Dem. Wis.) said he believed Hickel was fired because "he trampled on too many powerful toes including people in the Gulf of Mexico and Santa Barbara oil spills."

Representative Henry S. Reuss (Dem. Wis.), chairman of the House of Representatives subcommittee on conservation and natural resources, said Hickel "was evidently fired for taking his job of protecting the environment seriously."

Ombudsman received Lise Rose complaint

MONTREAL (CP) — Ombudsman Louis Marceau said Wednesday he received a written complaint Nov. 6 from Lise Rose, who told a coroner's inquest into the death of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister, that she was beaten by police during interrogation.

While not elaborating on the complaint, Mr. Marceau said in an interview the gist of it was similar to statements made by the woman Tuesday.

Miss Rose, 25-year-old sister of two brothers wanted in the Laporte kidnapping, said she was stripped and beaten by police.

She also complained about "inhuman conditions" at provincial police headquarters, where she was held until Tuesday night, when she was transferred to a Montreal women's prison.

Also sent there was Lise Balczer, a girlfriend of Paul Rose, wanted with his brother Jacques in the Laporte kidnapping.

Lise Rose said Tuesday that both women were in the seventh day of a hunger strike to protest alleged discrimination against them.

Both Miss Rose and Clement Roy are to be sentenced next Tuesday for contempt for refusing to testify at the coroner's inquest.

Miss Rose's lawyer, Gaetan Robert, said Tuesday that complaining to the ombudsman about his client's treatment would take up too much time, perhaps several months.

Chief Inspector Paul Benoit of the QPP said Wednesday an investigation would be opened into the treatment of Miss Rose, although he did not believe "what she said at the inquest."

Stylish, but cool

High fashion hits snowmobiling

TORONTO (CP) — The original snowmobile suit that made women look like astronauts was so unfashionable that some husbands complained their wives wouldn't get involved in the sport if they had to wear the rig.

The fashion industry took note and this year is offering fashion suits as well as regular, utilitarian wear.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

is an exciting partner, but not the sort you want when the chips are down. A winning player must learn to pass and take the worst of it on occasion.

West was one of those exciting players. He held five points opposite an opening no-trump and was not going to let that oil devil South pre-empt him out of his profit.

His double of three clubs rang out like a clarion. North and East passed happily.

North because he had some apparent support for his partner; East because he had a maximum no-trump with two aces and two kings.

South passed because he had no place to go.

West had a problem about his lead and he solved it as poorly as possible. He led the deuce of spades! South wasted no time making his doubled contract. He discarded a diamond on dummy's ace of spades, led a club and hopped up with the king when East played low.

Then he played a second club and relaxed. East cashed two diamonds right away and West did make his queen of clubs, but South had been doubled into game.

West claimed his double wasn't really bad. He pointed out that if he had opened a diamond, South would have gone down one trick, but East was unimpressed. He said there was no law that compelled West to enunciate any word but "Pass" with his one queen and three jacks and we are in full accord.

Dunn gets militia post

MONTREAL — Colonel John J. Dunn of Sherbrooke has been appointed Assistant to the Commander Secteur de l'Est (Milice), the new Militia headquarters in Montreal, the defence department said in a press release yesterday.

Brig-Gen Pierre Charbonneau is commander of the headquarters, responsible for all land reserves in Quebec, through three districts, one in Quebec City and two in Montreal.

Col. Dunn comes to his new post from being a Militia advisor to Western Quebec District Headquarters, forerunner of the present formation, which ceased operation Sept. 1, 1969. Previously he was commanding officer of Les Fusiliers de Sherbrooke.

Col. Dunn, although residing in Sherbrooke, will conduct his military affairs from Montreal, assisting Brig-Gen Charbonneau in directing activities of 27 Militia units totalling some 4,000 personnel spread throughout the province.

The task of the Reserves is to provide a backup force at the individual or unit level for Mobile Command.

Col. Dunn, 40, was educated at Loyola College High School and St. Patrick's High School, from which he graduated in 1946. He subsequently studied at Bishop's University, obtaining a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1950, after which he obtained a diploma in Business Administration from the University of Western Ontario in 1952.

He was commissioned in Les Fusiliers de Sherbrooke in 1948, rising through the ranks until he became commanding officer in 1960.

In civilian life, Col. Dunn is president of C. W. Dunn Insurance Inc., president of J. J. Dunn Investment Inc. and director of Sherbrooke Telegram Printing & Publishing Co. Ltd. He is also director of Radio Television Sherbrooke Inc., Sterling Insurance Company and Sintra Ltd., as well as being an executive with a number of other business firms.

Col. Dunn was recently elected first vice-president of the Canadian Infantry Association.

Caloil still fighting oil policy

MONTREAL (CP) — Caloil Inc., a Montreal-based gasoline distributor, will continue to fight against Canada's national oil policy despite rejection of its latest challenge by the Supreme Court of Canada, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Jacques Parizeau, speaking as economic consultant for the company, said Caloil was not sure what specific steps it will take but it will go ahead nonetheless with a challenge to the national oil policy.

He said Caloil's planned refinery near Quebec City could not go ahead because the recent court rulings cut the company's gasoline market in half.

The oil company went to the courts to test regulations giving the National Energy Board the right to dictate, as a condition of granting import licenses, where in Canada foreign gasoline can be sold.

The regulations are designed to enforce the national energy policy under which all of Canada west of the Ottawa Valley is reserved for products of domestic crude oil. Markets to the east of the boundary are not restricted and are served by cheaper foreign oil products.

Caloil had built its Ontario market, west of the NEB's policy line, to about 5,000 barrels a day through about 250 retail outlets. Caloil held an interest in about half of the outlets.

Caloil tried unsuccessfully to have the energy board regulations declared unconstitutional, arguing that a federal board has no authority to dictate where imported products are sold.

Public order debate Creditistes push for amendments

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Hardening opposition by Creditistes to the government's public order bill Wednesday sent debate on the replacement for the War Measures Act regulations into another day.

Creditiste spokesmen said they will move further amendments to the bill as debate on third reading continues today.

Justice Minister John Turner sought Commons agreement to extend Wednesday's session, pass the bill and send it to the waiting Senate. Conservatives agreed, but there were cries of "no" from the New Democrat and Creditiste benches and the House adjourned at its regular Wednesday time, 6 p.m.

Both New Democrats and Creditistes moved to send the bill back to committee of the whole for consideration of possible changes.

NDP MOTION LOST

An NDP motion against the retroactivity clause—which makes membership in the Front de Liberation du Quebec before or since Oct. 16 a crime—was defeated 115 to 89. Conservatives and Creditistes voted with the NDP.

Later, a Creditiste motion by Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Roberval) aimed at the bill's definition of "unlawful association" was defeated 160 to 28.

Voting against the motion with 103 Liberals were 57 Conservatives. But two Conservatives—Roch Lasalle (Joliette) and David MacDonald (Egmont)—broke ranks to vote with nine Creditistes and 47 New Democrats.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons is Liberal 153, Conservative 73, NDP 23, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 1.

