CHINA HURLS DEFIANT CHARGE AS PROTEST AGAINST JAPANESE MOVE

Bombing of Bridge and Attempt to Wreck Troop Train Chinese Answer to Japan's Action in Despatching More Troops to North China—Intelligent Chinese Sources Fear Such Incidents Might Be Welcomed by Japan as Pretext for Armed Intervention in Chinese Domestic Affairs.

Tientsin, May 30.—China delivered an answer today to Japan's actions in despatching more troops to northern garrisons with destruction of a bridge at Chuanliangchen, between Tangku and Tientsin, and an attempted wrecking of a Japanese troop train near Tientsin.

The incidents occurred without casualties, but Japanese military authorities took a grave view of the situation. Intelligent Chinese sources deplored the episodes, declaring Japan might welcome such occurrences as a pretext for armed intervention in North China.

The two incidents occurred last night just after Japan, over-riding Chinese protests, landed three thousand fresh troops for its North China garrisons, bringing its military strength here to nearly ten thousand men.

Apparently seeking to block trains bearing the newly-arrived Japanese reinforcements into the interior, unknown persons blew up the Chuanliangchen bridge on the Peiping-Liaoning railroad between Tientsin and Tangku, eastern port where the troops were landed.

Train service between Tientsin and Shanhaikwan, at the eastern end of China's Great Wall, was suspended, and one train, loaded with Japanese troops, failed to arrive here from Tangku.

Complicating the already serious situation, another Japanese military train bringing infantry reinforcements to Tientsin narrowly escaped destruction when a charge of explosives was set off under the rails over which the cars were running. Only a number of Japanese army horses were injured.

Japanese military authorities instituted an investigation immediately.

The two new North China explosions contributed to a growing array of incidents, charges and counter-charges adding to Sino-Japanese tension.

The Japanese have replied that increased military power was necessary to protect their interests in North China.

The Domei (Japanese) news agency quoted Yukihiro Suma, Japanese Consul-General at Nanking, as saying the situation was becoming such that "China must choose between dependence on Japan or war with Japan."

WOULD PLACE YOUTHS IN RESPONSIBLE POSITIONS

Placing Youths of Less than Thirty Years on School Boards and Council Seats Favored by Federal Minister of Agriculture.

Calgary, May 30.—Development of young men and women by placing them in responsible positions is advocated by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture.

In an address to the Women's Liberal Association here last night, the minister said citizens of less than thirty years of age might well be placed on half the school board and council seats. The same policy should be pursued in electing members of the provincial legislatures and House of Commons.

Responsibility of such positions would give young folk essential experience.

INTERNATIONAL UNDERSTANDING URGED BY KING

Premier Declares Opposition Leader Struck "Jingoistic Note" in Advocating Canada Should Be Ready to Defend Itself by Military Means from Possible Aggression.

Ottawa, May 30.—The second national convention of the Twentieth Century Liberal Association today will hear an address by Hon. Ian MacKenzie, Minister of Defence, after listening last night to a speech by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, urging, among other things, efforts by Canada to promote international understanding and resist possible efforts to spread atheism.

Condemning what he termed "jingoistic influences in Europe seeking to promote atheism and materialism," the Prime Minister said: "So far as it is in the power of the Government to do so, Canada will be kept sacred from such endeavors."

He expressed gratification that Conservative leader R. B. Bennett had stressed in London, Ont., two days ago the gravity of some present-day tendencies.

Nevertheless, he suggested Mr. Bennett in his speech at London struck a "jingoistic note" in advocating that Canada should be ready to defend itself by military means from possible aggression.

The Prime Minister dealt with the unemployment situation and the disengagement of troops to the outlook of youth. But, he suggested, the dual spectre of a past war coupled with unemployment possibly cast a darker shadow over the lives of older persons than on those of youths who had not known war and its ravages.

He declared there was no single solution to these problems and that all helpful agencies were needed if solutions were to be found. He said he felt no better agency existed to help put the state on the right path than a political party determined to do right.

"Liberalism" he said "is a living vital force which can be destroyed only when you destroy the love of freedom in the human breast." "He contrasted the Liberal attitude with that manifested in Germany, Italy and Russia where, he said, the individual existed to serve the state.

FUNDAMENTALISTS PLAN TO CREATE NEW CHURCH

Defeated in Initial Test of Strength Before Church's "High Court," U.S. Presbyterian Fundamentalists Will Break Away from General Assembly.

Syracuse, N.Y., May 30.—Defeated in an initial test of its strength before the church's "High Court," the minority fundamentalist or "independent" branch of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America pushed forward today with plans for organization next month of a separate church.

The 148th assembly, sitting as a Court of Jesus Christ, accepted recommendations yesterday of the permanent judicial commission ruling against the fundamentalist faction in eleven out of seventeen disciplinary cases involving the twelve-year-old fundamentalist-modernist issue. The remaining six will be acted upon early next week.

