TWO KILLED IN WEEK-END ACCIDENTS

World News In Brief

Detroit — (AP) — Mrs. Mary King, who started life as an Alabama slave 110 years ago, spent her birthday Sunday in her customary fashion-puffing on a pipe and watching television. Mrs. King has lived for years with a niece, Mrs. Beatrice Hoskins, whom she reared. She said she still loves fried chicken and occasionally has "a little nip of wine."

Seattle — (AP) — Joe Gagnon ate 371 clams in 10 minutes Sunday to win the so-called International Pacific Free Style Amateur Clam Eating Contest and beating the previous record by 8,000 clams. He outgiped his nearest competitor, Fred Beckey, by 29 bivalves.

Detroit — (AP) — International headquarters of the United Auto Workers CIO Sunday night ordered 8,000 striking employees of the Budd Company to return to their jobs and the strike was called off. The strike stemmed from a jurisdictional dispute within the Budd local of the UAW and made idle 27,000 Chrysler Corp. employees since Wednesday. Budd makes bodies for three of Chrysler's four divisions.

Istanbul, Turkey — (AP) — State Secretary John Foster Dulles and the officials with him on a Middle East tour arrived here by air from Pakistan today for a one-day rest.

Dulles declined to make any comment to newspaper men and refused to allow photographs to be taken. The party left immediately after landing for the Marmora sea summer resort of Prinkipo island.

Dulles and Mutual Security Administrator Harold Stassen leave for Ankara, Turkey's capital, for an official visit Tuesday before flying Wednesday to Athens.

Millinery Trade Fears Dumping

Montreal — (AP) — Benjamin A. Usheroff, president of the Association of Montreal Millinery Manufacturers, Saturday said depressed merchandise brought into Canada at "ridiculously low prices" may cause unemployment and chaos in the millinery industry.

Speaking at a meeting inaugurating a retirement fund for millinery workers, he said federal government action in lifting controls and restrictions on imports had resulted in a situation that "has caused a great deal of anxiety to labor and management."

He supported an "anti-dumping" stand taken by Premier Duplessis several weeks ago. At once of his weekly press conferences the premier said "our Canadian market is being swamped with American goods at sacrifice prices."

Soap Firm Manager Charged With Price-Fixing Breach

Ottawa — (AP) — Canada's new anti-combines commission has reported that the Montreal branch of Procter and Gamble Co. of Canada Ltd. twice allegedly broke the law on resale price maintenance.

Under that trade practice, banned by Parliament in 1951, a supplier would order a wholesaler to resell goods at a fixed price, sometimes threatening to cut off supplies if the order was not obeyed.

The three-man restrictive trade practices commission, in a 28-page report to Justice Minister Garson, said Montreal regional officers of the big soap company for a time cut off supplies to the Dealers Supply Co. Ltd. of Granby, Que., when that distributor declined to abide by a price maintenance order.

The commission said in its first public report that evidence disclosed another instance where Procter and Gamble's Montreal office threatened to withhold supplies to maintain certain prices, but the name of the threatened wholesaler was not disclosed.

Mr. Garson said he will make an announcement on the question of possible prosecution after all the facts have been studied by legal advisers.

The commission, headed by C. Rhodes Smith, former attorney-general of Manitoba, emphasized two pertinent facts:

1. The attempt to enforce resale price maintenance was done under the direction of R. E. Goudreau, Montreal district sales manager, without the knowledge of head office at Toronto. When the general management was told of the situation, it took steps to

Heavy Entry In Manitoba Voting Race

Winnipeg — (AP) — The Manitoba general election campaign wheeled sharply into the home stretch during the week-end as the nomination total rose to 164. Nominations close today.

Three of the five party organizations in the race had enough entries to elect a majority in the 57-seat house. The Liberal-Progressives, currently in power, topped the list with 49, followed by the Social Credit party with 42 and Progressive Conservatives with 36.

The CCF party had 26 candidates late Sunday with more promised before nominations close. There is one Labor-Progressive in the field and 10 Independents.

The standing in the house at dissolution after the last session showed the government with 30 members. Progressive Conservatives with nine, CCF seven, Coalition five, four vacant and one Labor Progressive and a single Independent.

Five members of the last house retired, including three Liberal Progressives and two CCF.

The 42 Social Credit candidates could form a government—on paper—but veteran observers said its prospects appear doubtful. The party has little provincial organization and many of its candidates are unknowns. It has no leader.

There were no Social Credit members in the last house but it had as many as five in other Manitoba legislatures.

Eight wamer candidates were nominated, three each by the Social Credit and CCF and one each by the Progressive Conservatives and Liberal Progressives. Manitoba has only had two women members in its 73-year history.

The parties have not locked horns over a major issue in a campaign that was extremely dull. The administration of Premier D. L. Campbell chose to stand on its record and the only statement of future plans covered projects already mentioned in the house.

The Progressive Conservatives, under Erick Willis, have been more aggressive. Their candidates include a number of men with wide municipal experience. The CCF has based its campaign on a demand for comprehensive health and hospital services plus sharp criticism of the government for not effecting a redistribution of seats in the province.

make sure the attempt was not repeated.

2. Mr. Goudreau, whose territory took in all of western Quebec and the Maritimes including Newfoundland, alleged that the price maintenance practice to protect a purchasing system whereby small independent retailers could buy the company's products at prices almost as low as the chain stores.

But the new commission, set up last November, took a stern view of any violation of the law, no matter for what reason.

"However fair and sincere may have been the motives which directed Mr. Goudreau's attitude and action, we do not think that they may be invoked as a justification for contravening the prohibition enacted by Parliament . . ."

Manufacturers were allowed to formulate their own private exceptions to the general law in order to advance what each of them might claim to be worthy purposes . . . so many exceptions to the basic principles of the legislation might be created that its main and essential object would be completely defeated."

The commission also emphasized that a company must be held responsible "for acts and things done by its officials and agents in the course of their employment and within the scope of their authority."

This was the first case of a contravention of the 1951 ban which had raised a storm of protest by national industrial organizations. Opponents of the government measure said it would tend to degrade quality merchandise in the eyes of the public and lead to loss-leader selling, the below-cost pricing of quality items to attract customers to other goods.

Head-On Collision On Brompton Lake Road Sends 11 To Hospital.

Two persons, one a resident of Upper Melbourne, the other from Richmond, were killed and 11 persons injured in two separate accidents which occurred in this district yesterday.

Dear are: Louis Tellier, 22, of Upper Melbourne.

Injured are: Mrs. Pierre Viger, Richmond.

Pierre Viger, 73, 103 Stanley Street, Richmond.
Richard Leblanc, 19 Marquette Street, Richmond.
Raymond Jolin, 27, 146 Gouin Street, Richmond.
Gilles Marchand, Richmond.
Noella Jolin, Richmond.
Gerard Jolin, Richmond.
Yvette St. Pierre, Richmond.
Alcide Leclair, 48, Richmond.
Mrs. Alcide Leclair, 43, Richmond.
Emile Viger, 42, Richmond.
Mrs. Emile Viger, 41, Richmond.

Young Tellier died in St. Vincent de Paul Hospital about six

Sunday morning, more than five hours after he was injured in a motorcycle-car crash. According to Provincial Police Traffic Officer Ernest Cote, Tellier was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by young Richard Leblanc, which sideswiped an automobile driven by Roland Hains, of Bromptonville, who was accompanied by Sam Labonte and Adrien Vigneault, both of Bromptonville.

The mishap occurred about 30 minutes after midnight Saturday as the automobile was proceeding from Richmond to Windsor Mills and the cycle going in the opposite direction, in front of the Randall farm. The car, which received from $500 to $600 damages, wound up in a ditch on one side of the road, while the motorcycle landed in a ditch on the opposite side of the road. The three occupants of the car, apart from shakings-up, were uninjured but Tellier and Leblanc were rushed to St. Vincent's by Joseph Fleury ambulance of Richmond. Both youths were thrown quite a distance by the crash impact. The motorcycle was heavily damaged.

Tellier succumbed to an open fracture of a leg, skull injury and terrific shock while Leblanc, unconscious for hours after the crash, has a probable broken leg and other injuries.

Pierre Viger died in the Hotel Dieu last evening, shortly after admittance, following a head-on collision between two automobiles on the main road from St. Francis Xavier de Brompton to Brompton Lake, about 7:30 o'clock.

Five city ambulances, from Durand, Jolibois, Brien and Monfette ambulance companies and four private ambulances were called upon to transport the 11 stricken human beings to the Hotel Dieu and St. Vincent de Paul Hospitals. Three ambulances were actually employed in removal of the injured.

Three of the injured, Noella Jolin, Gerard Jolin and Yvette St. Pierre, required only outdoor-department treatment and were then allowed to proceed to their homes in Richmond. Gilles Marchand is being kept under observation at the Hotel Dieu and Raymond Jolin, driver of one car, which carried the four persons named in this paragraph, is receiving attention for a fracture of the left arm.

Driver of the other car, a 1953 Dodge sedan, was Emile Viger, who is in serious condition at St. Vincent de Paul, having received a skull injury, a lacerated eye, terrible lacerations to his knees and severe shock. His wife was severely cut about the forehead while Alcide Leclair suffered a cut forehead and a leg injury as did Mrs. Alcide Leclair. Mrs. Pierre Viger was also hurt in the crash.

No one has yet advanced any explanation as to why the crack-up, which caused $1,000 damages to each of the two cars, happened on the hilly, gravel road about 15 miles from Sherbrooke. The Viger car was returning from the Lake at the time while Mr. Jolin's car was going in the opposite direction.

Sgt. Henri Cantin, and Traffic Officers Rene Delorme and Jean-Louis Martin are investigating for Provincial Police.

Numerous accidents occurred in Sherbrooke and district during the week-end but, fortunately, most persons involved escaped without injury.

About 9:30 Saturday night, Rene Bilodeau, 38, of 31 First Avenue, was taken to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital by Bishop's ambulance for treatment to a slight leg injury. He was hurt when the automobile in which he was riding lost control and went into a ditch near Stanstead. His two companions were treated at the Outdoor Department but did not require stays in hospital.

Campaign In Nova Scotia Closes Today

Halifax — (AP) — Nova Scotia's three political parties, in an election campaign which started slowly but has since hit a blazing pace, are carrying their appeals to the voters right down to the wire.

On the eve of Tuesday's balloting, all groups are organizing last-minute meetings. It's considered an unusually high pitch of activity for a provincial contest.

Liberal and Progressive Conservative leaders fired their parting shots Saturday, but CCF leader Michael McDonald kept up a busy round of activity Sunday in Cape Breton's industrial areas.

Mr. McDonald, head of the woman CCF delegation in the legislature, accused the Liberal government of lack of interest in the welfare of the working classes.

He told meetings in the mining towns of Glace Bay and New Waterford that a Liberal-sponsored amendment to the Workmen's compulsory examination of an ailing worker by a company doctor, was "vicious and reactionary."

Liberal policies and co-operation and housing also came under fire from the CCF leader.

Premier MacDonald, in a final radio broadcast, called the Progressive Conservative campaign "petty criticism . . . final proof that the party, as led today in this province, is not only bankrupt of constructive ideas, but has lost all sense of proportion and balance as well."

Mr. MacDonald defended the government's 20-year record which both major parties agree is the chief election issue. He promised extension and expansion of industry, rural electrification, welfare services and public works, and pledged sound financing "in the future as we have practised in the past."

Robert L. (Bob) Stanfield, Progressive Conservative leader, repeated his party's charges that the government has failed to stimulate provincial industry. He promised to take over the job personally if elected to head a new government.

Also high on the Progressive Conservative platform are repeal of cabinet ministers' pensions and a probe into the alleged operation of the Iron Curtain.

Still Seek Missing Diplomats, Trail Cold After Two Years

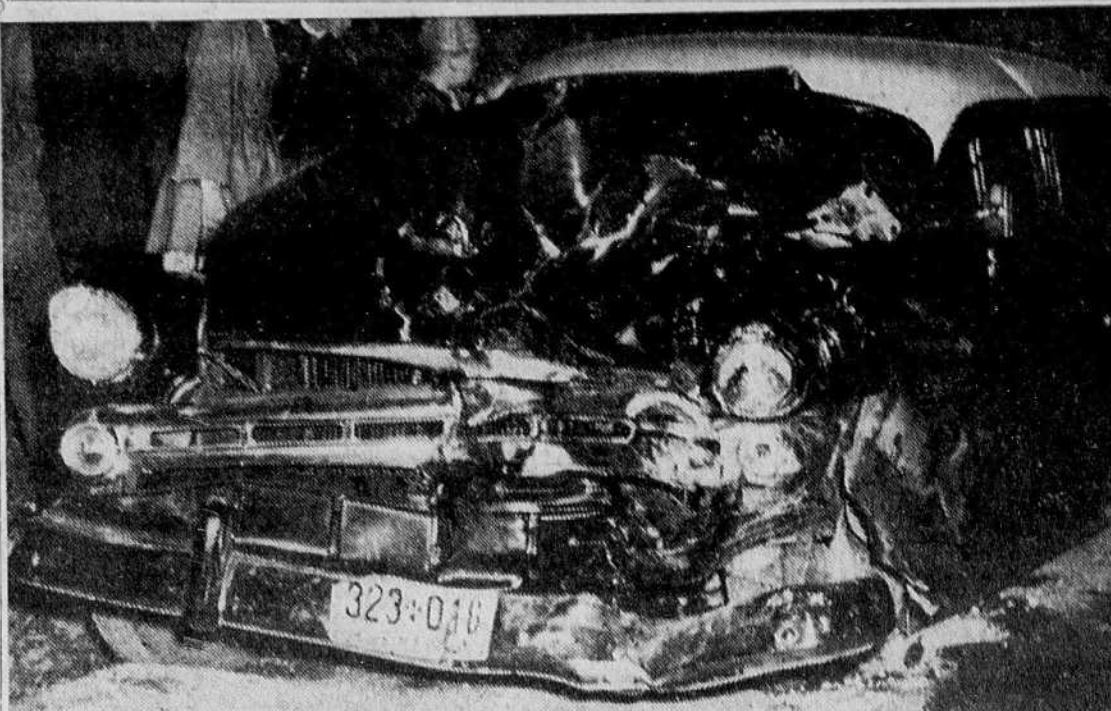

London — (AP) — On the night of May 25, 1951, two men sauntered aboard the excursion steamer Falaise at Southampton the next morning they stepped ashore at St. Malo, France, got into a taxi and drove 60 miles to the railway station at Rennes. They stepped out of the taxi — into oblivion, so far as the Western world is concerned.