AGAINST FORCEFUL CHANGE

The bill defines an unlawful association as the FLQ or any group that advocates the use of crime or force to achieve "governmental change within Canada with respect to the Province of Quebec or its relationship to Canada."

Mr. Gauthier said the bill should apply equally to all provinces. New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas and Mr. MacDonald, the Conservative MP who voted with the Creditistes, said the definition is unclear.

Mr. Turner said the definition clearly applies to FLQ activity anywhere in Canada. But it would be directed only against those who would use violence to overthrow the Quebec or federal governments in an effort to alter Quebec's relationship to Canada.

The government introduced the bill Nov. 2 to replace the emergency regulations of Oct. 16 which gave the authorities sweeping powers of arrest and detention following the FLQ kidnappings of British diplomat James Cross and Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister.

Before the vote on the New Democrat motion, Ross Whitcher (L-Bruce) said he wished the opposition "would stop this nonsense of bringing in amendments at every opportunity."

"Members of the FLQ aren't a bunch of Sunday-school kids, you know," said Mr. Whitcher.

MOST IN FAVOR

He said that when the original emergency regulations were invoked the only protests came from 1,000 Communists, 1,000 members of the FLQ, 16 New Democrats and one Conservative—a reference to Mr. MacDonald—while 22 million Canadians supported the government. Rene Matte (Creditiste—Champlain) retorted that MPs should not be required to decide on granting the government powers against civil liberties when emotions are high.

"We should not adopt legislation we would regret later on," he said.

The legislation would not give any more authority "to those who should already have resolved the situation"—a reference to police still seeking the kidnappers of Mr. Laporte and Mr. Cross.

Taxpayers reject omnibox plan

EDMONTON (CP) — Taxpayers turned down a $32.5 million bylaw Wednesday which would have provided funds needed for construction of a covered sport, trade and convention centre, known as Omnibox.

With 292 of 293 polls counted, the vote was 54.09 per cent against the bylaw and 45.91 per cent in favor.

A simple majority was needed to pass as about 71,000 of the approximately 132,000 eligible voters turned out.

Included in the proposed project was a covered football stadium, hockey rink, track and field facilities, trade and convention areas, restaurants and offices.

The centre would cost $22.9 million for the building with the remainder of the $32.5 million going for land acquisition, street widening, excavation, parking lots, equipment and furnishings.

LOCATED DOWNTOWN
The proposed site is about a three minute walk from Jasper Ave. and 100th Street, Edmonton's main downtown intersection.

The money bylaw was contained in a plebiscite held in conjunction with a byelection to fill a vacant city council seat.

Julian Kiniski won the byelection, forced by the death of his mother, Julia. He gained 55 per cent of the aldermanic vote to defeat eight other candidates.

Omnibox was said by its boosters to be without equal in the world.

"The only existing and somewhat similar concept is the Astrodome in Houston which does not hold trade shows or conventions, hockey or ice shows," said A. P. Morrow, interim project manager.

US Seventh Fleet bars reporters

SAIGON (AP) — In an unprecedented move, the U.S. 7th Fleet barred reporters today from its two carriers in the Tonkin Gulf, extending a news blackout on American activities over North Vietnam during the weekend.

Spokesmen conceded the move was made to prevent reporters from interviewing pilots from the carriers Ranger and Hancock who participated in bombing raids against North Vietnam. It was understood here the orders came from Washington. The ban also appeared designed to prevent reporters from finding out more about the American commando raid on a prisoner-of-war camp west of Hanoi.

There has been speculation the raid may have been staged by helicopters flying from one of the carriers, or that the commandos returned to one of the carriers when it was over.

It marked the first time in the Indochina war that reporters were barred from 7th Fleet ships.

Forgetting tradition

A British opinion survey reveals that most teenagers in the United Kingdom pay little attention to what the Royal Family does and many do not care much for its individual members.

This can be read in conjunction with indications that young people in Canada today regard the institution of the monarchy with growing indifference.

What it all adds up to is a gross failure on the part of the older generation in the true meaning and function of the monarchical system of government. The reported indifference is a manifestation of widespread ignorance.

Anyone who has a real knowledge of limited monarchy as it was evolved through painful periods of Anglo-Saxon history, knows that it is the best and freest system of government yet achieved by man. It carries the important element of continuity, it separates state symbolism from state politics, it rules out political dictatorship, guarantees constitutional freedom and makes for easy adjustment to change.

A generation of youth which is ignorant of its heritage and uncomprehending of its institutions is easy prey to influences and agencies, internal and external, which seek to overthrow established society.

Youthful minds which contain empty pages will soon find people eager to write their own twisted messages upon them. Youths having nothing to believe in will be eager to learn from proselytizers of perverted faiths. Young people hunger for something to believe in. That this generation has failed to provide the right kind of nourishment is sad to contemplate.

Pakistan disaster aid

The Canadian government has, wisely, had second and more generous thought about the amount of assistance to be given the flood victims of Pakistan. The original announcement of the government's intentions said $50,000 would be given — a pitifully inadequate amount when laid alongside the need and also what Canada can afford.

To this now has been added emergency relief supplies worth $2 million and Canadian forces aircraft and possibly commercial planes as well will be used to send drugs, medicine and other needed supplies to the stricken area.

The government's contribution does not, of course, preclude Canadians from making their own individual contributions toward helping the victims of what may be the worst natural disaster of this century.

A number of campaigns have been quickly put into operation and people who wish to help have the opportunity to do so through these. One such is the East Pakistan Relief Fund, a committee which has been formed in Montreal to collect money, medicine, clothing and food. A local branch of this group has been established at Bishop's University and those wishing to make donations can contact Dr. Attab Mufti by dialing 562-5455.

Canada has had its share of natural disasters in the past—though none on the scale of the Pakistan cyclone and flood. In our times of trouble the outside world has come quickly to our aid. The least we can do is to reciprocate to the fullest extent to which we are able.

ID cards...

Dear Sir,
Letters which I have been reading in newspapers have shown concern about Quebec's suggested identification cards. Some claim that such cards would not help in the fight against crime, others fear what might happen if these cards were to fall into the hands of a dictatorial government. I think we may count the last argument out, since if a dictator ever seized power he could soon get out I.D. cards if he wished and we would not argue. Whether we had them before he took power or not would be irrelevant. I think these cards could be of great help in the fight against crime, since it is known that big time criminals often live under a variety of names and disguises. One can change his name or make-up but it would be rather difficult to change his finger prints.

Loss of freedom is another good argument — but — let us consider a few points. Over a year ago The Montreal Gazette had an item 'Underworld victim no. 24 found'. How many people have been killed this year? Underworld killings, Motorcycle gangs etc? True these people killed by these groups are often not valuable members of society — but — has anyone considered that these people were human beings before they became underworld figures? Can any of us really say that our freedom, or for that matter our lives, are safe while these gangs are at large?

Still another argument is the cost of such a project at a time when we are trying to keep costs down, or re-direct them toward more social work and better conditions for the poor. Let us consider a few items from the news of the last couple of years: Nov. 7, 1968 'Mail robbery loot set at $300,000' — Mar. 20, 1969, Two bandits—escaped—with $38,000, Sept. 23, 1969, Thieves escaped with $300,000. This year's news carried items such as this: —two men who kidnapped a bank manager, his wife and child and fled with $35,000 before releasing them, Oct. 21, four armed men took between $80,000 and $100,000, Nov. 20, $100,000 taken in four separate robberies, and Aug. 22, Fraud racket cheats the Quebec government out of $400,000.

