Havelock Fair Sees Interest Maintained in Better Bread Baking and Apple Growing

Mrs. Peter Donnelly and Mrs. James Lang Divide Honors For Principal Bread Baking Contests—Keith Curran Heads List For Superior Apples at Fair

Havelock Fair scored another successful exhibition on Thursday. The day was somewhat overcast but it was warm, thereby making it an ideal day for the fair. Upon entering the grounds one could not help but be impressed with the fact that Havelock Fair was sporting a midway, and of proportions that were amazing. The many side-shows and games made it a lively day for those who had money to spend for such pleasures.

Havelock Fair had commendable exhibits made by 128 exhibitors, but in some departments it appeared as though there might be a slackening off.

The showing of Ayrshire, Holstein and Shorthorn cattle proved to be the major interest to the farmers. The cattle were in excellent form and classes well filled. The prize list tells the story as to who were the exhibitors and who had the best entries.

Horses were to the fore, and many fine heavy and light draft horses as well as drivers were on exhibition. The building of the new horse barn a year ago is being much appreciated by the exhibitors.

Swine have always presented a good show at Havelock and as Mr. James Hunter was judging them again this year he remarked, "Havelock Fair is a leader in its annual showing of swine". "Numbers are maintained and the quality is little short of perfection".

Sheep were like the swine, in that there were many exhibitors and lots of sheep competing in the various classes. The awards were well divided amongst the many exhibitors.

Poultry occupied nearly all the space set apart for this department of the fair. The birds are cooped up in small quarters which tends to make it difficult to view them to best advantage, however we can't have everything perfect at rural country shows and it must again be said the poultry show was very commendable.

As we leave the livestock end of the fair and think of the apples, vegetables, home cooking, domestic manufacture, etc., and the flowers we find something that few small fairs can match. True the vegetable exhibit was not great, but the entries were superior as to quality. It would be very acceptable to the public if the apple exhibit of Havelock Fair were exhibited along with the vegetables so that more light and accessibility would be provided. Were the fruit exhibit placed along with the vegetables we firmly believe the entry would be greatly increased, and the growers making the show, would reap many orders for apples. The fair is for the benefit of the farmers, and if such a move would prove beneficial to the farmer, we are all for such a change.

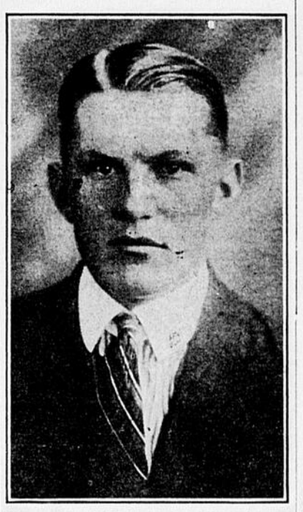

Keith Curran was again the outstanding showman of apples winning amongst his many prizes that of the best box of McIntosh and hamper of Fameuse apples, and the

"What do you find so interesting about me," this little Miss seems to be saying to the Gleaner photographer. She was snapped in the shade of a tree eating popcorn at the Huntingdon Fair. "Mummy and daddy" were away seeing some other sights at the Fair and the little girl was roaming about just having a real good time. But why the Gleaner would be interested in her doings she just couldn't figure out.

MILLS SAVE MONEY ON THE EXCHANGE

Men are busily engaged at the Huntingdon Woollen Mills these days, most of the machinery having arrived now. This machinery was purchased before the high rate of exchange on the American dollar took place. Since the machinery was purchased in the United States this meant the local officials of the Mill did not have to spend this extra money.

Retail Prices of Foodstuffs, Etc., Skyrocket; Housewives Hasten to Lay in Supplies

Rise in Price of Sugar Heralded the Advance in Prices of All Foodstuffs—Present Price Advances May go Back a Little Later, it is Thought

Since the declaration of war on the part of France and Great Britain and latterly of Canada itself retail prices of foodstuffs have been skyrocketing. Within the past two weeks in Huntingdon there have been marked advances in retail prices following the advances in wholesale prices and in accordance with the changes in prices that are taking place all over the country.

The first thing to come into the spotlight was sugar, which took unjustified leaps ahead in price and resulted in housewives swarming to the stores to lay in their supplies. As a result of the heavy demand and as a result of the temporary shortages through the wholesalers holding back their sugar the price jumped. At the present time only ten pounds of sugar to a customer is available in local stores. Sugar is now retailing at 7 cents a pound, an increase of one cent a pound in the last two weeks.

Two weeks ago you could buy potatoes for 65 cents a bag. Today they are retailing at $1.15 a bag and will likely go higher. It is thought that should war conditions continue to prevail that the price of potatoes will show a still further advance in price and be comparatively high by next spring. Farmers, sensing the possible rise in price, are said to be holding onto them and not selling them even though they have been offered good prices.

Butter has been selling at about 30 cents a pound and has shown an increase of approximately seven cents in the past two weeks. Shortening and lard are up about two cents a pound. Wholesalers have been restricting the sale and delivery of lard and shortening and they are difficult to obtain even though it is recognized that there is plenty of each in the country.

Flour which sold at $2.35 a hundred two weeks ago now retails at $3.25 a hundred weight. The price of bread locally has so far not advanced but a local baker stated there was every likelihood that it would be higher in the very near future.

Tea and coffee is up ten cents a pound. In the case of some particular brands it is even higher. Canned goods have advanced about two cents a can. A Huntingdon grocer stated it was most difficult to order more canned goods at the present time and the only canned goods he could get now was what he had booked ahead some time ago.

Coal is up 50 cents a ton plus the American exchange. There are heavy shipments of coal through Huntingdon from the United States these days, the Canadian coal dealers apparently feeling that further advances in the price of coal are coming which will be due, among other things, to the possible still further increase in the American exchange.

A Huntingdon store stated they had difficulty in buying yarns. The price was fluctuating so much that the wholesalers were putting no de-

R.C.M.P. Expect Increased Activities Along the Border

Rise in Price of Canadian Liquor Foreseen as Reason For Increased Smuggling—May Double Border Patrols

The New York State-Quebec Province frontier may be the scene of increased activity in the near future as a result of the increase in the price of legal Canadian liquor.

With the cost of Canadian liquor high as a result of the new Federal tax placed upon it the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are looking forward to more smugglers swinging into action and bringing illicit alcohol into Canada to supply a market. It has been announced by the headquarters of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police that plans have been made to double the border patrols immediately. It may be that patrols in this district as well as all along the line will be strenghtened to take care of this increased operation of smugglers, although the local department of the R.C.M.P. state they have not as yet had any definite word as to any additions to their staff or of any other staff in this district.

The difference in price between the alcohol sold by the Liquor Commission and the cost of the raw alcohol smuggled over the border, or distilled in some of the secret 1,000-gallon a day plants in the city and district, proved a bonanza for years to liquor gangs. When the concentrated attention of the federal police was given to the problem many of the big stills were immediately raided and smashed and the conspirators jailed. Recently a few 200-gallon a day capacity stills have fallen into police hands.

With the sudden increase in price following the new $3 a gallon federal excise tax it was believed that the illicit liquor traffic would prove too much of a temptation for several of the gang which were broken up, and that attempts would be made to re-enter the "business".

Until recently, street prices for "fairly good" illicit alcohol were

Men Enlist In the Army From Here

Official Records Show That Four Have Been Accepted so Far

Whereas it is reported that there have been numerous men from this district who have offered their services in the Canadian Army, there have been as yet only four men who have been duly accepted into the army according to official records kept by the Huntingdon War Veterans' Association. It may be that more than this have been accepted or will be accepted in the near future but as yet only four have been officially recorded. These men are as follows:

Pte. Allan Douglas Taylor, Huntingdon, Que., Reg. No. D. 93533. 9th Field Ambulance. He was born at Brooklyn, N.Y., October 8, 1916. He was accepted for service on Sept. 12, 1939.

Pte. George Evan Watson, Athelstan, Que., Reg. No. A. 6000. Royal Canadian Regiment. He was born at Athelstan on June 28, 1918. He was accepted for service on September 9, 1939.

Pte. George Arthur Hampson, Athelstan, Que., Reg. No. A 6001. Royal Canadian Regiment. He was born at Athelstan on Feb. 27, 1916. He was accepted for service on Sept. 9, 1939.

Pte. Clifford Arthur Roy, Athelstan, Que., Reg. No. A. 6094. Royal Canadian Regiment. He was born at Athelstan, on March 28, 1921. He was accepted for service on Sept. 11, 1939.

A list of all those who are accepted is being kept by the Huntingdon War Veteran's Association and all men who have enlisted or are counting on enlisting are asked to leave their names with the following men: Rev. W. S. Hatcher or Mr. C. M. Oney at Huntingdon; Mr. W. F. Welch at Howick; Dr. W. S. McLaren at Ormstown. In this way only can there be kept a correct list for the district which will be published each week in the Gleaner.

County Council Passes Resolution at Regular Quarterly Meeting on Wednesday—Money to be Paid in December or When Available—Rate of One Mill Imposed on all Taxable Property

At a regular session of the Huntingdon County Council, held on Wednesday, September 13th, a rate of one mill on the dollar was imposed on all taxable assessable property within the limits of the county of Huntingdon to help defray the administration expenses of this corporation during the current year.

Stirrett Cameron came before the board asking this council to notify special officer W. D. Fraser on the Spring Creek, to have the Canadian National Railways clean a section of this Creek along the Railway. After discussion on the subject the council passed a resolution ordering the Canadian National Railways to have the ditch properly cleaned according to the proces verbal governing this water course opposite the property of Hugh Cameron.

The resignation of Thomas Cameron as road officer over north end of the seignory line road was read and filed. The resignation was accepted and Frank Robidoux was appointed to continue the supervision of the full length of this road, from the Montreal-Malone Highway north, to the fifth concession road of St. Stanislas.

Anselme Leger was appointed road officer over that section of the seignory line road from the fifth concession road of St. Stanislas north to the sixth range road of Ste. Barbe.

Annual Calf Club Fairs Are Held

Ormstown and Riverfield Are Scenes of Annual Fairs

In the Howick-Riverfield area a Calf Club of importance to Quebec Province has been operating for seven years. This club has been looked to as the model club and has proved to be an inducement to other communities to organize such clubs under the supervision of the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture.

Mr. Stephane Boily of Ottawa makes his regular appearances amongst the boys and girls who make up the calf club memberships and gives them much encouragement to proceed with their good work. In each area where a club is formed we find a number of livestock men back the boys and girls up and see to it that they have good calves to rear.

On Saturday the Howick-Riverfield Ayrshire Club held its annual fair when 41 excellent Ayrshires paraded before John K. Dickson for judgment. At Ormstown two clubs are functioning, one for Ayrshires and another for Holsteins. The leader for the Ayrshire Club is Mr. Carlyle Dickson, whilst Mr. George Collum is the leader for the Holstein group. At Ormstown their show was made up of 35 head of Ayrshires and 52 Holsteins. Mr. Frank Pewtress judged the Ayrshires whilst Messrs. Fred McGregor and Charles Boyce placed the honors for the Holstein classes.

Following the judging at Howick remarks were made by Mr. Stephane Boily in which he stated the club would continue functioning for a number of years, although it has sometimes been thought the club had run its course and might be disbanded. The decision to have this club maintained is good news, not only to the Calf Club members but for the future welfare of the Chateauguay Valley.

John K. Dickson congratulated the members upon the excellent

Objections Result in N.Y.C. Changing Schedule Again

Time Table Announced Two Weeks Ago is Changed When New Schedule to Come Into Effect Sunday, September 24th, is Posted

The New York Central Railway will on Sunday, September 24, put into effect a train schedule which will be very little different from that in effect last winter. The one exception will be that of No. 20 Southbound. This train will leave Montreal at 7.30 a.m. daily. Last winter it did not leave Montreal until 8.30 a.m.

This is the second announcement of change in schedule within a comparatively short time. Two weeks ago there appeared in the Gleaner the announcement of a change in train schedule which told of a curtailing in the service with, consequently, anything but benefit in the way of mail and other service. It seems that objections were raised all along the line so that it has been decided not to put this curtailed service into effect, but to give the matter further consideration. A check-up will no doubt be made to see whether the public gives more support to the train service going into effect on Sunday, September 24, and depending upon their support will be the final outcome of the decision of the Railway in regard to service.

