CRA (RET.)

Note: The following article relates to Westmount real estate sales recorded by the Independent as having been signed in 2017, as published in monthly columns. The list of 2017 sales begins on p. RE-18.

Buyers spent almost $370 million on Westmount residential property last year, by far the highest sum ever paid out for one- and two-family dwellings in a single year.

The amount involves 207 sales, only four of which were duplexes, while three were double sales: one a combined sale of two single-family dwellings, another a single-family and a duplex, and the third was a single-family plus a tract of land. The first of those was the highest-priced residential sale in Westmount's history, $13.5 million for the huge mansion at 14 Sunnyside Ave. along with its coach house, at 12 Sunnyside, which had been divided into two properties during the property's sometimes-stormy history over the past half-century.

The next two highest prices both cleared $8 million, including 58 Belvedere

2017 year-end review: record total spent

Place in October and 757 Lexington Ave. in February 2017. Three sales were in the $5-million to $6-million bracket and three more between $4 million and $5 million. The highest mark-up over municipal valuation involved 31 Oakland Ave., which sold in July for $2.2 million, virtually double its tax value of $1,102,500. It was one of only five houses to sell last year at a mark-up greater than 50 percent.

On the low side, 111 Irvine Ave., a quaint rowhouse, sold in February for $665,000, the only one- or two-family dwelling to sell for less than $700,000. The next-lowest price was for 1227-27A Greene Ave., exactly $700,000 in May, for a single-family house (despite the two addresses) that had a municipal valuation of $1,287,500, thus by far the biggest mark-down of the month, 45.6 percent. That house had been put on the market in February last year asking $1,500,000, but needed "major repairs," according to the listing.

Overall last year, the average price among one- and two-family dwellings was $1,784,690, compared to an average price of $1,556,183 for 2016 and about the same numbers for 2013 and 2014. With a price-valuation ratio of 110.2 percent, that means the "typical" Westmount house last year, evaluated at $1,575,722, would have sold for $1,737,024, only slightly less than the raw average price. If we look at the year on a monthly basis, the adjusted value in January would have been about $1,644,000 and by December the figure had grown to $1,900,000. This compares to an island-wide median price for December of $425,000, according to the Greater Montreal Real Estate Board.

14 Sunnyside Ave., highest price of the year, sold (with 12 Sunnyside) in March for $13.5 million.

The 207 one- and two-family residential sales last year is the highest annual volume since 2007 and only the third time in this century that volume cleared 200 sales. Monthly volume – which usually peaks in summer months – stayed reasonably even over most of last year, varying between 15 and 24 sales per month, except for January (11) and December (8).

Three houses sold twice during 2017, including 59 Arlington Ave., which was purchased for $950,000 in August, then sold continued on p. RE-6 for $1,100,000 in October; 589 Côte St. Antoine Rd. brought only $838,000 in February, then $1,125,000 in August; and 640 Grosvenor Ave. sold for $1,080,000 in April and then $1,885,000 in November.

Condos: many units in new buildings sold

The last two years have shown a remarkable shift to condominium purchases: between 2010 and 2015, the city averaged 38.5 sales per year, then in 2016 the number jumped to 64, and 63 last year. Much of this, of course, involves the new condo buildings in Westmount; in last year's list, 15 apartments at 215 Redfern

St. Stephen's Church/Open Door drop-in centre, sold in August for $2.4 million.

1100 Atwater Ave., sold in April for $10 million.

Ave. sold, 10 of which were from the developer and all but one for less than the municipal valuation (though the re-sales are much closer to the assessed value). At 175 Metcalfe Ave., five sales were registered in 2017, only one of which was a re-sale. Among other buildings, 399 Clarke Ave. experienced four sales during the year and 1 Wood Ave. had five.

Duplexes & triplexes

Among made-over duplexes/triplexes that had changed their status to condominiums, 10 sales were registered during 2017, while another six flats changed hands in buildings whose status had not changed, thus were sold as shares of those buildings.

111 Irvine, lowest house price of the year at $665,000.

Other sales which came to The Independent's attention during the year include the large 1100 Atwater Ave. building – formerly the Royal Bank computer data centre – which sold to a downtown Montreal developer for $10 million last April and is now in the process of complete refurbishment. The Hillside Armoury, 1-3 Hillside Ave., sold in July but is designated by the city as a heritage property, perhaps a reason that its refurbishment is taking much longer to negotiate. The same might be said about St. Stephen's Church/Open Door homeless shelter, whose sale last August recently came to our attention.

Sales of commercial property include two condominium spaces underneath 1 Wood Ave., with addresses at 4055 St.

31 Oakland Ave., biggest mark-up over valuation of the year, 99.5 percent.

Catherine St., and a commercial building at 4910 Sherbrooke St.

The former Hillside Armoury, 1-3 Hillside, sold in July for $3,025,000.

