American Airlines Seeking Continuation Of Privileges

Washington, Sept. 10.—(AP)—American Overseas Airlines have urged the United States Government to do what it can to make sure Canada does not cancel traffic rights of United States air carriers at Gander, Nfld.

C. W. Jacob, A.O.A. vice-president, made the request in identical telegrams to the State Department and the Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday.

He referred to a statement Thursday by J. R. Baldwin, chairman of Canada's Air Transport Board, that temporary traffic rights at Gander "will be reviewed by the Canadian Government prior to Sept. 30 in view of the United States Government's delay in implementing the (Canadian-American) air transport agreement."

The temporary rights expire Sept. 30. Meanwhile, the legality of the agreement, signed in Ottawa last June 4, is being questioned by Colonial Airlines in a Federal Court action here.

Walter A. Radius, director of the State Department's Office of Transport and Communications, commented:

Sectionman Tells Story Of Disaster

Written For The Canadian Press By OSCAR TREMBLAY

St. Joachim, Que., Sept. 10.—(P)—I am a railway section man for Canadian National Railways and I saw the crash of the Canadian Pacific Airlines plane yesterday.

I was near four other fellows working along the tracks when I heard some sort of explosion. I looked up and saw this big plane suddenly turn and head for the hills north of the railway line.

It struck a big cape that sticks up near the shore of the St. Lawrence but on the inland side of the railway.

I called to the other men. We were sure the plane had fallen not far away and we went through the bush and saw the wreckage.

It was the most awful scene I have ever come across. I understand there were 23 people in the plane.

They all died outright. There were arms and legs and even heads torn from the bodies. There were mangled bodies of little children.

The front of the plane seemed to be in one piece and it was jammed with broken and twisted bodies as if they had been thrown forward in the crash.

Pieces of the plane were scattered all about the bush.

We thought we would find the plane in flames but we didn't. There was no fire at all, just a mass of wreckage and all those bodies.

There was nothing we could do so we came out of the bush and reported to the railway.

Murder, Suicide In Dual Killing

Truro, N. S., Sept. 10.—(P)—A coroner's jury last night returned a verdict of murder and suicide in the stab-wound deaths of two Polish workers on a farm at near-Princeport Saturday.

The verdict said L. J. Kowalewski, 35, fatally stabbed 25-year-old Bernard Florowski, then committed suicide. Kowalewski was termed "temporarily insane." Both were immigrant farmers.

A witness, Edgar Uptis, said Kowalewski "didn't think very highly of Florowski and described him as a 'Hitler Jugend' (youth)."

The employer of the dead men, Howard Roper, said Kowalewski was ill-timpered but Florowski was "a good workman."

Other witnesses told of an early-morning scuffle in Florowski's room. Later, Kowalewski was seen walking from the workers' boarding house. His body was found not far from the house and a seven-inch butcher knife lay nearby.

Florowski was found dead in his room, stabbed 14 times.

Cecil Humphries, of Montreal, Former Sherbrooke Resident, Also Dies In Crash.

By WILLIAM STEWART, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Sault Au Cochon, Que., Sept. 10.—(P)—Carrying parties set out today from a railway line skirting the St. Lawrence River on a climb 2,000 feet up into the Laurentians where the bodies of twenty-three air crash victims lie scattered in thick forest. Among the victims of the disaster were Harold S. Pye, of Sherbrooke, who was on his way to a new position at Baie Comeau, and a former resident of Sherbrooke, Cecil Humphries, an inspector for the Bank of Montreal.

The gruesome job of picking the remains of the Canadian Pacific Airlines passengers and crew members from a crumpled DC-3 will take most of today.

The unexplained accident took an assortment of lives—important business men at the top of their careers, Quebec province family groups and two babes in arms.

From the Quebec-La Malbaie rail line over which a special train will take the bodies forty miles to Quebec City, a rising trail used by woodsmen leads almost two miles to the scene of the wreck.

It was used yesterday by Patrick Bouchard, an eel fisherman. Oscar Tremblay, a railway sectionman, and four fellow-employees who found the wrecked plane about noon.

Bouchard was near his fishing spot on the St. Lawrence North Shore when he saw the plane, a scant quarter-hour after its take-off from Quebec at 10:29 a.m. E.D.T., drop into spruce and pine woods near the top of one of the cliffs of Cap Tourmente.

He raced to a railway telephone at the flag station of Sault au Cochon and notified the agent at St. Joachim in the direction of Quebec.

Then he and the sectionmen mounted the hilly trail, spread out in a wide line and advanced in the general direction of the crash.

The scene at the location of the wreck left them horror-stricken.

The big, twin-engine passenger plane, on a 450-mile run from Montreal to Baie Comeau, was scarcely recognizable. All its 19 passengers and the plane's crew of four were dead.

News of the air tragedy, third worst in Canada, filtered out slowly along the Canadian National Railways telephone line from this little saw-milling stop, which isn't even a village, through St. Joachim, where the rail line meets a highway to Quebec.

At first it was reported that the death toll was 21, because children in arms are not named on plane manifests. When their presence on the aircraft became known the published count of victims went up to 23.

The dead included three top executives of the $600,000,000 Kennecott Copper Company of the United States which is interested in the development of titanium deposits down the St. Lawrence north shore near Havre St. Pierre.

They were President E. T. Stannard, Vice-President R. J. Parker and Arthur D. Stork, who was to be Mr. Stannard's successor. They had boarded the plane at Montreal yesterday morning.

Two executives of the Ontario Paper Company from St. Catharines, Ont., also were victims. They were E. J. Nalman and William Schouler.

Mrs. R. Chapadeau, 37-year-old mother, bound for her home at Baie Comeau died with a teenage daughter and son and an 11-month-old baby boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Henri Bouchard and their infant child were flying home to Baie Comeau after a holiday in Soré, Que.

Mrs. J. A. Guay, wife of a Quebec jeweler, boarded the plane at the last minute for a northeastern trip to visit relatives.

Two victims from Montreal—C. Humphries and A. R. Keller—were Bank of Montreal inspectors.

Pilot of the plane was Capt. Pierre Laurin, veteran of 20 bomber raids with the R.C.A.F., and regarded as one of the best pilots on the run to Baie Comeau operated by Quebec Airways, a C.P.A. subsidiary.

First Officer Gordon Alexander, native of Brantford, Ont., was with C.P.A. nearly seven years and left a widow and a young son in Verdun, Que.

Mrs. Gertrude McKay formerly of Lethbridge, Alta., was the stewardess and had served on western routes out of Edmonton before her transfer to Montreal. An automobile accident several years ago left her a widow.

Provincial police constables from Quebec city mounted guard over the plane within four hours of the crash.

They raced to St. Joachim on a

Clyde.

"World's Largest" Airliner Takes To The Air

The giant, 150-ton airliner "Brabazon 1," said to be the "largest civil land-based plane in the world," makes its first test flight over Charlton, England. The eight-engine plane was developed at a cost of $18,000,000. Officials said its 30-minute test flight was completely successful.

Specific Proposals For Relieving Of British Exchange Problems Due Today

Coastal Ship Faced With Destruction

Halifax, Sept. 10.—(P)—The United States coastguard cutter Dexter sped toward the St. Shotts coast—off southeastern Newfoundland—today to the side of a wrecked coastal steamer and her eight-man crew.

Meanwhile, the Halifax weather office reported that a Caribbean-born hurricane—previously headed for the south Newfoundland coast—probably will curve north and sweep Cape Breton island with 50-mile-an-hour gales. It then would pound across the Gulf of St. Lawrence and die on the Labrador coast.

The Dexter was heading for the big blow when she was diverted to the side of the 2,400-ton Bayfield, ground and breaking up under pounding seas off Cape Pine. The Bayfield's frantic SOS to Halifax marine radio said simply: "We are ground on cape Pine, Newfoundland, and are abandoning ship."

Fate of her crew was not known here.

The Dexter was aided by aircraft from the U.S. air base at Argentia, Nfld. The cutter had been en route to weather station Baker in the turbulent North Atlantic when she first was ordered to seek shelter from the onrushing hurricane.

New Islands Discovered By Voyager

By DON MACKENZIE

Canadian Press Correspondent

Sydney, N.S., Sept. 10.—(P)—Cmdr. Donald B. MacMillan came out of an Arctic gale with a new map of the Labrador coast and a collection of fossils.