The above mentioned items are only a very few of the larger robberies committed in Quebec. Almost every newspaper I have picked up over the last two years has had an account of at least one robbery, sometimes it may be only a small amount like two or three thousand dollars, a car or two or three, T.V. sets, again we must realize that not all robberies are reported, in our newspapers. All this vast amount of money and goods is lost from our economy, some of it is covered by insurance, other like the banks are backed by the government. But who in the end pays for it? You and I, insurance premiums are gauged according to the risk involved, the government runs on our taxes. In the final analysis this money is stolen from the honest tax payer and the poor, there is no one else to pay for it.

We have got to stop this drain on our economy before we can really do anything to help the poor, and let the honest person have a chance to make a living. We must spend a great deal more on police work, and if I.D. cards will help to catch these gangsters, I for one am quite willing to accept them.

Was grand design frustrated?

OTTAWA — Tories are nicer but more given to suicidal behavior. New Democrats are livelier, better-informed and much more pugnacious. Liberals? Liberal conferences? Well, they are much more prosperous and modish than the others. They also have a better mix of youth and middle-aged men and women as delegates. They have a greater loyalty and respect for their leadership. This last is not just a Trudeau phenomenon. The same sense of appreciative responsibility was evident in the days of Pearson, St. Laurent and King.

You can take from this introduction that the Liberal policy conference was impressive but not inspiring, busy but not exciting. It had in it the grist for many stories, particularly ones which would interpret the significance of the voting on resolutions. My only comment on these results is not flippant but is too premature for wisdom. The delegates were much more radical on social issues than on economic ones. Nationalistic ferment vis-a-vis the U.S. was present but it was mild. The Prime Minister is recognized as the party's cathedral, worthy of devotion. Clearly, all other party figures (and the leaders of other parties) are little huts in the shadow of his spire.

By far the most interesting questions about this conference cannot be answered for some months, perhaps not until the next one when the "accountability" of the leadership is or may be put to the test. Before I elaborate, I make these generalizations about the quality and character of the conference. The press, radio and TV people covering the gathering were overwhelmingly cynical about it as anything other than an exercise in keeping the party membership deluded that it has a role to play between elections. On the other hand, the majority of the ordinary constituency delegates I canvassed enjoyed the conference. They thought it worthwhile; they believed they had initiated a new process to determine the future policy of the Government. The activists of the party — MPs and

FISHER

MPs and the younger people intent on causes — tended to be less enthusiastic. The elected men are dour about the possibility of embarrassment to the Government through policy ideas which are ahead of the realities of time, funds and provincial relations. They also balance, often gloomily, the gains from wide-scale participation against what the process may mean in further demeaning their role as elected representatives in Parliament. In other words, the new system would tend to bypass them. Why should the Prime Minister take a reading of the nation's wishes from his caucus when he has this centralized polling from the party?

The younger activists whom I talked to are frank and rude. "It's crap. A PR game. A Trudeau love-in," said Phil Elder, a university teacher, the leader of a small core of Londoners who bucked the blandness and "motherhood" of the policy resolutions. Or as Lloyd Axworthy, a Winnipeg radical (radical for a Liberal), put it: "It's a beautiful exercise meaning not much of anything."

How binding will the decisions of the conference be on the leadership? There has always been a gulf between members and leaders of all our parties, even in the NDP — which prides itself that its members in convention determine the lines which its elected members follow. This conference was the breakthrough into a new, very modern means of bridging this gulf, so Senator Richard Stanbury, the party president, has claimed.

The conference was hardly breaking up before Mr. Trudeau was denying one of its resolutions. By a small majority the delegates had approved a measure to create an independent review board to "vet" the operations of Government officials and police who use the powers unleashed by the proclamation of the War Measures Act. This was a proposal advanced by the opposition parties in the Commons and rejected by the Government. In a TV interview Sunday afternoon, Mr. Trudeau rejected it again. He told the country that he represented all the people of Canada. He seemed to be broadening his role as Prime Minister beyond or away from his identity as party leader. This is the traditional reaction along the pattern of the bad old days in the party which Mr. Stanbury had just proclaimed as dead. In 1966, Lester Pearson quickly denied some free trade resolutions from the policy conference of that year.

Several party officials, including National Director Torrance Wiley, told me that there is no detailed commitment in the party constitution that any or all of the program finalized by this conference's delegates must be taken up by the Government. Of course, the so-called political cabinet will discuss them. And at the next convention the party leader will be open to questions and criticism for those items he has failed to implement.

The Prime Minister's rejection of the review board followed his rejection of a guaranteed annual income in the question period Friday night. This was anticipating, in a sense interfering with the appraisal of the delegates, since they had yet to vote on some resolutions which advocated a guaranteed annual income.

If the decisions of the delegates as they are crystallized in "the program for the 70s" are not binding on the leadership, then the grand design expressed by Stanbury, Wiley, and the conference chairmen is merely that — another futile and expensive attempt to make meaningful the participation by the rank and file of a party. This may be sad for the whole political process. It is very sad for the moderate and so self-consciously responsible 2,000 who took their task seriously last weekend.

MATTER OF FACT JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON — Long ago, the rule was suggested in this space that no one could tell what Soviet marshals thought, but you could at least tell how they looked — which is like Gen.

Curtis Lemay carried to the third power. Now, however, it is also possible to tell a little of the way they think because of the testimony of the very high-level Czechoslovak military defector, Gen. Jan Seina.

It is sadly important to know how Soviet marshals think, too, because of the key fact in the Seina testimony. In 1967, the Soviet military leaders were, in fact, able to defy the civilian party bosses of the theoretically ruling Soviet Presidium and thus to force the appointment of Marshal Andrei Grechko as the new Soviet defense minister.

Marshal Grechko is still on the job. And Gen. Seina's testimony is doubly valuable precisely because he had so many opportunities to observe Marshal Grechko in action, when the latter was Warsaw Pact commander from July, 1960, to April 13, 1967.

The results are not exactly reassuring. At the Warsaw Pact meetings (which Gen. Seina regularly attended) Grechko freely admitted that general war was undesirable until the Soviets had a decisive lead in nuclear weapons. But he also promised that the Soviets would achieve such a lead by 1980, at the very latest.

At the fairly alcoholic feasts that followed the formal meetings, Grechko was given to boasting about what would happen when this decisive Soviet lead was finally attained. The Americans, he would say, "would get their orders," and if the United States was obstinate, the United States would then be destroyed.

A large discount must obviously be made here for a Soviet marshal's idea of the right stuff to feed the satellite-troops.

Even so, one is impressed by the strong indication that the Soviet military leaders genuinely believe in the possibility, so often denied in this country, of a truly decisive nuclear-strategic lead.

Yet Marshal Grechko was also given to treating the highest personages of the Eastern European satellite states with open contempt. He is unlikely, therefore, to have taken any of them into his inmost confidence. Hence, the instances of this contempt, also from the Seina testimony, are probably more significant than anything else.