The view south from Prince Albert and St. Catherine on May 8. Photo: Independent.

There was a mechanical arm visible from Prince Albert and St. Catherine on May 8, where activity related to the Vendôme pedestrian tunnel to the MUHC’s Glen hospital is happening on hospital land south of the CP tracks.

The arm was gone by May 11.

A cease-work order for the site was issued by the city of Westmount on March 2. In a reply email to the Independent on May 10, Marina Brzeski, city councillor for the district, said “To date, no new work has been authorized to take place on city of Westmount grounds at the Glen site.

“However, the city of Westmount received a request from the STM [Société de transports de Montréal] to carry out certain work at the Glen site over a short duration (max. one week), which will be allowed. [The] nature of the work (on concrete) is not very noisy and will be carried out during daytime hours only.”

She predicted the permit would be issued on May 11 or 14.

Almost as many Westmount real estate buyers were married in China as in Quebec, the latest 6-month count of title deed data shows.

At least 30 buyers of Westmount residential property in the second six months of 2017 were married in China, compared to 33 who had been married in Quebec. The next-highest numbers show only five who were married in the United States and three in Ontario.

While it is nearly impossible to gauge the nationality of buyers with any accuracy, a study of the deeds of sale usually includes information on the location of married buyers' weddings, since this indicates the types of marriage contracts that might, eventually, affect the disposition of the property in the cases of death, divorce or family partition.

Of 270 deeds of sale that the Independent covered in 2017, notaries included information about the marital status of the buyer 195 times, and in 15 other cases the buyer was a corporation or trust, which obviously had no marital status. Another 25 revealed single buyers, that is, unmarried, while 9 more were bought by two persons, both of them unmarried, and 12 more were divorced.

Thus, 149 title deeds last year reported the country in which the buyer or buyers were married. Of those, 66 or 44 percent were married in Quebec, while 51 were married in China. The numbers for the first half-year favoured the Quebec-married buyers 33-21, and though the number of Quebec-married buyers stayed the same in the second half of the year, the number married in China jumped significantly.

Chinese investment in the Westmount market is part of a national trend that probably started in Vancouver and spread to Toronto, but as prices there began to soar – to the point that provincial governments tried to impose special non-resident taxes to try to slow down those markets, with some success – it appears interest began to grow in Westmount. House prices jumped 12 percent last year compared to the year before and some 20 percent by the end of the year (see separate article, p. RE-3); how much of this is because of the influx of Chinese buyers is hard to determine, considering the improvement to the Montreal economy.

The Montreal Gazette ran a story in January about the influx of Chinese buyers on the West Island, and the Financial Post followed up with an article in March.

"It doesn't matter to them if they pay $1.7 million or $2.3 million for a home," Richard Kurland, a Vancouver-based immigration lawyer and policy analyst, is quoted as telling whichmortgage.ca. "Folks from Hong Kong see the prices here as a joke. It's so much cheaper here."

Parking line dispute on Victoria

Horns sounded at the Victoria Ave. entrance to the Metro grocery store's parking lot on May 11 as one driver tried to turn in from the southbound direction. It would seem that drivers objected to that car cutting the perceived queue from Victoria northbound and/or blocking traffic on its way to Sherbrooke.

Victoria Hall's many faces

Bowling, Masons, fire, rebuilding and renovation

CAROLINE BRESLAW

The arched doorways of Victoria Hall welcome us to a myriad of events and activities – the Friends of the Library book sales, the Artisans’ Festival, dramatic presentations, concerts, large gatherings, classes, and much more. In 1898, as the Westmount Public Library was being built, residents asked for a community centre to be included in the new park. Robert Findlay, the library’s architect, designed a building matching its architectural style and materials.

Victoria Jubilee Hall was opened in 1899. It housed a large auditorium, a Masonic lodge room, music studios, a meeting hall and swimming baths. Later, a bowling alley and billiard room were added. A fire in 1924 destroyed the much-loved building.

A stone Victoria Hall was built in 1925 by the firm of Hutchison and Wood. Its castle-like appearance, with a central tower and turrets, is very like Westmount city hall, built three years earlier.

The Westmount YMCA had opened across the street in 1912, so some of the former sports facilities were no longer needed. The new municipal centre had a large hall with a balcony and stage. Many concerts and dances took place there in the 1930s and 1940s, with the young Oscar Peterson and the Johnny Holmes Band performing. Since 1979, its basement has been joined to Manoir Westmount, a seniors’ residence run by the Rotary Club, and houses its dining room, lounges and kitchen.

Victoria Hall was completely renovated and restored in 1998 by Fournier, Gersovitz & Moss. In 1999, the same architectural firm designed the Gallery at Victoria Hall, matching the exterior of the adjoining building.

Victoria Hall forms part of the cultural and recreational heart of the city in Westmount Park.