The 74-year-old veteran of 28 trips to the land of the midnight sun told reporters yesterday he discovered 25 islands—most off the northern ice-ringed Labrador coast—and made 1,000 soundings in the Fjords of Baffin and Ellesmere Islands.

Three discoveries, he said, would necessitate changes in maps of the district. His findings would be recorded with the United States hydrographic office in Washington.

The commander was a member of the Peary expedition which discovered the North Pole in 1909. His 28 northern ventures have produced valuable scientific and navigational data and he supports a school for Eskimos at Nain, Labrador. He also is the author of several books on the Arctic.

Cmdr. MacMillan described this voyage as "the most arduous" in 40 years of Arctic travel. Today, he heads home to Boothby Harbor, Me., in his sturdy ship, Bowdoin.

The Bowdoin, with her 15-man crew—science and geology students, the sons of wealthy parents—will arrive in Boothby Sept. 15.

Cmdr. MacMillan said the group reached a point 40 miles inside the Arctic Circle and he gathered a collection of fossils "millions of years old." These were deposited in the district by retreating glaciers.

Miriam MacMillan, the commander's author-wife, also made the trip—her seventh annual voyage north.

Difficult forays across Baffin Island glaciers produced geological information and in other expeditions, a collection of rare birds was gathered. The commander displayed the skins of mallard and female polar bears and their cubs, shot by one of the students.

En route north, the Bowdoin stopped at the Eskimo school on the Labrador coast and landed supplies. On homeward trip, surplus cargo was discharged at the school.

Maine's Bowdoin College will get the various collections which will be placed in the Arctic Museum planned by the College.

Cmdr. MacMillan said the voyage was made from the Strait of Belle Isle to Sydney was made through heavy seas and gales. "Very few of the boys were able to eat breakfast this morning," he smiled.

Nowhere on Baffin or Ellesmere islands did the party encounter Eskimos, the commander said.

London, Sept. 10.—(Reuters)—A British Lancaster bomber tomorrow will drop a French Tricolor, the Union Jack and a R.A.F. Ensign on the original dropping zone near Limoges, France, where secret agents and supplies were parachuted to the French underground during the war.

The flight is part of commemorative ceremonies in honor of members of the French resistance and Allied forces killed during the war.

Hydro Developments Offer Scotland A Bright Future

By STUART UNDERHILL, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Glasgow, Sept. 10.—(P)—Ancient Scotland, land of the lonely glen and misty mountain, is going modern.

Hydro-electric reservoirs have drowned part of the historic road to the Isles, but in doing so have sent electric power lines creeping into remote highland areas. New factories are rising beside the shipyards and coal mines in Scotland's industrial heart.

Miners, faced by unemployment in Lanarkshire pits which have closed through flooding or exhaustion, are finding other jobs in the Lothians. Isolated farm families await the result of electrification projects before following the traditional path of emigration.

Population has passed 5,000,000 and is still rising. Scottish politicians say the time has come when their country can cease exporting the best of its sons and even lure back "adventurous spirits alive to opportunity."

True, some Glasgow industrialists shake their heads over the future of the shipyards, fearing that orders which have kept them working at full capacity since the war will not be repeated.

They talk of a shipbuilding slump in 1951-52 which is bound to be felt in scores of small factories which provide everything from light switches to door-knobs for the big vessels launched on the Clyde.

Glen Sutton Man Held In Road Death

Special to Record

Cowanville, Que., Sept. 10.—A coroner's jury yesterday held Harold Logan, of nearby Glen Sutton, criminally responsible for the death of Herbert G. Brown, 28, who was killed Thursday when his light mail carrier's truck collided with the heavier one driven by Logan.

Witnesses testified that Brown, a farmer and rural mail carrier, was struck by Logan's truck after the latter swerved too wide on a curve on the highway.

Logan was arrested following the inquest and was taken to Sweetsburg where he will face a charge of manslaughter.

Declares Atom Bomb Made Obsolete By Germ Warfare

St. Cergue,

IN HOLLYWOODby

NEA Staff
Correspondent"CATHY IN HOLLYWOOD"
STORY HAS REAL MIR-ACLES BEHIND IT

Hollywood—Cathy Downs has red hair, a luscious smile and a sense of humor. She also has a story. I'm calling the story "Cathy in Hollywood."

It could happen to almost any New York model who takes a film test on Wednesday, wins a contract, and on Friday is rushed to Hollywood on the Super Chief.

It happened to Cathy five years ago. She was just 18.

The studio needing her in such a hurry was 20th Century-Fox. In three years she worked in only two pictures!

Then there was an economy wave and her contract wasn't renewed. Now she's free-lancing and doing very well. You'll see her next as the leading lady in "The Sundowners," with Bob Preston and John Barrymore, Jr.

But I'm ahead of Cathy's Hollywood story.

George Jessel was on the same train that brought Cathy and her mother to Hollywood. Cathy remembers:

"By the time we got to Chicago, Jessel said he thought he was in love with me."

"By the time we got to Hollywood he said he WAS in love with me. He asked me for a date. I said I'd be glad to go out with him if my mother went along."

"He looked startled but he was game. The three of us went to dinner. He was just separating from Lois Andrews. I guess he wanted me to feel sorry for him. I felt sorry for him but not sorry enough. We had a couple of more dates and now when we meet we greet each other with a polite hello."

John Payne and Gail Russell form an attractive twosome in the spectacular western drama "El Paso" which starts tomorrow at the Granada Theatre.

Charming Man

Cathy's first picture was "The Dark Corner." Maybe you remember. She played the wife of Clifton Webb. It was her first acting anywhere except in the studio of a dramatic coach.

"I was nervous but Clifton was very sweet to me. Later, when I went to see the picture, I realized why he was being so sweet to me. He was stealing scenes from me like taking candy away from a baby."

Then there was "My Darling Clementine." Cathy played the title role. But she's honest enough to explain that it was only a second lead. Linda Darnell was the star.

For a year Cathy didn't even see a movie camera. Then her contract wasn't renewed. It wasn't at all like the agent from Hollywood said when he discovered Cathy with clothespins holding her together.

I know. An explanation quick. Every model knows the trick. When clothes are too big, they gather the material at the back and snap on the clothespins. Cathy had just snapped on a couple of clothespins on a dress a size too large when the agent said:

"You should be in pictures." "I was so startled," Cathy said, "the clothespins snapped off and the dress almost fell off. I was so embarrassed I couldn't even speak."

In two years of free-lancing Cathy has had leads in five pictures. She's thankful for that sense of humor. "It can take care of any situation."

Air Disaster Victim Played Major Role In Sherbrooke Athletic Groups

Two young men who received their education in Sherbrooke were among those who lost their lives in the crash of a Quebec Airways plane forty miles from Quebec City yesterday afternoon in which twenty-three persons were killed. They were Harold S. Pye, 292 King Street West, Sherbrooke, who boarded the plane at Quebec for the trip to Baie Comeau where he was to take over a new position, and Cecil C. G. Humphries, now living in Montreal, but for many years a resident of East Sherbrooke.

Harold Steven Pye, 24, popular local athlete, better known as "Tarte", is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Pye, 292 King Street West. He was born in Sand Point, Ontario.

A victim of the third worst disaster in Canada's air history, he was a graduate of the Mitchell and the Sherbrooke High School.

One of the top athletes developed here he served as physical instructor at the Lennoxville High School, was athletic director at Noranda, Que., and school athletic director at Arvida, Que. He also coached several local school teams.

He starred in rugby, hockey, basketball, badminton, softball and track and field events. In addition to playing the sports he always took an active part in the organization of sports while attending school here.

He was a past president of the Sherbrooke High School Alumni Association and a past president of the Sherbrooke High School Athletic Association.

Pye graduated from the Sherbrooke High School in 1944 and at that time was secretary-treasurer of the boys city and district basketball league. He was a past member of the Hi-Y club and held the position of Sgt-at-Arms in 1944.

The date of the funeral will be announced later for the young athletic director who was well-known and well-liked.