Following is the schedule which will go into effect on Sunday, Sept. 24:

Northbound: No. 25 leave Huntingdon 6.38 a.m. arrive Montreal, 8.20 a.m. daily except Sunday; No. 5, leave Huntingdon 8.10 a.m. arrive Montreal, 9.50 daily. No. 31 leave Huntingdon 6.49 p.m. arrive Montreal 8.35 p.m. Sunday only. No. 33, leave Huntingdon, 8.14, p.m. arrive Montreal 9.45 daily, execept Sunday.

Southbound: No. 20 leave Montreal 7.30 a.m. arrive Huntingdon 9.14 a.m. daily. No. 30 leave Montreal, 4.25 p.m. arrive Huntingdon 6.05 p.m. daily except Saturday and Sunday. No. 34 leave Montreal, 5.25 p.m. arrive Huntingdon 7.10 p.m. Saturday only. No. 4 leave Montreal, 6.25 p.m. arrive Huntingdon 7.54 p.m. daily.

Health Authorities Wage Successful Fight Against Prevalence of Tuberculosis

Huntingdon-Chateauguay Health Unit Submits Annual Report on Work in Connection With Health of People in This District

The Huntingdon - Chateauguay County Health Unit this week issued its annual report, which will be submitted to Provincial Health authorities and the Provincial Treasurer for approval.

The report of the activities of this Unit shows that the staff working under the direction of Dr. J. A. Patenaude, County Health Officer, of Ste. Martine, has accomplished a great deal in their field. The report is very detailed, and shows in parts that the children of Huntingdon and Chateauguay Counties are in better physical condition than the children of ten years ago.

Dr. J. A. Patenaude's staff includes nurses Melling, Jeanneau and Desgroseilliers and Camille Gagné, inspector. The propaganda work executed by this unit shows that 81 clinics were held during the year, and that more than 7,300 pamphlets on general health were distributed in the many homes in the district. Seven moving pictures were also shown children, mothers and others interested, while 954 interviews with clergymen, doctors, etc., were held. The nurses also visited more than 1,900 homes in hopes of reducing contagious diseases.

In regards to contagious disease, 35 cases were disclosed from July 1, 1938 to July 1, 1939. There were also 362 cases which were tracked down by the health officers. 173 homes were also visited, in which the householders were suspected of suffering from contagious disease. Placards had to be posted on 35 of these homes. The nurses also examined 5,357 cases and 235 children were excluded from schools.

The rate of tubercular disease has not apparently increased during the past year. 17 clinics were held on this subject during the year, and 297 persons examined. 4 new cases were found, with 12 others still suffering from this malady. 106 persons suspected of tuberculosis were visited in their homes by the nurses or the health unit officer. Vaccine and serum were distributed in huge quantities to the doctors of the counties of Huntingdon-Chateauguay. 243,000 units against diphtheria, 152,000 units for the prevention of lockjaw and 262,000 c.c. against scarlet fever were used by

Canada's Vast Resources of Strength, Economic and Financial, Expected to Play Important Part in Aiding Allies—War Budget Taxes the People Uniformly

By Spectator

In a score of ways the Dominion Government is mobilizing the manpower and economic resources of Canada so as to make the most effective contribution to the cause of the democracies.

Given whole-hearted cooperation by the Canadian people, the authorities here are satisfied that Canada can make a greater addition to the strength of Britain and France than any other member of the Commonwealth.

While every Canadian will be called upon to make wartime sacrifices, the potential resources of Canada are so great that the surpluses needed to aid Britain and France can, with efficient and zealous organization, be provided without reducing the standard of living in Canada much below present levels. In this respect Canada is vastly ahead of those countries which have been living "from hand to mouth" with every ounce of potential energy diverted into war preparation.

Vast Reserves of Strength

Canada has a great reserve of strength, economic and financial. This was demonstrated in 1914-18, and her capacity is far greater today than it was then. Her population is nearly 40% higher. There are upwards of 300,000 unemployed persons capable of being absorbed into industry (half of them now on relief). If war demands grow still greater, another 200,000 persons could probably be drafted from occupations which could be neglected somewhat in wartime to more productive occupations.

The efficiency of Canada's productive machine can be rapidly im-

Huntingdon Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society Is Awaiting Instructions

Did Much Valuable Service in the Great War And Hope to do Same this Time—Have Finances To Put Them Into Action

The Huntingdon branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society is awaiting instructions from the Commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross Society for the Province of Quebec in regard to the service of the Huntingdon branch in the present war. The President of the Huntingdon branch, Dr. H. R. Clouston, was in Montreal recently in regard to what service the Huntingdon branch might do and at the present time the local Society is awaiting word before they make a drive for members locally.

AWAITING ORDERS

DR. H. R. CLOUSTON,
President of the Huntingdon branch of the Canadian Red Cross, which organization is awaiting orders from headquarters.

Following is a portion of the letter forwarded by Dr. Clouston to Major D. J. Corrigall, Commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross Society for the Province of Quebec:

"We have had an emergency committee for more than 20 years. This Committee had funds for instant use in any necessity and this has been interpreted fairly broadly. We have made it a rule that no Veteran or his dependents was to suffer unduly for necessities. We have paid rents for months, supplied food on occasion, paid hospital expenses for veterans and their children, paid Sanitarium expenses. We have carried families until they have been able to establish themselves; aided men on the Soldier Settlement plan over the rough spots. We have paid funeral expenses, etc. We contributed $500.00 to European Relief, $500.00 to Japanese Relief; $50.00 for Western Drought Relief. When there was a fire of importance in the neighboring village of St. Stanislas, we provided $100.00. In a case of accident which excited much local sympathy we provided artificial limbs. In short we have tried to do our share in all needs in our community and we have managed to keep the Public and the authorities well disposed towards us. The work has been carried on by the Life Members. The Public was content to allow this in peace time; apparently satisfied by the manner in which the funds were handled.

"At the present time we have the nucleus of an organization; we have suitable accommodation for workers and a substantial reserve fund for the beginning. Workers are enquir-

Are There German Spies Roaming Through The Country?

Are there German spies in this district?

Around the countryside there are many people who view every stranger with suspicion. Every individual who looks like a tramp and who is slinking around the country they regard as a possible German spy.

This sort of suspicion on the part of some people is quite unnecessary, in fact, "It is ridiculous", according to a local ex-service man who claims to have knowledge of the facts in connection with the situation.

He points out that some people think the alleged German spies would be seeking out the location of bridges, or rivers, of houses, of this and of that.

Why would the Germans have men doing this, he pointed out, when it is all so unnecessary. "There would be no use having spies when the Germans have now all the information they could ever hope to have, and scientifically accurate at that," he said. By this he meant the Topographic maps prepared by the Department of Militia and Defense of the Canadian Government. On these maps is all the information any foreign aggressor could ever hope to have of a country. Every little detail is put on them. Thousands of dollars have been spent by the Canadian Government over a period of many years in preparing them. They are done in sections of one county or part of a county at a time and the smallest detail is marked on the maps. For example, every single thing in connection with the following is all plainly marked on the map; roads and the nature of their surface; marshes; cemeteries; houses; hotels; schools; blacksmith shops; churches; railway stations and railroads; quarries; bridges; canals; altitudes; dams; fords over rivers; cliffs; lighthouses; forests.

These maps showing the minutest of details of any county in Canada can be procured from the Department of Militia and Defense of the Canadian Government or from certain stores for the sum of 25 cents. What is there to prevent anyone from securing them and sending them to Germany? Why, then, should they have spies here when all such information can be had, asks the ex-service man? He pointed out that as a matter of fact there is an exchange of such maps between countries and that Germany, for example, no doubt had such a map of the Chateauguay Valley and other parts of Canada right now. Why, then, should they have German spies collecting such information here, he asks. No, he says, it is ridiculous to imagine such. They might have persons to report to them of the feeling or the reaction of the Canadian people to this or to that and where munition plants have been started which might be destroyed, but as to collecting all such little details as to the bridges and railways, etc., throughout the rural countryside that's ridiculous, he states.

In brief, he just doesn't believe in being so suspicious and thinks

Barrie Memorial Hospital

"IT was the very serious situation in the countryside during and after the last war that inspired Miss Barrie to generously provide for a local hospital project," writes Paula Dicks in this week's column of "What's in the Wind." The reference is to the Barrie Memorial Hospital which now nears its final stages of completion.

Continuing, Paula Dicks writes: "Twenty years ago many lives were lost because of lack of medical and nursing care. I know of three mothers who died and another was on the threshold of death. Trucks or ambulances in the country were unknown, but the fourth mother, in a state of high fever for days, was placed on a stretcher that reached across the back of the front seat and the back of an open motor car, taken to the station and removed to a baggage car. She eventually reached a Montreal Hospital and was spared, possibly for the purpose of writing these lines. Who knows? At any rate I am convinced that the hospital treatment saved my life. I appreciate therefore the desperate necessity that now drives the Hospital Board to be prepared in time for our inevitable emergencies."

This is a striking testimonial to the need for such a hospital as the Barrie Memorial Hospital, now nearing its completion. It is only too true that such a hospital as the Barrie Memorial Hospital will be needed more than ever now that Canada is at war. As was the case in the last war, there will be coming a time when there will be a scarcity of medical men in this country with their exodus to Europe. The hospital at Ormstown will be a central one for the district where medical aid might be quickly administered. Good roads which now exist but which did not exist twenty years ago will enable patients to be brought quickly to the hospital where what medical aid there is available will serve.

At the present time furnishings are going into the hospital. There is undoubtedly a need for more despite the fact that there have been many generous donations along this line. You can indirectly do a great service by contributing furnishings to this hospital. Why not plan to do this today?

Future of the Farms

ALTHOUGH the activities of the calf clubs have been mentioned in these columns before, the continued interest the young farmers are showing in the clubs is worthy of still further praise.

As the fairs are being held there is noted an increase in the number of youngsters exhibiting their calves.

These field-days with their flurry of excitement are not just shows. They really mean something in the lives of the people of the rural areas; and for that reason they mean something to the lives of everybody else in the country, for, as it has been previously stated, "If the farmer is doing well, then all other classes of workers will feel prosperity."

The value of the calf club field-days cannot be too highly regarded. It is a sign that the young people of the country are alive to their responsibilities as coming farmers, and that they are willing, and anxious to learn their job. The Chateauguay Valley has become known as the greatest dairying section in the Province of Quebec and one of the greatest in Canada and it is the people on the farms who have made it that. Throughout the autumn, winter and spring months the children of the farms are carefully—even lovingly—caring for calves and other cattle with a view to "showing them" at the fairs. Ayrshires, Holsteins, Jerseys—all have their admirers—farmers who pin their faith in their chosen breed of stock, and really believe in them.

Farming is becoming highly scientific. It is no longer the "sow and trust to luck" life. The farmer plans his work as surely as the architect does. Farming requires training as do all other positions in life. In the calf club fairs the rural young people are serving their apprenticeship to take up the farm work when the older people lay it aside.

No one need worry about the future of farming in the Chateauguay Valley as long as the boys and girls calf clubs are maintaining the high standard of progress and excellence of stock shown, which has been demonstrated throughout the district this year.

The work of the calf clubs is growing rapidly, but what really counts is the fact that young people are realizing the standard demanded by the profession of soil, and are happy in their work.

65th Anniversary of Corn Cob Pipe

DO you remember when corn cob pipes were popular and were considerably more common than they are today? True, you do see the odd one about but they are not as numerous as they once were. Possibly with the heavy tax that is about to be put on tobacco smokers will resort to cheaper tobacco and even take the old corn cob pipe out of the moth balls.

The little village of Washington, Missouri, enters here with a claim to fame in that it was the place where the corn cob pipe was invented.

Harry Tibbe, a scissors grinder, is credited with being the inventor. He hollowed out a cob and twig, joined them and exhibited the result at the Franklin County Fair. It was apparent almost immediately that Tibbe "had something." One farmer after another adopted the idea. The fame of the corn-cob pipe spread until the "Missouri meerschaum" became known from one end of the country to another.

The corn-cob pipe was invented in 1874, just 65 years ago. Its heyday was probably reached during the first decade of the present century when the corncob pipe suddenly became fashionable. From the fields, it spread to the college campuses. Manufacturers devoted themselves to turning out corn-cob pipes of superior quality and appearance. Some went so far as to provide vulcanized rubber and even amber stems. It was a far cry from the glorified article of the early 1900's to the home-made pipe of Harry Tibbe.

