TALK OF THE TOWNSHIPS

Illegal to sell sperm? Heck, most of us can't give it away!

A million million spermatozoa
All of them alive
Out of their cataclysm one poor
Noah
Dare hope to survive.

Aldous Huxley.

Life do get complicated, don't it?

The federal parliament is currently considering a bill making it illegal to sell sperm. Shucks! And I was hoping to work my way through university.

In all honesty, most of us have been trying to give the bothersome little wigglers away since puberty. We've spent great sums persuading people to take them — and finding damn few takers at that.

The bill is aimed at getting a choke-hold on the new reproductive technology before it gets too big to handle. Buying, selling or trading in human sperm, eggs or embryos could fetch you 10 years in the slammer and a $500,000 fine. It will remain perfectly legal to give it away for free.

The notion that it's morally reprehensible to sell what it is okay to give for nothing strikes me as an odd ethic for a free enterprise society but there you are. If this world were sane, it would be men riding side-saddle.

It will also become illegal to rent a womb from a surrogate mother, to maintain a human embryo in an artificial womb, to alter an embryo in the Petrie dish so as to affect future generations, to clone human embryos, and to retrieve eggs or embryos from cadavers or fetuses and to create human-animal hybrids. (That puts an end to Mermaids, Minotaurs, Centaurs, Satyrs and Sphinxes).

The bloke who introduced this bill declared it aimed at a safe health system "consistent with Canadian Values." A Toronto fertility physician called the legislation "narrow-minded" and predicted desperate couples and fertility clinics would evade the law by importing eggs and sperm from the U.S. where free enterprise still reigns.

Don't cuckoos operate that way? Won't we risk being consistent with Canadian values by getting shouldered out of the nest by loud-mouthed Americans?

The whole thing strikes me as premature and another indication that elected representatives feel compelled to outlaw something and control something else to justify their election expenses.

You and I would do the same if we were unlucky enough to be sent to Ottawa. We might even come straight out and alter that fundamental concept of individual liberty which says everything is allowed unless expressly forbidden, to read "Everything is forbidden if not specifically allowed."

Then we could issue licences to breathe, temporary permits to look at the sky. Think of the power we'd have. And power is an aphrodisiac!

Canadian actor Henry Czerny is on a mission

By Rob Salem

TORONTO (CP) — "Good afternoon, Mr. Phelps ..."

It seemed oddly familiar, transcribing this interview, listening to Henry Czerny's lush enunciation as the tape slowly unspooled I half expected that, five seconds after he finished talking, it would dissolve, Mission: Impossible-style, in a wispy puff of smoke.

Canadian actor Czerny, who is the new voice of the IMF team in Mission: Impossible, the summer blockbuster movie, says he can relate.

"This film has so profoundly affected me," he deadpans,

"that now I only speak into tape recorders."

What child of the late '60s or early '70s didn't, at one time or another, get together with friends to plan out their own, schoolyard-scale version of a Mission: Impossible TV caper?

"One of the reasons to go for the part was certainly to do that voice," Czerny happily concedes. "As a kid I remember very distinctly standing around with a group of my contemporaries and going 'Your mission, should you decide to accept it . . .' So it was a thrill to be able to do it in a feature film. Kind of kitschy, but fun."

Mission: Impossible is Czerny's second major Hollywood feature, after playing Harrison Ford's evil CIA nemesis in 1994's A Clear And Present Danger.

Mission: Impossible has him rejoining the agency, though this time playing opposite Tom Cruise, and somewhat more sympathetically.

So much so that he felt confident enough to actually visit the real CIA headquarters despite any residual ill will that may have resulted from his earlier portrayal.

"They were actually very kind," he says. "They could have been quite mean to me, and justifiably so, I guess. I didn't portray their organization in a very kind light. But they were terrifically accommodating, because they wanted me to know as much about it as they could tell me, so that when I went to set, I could introduce real elements of it. And I tried, although that's not so easy on a big-budget feature.

Czerny would know, having also filmed a half-dozen or so smaller films since his breakthrough role in The Boys Of St. Vincent. The Interview, for example, is one of no less than three similar-scale Czerny films to be showcased at last year's Toronto Film Festival.

"People bring up Boys Of St. Vincent, and then Clear And Present Danger and Mission: Impossible, but in between them there have been these smaller films that I'm very, very proud of, but probably will not be in theatres for very long. And that's fine. That's as it should be, because they're not made to sell around the world and play in every theatre. They're made for a select group of people, not necessarily better or worse, just a different type."

Mission: Impossible is currently playing in English at Maison du Cinéma and in French at the Carrefour de l'Estrie in Sherbrooke.

Medieval Woman: For sheer entertainment, one of the highlights of the 22nd Bromont International Horse Show was a Medieval Calvacade which rode into the jumper ring at the Bromont Olympic Site last Sunday to kick off the St-Jean-Baptiste celebrations. A parade of more than 40 riders was joined by troubadours, acrobats and foot-soldiers who gave spectators a taste of the medieval way of life.