The two men were British diplomats Guy Burgess, 40, and Donald MacLean, 38. Now, two years later, they are still being sought by Western Europe's best cloak-and-dagger talent as the central figures in one of the world's most spectacular vanishing acts.

But the hunters' enthusiasm is waning.

Authoritative sources refuse to admit that Burgess and MacLean have slipped behind the Iron Curtain. But the trail is cooling fast and they admit it. One official source said "of course, any clue that turns up will be vigorously investigated but the trail is pretty cold and it's getting colder."

On the other hand, Britons find it hard to believe that two diplomats could drop out of sight so completely despite hot pursuit by

Korean Truce Talks Adjourned To Allow High-Level Talks On Allied Proposals

Final Offer Extended To Rosenbergs

Pannunjom — (AP) — Korean truce talks resumed today amid light secrecy and then recessed until June 1, apparently because top-level decision on the critical prisoner exchange issue is needed.

Presumably the United Nations command presented a new proposal at the outset of today's session, which ended an eight-day, Allied-requested recess.

UN interpreters could be seen through the windows of the crude conference but apparently reading a long statement.

Washington sources had said a possible new approach would be offered on the last major barrier to an armistice, what to do about 48,500 Communist prisoners refusing to return to Red rule.

There was no inkling as to whether such a plan had been offered but, if so, the Communist delegation probably would have asked a long recess to refer the matter to higher authority.

Communist correspondents, after talking to members of their delegation, said the Allies had requested a news blackout on the session. A similar blackout was imposed in April 1952, in an effort to iron out differences on the prisoner exchange issue.

Lt.-Col. Milton Herr, a UN spokesman, said he did not know if the next meeting also would be secret. He would not say who asked for the secret meetings.

There was speculation before the meeting that the UN command would make a "now or never" effort to break the truce deadlock.

The vital issue of what to do with prisoners refusing to return to their Red homelands remained the biggest problem.

The Communists want the matter decided by a later political conference if the prisoners are still reluctant to return after getting Red "explanations" while in custody of a live-country neutral commission.

An earlier Allied proposal suggested 24,000 North Koreans be released immediately after an armistice and 14,500 Chinese be turned over to the neutral commission for Red "explanations." Then, if they still refuse, the Chinese would be freed.

There was speculation the new UN command proposal may offer to agree to a political conference to decide the issue, provided a time limit is set beforehand.

Final Offer Extended To Rosenbergs

Washington — (AP) — Atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, whose clemency plea was rejected by President Eisenhower in February, may still get their death sentences commuted if they decide to tell all they know.

The convicted couple, now awaiting execution as spies for Russia, have steadfastly protested their innocence and a number of groups have pressed for an easing of their sentences.

A third appeal for a new trial now is before the Supreme Court, which holds an opinion session today. Execution is automatically stayed pending outcome of the appeal.

Justice department sources said Saturday that Rosenberg, 34, and his wife, 36, have been told specifically that if they know and want to tell hitherto undisclosed things about espionage in the United States, such action will be taken into account in weighing their clemency pleas.

Gangsterism Live Menace For Canada

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Ottawa — (AP) — The RCMP is concerned about a possible growth of gangsterism—organized crime—in Canada.

The national police force cites two factors for this anxiety:

1. A United States anti-crime drive which may chase some big-time criminals across the border.

2. Expansion of Canada's population providing richer pickings for hoodlums.

The RCMP view is set out in a revised edition of its publication "Law and Order in Canadian Democracy," a 273-page book on crime and police work. Originally published in 1949, it now has been brought up to date.

Dealing with the sharpened crime problem caused by growth of population, the book says that organized crime by its very nature must breed in thickly populated areas.

And, "in gangster parlance," the heat is on "across the border. To many of the harassed criminals in the U. S., our country with its wealth and growth, must seem to offer new and safer fields for their capacity."

"Much effort," the RCMP adds drily, "may be needed to convince them otherwise."

New and stronger laws may be required to curb crime in the face of the two developments.

"It may be," says the RCMP, "that additional safeguards will be needed against the on-coming search by criminals for the corrupt 'protection' without which they cannot operate for long as organizations."

But, the effectiveness of any such measures, the book warns, will depend in the final analysis chiefly—if not wholly—on the public. The law cannot be changed any faster, or enforced any better, than the general community changes in its opinions and beliefs.

Canadians are inclined to be a little smug about the relatively small amount of gangster activity in this country, the RCMP observes. But any satisfaction should be tempered by the fact that this is only a matter of degree.

"For it," it says, "we have our own 'sordid story' of organized crime, of drug rings, of smuggling and bootlegging gangs, of betting syndicates, of chains of brothels, of gang murders."

"We have, too, the correlative story of bribery and corruption, without which very few gang rackets can exist."

While the Canadian history of gangsterism is largely that of local organizations, the book says, every large city in the country has a serious problem in combatting organized crime. It is still "a very active problem" in most cities.

"Given only a lowering of the standards of legislative bodies, courts and police; given the slightest leeway for corruption and, above all, given a falling-off of public vigilance and morality," the RCMP says, "the vicious elements"

Latin America Claimed Key To World Newsprint Famine

Petropolis, Brazil — (AP) — Latin America's vast forests may someday help solve the world's newsprint shortage, experts here believe.

But before that goal can be achieved, the continent's pulp and paper industry will have to undergo a $700,000,000 expansion program.

That's the gist of a report made public by the economic commission for Latin America which has completed an extensive survey of the region's pulp and paper resources.

"Latin-America in general, and most of the individual countries, have sufficient fibrous resources not only to meet their domestic requirements but also to contribute, through exports, to the reduction of the world shortage of paper and raw materials for paper," the commission found.

The pine forests of Latin America alone are capable of meeting the entire needs of the region although they cover only five per cent of its total forest area, the survey says.

And besides the pine woods there are tropical and semi-tropical forests of hard woods, hickory supplies of wheat straw and sugar cane bagasse, a waste product of the sugar cane mills. All of these can be used in making paper.

The Latin-American commission agrees with other analysts who have warned that the world shortage of newsprint, paperboard and other pulp and paper products is becoming more serious all the time. It cites figures compiled by the United Nations food and agriculture organization pointing to a probable world demand of 49,000,000 tons of pulp by 1960 — including the Latin-American nations.

That would be an increase of 19,000,000 tons over current pulp consumption.

Joint production of Canada, the United States and Europe will fall short of the 1960 demand, the commission believes. But, it says, Latin America could develop a surplus supply that would make up the difference.

At present the Latin American paper industry comprises 190 mills, most of them located in Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Mexico. They produce 989,000 tons of paper and paperboard a year, including 48,000 tons of newsprint. This supplies only a small part of the area's present needs.

The commission report speaks of an expansion program that would include the building of more than 50 "large" pulp and paper mills during the next 12 years. Output of fibrous material would be increased to 8,500,000 tons annually. This would meet Latin America's anticipated requirements and leave a surplus of 1,500,000 tons available for export.

This construction program would cost an estimated $700,000,000. But that's not all. Many other new facilities would be needed.

Latin-America's electric power capacity would have to be increased by about 3,500,000 kilowatts. Additional fuel supplies equivalent to 160,000 tons of coal a year would have to be provided.

The expanded pulp and paper industry would also consume 140,000 additional tons of sodium chloride annually and 110,000 tons of lime.

It would also be necessary, the survey points out, to ensure an abundant water supply for the industry and to build many miles of new highway and rail facilities, not only to obtain access to the forests but also to transport finished products.

A program of such magnitude, the commission says, had best be undertaken jointly by groups of countries rather than by individual countries going it alone.

Seventh Session Of Parliament Cut Taxes Lightly

By JOHN LEBLANC Canadian Press Staff Writer Ottawa—The seventh, and possibly the last session of Canada's 21st Parliament cut taxes lightly, passed a sheaf of major and minor legislation and produced more political drama than any in recent years.

The great and unending furor of the session involved the Currie report critical of administration in the army works service. Progressive Conservatives hammered on its theme month after month, both in the Commons and in a House committee.

In the tax field, Finance Minister Abbott's budget sliced 11 per cent from the personal income tax, cut corporation taxes and made other lesser reductions. The cuts were estimated at $237,000,000 for the current fiscal year.

On the legislative side, Parliament extended the government's broad emergency powers for a year, to May 31, 1954, after a stiff fight in the Commons.

Her present worry is where to find a cassock and surplice. Singers must supply their own, and have them ready for dress rehearsals.

There's no mystery about Joan Crawford's ability to wear glad rags. It's "authority." Designing for the star for the first time, MGM's Helen Rose told me: "I wish more stars had the authority to wear clothes like Joan. It's easy to explain. She wears everything—even a simple blouse—with great gusto."

Hollywood's big "The Cowboy and the Movie Queen" drama, co-starring Gloria Swanson and actor cowpoke Denver Pyle, has been going on for six months. Denver is the reason why La Swanson, who looks like a million in TV's "Crown Theater," can't tear herself away from Hollywood.

Nine Canadians Will Sing In Coronation Choir

By MURIEL NARAWAY Canadian Press Staff Writer London—A happy Canadian in London is Dorothy Allen of Moncton, N.B. She's thinking of what she would have missed had she gone back home last fall.

Miss Allen, with eight other Canadians, has been chosen to sing with the 400-strong Coronation choir in Westminster Abbey. To qualify for the invitation, she had to be resident in London.

Last fall the Canadian mezzo-soprano was booked for a return trip home, but decided to ask her Canadian university, Mount Allison, Sackville, N.B., for another year's leave. She wanted to continue her studies under the well-known composer and accompanist, Manlio Di Veroli.

Those invited to sing with the Coronation choir had to be between 26 and 39, with choir experience, perfect sight-reading ability and experience as a professional singer.

Miss Allen had choir experience in Canada and Paris. Sight reading came easy after studying for a bachelor degree in piano, singing and theory. She took this seven-year course in four years, and has been singing professionally since.

It is, at the same time, a formidable assignment. Eight rehearsals are being held, the first in St. Margaret's Church, the last three was raised by about $11,000,000 a year under an enlargement of the complex formula on which it is calculated.

Funds were made available for putting deceased veterans' dependents through university. Also, Parliament extended to the end of the next session the act giving Korean soldiers the same benefits as those of the Second World War.

Later, the legislation is expected to be made permanent. Another measure affecting the armed forces was one authorizing Canadian tribunals to try Canadian servicemen charged with offences against the laws of foreign countries.

In natural resources, provision was made for federal contributions up to 37 1/2 per cent of the cost of water-conservation projects undertaken with the provinces and municipalities.

Two major pieces of labor legislation went through. One bans discrimination in employment or union membership against anyone on the ground of race, religion or nationality. It applies to those under federal jurisdiction such as in railways and communications.

Legislation extending the scope of co-operatives was adopted. It will allow the operation of credit unions—now restricted to individual provinces—on a national basis. One big measure produced more work than any other of the session, but it never did get passed. It was a wholesale overhaul of the Criminal Code, the first in about a half century. It took so much committee study that by the time it came to the Commons there was no time left to deal with it if members were to get to the Coronation.

The session saw the creation of a new portfolio in the cabinet. Ralph O. Campney of Vancouver Centre, who had been Defence Minister Claxton's parliamentary assistant, moved up as associate defence minister. This is the only ministry that carries an associate portfolio.

Election Of Officers, Oratorical Contest Highlight Optimist Meet

The 3rd annual convention of District 23 of Optimist International concluded during the week-end, with the election of Arthur De Witt, of Plattsburg, N.Y., as district governor, and the naming of Camille Parent, of Ottawa, as winner of the oratorical contest the highlights of a busy program.

The Sherbrooke Optimist Club was host to this gathering at which the outgoing district governor, John D. Allan, of Montreal, presided. Officers were inducted by C. Leasé Bussard, of Frederic, Md., vice-president, of Optimist International.

Taking over new posts were: Wendell Aske, of Burlington, Vt., lieutenant-governor of the central region, Jean Poitras, of Quebec, lieutenant-governor of the eastern region, Charles Godfrey, of Carleton Place, Ont., lieutenant-governor of the western region, Henry Crochetiere, of Sherbrooke, lieutenant-governor of boys' work, and William Wright, of Plattsburg, district secretary-treasurer.

Prior to the election Saturday afternoon, seven youths whose ages ranged from 16 down, stood before a large gathering of delegates and their wives and illustrated verbally the meaning of Optimism, "the faith that lead to achievement."

Placing second behind Parent in this oratorical contest was Victor Gannon, 13, representing the Verdun Optimist Club, and in third place was Marcel Vermette, 15, of the (Montreal) Laurentian Optimist Club.

However of all seven contestants, 14-year-old Parent, representing the Ottawa Optimist Club, spoke with a remarkable clarity and deep sincerity of purpose that could do none other than leave behind him a tremendously impressed audience of adult men and women and win for him top honors.

Other contestants were Kenneth White, of Point St. Charles; Eddie Bishop, of Waterville; Ronnie McCone, of Sherbrooke; and James Bicknell, of Burlington, Vt.