Since then the corn-cob pipe, it must be confessed, has lost much of its old popularity. It came into being, the creature of necessity, when brier pipes were expensive and the old-time clay pipe hard to handle. When the time came that a fairly good brier pipe could be bought for very little, the decline of the old corn-cob started.

Let no one think, however, that the corn-cob pipe is a museum piece. Many a man with his rack of expensive English briers will turn to the old blackened corn-cob even to this day when he has a particularly difficult problem to meet or an especially important decision to make. Harry Tibbe may be a forgotten man but the Missouri meerschaum has achieved immortality.

Emergencies and Life Insurance

THE inherent safety of life insurance, and its enviable record in every previous national emergency, are emphasized in the current co-operative advertising of the life insurance companies in Canada.

Notwithstanding war conditions, life insurance will continue to honor all policies in accordance with the terms of the individual contracts. This statement is made on behalf of more than four million policyholders throughout Canada.

It is significant to note the remarkable growth of life insurance in the last 25 years. At the beginning of 1914, life insurance in force totalled $1,168,600,000 whereas at the end of 1919 this amount had almost doubled to well over the two billion mark. Today the insurance in force stands at over six billion dollars.

Similarly, payments to policyholders and beneficiaries showed a substantial increase from $20,900,000 in 1914 to $42,000,000 in the year 1919. Disbursements last year exceeded $150,000,000. During the last war and the influenza epidemic that followed, life insurance continued to meet every policy guarantee promptly and in full. Such a record commands the confidence of every Canadian policyholder.

Life insurance stands out as Canada's greatest co-operative enterprise. It is a true democracy in which millions of thrifty men and women have united for mutual protection.

United States and War

MANY newspapers in the United States, particularly those near the Canadian border, are expressing editorially their fellow-feeling for the Canadian people now at war. One example is to be found in the following editorial, in part, in the Potsdam Courier-Freeman:

"This action on the part of our close and friendly neighbor, whose people for the most part are so akin to ourselves, brings the war more closely home to us than ever. We have all listened to the broadcasts from abroad, we have read whole pages in our newspapers of the progress of the struggle to date, we have read the proclamations of our own President bearing on the status of our nation, but when a country so near at hand actually makes a formal declaration of war on Germany, we cannot but realize more than at any time since the outbreak of hostilities that another dread war is actually here and our very neighbors now are parties. It is idle for us to express our sympathies to Canada and its people for all this declaration means and will mean to them. That sentiment, whether expressed or unexpressed, is deep-rooted and sincere. We know they are doing their full duty as a part of the kingdom to which they have belonged for so many years. We admire them for their loyalty which never yet has been found wanting."

Although these words are very much appreciated by the Canadian people it is to be hoped that the words will be followed with action. It has been said that no person can live unto himself. In the same way, no nation can live unto itself. Inextricably bound up with other nations in many ways there is an interdependency that will undoubtedly virtually force the United States into the war later on, even for her own gain if for nothing else. True, it is much better to remain out of the war if possible, but as time passes it would seem to appear more and more that it will be necessary for the United States to throw her hat in the ring.

Eye on Canada

NO doubt an attack of some sort against Canada has been considered in the general German strategy.

That is evident by the anger voiced in Berlin at President Roosevelt's assertion that Canada and all other countries in the Western Hemisphere would be guarded against German, or any other aggression. Nazi spokesmen popped off angrily when they learned the news of Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that Washington is not going to tolerate unfriendly neighbors.

In addition there is the report of German submarines being sighted off the Maritimes. Some of these have been in the Bay of Fundy and others have been in the Atlantic off Halifax.

As a matter of pepping up the morale of the German people at home, Berlin would like to report that a Nazi submarine had shelled a Canadian city, or that German airplanes had bombed Canada.

With long distance airplanes able to get far away from home, and with under-sea vessels on the prowl in many places, it might be possible for a German adventurer to fire a few shots or drop a few bombs in the vicinity of some Canadian centre.

That is why the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Canadian Navy were right on the job before the war was commenced officially. They were guarding against surprise attacks. The Canadian General Staff had been working long hours to be ready.

The Nazis must have been figuring on some raiding in the direction of Canada. When Mr. Roosevelt reminded Germany that the United States would protect all North American countries from aggression, it made the Nazis mad no end.

CANADIAN BLUEBERRIES

Under the Canada-United States Trade Agreement the Customs duty on fresh blueberries imported from Canada into the United States is one cent per pound. The demand for fresh berries on the New York wholesale market has been good this year and the first arrivals from Canada were from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. The market conditions for Canadian blueberries is good and, owing to the brisk demand, and the short crops in Massachusetts and Maine, it is not considered likely that the Canadian shipments will depress the market, but maintain comparatively high prices.

AWARDED DEGREE PH.D.

The degree of Ph.D.—Doctor of Philosophy—has been conferred upon Michael Timonin, of the Division of Bacteriology and Dairy Research, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, by Rutgerrs University, New Brunswick, New Jersey, U.S.A.

Dr. Michael Timonin was born in 1900 at Nouvouzensk, Russia. He came to Canada in 1925 and worked his way through the University of Manitoba, receiving the degree of B.S.A. in 1932. In 1934 he received his Master of Science Degree from his Alma Mater. In 1936 he joined the Division of Botany, Dominion Department of Agriculture, as a Student Assistant and in 1937 was transferred to the Division of Bacteriology. During the past two years he has been taking post-graduate work at Rutgerrs University.

Dr. Timonin has been doing research work on the inter-action of higher plants and soil micro-organisms. The effect of bacteria and other soil organisms on the growth of plants is becoming of increasing importance, and his knowledge of the Russian literature on this subject, together with his ability as a research worker, makes him particularly valuable to Canadian Agriculture.

REHABILITATION OF FARMS

There are three main activities in connection with the work of Prairie Farm Rehabilitation: cultural work, land utilization, and water conservation. Cultural work, directed principally by the Dominion Experimental Farms, deals with the control and prevention of soil drifting and sound farm practices suited to the draught area. Land utilization has to do with resettlement based upon a soil survey. One of the principal features of land utilization has been the establishment of community pastures on sub-marginal lands. Water conservation or development includes large and small irrigation projects and stock-watering dams and dugouts for retaining the spring run-off snow on farms.

LIKE CANADIAN APPLES

In recent years the United Kingdon has imported increasingly larger quantities of Canada solid-pack apples in gallon containers. Gallon apples, states the Canadian Trade Commissioners in the United Kingdom, are now a much-favoured product with the baking, confectionery, and restaurant trades in Great Britain. Due to their convenience and cheapness, the demand is likely to increase, although this development will be influenced, as hitherto, by conditions in the local fresh apple market from year to year, as well as by the prices quoted for the canned product. Retail sales to the consuming public are of minor importance. The bulk of the Canadian shipments to this market is comprised of standard grade solid-pack apples from Nova Scotia and to a small extent from Ontario.

CHURCH TOO NOISY

Churchless in the 26 years since its incorporation, San Marino, Calif., will decide next month whether to permit erection of houses of worship. Tucked away between Los Angeles and Pasadena, San Marino is noted for its fine homes and the great Huntington Library and Art Museum. Its 5,000 residents point out that while it had no churches, it likewise has no theatres, no beer parlors or cocktail lounges and only two or three cafes. Several months ago one of the latter received permission to sell beer and wine. Such a wave of opposition was aroused that the license has not yet been used. This month two denominations, Catholic and Episcopal, sought the city council's permission to build. Scores of residents protested. Councilman Carlton B. Tibbetts said he was against "establishing precedent" by voting approval. "People objected that churches mean singing and noise and parking difficulties," said Councilman H. Stanley Bent.

CANADIAN FUR FARMS

According to the report on the fur farms of Canada for 1937 just issued, the number of fur farms recorded in Canada during that year was 9,179, an increase over the preceding year of 1,037, or 13 per cent. Included in the total are 7,601 fox farms, 1,426 mink farms, and 152 farms whose classifications comprise marten, fisher, racoon and other species. Compared with 1936, fox farms in 1937 showed an increase of 544, or 8 per cent; mink farms, an increase of 514, or 56 per cent, an increase of 514, or 56 per cent, and farms, other than fox or mink, a decrease of 21, or 12 per cent. The report, in French and English, covers 57 pages and may be obtained from the King's Printer at 25 cents a copy.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

MALICIOUS SLANDER OF INNOCENT PEOPLE SHOULD BE STOPPED

(Fort Erie Times-Review)

On another page we have deemed it necessary to protect the good name of certain foreign citizens whose patriotism and loyalty have been questioned by irresponsible scandalmongers. In a British country every citizen who plays fair with his country is entitled to fair play, and for that reason The Times-Review feels compelled to take up the cause of these foreign-born citizens whose names have been dragged through the mire of idle gossip.

It is unfortunate that such matters should have to be dealt with by the local newspaper. Any person with a sense of community responsibility would refrain from either starting false stories or carrying them on through the community unless there is definite proof. This is not the first time that such stories have started in Fort Erie. Many a good citizen has had to stand and face this type of lying propaganda, which, more often than not starts with some little story with perhaps an element of truth, and which, in its travels, is distorted beyond all recognition.

Any citizen of Canada has a right to expect freedom from idle gossip. It would be well for all of us, before we pass on to others the stories we hear, to first make quite sure that what we have heard is true. Many a home and many a business has been ruined because people have been altogether too ready to pass on the rumors that have their origin with people who have nothing better to do than mind some one else's business when they should be minding their own.

GOVERNMENT TAKES CONTROL

The Government is completing new official organizations for the purpose of advancing its war policy. It has set up a Foreign Exchange Control Board which, chiefly through the agency of the Bank of Canada, will control and regulate foreign exchange transactions, more particularly to eliminate speculation abroad with Canadian money and to facilitate the export of war supplies. Coupled with the announcement of this board's establishment, comes the official assurance that there will be no interference with legitimate commercial transactions, an assurance which appears to be timely and proper, even necessary. An order-in-council has also been passed for the creation of a war supply board which will replace the Defence Purchasing Board and will be replaced in turn by the projected Ministry of Munitions and Supply. As to the latter, the Government appears to be in no hurry but is inclined to rely upon the supply board for which provision is now being made, leaving the establishment of a munitions ministry for some time later. The board will consist of from two to five members who will give all their time to the business assigned to them except in special instances when the Government may require their services in other directions.

It is to be this board's duty to study Canadian war resources, to organize them, and this is to apply not only to undeveloped supplies but to the agencies available for the production of munitions and other war materials. The powers are to be very broad, including the letting of contracts for all equipment of National Defence, to control or supervise, and, if deemed expedient, to purchase directly, war supplies for any of the allied governments. The regulations applicable to the letting of contracts will be similar to those which have governed the activities of the War Purchasing Commission during the last war. The preliminary work of organizing the new board is in the hands of Gordon W. Scott, C.A., Montreal, and Watson Sellar, comptroller of the Treasury, both capable and experienced men who are serving in this capacity without remuneration.

Business throughout Canada will wait anxiously for an announcement of the personnel of this new board. The success or failure of Canada's industrial war effort will depend not more upon the methods pursued than upon the men who are to assume the tremendous responsibility of directing the actual business of production. The Government, therefore, cannot be too careful in its selections. The wrong men in this important office can do infinite harm, not to Canada only but to Britain and France as well, and to the cause for which the Allies are fighting, a cause which must not be lost. Men of proven business experience and sagacity are needed, men who will have constantly before them the object which is to be achieved and will be least concerned with the niceties of departmental administration, men who will put first things first and will give little or no consideration to things that are secondary. Regulations and formalities are right enough in their place but the members of this board must be big enough to recognize limits beyond which these formalities and regulations are to be honored rather in the spirit than in the letter, and those limits will be reached at the point where red tape threatens to impede production—(Montreal Gazette).

IS WAR A JOKE TO C.B.C.?

(The Financial Post)

Incredible stupidity has been shown by Canada's state-owned broadcasting system in the handling of some of the tragic developments of Canada's entry into the war.

On Sunday morning, for example, every one from coast to coast was tensely expectant, waiting for the word that His Majesty had approved the proclamation declaring that Canada was at war.