TALK OF THE TOWNSHIPS

Theatre celebrates 10 years of arts and culture

"Willkommen, bienvenue, welcome."

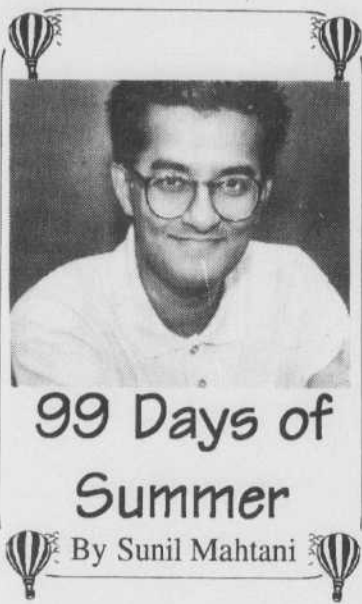

As the Master of Ceremonies saluted patrons to the Kit Kat Club in pre-Nazi Berlin in Cabaret, I could not have hoped for a more pleasing introduction to Theatre Lac Brome than its 1992 production of the musical.

It has always been one of my all-time favorites and the Knowlton theatre's take on it was dazzling. Since then, just as the patrons of the Kit Kat Club adopted that institution as their home, Theatre Lac Brome has been like a home away from home for the thousands who visit it each year.

This year the theatre is celebrating its 10th anniversary, amazing when one considers just how far it's come in such a short span of time.

Since the dynamic Emma Stevens formed Theatre Lac Brome in 1986, presenting shows at the Glen Mountain Ski Resort Lodge and Lakeview Hotel before eventually moving into its permanent home in 1988, it has grown and developed from an eight-week summer theatre with nine weeks of amateur production into a year-round cultural centre with 13 weeks of summertime theatre, five to six special events in the spring and 20 weeks of amateur plays.

It has spawned a number of amateur theatre troupes and helped transform Brome Lake into one of the most culturally diverse and exciting areas of the Townships.

99 Days of Summer

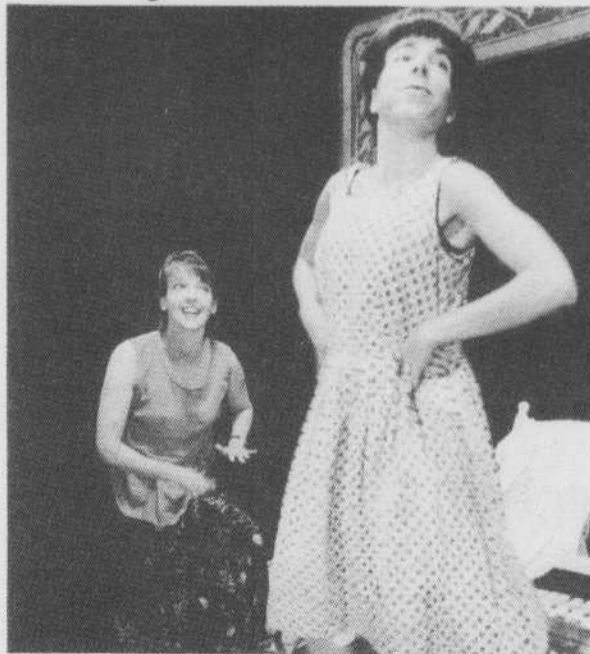

By Sunil Mahtani

There's no question it has made a valuable contribution to English-language culture in the province, but it has also celebrated cultural diversity and reflected Quebec society as a whole through its productions.

The importance of language and depicting Canadian and Québécois culture is now always a high priority as current artistic director Nicholas K. Pynes selects his seasons.

Pynes consistently banks on artistic integrity over commercial concerns — and almost always wins. In fact, Theatre Lac Brome will eliminate its once-massive debt this year. Few theatres can boast balanced books as well as artistry and a loyal audience willing to take chances.

Jane Wheeler and Jocelyne Zucco in Beaux Gestes et Beautiful Deeds (1995).

Bill Rowat in 7 Stories (1992).

Pynes doesn't usually give in to typical summer theatre fare. Even the current Scoops, perhaps the most commercial show he has programmed since 1982's Shirley Valentine, has more to it being as a Canadian play that voices national concerns.

Some journalists wait like vultures for a theatre to falter so they can sweep down and tear a production to shreds. I'm not saying that's never going to happen — I haven't seen Scoops yet! — but due to the unflinching dedication and high ideals of those who work at Theatre Lac Brome, it hasn't happened very often in 10 years.

Sure, Theatre Lac Brome has had a couple of near-misses commercially (Rock & Roll did not entrance many who saw it), but certainly not as many as most theatres in the province.