For him, Parent's laurels have earned the privilege of a trip to Washington, D.C., where he will participate in the International Oratorical Contest. The winner of this will receive a $1,000 scholarship.

Judges of the contest held at the local convention were Daniel Johnson, M.L.A., Judge Redmond Hayes and Albert Leblanc. Presentation of trophies was made by Mr. Bussard to the winners with an additional distribution of diplomas to the remaining four participants.

Next year's international contest will be held at Houston, Texas.

Not of the least importance connected with the contest was a vote of thanks issued by Mr. Allan to Mr. Crochetiere for the time he contributed toward this event.

Opening sessions of the convention were marked by greetings spoken on behalf of the Sherbrooke Optimists by the President of the Club, Erich Marquardt. From here business got under way when Mr. Allan called for reports of the year's activities which were given by Lieutenant Governors Arthur DeWitt, Frank Clemens of Ottawa and Gragson Barrows, of Burlington, Vt., and by Mr. Crochetiere, Lt. Gov. of Boys' Work; William Wright, Plattsburg District Secretary; principal speaker, C. Leasé Bussard of Frederic, Md., as International Vice-President.

In his remarks, Mr. Bussard congratulated the District on having decided three new clubs to its circumference and upon having begun oratorical contests throughout the District.

Additionally he said that over the past year 105 new clubs have been formed in Optimist International and in closing he urged all clubs to make every endeavour to see that membership within the clubs are increased.

Of the 200 delegates registered for the convention 13 clubs were presented including Montreal, Ottawa-West, Ottawa, Carleton Place, Ont.; Waterville, Que.; Burlington, Vt.; Cornwall, Ont.; Plattsburg, N.Y.; Quebec City; Essex Junction, Vt.; Sherbrooke; Verdun, Que.; Laurentian Club, Montreal.

Of these it is estimated that an available one third appeared with the dawn to attend the Old Timers' Breakfast held in the New Sherbrooke Hotel Saturday morning. Jack Lenaghan was in attendance to render organ music.

Stan Cuthbert held the floor as Master of Ceremonies with Rod Sterling at the piano Friday night at a reception given for in-coming delegates following registration.

Following this came the induction of new officers, a convention City report, resolutions committee reports, Sgt-in-Arms report, by Hugh Crochetiere, Montreal; convention committee report, by Erich Marquardt, chairman of the convention; life membership report, by George Brewer, Montreal, district life membership chairman.

The New District Board was greeted with an individual meeting after which a reception was held for all delegates to the convention and their wives.

Reported elsewhere in today's Record are accounts of the delegates luncheon and the governors banquet at which Daniel Johnson, M.L.A., and Hon. Paul Beaulieu, M.L.A., were speakers.

Cadets At Magog Hold Inspection

Magog, May 25 — Last Friday was the big day for the boys in Princess Elizabeth High School's Cadet Corps, No. 568, when their annual inspection was held. It started at 10:30 and continued until noon, on the grounds of the new school.

Capt. Douglas Hart of 27th Field Artillery Reg't, was officer inspecting and was accompanied by Capt. Wilkinson, chief training officer from Cadet Headquarters in Montreal, and S. J. Olney, principal of the new school. The corps is under the command of Cadet Major Wayne Gaunt. Instructors are: Adrien St. Jacques, James Trew and Francis Whittier.

Following the inspection and march past, the corps broke up into different courses which consisted of map reading, signalling and drill.

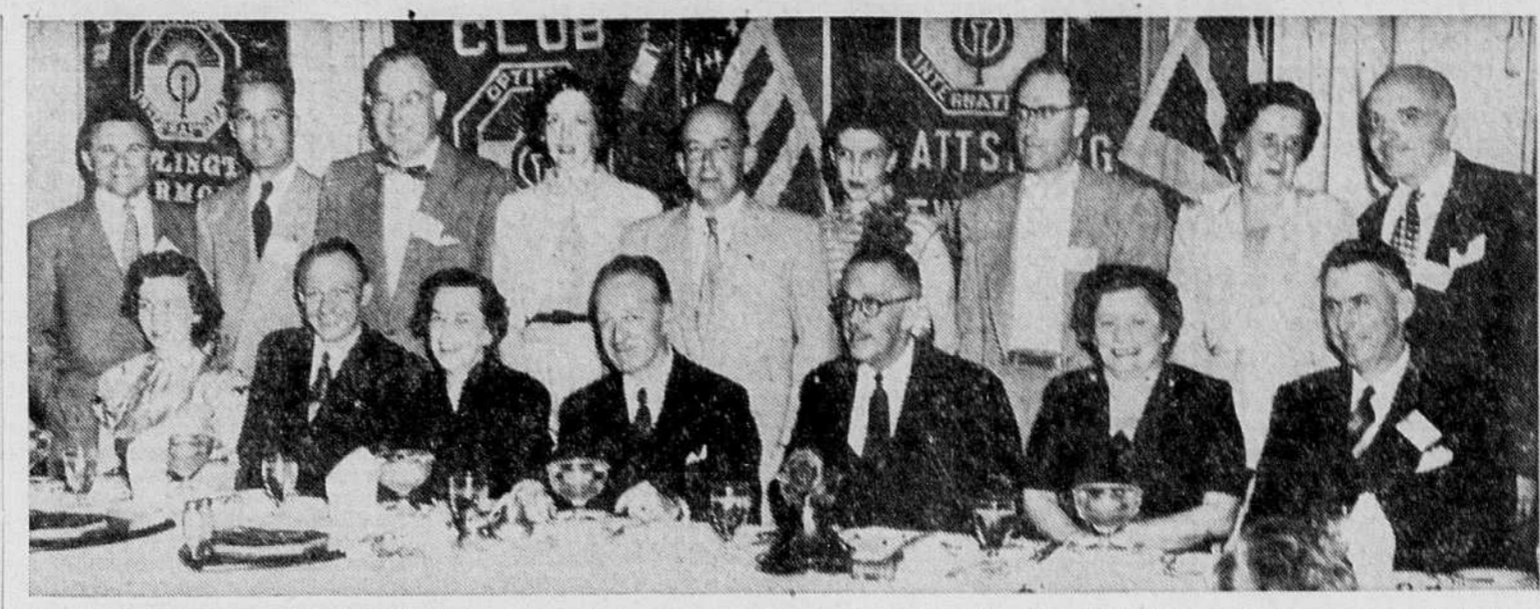

After the courses were inspected, the corps formed up again when the Strathcona Medal for proficiency was presented to Cadet Cpl. Mitchell Minor.

This corps has won the Lord Strathcona Trophy for General Efficiency, Drill and Command for the past two years. The lads of 568 are patiently waiting to see if they have obtained it again for the third consecutive year.

Speeches were made by the inspecting officers who praised the corps for efficiency and discipline. Visitors present were Hon. Capt. John Comfort, Padre, Major Bergeron of Magog, WOI Edwards of the 27th Field Brigade, Julius Richardson, representing the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of this city, Wesley McLaughlin of the Canadian Legion in Magog, and J. Gagnon for the Magog Protestant School Board.

Weedon Death Said Natural

Dr. Louis Gagnon, district coroner, was called to Weedon over the week-end regarding the death of one Aime Rivard, 75, who was discovered dead in an old shack. Death, however, was due to natural causes and it may not call for an inquest. Dr. Gagnon was advised of the man's death as a matter of form since Rivard had not received medical attention for 24 hours prior to his demise.

City Policemen Begin Checking Motor Vehicles

Municipal Police this afternoon began an inspection of motor vehicles on Victoria Street, near Portland. Chief Edouard Moreau announced that the campaign is purely a safety measure and requests the co-operation of the public in making the roads safe for themselves and others by having their vehicles and cars checked.

The checks will continue today until eight p.m. and tomorrow will be conducted at Seventh Avenue, between Papineau and King Street East. Different locations for the inspection will be announced in the newspaper from day to day.

Chief Moreau says: "The holiday season is approaching. More and more people will be taking to the roads. Now is the time to see if your car is in good-working order."

The Police Department will check everything about the vehicle, especially brakes, and will issue safety certificates to motorists who score 50 per cent and more.

May 24 Fishing Season Opening Draws Anglers To Many ET Lakes

The fish and the fishermen ran about an even race on the May 24 opening day in many waters in the southern part of the Eastern Townships.

Trout fishermen who travelled to waters stocked by the Stanstead County Fish and Game Club—Crystal Lake, Baldwin's Pond and O'Malley Pond—all reported good catches, if they were on the water early enough in the day, but those who came out when the wind and the sun were high had less success.

Many fishermen, however, went home with their limit. The derby on Lake Massawippi, staged by the Massawippi Fish and Game Club, ran into competition from the wind, which limited the number of fishermen on the lake.

None-the-less, some good catches were reported. Donald Bronson, of Derby Line, brought in the largest grey trout, an 11 pound, 15 ounce. He took it on a troll, using a daisy-dog and gave a thrill to his fishing companion, Leslie

Dr. Ritchie Bell Addresses W.M.S. Meeting Here

"The Church was born in the mind of God long before the world was created. Its history runs through Old Testament times in the theme of a people through whose mission the world was to be brought into knowledge of God, into communion with Him, and into cooperation with His great purposes. It was given mighty impetus in the earthly life of Jesus Christ. It was fostered by His disciples. It lives to proclaim and to demonstrate the message and the spirit which alone can bring salvation to our troubled world."

Very Rev. C. Ritchie Bell, D.D., professor of pastoral theology at Presbyterian College, Montreal, said in an address before the Quebec Presbytery of the Women's Missionary Society in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here Saturday.

Dr. Bell is a native of Sherbrooke and was a member of St. Andrew's Church during all the period of his preparation for the ministry.

Dr. Bell said that the marks of a living church were, fellowship, sacrifice and a great redemptive passion.

"Christianity is co-extensive with the Church. We're here no Christianity there could be no Church. And the converse is true: Christianity is the sole world religion. Nothing else is competing with it save communism. Communism cannot endure because it is based on a false estimate of human nature and a false interpretation of human history."

"The breath of God is in the fellowship of the Church. Hell itself is doomed."

"No cross—no church! It cost Jesus Christ His life to give His Church to the world. Our forefathers must have sacrificed to give us the Church we have today. The cause of Christ can only go forward as we retain still the note of sacrifice. A faith that costs nothing accomplishes nothing."

"The church must pursue its redemptive mission through us. There is a world to redeem. Never has there been a time in history when the redemptive message was needed more than today. There is a great need to bring our nation back to the feet of Christ, to Christian ways and to Christian fellowship. We need Christ in the home and in business, in commerce, in education and in every aspect of national and social life. The world needs Him. No other has the all-inclusive message."

Mrs. George Stevenson, president of the Presbytery, presided and thanked the speaker.

Police Probe Magog Thefts

Magog Police Chief Telephone Lavoie said today that two break-ins in the Textile City early Friday morning netted thieves about $160 in cash, plus cigars and other goods.

The robberies took place at the Dore Garage on Main Street where $110 to $130 was taken from the till by a thief or thieves who entered the premises by breaking the glass portion of the front door.

Gorden Meek's restaurant, also on Main Street, was entered by a similar avenue, and here $30 was taken and quantity of cigars and perfume.

Chief Lavoie believes the two robberies are connected.

Gerry Wilson, Town Of Mount Royal, Is President Of Stanstead Alumni

The other officers are: 1st vice-president, Frank Miller, of Montreal; 2nd vice-president, John McKay, of Town of Mount Royal; secretary, Kenneth Currie, of Montreal; treasurer, Cecil Miller, of Beebe; general membership secretary, Dr. E. C. Amaron, of Stanstead.

The retiring president presided at the business session which followed dinner in the college dining room.

Highlights of reports showed that during the Easter vacation period the Montreal branch entertained members of the graduating classes at a dance in Montreal; the association has donated the balance of the money needed to complete the quarter mile cinder track at the college; contributions have been made to the athletic association and for scholarship awards; half the cost of replacing motion picture equipment lost in the Pierce Hall fire last year has been subscribed by the association.

Despite these expenditures, a balance of about $1,000 remains in the association funds. Membership stands at 324.

Following the business meeting, the group adjourned to the Sunny-side gymnasium for films and a talk by O. Carlye Brock of Erie, Pa., on a safari he and his wife took through Africa.

Mr. Brock is a past student at Stanstead and he and his wife were made life members of the association.

Hon. Paul Beaulieu, Daniel Johnson Address Optimist District Convention

Support over the week-end went to the third annual convention of District 23, Optimist International, when guest speakers, Hon. Paul Beaulieu, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Daniel Johnson, M.L.A., Assistant to the Minister of Youth and Social Welfare, spoke to more than 200 delegates assembled at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

Speaking before the Governor's banquet, Mr. Beaulieu presented a clear picture of the opportunities for youth today with the well-founded remark, "Your sons and daughters are the most precious things in your care and for them your objective must not suffer the harshness of limitations."

Upon alluding to this as of prime importance to the United States as well as to Canada he continued "the spirit remains although sometimes the purpose of a Frontier escapes us; it is only an imaginary line because we will always be together as will the Optimists throughout the world who through their untiring industry seek achievement for the boy."

"Service Clubs like yours," he said, "must work and work hard because it is you who are close to these boys, you know their families and their needs; we have special schools, technical schools, our machinery is modern and we have teachers. We cannot find enough boys who will assume leadership and our industries need them; it is here then that your work crystallizes; it is your job to discover and uncover them. It is a job you do well and one to which the spoken gratitude does not do justice."

"Today the schools under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Youth and Social Welfare can look over 12,000 youths and it is expected to have 300 graduating each year. And it is important to realize that 70 per cent of the population live within 10 miles of a professional school, 12 per cent within a distance of 10 to 20 miles; 8 per cent within a distance of 20 to 30 miles and 5 per cent within a distance of 30 to 50 miles."

