Queen ends party-time visit

A PROUD DAY FOR SHERBROOKE — Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II presented a guidon to the Sherbrooke Hussars, Wednesday, and is shown during the ceremony when she took the colors from WO-2 Garth Bishop to present them to Lt.-Col. James M. Strickland, Commanding Officer of the Hussars.

OTTAWA — (CP) — Queen Elizabeth returned to England Wednesday night with cries of "come back soon" ringing behind her after a smashing one-week centennial visit to Canada.

The enthusiastic response put new fibre into a historic Anglo-Canadian constitutional weave that seemed to be unravelling after her last visit in 1964.

At that time, with terrorist operations frightening Quebec, unprecedented security measures injected a sombre note into her tour.

This time Canadians were celebrating the 100th anniversary of Confederation and a party mood prevailed.

Huge crowds turned out to see the Queen and Prince Philip as they moved through Ottawa, almost always in an open car, to various events.

They turned a tightly guarded visit to Expo 67 into a triumph by taking an unscheduled ride on the minirail there to the cheers of nearby crowds.

It was Elizabeth's fourth visit as Queen to Canada and it was being described as the most successful.

CROWDS CHEER

Clusters of Ottawans formed along the 11-mile route to the airport Wednesday night to cheer her and one group of girls held a large sign reading: "Come back soon."

At the RCMP hangar where a BOAC Super VC-10 was waiting, piners yelled "Will Ye no Come Back Again" as the royal couple boarded the aircraft.

Prime Minister Pearson said the Queen's last words to him were: "Wonderful being here."

The Queen and Prince Philip arrived by air last Thursday, boarded the royal yacht Britannia at Cornwall Sunday for the trip to Expo, then cruised the St. Lawrence Tuesday before anchoring off Kingston for a series of functions.

In Ottawa Wednesday, nine of Canada's 10 provincial premiers — all but Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, absent for the funeral of a brother — were sworn in before the Queen as members of the Canadian Privy Council.

Later she presented regimental colors and guidons to six Canadian Army regiments in a Parliament Hill ceremony watched by about 15,000 tourists and residents.

The last event of the royal visit was more in keeping with the tone of the whole week.

City's Hussars honored

By CHARLES CATCHPAUGH (Record correspondent)

OTTAWA — "She came, she saw, she conquered", were the words of a Sherbrooke guest of honor, who witnessed Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II here Wednesday, when she presented battle honors in form of a guidon to The Sherbrooke Hussars, and four other Ontario regiments.

It was a proud occasion for Sherbrooke, and the Eastern Townships as well as the Hussars, who this year also celebrate their 100th anniversary.

In the hour long pageant on Parliament Hill, Ottawa, thousands of spectators witnessed the ceremony, and heard the queen congratulate the units honored.

At a reception which followed the presentation, where participating officers and specially appointed guests met the royal couple, Prince Philip spent considerable time visiting with veteran commanders and officers of the Sherbrookes, and in conversation with active officers of the regiment, expressed extreme interest in the fact that the unit was bilingual, and the only Quebec province group honored Wednesday.

Canada has distinguished itself as an important nation of the world, the Queen said, and praised the role played by the country's armed services, which she remarked, "Have brought honor and dignity to this country."

In referring to the guidons presented, Her Majesty said it was a memorable moment for her, Canada and the five regiments honored. She expressed hopes that peace will prevail, and voiced confidence that these colors dedicated, would again be unfurled if duty called.

To study rights bill

OTTAWA (CP)—The provincial premiers were informally invited Wednesday to hold talks with the federal government early next year aimed at making a bill of rights binding on federal and provincial constitutional jurisdictions.

The prime minister referred to the Roberts' conference as an "inter-provincial" meeting, not a federal-provincial one. And he agreed to send only federal observers, not participants.

A spokesman said his action demonstrates the federal government's view that only it can summon a federal-provincial conference.

Later Mr. Pearson reiterated his coolness to the proposal of Premier Roberts of Ontario that a federal-provincial conference meet under Mr. Roberts' auspices in Toronto next fall to discuss the confederation of tomorrow.

Congo says mercenaries fight with rebels

KINSHASA, The Congo (Reuters) — The Congolese government claimed today that Belgian, French and Spanish mercenaries had joined with rebellious Katangan troops in fighting government forces in the eastern Congo. The government's radio station said the foreign mercenaries were acting "in concert" with troops from former premier Moïse Tshombe's formerly secessionist Kwaana province and in fierce fighting at Bukavu, in Kivu province.

The radio said battles also were raging at Kisangani, formerly Stanleyville, where foreign paratroopers were said by the government to have landed from two planes Wednesday.

Earlier, Congolese ambassador in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, Joseph Kabamba, told reporters that both Kisangani and Bukavu were captured by an invading force of European commandos.

But the radio reports in Kinshasa, quoting official sources, appeared to contradict this.

The radio said central government forces in Kisangani, initially taken by surprise, had regrouped and counter-attacked.

The radio added: "The foreigners are trying to withdraw to the airport."

In Kinshasa itself, police made a surprise identity check on all foreigners in the city's two main hotels.

The Congolese news agency said a party of about 20 foreign journalists flew to Kisangani early Wednesday morning — before news of the fighting there reached Kinshasa.

The party, on a government-organized tour, arrived safely and had no trouble, reports reaching Kinshasa said.

President Gen. Joseph Mobutu announced Wednesday that foreign mercenaries had landed at Kisangani, formerly Stanleyville, and that white settlers had launched an attack on government forces at Bukavu.

In its early bulletins today,

Radio Kinshasa did not mention the situation at Kisangani, where foreign paratroopers were reported by Mobutu to have occupied the airport Wednesday.

The radio gave no details of the reported fighting in Bukavu, capital of eastern Kivu province and scene of bitter inter-tribal strife during the years following the Congo's independence in 1960.

In Washington, the state department said Congolese national army dissidents under foreign mercenaries had captured Bukavu, but there was no official confirmation in Kinshasa.

The government today ordered all men and women between 18 and 25 to report to recruiting offices from today.

At the same time, the radio urged Congolese to report "suspects and traitors" and to fight for the country's independence, not only with guns but with spears and knives, bows and arrows.

The Congolese press echoed Mobutu's allegation that the country was a victim of "foreign aggression."

CANADA'S CENTURY

A news background special on the Centennial of Confederation

Nationhood First, Independence Later

(Fifth Of A Series) By WALT McDAYTER

Canada achieved nationhood in 1867, but it was many years before she achieved complete independence.

With Confederation, Canada gained almost total control over her own internal development, but Britain allowed her almost no independence in external affairs.

Canada's relations with foreign countries, in trade and diplomacy, remained entirely dependent on policy framed in England. Further, Britain retained the right to disallow any legislation passed in the new nation, and without Canada's consent, could pass laws that would be binding on her people.

But the growth of Canada into a totally sovereign state, with the right to control her own destiny in all spheres, was inevitable.

The first step toward freedom in foreign affairs was taken by John A. Macdonald in 1871. He was appointed as one of the British delegates to Washington, to discuss grievances caused by the Civil War. For the first time, a Canadian was allowed to present the Canadian case at an international conference. Unfortunately, though it was presented, it was pretty much ignored.

It was in 1897 that Canada for the first time proved she had a will of her own, and that the youthful offspring had grown independent enough to resist the pressure of even her imperial motherland. At the Colonial Conference in London, Colonial Secretary Joseph Chamberlain proposed that the entire Empire be unified under a single central government. Prime Minister Wilfrid Laurier would have none of it. Realizing this would spell an end to Canadian political autonomy, he led a revolt against this idea, and the proposal died stillborn.

During the Boer War, Laurier shocked the usually unshockable British by declaring that although Canada was automatically at war at the same time as the mother country, it was up to the Dominion to decide how much she would contribute. Robert Borden in World War I went one step further, contending that since Canada was contributing to the war, her government must be kept informed on war policy. It turned out that Canada was not only kept informed, but by being represented on the Imperial War Cabinet, actually played a part in forming the policy.

After the war, our stature grew greater in the eyes of the world when our own delegation signed the peace treaty at Versailles, at Canada's insistence. In addition, we insisted on admittance as an individual member to the League of Nations.

When Canada and the United States signed the Halibut Treaty of 1923, the British Ambassador to Washington was peeved to learn that he would not be allowed to sign this treaty on behalf of the British government. Canada maintained this was purely a Canadian concern.

The greatest landmark of all on the road to independence came in 1931, with the passing of the Statute of Westminster. By this act, Britain lost the power to disallow Canadian legislation, and could no longer enact laws which would be binding on Canada.