Cecil Charles Goddard Humphries, an inspector for the Bank of Montreal, was born in Salvage, Nfld., September 18, 1920, but spent many years in Sherbrooke, his father, Rev. E. H. Humphries being rector of the Church of the Advent in East Sherbrooke. He received most of his education in the local schools. He enlisted in the

The Barber Of Seville At The Granada

SALVATORE BACCALONI

FRANCESCO VALENTINO

GABOR CARELLI

VIRGILIO LAZZARI

A quartet of four famous operatic stars will head the Artists of the Metropolitan Rossini's Barber of Seville when it is taken on an Eastern Canadian tour under the management of Canadian Concerts & Artists Inc., opening in Sherbrooke on September 13, next Tuesday.

They are Salvatore Baccaloni, called the greatest living interpreter of the role of Dr. Bartolo, Carmen Torres, the beautiful Rosina, distinguished Metropolitan basso, will be heard in the key role of Don Basilio. Others in the cast are Thelma Votipka, Carlo Tomanello, Ludwig Bursztaler and Luigi di Cesare.

All the foregoing are members of the Metropolitan with the exception of Miss Torres and Mr. Carelli who have both been specially engaged as guest stars. Miss Torres who sang the role of Rosina in Montreal three years ago in Canadian Concerts & Artists Inc. highly successful outdoor production of Rossini's masterpiece, is star soprano of the Paris Opera Comique and is regarded as an ideal exponent of the sprightly heroine of the opera.

The entire production is being exported from the Metropolitan as a unit show including that famous institution's chorus, costumes and scenery. It will be under the artistic direction of Desire Deffere, leading Metropolitan stage director. Wilfrid Pelletier of the Metropolitan, will conduct.

It is stressed that this will be the only visit to Canada during the forthcoming season of a complete group from the New York Metropolitan.

SAVING THE CHILDREN

Immunization Week, which starts tomorrow, is that week set aside each year when the Health League of Canada enlists the co-operation of all agencies of public information in a campaign to save the children of this country from preventable disease.

Diphtheria and whooping cough are the immediate enemies in the present campaign, the reason being that a vast body of incontrovertible experience shows that they can be eradicated by the simple and inexpensive practice of immunization. Children take diphtheria and whooping cough, and suffer and die, because somebody neglected to give them the protection medical science has made available.

Children should be immunized before school age, but it is better done later than not at all. Free clinics will be operated throughout the city during the next week, but the responsibility for seeing to it that their children are given security against these killing diseases belongs primarily to the parents and they cannot evade it by the assumption that a public health service will attend to the matter in good time.

WHAT TO BELIEVE

The problem of finding a cure for the economic ills which face the world appears even more difficult than that of remedying the ailments of the human body. And from the frequent suggestions advanced from various supposedly capable quarters, the experts are just as divided on their cures as are doctors. Which condition leads the editor of the Ottawa Journal to list the following cure-alls advanced to date:

1. That Britain should devalue her pound.
2. That Britain mustn't devalue her pound.
3. That Britain's trouble is in the high cost of her social services.
4. That the cost of Britain's services, paid for with pounds, has nothing to do with shortage of dollars.
5. That Britain must export more to the dollar countries.
6. That U. S. tariffs make it impossible for Britain to export more to the dollar countries.
7. That U. S. tariffs don't make any real difference to British exports to the U. S. seeing that Britain is not exporting as much to the U. S. now as she did in pre-war years when U. S. tariffs were higher.
8. That the U. S. should invest more abroad, thus provide Europe and Britain with more dollars.
9. That U. S. business can't be expected to invest more abroad unless the investments are profitable and there is guarantee that it won't lose its money.
10. That the U. S. and Canada should provide Britain with more goods and dollars by way of loans.
11. That provisions of more goods and dollars for Britain by way of loans would merely be a stop-gap.
12. That Britain should grow all her own food except tea, coffee and citrus, stop importing billions of dollars worth of food while 25,000,000 acres of her arable land lie idle.
13. That the Commonwealth and Empire should band together into a "sterling bloc", and "stand up to the dollar".
14. That the U. S. should increase the price of gold.
15. That the U. S., under no circumstances, must increase the price of gold.

Thus the babel of voices, with one economist trying to out-shout the other, day after day, almost hour after hour. Amid the clatter of confusion, what is to be said by the layman?

INTERESTING PROPAGANDA

To the ordinary person, the interest displayed by the western nations in the threatening gestures which Moscow is making at Yugoslavia does not swell from sympathy with

Tito who once joined the Russians in spitting insults at "degenerate" capitalist countries. The aspects which are turning the Soviet-Yugoslav dispute into eagerly-read front page news include the fact that the little fellow is defying the giant, and that Tito is apparently getting a taste of the fruits of communistic dictatorship which has served his own purposes in the past.

One fact which has been taught by history is that those who assume the role of dictators find it almost impossible to accept dictation or to compromise. This is evidenced in the Russian leaders sitting in at world councils who cannot get along with representatives of other nations.

Curious it is how the rift in the communist bloc leaves gaping cracks in the propaganda wall the reds have been building for the edification of the backward peoples in other parts of the world. The chorus they have sung is that all who embrace communism are loving brothers, working out a heaven on earth, one for the other. All others, this propaganda teaches, are imperialists crouched to add to their conquests.

Thus it might seem somewhat startling to hear Tito declare, in effect, that the loving brother act is merely words on paper, and by bringing armored divisions to the Yugoslavia border and threatening to bring Yugoslavia back into submission to Moscow, the Russians are displaying imperialism at its worst.

PRESS COMMENTS

MACDONNELL IS PRAISED

St. Catharines Standard
That Canada needs men of the integrity and ability like J. M. Macdonnell, defeated on June 27 in the Parry Sound-Muskoka riding, there can be no doubt whatever. Mr. Macdonnell is an exceptional man in every respect, fair-minded, hard-working, with rich business experience and a fine personality. Whether Mr. Macdonnell can be elected as a Conservative in Greenwood in a by-election is quite another matter. He is being sought to run in that riding, which is open by reason of the death of J. Ernest McMillin, who won the seat for the Conservatives in June by the narrow margin of 44 votes.

There is little doubt that Toronto Liberals will make a dead set to win the by-election, and the Liberal candidate will be backed by organization and unlimited finances. It is also to be expected that despite any fine phrases handed out to Mr. Macdonnell in the last election would indicate. With throw all resources in the campaign for the defeat of the former financial critic of the opposition. In other words, for government complacency, and for the good of the Liberal party, men of the type of "Jim" Macdonnell are not wanted in the House of Commons. Party preservation is the first law of politics. As Arthur Meighen was betrayed and beaten in South York, so in the case of J. M. Macdonnell. The Liberals will pull no punches.

Nevertheless, the by-election should provide the opportunity to Toronto Tories to prove that they are not yet quite the rump or remnant party as figures in the last election would indicate. With their backs against the wall, and under all other circumstances, a victory in Greenwood might well be taken as the first step in the long, hard and tortuous comeback trail. Even if he were defeated, J. M. Macdonnell is a candidate to travel the river with.

HEAVY BUT JUST

Peterborough Examiner
The Ontario land surveyor of South Porcupine who failed to put out his camp fire and thereby caused a bush fire which ate up 75 acres of growth, was fined $25 and costs, and will have to pay the cost of fighting the fire. That cost was $6,000. It is a heavy cash penalty for carelessness but no more than just. He has not been required to make restitution for the trees destroyed.

Carelessness with fire in forested areas is costly to the public; when it is made costly to the careless ones, more care may be taken and fewer forest fires may be caused.

A TIME TO GO EASY

Le Soleil
The most fervent partisans of social security should think about a halt, a pause, in the carrying out of the magnificent program announced by Mr. Mackenzie King seven or eight years ago. Canadians approve the program (they demonstrated that twice at the ballot boxes) but they are not unaware that it involves heavy taxes. And the time has perhaps come to choose between taxes and new measures of social security. Why not give the Canadian economy time to adapt itself to the transformations of recent years and do that while reducing taxation? If the national revenue holds at a reasonable level, if the economic crisis, so much feared, is found to be no more than a bad dream, there would always be time to launch out into new experiments. Certainly charity is necessary and the state should, at need, supplement the lack of private generosity. But at the same time sentimentalism should be avoided and care taken not to discourage enterprising men.

READY TO USE ATOM BOMB

W. L. Clark in the Windsor Star
General Omar N. Bradley leaves no uncertainty about the willingness of the United States to use the atomic bomb against any aggressor. The Chief of Staff of the United States Army is on an official tour of Western Europe. He adds that only the Americans in the North Atlantic Pact group have the atomic bomb.