He added that "78 per cent of manufacturing establishments are situated within 10 miles of a professional school; 14 per cent within a distance of 10 to 20 miles and 8 per cent within a distance of 20 miles."

A variation of a theme was emphasized by the interesting address given by Mr. Johnson, whose opening words were "The Eastern Townships have given the rest of the world an example of how people can get along together—French and English."

RETAIL TRADE DEVELOPMENT

Apart from broad determinants, a number of short-term influences operating in Canada's economy "have brought about a change" in both the amount and pattern of consumer demand, the Bank of Montreal comments in its latest Business Review, released today. Chief among these are "the course of prices and the volume of housing construction." Also, there was the suspension of credit regulations a year ago which possibly affected buying habits to a greater degree.

In the nine months ended March 1952, "volume of retail trade declined by about six per cent from a year earlier," the review notes. It rose "by 12 and a half per cent in the 12 months ended March 1953."

"The main element in the turnaround seems to have been consumer durable goods," the bank states. In the 11 months ended February 1953, shipments by producers of motor vehicles "amounted to 410,000 units as against 353,000 a year earlier. . . Refrigerators rose to 224,000 from 163,000, while washing machines reached 248,000 compared with 164,000. In the nine months to December 1952, sales of radios increased to 473,000, a rise of 72,000. Television sets, however, showed the most marked increase, rising to 125,000 from 25,000 units a year before.

Another important influence, the B of M's review points out, was that when food prices rose between June 1950 and August 1951, less of the family budget was available for less essential goods and services. "Conversely, with the decline of food prices, consumers could afford to buy costlier items.

"Residential construction, which declined during the period of general credit restraint, has since been rising. Housing completions in February of this year were up by 39 per cent over the same month in 1952.

"The rise in retail sales has been accompanied by a spectacular jump in the volume of consumer credit," the review continues. "At the end of 1952. . . total consumer credit outstanding is estimated by the Bank of Canada to have been $1,530 millions, an increase of $519 millions, or 51 per cent in the space of nine months." An expansion in debt of this size, in so short a space of time, "naturally raises questions that demand careful analysis."

The growth of consumer credit "was probably no more than would have gradually been reached had the pre-Korean trend from 1946 to 1950 been pursued without interruption," the B of M continues. "Moreover, there is evidence that the rate of increase has since diminished." However, the relative burden of consumer credit "depends in the last analysis on the ability of consumers to carry the debt they have incurred."

Available statistics may not provide a wholly reliable indication of this ability "since they beg the question of the relationship of debt to income in individual cases." Aggregate figures, however, indicate that "since the end of the war, total consumer credit outstanding has been rising somewhat faster than the disposable income available to consumers after taxes, but by pre-war standards, the relationship does not appear to be overly high. The average level of consumer credit last year was equivalent to 8.1 per cent of disposable income as against 7.8 per cent in 1950 and 6.1 per cent in 1948." Based on year-end figures, "consumer credit, at 9.7 per cent of disposable income in 1952, was just slightly higher than the 9.5 per cent for 1938."

In conclusion, the review points out that "the past twelve months have been marked by a significant addition to the real income of the consumer, which he has largely taken in the form of durable goods." Whether his real income will rise or fall, or whether, if it rises, he will continue to spend it in the same way, "are questions of vital concern to retailers and businessmen in general." All that can be said now, however, is that "industrial payrolls have continued to expand and that prices have remained relatively stable." Intimations nevertheless, from official sources, of a tapering off this year in the rate of increase in consumer credit outstanding, "point to a change in the pattern of demand that may affect those lines in which sales have been particularly buoyant in recent months."

PICKEREL SEASON

North Bay Nugget
Pickrel is distributed over wide areas of Ontario from the St. Lawrence river and the Great Lakes to some far northern streams and lakes. One of the best pickrel lakes in the province, according to officials of the Ontario Lands and Forests Department, is Lake Nipissing. And the department is right, of course.

Nowhere, perhaps, is the fishing keener than at North Bay. Here, a dock, only a few blocks from City Hall, is crowded on opening day and for weeks afterwards with fishermen of all ages and varieties. They all catch fish, too.

Usually, there isn't much trick to it. A bamboo pole, short line, single hook and live minnows will take plenty. So will fly-fishing equipment or bait rods using plugs, spoons, spinners or live bait.

HENRY FORD'S SPELLING

Philadelphia Bulletin

Henry Ford derided history as "more or less the bunk," but he was a miser in collecting and keeping it. An enormous mass of historical material, numbering not less than 5,000,000 documents and 25,000 photographs, accumulated in his 55-room house in Dearborn, Mich., and scholars will spend years evaluating them as a record of life in the first half of the twentieth century.

Among them are many papers revealing the man, rather than the times in which he lived. They prove among other things, that Henry Ford never bothered to take spelling seriously. He wrote that his earliest engine, built at the age of 10, did not develop "much" power, and that its fuel was "cole." During World War II he expressed his "pity" for warmongers. His many abbreviations might drive a conscientious proof-reader crazy.

But Henry Ford could have said — perhaps he did say it — that he could hire good spellers for less than he paid his factory workers.

Washington Column

FEELING RUNS HIGH IN CAPITAL ON U.S. PUBLIC LANDS ISSUE

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — With the tidelands bill finally passed and the Eisenhower administration policy on public power spelled out by Interior Secretary Douglas McKay, interest is beginning to focus on the next big item of what Democrats call "the give-away."

This is the public lands issue. A great deal of smoke and some fire has been thrown up to becloud this question. There are two sides to it. One side argues for continuing federal control of public lands for conservation of natural resources. The other side argues for turning these lands over to state governments and private ownership.

Neither side will give the other the benefit of a doubt. There seems to be no middle ground in this argument. This is why the coming fight over the issue may be intensely bitter.

There are today some 457 million acres of federal public lands, exclusive of some 77 million acres in Alaska. The 457 million acres represent 24 per cent of the continental U.S. area.

Nearly 90 per cent of these public lands are in the 11 western states. Most of the fusing over public lands centers in this area, including and west of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

The approximately 46 million acres of public lands in the 37 states including and east of the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas are mostly "acquired" lands. They were purchased or exchanged by the federal government for forest or game preserves, parks or military installations.

Public Land Area Has Steadily Declined
In the eastern states these public lands represent only from 1 to 9 per cent of each state's area. In the western states the percentages run from 35 in Washington to 85 in Nevada for an average of 54.

By use, all the 457 million acres are classified like this:

Bureau of Land Management for grazing, mineral and other rights — 180 million acres; Forest Service reserves — 158 million acres; Indian reservations — 57 million acres; Bureau of Reclamation irrigation and power projects — 13.6 million acres; Soil Conservation Service — 10 million acres; fish and wildlife preserves — 4.7 million acres; national defense installations — 25 million acres; other miscellaneous — 2 million acres.

The total area of U.S. public lands has been declining steadily for a century. From the Louisiana Purchase 150 years ago to the Mexican cession in 1848, public lands were around 750 million acres. With the Texas purchase in 1850 and the Gadsden purchase in 1853, public lands area rose to nearly a billion and a quarter acres — the all-time peak.

Over its entire history, the U.S. has disposed of more than a billion acres of the public domain. Cash sales took 300 million acres. Homesteaders another 285 million acres. Outright grants to the states accounted for 225 million acres. These are the big disposals.

Grants or bounties to veterans of the Revolutionary War and 19th-century American wars put 95 million acres of the public domain under private ownership. Grant to the western railroads for completing their transcontinental lines disposed of 91 million acres. Finally, timber, mineral and other private land claims took up another 35 million acres.

U.S. Moved In To Put End To Spoilage

While this disposal of federal public lands has been at the average rate of seven million acres a year over the past century, it has not been rapid enough to suit those who think that the U.S. should get rid of all its holdings.

That this has not been done is due probably to the spoilage and wasting of land resources by private owners in the latter half of the 19th century. Grasslands were over-grazed. Timberlands were over-cut. Farmlands were over-cultivated. Erosion set in. America's greatest resources — its topsoil — went down the rivers in muddy floods.

In the McKinley and Roosevelt administrations, the trend to stop this despoiling began. Since private owners would not conserve their natural resources, the federal and state governments moved in to do the job in the national interest.

The first conservation laws were passed. Grazing and timber-cutting practices were restricted to support a sustained yield of forest and grasslands. This was basic Republican land and water policy of the 1900's.

In the Democratic administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, these conservation policies were pursued even more aggressively. Instead of continuing with the disposal of public lands to private ownership, the government began to acquire additional lands.

It is to stop these additions to the public domain and to continue the old policy of a more rapid turnover of public lands to private ownership that the Republican administration is now being pressured by livestock raisers, miners and lumbermen.

ELIZABETH the Queen

By Marion Crawford
Former Governess to Her Majesty

I often recall a make-believe game that the Princesses, especially Princess Margaret, were fond of playing when they were children. We call it "If."

Princess Margaret would prance about the playroom chanting, "If I could be anything I like, Crawfie, do you know what I'd be?"

"A good girl, I should think," I would reply. "Certainly a Princess should be good."

"But if I weren't a Princess, Crawfie, I should like to be. . ."

And she would search her lively imagination for a dozen fantastic professions, some of which she had read about in books and others that she had invented on the spot. Her images were always colorful and stimulating.

Princess Elizabeth sometimes entered the game but she always tried to connect it with the real life outside, of which she could catch only glimpses. She was absorbed by healthy curiosity about the way other people lived, and tried to put herself in their places. Instead of playing a game, she exercised this faculty while we drove in the streets or in the country.

Among the little throng always to be seen waiting outside the Palace were several familiar faces. Many elderly women were among them.

"We know them, don't we, Crawfie?" Princess Elizabeth would say. "But still, I wonder who they are?"

There was one old lady, dressed in black, with a lean face, who was always waiting at Hyde Park Corner at four o'clock on Friday afternoons as we drove down from the Palace to the Royal Lodge, Windsor.

We always took the same route — up Constitution Hill, and round the traffic island into the Park. The Princesses became interested in her, speculating on whether she would be there or not.

She always was. As our car came abreast of the gate where the traffic has to slow down in order to file through the arches into the Park, there she would be, watching.

Princess Elizabeth would be worried about her if we were ever delayed on our journey, or — as rarely happened — there was a change in our week-end routine. "I hope she will not wait too long," the Princess would say. "She doesn't look very strong."

"She was always interested in the 'outside world' on which she considered me an authority — although to tell the truth I saw very little of it — and would ask me endless questions about it. I believe that until her marriage the Princess had no clear understanding of the way people lived outside palace walls.

It is one of the strengths of the British Constitution that the Queen sits upon the top rung of the ladder that others must climb with such endeavor, so that however high a man may mount, there is always someone above him — a man or woman who took that place, not after a lifetime of application, but by inheriting it as a natural birthright.

I would sometimes play the "If" game myself. What would Princess Elizabeth like to be and do, I often asked myself, "if" she were free to choose?

The course of her life was set. Certain things happened, always had happened, and always would continue to happen so far as she knew. A child does not ask what water tastes like, or puzzle over the way she breathes. These things are taken for granted. So, then, was Princess Elizabeth's way of living.

But on her honeymoon, and certainly afterwards, when she flew to visit Princess Philip in Malta, Princess Elizabeth saw and experienced for the first time the life of an ordinary girl not living in a palace.

She could never be quite free from all attention, of course, however thoughtful people are. And in Malta the citizens made a genuine effort not to cloud her visit with the kind of staring attention she gets nearly everywhere else.

But Princess Elizabeth could never dissolve into the background and enjoy herself as an unknown person can, although on certain rare occasions she has seen what life might be like if she had not been a Princess.

As I think over her personality, trying to settle on those points which seem to me on reflection most characteristic, I find one word continually in my mind: thoughtfulness.

Let us suppose that she had been plain Miss Elizabeth Windsor. What then? How would she have differed? My personal opinion is that she would be much the same.

After careful thought the only difference I think which would have been obvious in her would be a slightly less serious outlook on life.

Princess Elizabeth never had the gay, carefree character of Princess Margaret. The two girls of the same birth and upbringing differ in many ways. Their complexions are different, for example.

Princess Margaret has an excellent skin, but not of the same alabaster quality as Queen Elizabeth's. In summer Princess Margaret gets quite sunburned.

Queen Elizabeth and her mother have skin of a similar type and they both have to guard not only against tanning but also against sunburn.

THE MATURE PARENT

CHILD'S RESENTMENT MAY BE FEAR SHE'S NOT LOVED BACK

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

When Young Mrs. B. went away to get her divorce, she left Mandy with her own parents.

For the next five years she had an awful time with her. Mandy wouldn't let her mother touch her.

Mrs. B. would say coaxingly, "Please let me rinse your hair for you, dear. Here, hold this washcloth over your eyes. I promise I won't get any soap in them."

But Mandy would wriggle so un- easily under her mother's hands that the soap always did get in her eyes. She'd push Mrs. B., screaming, "You hurt me! You always hurt me! Go away. I don't want your help."

And Mrs. B., her heart shrinking, would obey, thinking, "Never will Mandy forgive me for depriving her of her father."

She was wrong. What Mandy couldn't forgive was being deprived of her mother at the time she was also deprived of her father. But, of course, in the self-deprecating state of mind that followed Mrs. B.'s marital failure, she could not believe her presence would be desirable to anyone.

As time passed, however, she began to recover her self-appreciation. She began to recognize herself as a person worthy of love. So one momentous afternoon when Mandy shrieked, "I hate you, I hate you," she did not leave the room, ashamed and overwhelmed. She stood her ground, looked straight at Mandy and shot her head.