Like the mysterious man in the bowler hat who is about to step off the ledge of a building in the Canadian play 7 Stories (mounted at the theatre in 1992), Pynes has stepped off the populist ledge, but rather than falling, he has flown — and he takes thousands on his trip each year.

Pynes and Stevens have also displayed a keen knack of selecting the very best among the crop of anglophone actors who've remained in the province.

Thanks to Theatre Lac Brome, we've gotten to know the work of such talents as Jenny Wright, Felicia Schulman, Jane Wheeler, Bruce Dinsmore, Pierre Lenoir, Susan Glover, Ellen Cohen, Robert Burns and the current crop of bright lights, including Neil Kroetsch, Howard Bilerman and Stephen Beaugard.

Of course, none of this could've happened without the loyal support of residents and local business people who have given their time and money to ensure the theatre's continued survival.

Through outstanding professional seasons, dynamic amateur players and inventive special events, Theatre Lac Brome has challenged and entertained all those who've passed through its doors. May it do so for many more years to come.

Here's your Days of Summer list for the following week:

Friday, June 28 — Day 22: Before you head out for a night on the town, have an early barbecue. For a change, try minced turkey instead of beef, and vegetarian dogs instead of the usual. It's healthier and it tastes just as good.

Saturday, June 29 — Day 23: The blues has hit Sherbrooke big-time. Head to downtown Sherbrooke and you can't miss it. It's in the bars, on outdoor stages, everywhere you look, people are swinging to the blues. Free shows include Toronto's Rita Chiarelli outdoors, Townships native Marty Hall at the Contact bar and Sylvie Choquette and the Magic Wandas at Ronnie's. Enjoy.

Sunday, June 30 — Day 24: Take a drive to your favorite park with picnic lunch and spend the day relaxing.

Monday, July 1 — Day 25: Celebrate Canada Day at one of the many parties happening around the Townships, and end it off with a free concert by the Orchestre de chambre de l'Estrie at Sherbrooke's Place de la Cité, behind the courthouse.

Tuesday, July 2 — Day 26: At the library in picturesque North Hatley, see the watercolor exhibits by Gilian Angus C é and Barbara Matthews between 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Wednesday, July 3 — Day 27: Is it time for ice-cream yet? I'm an eternal optimist and if there's one thing that says summer, it's cool ice-cream on a warm day. If weather permits, have a scoop. Frozen yogurt's yummy too.

Thursday, July 4 — Day 28: Call up an American friend and wish them a happy Independence Day, or just phone a friend you haven't spoken to for a while and make plans for the weekend. Remember, take it easy this summer.

99 Days of Summer is a celebration of the season and the upcoming 100th anniversary of The Record as a daily newspaper.

Lari White's 'Wild At Heart' offends some

Lari White made the decision to ask music video stations such as The Nashville Network and Country Music Television to stop airing "Wild At Heart".

The video for her hit "Wild At Heart", released April 24, shows Lari White as a mental patient in a straitjacket, dancing with other residents.

She had intended the video to have the feel of the 1970s film One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest, but the Alliance for the Mentally Ill and other mental health advocates didn't see it that way.

"To willfully harm another human being goes against everything I believe in," White had said in an interview. "I've always believed that the gifts and opportunities that God has given me are meant to be used to encourage others, to lift and inspire them. In that spirit, I spent the last year-and-a-half working on an album project called Don't Fence Me In, based on the human spirit and imagination to overcome obstacles."

She said the "Wild At Heart" video was supposed to depict a powerful desire to break free in a joyful manner and the positive impact that can have on someone's environment.