There were additional gains: in 1947, for the first time we were able to call ourselves "Canadian Citizens", and not just British subjects; in 1949, our federal parliament gained the power to amend our constitution over federal matters; and that same year the Supreme Court of Canada became the final court of appeal, replacing the British Privy Council.

Today, Canada stands tall with the other free nations of the world. She has been a separate member nation since the United Nations was founded in 1945, and in 1948 held a seat in the Security Council. In 1952 a Canadian was elected president of the General Assembly.

Then, in 1955, after much fuss and furor, Canada obtained a flag of her own. Just a small thing... yet it symbolized the fact that Canada has at long last become a nation with an identity all her own.

It was under Wilfrid Laurier that the first Canadian External Affairs department was established, and it was he who endorsed formation of the International Joint Commission, to settle U.S.-Canada border disputes.

A first in Canada

Balloon takes mail to Sutton

SUTTON — (CP) — A helium-filled balloon with two men and 200,000 pieces of mail aboard traveled 50 miles from Verdun, a Montreal suburb, to Sutton Wednesday in what was described as the first airmail flight by balloon in Canada.

The letters carried by Wolfgang Gruber of Salzburg, Austria, and Erich Markel of Augsburg, Germany, in their motorless air vehicle were stamped with special centennial stamps which the pair hoped would be valued at $2.00 by collectors by virtue of their having been carried in a "first" trip by a vehicle of this kind in Canada.

The pair came down in a field near Sutton.

Most of the stamps were of a special centennial issue bearing prints of various pavilions at Expo. It was stated on the letters that this was the first mail ever to be carried in Canada by powerless balloon.

The balloonists were originally bound for Sorel, Que., 35 miles to the northeast of Montreal, but a wind change brought them to Sutton to the southwest instead — about 70 miles off course.

The balloon, pumped with $3,500 worth of helium gas, carried a heavy wicker basket beneath which measured about six feet in both length and width and four feet in depth and which bore the two-man crew.

The mailbags were taken to the Sutton post office, but not cancelled there. They were taken by truck to Montreal, where 40 of them, representing the whole batch, were to be cancelled to show both their Montreal starting point and their Sutton landing.

The balloon landed in a pasture on a farm owned by Christian Lukassen.

Those who witnessed the landing were Wesley and Randall Foster of Bromie; Pauline Wilson of North Sutton, and Brian Englethut of Montreal.

Expo youth debaters address empty seats

MONTREAL (CP)—While the cool generation lounged outside the youth pavilion at Expo Wednesday, university debaters inside kept up a hot dialogue on teenage problems to rows of empty seats.

"Today's youth must show it is interested and take up its responsibilities," McGill student George Radwansky told a handful of listeners who were the only ones to respond to loud-speaker appeals to come inside.

"Dirty jeans, love-ins and protest meetings do not lead to responsible attitudes."

The debate, nominally on the topic of government obligations to youth, apparently failed to grab brightly dressed teenyboppers and T-shirted escorts who lazied around the pavilion in the sun waiting for some action.

A lady who sat eating chocolates and repairing her makeup joined a few friends of the participants and about 10 other curious watchers in the 200-seat theatre.

Mr. Radwansky's arguments cut little ice with the two-member opposing team from Boston's Emerson College who insisted today's young people are frustrated by government policies and, as a result, often are psychologically disturbed.

"Look at the long hair and beards standing outside the pavilion, and look at this gold jacket I'm wearing and you can see we have emotional problems," business student Frank Napal said.

His partner, Peter Meade, said the "forces of authority" could do much to eliminate tension between the generations but "they refuse to listen to us, they refuse to understand."

Quick spenders

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is committed today to another of its package deals, a last-minute approval of hundreds of millions in federal spending for 1967-68.

That done, MPs will discuss the Kennedy Round tariff changes Friday and take a summer recess lasting until September or October.

The 1967-68 spending estimates of no less than seven federal departments must come to a vote at 9:30 p.m. today under an all-party agreement reached last week.

UN salvage try

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union is wooing Latin American members of the United Nations in an effort to salvage something from the abortive UN Assembly session on the Middle East.

Assembly President Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan adjourned the 122-nation forum until next Wednesday to give members a chance to "bring something that we might be able to refer to as a fruitful result."

'Dry Suez'

ELATH, Israel (AP)—Israel is pouring millions of dollars into this sweltering little Red Sea port to build a rival trade route to the Suez Canal.

The Israelis want to build a dry Suez to their Mediterranean ports with a railway, a major highway and an oil pipeline system through the Negev Desert.

About Television

The following story by Roy Thinnas, star of the TV series The Invaders, is one of a series written by television personalities while columnist Cynthia Lowry is on vacation.

By ROY THINNAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In every dedicated actor's heart lies the desire to come up with immortal lines—even though they are always someone else's.

These lines are far from immortal, but they are sincere, and they are my own: "Please let's try to really listen to our younger generation."

In a democracy where every minority has a voice, it would seem both fair and wise to evaluate the often discordant tremolo of a vital majority, our younger citizens.

Because of my assignment in The Invaders, I have had an opportunity to get closer to them. Wherever we are shooting, we have a crowd of quiet young people on the sidelines. Since those in this age group are too sophisticated to be autograph hounds, their questions made me a little uneasy at first.

They only wanted to communicate, but person-to-person, not on a public-TV star basis. They are all the same—regardless of apparel or hair length—in that they care. Their concerns range from the uneasy world situation and domestic discord to whether or not the aliens from outer space in The Invaders should be portrayed as hostile. Incidentally, I have wondered if their friendliness in person and through letters had anything to do with the fact that the character whom I portray, is also young and frequently misunderstood.

It is my firm belief that these members of the so-called "upbeat generation" deserve our understanding and respect when they attempt to channel their energies into idealism, tolerance, love. This isn't the way my generation spent its youthful energy. My nose is proof enough. It was broken three times while I was growing up.

$500,000 for city gas system offered by St. Lawrence Valley

The St. Lawrence Valley Gas Society, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Quebec Natural Gas Association, has offered $500,000 for the city's gas system.

The figure was released to the city council at a closed session on Tuesday afternoon after the mayor had announced to the press that such an offer had been made and that it seemed advantageous for Sherbrooke.

The offer is now under consideration.

The offer made by Carl H. Horne, president of the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation, is for the whole system of production and distribution and includes the land, buildings, pipes, meters, regulators and all other equipment which is part of the system.

In a brief presented to the council with the offer, the society says that a major part of its development program will consist of converting the present propane system to natural gas.

The brief predicts that if the offer is accepted and the company goes ahead with its plans it will invest a total $3,500,000 in the project.

The brief also states that the company will not boost the present rate charged for propane gas as long as there is no marked increase in the price of propane.

The brief states that the company will extend the existing system where economical and that it will eventually provide natural gas service for all its clients.

Natural gas, which is cheaper than propane, the brief says, is an important factor in the industrial development of an urban district like Sherbrooke.

The company says in the brief that it does not want to enter into competition with local firms for the sale of gas equipment and appliances. Its policy, the brief goes on, is to encourage heating contractors, plumbers, and local merchants to sell gas appliances.

The company said in the brief that it would use its contacts to help in Sherbrooke's industrial development as a gas company progresses only so long as the region it serves, prospers and develops.

The company wants, the brief says, to cooperate with the city and municipal organizations to attract new industries to Sherbrooke.

Ill-trained labor force a city industrial problem

Lack of academic preparation and professional training on the part of the Sherbrooke's labor force were pinpointed as the two major culprits responsible for the sluggishness of the city's industrial development in a report tabled at a meeting of the Sherbrooke Council on Monday afternoon.

The nine-page report with seven additional pages of statistics on the actual economic picture was presented to the council by Industrial Commission head Robert Belisle.

Quoting from a speech made by Raymond Dufour, director of regional development for the Quebec Department of Industry and Commerce, the report states that more than half of Quebec's workers are employed by small firms with less than 200 workers. These firms make up 93 percent of Quebec's manufacturing concerns.

These firms, the report says, are unable to adapt to modern industrial conditions. They employ, it continues, large numbers of unskilled workers to avoid laying out investment on machinery and are surprised when they cannot meet the sometimes justified demands made on them by the unions.

These industries cannot survive in modern industrial competition, the report says, and are constantly failing.

The report points in its first sentence that Sherbrooke's lagging industrial development is not due to a lack of new investment creating new jobs but the disappearance of old jobs. Between 1956 and 1966, 3107 new jobs were created and 2486 old jobs disappeared leaving a net surplus of 621 new jobs.

There isn't much the city government can do to relieve the worker - training problem, however, the report says. "Municipal authority in this area," it states, "is limited to uncovering the problems, bringing them to the attention of private enterprise and higher governments, collaborating in research programs to find new solutions and applying pressure on the proper authorities to take preventative and corrective measures."