"Nonsense," said Mrs. B. "I don't believe that for one minute. I think you trust me more than anyone in the world. I think you like me so much, Mandy, that you are scared to death to show it in case I don't like you back. I think that's been the trouble with you and me."

And Mandy, the defiant child, stared at her mother for a long moment neither would ever forget—and then flung herself on her bed, crying as though her heart would break.

But this time, she didn't pull away from her mother's touch. And kneeling beside the bed, Mrs. B. went on.

"It's hard to show someone else we love them if we're afraid that we're not loved back," she said. "Love is a river, Mandy—it flows forward. Fear that we're not loved back is the dead leaves and old logs that jam it, so that instead of flowing forward it goes backwards, and destroys the fields it should be feeding. It's been very hard on mother, needing you to love me and just getting drowned in your fear that I don't, instead."

Like Mrs. B. we will find it of immense assistance with resentful children to remember that we are wonderful, important people to them.

For nine times out of ten, their resentment is fear that they are not loved by the wonderful, important people. Nine times out of ten, we continue to be presented with resentment because we do not see that it is love in reverse.

Nine times out of ten, our self-depreciation is to blame for our situation. It is what blinds us to Mandy's need to express her love freely and confidently.

'PASS THE GARBAGE' IS TRICKY

By OSWALD JACOBY and ALFRED SHEINWOLD
Written for NEA Service

"We were playing a game called Pass the Garbage," writes a Kentucky reader. "Seven cards are dealt face down to each player. Each player then passes three cards of his choice to the person on his left. (The passing is done on a signal, after each player has put three cards down on the table.)"

"After the pass each player keeps five of his seven cards and discards the other two in an effort to obtain either the high or the low hand at the table. The players then turn up one card at a time simultaneously (on a signal), and the high hand bets first against the low hand."

"When all five cards have been turned face up, the high hand splits the pot with the low hand. Our problem is as follows: One player had dropped out without playing his cards, which left only three of us. The first player bet one chip, and the second player raised him five chips. The third player dropped out."

"Since there are always two winners, does the game end there or must the first player still put five chips into the pot to meet the raise?"

"The first player argued that he was entitled to half the pot and that he did not have to meet the raise. He therefore wanted to split the seven chips that were in the pot. The second player didn't know quite what argument to oppose this with, but it somehow didn't seem right to him.

"Who is right?"

The second player was right. The betting in a poker hand is depreciation is to blame for our situation. It is what blinds us to Mandy's need to express her love freely and confidently.

Contrariwise, if two players have rather good low hands, a third player with perhaps only a pair may easily win the high half of the pot.

For this reason, a third player not finished until the last raise had been met. This hand was therefore unfinished, and the players have no right to divide the pot until the hand is finished.

The first player is not entitled to half of the unfinished pot. He must meet the raise by putting five chips into the pot, after which the pot can be split.

Incidentally, the third player may not have been so clever in getting out of the pot so quickly. In a game of this sort in which only five cards are kept, there are always two winners. If two players have fairly good hands, they may both try for the high half of the pot, and a third player who holds only a mediocre hand may easily run off with the low half of the pot.

Contrariwise, if two players have rather good low hands, a third player with perhaps only a pair may easily win the high half of the pot.

For this reason, a third player

Mr. Dyhart looked surprised as he ushered them into his living room. "Just leaving, Thorne, but business before pleasure. I suppose it's something to do with the audit?"

"That's correct," said Thorne. "Dyhart," he purposely skipped the "Mr.," "you had Miss Justin cash several checks recently, amounting to nearly $10,000."

"Ridiculous," smiled Dyhart. "I know nothing of any checks."

"We've practically discovered the guilty person," went on Thorne dryly, as he opened his case and removed a cancelled check. Thorne took a sheet of paper, placed the check on it, and flashed it before Dyhart's eyes.

"All you have to do, Dyhart," he said, "is copy the signature on this check!"

The manager's lips curved bitterly, but he took the pen. The only sound was the tick of a clock. The pen dropped from Dyhart's hand and plopped on the rug.

Thorne snatched the pen. "Never mind, Dyhart, that's enough. This afternoon we asked every employee to copy that signature. Not one hesitated. You did, and you're guilty. I reasoned, since the tellers passed those checks, the signature, though doctored a bit, was actually yours—disguised!"

A groan fled Dyhart's lips. "I wanted to get the money back in time," he gasped. "I didn't mean to involve Miss Justin, but she was my secretary. Don't swear out a warrant, Thorne. I'll pay it all back—"

"After they were in the street, Thorne took a deep breath. It made him tingle and look up at the stars pinned on a clear sky.

"Well, your job still a travelling auditor with a job so I guess you won't hang out your shingle," said Miss Justin softly.

"If I could find a secretary, a good one, Miss Justin — would you—"

"Take dictation from you?" Miss Justin laughed when she said it. Thorne decided it was the pleasantest laugh he had ever heard.

SHORT STORY

Hanging The Shingle

By RICHARD D. CARR

"Imagine a girl like Miss Justin getting into trouble!" exclaimed Mr. Kibb, the corporation's senior auditor. "You can't be sure about anyone!"

His young assistant, Mark Thorne, locked his hands thoughtfully behind his head.

"How about Dyhart, the manager?"

"Why, Dyhart's been with the company for years," scoffed Mr. Kibb, as he left, "besides, you've got to admit she endorsed each check."

"Mr. Thorne," said a voice behind him as Mark studied the personnel files.

"—Why, Miss Justin! We said, 'I wasn't expecting you, here you to work tonight?'"

"No, I came to see you. I overheard you and Mr. Kibb talking about those checks and it had me worried. Is something wrong?"

"Plenty," said Thorne. It was hard to begin. He ran a nervous hand through his black hair. "Then you know about the checks—you cashed them?"

"Yes, I cashed the checks because Mr. Dyhart told me to. Wait—you don't believe I took all that money!"

He saw cold, tight lines etched about her lips. "No, Miss Justin, but Mr. Kibb can't see it any other way. Didn't you suspect anything?"

"Certainly, I guess I looked puzzled, because each time when I handed Mr. Dyhart the money, he mentioned a change in the accounting rules."

Thorne jumped. "If Dyhart said that, it's plain no one else was in on it. He disguised his signature, so that when it came to a show-down, he could blame everything on you. That's why he had you cash the checks?"

"How can you prove it?" asked Miss Justin weakly.

"Well, it's a long chance," said Thorne, slamming his fist. "If I lose and the corporation kicks me out—I've been wanting to hang out a shingle for a long time."

Mr. Dyhart looked surprised as he ushered them into his living room. "Just leaving, Thorne, but business before pleasure. I suppose it's something to do with the audit?"

"That's correct," said Thorne. "Dyhart," he purposely skipped the "Mr.," "you had Miss Justin cash several checks recently, amounting to nearly $10,000."

Jacoby On Bridge

By OSWALD JACOBY

STEP BY STEP THIS IS GREAT PLAYING

Bridge players on the West Coast are now in the middle of "Bridge Week" in Los Angeles. This is the largest tournament held west of the Rocky Mountains, and it always attracts a huge field of expert tournament players.

As today's hand shows, the standard of skill in "Bridge Week" is very high indeed. The hand was played by Mr. and Mrs. James Dunn, the winners of the Mixed Pair Championship.

When West opened the queen of diamonds, Dunn very properly refused to win the first trick. This was the correct first step in a campaign of keeping East out of the lead.

Declarer could see that he was bound to lose one diamond and one club no matter how he played the cards. He didn't want to touch the spades unless it turned out that the contract could be made in no other way.

West continued the diamonds at the second trick, and declarer took his ace this time. He continued by drawing trumps with the ace and queen of hearts, and next led a low club from dummy. When East naturally played a low club, South finessed the ten of clubs.

The club finesse lost to West's jack, but declarer was not a bit disturbed. He had expected to lose a club trick anyway, and he had carefully played the hand in such a way as to lose that trick to West rather than to East.

West returned a club, and Dunn could now take the ace of clubs, and follow with the king of clubs. When

Vision And Moral Strength Needed

"The world today desperately needs the vision and moral strength of dedicated Christian youth who have the courage to stand for the very highest principles of morality," declared Pastor Henry F. Brown, of Washington, D.C., Associate Secretary of the International Temperance Society and Narcotic Control Association as he addressed the convention of Seventh-day Adventist youth from all over Quebec meeting in South Stukely on Saturday at the site of the denomination's oldest church in Canada.

He called upon the youth to "battle vigorously the forces of society that seek to undermine the very foundations of our way of life." He pointed out that the strength of a nation can be gauged quite accurately by the spiritual strength and resources of its youth.

Challenging the youthful delegates to demonstrate the effectiveness of the Christian way of life, Pastor Lawrence E. Smart, of Oshawa, Ontario, youth director for Canadian Adventists, urged them to enlist in the church sponsored "Legion of Honour" that requires Christian youth to apply in a practical way the principles of Christianity in their reading, recreation, associations, recreation and training.

The convention which saw over one hundred delegates from Adventist youth organizations, was under the direction of Pastor F. Brock Wells, Adventist youth leader for Quebec and Ontario, Pastor Arthur M. Spent, minister of the Eastern Township District of Seventh-day Adventist Churches, played host to the rally assisted by Pastor Harold J. Brendel, minister of Westmount Adventist Church.

Declaring that the freedoms enjoyed by Canadians are in danger of being lost by default, Pastor Darren L. Michael, of Oshawa, Ontario, religious liberty secretary for the church in Canada said, "if Canada is to remain a land of freedom and a haven for the free hearts of the world, then every young person must realize that it will take alert, vigilant action to counteract the sinister forces that are scheming to reduce our land to a thought-control, police-state, enslaved country."

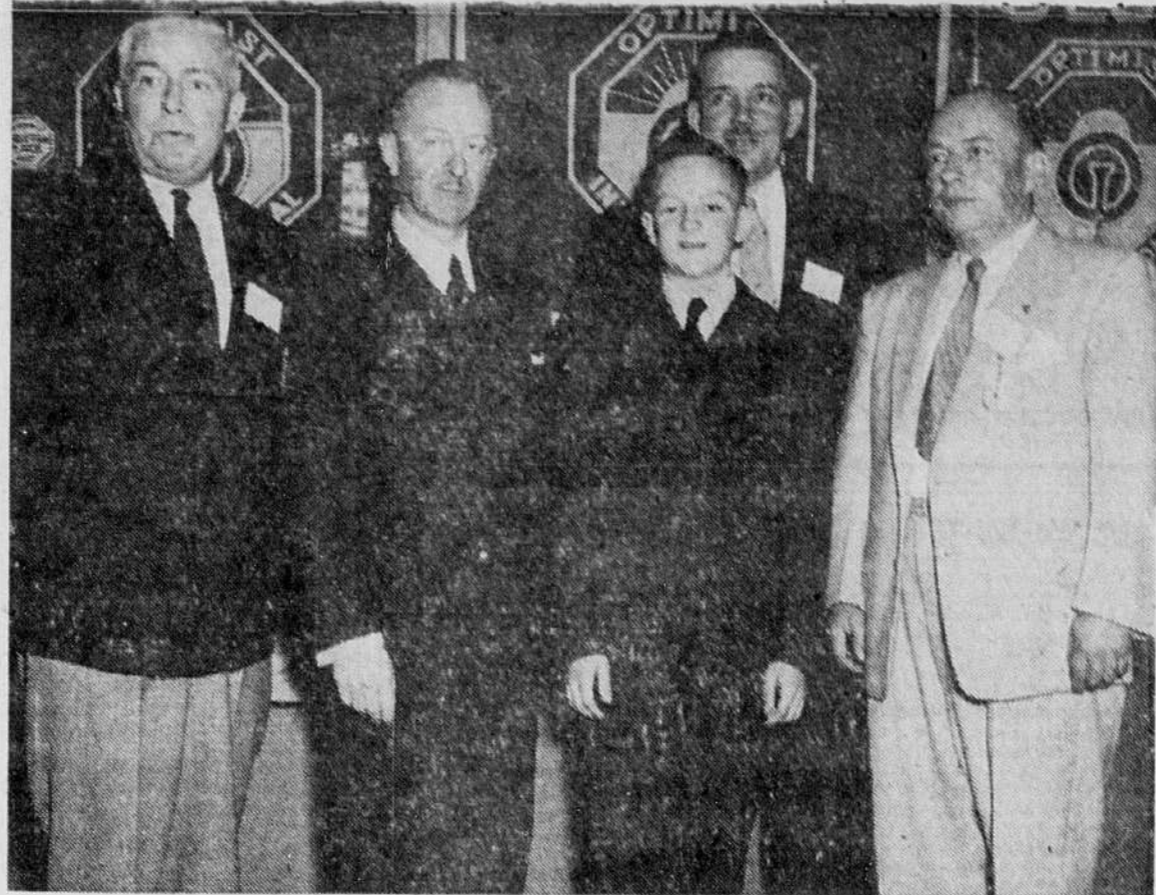

Speaking at the closing session of the congress, Mr. Michael urged the delegates to return to their homes determined to live their Christian beliefs so practically and consistently that by such exemplary lives the "influence of your life will be the most potent and effective defense of our way of life." The conference closed with a social program on Saturday night.

$20,000 Damage in Sutton Fire

Sutton, May 25 — Damage in excess of $20,000 was caused by fire which destroyed the boiler room and bowling pin factory which form part of the local Darrah Brothers woodworking plant yesterday morning.

The fire, which started in a waste bin, was first noticed about 2 a.m. by the night watchman who immediately turned in the alarm.

Although the Sutton volunteer fire department under the direction of Chief Paul J. Shepard, had six streams of hose in operation within ten minutes of the sounding of the alarm, the inflammable nature of the materials caused the fire to spread to the boiler room and woodworking section where it could be brought under control.