One instance concerned a holiday in Prague taken by Grechko and his family. To please Grechko, President Antonin Novotny ordered his country villa, Lani, to be specially staffed as a vacation retreat for the great man. A banquet was prepared. A picked welcoming committee, including Seina, was waiting on the steps of Lani when three limousines, carrying the Warsaw Pact commander and his party, swept up before the villa door.

Only Grechko troubled to leave the first car. The welcoming committee eagerly told him all that had been done to make his stay at Lani pleasant. He answered with just one word.

"Good." And he got back into his big car, returned to Prague with his party and never bothered to see Lani again.

As to instance Number Two, it is a rather long story which must here be compressed. Briefly, Grechko ordered a breakfast conference at 8 a.m. at a Warsaw Pact meeting in Prague. On the dot of 8, the defense ministers of six supposedly independent states were waiting for the marshal with their staffs. At 9 a.m., the word came that the marshal was still sleeping.

At 10 a.m., there was the happy news that he had waked. But then there was the further word that he had gone for a little prebreakfast stroll. And the famished party did not begin their breakfast until 11 a.m., when the powerful satrap of Eastern Europe at last deigned to appear, with all his medals glittering and without a single word of apology.

This kind of crass, unthinking rudeness to leaders of subject peoples would be hard to match in the wicked annals of Western imperialism. From these mere social notes from Eastern Europe, in fact, any sensible man can deduce the powerful role of the Soviet military leaders in the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Less than total subjection is obviously too little for such a man as Grechko.

The picture that finally emerges is one of a man of great power — for the Seina testimony is emphatic that Grechko is strong-minded as well as strong-charactered — but a man who is also arrogant, chauvinist and brutal in an extreme degree.

And this, please remember, is the man now planning the next Soviet military moves in the Middle East!

WHAT'S THIS?

Surely this must be molten lava rolling down the side of an erupting volcano. Right? Wrong. It's a piece of crisp bacon, magnified, of course, as photographed by a scanning electron microscope.

NORTON RESIDENCE

CHAPEL — With the closing of the Sherbrooke School of Nursing, long housed at the Norton Residence next to the Sherbrooke Hospital, it has become necessary to convert the chapel-room to other purposes.

The Chapel, dedicated to "St. Luke, the Beloved Physician", has for many years provided a place of quiet meditation and worship for the girls and staff of the residence. Many former graduates will remember with gratitude the ministry provided by the clergy of St. Peter's Church, who were responsible for the regular Holy Communion Services and pastoral ministrations to girls from every part of the Eastern Townships and beyond.

The Chapel was tastefully furnished with gifts and memorials given by former graduates of the school of nursing and by members of St. Peter's Church. Canon Franklin has suggested that some of these furnishings could be offered to the Bishop of Quebec and placed in the new churches now being built along the Labrador Coast.

Activities at Stanstead College

By IVY HATCH

STANSTEAD — Everyone is back from the mid term break and preparing for the Christmas exams from Dec. 9th to 17th.

On Nov. 20th, members of the staff took 21 boys to the AGRHS at Lennoxville where five schools participated in an interschool debate. Bishop's ended in top place.

The topic was the War Measures Act with Ken Lemon and Guy Babeu on the debating teams of ten plus a chairman.

There were about 80 students in the audience.

Two Stanstead boys, Bill Miner and Paul Finestone were among the student judges. On Dec. 4th there will be a parliamentary debate at Bishop's for students of grade nine and under, with representation from Stanstead.

Last Wednesday evening Mrs. P. Duncan and W. Walker, staff and the following students Bill Miner, Paul Finestone, Fred Horler, Bob Campbell and Michael Pierce were at Bishop's University debating workshop where Louise Beaulieu, a top Canadian debater, was the speaker. The debating society of Bishop's have taken on the Zone debating league.

Cadets are back in training. This was discontinued for a period because of the War Measures Act. The Fencing club is practising as there will be fencers in the Sherbrooke Fencing Club tournament this weekend. On Sunday the boys will be at another tournament in Montreal. There are 20 students in the club.

During the evening, she was joined by 14 members of the family including four generations for dinner served in her home.

A birthday cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Benoit Blais, was her favorite chocolate, iced in white with orange and green trim, a gift of the celebrant's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Walsh.

Grammie was wearing a black silk dinner gown and a corsage of red sweetheart roses, a gift of Golden Star Chapter OES.

Several pictures were taken. Attending the dinner party were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Terrance Walsh, Derby Line; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Varney and Stanley; Mrs. Addie Varney of Lennoxville; Mrs. Violet Badger, who lives with her mother, Mrs. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Badger and Bob of Stanstead and Mr. Terry Badger, Sherbrooke.

Another from a granddaughter, Mrs. Rodney Howitt in London, Ont. and other messages by mail from other grandchildren living at a distance.

On her arrival at Mrs. Proctor's, Mrs. Mayotte was ushered into a room where many relatives and friends were gathered. They greeted her by singing "Happy Birthday."

Mrs. Mayotte was showered with many beautifully wrapped gifts, a clock radio and a purse of money. A lunch was served by Mrs. St. Jean, another daughter of Mrs. Mayotte. A gaily decorated cake was brought in. The cake was made by Mrs. Dorothy Proctor and decorated by Mrs. Merle Best. Mrs. Mayotte cut the cake.

Mrs. Mayotte thanked the guests for the gifts and for an enjoyable evening. Seven of Mrs. Mayotte's daughters were present: Mrs. Jean St. Jean, Mrs. Dorothy Proctor, Mrs. Elsie Killen, Mrs. Merle Best, Mrs. Lucy Shepherd, Mrs. Harold Lapointe and Mrs. Mable Proctor as well as one daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Killen, three grand-daughters and three great-grandchildren.

DO YOU REALIZE that over 6 generations of Canadians—children and adults—have used DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY for relief of diarrhea? My own grandmother was a booster of Dr. Fowler's... and for a very good reason. Fowler's is a gentle, restorative formula, based on roots and herbs. It relieves nausea and cramps... and gently restores intestinal balance. Dr. Fowler's is not constipating, although it does act quickly. It has come to the aid of many a distressed mother after her children have over-indulged in food or play. For soothing relief from embarrassing, uncomfortable diarrhea, keep Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry on hand.

AT THE VERY FIRST SIGN of a cold... here's what I do. I simply add a pouch of NeoCitrin to a glass of hot water, drink it and go to bed. You see, NeoCitrin (the only cold remedy that comes in powdered form) when added to water becomes a warm, soothing, lemon-flavoured drink. But in addition to the immediate inner comfort you feel, NeoCitrin's special ingredients go to work at once to relieve the aches and ease the fever of a cold. I find that NeoCitrin helps me sleep better... so I feel better! Get a box of lemon-flavoured NeoCitrin to-day... at any drug counter.

Guinea again appeals for aid

DAKAR, Senegal (AP) — President Sekou Toure of Guinea called on all "friendly countries" Wednesday for fighter and bomber aid against a new series of "enemy incursions" he blames on Portugal.