"Regardless of my intentions, however, I completely

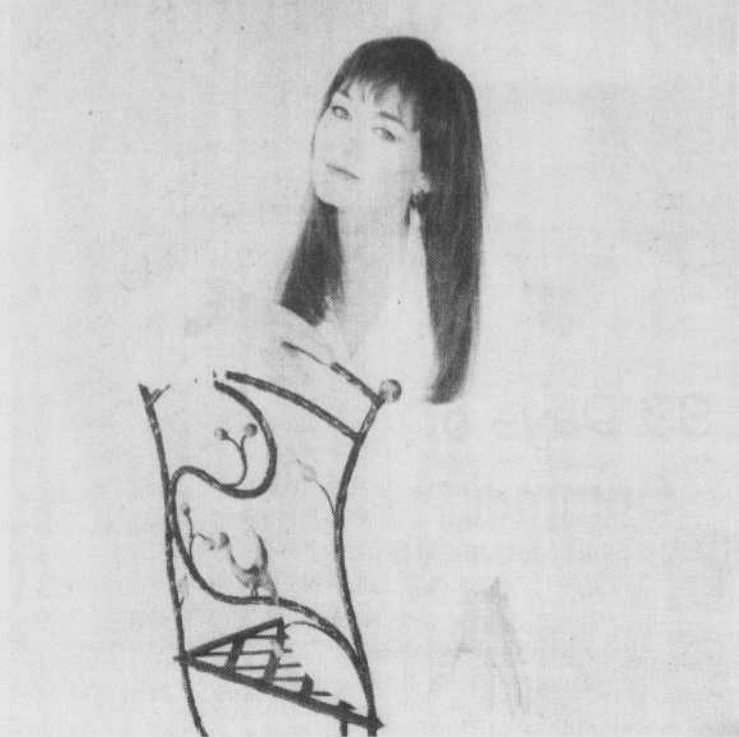

Country Connection

By Jessie Aulis

understand how the video could be seen as helping to reinforce some of the negative images the mental health community is working so hard to overcome," White said. "I therefore offer my sincere apology."

After hearing about this situation and personally not agreeing with it, I decided to ask viewers what they thought. To my satisfaction, more than 50 people I spoke to shared my opinion on the matter. Nobody had seen anything offensive to the mentally ill in this video.

Most people thought it was an extremely good song set to images showing that being wild and having fun was okay for anyone.

At this time, I don't know if the New Country Network had been asked to stop airing the video as well as its American counterparts.

Mother Nature is not always kind to country artists on tour as Tim McGraw found out lately.

A tornado trashed McGraw's equipment barely 15 minutes after the end of his show at The World Fair Park in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Strong winds knocked down several trees and blew the canvas roof of the stage onto buses and trailers parked behind.

"It was scary," McGraw said. "It just seemed to come from nowhere. The bus was really rocking. Thankfully, nobody was hurt."

At the next show, part of the Spontaneous Combustion Tour, McGraw had to perform with the equipment from his opening act, The Thompson Brothers Band.

Things should be back to normal by the time he performs at The Champlain Valley Fair in Essex Junction, Vt. on August 25.

"Independance Day" singer Martina McBride will open for McGraw and mother nature being kind, it should be a wonderful show.

The number to call for ticket reservations is (802) 863-5966.

Garth Brooks is breaking records in every city of his three-year world tour so far. In Montreal, his show at the Molson Center also sold out in a few hours.

But Brooks is not taking the numbers for granted as he said to a reporter that you're only as good as the last piece of product you brought to people.

"If you think your name is going to carry you over trash, you're wrong, because the people have a billion other choices."

One upcoming album is worth paying attention to: the debut by 13-year-old singing sensation LeAnn Rimes.

Rimes was born in Jackson, Mississippi, and currently resides in Garland, Texas, and she has a set of pipes that rivals the power of Patsy Cline.

With her wailing, retro-sounding ballad "Blue" shooting up the charts, chances are good this teenager will make an impact when her MCG/Curb album hits the streets in July.

The song was originally written for diva Cline, who died before she could record it. The song's writer, Dallas disc jockey Bill Mack, held on to it until he met Rimes and decided she had the right voice to sing it.

If the whole album keeps the promises of the first single, the teenager is in for a skyrocketing career.

For those who are hooked on Internet, Country Connection now has its own Web site where you can find lots of country music information. The address is: <http://www.multi-medias.ca/Jessie/>

There's also an e-mail address for those who have comments or information to pass along. It is: jessie\(at\)multi-medias.camulti-medias.ca) (The (at) is the symbol featuring an 'a' inside a circle).

Keep your smile and your country state of mind.

Acoustic John: Hailed as the acoustic show of the Sherbrooke en blues festival, John Hammond takes the stage of the Granada Theatre armed solely with his heartfelt vocals and stinging bottleneck guitar on Friday, June 28, at 9 p.m. The New York musician, who has been playing the blues for more than 30 years across North America, Europe and Japan and has recorded close to three dozen albums, will perform selections from his latest album of covers, Found True Love.

Also playing on Friday night are blues legend Cash McCall and the Chicago Rythm'n Blues Kings, featuring veteran musicians Terry Agolini on saxophone, singer Martin Albritton, Don Tenuta on trumpet, guitarid Dave Mick, bassist Bob Halaj and percussionist William "Kax" Ratliff. Admission is $12. Tickets are on sale at the door and by calling (819) 820-1000.

Born To Be Wild: Toronto blues rocker Rita Chiarelli said she was born with the desire to sing. The Hamilton, Ont., native has made a name for herself in blues circles as a high-energy performer with an exciting three-octave range and a no-holds-barred delivery that simply rocks audiences on their heels. The blues veteran continues her nightly shows at Le Sharky's bar on Wellington St. S. on Friday and Saturday nights at 11 p.m. You can also catch her on the festival's main outdoor stage on Saturday at 9 p.m. Chiarelli will undoubtedly play cuts from her latest album, Just Gettin' Started, which features all originals and one cover, the Elvis Presley hit "Love Me". Sherbrooke en blues continues with free outdoor and indoor shows on two stages and in numerous bars on Wellington St. S. to June 30. Headliners at the Granada Theatre on Friday and Saturday nights can be seen for $12. The Sunday night jam session, also at the Granada, is free.