The firemen were able to localize the flames, but the operators of nearby factories alerted their staffs in event the outbreak got out of control, while the Montreal-Sutton local passenger train parked on a nearby siding was moved to safety by the train crew.

The fire will cause some displacement in the activities of the company, but the management plans to carry on until the plant is rebuilt, the work on which will start immediately.

OBITUARIES

ISABELLA M. WINSLOW

The funeral was held May 12 of Isabella Mathews Winslow, wife of Edward Winslow of Sherbrooke who died after a long illness on May 9th, 1953. Born in 1877, Mrs. Winslow was one whose greatest concern was her home-making, children and the Church. She was born, one of nine children to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mathews in Lachute, where she received her schooling. From Lachute she moved with her family to East Angus and thence to Sherbrooke where she was working until she met Edward Winslow whom she married June 29th, 1910. The mother of two children, a daughter, Marjorie Isabella Winslow now married to Frank Walton of Port Hope, Ont., where they now live and a son, Douglas Edward Winslow now married to Helen Lessard and living in Sherbrooke, she was a devoted parent with as devoted an interest in the Church. Members of Trinity United Church, Mr. and Mrs. Winslow showed an active attendance since their establishment in Sherbrooke. Mrs. Winslow was active in the Women's Auxiliary. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her children, five sisters, Sadie, Inez, Annie, Charlotte, Lillian and one brother, Thomas. Services were held in Johnston's Funeral Chapel with the Rev. R. C. Tait officiating. Interment took place at Westbury Cemetery.

COMPTON

Danville, after spending three weeks at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Sparkes and Mr. Sparkes. Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons were Mrs. George Daniels, of New Haven, Conn., Mrs. Angus Mayhew and Miss Isabel Wadleigh, of Coaticook. Miss Lorna Lundberg, R.N., of Montreal, is spending a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lundberg. Mr. Robert Sparks was in Montreal on Saturday, where he acted as best man at the Elliott-Hawthorne wedding. Birds of Prey Birds of prey have at least some economic importance. Many of them have a taste for meadow mice. Ten meadow mice in one meadow will destroy five and one-half tons of hay in a year.

Pretty 21-Year-Old Princess To Attend Queen's Crowning

London — (Reuters) — Among the royal, titled and famous guests staying at Buckingham Palace for the Coronation of the Queen will be a pretty, fair-haired nurse not yet out of training.

She is Princess Margherita Von Baden, 21, daughter of a noble family in southern Germany and niece of the Duke of Edinburgh. Dropping her titles, Margherita does a nine-hour day along with other training nurses at St. Thomas' hospital, a large state-run hospital in shabby, overcrowded Lambeth, Southeast London.

The princess, who seldom sees her uncle puts away her starched uniform May 28 to join her parents at the Palace. Her mother is the Duke's eldest sister. The Duke's two other sisters also married German noblemen and live in Bavaria.

Margherita will see the crowning ceremony inside Westminster Abbey June 2 from seats reserved for foreign royalty.

"I love nursing and enjoy every minute of my work," she says, "but I am looking forward enormously to staying at Buckingham Palace with my uncle and the Queen. What an honor to be invited."

Margherita began nursing two and a half years ago after attending a finishing school in Britain. She has moved out of the "probationary" stage of making beds and changing bandages but still has 18 months to go before she is fully qualified.

"What will she do then?" "One cannot plan ahead these days," she says. "In a way, it is more fun not to."

Perhaps the best Canadian horse now is Clint Hodgins of Clendun, Ont. He has 25 horses and drives for six owners. Other Canadian drivers are Dalton Hodgins, Clint's brother; Cecil Champion of Chesterville, Ont.; Del MacTavish of Lachute, Que.; Phil Dussault of St. Marie, Que.; and Lucienne Dionne of Drummondville, Que.

Dussault, 43-year-old veteran, has been a hockey player, marathon runner and dog sled driver. He's been driving standard-breds for 27 years.

Dionne is a second cousin to Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, but says he isn't too popular with his relatives.

"They think I'm a black sheep because I've only got one kid," he says.

Perhaps the best Canadian horse at Yonkers is M. C. Rose, eight-year-old trotter owned by Garrett Rowntree of West, Ont., and driven by Harvey. This is Rowntree's first trip to New York. His brother Vic was here last year but didn't return. He recently lost a finger jacking up a truck.

The highest of the four counties studied, only about 26 per cent of the school children had simple thyroid enlargements.

After this was discovered it was decided to use the use of salt to which iodine had been added in homes in those counties where the iodine content of the water was low or absent. The result was an enormous drop in the frequency of goiter among the children.

It then appeared that adding iodine to table salt might be simpler. Some thought that adding iodine to salt might be dangerous, but careful studies proved no harm. For example, one survey of over 50,000 children four years after beginning the use of iodized salt showed not a single child had developed the slightest ill effect from the use of iodized salt.

Goiter Cases Use Salt
Iodine can be added to refined salt or can be supplied by natural unrefined salt. The latter also has been done with good results in the prevention of simple goiter. The prejudice against "medicated" salt is not justified.

Since the "natural" iodine in the food is low in some parts of the country (the Great Lakes goiter belt, in particular), the use of iodized salt has certainly proved a boon to many children who would otherwise have had trouble later.

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—less better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter.

"Airport overcast! Where's the plane that wants to be 'talked in' for a safe landing?"

"We send out a short burst of radar detector waves, they find the plane and bounce back on our radar screen. We've got him spotted and can guide him down to the runway."

The Ground Control Approach (G.C.A.) Technician grins.

"Radar waves travel at the speed of light so if the 'echo' took two seconds to reach our screen, we'd know the pilot was at the impossible distance of 186,000 miles from base. But, of course, he's only a few miles away, so distances have to be measured in millionths of a second—all done by automatic electronic computers."

G.C.A. uses radar tubes small enough to put in your pocket but more powerful than Canada's largest commercial radio transmitter! G.C.A. is a major safety factor on any landing field in the RCAF today . . . and the men who operate it are highly skilled technicians.

GOVERNORS' CONVENTION—President Eisenhower plays host to U. S. Governors on the White House portico in Washington after a large-scale luncheon. Left to right are the governors who are attending a three-day convention: Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan; Wm. Beardley of Iowa; Lawrence Wetherby of Kentucky; Allen Shivers of Texas; Tom Dewey of New York; and Ike who is pointing out a few of the Washington sights.

Memorial church of Sherbrooke, the officers for the ensuing year were elected, convenors were named for the various standing committees and many important decisions were reached affecting the life and work of the 41 churches which make up the official Church Court of this area and which with four other Presbyteries is a part of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference.

The two-day sessions began with a worship service conducted by Rev. Mr. Stafford, after which visitors present for the first time at these quarterly meetings of ministers and laymen of the church were introduced and welcomed. Following the customary adoption of the agenda and approval of minutes of previous meetings of both regular and executive assemblies, the report of the nominating committee was given.

Rev. W. H. Boomhour, representing this committee, read the following list of proposals for convenors of standing committees, which were all approved as named: Boundaries, Rev. R. P. Stafford; business and finance, Stanley Beerworth; Christian education, Rev. Gerald Fee; evangelism and social service, Rev. John McKay; historical and church property, R. Lewis; home missions, Rev. C. Gustafson; insurance, K. G. Nourse; law and legislation, W. Bradley; missionary and maintenance, Rev. J. L. Dean; obituaries, Rev. F. R. Matthews; overseas missions, Rev. P. W. Jones; pastoral relations, Rev. W. H. Boomhour; pensions, Rev. J. McKay; publications, Rev. A. McKinley; resolutions, Rev. C. L. West; colleges and students, Rev. E. C. Amaron; visitations, Rev. C. W. Foggo.

An impressive communion service was then held, conducted by Rev. Mr. Stafford and Rev. A. McK. Rose, and assisted by four elders, C. W. Darby, B. Brown, A. Smith and S. Beerworth. Portions of the special order of service prepared for use at divine worship on the Sunday prior to the Coronation were used at this communion observance.

At the luncheon hour a tastefully prepared meal was served by the ladies of the united organizations of Centenary church. The afternoon session was opened by a worship period, conducted by Rev. Mr. Gregerson of Windsor Mills. Following this a committee was named to examine the record books of official boards and sessions of the various churches which had sent them for annual inspection at this meeting. The committee named was, Rev. J. C. Reilly, Rev. A. Hinton, V. W. Beattie and F. A. Johnson. They later reported that the records were in good order and being kept according to church regulations. The standing committees then met to prepare reports and suggestions for later presentation to the court.

The election of officers was held, at which time Rev. T. D. F. Everett, of Trinity church, Sherbrooke, was elected chairman for the ensuing conference year. Rev. J. M. Butler, of Waterville, was re-elected secretary, K. G. Nourse, of Richmond, re-elected as treasurer and Rev. Gerald Fee, of Cowansville, re-elected as statistical secretary. Mr. Nourse then gave the financial report, followed by a report of the colleges and students committee by Dr. E. C. Amaron and a pastoral relations report by Rev. Mr. Everett. This report showed that five churches had recently had changes in ministerial appointments while five others are without a permanent, resident minister.

During the supper hour a fine report of the ladies work of the Presbyterial was presented by Mrs. Elsie Smith.

The evening session was opened with an impressive worship service conducted by Rev. E. C. Amaron and during the service two young men, J. W. Sherr and David Kilpatrick, were licensed to preach in a brief ceremony led by Rev. Mr. Stafford. The Stanstead College girl's choir rendered an anthem, "The St. James Air," which was much appreciated. The balance of the evening was taken up with the discussion of a questionnaire which had been sent out by the General Council of the United Church for study by all Presbyteries. The purpose of this was to determine if a new office should be established in each conference with a full time officer who would have oversight of many programs and activities in the work and life of the church.

Rev. T. D. F. Everett, Rev. L. M. Outerbridge, Rev. E. C. Amaron, J. G. Armitage and Stanley Beerworth had been asked to study and prepare notes on different phases of this questionnaire and they then proceeded to discuss these points in a "round table" conference, in order that all present might be made aware of the questions under consideration and be prepared to present arguments of express approval when the panel later turned the meeting over for open discussion. It was the opinion of Presbytery that such proposed, full time officer, in order to be of service, would have to greatly overlap duties of present officials and that the cost would be too great for the benefits derived. It was agreed however that should any conference approve of the plan that a trial should be carried out in the conference area concerned.

The sessions on the morning of the second day were opened with a worship period conducted by Rev. R. A. Cameron. This was followed by a report of the home missions committee, under Rev. C. Gustafson. The plan to make Baldwin's Mills a preaching point served by the Coaticook charge was related and since the meeting of Presbytery the first worship service had been conducted there by Dr. W. B. Perry of the Coaticook church. Dr. J. McKay gave a report of the work of church extension in new fields, such as Seven Islands, Knob Lake and Harrington Harbour.

Rev. Mr. Cameron then reported for the committee on evangelism and social service. A resolution was passed protesting any action which would make legal a government sponsored lottery, as has been suggested many times in the press of late. Rev. Mr. Everett spoke on behalf of the Quebec Temperance League, telling of the many fine films available to groups wishing to further such important work. The committee also urged that the conference study the question of an increased evangelistic campaign in this area. Delegates were named to attend the Whitby Conference on evangelism to be held this summer.

The Christian education report was given by Rev. J. M. Butler, which revealed the deplorable fact that only 10 Young People's groups exist in the 41 churches in the Presbytery and that something must be done to regain the interest of the young people. A collection was made among those present in aid of the training camp at Five Oaks in Ontario.

Miss Daisy McNeill, representing the Quebec Religious Education Council, then gave an interesting talk, outlining the work of the council in educating Sunday School teachers and other volunteer workers. During the lunch period a report was presented by Mrs. Volney Hurley, on behalf of Mrs. R. P. Stafford who was unable to be present, of the activities of the Women's Associations of the district. A film on church extension entitled, "We Would Be Building" was then shown.

The closing sessions began with a worship period led by Rev. A. McKinley Rose of Centenary church. A report by Dr. W. B. Perry for the missionary and maintenance committee revealed that for the thirteenth consecutive year givings to M. and M. had increased on record. A rally is to be held in Sherbrooke this fall at which the guest speaker will be the Moderator of the church sponsored by the M. and M. committee.

Dr. L. M. Outerbridge and Rev. W. P. Jones reporting for the overseas missions and missionary education committee brought to the attention of the meeting a recent article which appeared in the church publication and which they felt was detrimental to the work and aims of the church in foreign fields. After much discussion a resolution was passed expressing the disapproval of the article and expressing the hope that the editor of the publication would in future refrain from accepting material such as this particular sample which in its tone gave the impression that missionaries in foreign fields had not been preaching the true gospel and had failed in their duties. It was pointed out that "freedom of the press" need not necessarily extend to official church publications which were for the primary purpose of furthering the work of the Master and that such articles would raise doubt in the minds of supporters of this work in other lands.

The statistical report, given by Rev. G. Fee, revealed that there are 41 charges represented in this Presbytery, with 81 preaching points. These are at present served by 36 ministers. There are 3973 active families and 855 inactive ones. There are 52 Sunday Schools with a membership of 3552. The Presbytery has oversight of 15,000 people.

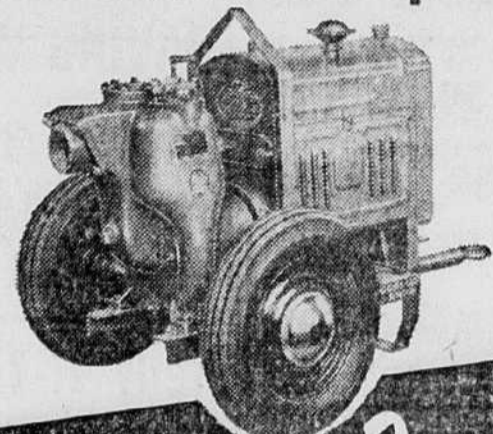

Rev. W. H. Boomhour reported for the boundaries committee and expressed the regrets of Presbytery in the coming retirement of Rev. E. D. Mitchell, who has served the church faithfully for many years. Rev. Leslie Dean reported for the church property committee and told of the work recently done at the Brookbury church which is served by Rev. Mr. Jones from Cookshire. Rev. Mr. Stafford gave the report of the publications committee, telling of the many fine new books available to ministers on request.