Great mystery surrounds just who has and who has not the atomic bomb. Ever since nuclear fission, scientists have known it is possible to make such a missile. The United States made more than one. Whether any other nation has the bomb or not is uncertain. It takes millions in money and much research and great plants to produce a bomb. As a defensive weapon the atomic bomb is an ace. No other nation will want to make war against the United States as long as the Americans have the bomb. And, the United States is quite right to stress the weapon, if that can preserve peace and prevent the world being plunged into another general war.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And I beseech you, brethren, suffer the word of exhortation: for I have written a letter unto you in few words.—Hebrews 13:22.

Men who have much to say use the fewest words.—H. W. Shaw.

IT'S THE LEAST WE CAN DO

Are You Branded?

By REV. B. S. MURRAY, M.A.

Does the word Slave convey a word picture of shackles, chains, a loss of freedom, cruelty, plus a distinguishing mark, a brand?

Those unfortunate people who were caught in raids, warfare, or heavily in debt were, in the early days, marked, "branded," people forced to do menial, hard, unrequited tasks. Their word was consequently mean, cruel, thievish. Such thoughts as these, though written of the early centuries, seem as if of our generation one was writing. For we have slaves, human slaves, to wit, in our concentration camps.

Of Brands, however, I am thinking, and that is a popular word today with so many songs about the West. In St. Paul's day people bore marks of their owners. And proud was he to acknowledge Christ as his Owner. Of this relationship he referred to himself as a servant—a slave—of Christ. I cannot conceive of a lovelier phrase than "a servant of Jesus Christ."

"THE MARKS OF JESUS"

If you have read that description of St. Paul's being branded in his body with marks of Jesus" (Gal. 4:17) you will agree that it is a beautiful one. In his day, as we have observed, slaves were branded that people might identify them and know who their master was. The Apostle, therefore, meant by these words, "branded in his body," with the "marks of Jesus," the wounds and scars which he had received from the blows and scourging of his enemies and persecutors, the Romans and the Jews, because he was a Christian, a servant of Jesus Christ, that these wounds and scars in his body were visible tokens of Whose He was and Whom he served.

These outward and visible marks of Jesus are to be found in all true servants of Jesus Christ. All who live a godly life shall suffer persecution. The marks of Jesus, of His Cross, are to be found branded in the bodies of His followers everywhere. Are you branded? A real Christian is. Then, you must be!

Just now our bewildered, upset, out-of-joint world needs those whose lives proclaim allegiance to Christ and His Cause. The bearing of the mark is the ultimate proof of devotion to any cause. Sacrifice for a cause was then—and is now—the final answer to devotion.

On September 14th the Church of God commemorates the Exaltation of the Cross, A.D. 335. This festival annually is kept in remembrance of the honor which has ever been paid to it by the faithful since its discovery in the fourth century. That Cross always calls to mind the supreme sacrifice Christ made thereon for the sins of the whole world. To bring the Cross to the ends of the earth, holy and humble men and women have gone forth. In that crusade the Order of the Holy Cross, both in the English and Roman communions, bears an honored record. Canada remembers with pride one member in particular, that simple, pious, humble man of heart—Brother Andre of Montreal.

Lives of such followers of Christ call out to us to give ourselves to Christ and His Cause. Christ's life and death was a sacrifice, an act of love. Arise and follow in His steps! Now! To the motif of sacrifice, parenthood is writ. Service, too. But chiefest of all, when I survey the wondrous Cross on which the Saviour of the world gave His all for us men and our salvation, such love demands my life, my soul, my all! I have no alternative but to enlist in active service for His Cause. There is work awaiting in some form or other, be it large or small, prominent or obscure. The Master calls; we must obey, and in association with Him we shall become like Him for we shall see Him as He is.

HISTORY REPEATS . . .

Nor must the Master's call fall on deaf ears for, from a variety of quarters the Church of Christ is encountering concerted, strong opposition. Her leaders are oft imprisoned, many in concentration camps; her people forced to obey man rather than God or else persecution awaits. In all history never has there been such a period of persecutions. This hostility has not silenced the Church, rather it has accentuated the three B's of resistance, revival, resolution. History repeats itself and the blood of the martyrs is still the seed of the Church.

Beware lest we forget that it matters very much what we believe; makes the difference between life and death for the individual, war and peace for society. Their experiences proclaim afresh the protection and all sufficiency of Christ. These modern martyrs testify that the Holy Bible is a channel for the Word of God. Within their hearts a new consciousness and appreciation of the Church have taken root. You see this new body—His Body—has been burned and starved and tortured and thrown to wild beasts; yet it lives sublimely on. By no death can it be slain; on no cross can it be crucified.

Across the centuries comes the clarion call for you and me to rededicate ourselves to Christ and His Church with all the courage and skill and fortitude possible so that that church may go forward, strengthened, empowered, expecting and attempting great things for the Kingdom of God on earth. There's a Cross for everyone; there's a cross for you! Jesus bore His Cross; so must I. To be privileged to share in the work of His Church demands immediate Christian action. The Kingdom of God is to be established upon earth, not so much by the proclamation of a doctrine as by the exhibition of a temper. It is by a beautiful manifestation of the spirit of the Cross that the whole world is to be won for Him who hung there.

So close have people imitated the Life of Christ that the marks of the nails are said to have appeared in the hands of some Saints, such as St. Francis and St. Catherine of Sienna. The challenge still holds, for us to imitate Christ, bearing

The Record Short Story

The Kitten

By ADALINE SCOTT

Jane shut the door and came quickly into the living room. Fresh, cool air rushed around her father's ankles, and he looked up from his newspaper. Joe Kendel saw at once her tense, stormy face. She stopped in front of him. And for a moment she seemed to be struggling for speech.

He sensed what was coming, and he wanted to forestall it. He pointed to a basket at his feet. "Tess was bringing up her kittens out in the garage," he said, grinning faintly. "I moved them in here. Comical to watch them."

Jane gave them the briefest glance. At any other time, she would have dropped to her knees chuckling with delight. But now she shifted her gaze back to her father, as if they didn't exist.

She began, "Why did you do it, Dad?" And he knew she wasn't referring to the kittens.

Jane was small. But the way she held her head gave an illusion of height. And the accusation and hurt in her gray-blue eyes made her seem older than her nineteen years.

"You've been talking with Clark Banning, of course," Joe said, sighing.

"He told me about your lecturing him," she replied. "He didn't want to at first, but I made him." Then, "Oh, Dad, how could you?"

Joe let the mantle clock tick several times before he answered. "I was only thinking of your happiness, as I always have."

"My happiness!" she repeated. She swallowed as though she were drinking tears.

"Clark is a nice boy," Joe admitted, groping for the right words. "But honey, he couldn't begin to take care of you. He's just starting in business. It'll be a few years before he can prove himself. Don't you see?"

But he knew instantly that she did not. Young people were usually rash and foolish. They had to be continually guided away from the pitfalls.

"I can see that you want me to give in to you, as if I were still a child," she said on a stifled note. Then controlling herself, "Because Mother died when I was a baby you've felt that you had to practically live my life for me. Oh Dad, isn't that I'm ungrateful—or selfish. It's just that I can't let you talk me into breaking our engagement. You know it isn't Clark. It'd be the same no matter who the man was. You'll always feel no one is quite good enough for your daughter."

After a long pause Joe said, "That isn't fair, Jane. I've tried to be the right kind of father to you." He felt suddenly lonely and defeated. And it showed in the in our bodies in some measure the marks of Jesus, of their conflict and overcoming of Satan and sin. The Greek word for "marks" is "stigmata."

THE BRANDED BROW

Is it adventure you crave? In being and living a Christian! You have it. Nothing is equal to it. Nothing! And what love! Christ and you are one in the most intimate endearing love. You are Christ's man! God's child!

"Don't think that your brand is placed on your brow by others. We gave it ourselves. We choose the lord who shall have dominion over us; and everything else comes as a matter of course. Sin and care; anger and hate; love and jealousy—serve whom you will; but in the process of time the name of your Lord who shall have dominion over head," so wrote Boreham of Australia.