Comedy about small-town newspaper set in Brome Lake

Scoops set to make locals laugh

By Sunil Mahtani

KNOWLTON — Theatre Lac Brome artistic director Nicholas K. Pynes has been programming plays that reflect Canadian and Quebecois culture for years.

This time, he's gone even further. Scoops, the theatre's 10th anniversary season opener, is a comic play adapted for the Townships.

Written by Dave Carley, it pokes fun at small-town life through the eccentric personalities who work and visit the office of the Kashabog Herald (circulation 1,700).

Set in a small Ontario town, Pynes has re-located it to the Townships, 'somewhere between Bromont and Knowlton'. Peppered with local references, the show should provoke many knowing laughs during its three-week run, through July 8.

'IT'S CANADIAN'

"It's Canadian, it's the Townships," enthused Pynes during rehearsals this week. "It's a funny little play. It reads and plays like a radio drama. It's not a knee-slapper, it's not a farce. There's good world play. People will like it in an amusing way."

It is also perhaps the most commercial play Pynes has programmed at the theatre since Shirley Valentine in 1992.

"Last year, somebody asked me why I was compelled to program culture and why couldn't we just have entertainment," Pynes said wryly.

For a director who prides himself on the artistic, challenging works he presents (remember '93s On The Verge and '92s 7 Stories?), this seems like quite a turnaround. But

RECORD PHOTOS: PERRY BEATON

Pynes said even Scoops is an atypical choice.

"It's not tried and true, nobody's heard of it, and I never would've programmed it if it wasn't a Canadian play," Pynes said, adding it deals with issues Canadians are familiar with.

"We take a dig at the Church, we take a dig at the CBC, we take a dig at government grants, censorship, small-town life, licentiousness — all in a very broad comic way."

It also deals with the nature of news versus filler and advertising, age-old questions all newspapers face.

EMMA STEVENS

Appearing in the first production of the theatre's 10th anniversary season (in actuality its 11th season) is the woman who started it all, Emma Stevens, Theatre Lac Brome's founder and first artistic director.

Stevens plays the realistic assistant to the paper's new idealistic young editor, played by Howard Bilerman.

"She comes from the small town. She's a little eccentric," said Stevens. "She's seen many editors come and go through the Herald and she wants to get rid of this one. So she cooks up a plan."

Bilerman, who last appeared at Theatre Lac Brome in the 1994 production Rock & Roll, said he always enjoys working in Knowlton.

"It's exciting to do theatre here because the community is so supportive," he said. "You go to the store and everyone is talking about the play."

PUBLICITY HOUNDS

Neil Kroetsch, Stephen Beauregard and Anik Matern play are three publicity-seeking hounds who turn up at the newspaper demanding to see the editor.

"The play is funny, it's taking the mickey out of the situation one finds in the play," said Beauregard. "It's a small-town play performed in a small town with tongue firmly planted in cheek."

Beauregard, who plays the town pharmacist, returns to Theatre Lac Brome after seven years, when he starred in Noel Pinchpenny Phantom of the Opera) and if it looks realistic, well it should.

"All the office props are Sonia's, they're from the theatre," said Beauregard. "She works on stage during the day. All the filing cabinets are full of paper and files from the theatre. During rehearsals, when Emma was on stage pulling things out of the cabinets and tearing them up, Nicholas was there yelling, 'Stop!'"

Pynes' strong commitment to telling Canadian stories has been recognized by the Canada Council, which has aided the theatre through funding for the last two years.

Canadian stories are also told in two more plays this season: the drama Desire, by Michel Marc Bouchard — in its English-language world premiere — and the musical play Disputes Of One Kind Or Another, which tells the tale of Donald Morrison, the Megantic Outlaw and was written by Pynes and Edward S. Herkes. Scoops continues at Theatre Lac Brome through July 8. Performances take place from Wednesdays to Saturdays at 8 p.m. with a 2 p.m. matinee on Thursdays. Tickets: $10-$20. To reserve, call (514) 242-2270.

George Michael's Older — and wiser

By Gerard Dee
Special to the Record

GEORGE MICHAEL: Older

The best professional decision that Georgios Kyriacos Panayiotou made was deciding to use George Michael as his stage name. His second best decision was to pursue a solo career, realizing that being half of Wham! wouldn't help him be considered a serious artist.

Michael also made other choices that have profoundly affected his career. His decision to leave Sony was one of them. The other has to do with his art.

After scoring a commercial coup with his debut solo project, Faith, Michael decided to go in a different direction.