Sherbrooke's work in this field was exemplified in the report by the work of the Sherbrooke Consultative Industrial Commission headed by S.W. Hooper. With the help of the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce, the report states a commission suggestion led to the formation of the Quebec government's Study Committee on Professional Training through Apprenticeship in September 1964.

This committee, whose members include Mr. Hooper and economist Father Emile Bouverie of the University of Sherbrooke has completed a report which has not yet been made public but whose recommendations show every sign of being put into effect, the report says. However, training is not Sherbrooke's only problem, and the report grimly foresees formidable obstacles to be overcome in promoting Sherbrooke as an area for new industries to open up.

Industrial decentralization, the report says, "but it's not panning in any appreciable degree. To talk about decentralization is well and good," the report says, "but it's not enough."

who regularly contributes to Sherbrooke's Diocesan newspaper, Le Messager.

In defence of cross-examination, he told the Court that he had written one article in the Messager criticizing acts of vandalism committed by some members of the unions and put part of the blame on union heads who were unable to curb such actions and in some cases

ET crops doing well over the past month

The growth of crops in the Sherbrooke area during the month of June has been normal, according to the Lennoxville Experimental Farm, but the low - normal May has partially stunted the growth of many of the local crops.

In a mid-summer progress report, the Farm officials say that the frequent rains in the past five or six days have been an asset in the growing areas, and that the growth, in general is "good", despite the sudden change in weather between the months of May and June.

There is at present, a nice crop of hay at the farm which has started reaping the crop. Corn seems to be the best representative of progress at the Farm and in the Eastern Townships, according to officials.

Some types that will eventually reach a height of at least ten feet by September are almost knee high at this early time in the season.

Paul Cloutier, a plot worker at the Experimental Farm, says that it is much too early in the year to expect the spectacular grandeur that they will gradually show over the next few months.

The growing season, which started in April, should have seen local farmers depositing nitrogen on their crops, and if they did not have the occasion to do so then, say officials, by all means, now is the time to do it.

The oats and barley at the farm have reached a height of from six to 12 inches, and the table turnips and potatoes that are grown there are also showing rather good progress.

So, in summation, the past months have been rather poor for E.T. growers, but now the pace seems to be quicker and picking up.

The cool May was slow for growth, but the warm June created normal conditions through the growing areas.

At this point in July, the "growth is luxuriant in well-fertilized areas," according to growth patterns at the Lennoxville Experimental Farm.

Further Border clean-up urged

STANSTEAD — (Special) — A delegation of men and women of the Municipality attended the Stanstead municipal meeting in the Council room of the Registry office on Tuesday evening, July 4, as representatives of the local citizens.

Although there has been considerable cleaning up of the community with paint and flower beds there are still a few painful-looking buildings which the delegation felt the Council should take steps to remove.

There were also complaints about smoke from a large industrial incinerator.

The request included having trash cans in various places.

The Council explained they are aware of undesirable buildings in the Village and are doing everything possible to have this corrected. The trash cans request is to be looked into.

Mayor E. J. Struthers reported on a recent hearing with the transportation board in Sherbrooke concerning continuation of bus service to and from the Boundary and Sherbrooke. The Municipality Town of Rock Island, and schools were well represented at the hearing which resulted in continuation of the bus service twice daily. Bus schedules are available from bus terminals.

It was further announced that the Municipal court should open in Rock Island about July 15 with A. E. Fregeau, Q.C., the judge.

Acquitted of libel against the CNTU

A slim bespectacled 26-year old was acquitted in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions yesterday of a charge of libel.

Orril Courtemanche, owner of the now - defunct Magog weekly, La Verite (Truth), appeared for preliminary hearing for alleged defamatory remarks made against the Confederation of National Trade Unions in an editorial he wrote and published in the paper's April 4, 1966 issue.

testified that the city paid certain strikers $5.00 an hour to act as guards for the warehouse and to check shipments leaving it.

The prosecution presented a number of witnesses who gave their interpretations of the words in the editorial that the CNTU found particularly offensive.

One such witness was Father Gerard Thibault, a parish priest from Ascot Township who regularly contributes to Sherbrooke's Diocesan newspaper, Le Messager.

In defence of cross-examination, he told the Court that he had written one article in the Messager criticizing acts of vandalism committed by some members of the unions and put part of the blame on union heads who were unable to curb such actions and in some cases

Beauty and utility in new city hall

There was a healthy attitude at city council meeting Tuesday night during discussion of the proposed new city hall. On the one hand, there was Mayor Armand Nadeau plumping for a structure that would be a striking landmark as well as a useful building.

moving towards a balanced view of the proposed city hall; a view which if pursued properly should be able to create for Sherbrooke a municipal building that is both a pleasing landmark and a practical, reasonably-priced structure.

The boss doesn't mind the 10-minute coffee break if only employees would keep it to that.

Only meeting ground: Middle East

The main thrust of the Communist and Arab propaganda attack against Israel has run the full gamut of United Nations General Assembly procedure, failing in the end to muster the necessary support.

Arab or Jew. And in the final analysis, only the Arabs and Jews can ever arrive at the solution.

Perhaps now that the haranguing and posturing in the United Nations have abated it will be possible at last to return to the only place where any kind of settlement of the conflict can ever be achieved, and that is, in the Middle East itself.

This is not to say that United Nations auspices should not continue to be part of the negotiations that now must begin between the principals. There is probably much that some form or another of United Nations representation can do to help in the difficult road ahead.

The problem of a western-type Jewish nation in the middle of an Oriental Arab community is not one that is ever likely to be resolved in council halls at New York. And in the long run, it is the central issue — the very existence of Israel — that must eventually be settled if the Middle East is ever to be safe for either

Only Israel and the Arab nations, between themselves, can properly settle their differences. Any other kind of solution, including a United Nations one, however rosy it may be made to appear, cannot ever be more than a temporary arrangement.

Temple to finance Biggest business card exchange operates vigorously at Expo 67

Canada's biggest business card exchange is operating full blast at Expo '67. It is housed in the International Trade Centre about a five-minute walk or a one-minute limousine ride inside the Place d'Accueil gates to the exhibition.

Canada's chartered banks put up $600,000 for construction and operation of the 20,000 square-foot, two-storey temple to business and finance.

Its chief function is to encourage and develop trade potential, mainly between Canadian and foreign firms, but it will also help arrange meetings between foreign representatives.

Thousands of invitations have gone out from Canadian financial institutions, international companies and Canadian trade commissioners around the world for foreign businessmen to visit Expo 1967.

As they arrive, they are welcomed by a smartly-attired young girl who asks that a brief questionnaire be filled out describing interests and time available.

This information is then conveyed to a department of Trade and Commerce official who analyses the situation and takes charges from there.

Often, the foreign businessman is interested in a combination of business and entertainment at Expo and officials draw up a schedule of appointments with special passes to view some of the more popular pavilions.

The latter is an invaluable service since line-ups for several exhibits require at least two hours' patience.

Directing the work of the Business Development Bureau is Gerald Hughes, a veteran foreign service officer with the Department of Trade and Commerce.

He pointed out that his bureau can also offer the services of interpreters and courtesy staff. There are also facilities for small luncheons as well as a business library and world-wide telecommunications centre.

Membership fees are $250 to persons resident within a 100-mile radius of Montreal and $75 for those outside this perimeter. Both include season admission passports to Expo 1967.

Keith Hillyer, assistant to Mr. Hughes said that it was quite difficult to arrive at these figures.

"If the fees are too high it might discourage some of the smaller firms and those with a very limited time to devote to Expo business development," he added.

"Of course, if we made it too low, we would only be encouraging bar flies... and we definitely didn't want that."

As well as housing the offices of Department of Trade and Commerce and industry personnel, the Trade Centre boasts a rather opulent bankers' row.

The only proletarian concession is that each of the major chartered banks occupies exactly the same-sized room, regardless of its financial might. Inside, however, they have all put their best foot forward in furnishing and decoration.

By STEPHEN VITUNSKI

One of these casual visitors last week was able to arrange a meeting with a Vancouver real estate developer and left $10 million in this country before he flew back to Kuwait.

So far, about 1,700 individuals have registered. Over 750 from the U.S. about 250 from Britain and 200 from France.

Japanese businessmen are also coming over in great numbers but they usually travel in groups.

So far 300 groups from various countries have registered. This represents 20,000 individual persons.

Mr. Hillyer says that his department participates in 125 to 150 across-the-desk interviews every week with each visitor supplied with an average of four or five contacts.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — (TNS) The birthday party over, Canada is entering the second century of her search for national and international self-expression with mixed feelings of pride and foreboding.