Finally, thanks was expressed to the ministers who had conducted the worship during the two day sessions, to the ladies of Centenary for providing meals, to those who had opened their homes for billets, and to Mrs. Gordon, Dr. Tupper and the choir for their assistance. An expression of sympathy was given to Rev. F. R. Matthews and family in the loss recently of Mrs. Roy Stafford, who at that time was a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital, and the wish was made for her speedy recovery.

The sessions were concluded with the benediction given by the chairman, Rev. R. P. Stafford.

The Anti-T.B. X-Ray Mobile Clinic Will Visit Waterloo In September

Waterloo, May 25 — The members of the Waterloo Kiwanis Club met as usual on Tuesday night in the Canadian Legion Hall, when an open meeting was enjoyed. Many items of interest to all were discussed under the leadership of President Butch Bouchard. Nineteen members and one guest, Kiwanian Cliff Wilkinson, of the Granby Club, were on hand.

The question of the Anti-T.B. X-Ray Mobile Clinic coming to Waterloo was discussed and it was hoped that this could be arranged for the third week in September. At this time every citizen of Waterloo is invited to take part in this clinic by appearing to have their lungs X-Rayed. This involves only a very few minutes of one's time and the results may save years of his person's life.

This clinic has arranged to come to Waterloo solely under the guidance of the Kiwanis Club, which raises the money to make this visit possibly through the means of the sale of Christmas Seals. The plan calls for the clinic to visit this town once every three years, and in this way a fairly accurate watch may be kept on the condition of its citizens. In past visits, several people have received benefits from the findings of the X-Ray, and this makes it worth while to all concerned. So the Kiwanians wish to express their desire that everyone make use of this clinic when it arrives. Otherwise the whole purpose of this long range service will be defeated.

Other questions that were brought up had to do with the repair and fixing up of the picnic tables erected outside Waterloo on the Granby Highway, cleaning up the beach, and other minor undertakings.

The unique set-up of the club members taking turns at preparing and serving the meals has worked out very well this season. The meals are excellent, and the cost is at a minimum, and the interest in the club as a whole seems to be better maintained through this medium. The four man team that handled the clinic duties at this meeting included Kiwanians, Alden Perkins, Butch Bouchard, Jesse Smith and Harry Shank.

Next week will be Community

Organization Night, under the chairmanship of Kiwanians Orval Lewis and Rev. Art. Spence.

THE LEGION AUXILIARY. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, Branch 77, held its regular meeting on Tuesday evening in the Legion Hall, opening with the singing of "O Canada."

The president, Mrs. David R. Hughes, presided over the business. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Walter Hughes, the minutes were read by the past president, Mrs. Winslow Holloway.

It was decided to hold a Coronation Tea, on May 30th, in the Legion Hall, from the hours of three to five in the afternoon.

Routine business was discussed, and Mrs. Robert Beakes was elected sergeant-at-arms to replace Mrs. Ken. Lewis who has moved to Milton, Ont.

The colors were presented by the colour bearers, Mrs. William Long and Mrs. Ormer Malboueuf.

Hostesses for this meeting were Mrs. Leon Lewis, Mrs. Joseph Lennon, Mrs. Beauregard, Mrs. Walter Hughes.

The meeting was closed with the singing of "God Save the Queen."

ST. PAUL'S W. A. The Women's Association of St. Paul's met on Thursday evening in the United Church Hall. The meeting opened with the devotional exercises under the direction of Mrs. Thornton Boyd with Mrs. Allan Norris at the piano. The president, Mrs. Orval Lewis, presided over the business.

Manners MAKE FRIENDS

The woman who wants men to find her conversation interesting saves her "woman talk" for her sewing club. When there are men present, she makes an effort to talk about subjects men like to discuss. Topics of general interest don't include her problems with her children, her maid, or her reducing diet.

They are strictly "woman talk."

Indians Split Yesterday; Phillies Here Tonight

Locals Drop Close 2-1 Decision To Braves Saturday; Win 5-2 But Lose 12-5; Granby Here In Postponed Tilt

Sherbrooke Indians dropped two to the Quebec Braves over the weekend in the Capital City. On Saturday evening they were edged out 2-1 in a close battle while Sunday the locals lost the opener 12-5 but came through with a 5-2 decision in the nightcap.

Tonight at the Municipal Stadium the Indians will be hosts to the fast-stepping Phillies of Granby in a postponed game which was slated for May 3. Tomorrow night they will also play the Phillies in a regular scheduled fixture.

On Saturday evening Danny Oskinowski tossed a five-hitter but two errors proved costly to the locals as they were edged out 2-1 after a close battle. Yesterday a triple play saved the Braves in the first tilt as it got them out of a bad hole they then rallied with a five-run outburst to cop the initial game of the twin-bill. In the nightcap the Indians took over and made sure of their victory as Jack Cerbo came up with his second win of the season.

St. Hyacinthe Athletics moved back into first place tie in the provincial baseball league during the week-end, on the strength of three victories.

The Athletics swamped Trois-Rivieres Yankees 20-0 Saturday and took both ends of a double-header from the Yanks Sunday, winning the opener 9-6 and the nightcap 6-5.

Granby Phillies also had three wins for no loss during the week-end, defeating Thetford Mines Miners 4-3 Saturday and posting 9-8 and 17-3 scores Sunday over the Miners.

St. Johns Canadians were also three-time winners, dumping Drummondville Royals 8-4 Saturday and defeating them 15-9 and 7-1 Sunday.

Star for St. Hyacinthe Sunday was Tom Perez who belted out a homer in the third inning of the opener with the bases loaded for four of the Athletics' six runs.

A single run in the final frame gave them the evening game. A single run in the opening frame proved the margin of victory for Granby in their first Sunday game and John Vossen homered twice in the second, producing five runs, more than enough for victory.

St. Johns belted out 18 safeties in their opener with Drummondville Sunday while playing errorless ball and Nick Castellano homered with two on to star.

In the nightcap, they broke loose in the final frame, three men hitting two-baggers and Bill Urbanski netting a three-bagger to clean up.

love among the penguins

Romance is a rocky enough road for human beings. But if you happen to be a penguin, it's a super-obstacle course.

You have seen pictures of penguins. Can you tell a male from a female? No. Well, strangely enough, the romantically-inclined penguin is in precisely the same predicament.

However, he has a solution. He presents a pebble or a feather to the penguin of his choice. If the gift is ignored, he knows he has found a maiden as yet unschooled in the art of flirtation. If it is accepted, he has found his one true love.

The system has its hazards, though. He may be rewarded with a vigorous peck, indicating that he has made the mistake of selecting a staid old bachelor!

Life for penguins and people is often confusing. However, when on the lookout for a refreshing ale the situation is uncomplicated. For the connoisseur, the right ale will be plainly identified with the word "Molson's" on the label. The love affair between Molson's and ale-quaffing Canadians has been going on now since 1786, and the bonds of affection grow stronger with every passing year.

You don't need pebbles or feathers. Just plight your troth with those three little words: "Make Mine Molson's".

Native Dancer Has Close Call In Preakness; Jamie K. Forces Big Grey Limit Nosed Out By Neck At Wire

Baltimore — (CP)—Native Dancer, the grey colt who ran second to Dark Star in the Kentucky Derby, came back to win the $113,750 Preakness stake Saturday, but his victory margin — a neck over outsider Jamie K — left his status among the racing greats still in doubt.

The pride of Alfred Vanderbilt's stable, ridden as usual by Eric Guerin, had to battle all the way down the stretch to beat off the challenger of Jim Norris' Jamie K, ridden by Eddie Arcaro who was trying for his fifth Preakness win.

Third, six lengths back, was Eugene Constantine's Royal Bay Gem. Dark Star tried to run the same race that gave him the Derby. Running well before the finish and wound up fifth in the field of seven.

The Dancer, second grey to win the Maryland turf classic for three-year-olds in the '77 years it has been run, took command on the final turn of the mile and three-sixteenths race, pulled away in the home stretch and fought off the last closing Jamie K.

Bruce Campbell's Ram O' War was fourth, followed by Dark Star. Ben Whitaker's Tahitian King, with Mrs. Gordon Guiberson's Correspondent, ridden by Bobbie Summers, last.

A crowd of 30,756 saw the Dancer win his 13th victory in 14 starts. Jockey Guerin, who has been criticized for laying too far back and then getting bumped in the Kentucky Derby, made no mistakes this time. He kept Native Dancer a few lengths off the pace, made his first move going into the far turn when Dark Star and Tahitian King began to give up the battle, and then led the rest of the way, holding Jamie K on even terms at the finish.

But the fact that Jamie K, a colt who has never distinguished himself in such company and who ran at 16 to 1, was able to make it so close left many wondering how good the Dancer really is. Some thought this winning time, 1:57.45, over a track called fast, but which was dead from rains all week, was something less than a demonstration of greatness. The record is 1:56. It appeared that final judgment would have to await the Belmont Stakes, last of the three big tests for three-year-olds, to be run June 13.

Native Dancer paid $2.40, $2.20 and $2.20, Jamie K paid $4.20 and $2.20, while Royal Bay Gem was $2.20 to show.

A betting record was set on the race, when $696,639 went through the mutual windows. The old mark was left far behind—$494,312 when Faultless won in 1947. Of the total, $546,663 was bet on Native Dancer. There was $185,705 on him to win, $79,832 to place and a whopping $281,576 to show.

The track took a laeing in the $46,012 betting there was a $46.012 minus pool. The state requires 10 cents return on the dollar.

Guerin said Saturday was only the second time he really used his whip on the Dancer. The first was in the Derby.

"I made my bid when Jamie K came up to us at about the eighth pole, but the race went pretty much as we hoped. I didn't worry any part of it."

Native Dancer, whose daddy, Polyneuse, won the Preakness in 1945 to beat the Derby winner, Hoop, Jr., picked up a $85,200 purse and boosted his total winnings to $440,245. That is enough to move him from 26th to 13th among the top money-winning horses of the world. He displaced Seabiscuit with $437,730.

How To Play Par Golf Square, open, closed stances

By JULIUS BOROS
U.S. Open Champion

Three types of stance are commonly used—the square, open and closed.

Each is strongly advocated by many.

The square stance is assumed by placing the feet parallel to the line of flight.

The toes should be slightly pointed outward—to about the same degree as your feet point when walking.

The weight should be distributed evenly between the feet. The ball is played off the left heel.

The open stance is formed by drawing the left foot back slightly from the line of flight. This causes the hips and body to face slightly to the left.

The closed stance is made by drawing the right foot back from the line of flight. This swings the hips and body somewhat to the right. The ball is played more off the left instep. The stance should be comfortable.

I get just the right amount of turn from the square stance and contact the ball squarely. That makes it easier for me to control the ball.

Sam Snead utilizes the closed stance, aims to the right, hits to the left. Jim Turnesa uses the closed stance.

I've experimented with the closed stance, but it makes me hook. It thus becomes a detriment to me unless I want to hook deliberately.

Then I use it to help accomplish a specific purpose.

Jim Ferrier opens his stance a trifle, aims to the left, fades the ball for mleft to right.

To me, the open stance restricts the backswing because the arms are blocked by the body when it is turned. As a result, there is a tendency to produce more of an outside-in arc.

I seldom use an open stance except on short iron shots when I am pitching to the green.

Ben Hogan Wins Colonial National By Five Strokes

Fort Worth, Tex.—(P)—Implacable Ben Hogan, golf mighty stretch-runner, rolled methodically through a three-under-par 67 final round today to win the $25,000 Colonial National invitation golf tournament for the fourth time in seven years. He had a 72-hole total of 282.

Hogan won by five strokes as Doug Ford, of Harrison, N.Y., and Cary Middlecott, of Memphis, Tenn., tied for second with 287.

The fairways' little giant, starting the last 18 holes tied with tiny Jerry Barber of La Canada, Calif., and Hugu Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N.C., at 215, took the lead on the third hole and never was approached the rest of the way. Barber and Heafner faded into the dust that enveloped the windblown 7,035-yard Colonial Golf Club course.

Hogan, winner of every championship his country has to offer, was setting a personal record—had won the same tournament four times for the first time in his illustrious career.

The little man of the links' greatest moments took down $5,000 to make his total for the year — in three PGA approved tournaments—$11,400 and vaulted him into first place among the nation's money-winners. He did this while the other stars were competing in some 20 tournaments.

Middlecott, who wound up with a one-under-par 69, and Ford, who closed out with 70, divided $5,000.

Finishing in a tie for fourth were Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., who had 71 today; Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y., who did 73, and Barber, who ended up with 74. They all had 238.

Heafner, saddest man in the tournament, shot a 76 and ended up in a tie for eighth.

Hogan's 282 tied the highest score that ever had won this tournament—282 by Middlecott in 1951.

Tommy Bolt, of Maplewood, N.J., who created a sensation by throwing clubs all over the place along with an 81 Friday, didn't pitch a single club yesterday and today although scoring 72 and 76 respectively.

But on the last green Bolt missed a short putt and handed his putter to Ed Oliver, of Palm Springs, Calif., and Oliver threw it in a lake. The crowd roared.

Wes Santee Sets New Collegiate Mile Record

Omes, Ia.—(P)—Wes Santee of Kansas set a United States collegiate mile record of 4:18.4 on Saturday, beating the previous record of 4:20.2 set by Ed Oliver, of Palm Springs, Calif., and Oliver threw it in a lake. The crowd roared.