Of Heaven, could there be a lovelier picture than that "His servants shall serve Him; and they shall be in their forehead" (Rev. 22:3, 4). Our dear departed, a modern poet wrote, shall not be as we have known them here below, "toilworn and sad with burdened care. Erect, clear-eyed" upon their brows Thy Name they bear."

This beautiful description of Heaven was the favorite of the author of The Imitation of Christ—Thomas a Kempis. He knew what it was to have been initiated into the Brotherhood of the Branded Brow.

Will you resolve to make this

CONSTRUCTIVE BIDDER HAS BETTER LUCK

Generally I do not like to give just two hands. Most of my readers like to see all four hands, but as today's hand is a lesson hand on bidding, I want to eliminate the other hands so that you will devote your entire thought to the point of bidding.

South has nothing but a straight one heart bid. If he gives any consideration to a two heart bid, he is wrong. North has only one bid, two diamonds. Some players have the habit of overcalling with any kind of four-card major suit, but this is not the type of hand on which you should make a spade overall. North has a good five-card diamond suit, and going into the two zone is constructive.

What should South bid over two diamonds? He should not make a simple overall of two hearts, nor should he jump to game in hearts. His correct bid is three hearts. Now the question is, what should North do?

Some of the experts will tell you that the correct bid is three no trump, but the majority, I think, will agree that four clubs is the better bid. When South bids four hearts, North should pass, even though he is void of hearts,

South has heard every bid North has made, and still insists upon the hand being played in hearts. North does not have to be afraid of passing out a possible slam.

If South held the ace and a small spade, six hearts, four diamonds to the queen-jack and a singleton club, instead of bidding four hearts he would bid four diamonds. Then North could bid five clubs, to show the ace. South would show the ace of spades by bidding five spades, and rest assured that he would not make this bid unless he had at least four diamonds to the queen-jack. Now North can count 13 tricks and could bid a grand slam.

Red Sox Down Yanks 7-1 To Remain In Battle For Honors; Home Runs Feature Giants' Win Over Dodgers

Boston Red Sox spurted back into the tense American League pennant race yesterday when Ellis Kinder won his ninth straight victory, setting down New York Yankees 7-1 on only four hits in New York.

The Yankee lead was cut back to 1 1/2 games—just what it was when the Red Sox went to New York Wednesday night and lost 5-2.

In the National League meanwhile New York Giants piled it on thick as they scored one of their infrequent victories over Brooklyn's Dodgers by a 10-1 count at Ebbets Field.

The loss not only snapped a six-game Brooklyn winning streak but dropped them 1 1/2 games behind the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals.

The American League

In Yankee Stadium the crowd of 53,548—biggest week-day attendance here of the season—brought the total for the two important Yankee-Red Sox games to an unprecedented 120,423. Thursday's contest was rained out.

New York now has 23 games left to play, and Boston 18, and here is the way they stand.

Home runs started Boston on the road to victory. Johnny Pesky hit his second of the season with Dom DiMaggio on base in the third, and Bobby Doerr blasted out his 18th in the fourth.

The Sox kept pecking away at Ed Lopat, and even jumped on Hugh Casey, the former Brooklyn Dodger and Pittsburgh Pirate relief pitcher. Casey gave up two runs in his first American League appearance, but both were unearned.

Kinder, who struck out eight but allowed nine bases on balls, was touched for only one hit in the first six innings—a single by Cliff Mapes in the fourth. The Yankees finally scored in the seventh when Billy Johnson, who had walked, and advanced to second when Charley Keller also walked, came home on Phil Rizzuto's single.

There was a world series atmosphere about the game, played in crisp autumn sunlight. The two teams have five more games to play with each other, including the final one of the season here Oct. 2, and these will probably settle the American League championship. Surging Detroit and faltering Cleveland seem too far behind the Yankees.

Although Kinder was masterful in winning his 19th game of the season against five defeats there was some tense moments for him. In the seventh, after Johnson had scored, he walked Gene Woodling, filling the bases with two out. But Kinder struck out Bobby Brown to end the inning.

Then in the eighth Joe DiMaggio led off with a hard single to centre. Yogi Berra belted a terrific liner toward rightfield and DiMaggio set off for second. First baseman Billy Goodman shot up into the air and somehow snagged it. He needed to take only a couple of steps to complete an unassisted doubleplay.

Casey had a rough time when he came into take up the pitching job in the eighth. Bobby Doerr, first man to face him, singled. Then Al Zarilla was safe on Billy Johnson's error. Billy Goodman walked, loading the bases. Doerr scored on Birdie Tebbetts fly to centrefield, and a moment later Zarilla came home when Casey cut loose a wild pitch. Thereupon Casey struck out Kinder and Dom DiMaggio.

tip given them by long distance telephone, though the caller failed to say where he was or where the crash he reported had occurred.

Two constables under Detective Joseph Cote boarded a little railway scooter or "jigger" for their trip, 10 miles from St. Joachim. The motor-driven scooter ordinarily is used to carry railway workers to their jobs along the right-of-way.

From then on the scooter, manned by sectionmen, shuttled back and forth between St. Joachim and Sault au Cochon carrying persons on official business.

Restriction of travel by scooter to C.P.A. officials and investigators forced newspaper men, photographers and others to resort to a variety of methods in attempts to reach the scene.

Some tried to get there from Quebec-La Malbaie highway by trudging through six or seven miles of thick bush, streams and hills.

Attempts by plane failed and one aircraft carrying photographers had little luck because the plane dropped sharply into the woods so that little evidence of the accident could be seen from the air.

Attempts were made to get to Sault au Cochon from St. Joachim by boat but deep mud along the shore and heavy dunes impeded their efforts.

The inaccessibility of the crash scene also placed obstacles in the way of arrangements to retrieve the remains of the victims. The first attempt to carry the bodies down the trail were made today.

The disposition of bodies and plane wreckage were left untouched until white-haired Corporal Paul V. Marceau arrived by scooter from St. Joachim and trudged up into the hills after nightfall for his inspection.

Friends and relatives of some of the victims motored from Quebec to St. Joachim and tried there to get lifts by scooter to Sault au Cochon.

Men who had visited the wrecked plane persuaded them to change their plans.

Separate investigation into the crash will be carried out by C.P.A. and by a board of inquiry from Montreal made up of Chairman H. G. Hilchie, J. P. Fournier, District Inspector of Air Regulations for Quebec Province, and George Luce, technical adviser.

What they are able to gather from the wreck and from the group of eye-witnesses at Sault au Cochon may be their only source of information.

The D.C.S. evidently made a normal take-off from Ancienne Lorette airport at Quebec and appeared safely on its way when it disappeared from view.

No distress signal to the airport was reported.

Oldtimers at St. Joachim, who watched the Montreal-Toronto planes go over just above the Laurentian foothills and the edge of the St. Lawrence thought the ill-fated aircraft was a bit lower than usual.

One man thought the plane failed to start climbing at a spot others usually do.

The sectionmen said they heard the sound of an explosion before the crash but the wreckage was not burned out despite evidence of a small fire.

Oscar Tremblay said: "The plane seemed to be gliding when I saw it. There was the explosion and it dropped into the woods."

Quebec City Still Lacks Bus Service

Quebec, Sept. 10. — It was walk or "hitch" a ride in Quebec today as the public transportation system remained paralysed by a garage workers' strike with little hope of settlement seen for the week-end.

Negotiations between the 122 garage workers belonging to a Catholic labor syndicate (C.C.-C.L.) and the Quebec Railway, Light and Power Company are at a standstill.

The garage men walked off the job Thursday, seeking an increase in pay of eight cents an hour. Since then, they have raised their demands to 10 cents an hour. Under the scale prevailing before the strike, apprentices were paid 65 cents an hour and "first class" men $1.02.

For the 200,000 inhabitants of this hilly old capital city the third day without autobuses was a grim prospect.

However residents of suburban Sillery, normally served by the Quebec Railway transport company, announced they had organized a bus service of their own to start at six a.m. this morning.

Town authorities have made arrangements to bring over three autobuses from south-shore Levis which will travel within the limits of the suburb.

In the meantime, industrial plants and commercial activity is hitting a new low.

Worst of all was the fate of the usually prosperous Quebec Provincial Exhibition, normally a big source of income for the city treasury which sponsors the annual fair.

Yesterday's negotiations were limited to telephone communications between Federal Conciliator Lippori Pepin and the disputing parties.