Pride in the accomplishments of the pioneering generations which defied harsh climate and unwieldy geography in building the framework of our materially affluent society; foreboding at the political viability of that framework in the thickening ferment of internal and external pressures unleashed by the combination of technological revolution and intellectual confusion.

From the anomaly of a monarchy by proxy via the doggedly unrecognized fact of Quebec's spiritual secession to sanctimonious posturing on the international scene, Canada lives in a split-level state of self-delusion.

Though no symbolism was intended, the whole charade was epitomized by the picture of our visiting Queen cutting a make-believe birthday cake.

Just a sham

Like our less innocent pretensions, the cake was a sham — a piece of pastry in a fairy tale structure of wood covered by layers of ceremonial icing.

Where does this penchant for flight from reality come from that blights our mental and moral climate?

The answer, it seems to me, lies primarily in the gap between the promise of greatness inherent in a vast territory (the 20th century was, we were told, destined to belong to Canada) and the slow population growth which relegated its fulfillment into the realm of dreams.

In the past hundred years, with all the influx of immigrants, Canada's population has grown from less than four to only 20 million.

With an area larger than the United States this means that Canada is woefully underpopulated.

Were Canada to open the door to massive immigration from the overpopulated underprivileged parts of the world, her empty spaces would no doubt fill relatively quickly.

But such policy would also trigger a feared dislocation of the country's social structure.

Full autonomy

Full autonomy in both internal and external affairs was not attained until 1926, and Canadian citizenship did not exist before 1947.

The adoption of a distinct Canadian flag in 1965 was strenuously resisted by the traditionalists and even now we can only hum our national anthem because there is no agreement on the words. To this day our Constitution, which is an act of the British Parliament, cannot be amended in Canada.

These are some of the contrasts between America's jump into the melting pot of independence and Canada's slow and half-hearted transition from colonial status to statehood. They illustrate the difference between American and Canadian mentality.

Yet while we delight in deriding our allegedly impetuous neighbors, we insist on sharing the fruits of their risk-taking enterprise, even though we bemoan its impact on the structure of our economy.

As Prime Minister Pearson put it earlier this year: "Our desire to share in the material benefits of continental growth and development, and also to maintain an independent political and cultural identity, seems at times to result in a kind of national schizophrenia."

It's an apt description of the confusion that marks the beginning of the second century of the Canadian experiment.

Stiffer penalties in Combines Act

Until recently the highest fine ever imposed by the courts on a company convicted of breaking the combines law was $25,000. Even in cases where the offenders were very large corporations making substantial profits as a result of conspiring with their so-called competitors, fines have been so small as to be nominal. In a case settled a few months ago, involving manufacturers of corrugated shipping containers, the offenders were fined a total of $391,500, the highest individual fine being $75,000.

The Winnipeg Free Press although the Crown had asked for individual penalties of up to $150,000 and is seeking leave to appeal against the amounts levied.

Fines of this scale are almost meaningless to the guilty companies, most of which have no difficulty paying them and can view their convictions as no more than a light rap across the knuckles. In the United States, by contrast, penalties for similar offences have been much heavier; senior corporate officers have been sent to jail and injured customers have been given the right to collect multiple damages.

Churchilliana sale

Fan letter to actress on block

LONDON (CP) — A fan letter to Winston Churchill by the Edwardian actress Lily Langtry and first editions of most of the books written by the late statesman will be auctioned at Sotheby's in a two-day sale of Churchilliana July 11 and 12.

The letter to Mrs. Langtry, a close friend of King Edward VII, was written in 1908 when Churchill, then 34, was president of the board of trade, a government department. In it he refers to his "early admiration" for the great beauty known as the "Jersey Lily." In September of that year Churchill married Clementine Horner.

Among other letters in the sale are 15 written between 1898 and 1917 to Churchill's cousin Ivor Churchill Guest, who as Lord Wimborne was lord-lieutenant of Ireland during the Dublin Easter Rising of 1916. One 64-page letter gives an eloquent exposition of Churchill's views on religion. In another, discussing ancient Greek philosophies, Churchill writes: "You follow Epicurus — I incline to Zeus... I think there is more vitality in the latter."

The books span the range of Churchill's writing career from his accounts of the Boer war and India's Northwest frontier to the first English edition of his six-volume Second World War history. Many of the books are inscribed by the author.

POEM UP FOR SALE A Sotheby's spokesman said it was impossible to estimate the value of the sale. At a similar auction shortly after Churchill's death in January, 1965, a first edition of his Boer war story From London to Ladysmith went for only 86.

The Battle of Sedgemoor was fought in western England 262 years ago today — in 1685 — and the Duke of Monmouth's followers were easily defeated by troops of James II. After the collapse of the rebellion and Monmouth's execution, Judge Jeffreys was sent to conduct trials in the Monmouth country and the "bloody assizes" followed.

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1942 — German spearheads broke through to the vicinity of the Don River near Voronezh, 120 miles east of Kursk; four Axis planes were shot down in raids on Malta; air and land attacks forced the German southern flank back at El Alamein.

TWENTY YEARS AGO MAGOG — President Ken Bryson was in the chair for the regular meeting of the local Branch of the Canadian Legion held last night in the town hall, with 42 present.

To open the meeting two minutes of silence was observed to honor the war dead. Minutes were read and a report on the Minstrel show held at Fitch Bay under the sponsorship of the Legion was given. New applications were read and considered.

President Bryant read a report on the provincial convention held in Montreal. He gave a resume of the resolutions passed of interest to the Magog Club.

The report of the Dominion Day celebration sponsored by the Legion was read by Arthur Ruck, chairman of the committee in charge. A net profit cheque was presented to the president on behalf of the committee.

BAD CONDITION — Residents of the Bolton Centre-Knowlton Landing-Vale Perkins area are up in arms over the condition of secondary roads. Washouts, such as the one shown here, are common, and the general surface of the roads is deplorable. The problem is accentuated by having a limited number of graders to cover a large area.

Museum is now opened

BEDFORD — (Special) — Missisquoi County Historical Society Museum is open for the summer at Stanbridge East.

Mrs. J. J. Moore of Fordyce is receptionist and Mrs. Ruby Primmerman of Pigeon Hill is curator.

Museum hours for visitors are from 10 a.m. until 5 during the week and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

This year, many interesting exhibits are on display. On the ground floor is housed various farm equipment.

The second floor contains three rooms, excellent examples of the Canadiana found in the county. One is a kitchen with an efficient stove complete with warming oven. Nearby is a wood box, a corner cupboard filled with dishes, a wooden sink, the dinner table laid for a meal with rush-bottomed chairs and a high chair.

Another room is the parlor which was so highly prized by the housewife and was only used on very special occasions. Highlight of this room is an organ. The third room is the dining room complete with walnut dining room set and sideboard. Two life-like mannequins dressed as bride and groom put the finishing touches to this room.

On the same floor, also is an excellent display of various types of china. One show case is filled with a collection of jugs, from the very smallest to large and ornate ones. An addition to this floor's exhibits is the coin collection of W. H. Taylor of Bedford.

Among the museum's improvements is the enlarging of the stairs to the top-storey. The stairs will further be improved by the stair carpet which has been given by Mr. and Mrs. Neil Creller.

On this floor is found a bedroom decorated with a wall paper, pine furniture, oil lamps, and a baby's crib. The bed has pillow shams embroidered with wishes for a good night's sleep. The pillow shams set the period of the room. One side of this floor is taken up by a glassed-in section in which are fashions from bygone days. One corner contains a spinning wheel, wool winder and sewing equipment. Another corner contains uniforms worn during the Fenian raid and other types of military dress. There is also a room arranged to give day children an idea of the kind of toys and games in which their ancestors were interested. The display of dolls ranging from small to large with appropriate furniture and dresses will furnish many happy hours to the little viewers.

The Centennial edition volume nine entitled, Here and There in Missisquoi, 1867-1967, is now on sale. It gives historical dates on all sections of the county. The members of the publication committee are Kate A. Blinn, Margaret J. Ellis and Ruby G. Moore.

A brochure on the covered bridges and other facts in the county's history has been prepared by the museum's curator and contains a map of the points of interest mentioned in the book. The brochure is printed in both French and English.

News from Granby

Home for aged

A report will go before committee for a proposed home for the aged. If it is adopted it will be called the "Villa Bonheur," and will cost about $500,000. The proposed home will accommodate 100 people. A lot of 70,000 square feet would be needed if the project is accepted.

Students awarded

The Granby High School awarded 19 students Commissioned Officers' Scholarships in grades 8, 9 and 10. They are: Brenda Cornish and Barbara Jane Monk in Grade 8; Beverly Bonnett, Heather Hamilton, Ariella Hoffman, Wendy Knott, Doina Munteanu, Kynda Neil, Elizabeth Raymond, Bruce Ward and Louise Whitney, in Grade 9; Nancy Fisk, Jennifer Giddings, Anne Hardy, Susan Jones, Dianne Kilpatrick, Cornelia Munteanu, Jane Thomson and Sandy Walker, in Grade 10.