The radio appeal from Conakry, the capital, was addressed to nations outside Africa and asked "for all the immediate help they judge possible."

The radio claimed for the fourth straight day that enemy forces tried to invade the country during the night but were repulsed.

Leon Hamon, a spokesman for the French government, said in Paris his government had confirmation that "forces from the outside" have contributed to the incidents in the former French colony and France "can only deplore such actions."

PARTY ATTACKED

Informed sources in Freetown, Sierra Leone, said Wednesday the raiders sacked the headquarters of the African Party for the Independence of Guinea and the Cape Verde Islands the sources said. The party leads the rebel movement in neighboring Portuguese-ruled Guinea.

In Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, headquarters of the Organization of African Unity, the OAU secretary-general Diallo Telli said that troops in Nigeria, Algeria, Libya, Egypt and Sudan were ready to intervene at the first signal from the Guinean government.

Telli, a Guinean national, said the aircraft were needed to fight "the Portuguese submarines and warships that are still patrolling" Guinea's territorial waters.

Portugal has denied all involvement in the conflict and says all its submarines are in Europe.

In Paris, the influential newspaper Le Monde reported from Dakar that the invasion force that landed in Guinea Saturday night was made up essentially of Guinean emigres opposed to Toure's leftist regime.

PORTUGUESE HELP

Le Monde said they received limited training, transport and leadership from the Portuguese army in Bissau, capital of Portuguese Guinea.

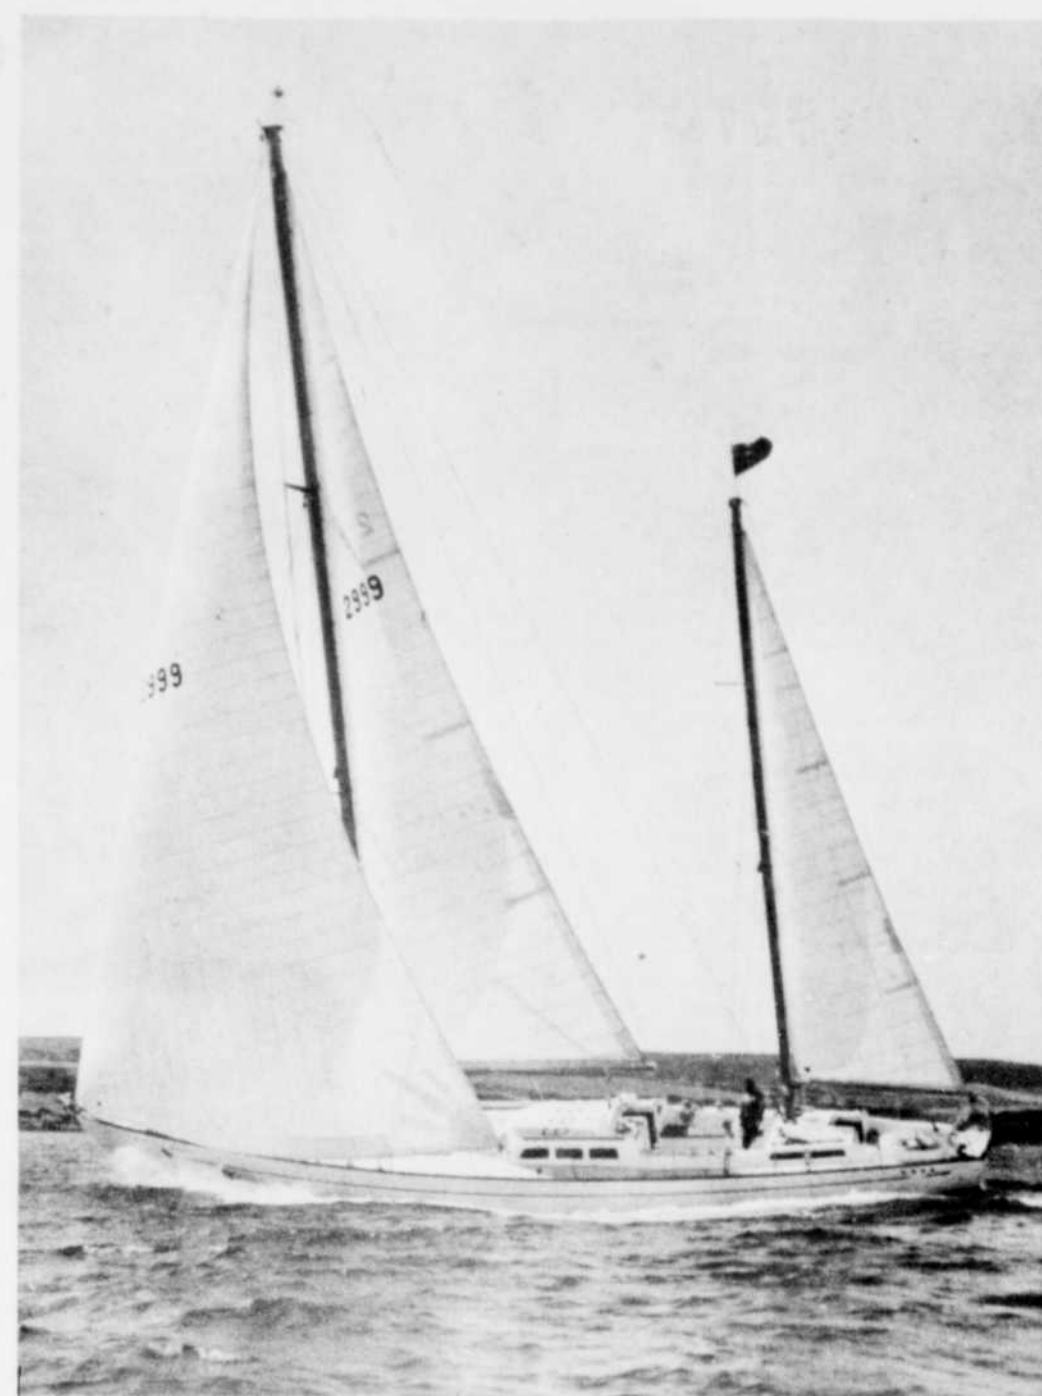

The situation in Conakry was almost impossible to assess because no outside correspondents were on the scene. An officer of the neighboring republic of Mali, Charles Samba Sissoko, told reporters: "The atmosphere in Conakry is now calm and serene. Damage is not enormous."

Telli, on the other hand, said he was informed that Toure's presidential palace was burned and that the fighting had taken about 400 lives, including many Europeans.

A United Nations investigative committee was awaited in the Guinean capital.

LUXURIOUS YACHT — Ocean Spirit, shown shortly after launching at Poole, on England's southern coast, is described as the world's biggest glass-fibre sailing yacht. The yacht

Canada aiding Pakistan relief

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian International Development Agency officials said Wednesday four more Canadian Forces flights to East Pakistan are planned by Saturday as Canada finishes the first part of its disaster relief program to the cyclone-battered nation.

Since Nov. 20, nine flights, carrying tons of blankets, tents and medical supplies, have left Trenton, Ont., for the 9,325-mile trip.