The origin of the wage dispute goes back to Dec. 28 when the garage men demanded wage increases of 20 cents an hour. Later they halved their demands but when no agreement was reached a federal arbitration board was set up.

The labor board's decision granted the garage men five cents hourly increase, half the increase sought.

Subsequently the union demanded at least three cents above the labor board's five-cent award. The company offered two cents.

In Newfoundland so that such flights will not be terminated by Canada Sept. 30," the statement said.

Earlier Cherington said he thinks Canada should "at least" hold hearings on the United States carriers permit request.

"The Canadians really are a step back of us," Cherington said. "I would think, if their objective is to keep even and not ahead of us, they could at least hold hearings."

Another project close to Johnston's heart is an afforestation scheme that will utilize waste land and provide additional employment for small farmers. He says it could save Scotland £10,000,000 a year in pit-prop imports.

So far the Clyde-side has been the scene of most of the new light industries with which Scotland hopes to diversify her basic shipbuilding and coal-mining. It has been designated by the United Kingdom Government as a "development area" in which special incentives are given to new industries.

More than 100 new plants came into production during 1948. Some soon found themselves in difficulties, especially when they ventured into export markets. Others were criticized as opening employment to women rather than to men.

Ambitious projects are under way for the development of rich coal seams near Edinburgh. Scotland already produces about 12 per cent of Britain's coal, 41 per cent of her ships, 48 per cent of her locomotives, and a high proportion of other manufactured and agricultural products.

Unemployment hovers around 50,000, about one-sixth of the total for the United Kingdom, but a long way from the dark days of the 1930's, when one-tenth of the entire population was unemployed.

can. The 60-year-old Bayfield was a coal-carrier between North Sydney, N.S., and Carbonara, on the East Newfoundland coast. She is Montreal-owned.

Other ships in a line from east of windswept Sable island, 100 miles off Halifax, to southeastern Newfoundland scurried into port as the year's first hurricane warning was hoisted along the Canadian Atlantic seaboard.

The hurricane has 80-mile-an-hour winds at its centre but they are confined to a small area. Its path today will bring gales all along the south coast of Newfoundland and stronger winds to the Gulf and Cape Breton.

The St. Shotts coast is on the Avalon peninsula. Its rocky reefs have claimed dozens of ships.

Paul J. Neff, chief operating officer of the line, who called the strike "one of the most unjustifiable in American railroad history," repeated that he is ready to let arbitrators settle the issues in dispute.

R. E. Davidson, Assistant Grand Chief of the Locomotive Engineers, speaking for the brotherhoods, said arbitration wouldn't end the strike. The union's stand is that the issues in dispute are not subject to arbitration.

Synod Today Discusses Financing

Halifax, Sept. 10. — The General Synod of the Church of England in Canada today continued to dwell on finances.

By unanimous vote, the Synod last night decided to appoint a committee to study the whole question of stewardship and report back to the Executive Council.

The step was taken after the budget committee said money requested by three boards of the Clergy Bishops or clergymen "to use new money to obtain new money from new people so that our annual income from appointments may soon be adequate to meet our greatly increased needs."

Archbishop Sherman, chairman of the Budget Committee, said, "We don't come near meeting the money we have been asked to give the three boards."

Most Rev. L. R. Sherman, Archbishop of Rupert's Land, asked every Bishop or clergyman "to use new means to obtain new money from new people so that our annual income from appointments may soon be adequate to meet our greatly increased needs."

Archbishop Sherman, chairman of the Budget Committee, said, "We don't come near meeting the money we have been asked to give the three boards."

The Synod approved a minimum salary of $1,600 a year for married clergymen on missionary work and at the same time paved the way for action which may raise it to $1,800. Previous minimum was $1,400, and the minimum for single priests is $1,200.

This move followed long discussion of the report of the Church's Missionary Society. The report told of work being done among Canadian Indians and Eskimos and in India, China and Japan.

At one point it was disclosed that "new and special" training would be given missionaries destined for China so they could have "working knowledge" of Communism to enable them to work under it.

Rev. William Simpson of Toronto, recently returned from missionary work, said the picture in China was "sad one."

"The people are caught between two forces, neither of their choosing. On the one hand was the 'weak, corrupt nationalist government and on the other the liberty-denying communists.'"

Sir Robert Holland of Victoria, B.C., retired civil servant in India, told the National Laymen's Council that "it is up to us as laymen to eradicate social conditions which foster the infiltration of communism into our country."

He urged those "who believe the universe was created and ordered by God" to band together in a stand against communism.

Rt. Rev. Philip Abraham, Bishop of Newfoundland, said there was strong unity between clergy and laity in the new province and a resultant division of labor. Excluding priestly duties, he saw no distinction in the labor which each should accept as Christians.

LETTER FROM BRITAIN—

Aviation Industry Produces Giant Aircraft For International Routes

By EDWARD HODGKIN

The other day a giant aircraft rose into the summer sky above the small town of Hatfield, Hertfordshire, in England, circled full-an-hour at a height of 8,000 feet, dropped to 100 feet and flew over the runway of the airfield before coming to rest. The pilot climbed out. "She's very nice to handle," was his verdict. This short flight was a landmark in the history of aviation, as it was the first time anywhere in the world that a passenger aircraft, specifically designed for jet propulsion, has successfully taken to the air. The aircraft is the De Havilland Comet, and its makers have high hopes that it is the machine with which Britain will be able to regain the lead in civil aviation which she had to surrender when World War II forced her designers and manufacturers to concentrate their energies on combat aircraft.

There are still many details of the De Havilland Comet which have not been made public, but we know enough about her to appreciate that she is a very remarkable Comet indeed. She has been made in almost record time—less than three years elapsed between the first serious designs being put on paper and the day when the finished aircraft made its first flight. This speedy construction was made possible largely by the team work of the designers and by an act of faith: They decided to dispense with the usual preliminary of making a prototype and went straight through from the drawing-board to the workshop without a break.

As Britain has all along pioneered in the use of jet propulsion in aircraft, it is fitting that the first jet-propelled air-liner should be created here. The Comet's four turbo-jet engines, each developing 5,000 pounds static thrust, will carry her load and passengers at a cruising speed of 500 miles per hour at an altitude of 40,000 feet, and it is obvious that this is going to mean something of a revolution in air travel as we have hitherto known it. Fourteen Comets had been on order for use on British air routes—including the Atlantic flight—even before the first trials had taken place, and it is hoped that these new aircraft will be operating on British Overseas Airways Corporation routes by 1952.

Mammoth Flying-Boat

Another of Britain's big civil aviation undertakings took a step nearer completion recently when the hull of the first Princess class flying-boat was moved from her stocks to the fitting-out site she now occupies at Cowes, in the Isle of Wight. The move was accompanied by some of the ceremony usually associated with the launching of a ship, and the hull itself has the depth and sweeping lines of a miniature liner. The most remarkable thing about these Princess type machines is their huge size. They weigh 140 tons, and when completed they will have a wing-span of 220 feet and an overall length of 148 feet, which means that the metal structure involved is the largest ever built for an aircraft. When this mammoth aircraft goes into service it will be able to carry more than 100 passengers. So by and large it looks as though Britain's aircraft industry is well equipped to meet the challenge which international competition has set it.

It is perhaps paradoxical that while we are sending our energies to perfect our skill in jet-propulsion, and develop all the most modern forms of transport, we should at the same time be showing a renewed interest in the oldest of all forms of transport—the horse. But there is no disputing it. Everyone agrees that the horse shows in Britain this summer have been more popular than ever, and that this is not merely a passing interest is proved by the fact that the standard of horse and rider has shown a marked improvement.

There are so many of these horse shows up and down the country, in villages, small towns and in the grounds of private country houses, that nobody could give a catalogue of them all. Those about which most is heard are naturally the spectacular shows which are held in London, and these attract the cream of the exhibitors. Biggest of these events is probably the International Horse Show held at the White City, which attracts competitors from many lands. It was a matter of a good deal of satisfaction to all concerned that on the day that Queen Elizabeth came to watch the Show and give the prizes, it fell to her to present the King George V Cup for international jumping to an Englishman.