These students received $25. To qualify for this merit a student must obtain an average of 85 per cent in grade 8, an 80 per cent in grade 9 and 75 per cent in grade 10, with no failures in major subjects. Many other students won merit pins and honorable mention.

Hospital addition

Members of the accreditation of hospitals in North America visited the St. Joseph Hospital recently. Inspectors met with hospital administrators and medical directors. Visits were made to various rooms, services were inspected and personnel questioned. An addition to the St. Joseph Hospital may be started, giving several hundred more beds and making the present hospital one for convalescents.

Russian scientists receive rude audience at Expo '67

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Russian scientists were repeatedly interrupted Wednesday when they attempted to give a lecture on conditions in the Arctic at the Expo 67 Soviet pavilion.

A packed audience in the 630-seat pavilion theatre clapped in rhythm to interrupt the speakers, kept up a continual murmur of chatter and then walked out in large and noisy groups. "I was astonished," said Korina Bliznichenko, a specialist on world sea and ocean conditions.

"In Russia the public is very interested in scientific matters. But even if they weren't interested my people would never have behaved so rudely."

Mrs. Bliznichenko, a smartly-dressed blonde who reproved the chattering audience at one point, did not get a chance to lecture.

After Arctic scientists Victor Venedictov and Vadim Koslov were repeatedly interrupted, the program was cut short. Mrs. Bliznichenko announced she would answer questions in a pavilion office "from any who are interested."

No one responded. A spokesman for the Soviet pavilion's public relations office said the program had been shortened by a half hour because important guests were expected at a following fashion show and the theatre had to be cleared early for their arrival.

Mr. Koslov, whose heavy accent may have been part of the problem, told the audience Ca-

Bolton Centre U.C.W. holds community tea

BOLTON CENTRE — A community tea for the U.C.W. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cousens on June 17.

Tea was served buffet style, the dining room being decorated with lilies of the valley. The tea table was centered with a small white church with pink tapers on either side. Tea was poured by Mrs. Ralph Cousens and Miss Helen Cousens.

The drawing of a Centennial cake was won by Miss Helen Ferguson and a fig pudding was won by Miss Brenda Gaylor.

Funds realized from the tea, amounting to $72, will go towards interior decorating of church now under repairs. Out of town guests attending the tea were: Rev. E. J. McDonald, minister of Mansenville charge; Mrs. Leonard Roberts, Melton, P.E.I.; Mrs. J. R. Murchison, Hunter River, in P.E.I.; Mrs. Gladys Hines, Gibsonsia, Penn.; Mrs. Effie Clark, Oakville, Ont.; and Mr. Robert Pearson, Montreal.

nadians and Russians have an equal interest in Arctic exploration because they share many common problems.

As he was speaking the restless audience, which included many children and parents obviously in a holiday mood, began clapping their hands.

"Thank you," Mr. Koslov said with an unsmiling bow, and shortly after ended his speech. Mrs. Bliznichenko took the microphone to announce that those "only here to wait for the fashion show should leave if you are not interested in a scientific talk."

She said later that most visitors to the pavilion theatre "come only for the fashion shows and films" and are not interested in listening to the daily program of lectures.

RAPS AUDIENCE — The pavilion spokesman said some talks on cultural and political topics have been received with "great interest." Some other speakers had also been faced by restless and uninterested audiences.

"But today was the worst display I have seen," Mr. Koslov, like the other speakers a member of the pavilion staff assigned to answer visitor's questions, said he had tried to make his talk as simple and popular as possible.

He and Mr. Venedictov both gave historical descriptions of Russia's work in opening Arctic regions and described the value of Arctic resources in the Soviet economy. There was little in the talks not easily understandable by any listener with no knowledge of the subject.

Tot at Expo's kindergarten learns about togetherness

MONTREAL (CP) — When a five-year-old white girl recently refused to take a nap beside a small Negro girl, supervisors in charge of the baby-sitting area at Expo's Le Petit Prince garden were taken aback.

"We had anticipated tummy-aches and scraped knees but were caught off-guard when this problem came up," Marie-Jeanne Lacoursiere, program director for the children's centre said Wednesday.

The supervisors took the child aside and gave her a 10-minute talk on togetherness. The youngster then went to sleep beside the Negro girl.

"The children say the funniest things, though," said Miss Lacoursiere. "I remember one little boy who came to the garden for the first time and walked around it sniffing."

When I asked him what he was doing he said he was "smelling the kindergarten." Hundreds of mothers who came to see the fair have learned to place their confidence in the three children's centres on the site.

SPUR IMAGINATION — At the children's creative centre in the Canada pavilion, advanced teaching methods guide the creative imagination of children from the ages of three to 11.

Parents can watch what's going on in the drama, art and music studios through one-way glass and hear what is being said over loudspeakers.

About 75,000 youngsters are expected to pass through the centre and its outdoor playground before Expo closes late in October.

Youngsters may stay at the centre for a maximum of two hours at no charge.

All the centres are open between 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Baby-care facilities are provided at Le Petit Prince garden, just behind the Japanese pavilion on the north side of St. Helen's Island.

In the baby-sitting playground, children from three to six years of age can play in the sand, build with logs and blocks and dabble their fingers in water colors. On rainy days, the children are moved indoors.

About 250 youngsters can be accommodated and each group of 25 is accompanied at all times by a qualified monitor. NURSE ATTENDS

A nurse is in attendance and there is an Expo medical centre next door.

There is a $5 daily charge, but parents who pick their youngsters up before 2 p.m. pay only $2.50.

If they bring their children to the area after 2 p.m., they also pay only $2.50.

The second area in the garden is a free baby-care station for children up to three years, where 50 mothers can feed and wash their babies at a time.

A similar baby-care station is situated in the Children's World area at La Ronde.

It all began in 1796 for West Brome

WEST BROME — (Special) — West Brome celebrated Centennial Year by having a social evening in the Anglican Church Hall, June 24.

To provide atmosphere for the occasion, historic data and antiques were displayed around the hall. The community began when Ebenezer Collins from the United States settled on a lot in 1796 on which the principal parts of the village now stands. In 1827 the first school was opened and was used for public worship. In 1852 the first post office was opened with Ephraim Keyes as postmaster. S. L. Hungerford was proprietor of a large woolen factory and did a big business in carding and cloth-dressing. He owned a grist and sawmill as well as a store of a mercantile line.

For 15 years he was Justice of the Peace and many years chairman of Commissioners' Court.

He was made a member of Municipal Council in 1855. In 1857 a high school academy was built; a stage from Knowlton passed through on its way to St. Johns; the trustees of the New Connection Methodist Church signed the deed of sale for the brick church. The first engine of the South Eastern Counties Junction Railway made its way over virgin soil as far as West Brome under the guidance of Carlton Hall, December 16, 1870. On May 25, 1885 the Church of the Ascension was finished and consecrated by Bishop Bond.

The Eastern Townships Directory of 1888-1889 reveals that the activities of West Brome included three general stores, two hotels, a blacksmith, a family doctor, brick manufacturers, curry-comb factory, a shoe-maker, a wooden sap-sprout factory, and a "select" school in addition to the village school.

Opening the centennial program Rev. W. Davidson welcomed the guests and gave a brief resume of the life of the church, both before the construction of the building and since.

The feature of the evening was a "Centennial Dress Parade," which was a challenge to judges, Miss K. MacIntosh and Mrs. B. McClatchie. Awards of merit were presented to Mrs. J. Darbe, Mrs. V. Dustin, Miss S. Lawrence, Mrs. K. Murns, Mrs. M. Shuffelt and S. Kromack.

The identification contest was won by Miss D. Bridgette. Contestants had to identify 25 articles of the past including a hat-pin holder, a banana stand, a fish-bone dish, and an apple parer.

Miss Cecile Darbe operated an old time photograph and a sing-song was led by James Foster and his harmonica.

After a conversation period the event was brought to a conclusion with refreshments all made from Grandma's recipe.

PLAYGROUNDS OPEN — The Waterloo Bilingual Playgrounds are operating again this summer until August 18. On Monday and Tuesday the children registered, however, post entries will be accepted. The daily meeting place is at the school yard at St. Bernard's.

Activities include sports, swimming, hikes, camp fires and manual training which take place daily from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 4:00 p.m. Three hundred children are expected to participate. Their theme this year will be Expo

Play about separatism has first appearance at Charlottetown

CHARLOTTE TOWN (CP) — Gratiem Gelinas' play about separatism in Quebec and the communication gap between old and young generations had its first English performance here Wednesday night.