He replaced the pop wizardry of that album with a more introspective sound on Listen Without Prejudice Vol. I. Instead of sexy innuendoes like "Father Figure," Michael decided to strike a more melancholy note with songs like "Praying For Time."

His latest album, Older, could easily have been Listen Without Prejudice Vol. II, since it continues Michael's soul searching and exploration of jazzy melodies and sophisticated pop.

Previewed by the single "Jesus To A Child," Older is, for the most part, a collection of slower tracks. But there are some exceptions.

His latest release, "Fast Love," builds on a sample of Patrice Rushen's 1982 hit "Forget Me Nots." The song is an about-face for Michael, who took great care to stress that "I Want Your Sex" was about monogamy. On the contrary, "Fast Love" is about satisfying momentary needs with no strings attached.

Two other uptempo tracks highlight important issues: "Star People" criticizes those who worship the almighty dollar, while "Spin That Wheel" tackles the issue of infidelity in a relationship.

But the bulk of the material here is slower, somber, thoughtful. Most notably, the title track seems to make note that this is Michael's first studio album in six years and yes, time has passed.

But in Michael's case, it's allowed him to become not just older, but wiser.

KE: I Am

The first thing that struck me about Ke was the artist's vocal delivery. His emotive, wavering voice had me checking the album to make sure that this really was a man. But then, that seems to be Ke's whole point: Defying description.

The Record Spins

On his debut album I Am, Ke's sound reminds me of Queen at times, and at others, The Cure or Enya, and then of no one in particular. Ke's music could have been influenced by any of these artists or none because, ultimately, his sound is all his own.

A blend of folk and acoustic pop, all with some dance elements thrown in, Ke goes from the somber "I Think It's Time" to an introspective look at lost love on "Will I Ever Dream" and the haunting "I Don't Want To Go," an energetic song about the struggle for life in the face of AIDS.

Mixed into Ke's musical storytelling are sprinklings of Middle Eastern instrumentation, rousing choral backgrounds and, most strikingly, Ke's vocal range, which varies so much at certain points that you wonder if it's the same artist throughout the album.

This is definitely music for lovers of experimental pop. And this is clearly an artist who's lyrical ambitions are only exceeded by his constantly unexpected vocal style.

KIRK FRANKLIN & THE FAMILY: Whatcha Lookin' 4

The sound of gospel music has become much more contemporary in recent years. The path was paved by the likes of BeBe & CeCe Winans and The Sounds of Blackness, acts that married gospel themes and harmonies with R&B rhythms.