Two more flights will leave Trenton Friday, and the last two, barring a request for additional supplies from Pakistan, will leave Saturday.

All relief material will eventually be funneled into the Ganges River Delta region of East Pakistan where a cyclone and tidal wave the night of Nov. 12-13 killed at least 200,000 persons and left perhaps 2.5 million persons homeless and without food or drinking water.

High-protein concentrates and meat kits are also being shipped to East Pakistan but the Pakistani government relief commissioner indicated to CIDA that food is not a priority item.

More important were drugs and blankets in the face of a possible epidemic of diseases, including cholera.

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp admitted Wednesday that Canada's relief supplies to East Pakistan include enough typhoid and cholera vaccine to treat 12 persons.

He added, however, in reply to Barnett Danson (L-York North) that Canada has a short stock of such vaccine because of the rarity of the illnesses here.

The World Health Organization had advised that it could get the vaccines more effectively from sources nearer the typhoon-struck Ganges Delta, where a cyclone and tidal wave struck.

TORONTO (CP) — Pakistan is receiving more aid money than it is able to "absorb completely," Alan Brash, a director of the World Council of Churches, said Wednesday.

Mr. Brash, a New Zealander who directs the council's Division of Inter-City Aid, Refugee and World Service, said people should not insist on "adding to the pile" of aid money flowing into Pakistan.

"The money is not more than they will need, but more than they will be able to absorb, and the government of Pakistan has said this," Mr. Brash said.

Papal illness rumored

PARIS (AP) — Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, senior member of the college of cardinals, said Wednesday night Pope Paul is "visibly ill." The Vatican's press spokesman called the statement "groundless" and said there was "no basis that could lead to such a conclusion."

Earlier Wednesday, the Pope's personal physician, Mario Fontana, pronounced him in good health and fit for his forthcoming trip to Asia and Australia. The doctor said the Pope recently underwent a thorough medical checkup.

The Cardinal said it was "public knowledge" that the Pope "was supported as he left his audience" last Wednesday.

"I have never heard" the report, the Vatican spokesman responded.

In an interview on French television, the French-born cardinal was asked if the Pope was thinking of retiring instead of holding the highest office of the Roman Catholic Church for life.

"This has been said," replied Cardinal Tisserant, who at 85 was affected by the Pope's ruling this week that cardinals over 80 could no longer take an active part in church affairs.

"It has been repeated many times. His state of health is such that it could well be that he has no need to take a decision on the subject."

Asked if the Pope was currently ill, he said: "It is visible, but I have not spoken to his doctor."

US ship refuses asylum to Russian defector

BOSTON (AP) — Coast guard officials said Wednesday that they and not the state department made the decision to return a Soviet radio operator to his own fishing vessel after he sought asylum aboard a coast guard cutter off the Massachusetts coast Monday.

Capt. Fletcher W. Brown, chief of staff of the 1st Coast Guard District, said he and Rear Admiral W. B. Ellis, the 1st District commander, made the decision.

"We had advised the state department of the possible situation erupting," Brown said. "There was no response from the state department."

MET FOR CONFERENCE

Three fishing industry representatives, aboard the Vigilant at the time of the incident, said the coast guard ship and the Soviet fishing vessel were tied alongside each other near Martha's Vineyard for a conference on fishing rights in the North Atlantic.

Ralph E. Eustis, commander of the Vigilant, told a news conference Wednesday that the treatment the sailor received in being returned to his ship "was very rough and far beyond the standards our life style would allow." He said the sailor was tied from neck to feet with rope. Eustis said the Russians gave no indication what would happen to the crew member.

SYMPOSIUM: Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio and Television Commission, was the guest speaker at the luncheon session of University of Sherbrooke's Business Administration Faculty's symposium on the cultural product industry of Quebec. The bi-annual symposium concentrated on the T.V., film, and record segments of the industry. Panelists at the morning and afternoon sessions included impresario Guy Latraverse, Laurier Lapierre, the NFB's Andre Lamy, Tele-Metropole's Col. Paul L'Anglais and Famous Player's Jacques Champagne.

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

May offer compensation

QUEBEC (CP) — The government is prepared to give "serious attention" to any recommendations by the Quebec ombudsman that persons arrested without cause under the War Measures Act be compensated. Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Wednesday.

Mr. Choquette told the Quebec national assembly this would apply to individuals who feel they were arrested "without serious reason of suspicion" or who were picked up in a "faulty" fashion.

The justice minister did not elaborate on the form of compensation or who in particular would be eligible for it.

More than 450 persons were arrested in the weeks after the War Measures Act was invoked in Ottawa Oct. 16. About 60 are still being detained.

FLQ suspect duo appear

QUEBEC (CP) — Richard Hudson, 24, a native of Alabama, and Ronald Noel, 21, of Quebec City appeared in court Wednesday and were remanded to Nov. 27 when a date of their preliminary hearings will be set.

Hudson, now a resident of L'Islet, Que., and Noel were arrested under the War Measures Act.

They are charged with advocating or promoting the unlawful acts, aims, principles or policies of the outlawed Front de liberation du Quebec on or about Oct. 17.

Noel is also accused of having declared himself to be a member of the FLQ, the separatist terrorist group which has claimed responsibility for the kidnapping of James Cross, British trade commissioner, the kidnapping of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister.

Denis Roy, arrested with Hudson and Noel, was charged under the Criminal Code with the illegal possession of a revolver. His hearing was set for Jan. 15.

Sees no way for UN-PQ merger

QUEBEC (CP) — An eventual merger of the Union Nationale party and the separatist Parti Quebecois is out of the question, Jean-Guy Cardinal, education minister in the former Union Nationale government, said Wednesday.

He told about 500 Laval University students that "it is impossible to contemplate an eventual fusion" between the two parties because there is too much diversity of opinion within the organizations themselves.

However, Mr. Cardinal, who represents Bagot in the national assembly and is known for nationalist leanings, admitted that several of his positions approach those of the PQ and he would soon have to choose between the two.

When students pressed him to reveal which political option he planned to take, Mr. Cardinal would only say:

"There will be a (leadership) convention of the Union Nationale and we will see then who is elected and what the ideology of the new leader is. At that time I will be obliged to make a choice."

Administration changes made

SHERBROOKE — University of Sherbrooke has announced a change in its administration.

It has agreed to a request by the Council of Quebec Universities that Dr. Louis-Paul Dugal devote more time to his functions as chairman of the CUQ's program committee, a post he was appointed to last February.

Accordingly, the university has announced that Mr. Dugal has been relieved of his duties as vice-rector of administrative affairs while retaining his post of vice-rector of research.

As a result of this modification in the functions of Mr. Dugal, chancellor His Excellency Mgr. Jean-Marie Fortier has announced the following nominations, effective immediately.

Abbe Daniel Croteau, curator of university libraries, becomes interim secretary-general. The secretary-general, in addition to his prescribed duties, is at the same time director of the public relations service of the university.

Jean-Jacques St-Pierre, secretary-general of the university, becomes vice-rector of administrative affairs.

These nominations have been made with the understanding that they may be modified by suggestions which will come from the ongoing structural revision committee.