The play, Yesterday the Children Were Dancing, was first produced in French in Montreal last spring. It is to run in repertory at the Charlottetown Festival all summer, alternating with Pierre Berton's new musical comedy Paradise Hill and a revival of Anne of Green Gables.

Paradise Hill opened Monday and Anne will be performed for the first time this year July 17.

Yesterday the Children Were Dancing is a contemporary drama about a Montreal lawyer suddenly given a long-desired chance to enter the federal cabinet, only to find that his opportunity is blocked by his son, who has been secretly organizing a separatist group.

PLAYS LEADING ROLE — Mr. Gelinas, long respected in both the French-Canadian and English-Canadian theatre as a director, actor and playwright, plays the leading role of lawyer Pierre Gravel with force, although at times his performance and the play tend to descend to the level of a political harangue.

However, at its best, Yesterday the Children Were Dancing is a well constructed and sometimes moving presentation of some of the many arguments for and against the secession of Quebec from Canada.

The near-capacity audience in the 1,000-seat Confederation Memorial Theatre applauded warmly at the play's conclusion, and many stood in tribute to playwright-actor Gelinas and his fellow performers.

The English translation of Yesterday the Children Were Dancing is by Mavor Moore, artistic director of the Charlottetown Festival. The play was directed by Mr. Moore and Mr. Gelinas.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Helen can keep a locked medicine cabinet if she uses my solution. We purchased a fishing tackle box and a padlock. It is wonderful because of the many divided trays in the upper part of the box. The bottom will hold all the larger bottles. This idea was inspired by a Polly's Pointer of a few years back, when a man suggested using a tackle box for a sewing box. My sincere thanks to all the readers for the pointers they have sent, and to you, Polly, for a wonderful column. — MRS. H.M.F.

I am sure we all belong to a mutual admiration society. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Helen's problem on how to lock a medicine cabinet needs a more realistic approach. A locked chest only adds mystery to an already existing situation. A locked chest might be all right if there are many poison type medicines around but Helen should teach the little ones to stay out. Sooner or later someone will forget the lock, and childish curiosity whetted by mystery will create all the elements of a disaster. Children who are taught to stay out of things are not only more pleasant and relaxing at home but, when in someone else's home, they are welcome guests. A pediatrician once suggested this solution:

Snap the child's hands lightly with a rubber band. This not only worked on my friend's toddler in a week but a small rubber band hung on a knob or handle said, "Tabu" and the little girl would not touch it. No one likes to punish a tiny child but starting young creates the kind of youngsters one can be proud of as they develop into teen-agers.

DEAR READERS — I am sure there will be mixed reactions to Mrs. C's letter. It certainly has its good points but while the child is learning it would seem wise to make sure trouble was not within reach of those small hands. Our thanks to the several companies who wrote to tell us that they manufacture locked medicine cabinets. — POLLY

MR. AND MRS. GORDON BOYD RICHARDSON

Richardson-Burgess wedding

WOLFVILLE, N.S. — The marriage of Arlene Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Burgess of Wolfville, N.S., to Mr. Gordon Boyd Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Richardson, of Magog, Que., took place recently in the Manning Memorial Chapel of Acadia University in Wolfville, Dr. J. Judson Levy officiated at the double-ring ceremony, assisted by Rev. Austin MacPherson. Mr. Ken Bezonson played the wedding music, and the soloist was Miss Mary Lou Rockwell.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was in a gown of white sonesta crepe over satin, the bodice featuring an empire waistline. Imported Swiss lace appeared on the elbow-length sleeves and a white crepe train fell from the waistline. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a tiara of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis.

Mrs. Robert Lewis, twin sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Miss Edna Burgess, sister of the bride, Miss Sally Ritcey and Miss Pearl Young as bridesmaids, were in identical gowns of contrasting shades of blue crystal peau-de-soie over satin. Their head-dresses consisted of a single bow of peau-de-soie worn at the back of the head and they carried bouquets of yellow and white shasta daisies.

Mr. Kendall Abramson acted as best man for Mr. Richardson, and the ushers were Mr. Kenneth Richardson, brother of the groom, Mr. Robert Lewis, and Mr. David Burgess.

Mrs. Burgess, the bride's mother, was in a two-piece suit of Italian silk knit in pink. She wore a matching hat and white accessories and a corsage of white and pink roses.

Mrs. Richardson, mother of the groom, was in a dress and coat ensemble of ice-blue sutured cotton. She wore a matching flo-ered hat and bone-shade accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Paramount Hotel. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson left for the United States and Ontario, the bride travelling in a two-piece suit of brown and beige knit, with matching beige accessories and a corsage bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis.

In the fall, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson will take up residence in Weymouth, N.S.

Today's recipe

STRAWBERRY PINEAPPLE CONSERVE

Yield: about 11 medium glasses.

- 2 cups crushed strawberries (about 1 qt. fully ripe strawberries)
- 2 and one half cups undrained crushed pineapple
- 6 cups sugar
- 1 cup finely chopped almonds
- 1 cup seeded raisins
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 bottle liquid fruit pectin

First, prepare the fruit. Crush thoroughly, about one layer at a time, 1 quart strawberries. Measure 2 cups into a very large saucepan. Add 2 and one-half cups crushed pineapple.

Then make the conserve. Thoroughly mix sugar, nuts, raisins, and lemon juice into fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with a little hot paraffin.

100 mile hike too short for housewives

ROCKGLEN, Sask. (CP) — Four hiking housewives who walked 100 miles to Moose Jaw for the fun of it said they were sorry the trip wasn't longer.

Farmers brought coffee and lunches to the road as Velma Shaw, Mildred Wittman, Margaret Karst and Nellie Schaffer trudged by on their four-day journey north from Rockglen.

Mayors of Assiniboia and Moose Jaw turned out to meet them, and a cheering section of children, grandchildren and unbelieving neighbors drove up to Moose Jaw to see them finish.

The four started on a Sunday afternoon and finished on Thursday morning to average four miles an hour and 25 miles a day. Husbands trailed them in a renovated school bus equipped for sleeping and cooking.

Mrs. Shaw said the idea started last winter when she took up walking to lose weight and her husband suggested she do something constructive like walking to Assiniboia, 35 miles away. She and her friends went him one better and made it to Moose Jaw.

THOSE MEDICAL CHECKUPS

Our favourite pediatrician has only one request — when you take your nice clean baby to the doctor, dress him as simply as possible. Busy M.D.'s haven't time to wait while you undo countless buttons and bows.

Feeding problems seem to be universal with the first baby. By the age of five months the infant has usually doubled his birth weight, by the age of one year he has tripled it, and it will take him until two and a half years of age before he quadruples it. So it follows that his appetite will be less as his growth slackens. And here's where feeding problems arise — mother tries to make him eat more than he needs.

If we go on, we'll be putting your baby's happiness in jeopardy. Let's finish by wishing you and your baby all the happiness you deserve.

Shock value words are becoming chic

NEW YORK (AP)—Have you heard more four-letter words lately?

A New York psychiatrist and psychoanalyst, Dr. Renatus Hartogs, says obscene words are becoming chic.

Surprisingly — except to a psychiatrist — it's the decorous middle-class matron who is making the most of her opportunities to drop four-letter bomb shots into sophisticated conversation.

Five years ago she would have managed to have her skirt creep demurely above her ankle. Today she may smile sweetly and turn the air blue with barracks language.

It's all part of playing the four-letter word game, as Dr. Hartogs terms it, which provides "a socially acceptable projection surface for repressed motives and instinctual needs."

In his recently published book, Four-Letter Word Games, the psychiatrist attributes the increasing popularity of "dirty talk" to the Chatterley syndrome: the acceptance of formerly taboo words in middle-class speech. He says it dates from 1909, when a U.S. district court liberated Lady Chatterley's Lover from the bonds of censorship.

"The lower classes always have used these words," said Dr. Hartogs in an interview, "but now in certain middle-class circles it's very 'progressive' — put that in quotes — to drop a little word that has shock value."

Questions readers ask

Q—Is it true that eggs are really one of our most valuable foods?

A—Yes, one of the best, "infinite riches in a little room," using the poet Christopher Marlowe's famous line. They supply significant amounts of vitamin A, iron, protein and riboflavin (vitamin B2), as well as smaller amounts of many other nutrients. They are one of the few foods that contain vitamin D. Egg protein is so near perfection that scientists often use it as a standard to measure the value of protein in other foods.

Chiefs told Quebec needs full-time Crown prosecutors

HULL, Que. (CP) — Yvan Migneault, associate deputy justice minister of Quebec, said Wednesday the job of a Crown prosecutor should be filled permanently by a competent lawyer with no other obligations.