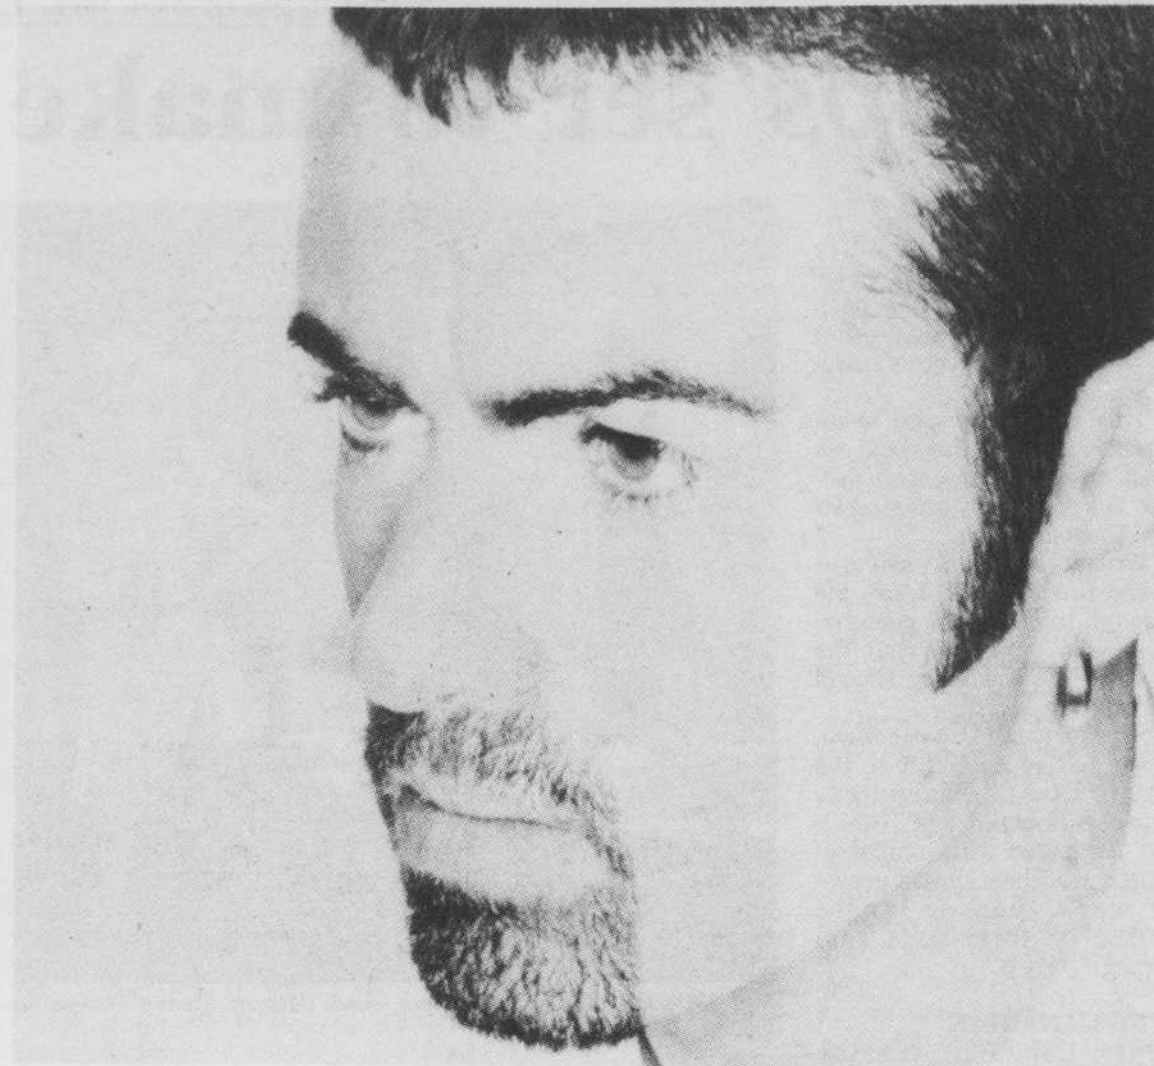

But now even the cornerstone of the gospel industry, the mass choirs, have begun to move closer to an urban sound.

And none have done so more successfully than Kirk Franklin & The Family. When their self-titled debut album went platinum three years ago, it was a revelation: Franklin had achieved mass appeal by making gospel "cool."

Aimed at the younger generation, he led an army of heavenly voices through a combination of standards and original compositions, all submerged in a distinctive urban flavor.

The new album ups the ante, adding more hip hop beats into the mix. Recorded live at the Calvary Temple in Dallas, Whatcha Lookin' 4 captures the real energy of gospel, an energy that can only be truly tapped with active audience participation.

Mind you, Franklin and Co. work for the feedback. Two of the album's most telling cuts, "Melodies From Heaven" and the title track, show the group's diversity.

Available in both original and remix form on the album, the former track grooves on the adult-oriented urban tip, the latter rocks as hard as any hip-hop jam. Both ignite the crowd into a musical fervor.

But as contemporary as their sound is, this isn't subtle gospel: Franklin makes no bones about his spiritual convictions, so this is not for the religiously skittish. Likewise, gospel purists may not be totally comfortable with this choir's modern methods.

But for those who love powerful voices and an equally strong message of hope, give Franklin a listen and find out what all the joyful noise is about.

BROOKS & DUNN: Boderline

I've always thought country music was something like old shoe: Dependable, comfortable and certainly an acquired taste.

It's earned a reputation for dependability by sustaining a loyal fan base despite waves of ever-changing musical tastes. It's a comfortable musical genre: No raging guitars, relentless beats or constantly aggressive lyrics.

Yet despite these qualities, country remains a selective musical choice, having never sustained mainstream popularity for any length of time.

This, despite the fact that artists like Garth Brooks, John Michael Montgomery and, more recently, Shania Twain have achieved mainstream acceptance.

Still, these artists are the exception, which makes the auspicious debut of Brooks & Dunn's Borderline all the more noteworthy. It entered Billboard's album chart at No. 5.

Much of the credit for this feat goes to lead single "My Maria," an instantly infectious tale of reassured love and one of a number of uptempo tracks on the set.

"Mama Don't Get Dressed Up For Nothing," will have the crowd line dancin' to lines like "I'm like money to burn and nothing to lose," and "Red Neck Rhythm & Blues" will easily maintain that momentum.

Not that it's all about a party; no country album would be complete without tracks like "One Heartache At A Time" and "Why Would I Say Goodbye." To their credit, Brooks & Dunn write the kind of music you don't have to be a country fan to enjoy.

So if country is your thing or you're thinking of trying something different, Borderline is the kind of album that won't offend your senses, and it may even soothe your soul.

SWV: New Beginning

When SWV roared onto the scene in 1992 with It's About Time, the only real competition for this female trio was En Vogue. These Sisters With Voices distinguished themselves by countering the glamorous En Vogue image with one of ordinary girls from around the way who could sing.

And the public responded to the concept, not to mention some of the best in-the-pocket grooves since En Vogue. "I'm So Into You" and "Weak" were two of the most played urban jams of the year, propelling the album to double platinum.