No sense of sober gravity of the moment seized the C.B.C. Raucous swing band music continued. Suddenly—we were listening to C.B.C's key Ontario station, CBL—the music stopped. The blare of the clarinets and saxophones was stilled while the news was announced that Canada has formally declared war. And then without a second's silence came the announcer's voice: "Molten mellow tones poured into a mould to jell—and then to jam," while the Government radio swung back into the utterly inappropriate Broadway dance song, "I poured my heart into a song."

A week before, the contrast between the handling of the King's speech by C.B.C. and the American chains was very marked. C.B.C. presented His Majesty's message. There was an awkward pause and then someone put a nondescript record on the turntable and C.B.C. went on with its routine job of filling in the day with semi-classical music. Canadians who listened to the King's speech over one of the American chains heard the strains of "God Save the King" following His Majesty's address. Those who listened to it over another of the American chains heard Elgar's familiar "Land of Hope and Glory."

A mighty challenge is presented to radio in war time. It must do its part to unite and inspire the nation.

C.B.C. has been slow to find itself in war time. It has given an excellent service of the news supplied to it by the Canadian Press and has avoided offensive commentaries and uninformed commentaries on the war. But on a few key occasions it has bungled its job badly.

Staying out late in the streets and cafes of Senta, a frontier town in Jugoslavia will mean a fine. It is a scheme for raising municipal funds.

MINIMIZE AWKWARDNESS

There'll be no hint of "an awkward age" about the looks of a school-girl who wears this well-designed little dress (8474). The flared skirt, the puffed sleeves and the high neckline, finished with a little tailored collar, minimize any tendency to thinness that fast-growing young ladies have to contend with. And that pointed basque waistline has a slim, grown-up look that they will love.

Practical for summer daytimes and also to start school on the first Fall days, this dress will be pretty in plaid gingham, plain-colored linen or gay percale prints, with the little collar in crisp, fresh white, set off by a small bow!

Pattern 8524 — The very newest fashion is here worked out in a design that makes it exciting but not too extreme, in your favorite two-piece style.

The bustle effect, latest craze of Paris, is achieved by means of an impudent bow, drawing in the fitted blouse to even more flattering slimness.

The skirt has the very smart back fullness, adding to the Victorian charm that is a definite characteristic of this 1890 revival. A frilled round collar or a collarless neckline either way is flattering.

Such materials as faille, moire thin wool and flat crepe are in keeping with the bustle effect, because they were smart when bustles first came in.

Big Guns.—

Mr. is a title of respect required by the mediocre man and sometimes applied to the great while they are still in the company of their more ordinary fellows. But once assigned their proper place by posterity, they outrank the Misters. If Shakespeare or Washington were with us we would probably doubt their claim to much more than the common civility of Mr., but now we think of them as Lincoln's Secretary of War Stanton felt when, watching at the murdered President's deathbed, he noticed that he had breathed his last and said: "Now he belongs to the ages." No English sovereign has more favourably impressed the American nation than our Victoria the Great when, sinking official majesty in womanly sympathy, she addressed a message of condolence to Mrs. Lincoln "as a widow to a widow." Of Lincoln it has been said that he faced the difficulties and terrors of his high office with that same mind with which he paid his way as a poor man or navigated a boat in rapids or in floods. In accepting nomination for a second term he recalled the story of the old Dutch farmer who said that it was not best to swap horses when crossing a stream. The Civil War was still going on, and it was no time for a change, as now in our own country it is felt that both Prime Minister and Viceroy should continue in office.

The present war in Europe bears some resemblance to the American Civil War in respect of motives. The South fought for a material interest, to keep their wealth in slaves and to propagate slavery in new states; the North fought for national honour by maintaining the Union, and for humanitarian principle against slavery. Today England and France fight for the oppressed, while Hitler spreads oppression in new territory. Mr. Hitler seems to be gifted with a species of psychic and political ventriloquism, as it were. There he was acknowledging from the bottom of his shallow heart the benevolent offers to arbitrate made by the Dutch Queen and Belgian King; and again there he was making a feint at reasonable gestures to Chamberlain; and all at once you found him on the march to bomb Poland. Those reciprocal tones were only voice-throwing stunts: the groans of the dying and the wails of mothers in his war-path were the authentic voices of the hour.

Historians of the Civil War tell us that "no previous war has ever in the same time entailed upon the combatants such enormous sacrifices of life and wealth." The Southern armies were pitted against vastly superior numbers, the Northern forces were confronted with great obstacles in the matter of locality and position. Both sides had to resort to conscription before the war was won. By then, the white Northerners in arms probably stood to the population in as high a proportion as 1 to 25. In the World War after the first 15 months and before conscription, the soldiers drawn from the United Kingdom amounted to 1 in 17.

In the South liability to serve was finally extended to all between 17 and 50. In the North, a volunteer received a bounty from the Government, while the conscript received none. With a scattered country population and disorganized new towns, there were abuses. Ingenious rascals, we read, invented the trade of "bounty-jumping," enlisting and deserting over and over again.

Drafts of conscripts were chosen by lot, but they were allowed to provide substitutes, if they could. Substitute brokers came into being and $300, or £60, was the price set by a provision of the law. Some Canadians living near the States did not hestitate to give their sons as substitutes for the sake of the bounty. Perhaps their hearts had hardened somewhat in their own fight on stony farms. In December, 1864, towards the end of the war, out of 211,752 men brought up to the colours, 194,715 were volunteers, 10,192 were substitutes, and only 6,845 were actually conscripts. The only serious trouble that occurred in enforcing the Conscription Act was in New York city. A mob of foreign immigrants set fire to houses and prevented the fire brigade from saving them. It chased negroes, beating some to death, and stringing up others to trees and lamp-posts and burning them as they hung. It burned down an orphanage for coloured children after the police had with difficulty saved the helpless inmates. Four days of rioting prevailed before fresh troops quelled the disturbance.

At one time 100,000 coloured men were with the Northern army, fighting or labouring, and a coloured bodyguard attended Lincoln's second Inauguration.

OUR FRIENDS, THE ENEMIES!

Canada is now officially at war with Germany. Where, when and how such is to be conducted is a carefully guarded secret.

Minority factions supported by powerful politicians declare "no conscription".

If "newsprint hostilities" continue Canada should encounter no great difficulty in supplying munitions.

But once again machine guns are bellowing and bullets flying on the Western Front.

Over the door of the British Broadcasting Corporation is carved this motto:

"Nations shall speak peace unto nations." Now Radio speaks of war on every wave length. Battle cries fill the air.

The terror and description ravaging Poland is described in a restrained yet deeply ominous manner in the New York Times. One observer states that the average resident of Warsaw did not realize that the city lay before a sweep more crushing than the German drive through Belgium in 1914.

Trophies taken from Polish prisoners such as sanitary kits, seemed of very primitive design.

No gas masks are available. Residential sections in Warsaw and other cities are bombed regularly. Children, women and invalids are deliberately murdered by use of bombs. When German troops come along to mop up, civilians are rounded up and shot, charged with sniping at soldiers from windows and barricades. Polish rifles taken are long outdated and some bullets corroded.

In contrast the highly mechanized German army advances in the full enjoyment of such civilized amenities as staff photographers, movie cameramen, newsmen. In camp barracks, even at the front, "news" is regularly broadcast to soldiers. Out along the front lines a loudspeaker on wheels brings the latest broadcasts.

Newsprint Indispensable!

The old propaganda machine works overtime at the front. Various army groups publish a daily four page newspaper in editions of 25,000. The paper is distributed along a fifty mile front after rolling off the press at 2 a.m. Talkies on wheels get as near the front as possible.

In retreating, the Poles destroy roads and bridges. But this is anticipated by the efficient Germans, who are accompanied with trucks loaded with bridge sections ready to be bolted together and thrown over a river. On very bad sections of road they lay down metal strips. Heavy trucks and tractors even take to the fields.

It is reported by an American correspondent with the German army that 12 of the 20 planes flown by the British over Germany in leaflet raids on Sept. 5th, were lost and that half the attacking planes were shot down at Cuxhaven and Wilhelmshaven. That Germans claim complete mastery of the Polish and German air.

...German soldiers admit to the correspondents that Polish soldiers fight with desperate courage...

...The German ex-Kaiser, now 80 years old, is said to remain hunched over a radio at Doorn.

...In Germany only sets that tune into domestic broadcasts are allowed. Even the cheapest radio is taxed $9.89 a year. The more expensive, the higher taxed.

In England a National Registration Bill has been enacted involving man power and control of employment to prevent shortage of labor in essential industries. Workers are prohibited from changing employment without the consent of Minister of Labor.

It has been announced that a shortage of butter and bacon may be expected.

In Canada let us insist that the Government make some arrangement for efficient farm help so that butter and bacon may continue to be produced.

The sugar situation seems to need more explaining than it gets. Even in the U.S. there was a run on sugar. Wholesalers state that the price is now stabilized at $5.75 to $5.80 per 100 lbs. and there is no likelihood of shortage.

In Malone last Saturday Canadian money got varied receptions. At a Picture Theatre they asked two cents on a dime and three cents on a quarter. Some stores asked a cent on a dime and others took it gratefully at par, among these a restaurant and a gas station.

In Montreal on Monday some stores admitted that a buying boom was on, anticipating higher prices after the budget. One furniture dealer said that on Saturday they did $12,000 worth of business. The same date last year brought in only $3,000.

In our own community, the Barrie Memorial Hospital is rapidly nearing a point when the furnishing will be the greatest problem. While many have already given generously, this is certainly one undertaking that is now more than ever a necessity. It was the very serious situation in the countryside during and after the last war that inspired Miss Barrie to generously provide for a local hospital project. Twenty years ago many lives were lost because of lack of medical and nursing care. I know of three young mothers who died and another was on the threshold of death. Trucks or ambulances in the country were unknown, but the fourth mother, in a state of high fever for days, was placed on a stretcher that reached across the back of the front seat and the back of an open motor car, taken to the station and removed to the baggage car. She eventually reached a Montreal hospital and was spared, possibly for the purpose of writing these lines. Who knows?

At any rate, I am convinced that the hospital treatment saved my life. I appreciate therefore the desperate necessity that now drives the Hospital Board to be prepared in time for our inevitable emergencies.

The Huntingdon Women's Institute are collecting a fund with which to supply the surgical and other equipment for the maternity ward. Voluntary contributions will be most acceptable and it is hoped that those who are canvassed personally will not be lacking in generosity. Such articles as feather pillows, jam, jelly, pickles, etc. will also be welcomed. Mrs. John Ross, Athelstan and Mrs. Lawrence Brown, Huntingdon, are the Committee in charge of this fund.

Facts of Interest to Movie Fans

VICTOR FLEMING

Victor Fleming was born in Pasadena, a stone's throw away from Hollywood on February 23. He became a cameraman, satisfying the adventurous urge that has driven him since he can remember. Motion pictures were gaining a foothold in California, attracted by the sunshine. In 1910 Fleming went to Santa Barbara and landed a job as photographer with the old American studios.

Fleming enlisted in the World War, was made a lieutenant in the United States Signal Corps. He did meritorious work for the Intelligence Department and after the war went to Europe again, this time as chief cameraman on the Wilson peace mission.

In 1919 he was back in Hollywood, determined to make a name as director. He directed the "Virginian" which was the first exterior sound picture. It also marked the first time the famous association of Producer Louis D. Lighton and Fleming was established.

He decided to give up this adventure-on-film business and follow his own inclinations in seeking adventure for himself. He hunted big-game in Africa in 1931 and 1935, traveled in India, Egypt and China. He spent five months in Africa, shooting elephants and rhinoceros with rifle and camera.

Married and father of two young daughters, the second of whom was born on the day "Captain Courageous" completed its shooting schedule.

An experienced and enthusiastic flyer, he recently bought a new cabin plane, influenced by his work on "Test Pilot." While working on "Captains Courageous," he purchased a yacht.

HOW TO RAISE A HAT

The maxim-maker tells us that "A hat raised half-heartedly is a courtesy without charm."

Since hat-raising is a gesture of courtesy, why not make it courteous? Profound and elaborate bows are not in good taste and not desirable, but a nod of the head and a cordial smile should certainly accompany the little polite act of raising the hat. The custom of touching the hat, instead of lifting it, is unmannerly and lazy. The hat should be lifted from the head, even if one is greeting another man, and the nod and smile should carry the thought, "There is Mr. So-and-so! How glad I am to see him!"