Mr. Migneault told the 35th annual meeting of the Quebec Association of Police and Fire Chiefs the job of a Crown prosecutor is too important to be done on a part-time basis.

That province should handle all aspects of bankruptcy instead of sharing jurisdiction with Ottawa. The main fraudulent bankruptcy racketeering, he said, is done by firms who gain the confidence of suppliers over several months. They then order a big shipment on credit which they sell at cut rates before declaring bankruptcy, he said.

Mr. Migneault said the justice department should go out and find the competent persons "because there is no substitute for competence."

Delegates to the annual meeting agreed on the need for better co-ordination and increased collaboration among organizations responsible for the administration of justice.

Fraud charged

MONTREAL (CP) — J. M. Dansereau of Montreal was arraigned Wednesday on charges of theft, fraud and false pretences involving some $8,000 in advance deposits for Expo 67 accommodations.

Van C. Duling, a Columbus, Ohio, travel agent, testified that he and a busload of senior citizens reserved first-class accommodation at the Revere Hotel Apartments June 13, but arrived to find what he called "the poorest accommodation that I've seen in 20 years in the business."

He said Dansereau agreed to his demand that advance deposits totalling $1,288.97 be returned the following day.

Hard to prove

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Paul Bergeron, a Montreal lawyer, Wednesday told a Quebec justice inquiry hearing that illegal activities are often involved in bankruptcies but racketeering is often hard to prove in court.

Mr. Bergeron, who lectures on bankruptcy at the University of Montreal, said such events as mysterious fires of records or unexplained theft occur "often enough" in business failure cases.

He agreed with an earlier suggestion by Justice Commission Chairman Yves Prevost that even encouraged them.

The CNTU's Sherbrooke director, Jean Jacques Lafontaine, told the Court that the article had appeared and that it had been widely read. He testified that the newspaper was distributed free of charge to all the city's mailboxes and had a circulation of about 2000.

In acquitting Courtemanche, Judge Turmel said that the remarks made in the editorial did not constitute defamatory libel, that there was the question of the public interest, and that no jury would ever convict Courtemanche.

Stop en route

ST PIERRE (CP) — French President Charles de Gaulle will spend a few hours here when he visits this remnant of his country's once-great North American empire July 20.

An official of the French embassy at Ottawa said Tuesday de Gaulle will arrive on these islands off Newfoundland on the evening of the same day. The stopover will be made en route to Quebec City and Montreal where de Gaulle will visit Expo 67.

All prices climb, with a tiny exception

OTTAWA (CP) — A general upward trend of prices during May sent the consumer price index up seven-tenths of a point to 148.8 in June, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The bureau said the indexes of all groups within the overall index went up, except for health and personal care which accounts for only seven per cent of the total index.

The introduction of a five-per-cent sales tax in Manitoba was one contributing factor. The indexes are based on 1949 prices equaling 100.

The food index rose to 144.8 from 143.7 because of higher prices for milk, bread, pork, sugar and potatoes. There were lesser increases for cheese, cookies, infants' food, jelly powder, chicken, grapefruit, apples, cabbage, celery and a number of other fresh vegetables.

Higher prices were reported for most clothing items, sending the clothing index up to 132.5 of consumer prices. However, from 131.9, higher prices of new automobiles, gasoline and motor oil pushed the transportation index up to 138.2 from 137.9.

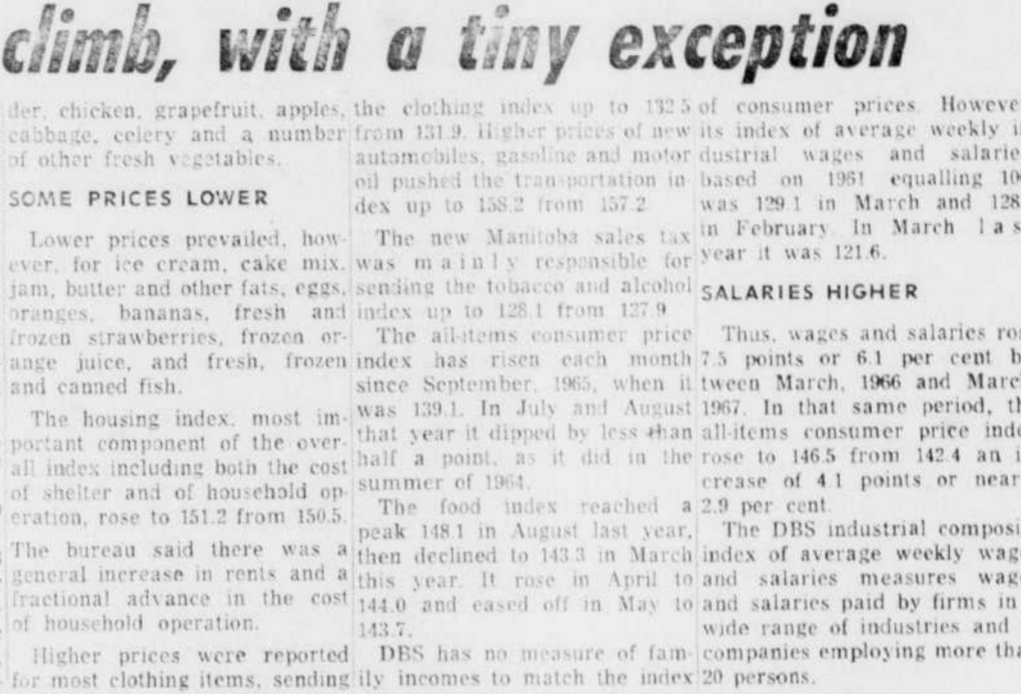

The new Manitoba sales tax was mainly responsible for sending the tobacco and alcohol index up to 128.1 from 127.9.

The all-items consumer price index has risen each month since September, 1965, when it was 139.1. In July and August 1967, in that same period, the year it dipped by less than half a point, as it did in the summer of 1964.

The food index reached a peak 148.1 in August last year, then declined to 143.3 in March this year. It rose in April to 144.0 and eased off in May to 143.7.

DBS has no measure of family incomes to match the index.

TOUR NEW HAMPSHIRE — Attendants at the Temporary Information Center located at the junction of routes 5 and 59 in A-e's Cliff were conducting on a three day familiarization tour of the attractions of New Hampshire recently. Shown examining an old stagecoach at Six Gun City in Jericho, N.H. are Tom Driscoll (left) and Russell True of Aye's Cliff. A young employee explains the history of the old coach. The tour of some 15 attractions is an annual event.

SOME PRICES LOWER

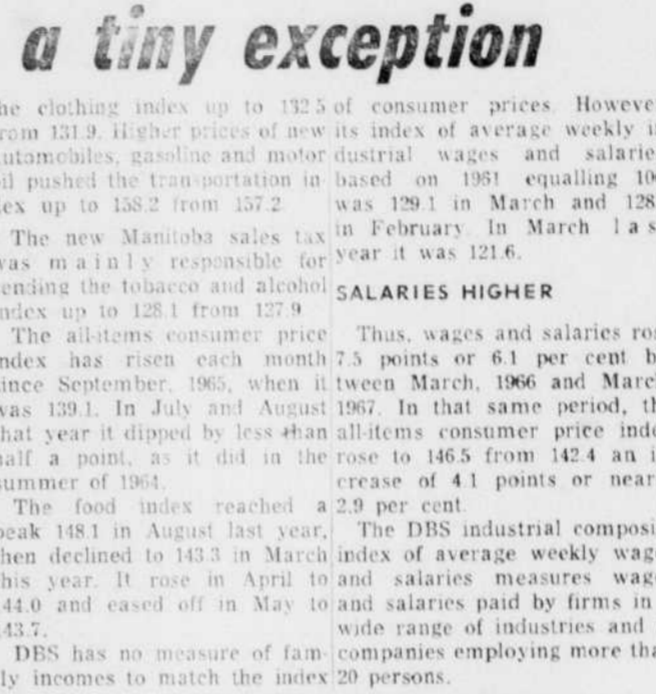

Lower prices prevailed, however, for ice cream, cake mix, jam, butter and other fats, eggs, oranges, bananas, fresh and frozen strawberries, frozen orange juice, and fresh, frozen and canned fish.

The housing index, most important component of the overall index including both the cost of shelter and of household operation, rose to 151.2 from 150.5.

The bureau said there was a general increase in rents and a fractional advance in the cost of household operation.

Higher prices were reported for most clothing items, sending the clothing index up to 132.5 of consumer prices. However, from 131.9, higher prices of new automobiles, gasoline and motor oil pushed the transportation index up to 138.2 from 137.9.

SALARIES HIGHER

Thus, wages and salaries rose 7.5 points or 6.1 per cent between March, 1966 and March, 1967. In that same period, the index to 146.5 from 142.4 an increase of 4.1 points or nearly 2.9 per cent.