Now, a whopping four years later, the girls have decided to do it again. Problem is, there's more quality out there now: Xscape, Brownstone and TLC are three examples of female vocal combos that have paid off in recent years. All of which makes the comeback trail harder for the Sisters.

With New Beginning, SWV attack the sophomore quandary with questionable results. To start, there's nothing here that instantly jumps out like on the first set. Instead, the group has delivered music that's polished, but lacks distinction.

Now there are some jams, most notably lead single "You're The One," which should be boppin' along, both in original and remixed forms, all summer long. And the pop leanings of "It's All About You" are so infectious it screams for radio attention.

But besides a couple of slow jams, especially the exquisite "Fine Time" and the silky smooth "Love Is So Amazing," New Beginning is somewhat listless.

POP CULTURE™ by Steve McGarry

Action figures can be lucrative movie and television merchandising spin-offs. Some 250 million "Star Wars" action figures have been sold to date — over 42 million were sold in 1978 alone. Figures have become collectibles — the original Luke Skywalker figure is worth $325 and a Jawa (with plastic cape intact) is worth $800. A twelve-inch Ernest Borgnine figure from "The Black Hole" is now worth $75. The actor with the most action figures made in his likeness is Leonard Nimoy. (Source: "Premiere" magazine)

Which movie produced action figure likenesses of:

- a) Val Kilmer and Joanne Whalley b) Warren Beatty and Madonna
c) James Spader and Kurt Russell d) Kevin Costner and Christian Slater

Answers: a) "Willow" b) "Dick Tracy" c) "Sargate" d) "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves"

TALK OF THE TOWNSHIPS

100 artists play Place de la Cité series

SHERBROOKE — It was a cool and windy afternoon, but that didn't stop some 100 people from dropping by Place de la Cité to catch the opening concert of its summertime music series.

Québécois folk music group Tuques Rouges was the first act to entertain spectators at the concert space behind the Eva-Sénécal municipal library in downtown Sherbrooke on Tuesday.

The spirited jigs got many in the crowd tapping their toes, and even prompted a usually reserved Jacques Labrecque, of Sherbrooke University's Centre Culturel, to take a turn on the dancefloor (pictured right).

More than 100 artists will perform at the outdoor venue in four separate series.

A potpourri of styles can be heard on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 12:15 p.m., including jazz by Jazzon (July 2), semi-classical by Nancy Roy (July 16) and folk by Louise Corriveau (July 25) every week through August 8.

Monday evening classical concerts begin July 1 with the Orchestre de chambre de l'Estrie at 7 p.m. and closes with the Quatuor à cordes Bourassa on July 29.

On Wednesdays at noon, spectators will enjoy readings of poetry and prose with music and song from July 3 (Guy Ouellet) to July 31 (Anne Dansereau).

Evening concerts under the stars will also be offered on Wednesdays, beginning with the Big Band sound of the Don Ellis Orchestra on July 3 and closing with the classical group Ensemble à vents de Sherbrooke on August 7.

Last year, classical concerts were presented at Stratcona Park.

"Now it's part of the regular program, it gives it more visibility," said Mary O'Keeffe of the Concerts symphoniques de Sherbrooke.

Also new this year is a covered stage to protect the musicians from the elements, and picnic tables on site.

At a news conference earlier, Claude Métras, of the accounting firm Raymond Chabot Martin Paré and a longstanding supporter of arts and culture in the area, received a painting of Dufferin St., created by Pierre Jeanson, for his contribution to Place de la Cité.

Concert schedules are available on-site and at the Sherbrooke University's Centre Culturel.

Fun For All: The third edition of the Sunnymead Picnic will take place on July 6 on the 650-acre Person's farm in West Brome. The community event will feature activities for the entire family with games and rides for both children and their parents enjoyed to a background of local and imported music. Artists scheduled to appear from 2 p.m. to 2 a.m. are Oliver Klaus, featuring Julian and Maurice Singfield (bottom left), Hasty Rattle (right), Appolo's Mystic Caravan, The Flyers, Nocturnal Emissions and Broken Arrow. A percentage of profits from the sale of Oliver Klaus' latest album, Homeless, will be added to the money raised by Sunnymead for homeless youths. Dans La Rue, a Montreal organization led by Father Emmett Johns which distributes food to hundreds of street kids from a van, will be one of the beneficiaries of this year's event. The Townshippers' Association will also be on site organizing children's events and the association's annual "Battle of the Bands" contest for local artists will be staged. The first-place prize is $500, a recording session at Hayfield Productions and an opportunity to play at the Music Festival the following weekend sponsored by Greenland Productions. The second-prize is $300 and a spot at the festival while the third-place band will take home $200. Tickets are $5 for students, $7 for adults and $25 for families and include all day parking and access to all activities and events at the picnic.