The high hat or the derby is lifted by holding the brim directly in front, lifting it high enough to escape the head easily and bringing it forward a few inches. A soft hat may be taken by the crown instead of of the brim, lifted slightly from the head and put on again. While lifting the hat the head should be inclined slightly.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

People Take Advantage of National Housing Act Loans

National Housing Act loans again well above the $2,000,000 mark are shown in the monthly report of operations for August released recently by the Honourable J. L. Ralston, Minister of Finance. Loans approved during the month aggregated $2,183,631 against $1,031,404 in August last year, an increase of 112%. Approvals have now exceeded $2,000,000 in each of the past four months, the figures for May, June and July being $2,426,491; $2,196,825; and $2,771,501 respectively.

During August 574 individual loan applications were given approval by the Housing Administration. Seven of these loans were to finance multiple family houses, nine to finance two-family houses, 558 to finance single-family houses, providing in all housing accommodation for 683 families. In the same month last year the number of family housing units financed was 254.

The average loan per unit for August works out to $3,197. More significant, however, in appraising the contribution of this legislation to low-cost housing in Canada is the fact that 451 of the 683 units or 66% were actually financed by loans falling below the average figure; 430 or 63% of the units were financed by loans not exceeding $3,000, and nearly two-fifths (265 units) were financed by loans of $2,500 or less.

While the number of units financed in August dropped moderately from the high peak of 866 units in July in line with the normal seasonal trend, the number of 90% loans (maximum $2,250) continued to advance, reaching 151 for the month against 136 in July. These loans are available only where the house is valued at $2,500 or less, and is being built for an owner who will occupy it upon completion. Since the original investment is low and the monthly instalment (approximately $14.71 plus taxes) is within reach of families with very modest incomes the trend of operations in this direction is highly satisfactory.

Loans were made in 14 new communities during August in which, prior to this time, no loans had been made. The facilities have now been made available in 366 cities, towns and villages.

The aggregate of National Housing Act loans approved in the twelve month period ending August 31, 1939, stands at $19,423,662. To the same date total loans approved under the National Housing Act and its predecessor the Dominion Housing Act exceed $41,600,000, divided according to provinces as follows:

Province	Units	Amount
Prince Edward I.	16	$ 87,434
Nova Scotia	535	2,227,860
New Brunswick	163	660,357
Quebec	2,516	10,254,665
Ontario	5,771	20,462,596
Manitoba	505	1,924,886
Saskatchewan	103	246,222

British Columbia	1,802	5,746,701

RECORDS SHOULD BE KEPT ON FARM

Successful farm management requires keeping and using a set of accounts and records. The use of such records gives more accuracy to plans and thus ensures more chance of success.

A farm account book forms a record of the whole farm business for the current year; and, if kept from year to year, will provide a record of the past performance upon which to base the operations of the future. Properly used, these records will lead to a better understanding of the farm business and to further improvement.

In order to maintain a record of the various farm enterprises and to prepare a yearly summary, a farm account book should include the following: inventory of the assets, accounts showing the receipts and expenses for cattle, horses, sheep, swine, poultry, labour and miscellaneous. The estimated value of the food and fuel furnished by the farm, the unpaid family labour and the board for hired labour should all be recorded. An annual summary is another necessity in a farm account book.

A plan of the farm combined with a crop record would be a useful addition to a farm account book. Such a record would show the various crops and yields, which together with data as the rates and dates of seeding, applications of manure or fertilizer, and the different cultural operations performed, would form a permanent record of great value in planning for the improvement of the farming system. Where such a record is kept it is possible to determine the effects which applications of manure, fertilizers or lime have had on any particular field, how long the effects lasted and how they compare with similar applications on other fields on the farm. This type of record leads to a definite policy of soil management.

The realization of the greatest benefit from the keeping of farm accounts and records is dependent on the summarization, analysis and study of the year's operations at the end of each record year.

A simple yet satisfactory farm account book can be obtained from the King's Printer, Ottawa, for ten cents.

Gruer-Kerr

The marriage of Una Elizabeth, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Kerr of Howick, Que., to Mr. Floyd William John Gruer, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Gruer of Riverfield, Que., was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Tullochgorum Road, on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 16th, at three o'clock, with the Rev. Donald B. Mackay, assisted by the Rev. D. E. Flint, officiating. The ceremony took place in the living-room before a beautiful background of masses of all shades of gladioli and ferns. Mrs. R. M. McCaig, cousin of the bride, played the wedding music, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. D. B. Mackay sang, "O Calm Night". The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Schiparelli gown of midnight blue velvet, matching coronet and blue suede shoes and carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses. Her only ornaments were rhinestone clips and bracelet, the gift of the groom. Mrs. Allister E. McArthur, the bride's sister, was matron of honour and her only attendant. She was gowned in a sage green magic hour crepe dress with black accessories and her bouquet was of bronze shaded chrysanthemums. Mr. Sherman Robb, cousin of the groom, acted as best man. Mrs. Kerr, the bride's mother, was dressed in a black crêpe dress with pearls and wore a corsage of premier roses. Mrs. Gruer, mother of the groom, wore a Queen's blue chiffon velvet dress with matching accessories and corsage of sweet peas.

CORRECTIONS

In the legend under the photo of "Winner in the Showmanship Class" in last week's Gleaner an error was made in saying that David White used a Burnside calf when judging at Huntingdon Fair. The calf actually belongs to David White as he purchased same from Robert Roy, last spring.

Following are corrections in the Huntingdon Fair prize list:

In the registered heifer calves for the fourth prize it should have been George Kelly instead of Austin Kelly. In the members of the calf club showing their calves in open classes of pure bred Holsteins, it should have been George Kelly for the third prize.

MERLE SMITH CHOSEN BEST ALL-ROUND PLAYER

Dr. J. E. Caza, President of the Huntingdon Town League, opened three sealed letters in the Gleaner office this morning, in which was to be found the name of the player on the Huntingdon District League Team who was adjudged the most valuable all-round player. The name of Merle Smith, star pitcher of the District Team, was enclosed in two of these sealed letters. The judges who had been appointed early in the season, and who were unaware of the identity of their fellow-judges, were almost unanimous in picking the popular and versatile moundsman who starred all during the season in the box and at times on the receiving line when Andy O'Connor relieved him in the box. The decision of the judges will surely be most favorably accepted by the fans, and Merle Smith will receive the trophy donated by Paul Cartier.

SHALLOW FALL TILLAGE CHECKS GRASSHOPPERS

Although grasshoppers have greatly decreased in some northern districts, a serious threat for 1940 evidently still exists over wide areas, particularly in southern Saskatchewan. Most of this trouble will be caused by the stubble grasshopper, which scatters its egg pods throughout stubble fields and weedy places. Much of this infestation can be destroyed by suitable tillage, advises the Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Very shallow tillage in the fall is usually very effective on the open prairie. The earlier it is done the better, because it prevents further egg laying in such fields, as well as destroying many of the eggs already laid.

Where fall or spring plowing is not feasible, shallow fall tillage should be given to all stubble land intended for seeding next year. It is also very helpful in land that is to be summer-fallowed in 1940. It is useful for control of weeds as well as insects. The work should be done as shallowly as possible, so as to leave the stubble standing and thus avoid undue loss of snow or risk of soil drifting. Of course, in districts where the soil drifting menace is very great, any working of stubble land in the fall should be avoided, even where grasshoppers are abundant.

To Stop Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation's got you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey . . . it's time you did something about it. And something more than taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat only the things most people do, the chances are that a very simple fact causes your constipation . . . you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It means a kind of food that after the digestive process leaves a soft "bulky" mass which helps a bowel movement.

If constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in your diet, eat Kellogg's All-Bran, a tasteful ready-to-eat cereal, for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran supplies the "bulk" you need, plus the intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1. Made by Kellogg in London, Canada. Sold by every grocer.

Obituary

The late William G. Webber

After a lingering illness the death occurred on Sunday, September 17, of a well-known Huntingdon business man in the person of William George Webber. He was 67 years of age.

Mr. Webber was born at Taunton, Somersetshire, England, and came to Canada 45 years ago. He learned the jewellery trade in England when a little more than 13 years of age. In the year 1917 he came to Huntingdon where he became established in the jewellery business.

Surviving is one daughter, Miss Emily Webber, who will carry on the business. Mr. Webber's wife predeceased him in 1924 while a daughter, Mabel, died in 1920.

He had been ill since last Christmas. The funeral was held on Tuesday and interment was made in the Huntingdon Protestant Cemetery.

Obituary

Richard Whitehead
1914 — 1939

In the quiet, early hours of September 15th—the twenty-fourth anniversary of the black tragedy of Loos — a young man lay still on his bed, his dry, unbreathing mouth dropped open, his glazed, staring eyes unseeing. Surrounded by sorrowing kinsmen, who had watched the inexorable choking of life from his once perfect body, Richard Whitehead lay dead, smitten by one of Nature's most cruel blasts of hopeless despair for which even medical science knew no assuage or relief. Beginning his existence in 1914 during the first months of that awful struggle, he ended his brief day as the nations of the world were engaging in still another titanic conflict.

Born and reared in Valleyfield, except for a scant period in the States, "Dick" Whitehead was regarded by everyone as the epitome of young manhood. During his school-days and after, he was interested in athletics and in the many meets throughout the district and in Montreal, he attracted attention by his prowess. His modest bearing, his genial disposition and his adherence to the high ideals of sportsmanship made him a favourite in such circles. In keeping with these characteristics he was active in church work and in Boy Scout efforts.

Little wonder then that his stricken remains were followed to the station by a throng of friends, young and old, who grieved that his life had been cut short. Loving hands would have wished to lower him to rest in a grave in their midst but he was taken to lie in eternal sleep beside his mother. His passing deprives Valleyfield of a personality that gave much promise of development and help to the community in which he lived.

LIFE OF CANADIAN BEE

The average life of a bee during the summer months in Canada is approximately six weeks, but in winter their life must be prolonged to at least eight months. To do this requires a careful study of colony strength, food supply, and protection in relation to wintering. At one time it was thought that bees could not survive the winter in many parts of Canada unless housed in specially constructed cellars, but the apiaries of the Dominion Experimental Farms have shown that bees can be safely wintered outside in packing cases anywhere in Canada, provided the colonies are properly prepared during the previous fall.

Impressions of Europe

Russia's Entry Into the War Pictures Changes the Scene — Poland Underwent Big Changes 150 Years Ago — Grim Scenes Ahead

By DONALD C. MacDONALD

(Written Especially For The Huntingdon Gleaner)

Now we begin to catch a glimpse of the immensity of this titanic struggle which holds Europe in its convulsive grip. On Sunday morning the Red armies of Russia, after ominously mobilising throughout the week, swept from their poised position across the Polish border. The nature of the Russo-German Pact of a few weeks ago now reveals itself. On the pretext that the Polish Government had proved itself unworthy of respect as such because of its inability to stem the onrush of the Nazi war-machine, the Communist forces have joined with the Nazis in this aggression upon their mutual neighbour. Together, they are carving up the country of these valiant people whose courage during the last weeks has won the world's admiration. Once again Poland is disappearing from the map of Europe.

A story immediately leaps to mind from the pages of history. Over 150 years ago Poland underwent during a twenty-three year period the same operation which has now been inflicted upon her in a few weeks. At that time her weak government, in which a single member's veto could block the passage of a bill, rendered her an inviting prize for her aggressive neighbours. Prussia (Germany), Russia and Austo-Hungary gradually carved Poland out of existence. First in 1772 a large slice of her territory was taken by a powerful neighbour whose strength she could not hope to match; again in 1793 the process was repeated; finally in 1795 Poland disappeared altogether. In 1918 those three empires which had combined to wipe Poland off the map crumbled in defeat or revolution. Out of their shattered ruins the ghost of 18th century Poland reclothed itself in living form. The Poles, a proud and fiercely independent people, regained their native land.

Today Poland is disappearing again. What does this new turn of events in the course of the war portend? Does the Russian participation in the partitioning of Poland mean further cooperation with Germany in the struggle which Hitler has drawn upon himself on the Western Front. What will be the result of these changes upon the situation in the Far East? These are but a few of the questions that bristle in the news.