Britain's Thoroughbreds Hold Lead

From the point of view of breeders, it is the specialized horse shows which arouse most interest—those which deal with one class of horse, the Arab, hackney, or heavy breeds (these latter, the so-called "cart horses" include the three great strains, Shire, Suffolk Funch and Clydesdale). In all these breeds, as well as, of thoroughbreds which, since they are known and most appreciated of all horses, Britain holds a pre-eminent place which her breeders are determined to maintain.

But the really encouraging thing about horse-breeding in Britain today is not that the specialized shows are as well cared for as they have ever been, but that the ordinary public is showing a renewed interest in everything connected with the horse. The number of schools which teach riding and (just as important, the care of the horse) increases annually, while hunting, which was once in danger of becoming almost exclusively the sport of the rich, is now the relaxation of the many. The crowds which flock to this summer to the horse shows were made up of people—young and old—who knew what they were looking at, and appreciated the finer points of horse and rider. Not all the jet-planes in the world will make the Briton desert his first love—the horse.

Legion Log

Activities of Legion Branches in the Eastern Townships

LEGION LOG Br. "10" I don't know what happened to the Log last week. I started it off through the proper channels alright, so don't blame me! Anyway, the guy was happy about the whole thing—he said it was the best Log I'd written for a long time! This crack kind of fell flat, as at the time it was made I hadn't seen the Record.

We'd like to see you at Monday's Branch meeting, for the committees to handle arrangements for the Provincial Convention next year will be formed at this meeting. Probably you will also be interested in the plans for the Polo Campaign, which will most likely be made known to the members at the meeting. And last, but by no means least, we expect to have some new members inducted, if all I hear is correct.

Well, the great Bus trip came off last Saturday, and about sixty Legion members and friends found themselves in the "mysterious town of X" which turned out to be Cookshire. Everybody had a good time so far as I could see, but the real object of the trip—to meet the Cookshire Branch members—fell a bit short of realization, as only about six from the Branch were present. So we hope this will be rectified when the return visit to Sherbrooke is made; we are looking forward to meeting the Cookshire Branch members and their friends, and we're all set to give them a good time.

The Legion Ball team won its League, so it seems that the boys must have been pretty hot. Congratulations are in order to all members of the team.

Ex-members of the 27th Cdn. Armoured Regt. (Sherbrooke Fusiliers Regiment) will be interested to learn that a monument was unveiled recently in Sneek (Holland) to commemorate the liberation of Friesland by the Canadians. The Tank boys had quite a little "do" in Sneek during the liberating process, but came out on top as per usual.

Can't think of anything else of any great importance, so I guess I'll finish up for this week—and a few more. I'm going travelling in the near future so somebody else can take on the Log for a week or two.

Members of the Pipe Band are requested to meet at the Memorial Home on Sunday, September 11, at 2:15 p.m. for a practice.

KILROY.

Mrs. George Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lancaster and family and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Lancaster and little son, of Richmond, attended service in All Saints Church on Sunday and were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lancaster and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Davidson and sons, Ross, Frank, Donald and John, of Melbourne, and Miss Jean Adamson, of Richmond, were callers at the home of Mr. Alfred Davidson and Miss Margaret Davidson and Mr. Alex Davidson.

Several from here attended the Sherbrooke Fair.

Messrs. Munroe Lancaster and Alex Davidson were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Mallette, in Kingsbury.

MARRIAGES

GUSTIN—HILLIKER

Newport Center, Sept. 10—A very quiet but pretty wedding took place on Thursday afternoon, August 25, at three o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myrl Hilliker, Newport Center, Vt., when their daughter, Janet Mae, became the bride of Lee Donald Gustin, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Gustin, of Brown's Hill. Rev. Robert Yoh officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The marriage took place under an arch of evergreens entwined with pink and white roses and a profusion of flowers were used for the house decorations.

The bride was gown in navy blue crepe with which she wore a matching hat and accessories. She wore her grandmother's heirloom pearl necklace and earrings and carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath tied with white ribbon.

Miss Alma Gustin, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, wore a Princess Margaret blue frock with white hat and accessories. Mr. Stanley Hilliker, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

The gift of the groom to his bride was a necklace and the bride's gift to the bridegroom was a tie set. The bridesmaid was given a compact and the best man a billfold.

Mrs. Hilliker, mother of the bride, was attired in navy blue crepe with accessories to match, and the groom's mother wore a fuchsia crepe dress with black accessories.

Later lunch was served in the dining-room, where pink and white streamers extended from the ceiling to the bride's table, which was centered with the three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom and surrounded by roses and silver leaves.

The young couple were recipients of numerous and beautiful gifts which included silverware, furniture and electrical appliances.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustin left for a honeymoon in Canada.

Mrs. Gustin is a graduate of Newport Center High School and Johnson's Teachers' College. She is at present on the staff of the Newport School.

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson—Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 11th, 1949.

The Golden Text is from I Corinthians 2:9, 10: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it. God search it, that men should fear before him: that which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requirereth that which is past." (Ecclesiastes 3:14 and 15).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay. God's thoughts are perfect and eternal, are substance and Life. We define matter as error, because it is the opposite of life, substance, and intelligence. Matter, with its mortality, cannot be substantial if Spirit is substantial and eternal. Which ought to be substance to us,—the living, changing, and dying, the mutable and mortal, of the unerring, immutable, and immortal?" (Pages 468, 286, 278).

Home Town Girls Should Prepare For College Separation

Dear Miss Dix: Will you please do us girls a favor? I am sure there are plenty in the same boat with me, wishing some one would give our boy friend a jolt. I have been going with "him" ever since high school days. Have passed up wonderful chances on boy friends for him. His actions and eyes show he cares for me, but just because he has a number of years yet before he will be finished college he has never told me he loves me or mentioned the future. Don't you think that even if a young man has five or six more years of schooling ahead that he could give a girl an inkling of his intentions by saying that some day she can share his degree that he is striving for? We don't want a formal engagement, just not to be left guessing.

YVONNE

There you are, boys, and now you know how the girls feel about it. They don't like this repression stuff. The strong, silent man, who keeps his feelings locked in his own heart because he is not in a position to escort the girl to the altar, doesn't make any hit with them. They feel like shaking him until he speaks. If men love them, they want to be told about it in unmistakable language and to have it repeated often and loud.

When a girl loves a boy, it hurts her vanity for him to keep mum about his sentiments. It makes her feel that she has given her heart unasked, and that perhaps the man doesn't want the gift she has bestowed upon him.

Of course, she may think that she sees the love light burning in his eyes, but she can't be sure that she has read the signal aright. She may think that his actions indicate his preference for her, but again she can't be certain because many a man hangs around a girl's house because he likes her mother's cooking and takes her out because she is good company, without ever entertaining for her more than a mild liking or having any intentions beyond having a good time.

So the girl is quite right in expecting the boy who is in love with her and who knows that she is in love with him—for when a girl is in love she can no more hide it than she can the shape of her head or the color of her eyes—to tell her all about it. I am of the opinion that, if the boy is really in love, he does it.

I strongly suspect that the boys who never tell their love to childhood sweethearts when they are starting off on a long college course, are those who are wise enough to analyze their own emotions and realize that all they feel is a little calf love that will soon flicker out. They know that in five or six years they will change from boys into men; that in a different environment, meeting different people; studying, learning, the whole outlook on life will be altered and that they will acquire new ideals, new standards, form different tastes and habits and that it will be a miracle if they are still in love with the same girl.

These boys are wise and honorable enough not to want to bind a girl whom they may not want to marry when they are ready to outgrow or of whom they may have tired. Nor do they want to feel that they have kept her from making some advantageous marriage.

So I think, Yvonne, that the boy who does not tell you of his love knows in his heart that he has no affection for you that will last and is trying to save both of you from getting into a sentimental situation out of which neither of you could extricate yourselves without somebody's getting hurt. That somebody would be you.

BETTER let him go; get a boy friend who can say it with an engagement ring.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I know a man in his mid-30's who has a weakness for girls in their early teens. In this a sign of mental inferiority? This man never goes with girls his age. He does not seem to like brains in a woman. According to a noted psychoanalyst, a child who takes to another child much younger than itself is mentally deficient and does not choose children of his own age because he feels mentally inferior. Is this true in the case of a grown male?

BETTY

Answer: Many men of intelligence seem to prefer young girls to sophisticated women. There is something fresh and dewy about youth that appeals to them and they have the same kind of pleasure taking them about and showing them the world as we have in taking a child to the circus.