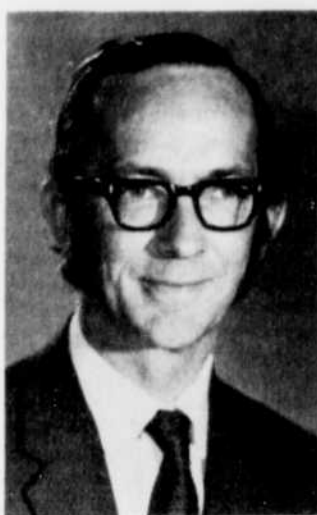

Andrzej H. Mrozewski has been named curator of the university libraries.

Dr. Louis-Paul Dugal

A native of Quebec, Dr. Dugal received his BA at Laval University in 1931. He gained his master of arts (science) in 1933 and his master of science (chemistry) at the same university in 1934. Pursuing his studies further, he qualified for his Ph.D. at the University of Pennsylvania in 1939.

His teaching career began at the University of Montreal in 1935. He became head professor of general physiology in the science faculty there in 1945.

He left Montreal for Quebec City that year where he became full professor in experimental physiology at the Laval Medical faculty.

From 1956 to 1962, he was director of the biology department as well as vice-dean of the faculty of pure and applied sciences at the University of Ottawa. He was named dean of the faculty in 1962.

On July 1, 1965, he accepted the post of assistant-director of the science secretariat at the Privy Council in Ottawa.

In 1966, he became vice-dean in the faculty of medicine at the University of Sherbrooke. The following year, he took on the responsibilities of vice-rector of administrative affairs and, in 1968, of vice-rector of research.

His research works have concentrated on the resistance and acclimatization of mammals to low temperature and on the physiology of man at high altitudes.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH: An Alexander Galt Regional High School player crashes into the Stanstead College net late in yesterday's senior game between the two schools at Bishop's University. The puck stayed out, however, and the sides settled for a 2-2 tie. Bill Robinson and Steve Mitchell posted Stanstead to a 2-0 lead, but goals from Scott Planché and Ian Bailey brought Alexander Galt back to even terms.

Paces Hawks to win

Younger Hull shows his mettle

When Dennis Hull jumped directly to Chicago Black Hawks in 1964 from junior ranks, there was some talk around the National Hockey League that the only reason was big brother Bobby.

The Golden Jet had just racked up 43 goals and 44 assists in the 1963-64 season, the fifth consecutive year in which he had scored more than 30 goals for the Hawks.

Some people suspected Dennis of finding a ride on the tail of his brother's sweater.

But since leaving St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Dennis has thrown water on the theory by becoming one of the Hawks' steadiest performers.

Last season, the 26-year-old left winger scored 17 goals and assisted on 35 others for 52 points, 12 less than his best year ever.

SCORES SEVENTH

He fired his seventh goal of this campaign Wednesday night and sparked the Hawks to a 5-3 win over Montreal Canadiens.

In other games Wednesday, Los Angeles Kings dumped California Golden Seals 3-1, Buffalo Sabres and Pittsburgh Penguins played to a 4-4 tie and Philadelphia Flyers upset New York Rangers 3-1.

At Chicago, the Point Anne, Ont., brothers accounted for five points as the Hawks moved four points ahead of the idle St. Louis Blues in the West Division standings.

Dennis added one assist to his goal while Bobby tallied his 12th goal and two assists, moving up to third in NHL scoring with 27 points, eight back of Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins who leads with 35 points.

The Hawks took the lead on the younger Hull's first-period goal and never looked back despite being outshot 32-29 by the Habs, who remained in third spot on the East Division standings with 23 points, three less than the Rangers and four behind Boston.

MARSHALL HITS TWICE

Buffalo second period, scoring two goals as the Sabres picked up their third tie of their maiden NHL year. The ties plus four wins moved the Sabres into a last-place deadlock with Toronto Maple Leafs in the East Division, each with 11 points.

Rookie Bob Kelly celebrated his 20th birthday at Philadelphia by scoring the winning goal early in the second period against the Rangers. The win snapped a string of seven ties between the two clubs and New York's four-game winning streak.

At Oakland, Mike Byers whipped in two goals as the Kings broke a string of five successive losses. The loss was the Seals' fifth in a row.

Gaiters set to re-open U of S hockey rivalry

SHERBROOKE (SA) — Ottawa St. Lawrence Athletic Association hockey action tonight pits Bishop's University Gaiters against University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold at the Sports Palace.

The first meeting of the 1970-71 season between the local rivals may serve to clear up some of the confusion which grew out of Loyola College Warriors' visit here last week.

The Warriors whipped the Green and Gold 8-0 Thursday while Bishop's struggled to a 3-2 win over MacDonald College Clansmen. Friday night, Sherbrooke handled MacDonald easily, 12-0, and the Warriors had to settle for a 2-2 standoff against the Gaiters in Lennoxville.

Bishop's is undefeated with two victories and a tie in three contests and is in second place in the OSLAA standings, a point behind University of Quebec at Three Rivers. Patriots, who defeated the Warriors 6-3 last night.

Sherbrooke has two wins and a loss and is a point in arrears of Bishop's and Loyola. The Warriors have played one game more than the Gaiters.

As if the matchup between the two local universities were not enough motivation, the Green and Gold skaters are evidently still smarting from their punishment at the hands of the Warriors last week. Coach Tony Heffernan's charges are "up" for the Bishop's contest.

The coach shuffled two of his forward lines between the Loyola and MacDonald contests, and 12 goals in the latter game determined that the units should remain the same for tonight's affair.

As before, Alain Dumas will centre Normand Gingues and Guy Delisle. That trio has produced eight of Sherbrooke's 15 goals in three games.

The other units comprise centre Daniel Bouillon and wingers Normand Deslisle and Yvon Robert and pivot Andre Boisvert with Alfred Charland and Roger Vincent.

The Gaiters number a large contingent of newcomers to OSLAA varsity play, but the team has demonstrated a willingness to hit and carry the play.

The Sports Palace date tonight, set for an 8 p.m. start, should attract a good crowd to view the newest installment in an intense but respectful rivalry.

BASKETBALL

University of Sherbrooke varsity basketballers will entertain two teams of visitors this weekend.

Royal Military College Redmen of Kingston, Ont., will provide the first opposition tomorrow evening at 7:30.

MacDonald College Clansmen will drop in on the Green and Gold Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. for another contest.

The Sherbrooke squad suffered a 105-50 defeat by Loyola last Friday in Montreal, but bounced back to down Sir George Williams University Georgians 79-52 in a Saturday afternoon outing.

RMC has a big and experienced team which should certainly provide a challenging contest for the Green and Gold.

The Redmen and MacDonald have already played each other twice this season, the Clansmen taking a 63-59 first-game win and RMC recovering for a 48-32 victory the second time out. The Green and Gold appear to be in for a pair of games against consistent and comparable opposition.

Marcel Bergeron and Pierre Ferda is the key men in the Sherbrooke attack and both have had outstanding success in the early going.

Defensively, the Green and Gold rely on Serge Talbot, Rejean Cote, Claude Gratton and Serge Roy, a dedicated court performer.