The DBS industrial composite index of average weekly wages and salaries measures wages and salaries paid by firms in a wide range of industries and in companies employing more than 20 persons.

Financial report from Greenshields Ltd.

Imperial Oil Ltd. has awarded a contract to build an ammonia unit at its $50 million fertilizer complex now being built near Redwater, Alberta.

Completion of the complex is expected early in 1969.

Total value of goods and services invoiced by Mussen's Ltd. during the first two months of the current fiscal year is slightly above that of April and May 1966 note F. E. Newman, Chairman, and C. J. Jackson, President, in the 1967 annual report.

Booked business has also been running on a pattern very similar to last year. There is a noticeable moderation in the trend of capital spending in Canada in 1967, although the proportion of the economy's productive resources being devoted to capital investment remains high by historical standards.

The trend from last year is expected to vary between several areas of the company's market. Such changes range from a decline of 5% in Quebec to increases of 3% in Ontario and 6% in the Atlantic Provinces.

'LL-TRAINED

Montreal, "Sherbrooke's economic sore," the report said, still represents to the businessman 60 per cent of the province's population and two thirds of the Quebec market and as a result the mass of industrial movements tends towards Montreal and from the city's heart to the immediate outskirts. The largest industry, in the last few years to establish more than 30 miles away from the city is Walter M. Lowney's which established its chief plant in Sherbrooke. If the proper authorities are convinced, the report states, that industrial decentralization is necessary for Quebec's economic equilibrium these same authorities should take steps to make it more economically attractive to industries to establish outside Montreal. The report states that Sherbrooke was competing for new industries with other cities in provinces where it was possible for the government to extend more aid than Quebec could give. The city also competes with depressed areas where new industries get federal grants and corporation tax benefits as well as an increased depreciation rate on their machinery and equipment. The report also said that Quebec's industrial information bureaus in Montreal, New York and Europe were hindering the city's development. Previous-ly, it said, industrialists contacted Sherbrooke directly for information while the bureaus seem more interested in having industries establish in less favored areas. The report also rapped irresponsible statements made in Ottawa and Quebec that could only discourage foreign investment and place Quebec in a particularly disadvantageous position. "We have neither to excuse nor change the character of Quebec but we must accept the economic realities of life," the report says. "Quebec with a population of 5,744,000, 80 percent French-speaking, exists in an economic world of more than 220,000,000 English speaking people."

PQGA to hold clinic for juniors Mon.

The first sponsored Province of Quebec Golf Association Junior Clinic will be held at the Sherbrooke Country Club Monday, July 10, announced Pete Leblanc, director of the PQGA and chairman of the event, yesterday afternoon.

This annual event is open to all boys and girls, members of clubs affiliated with the PQGA, and is slated to commence at 9:00 a.m. The clinic will commence with lessons on how to play the various shots and end with a round of golf.

The boys will play 18 holes and the low gross winner will be awarded the Paul Brouillard Trophy. The girls will play only nine holes. Juveniles are also invited to register for the special day.

Three professionals will be in attendance, Joe Leblanc, pro at the Sherbrooke Country Club, with his assistant, Marc Henna, and Harry Fowles, former pro at the local club. They will be in charge of the instruction.

The low C.P.G.A. member at Arvida will earn a Carling World qualification, an exploit gained by Bigras in winning the 1965 Quebec Open at Royal Quebec. Moe Norman will defend last year's Quebec Open title, won at Pinegrove.

Sherbrooke Indians of the Massachusetts Baseball League finally slipped into first place last night when they blanked the lowly Magog squad 5-0 in a game played at Sangster Park.

The win puts Sherbrooke's record at 8-4, the same as Ayer's Cliff which suffered two upsets last weekend to Asci Corner. Magog sinks deeper into the cellar with seven losses in ten starts.

Marcel Caron allowed only five hits to cop the win, while belting a homerun to contribute to both sides of the Sherbrooke effort. Richard Doyon also connected with a round-tripper and a single.

MOLSON GOLF FESTIVAL — Preparations for the Molson Golf Festival which will be held at the Drummondville Golf Club July 14, 15 and 16 are moving ahead. As well as many prizes, a purse totalling $2,500 will be at stake in the tournament.

R. Roberge's two homers paces Red Sox to win, Yankees cop hitting battle, games tonight

Red Sox, with Marc Aubry on the mound, took over top spot in the Sher-Lenn Little League with a 9-1 win over Twins last night. In the other part of the twin bill Yankees chalked up 19-13 victory over Indians to vacate the cellar in the league standing.

Twins lone run came in the third inning. They got hits from Anto, Landry, D. Turnbull and Labbe but one run was their total for the game.

WILHELM BUNGERT, 25-year-old West German tennis star, has no secrets about the way he plans to beat Australia's John Newcombe and win the men's singles title at the All-England lawn tennis tournament Friday.

Wilhelm Bungert, West Germany's tennis star, to meet Newcombe in Wimbledon finals tomorrow

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — Wilhelm Bungert, 25-year-old West German tennis star, has no secrets about the way he plans to beat Australia's John Newcombe and win the men's singles title at the All-England lawn tennis tournament Friday.

Bungert hopes to become the first German to win the crown. "I shall plan the final in the same way that I planned the semi-final against Britain's Roger Taylor," Bungert said.

"I shall conserve my energy, I shall not tire myself by chasing balls that are going out of my reach. Often it's fitness in the last set that counts."

Bungert lasted the pace better Wednesday and defeated Taylor 6-4, 6-8, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4. Newcombe overcame Nikola Pilić of Yugoslavia 9-7, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Bungert has played Newcombe a half-dozen times and has never beaten him. But he says he has a good chance to do it this time.

Als seek third straight against Indians tonight; Coaticook wins

Sherbrooke Alouettes travel to Quebec tonight to meet the Indians in a game which could prove very crucial at this stage of the season. Quebec is one of the clubs the Als must pass in their drive for a playoff spot.

Simon Perez will probably start for the Als with the rest of the lineup unchanged. Len Cote's club has finally found some balance in the field and any change now would probably upset a good thing.

In Provincial League action last night, the searing Coaticook Canadians moved into sole possession of first place by gaining their fifth straight victory, whipping the Drummondville Royals 8-4.

All eight clubs in the league are active tonight. Marcel Guilbeault's Coaticook squad will try to stretch their first-place lead in the standing as they square off against the Thetford Mines Middlebrooks, one of the most effective pitchers in the league, is expected to start for the Canadians.

Aldy Pratte's Plessisville Braves meet the Drummondville Royals in Drummondville tonight. The Royals will have the services of Andy Oechionero on the mound, while Henry Corbell will be starting for the Braves.

In the only other game on tap, the Lachine Mets travel to Granby where they meet the fourth-place Cardinals.

Waiting pays off for Aaron, unloads three-run homer to stop Cubs, Giants nip Mets

Hank Aaron is a super-star. He can afford to endure three walks before getting his swing. Chico Ruiz is a super-sub. He can't waste any time.

Aaron bides his time Wednesday night as Chicago's Rick Nye pitched around him in his first three trips to the plate. The fourth time, Aaron unloaded a three-run homer that helped Atlanta Braves drop the Cubs 4-2.

Ruiz, Cincinnati's expert on National League benches, pinch hit for Jim Maloney in the 10th inning and made the most of his trip to the plate. He doubled, then raced home with the winning run on Nelson Briles' wild pitch as the Reds shaded St. Louis Cardinals 2-1.

Chicago's third straight loss to Atlanta kept the Cubs one-half game back of St. Louis in the battle for the National League lead. In other games, Los Angeles Dodgers topped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3, San Francisco Giants nipped New York Mets 2-1 and Philadelphia Phillies edged Houston Astros 3-2.

Don Sutton scattered seven hits and struck out seven as the Cardinals and Reds were tied at 1-1 after nine innings when Ruiz, who does so much bench sitting that he brings along his own cushion, batted for Maloney.

The utility man doubled to centre and with Tommy Helms at bat, he stole third. Then Briles, who had pitched wild for the winning run in New York last Sunday, did it again and Ruiz scored.

Rusty Staub misplayed Bobby Wine's fifth-inning fly ball into a triple, leading to the Phillies' final run.

Homers payoff for Angels who clout three to stop Boston, Twins bomb Yanks, Tigers win

California Angels had a terrible time hitting the ball Wednesday night, but almost every time they did it went out of the park.

Of the four hits they were allowed by Boston pitchers Jim Lonborg and Jose Santiago, the Angels made three of them good for homers, including Don Mincher's two-run shot in the bottom of the ninth that won the game 4-3. Roger Repoz and Paul Schaaf hit the other ones.