It is most unlikely that the Russian moves in Poland herald a day of cooperation with the Nazis. An objective review of the post-war years indicates why—indicates that Russia's policy will be completely self-interested. In the first place, while the old Czarist regime was crumbling amid a bloody revolution in 1917 and the Communist Government was seeking to establish itself, Russia had taken from her all her western border, a long strip of territory out of which was formed the Baltic States of Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania, those provinces of Poland which she is now reclaiming, and the province of Bessarabia which became part of Roumania. All throughout the decade of the twenties, the world remained profoundly suspicious of the new Communist Russia which aimed to organize the workers of the world for a world revolution which would overthrow the capitalist governments. Only with the greatest of reluctance did the World Powers recognize the new regime in Russia even long after it had become evident that it was there to stay. With the withdrawal of Germany from the League of Nations following Hitler's rise to power, an invitation was extended to Russia to accept membership, which she did. In May, 1935, the Franco-Soviet Pact re-united France and Russia in their pre-war alliance as the shadow of the Nazi swastika lengthened across Europe. At the 1935 meeting of the Comintern Moscow professed to have dropped all plans for a world revolution, and declared that she was taking her stand with the Democracies against Naziism.

In spite of all this appearance of renewed faith the suspicions had not been allayed on either side. Russia felt that both in the Spanish War and with Czech-Slovakia last Fall, the Anglo-French policy helped the Fascist dictators at least indirectly. Moreover at the time of the Munich crisis, the four Powers—Britain, France, Germany and Italy—met to effect a settlement while Russia was left out in the cold.

From all this rather confusing ebb and flow of friendships, a number of deductions may be made. With the march of the Red armies into Poland, a lot of chickens came home to roost in London and Paris. Britain and France are now paying the price of their failure to effect some sort of an agreement with Russia. Relationships being such as they were, it may have been absolutely impossible to make any agreement—but that does not alter the fact that the price is now being paid. Where they failed Hitler has succeeded. But that does not necessarily mean that the Soviets have any love for Nazi Germany! After all, Hitler polluted this world with six years of propaganda to get support for his holy crusade against that rotting, disintegrating force of Communism. Six years of propaganda will never be forgotten in less than six weeks, especially by the country against which it was directed. No country trusts the enigmatic Russia and she in turn reciprocates the suspicion. Her policy—whatever it may be—will be completely self-interested.

If then, Soviet Russia marches into Poland, it is solely to take a part of Poland while the taking is good, in other words, before Germany has it all; her action may very well be motivated by the desire to avoid the creation of a German strength in Eastern Europe which will tower too greatly. Russia is by no means desirous of a war with Great Britain, and will not run errands for Hitler anywhere. Her interests will be further centred, if aggressively, on the Baltic States or Roumania, meanwhile keeping a watchful eye on her own oil and wheat fields which, make no mistake about it, receive many a covetous glance from Hitler. She may aid Germany materially with war supplies and food-stuffs, but even that will likely be only on a cash or straight barter basis, and in each Germany's means are very limited. Meanwhile Russia's interests will be best met by sitting tight and letting Germany and the Western Democracies battle themselves, with the eventual defeat of Hitler, thus removing the Nazi threat to themselves at the sacrifice of the strength of the capitalist countries.

There are two very disturbing features to this turn of events. To prepare herself to face any eventuality in the West, it is reported that Russia has signed a truce in her undeclared war with Japan on the Manchukuo Border. Rumours have it that Nazi efforts are about to succeed in concluding a Russo-Japanese non-aggression pact. Not only does this free Russia to face the European situation, but it leaves Japan in a position to encroach further upon British, French and American interests in the Orient, with all too preoccupied to retaliate—except the United States.

The second disturbing feature is one that can be glimpsed if we look ahead. When Hitlerism has been swept from the earth in a gruelling struggle, and the Western Powers turn to a peace settlement, involving the re-establishment of those countries whose independence they guaranteed,—what of Poland? Or of any of the other countries which may have disappeared beyond Russia's border in the meantime? Will a war-weary and much weakened world have to fight Russia to restore Poland to the full?

But that is of the future. The present holds more immediate problems. And with the boundaries of Europe turned fluid, they will continue to increase. For us the war has not yet begun. Shortly the German war-machine will be freed in Poland, will turn to the west. Not only will its leaders be intoxicated with victory in Poland, but they will be haunted with the inescapable truth that Germany's resources for a long war are limited. Driven by this mingled fear for the uncertainties of the future and joy for the victories of the past, they will strike with a frenzied barbaric fury. The mass murder of civilians which we fondly call war will commence in all its horror. We need not lose confidence,—or hope. But we need to plant our feet firmly and grit our teeth. The scream in the high heavens over Europe will echo round the earth. We have yet to see an exhibition of hell turned loose such as the world has never beheld.

PRESENT DAY FACTS ABOUT CANADA

Canada is in an enviable position. Our country is the granary of the Empire. We have minerals of almost every kind in unlimited quantities. Our manufacturing plants, second to none in efficiency, will be busy as a result of war.

WHEAT—430,000,000 bushels is the estimated crop — 100,000,000 bushels more than in 1938. From Ontario, British Columbia, Quebec and the Maritimes we also receive the most favorable crop reports. Many millions of dollars will come to Canada as a result.

METALS—Nickel, Zinc, Copper—Among all countries of the world Canada holds places one, two, three in the production of these metals. There will be a large demand for these at increased prices.

EMPLOYMENT — Thousands of unemployed men and women are now returning to work. They will soon start to buy clothing, food, other necessities and, yes, some luxuries.

WAR ORDERS—Today it is impossible to estimate the value of these, but they will run into millions in Canada.

EXCHANGE—This in some cases may have a detrimental effect on Business—but it will mean more purchases of goods produced in Canada—more business for many manufacturers.

General Sherman once said, "War is Hell". We agree. But let us face the future with the same courage and confidence as we did in 1914—we did not fail then and we will not fail now.

Building permits for the first seven months of 1939 in 58 Canadian cities totalled $33,647,625, an increase of 4.9 per cent over the corresponding period of 1938.

THE FRIENDLY PHILOSOPHER

It must be fine to be a farmer and work in partnership with Nature, says the preacher to me the other day. The trouble with Nature is she's always playing tricks on a feller, I says. For instance, we have to save our seed corn before frost and dry it behind the kitchen stove. And while we're pampering our corn, what's Nature doing? She's putting enough pep into weed seeds so's up they come in the spring and make a full crop no matter whether the corn does or not.

Yessir, Nature sure works funny her wonders to perform, I says: if only she was as smooth working and dependable as an air cell battery, everything would be mighty nice. We farmers need Nature to supply us with rain and sunshine, but all this battery needs is air. No fussing around with expensive recharging when you got an air cell and that's my idea of outdoing Nature, yessir.

"Michael, what a fool I am!" Joyce said, still red from embarrassment."

He put a hand on her shoulder.

"There's always been Paul. And I didn't want to make you uncomfortable and perhaps have to go away.

"For a little while after he went to England I hoped that the Paul dynasty was over; then he came back and the letters commenced again. I think he loves you. I don't think he knew it in that first year or two; it sounds more as if he did now. I'm not in the picture at all."

"I'm horribly sorry I said that stupid thing!" the girl murmured. "You've done so much for me; you have been so wonderful when I was heartbroken and impatient and—and dumb about everything. You've let me talk to you when I couldn't talk to any one else. I'm crying, but I don't know why!" she said, smiling with brimming eyes. "I'd say you were like a brother to me, Michael, only you're nearer than Ben ever was. And if ever I've made you unhappy I'm sorrier than I know how to say. You—you—" She stopped out of words, flushed and confused. "You know that, don't you?" she stammered in conclusion.

"It would be very hard for any man to have been here as I've been during these years, and not love you, Joyce," Michael said. "You were an adorable child when you came; you're a woman now. I've seen you cooking, playing with your kitten, raking the yard, scolding, happy, crying, comforting them all when you needed comfort so badly yourself! I've seen you in old sweaters on picnics and drying your hair and dressed as Lady Teazle—

"But I've never seen you when you weren't the most wonderful woman God ever made," he added in a silence. "You know how poor I am; you know exactly what life would be up in the shack. I've never offered it to you and I never will! I'm going to stay on here after you go away, and work out things with your father; you'll come back for visits, and so will Dodo and Lissy and Ben, and pretty soon I'll be Uncle Mike to the crowd."

"You know that what you have has had nothing to do with it, Michael," the girl said in a voice she held low and steady. "I was in love with Paul when I came here. When I thought he didn't care for me it didn't make any difference; I loved him just as much."

"I knew you did!" Michael said. "And this June he will be home again?"

"Well, perhaps later than that. His stepfather died and he's been helping his mother get her estate. But they say it will be all settled in June or July. Then he comes out here."

"To stay?"

"To practice law. He'll be in his father's firm."

"And then I suppose we will have some news."

"I don't exactly know," she said hesitantly. "He writes as if we—sort of—belonged to each other, but he doesn't say."

The man looked down at her gravely.

"Then we'll just have to wait for midsummer," he finally said. "And suppose that even it isn't right, Joyce?"

"I don't know," she said.

There was the click of a latch behind them and they both turned to see William Ballard in his pajamas.

"I'm glad you are up, Joycie," he said. "Your mother isn't well. She's got a pain in her side. I'm going to get a doctor, and you go up to her."

"I'll get Nubbins," the younger man said. "I'm dressed."

Joyce ran upstairs. It was the first step in a long Calvary for them all.

Despite warning weeks of illness the end seemed stunningly sudden. Joyce felt dazed when it was over. When Lissy and Ben and Dodo had gone away, the house was empty.

Her father was strangely quiet; he wandered about like a person in a dream. That Sally had been unreasonable, difficult, unhelpful in all the crises of the last few years, was all forgotten now. They only remembered her fierce loyalties, the vibrant energy that spread about her like a visible thing and made life exciting. It was very real grief that was felt by all Sally Ballard's children.

Joyce got into the habit of following the men about the farm.

"I see what you get out of it, Dad," she told him.

He and Michael adored her and did their best to spoil her. They never returned from San Francisco or San Jose without bringing her a little present; a cake of fragrant soap, a penknife for her cross-word puzzle pencils, a pair of fine silk stockings. In the evenings, when she sat flushed and lovely between them, the two men would watch her as she talked, lose the sense of her words for the sheer pleasure of watching the red mouth enunciate them.

Now and then Paul wrote to Joyce. There was never anything but nonsense in the letters, but the sight of his handwriting always made her heart leap. She would keep the letters unanswered as long as she could force her courage to do so; after ten days, two weeks, she would write him in the same flippant vein; she would save ridiculous anecdotes, work out fantastic phrases to make her replies amusing. It was a sorry business; she loved Paul, she didn't want to write to him in this fashion, but he had set the pace and she could only follow. Neither Michael nor her father ever heard her speak of Paul, but deep in Joyce's heart lived the undying thought of him; he was never long absent from her mind.

She wondered how they would close the gap of this parting or if ever they would see each other again. She would not go to meet him this time; she would never enter that hot crowded hurried world of his to be confused and hurt. It wasn't her world. It wasn't the world of girls who had kitchen work to do, who fed baby chickens and watched the tiny radishes and lettuces come up in the chill sweet spring sunshine. "He must still like me, or he wouldn't write to me," Joyce would muse. "But there may be a dozen other girls in his life now. I'd never know it if there were!"

Arthur Tallant came out from England and Michael went up to San Francisco and spent two days with him, bringing him down to the farmhouse on a March afternoon when spring was just tiptoeing into view. The willows all along the creek were green, the first fruit blossoms were out, and yellow mustard had washed like a wave over the fields. Everything looked its best and Joyce looked her loveliest too as she welcomed the English visitor.

She and her father and the two men scrambled up the long hill to Michael's cabin after luncheon. "Arty" liked the cabin immensely; it had been much improved in the years since the Ballards had come to the neighborhood; it had a porch now and a shower.

"Why shouldn't we bach it here for a bit?" Arty asked enthusiastically.

"Why shouldn't you stay in our spare room?" Joyce said. It was settled the English cousin should stay for a fortnight anyway and he and Michael should divide their time between the farmhouse and the cabin.

Arty liked Joyce instantly and she liked him.