Bishop's University basketball Gaiters, meanwhile, follow up last night's contest with McGill University Redmen by playing host to MacDonald tomorrow evening and Royal Military College Saturday.

VOLLEYBALL

Since 1965, University of Sherbrooke volleyball team has had the most consistent success of any Green and Gold squad.

This year's edition of the team will attempt to maintain the proud tradition, starting tomorrow in the first of three tournaments to be played over the course of the season to determine an OSLAA champion.

The opening competition is to be held at RMC in Kingston, and the second event, Saturday, Dec. 5, will be conducted at College Militaire Royal in St-Jean. The third competition is set for Sir George Williams in Montreal Jan. 16.

The team holding first place after the three rounds will be host to the other schools for the playoffs Feb. 13.

Sherbrooke has only three players back from last year's squad. They are Jean-Pierre Lemelin, Paul Germain and Pierre Ostiguy. There are a number of promising rookies, however, and coach Denis Cusseau is hard-pressed to select his team.

Sherbrooke won its first volleyball OSLAA title in 1966 and repeated the feat the following year. The Green and Gold lost in the Canadian final in 1967 to University of British Columbia.

Sherbrooke finished behind champion University of Ottawa in 1968, but came back to take the crown again the next year. Sherbrooke won its fourth OSLAA volleyball championship in five years last season, finishing third in the Canadian tournament held in Winnipeg.

...TED ANDERSON

After the weekend games Sherbrooke Beavers are resting comfortably in third spot in the Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League standings. In Sunday's game in Cornwall, Normand Dube came up with three goals and upped his points total to 39. The flashy winger is hitting his stride now and is always a threat to opposing goalies. The line of Gaston Boulanger, Claude St-Sauver and Dube is one of the most feared units in the circuit.

The Beavers took off after Sunday's game for a couple of exhibition contests in the northern reaches around Val d'Or and Rouyn. It was doubtful Claude St-Sauver would see much action on the trip as he was injured in the Cornwall outing. He is expected back for the game Friday evening at the Sherbrooke Sports Palace against Shawinigan Bruins.

A standing-room-only crowd took in the game at Verdun Sunday when the league-leading Quebec City Ramparts were the Maple Leafs' visitors. Guy Lafleur is a big attraction around the loop and he never fails to give the spectators a few thrills per game. In Sunday's encounter, he produced a hat-trick, raising his goals total to 36. His linemates, Richard Grenier and Jacques Richard, are also among the top point-getters in the QJHL.

Bruce Cline is having trouble getting his Drummondville Rangers to put together a few victories. The Rangers took it on their collective chin again Sunday, losing 4-2 to Shawinigan. The Rangers aren't performing well even on home ice.

Richard Leduc of Three Rivers Dukes will sit out a three-game suspension. Leduc was exiled following a run-in with referee Jacques Croteau in a recent game against the Ramparts.

Injuries are popping up all over the QJHL. Ranger goalie Danny Sharpe, a good one, is sidelined with a broken finger, and the Ramparts' Jacques Richard will undergo surgery early next month for a troublesome knee ligament. Rene Lambert of Rosemount Nationals is nursing a sore left wrist, while Quebec City mates Yvon Blais and Charles Constatin are out of action with a fractured cheekbone and mononucleosis respectively.

The National Hockey League New York Rangers looked really sharp in their 5-4 win over Montreal Canadiens at the Forum last Saturday. The Broadway Blueshirts now have three lines clicking and their defence is one of the best in the league. Barring injuries, this team will be hard to beat, either at home or on the road. Tim Horton looks as strong as ever, and young Brad Park is improving in every game. The Ranger blueline brigade leaves nothing to be desired.

The Rangers were extremely happy indeed about acquiring Pete Stenkowski from Detroit Red Wings in exchange for surplus defenceman Larry Brown. The New York management feels Stenkowski will provide the muscle the club lost when Orland Kurtenbach went west to Vancouver. The newest Ranger counted 46 goals in the past two seasons with Detroit, 25 of them coming last year.

The current issue of Sport Magazine focuses on The Return of Terrible Teddy Green. The article fully explores what it feels like to come back from an injury that almost killed the Boston Bruins rearguard.

Our football forecasts were obscured in the sand at Hamilton and the snow in Regina over the past weekend, and two third place teams clash for the Canadian Football League's Old Mug—that's the Grey Cup. This could be one of the greatest of the annual classics. The Alouettes of Montreal have a lot of momentum going for them and they'll be tough to stop. One must hand a great deal of credit to head coach Sam Etcheverry for moving the club out of the dark ages of football in Montreal and into a Grey Cup clash with Calgary Stampeders. No matter what happens Saturday in Toronto, Sam has already done a fantastic job. The prediction here is the Als by seven—but it could be 27.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Tapeworm Is Not Likely To Increase Appetite

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Doctor—Would I have a tapeworm? After having dinner, I'm hungry again. In about two hours, I have an empty feeling.

Dear Reader—Not likely. Less than 10 per cent of individuals with a tapeworm have an increased appetite.

There are many reasons for increased hunger. The most common cause is habit. To some extent, the more you eat, the more you want. Anxiety and boredom also contribute to the problem.

If a person is hungry in spite of eating more food and is actually losing weight, a medical checkup is indicated. Among the disorders that can cause this problem are an overactive thyroid gland and diabetes. Usually, there are other symptoms when these disorders cause increased eating without any weight gain. Tapeworms or any other kinds of worms is an unlikely possibility.

Dear Doctor—Is fluoridated water harmful for elderly people? Our city has voted to put it in our drinking water and we are opposed but would like to know the truth about it.

Dear Reader—No water is pure except distilled water. Chlorine and other chemicals are used to make city water safe to drink. There are well-defined standards for healthy water, which city water departments meet. Fluorine in the water is just one more chemical. Fluoridated city water is not harmful to people at any age. It prevents dental caries and was carefully studied for its effects. The amount of fluorine added to the water for this purpose is well within safe limits.

Dear Doctor—I have been told by my doctor that I have cirrhosis of the liver. No X rays have been taken. Can he tell just by examination?

Dear Reader—Cirrhosis of the liver means scarring of the liver. The liver is usually damaged and it does not function normally. An X ray is often of little or no help in making the diagnosis.

Sometimes the liver is enlarged and you doctor can feel that on examination. If the liver function is not normal, there are other signs and also changes in the blood that he can measure chemically.

Scarring of the liver can occur after a variety of inflammations of the liver, as well as from prolonged heart failure, improper diet, excessive use of alcohol and exposure to a number of toxic agents.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I had an operation recently for a malignant tumor of the colon. Since the operation I heard that drinking too much black coffee will cause cancer. Is this true?

Dear Reader—There is no evidence that coffee causes cancer. Coffee, colas and most drink stimulants do increase the acid in the stomach and increase the irritability of the digestive tract. They should be used in moderation.

WINDSOR — The November meeting of St. George's Anglican Guild was held at the home of Kathleen Wheeler. Six members were present at the afternoon meeting.

Twenty-five dollars was voted to the wardens. A drawing was held on a skirt-maker with Mrs. George Allen being the winner. As there will not be a December meeting, all officers were re-elected by acclamation for the coming year.