Merineau Homers In Ninth With Two On As Braves Beat A's 7-5 To Tie Series; Game Here Tonight

A circuit blow by Merineau with two out and two on in the ninth inning enabled St. Johns to down the Sherbrooke Athletics 7-5 last evening and even the best of seven quarter final series at 1-1.

Sherbrooke won the first game of the series 6-3 and were well on their way to winning last evening's tilt until Merineau homered with two men on bases. Last night's game was played in St. Johns.

Lou Knerr went the route for the locals and gave up only eight hits while Sherbrooke collected twelve off three hurlers, McDuffie, Gardner and Barbieson.

Knerr helped out his own cause with a round-tripper while Dussault and Rabe each hit doubles.

Sherbrooke were only one out away from victory when Merineau stepped up to the plate and drove the ball over the fence. Sherbrooke were leading 5-4 until the circuit clout.

Third Game Tonight
This evening the two teams will play the third game of the best of seven series at the Park Avenue

Stadium and the locals will be out gunning for a victory. The game will get underway at 8 p.m.

It is expected that eight Bill Howitz or Mike Mellis will toe the mound for the locals.

"Sport Shots and Pot Shots"

BY LEN O'DONNELL

The largest field ever to take part in an Eastern Townships golf tourney will tee off tomorrow at the Country Club in the annual P.Q.G.A. Field Day. It is an 18-hole event and up to late last night well over eighty provincial club swingers had forwarded their entries to take part in the tournament.

The district list is headed by Don Doe, E. T. champ, as well as the runner-up, Gerry Huot of Magog. Practically every club in the Townships will be represented in the special event.

The outside players are coming from all over the province and the fans, who follow the game, will see some of the best in this part of the country in action. Royal Quebec Club will have four players in the tourney and three from Hawkesbury, Ont., will also be on hand.

Elmer Lach, star pivot man with the Montreal Canadiens Hockey Club, is also entered as well as Pete Morin, Ernie Lafore, Johnny Mahaffy and quite a few of the boys who patrol the ice-lanes during the winter for the Montreal Royals.

The contestants will tee off tomorrow morning at 8:30 with the

U.S. Ryder Cup Team Arrives In Britain

Southampton, England, Sept. 10. — (AP) — The United States Ryder Cup team—and 600 steaks, half-a-dozen hams, four boxes of bacon and 12 sides of beef—arrived on the Queen Elizabeth today.

The team meets Britain's Ryder Cup golfers at Ganton, Yorkshire, Sept. 15 and 17.

Montreal, Sept. 10. — (AP) — Montreal Canadians announced today that Maurice Richard, Elmer Lach, Kenny Reardon and Leo Gravelle have signed contracts for the coming N.H.L. season. No amounts were disclosed.

As for the Royals, nothing much has been said, but you may rest assured that this year they will have a top notch team to battle it out for honors in the Senior Group. It seems that Golden Boy Gerry McNeil will move across the border to make room for some of the younger fellows, at least that is the report.

Our team, we understand by the grapevine, has already a good number of players lined up for tryouts, and in a few weeks the boys will get at work in St. Hyacinthe until the local horse show. Kel Burnett is leaving to report to Eddie Shore and his future is still undecided. It all depends upon what Mr. Shore will decide. Quite a few of last year's team will be back but there is no definite announcement as yet forth coming.

Coach Glen Brown and his football aggregation swing out in full battle equipment this afternoon at the ball park. Glen has full afternoon of scrimmage lined up for the boys, starting at 2:00, which is open to the public.

The team plays their first encounter next week-end when they lined up against the Navy in Montreal and tomorrow's workout will give Glen a good idea how his team will line up. So 2:00 at the ball park this afternoon.

This afternoon members of the Sherbrooke Curling Club will hold forth at the Sherbrooke Country Club in their annual golf day.

Eighteen-holes are slated on the agenda and this will be followed by a dinner. Members not playing in the game are asked to be on hand to take part in the dinner and the meeting following immediately after.

Murray Parker, a former member of the Windsor Mills Junior hockey team, has received an invitation to report to the New York Rangers' training camp.

Murray lead the scorers last season in the junior circuit and no doubt met with the approval of the Rangers' scout. He reports Tuesday for his training. Last spring quite a number of locals juniors took part in special training and no doubt this must be the continuation of the spring idea.

The Sherbrooke Athletics baseball club has opened their bid to retain their Provincial Baseball League title won last year. In the first game they took the count of the Braves of St. Johns and, weather permitting, will tangle this evening and tomorrow night at the local park.

Manager Gladu is confident that his boys can take the series, but there is many a slip between the cup and the lip as the saying goes. If the squad plays the same brand they did Wednesday there should be nothing to it, but we have seen our team playing inferior ball and they are bad, so if they want to win they will have to continue the brand they showed the fans Wednesday, and what they are capable of doing. So Rolie keep the boys moving along the right path and things should come out O.K.

TO PERFORM WITH SKATING SENSATIONS

DICK NUTTER, local ice-skating high-comedy artist, has signed a contract for the coming season with the "Skating Sensations of 1950" starring Barbara Ann Scott, "Little Miss Canada."

Mr. Nutter will leave Monday for Ottawa where the troupe assembles for pre-season training previous to their official opening in Winnipeg on October 10. He will work in a comedy act of his own which is very well known to all local skating fans.

The show, which features Barbara Ann Scott, the world's outstanding figure skating champion, will last 35 weeks and will tour Canada, coast to coast. It will be shown in Sherbrooke on March 7, 8 and 9 and will be known as the "Skating Sensations of 1950."

Top Amateurs Of Province Will Vie For Honors In P.Q.G.A. Event; Tee Off At 8.30 And 12.30 In Afternoon

One hundred and ten players have forwarded their entries to compete tomorrow in the Province of Quebec Golf Association Field Day which will be held over the Sherbrooke Country Club course.

The field is divided into three classes, besides the professionals, and will tee off at 8:30 in the morning with the second lot driving away at 12:30. In the morning class B and C will tee off while class A and the professionals will follow in the afternoon.

Tommy Hunter and Mike Pyke, both outstanding golfers on the Island of Montreal, have forwarded their entries and are slated to tee off at 1:00 in the afternoon. The Royal Quebec Club is sending four of their top players in A. Tessier, P. Roy, J. R. David and R. Benoit and they should give the field a run for the honors.

Elmer Lach, the Canadians' star pivot man, will be on hand as well as several present and past hockey players of note. Don Doe, the E. T. champ, will lead the Granby contingent and having performed several times over the local course carries a little edge over the rest of the field.

Several past entries are expected this evening and tomorrow morning which should swell the field well over the hundred and twenty-five mark setting a record for entrants in a local field day.

The players and starting times follow:

8:30—A. Roy, S.C.C.; H. Vine, C.C.; F. Fontaine, Len; R. Le-Huray, Len.
8:55—G. Cote, C.C.; F. Delisle, C.C.; E. Gingras, Waterville; W. R. Metivier, Wentworth.

THE
REPORTER

THIS week we have a window display featuring men's suits in "Guardsman Blue." If you haven't seen it, we think you should because this is really an attractive new colour. We believe you'll like it.

BUT this is not what we want to talk about today. We want to tell you about some of the planning that goes into a presentation of this type. Away back in the Spring, we found "Guardsman Blue" and we knew right away that this was just right for Rosenblum customers. The men who shop here have distinctive taste in clothes. They want styles that are new and refreshingly different, but most of them avoid the freakish and bizarre. Well, here we had a colour they would like . . . a cool, rich, youthful blue. Fortunately it was available in a neat self-patterned worsted cloth, the quality was excellent, and the price was right (We're able to sell these suits, in Rockdale tailoring, for $55).

THEN we had to select the styles. The new tendencies are toward straighter lines, narrower lapels, less exaggerated shoulders, and these features are all incorporated in our Guardsman Blue suits, both single and double breasted models. For added comfort and for greater style distinction, we've had some of these suits made with a vent in back. This is particularly interesting because we don't know of another clothing store in all Canada that keeps suits on the rack with a vent, but here's a feature that Rosenblum customers like.

AND NOW in the past few days, these garments have come in. The few men who have seen them so far have been really enthusiastic . . . and that makes us happy because we do get a kick out of pleasing our customers!