He had been as one of them for about ten days when late one afternoon Joyce came out from the kitchen to see a smart car sweep about the drive and come to a halt within a few feet of her. A man, a tall man in a brown coat, jumped out. Paul!

Their outstretched hands met; their eyes met; she was in his arms; they were both laughing. But when they drew apart, still linked by their hands, Joyce's eyes were wet.

"You're wonderful!" Paul said.

"It's so good to see you again!"

"Claire said she wrote you I was coming."

"She did, and she was sweet about it; she wanted me to come up as I did two years ago. But I couldn't! But, Paul, you weren't to arrive until today."

"And I didn't, darling!"

"You didn't arrive today!"

"This morning at ten. Claire met me and we went into town and had lunch with Dad. At two I was on my way. This is the car a fellow and I brought across the continent."

There was a bench under the oak; she had drawn him to it; they were both seated. A lull came in their eager talk, and they looked at each other. Paul said that Claire looked fine and his father looked fine, and asked for Joyce's father. His face flushed a little and he added:

"You've had it rough, I'm so sorry. I—you had my letter?"

"You sent me a lovely letter." Joyce's face wrinkled; she bit her lower lip. "It's made a tremendous change here," she went on, not very steadily. "That was why I could not go to Claire and wait for you; Dad is so much alone. He's—you'll see; he's much quieter than he was."

"Poor kid!" Paul said. There was another silence. "And Dodo's married," he stated rather than asked.

"Oh, yes; and with two babies! Jacky and Mary. Mary's getting so adorable!"

"Yes, and she and Archie have great expectations too. It seems so sad. Mother loved babies so, and she'd have three grandchildren already. But they do help Dad."

Paul regarded her with great satisfaction. "Gosh, you're thin!"

"Well, I am a little thin now, but it's all right. I eat like a hired man and I sleep ten hours a night. But I've been awfully busy; there's something to do every minute."

"You're doing it all now, I suppose?"

"Oh, no; I have Isabelle Dunker to help in the kitchen. She's marvelous. The place is always like a pin. Only I can't leave Dad long."

"Where's Michael?"

"Oh, he's here. We couldn't live without Michael. He's fixed that old cabin in the canyon—it's quite cute! And his cousin's here, Arthur Tallant,—Captain Arthur Tallant of the Royal Somethings. You're home," she added simply. "For how long this time?"

"For keeps. How does that sound?"

"Heavenly."

"I finished two weeks ago. I had to go up and see my aunt in Boston, and pick Tony up. It took us about a week to get started."

"And now what?"

"Dad thinks I can loaf for a while and go into the firm about the first of August." Paul put his arm about her. "And if, in about six weeks, you and I should step off," he began. "How about it, Joyce? I lost you once through being a fool. But I'll never let you go again."

"You didn't lose me."

"I know, but I acted like a skunk the time we were down there at Del Monte—let you go home on the train, didn't write for months—"

"It didn't matter. I didn't really belong in that group. I couldn't compete with Elisa," Joyce said, with a smile for the remembered miseries of that visit. "What's become of her?"

"I don't know. I never saw her after that. Shall we tell your father today, Joy? This is March. Why not early in May?"

ing and planning. We are all ready and await only your instructions."

The Huntingdon branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was organized on August 27, 1915. During the Great War the Huntingdon branch did a great deal of work, contributing thousands of pieces for aid such as comfort bags, socks, etc., as well as cash. They supplied an ambulance which cost in the neighborhood of $3,000. At the close of the war the Society continued on with life members only but represented the whole county of Huntingdon with the exception of the Athelstan branch, which operates as a very much alive separate unit that has done a great deal. Since the close of the Great War the Huntingdon branch has spent in the neighbourhood of $5,000 on relief, helping those people in a quiet way who needed help yet who did not care to approach officials for it. The society has aided a number of families to get well back on their feet. At the present time the Society has a substantial amount of money with which to go forward and serve their country in the present crisis but would undoubtedly need considerable in addition to this to do the large amount of work there is to be done.

This time it is just a little over two weeks before the Huntingdon branch of the Canadian Red Cross has been ready to go into action but during the Great War it was about a year after the war started that the Society was organized.

The Town Council has given the Society the rooms over the Fire Hall for them to carry on and a drive for members and aid will be made just as soon as instructions come through from the headquarters of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

these doctors. Four persons were injected against typhoid fever, while 1,410 were inoculated against diphtheria.

The work of the Health Unit is largely devoted to the care of children. As the report shows, more than 998 children under the age of two years and 882 of pre-school age were examined. 1,768 babies were visited regularly at home, as well as 2,033 of pre-school age.

During the year the nurses gave 172 health talks to school children. At the schools, 3,383 children were examined, and of this number 411 were found in good health; 1,419 were ordered to follow various treatments.

Sanitary inspections are also included in the duties of the Health Unit. The following public places were inspected: 10 beauty shops, 133 schools, 89 milk houses, 84 stables, 287 slaughter houses, 1,695 groceries, butcher shops, etc., 2 aqueducts, 65 wells, and other establishments inspected numbered 706.

In order to assure the perfect condition of water and milk in these two counties, more than 236 analyses of water and 107 of milk were taken.

In their fight against disease, the health officer and nurses, as well as the sanitary inspector covered more than 31,634 miles during the year from July 1, 1938 to July 1, 1939.

variously quoted at $3.75 to $4.00 a gallon. With the hoist of the excise tax the spread between the legal alcohol and the illicit brand will be greater.

With the possibility of added profits, due to the higher price of legal alcohol, the police were of the opinion that new attempts will be made to circumvent the Excise Act.

During recent months, with most local illicit distilleries closed, the greater quantity of bootlegged alcohol has come into Quebec from the Maritime provinces and from the United States, it was reported, with some of the traffic entering the province from the United States via Ontario and the Quebec border points.

Whatever the big American liquor gangs may decide to do about the new market created for them, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have made plans so that the force will be prepared for any eventuality.

WEEK AT OTTAWA

proved under the stress of war demands. Economists point out that full productivity and employment would increase the national income at least one billion dollars annually. In other words an annual contribution of one billion dollars a year could be made to the Allied cause without reducing the present standard of living in Canada. Under extreme stress, and with some privation, this might even be doubled. The magnitude of these figures is best measured by a comparison. During the past five years, Germany has spent about four billion dollars a year upon her war machine. Canada alone, once her efforts are geared up to fullest production, might be able to throw in a contribution of two billion dollars annually into helping to win the war. Germany is believed to have reached her maximum economic capacity, whereas most of the two billions that Canada could contribute would be new wealth, created by the employment of idle man-power and idle resources.

These are startling facts, and it will be well to remember them when peace-time comes again. They are a challenge to our unemployment and low standards of living of recent years.

Fair Division of Burden

Though the financing of Canada's war effort will be a heavy burden upon the Dominion Government, the budget of last week is an encouraging sign that the load is to be distributed as fairly as possible among the Canadian people.

The money to finance the war will come from three sources:

1. New taxes, and higher yield of old taxes.
2. Borrowing.
3. Transfer of sums now spent on unemployment relief, wheat and other agricultural assistances, deficits on the government railways and steamships, to war effort.

In 1914-1918 the government provided something like $400. millions a year for four years toward winning the war. This time the sum will be greater if the war lasts as long.

However, the cessation of unemployment, the higher prices for agricultural products, and the full employment of Canada's transportation systems will lift a load of upwards of $200. millions annually from the Dominion treasury. This sum can then be spent upon war effort, and will lessen by that amount the sums needed to be raised by taxation and by borrowing.

The productivity of the new taxes can only be estimated. In the first full year they will approach $100. millions, I expect. If this is so, the necessary borrowing will not be a large item. The government has no intention of creating a lot of 'war millionaires' comfortably fixed up with 'tax-free' bonds. That mistake of the last war has been carefully studied since. It is safe to say it will not be repeated.

The council agreed to give permission to the Huntingdon Academy School Board to use the Court Room for school purposes during the construction of the new Academy.

Adrien Carriere came before the board asking for a bridge across the Trout River, opposite his property. No action was taken in the matter. The council appointed a committee including Warden Pinsonneault, Coun. Latulippe and the secretary-treasurer to see to the needs of the Registry Office and the County Building.

A committee was appointed including the warden, councillors Collings and Cameron and the secretary-treasurer to interview Donald E. Havelock Fair Sees Interest Maintained..

Martin B. Fisher special for best three plates of apples of Wealthy, McIntosh and Fameuse varieties.

N. M. Brooks, John Waddell, F. Beattie were the principal competitors to Keith Curran. The apples classes were good, there being 5 plates of Pears, 6 of Spy, 7 Wealthy, 10 McIntosh, 9 Fameuse, and 4 entries of six different varieties. This latter class was won by Chester Waddell.

The Bread Show

Miss Hayward of Macdonald College judged the bread. Miss Hayward is no novice at judging bread and having judged at Havelock Fair for many years knows how important a feature this is at Havelock. Her judgement must be correct, and time was spent in arriving at her conclusions.

No less than 15 entries were made for the McDonald and Robb special for best loaf of bread made with "Our Best Flour". What a keen competition this was, there was no hair pulling, but a lot of ladies were watching and hoping that their loaves of bread would be so honored. Mrs. Peter Donnelly, a bread maker of years standing was the owner of entry No. 117 that won the barrel of flour donated by McDonald & Robb.

Mrs. James Lang has often been a winner of this prize, but though she failed this year her entry in the Society classes found her loaf entry No. 52 to be awarded 1st position. In addition to winning this prize this same loaf of bread wins the Robin Hood Flour special of $3. The Robert Simpson Co. Limited offered a prize for best loaf of bread on exhibition. With perhaps 50 loaves of excellent bread competing, the No. 52 loaf entered by Mrs. Lang was awarded the honor. The prize loaves of the various classes were lined up together, and the general appearance of Mrs. Lang's loaf was the deciding factor.

Mrs. J. J. McArthur is another bread maker of distinction and although she did not win a barrel of flour she won 1st place on a beautiful loaf of Graham bread.

The society prize for best pan of biscuits at the fair was awarded Mrs. Peter Donnelly who made the biscuits from McDonald & Robb "Our Best Flour".

The F. H. McKough special for best loaf of bread made from Royal Household Flour was won by exhibit 105 made by Looking along this table of culinary art one saw other samples of fine baking and preserves, etc. The judges of the preserves thought highly of the prize winning bottles, but to our amazement we were informed many of the bottles entered were not perfectly sealed, consequently some of the preserves were in a state of fermentation. Many bottles of canned tomatoes were on exhibit and about one half of them had to be cast aside simply because the cooks had not been sufficiently careful in tightening on the caps.

Upon entering the domestic art department one saw a great number of quilts. The ladies judging the quilts were delighted with the excellence of the workmanship there displayed. Turn your head and there you saw the last of the home made woollen blankets, possibly the last to be seen at any of our fall fairs. As you looked towards the needlework, the judges saw where the machine age was taking place of beautiful hand work. The quantity nor the quality of work was to be found. In many classes the judges did not award a first prize ticket simply because they felt the entries were not worthy of such and that the way to raise the standard would be to penalize the exhibitors of work that was not worthy of receiving a higher award.

A few years ago Havelock Fair had but one scantly filled bench of flowers. To-day a very fair showing of potted plants are to be seen as well as a very attractive lot of cut flowers, principally gladioli. Were the cut flowers and apples shown in the department set aside for vegetables they would make a very interesting and captivating exhibit. People attending Havelock Fair would leave the fair with a much better impression of the annual show of Huntingdon Agricultural Society Div. B. We offer these few suggestions not with a view to being critical but what we feel certain would prove to be constructive for an even better fair.

The ladies of Covey Hill again arranged to serve dinner. The people flocked to the dining hall where they were served an abundance of good food. We are satisfied the financial returns must have been most gratifying.

As to the Fair attendance, Mr. Wilmer Fisher the amiable secretary-treasurer stated the attendance might not be as large as at times but the financial returns would be commendable and see the fair through to another successful year, financially and otherwise.

Retail Prices of Foodstuffs, Etc....

finite price on it at the present time.

The price of meats too has followed the upward trend of grocery prices. Smoked meats and bacon are selling on an average of five cents a pound more while chops are up 3 cents a pound. Veal has shown the greatest advance, selling at a price of approximately 8 cents to what it did two weeks ago.