It was four-tenths of a second faster than the old mark set by Glenn Cunningham, also of Kansas, in 1934.

Durrelle-Poulton Bout To Be Held At New Glasgow

Saint John, N.B.—(P)—The Yvon Durrelle-Harry Poulton bout for the Canadian middleweight championship will be held at New Glasgow, N.S., under a ruling given Sunday night by the Canadian Boxing and Wrestling Federation.

Announcement of the decision came from the federal president, Gene LeTourneau, Montreal, who said the application of the New Glasgow promoters will be accepted. Previously Saint John had been sanctioned for the fight.

Durrelle, of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., won the title from George (Rockabye) Ross May 2 and must defend his new crown against Poulton, from Charlottetown, within 60 days from that date. New Glasgow has advertised the bout for June 18.

Yonkers, N.Y.—(P)—Volto Man, owned by the Dagsworthy Farms of Dagsworth, scored a front running victory Saturday in the Hudson Pace, feature of the closing night of the Grand Circuit and Yonkers Raceway spring meeting.

A crowd of 31,503 saw Paul Vineyard come across the wire with Volto Man in 2:02.3, second fastest time of the meeting.

Spartanburg, S.C.—(P)—Henry "Pappy" Gault of Spartanburg retained his North American bantamweight championship Saturday night with a 10-round technical knockout victory over Manny Castro of Mexico City.

The bout had been scheduled for 12 rounds but Castro was groggy when the ninth round ended and was unable to answer the bell starting the 10th. There were no knockdowns.

Chris Cline, Gault's manager, said that negotiations are under way for Gault to meet Jimmy Caruthers of Australia, world bantamweight champ.

Dodgers Tally 12 Runs In Eighth To Smother Phils 16-2; Milwaukee Moves Into Top Spot; Indians Win

Who said Philadelphia's dead town on Sunday? The Brooklyn Dodgers think it's gayer than Paris, louder than Coney Island and wilder than an office Christmas party.

When you score 12 runs in an inning, before a man is out, like the Brooks did Sunday in the eighth at Connie Mack Stadium, no town is dull. The great inning gave the Dodgers a 16-2 victory but still left them in fourth place in the National League race.

Milwaukee split a doubleheader with Chicago Sunday, winning 5-4 and losing 5-2, to keep the half-game margin they took the top spot with Saturday. St. Louis elbowed into second on Gerry Staley's five-hit shutout of Cincinnati 2-0 and New York Giants belted Pittsburgh 11-3.

Johnny Sain's batting and pitching for the Yankee's victory over Boston left the world champs still in the games out front in the American League. Cleveland moved in to second place on their two wins over St. Louis 5-1 and 9-8. Chicago stayed in third place beating Detroit 3-1. Washington topped Philadelphia 6-3.

The big excitement was at Philadelphia where thirteen Dodgers walked or hit before an out was made in the eighth. Twelve runs turned a neat 4-2 game into a tour before five Phil pitchers managed to retire a batter. It took 42 minutes to play the half inning, with 16 Dodgers going to bat.

Triples with the bases loaded by Pee Wee Reese and Carl Furillo did the most damage. Nobody hit a home run. The five Phil pitchers in one inning tied a Major League record. The 12 runs fell short of the modern record of 15 set by the Dodgers against Cincinnati in the first inning of a May 21 game last year. The all-time record is 18 by Chicago in 1883.

Sam Mele's double and Jim Rivera's single knocked in two runs in the ninth for White Sox victory over the Tigers.

Washington bunched all its six hits in the first two innings while Connie Marrero paralled out nine Philadelphia hits along nine innings to cop his fourth.

General Bradley, One Of 9,972 American Golfers To Trim Champ And Pick Up "I Beat Boros" Medal

New York — (P)—A six-year-old, two-armed player among the 9,972 players who beat U.S. Open champion Julius Boros in national golf day rounds Saturday.

A 79-year-old Baltimore veteran, a one-eyed enthusiast and Governor Arthur Langlie of Washington also earned "I Beat Boros" medals in the second annual event sponsored by Life magazine and the Professional Golfers Association.

A total of 103,768 players throughout the United States toured their home courses, with benefit of handicaps, in an effort to outscore Boros, who shot a two-under-par 70 over the Oakmont course, near Pittsburgh.

Oakmont is the scene of the U. S. Open championship, beginning June 9.

The youngest medal winner was Bernie Bender of Orlando, Fla., 6, who shot a 113, took a 45 handicap and wound up with 68.

General Bradley shot an 81-12-89 in Washington. Governor Langlie had a 74-8-66. Among the congressmen who tried but missed were the U. S. amateur champion, Representative Jack Westland of Washington; Les Arends of Illinois and Charles Halleck of Indiana. They played at Burning Tree, President Eisenhower's favorite course. Senator Prescott Bush of Connecticut also missed.

The one-armed player who won medals were Sammy Laine of Detroit, with 77-11-66, and John Cipriani of Buffalo, N.Y., with 78-12-66.

Bishop's College School Wins E. T. Track, Field Meet

Lambert, Drummondville, High Man; Warren Lynch Cracks 2 Records In 11th Y's Men's Interschool Event

Bishop's College School, Lennoxville, Saturday took the Skinner Trophy for the team high aggregate at the E. T. Interschool Track and Field Meet, the 11th annual sponsored by the Y's Men's Club of Sherbrooke, held at the Parade Grounds. B.C.S. thus ended the three-year victory skein of Stanstead College which placed second in the Meet.

B.C.S. racked up 37 in the Open and Senior events, 19 in the Intermediate class, 24 in Junior and 3 in Midget class for a total of 83. Stanstead College came in second with 72 points, 48 in Open and Senior, 18 in Intermediate, 7 in Junior and zero in Midgets, Sherbrooke High School was third with 63½ and Granby High School fourth with 61½.

Other schools ranked as follows: St. Francis College High School, Richmond, 24; Drummondville, 22; Bury High School, 7; Sutton, 6; Windsor Mills, 5; East Angus, 3½; Lennoxville, 3; Cookshire, 2; and Island Brook Intermediate School zero.

The win by B.C.S. marked the fourth in a row for Athletic Director Sam Abbott. He had led Stanstead College to wins in 1950-51-52, prior to being engaged by B.C.S. this term.

Best individual effort of the day was that of Al Lambert of Drummondville High School. Lambert totalled 19 points to win the Meet individual high aggregate of all classes, copping the Sherbrooke General Sports Commission Trophy, and the City of Sherbrooke Athletic Trophy for being high man in the Intermediate Events. Kaye Huet, last year's highman, was very much in evidence against and gained 13 points for Granby.

Brian McGregor of Stanstead College was the winning senior with 15 points and for this was presented with the J. S. Mitchell and Company Trophy. The Junior winner was John Roland of Bishop's College School, who totalled 14 points and was presented with the Inspector J. H. Hunter Memorial Trophy.

High man among the Midgets was Norman Badger of St. Francis College High School, Richmond, with nine points. That won him the Syd Hart Trophy. The Sam Abbott Trophy for the Open mile run was captured by Camille Perron, of Stanstead, one of the boys whom the donor trained. Perron romped home a full 18 seconds ahead of the second man, The Stanstead team also took the Sherbrooke Auto Electric Trophy for the mile relay Open.

Only one point behind McGregor in Senior competition was Sherbrooke High School's Warren Lynch with 14 points. A great favorite with the large crowds all day, Lynch cracked two long-standing individual records, doing the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat and the 220-yarder in 22.9 seconds.

The old record for 100 yards was set way back in 1945 by Earl (Skip) Fidler, who ran it in 10.4, who was one of the starters assisting the Y's Men on Saturday. Lynch cracked two long-standing individual records, doing the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat and the 220-yarder in 22.9 seconds.

Approximately 500 entries were in competition, the largest number in the history of the Meet. Besides the two records by Warren Lynch, only one other marked was bettered, the Mile medley relay by Stanstead College.

Favored Canadiana Beaten In Plate Trial By Blue Scooter; Finishes Fourth; Lively Action Cops Other

Toronto—(P)—What happened to Canadiana?

E. P. Taylor's flashy filly, a 1-10 favorite, stunned 16,000 fans at fashionable Woodbine Park Saturday by finishing fourth to J. R. McIntyre's long shot, Blue Scooter, in the second of two divisions of the $2,500 Queen's Plate trials at six furlongs.

Canadiana's stable-mate, Lively Action—half-brother to Epigram, 1952 winner of the Queen's Plate—scored an upset victory in the first division of the trials, intended as a prep for the 94th running of the Queen's Plate at 1½ miles Coronation Day, June 2.

Blue Scooter paid $23.90, $7.50 and $5.80. Lively Action paid $25.60, $10.30 and $6.60.

Canadiana's defeat brought hope to a number of owners and trainers, awed previously by the stature of the filly, Canada's 1952 "horse of the year," and winner of nine races including a couple of starts in the United States. Last January she was rated third-ranking filly in North America by John B. Campbell, New York handicapper and was 8-5 favorite in the winter books for the Queen's Plate.

Jockey Jose Vina, sad-faced little Cuban, still was disconsolate when interviewed at the track Sunday.

35,000 Attend Outdoor Dog Show At Madison, N. J., As Topflight Template Cops Best-In-Show Award

Madison, N. J. — (AP) — Ch. Topflight Template of Twin Ponds, a Welsh terrier owned by Mrs. Edward P. Walker of Great Neck, N. Y., won the best-in-show award of the 23rd annual Morris and Essex Kennel Club dog show Saturday.

Judge Anton B. Korbel of Belmont, Calif., said the winning dog was "splendid, had a nice coat, showed well" and was "handled admirably by John Goodie."

Topflight Template will be four years old June 5 and now has 10 best-in-show awards to his credit. He was imported from England last year and won four straight shows. He competed against five other group winners selected after day-long judging.

An English setter, Ch. Rock Falls Sky Way, owned, bred and handled by William T. Holt of Richmond, Va., was judged best in sporting groups.

Non-sporting breeds—Ch. Wynstraat's Kerk, a wolf-gray keeshonden 5½ years old, owned by the Wynstraat Kennels in Millbrook, N. Y.

Hounds—Ch. Forever Golden Antonio two-year-old long-haired dachshund, owned by Margaret F. Taylorson of Ross, Calif.

Working breeds, Ch. Craythorn's Domino, a Pembroke Welsh corgi 2½-years-old, owned by Mrs. Donald J. Duncan of Greenwich, Conn.

The wire-haired fox terrier, Ch. Glynhr Grose Lady, who earlier knocked last year's best-in-show winner out of the competition by winning the best-of-breed for wire-haired, failed to place in the group awards.

Grose Lady, a bitch owned by Morris A. Cohn, took the breed honors from last year's titlist, Ch. Wytretex WNS Traveller of Truette, owned by Mrs. Leonard Smith of Saddle River, N.J.

The day-long outdoor dog show, largest of its kind in the world, drew a crowd of about 35,000 to the Giralda Farms estate of Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge.

cluding Lloyd Mangrum.

Al Lopez, the Cleveland manager, is quoted as saying he would bench Ray Boone and use George Strickland regularly at shortstop if he had a hitting catcher to replace Jim Hegan. While Boone hurts the Indians with his fielding he's a far better fielder than Strickland. "With Strickland, Hegan and our pitcher hitting in order," Lopez says, "it means we bat in only six innings to the other club's nine."

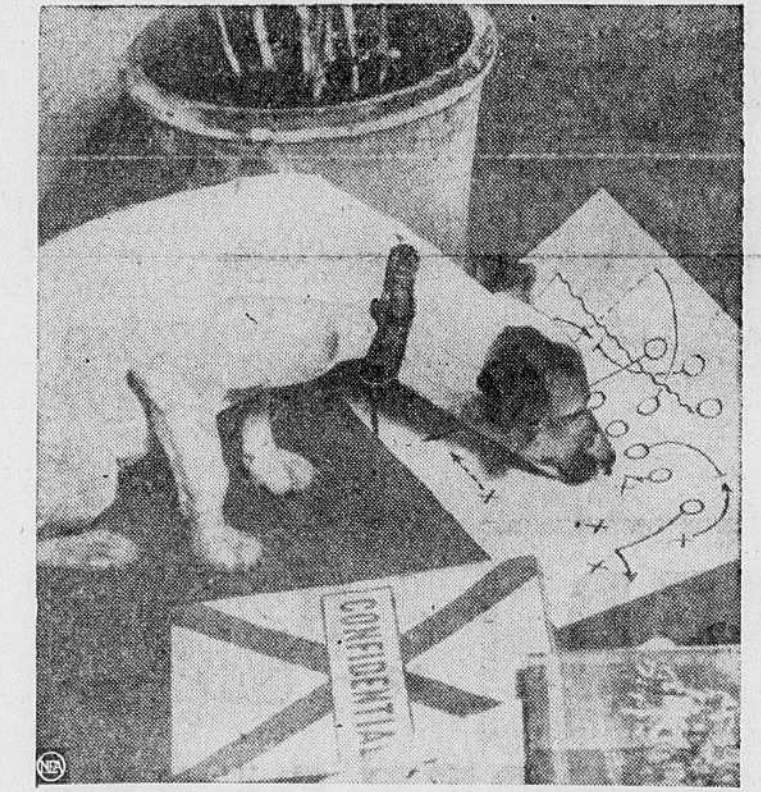

The most intriguing item of the young baseball season, for our money, is the fact that the Phillies played 27 games before one of their number hit a triple. Is that good? Does it mean that Steve O'Neill's athletes are such mighty sluggers that they disdain anything short of a home run, or does it mean that Steven is trying to win a leg with two pitchers and a crew of leadfoots who can't run farther than second?