Tomatoes are one of the things which refuse to get excited about the rise in prices. The lowly tomato is plentiful this year with the result that you can buy all you want in the stores for five cents a pound while if you know a friend he will probably tell you to go out into his garden and gather all you want for nothing.

Liquor and beer prices have experienced sharp advances. The Federal tax, because of the war budget, added on top of the new Provincial tax some time ago, have made substantial rises in the prices of beer and liquor. Beer prices are up approximately 16 per cent locally to what they were this spring. Since the spring liquor prices have advanced about 32 per cent. No higher prices on tobacco have yet gone into effect but these advances are shortly expected after the present stock of tobacco is consumed and the new stock, on which a Federal Tax has been imposed, comes on the market.

that many of the fears of some people along this line are quite unfounded.

He continued by saying he has topographical maps of many counties in the United States near the Canadian border, which maps were prepared for the war department of the United States. These maps he obtained in order to identify the hills that could be seen from the Canadian side.

Juniors Triumph Over Shawinigan to Win Town Title

Huntingdon Tennis Team Wins Trophy in Mixed Doubles Invitation Tennis Tourney

Sixteen Teams from District Take Part in Tournament—Team of Miss Bernice McCartney and Mr. Roger Boileau Wins

An invitation mixed doubles tennis tournament brought to a successful close on Saturday the season of the Huntingdon Chateau Tennis Club.

There were 16 teams taking part in the tournament, three from Beauharnois, five from Valleyfield Mocos, three from the Students of Valleyfield, two from the Knights of Columbus of Valleyfield and three from Huntingdon.

When the smoke of battle had cleared away it was found that the Huntingdon Chateau Tennis team of Miss Bernice McCartney and Mr. Roger Boileau were the winners of the Hiram Walker Trophy, emblematic of the championship of the club, the competition being open to teams from Valleyfield, Beauharnois and Huntingdon. The opponents of the Huntingdon team were Mrs. Miller and Mr. Patterson of Beauharnois whom they defeated by the scores of 2-6, 6-4, 7-5 in a match that was scintillating with sparkling play all the way through and brought the spectators to their feet cheering at the smart plays that were made. Miss Bernice McCartney turned in a particularly fine game, her steady and deadly play being an important factor in turning back the early threat of the Beauharnois team. At one time the sets were at one all with the Beauharnois team leading by 4 games to 0 in the third set. It did not look so good for Huntingdon at this point. However, the Huntingdon team staged a rally to overcome the lead and go on to a 7-5 win, clinching the match and the championship of the day in spectacular style.

The finalists with the Huntingdon team, Mr. Patterson and Mrs. Miller of Beauharnois, also turned in some of the finest tennis to be seen here this season. They went into the finals after eliminating Zenon Daoust and Miss Thora McWhinnie of Huntingdon by scores of 5-6, 6-3, 5-6.

For the first season of play the Huntingdon players did well in the tournament. One team won the trophy, a second team was in the semi-finals while a third team lost out in the quarter-finals.

The trophy was presented to the winning team by Mr. A. Langevin, manager of the Huntingdon Chateau and President of the Huntingdon Chateau Tennis team, who, in an address, complimented the winners on their victory. The organizers of the tournament were Messrs. Zenon Daoust, Leonard Lavallee and Paul Chaput. Referees were: Mr. Philippe Malouin and Mr. Malcolm Dunsmore.

Remember the Last War?

There's memories of the last war in the following item taken from the Gleaner files of August 13, 1914, several days after the outbreak of the war on August 4, 1914:

"An officer, accompanied by four men in Highland uniform, one of whom was a piper, was in town on Monday in search of recruits for the Royal Highlanders. It is reported that four signified their willingness to go. War becomes very real to us when it begins to draw men from our midst."

The results of the tournament were as follows. The letters after the teams denote which municipality they represented. For example Beauharnois — (B), Huntingdon — (H), Valleyfield — (V):

JUNIORS WIN FIRST OF TOWN LEAGUE FINALS

Juniors won the first game in the Huntingdon Town League finals on Thursday evening when they defeated the second division team, Shawinigan, by a score of 6 to 2. The game had to be called at the end of the sixth inning on account of darkness and the final score had to read from the fifth frame.

Both teams played cautiously but the Juniors' power at bat proved too much for John Houle's offerings.

A very small crowd was on hand to witness this first final game. The winners of this final series will be awarded the McColl-Frontenac Trophy.

Falcons Defeat the All Stars

Valleyfield Team Takes a 16 to 8 Decision in an Exhibition Game

The Valleyfield Falcons defeated a team of All-Stars in a game under floodlights at Ormstown on Saturday evening. The score was 16 to 8 for the Falcons.

It was evident from the play that the All-Stars were unable to work together as a team as well as they might due to the fact that they did not have practise playing as a team before. As a result they made a number of costly errors. The Falcons, on the other hand, worked comparatively smoothly. The fourth inning was the big one for the Falcons, this team getting in a total of five runs in this frame. The rest of their runs were garnered evenly throughout the game.

The All-Stars collected three runs in the fifth inning and three in the sixth inning.

Latour, of the Valleyfield Pepsi-Cola team playing for the All-Stars, no doubt turned in the best game for that team while the most effective player on the Falcons was Borzelli, who hurled effective ball.

The line-ups of the two teams were as follows:

Valleyfield Falcons — Parker, c.; Borzelli, p.; Anderson, 1b.; Leroux, 2b.; Bougie, 3b.; May, s.s.; Boyer, c.f.; Searle, r.f.; Ion, l.f.

All-Stars—MacLean, c.; Rapin, p.; M. Hunter, 1b.; E. Lefebvre, 2b.; Latour, s.s.; B. Laplante, 3b.; Marcelle, l.f.; McAdam, c.f.; Senecal, r.f.; Substitutes were Andy Connor and Merle Smith.

To Consider Possibilities of Staging Olympic Winter Games at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Committee Pledges Use of Lake Placid's Olympic Facilities to American Olympic Committee—Plan Extensive Sports Program For Coming Winter

The Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee, consisting of members of the Board of Directors of the 1932 Olympic Winter Games, with Willis Wells, Town of North Elba Supervisor, as Chairman, met last week to further consider the possibility of the Games being staged at this world famous resort.

A communication received from Mr. Avery Brundage, President of the American Olympic Committee, stated that Mr. Brundage favored the holding of the Games at Lake Placid in order to keep the movement alive, even tho it was necessary to hold them on a limited scale. Mr. Brundage also advised the local committee that he had cabled the President of the International Olympic Committee, Count Baillet-Latour, for the opinion of the International Committee. He further stated that if the transfer of the Games to America is approved, he saw no reason why Lake Placid should not arrange a full program of sports.

The Committee further pledged the use of Lake Placid's Olympic facilities to the American Olympic Committee and extended President Brundage an urgent invitation to attend a meeting at Lake Placid to be held the early part of next week.

The Committee also took steps to assist the North Elba Town Board in their planning of a broad and comprehensive sports program for the coming winter season over the period from early December to late March.

Juniors Win Huntingdon Softball Crown, Defeating Shawinigan Two Straight

Small Crowd Witnesses Final Town League Softball Fixture of the Season—Juniors Hit Hard As They Win 17 to 3

A small crowd of fans turned out on Monday night to see the Juniors son to a close by defeating the bring the town league softball sea-Shawinigan team to the tune of 17 to 3, thus taking the crown in two straight games.

As the score would indicate, it was a complete walk-away for the Juniors. Faubert, pitching for the Juniors, was somewhat wild in the early stanzas of the game, but was backed up with good fielding. He came back to form later, however and all went well. Houle, pitching for Shawinigan, seemed unable to get settled down to steady effective pitching and while he and the Shawinigan team tried hard in the earlier innings of the game they seemed to lose their fighting spirit as the game progressed.

The Juniors enjoyed a hitting spree throughout most of the game, collecting four runs in the first inning, seven in the second inning, one run in the third inning and five runs in the fourth inning. The Shawinigan team gathered one run in the first inning and two runs in the third inning.

The game was called on account of darkness at the end of the fifth inning, after which Dr. J. E. Caza, President of the Town League, presented the Manager of the Junior team, J. A. "Pat" Ross with the Trophy.

This is the second consecutive year that "Pat" Ross has managed a team to victory, as he was the leader of the Gleaner nine last year when they came out of the season on top.

Players on the teams were as follows:

Shawinigan — McBride, Daoust, Gohier, M. Houle, Leboeuf, C. Fortune, Kiernan, Barr, J. Houle.

Juniors—Senecal, McCallum, L. Lalonde, F. Lalonde, E. Lefebvre, Brisebois, Guerin, Kiernan, Faubert.

About thirty ladies were present to greet the bride-to-be on her arrival. She was escorted to the chair of honor amidst a shower of confetti and to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Rita Smith on the piano. She was presented with an electric floor lamp and a filet lace table cloth. Graciously thanking all those present Miss Murphy invited all to see her in her new home.

Refreshments were served, the tea table, decorated with late summer flowers and tall lighted tapers, was presided over by Miss Kate Murphy, who poured tea. She was assisted in serving by Mrs. J. W. Smith and Miss Muriel Lamb. All joined in good wishes and singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

USEFUL HINTS ON STORING VEGETABLES

Unless vegetables which are intended to be stored for winter use are grown to as nearly full maturity as possible, they cannot be expected to keep well. On no account should squash and pumpkins be exposed to the least frost. As soon as the rind is firm enough to prevent piercing by the fingernail, the fruit may be taken off the plant. Pumpkins and squash should be stored in a dry place at a temperature of from 40 to 50 degrees. At all times they should be handled as carefully as eggs. The slightest bruise, even though not noticeable, is likely to cause decay in storage. When large quantities are to be stored, slatted shelves should be used so that the fruits may not be piled on top of one another.

For the storage of onions, a cool dry cellar, with the temperature not over 40 degrees at any time is ideal. Shallow slatted shelves or crates are satisfactory if the bulbs are not piled to any great depth. Occasionally onions may require some help to ripen in the fall particularly in districts where the season is short. As soon as the tops of a few plants fall over, all the tops should be bent over. This checks the flow of sap and causes the bulbs to ripen. A few days later the plants should be pulled. If the weather continues fine, they should be turned over occasionally until the tops are fairly well dried, when they should be cut off and spread in the open or in slatted crates to finish ripening. When well dried, they can be placed in storage for the winter.

The Danish Ball head strain is the best of cabbages for winter storage. All the outer leaves should be removed and the heads handled carefully to avoid bruising. Select a dry day when the heads have no rain water lodged in them and store in a cool dry place. If there is good circulation of air in the storeroom, the heads may be piled in several layers. Small quantities may be pulled without cutting of the heads and suspended form the joists in a dry cellar. The roots may be left on, but with all the outer leaves removed.

Carrots, beets and parsnips should be kept very cool, and if well dried before storing may be put in large piles, so long as there is no disease present. If carrots show signs of rustfly injury, the roots should be stored in smaller quantities, as one blemished root will spoil many in a very short time.

Potatoes keep well in a dry place where the temperature is between 30 and 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Africa's most dangerous malaria-carrying mosquitoes reached Natal, Brazil, in 1930, and have since spread 200 miles nearer Central and Northern America.

Canada was again the principal source of supply of apples to the United Kingdom in 1938, the increase in the annual total imports of Great Britain being mainly due to heavier supplies from Canada—42 per cent more than in 1937. The imports of apples from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and the United States, although slightly higher than in 1937, were still comparatively small.

People throughout Bulgaria earned extra pocket money during the spring by killing flies. As part of a nation-wide campaign against flies the authorities in Sofia offered one cent for every 50 dead flies delivered to them before hot weather. Some swatters turned in several thousand flies.

COW COMES HOME

One of Arson Hacking's Jersey cows got lost about five years ago. Hacking, a Utah farmer, has her back—along with two other cows and a calf. This is Sheriff John S. Evans' version of the renegade bovine's story: His deputies found Hacking's lost bossy in a pasture. Elias Boni, of Leland, said she strayed in about five years ago and he hadn't been able to find the owner. Hacking's critter had three calves and they grew up and one had a calf. Boni was allowed to keep one to settle the deal and Evans returned the others to Hacking.

After several years of continuous decreases, the total number of farm workers in England and Wales, according to British agricultural returns, as at June 3, 1939, showed a gain of 13,200 (2.2 per cent) on 1938.