PARADOXICAL TOUCH ADDED TO JEWISH-ARAB DISORDERS

Jerusalem, May 30.—A paradoxical touch was added to the Jewish-Arab disorders today when Arabs rushed to deposit money in Jewish banks.

Arab banks had notified them that after June 1st they would be requested to contribute ten per cent of their savings to the Arab general strike fund.

FISTICUFFS REPLACE TONGUES IN QUEBEC LEGISLATIVE ARGUMENTS

Sessions of Public Accounts Committee Climaxed by Exchange of Blows Between Quebec Opposition Member and Witness—Budget Debate to Be Resumed on Tuesday with No Indication that End of Argument Is in Sight—Routine Matters Handled at Brief Session Yesterday.

Quebec, May 30.—Debate on the budget will be resumed in the Quebec Legislature on Tuesday. Nobody spoke on this debate yesterday and the House handled only routine matters in a brief session before adjourning.

June 30 ends the Government's fiscal year, but as yet there is no tangible sign the budget debate would be concluded by that date. All last week Opposition members took the floor to criticize the Tascheau administration. They told the Chamber they would continue to prolong the debate.

The Public Accounts Committee hearing stole the show from the Legislature. It was climaxed by an exhibition of fisticuffs late yesterday between Dr. Philippe Hamel, A.L.N., member for Quebec Centre, and Fernand Choquette, K.C., attorney for the Quebec Liquor Commission.

The clash occurred after the meeting had adjourned. Dr. Hamel objected to a remark of Mr. Choquette, believing it reflected upon his party. He struck the attorney on the jaw, but friends parted them before Choquette had an opportunity to retaliate.

Both men refused to discuss the incident afterwards. The Quebec Centre member declared if he had anything to say he would say it in the House. Mr. Choquette promised a declaration today.

Choquette, during the committee hearing, told Opposition leader Duplessis of monies paid him (Choquette) by the Government in his capacity as prosecuting attorney for the Quebec Liquor Commission. He mentioned a $4,000 cheque received after the last provincial elections when he was defeated as a Government candidate in Montmagny. It was for services rendered in the prosecution of the $1,000,000 liquor smuggling ring uncovered by Royal Canadian Mounted Police three years ago, he said.

HOUSE PASSES TRANSPORT AND CUSTOMS BILLS

With Political Gatherings Attracting Majority of Members Away from House of Commons, Skeleton Attendance Makes Good Headway.

Ottawa, May 30.—There were many empty seats in the House of Commons yesterday but business went ahead at a rapid rate. Large numbers of Liberal and Conservative members were absent attending party functions, but the few left to man the Green Chamber pushed two Government bills through and approved almost all the estimates for the departments of the Interior and Mines.

Government supporters were few because of the annual meeting of the Twentieth Century Liberal Association in Ottawa and many of the Conservatives who journeyed to Toronto for the Ontario Conservative convention on Thursday had not returned.

The bills passed were those "respecting the transportation of goods by water," sponsored by Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Marine, and amending the Customs Act, sponsored by Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue.

The first measure brings Canadian law governing the relations of ship-owners and shippers of goods into conformity with the laws of Great Britain and the United States. The other defines Canadian waters and Canadian customs waters, and clarifies and enlarges the powers of preventive officers in enforcing the customs laws and stopping and searching ships along the coasts.

A programme of road-building in mining areas was outlined by Hon. T. A. Cramer, Minister of Interior and Mines as his estimates were reviewed. An appropriation of $1,500,000 to be used for the purpose of improving transportation in areas where mining development is established or assured. The improvements will be made in agreement with the provinces, and for every dollar the provinces put up the Dominion will put up two.

ANN HARDING'S EX-HUBBY TAKES OUT A WARRANT

Failing to Stop Movie Actress from Sailing for England, Harry Bannister Charges Former Wife with Abducting Their Child.

Quebec, May 30.—Harry Bannister, former husband of Ann Harding, swore out a warrant today for the arrest of the stage and screen star on a charge of abducting their daughter, eight year old Jane.

The charge was laid under section 316 of the Criminal Code regarding abduction of a child under fourteen years of age. It was laid at the police court where Bannister appeared with his lawyer shortly before the noon hour.

The former newspaperman failed in his chase here to stop his wife and child from sailing for England. The screen star had intended sailing with her party on the liner Empress of Australia until she learned her husband was flying after her from New York.

Then she and her lawyers sprang a surprise. They changed their booking to the Atholl, passing Quebec last night from Montreal. They boarded the vessel from a tender in midstream.

ALBERTA BONDHOLDERS TO FORM PROTECTIVE GROUP

Edmonton Financial Men Form Organization to Co-operate with Eastern Interests Following Action of Alberta Government in Cutting Interest.

Edmonton, May 30.—With formation of an Edmonton bondholders' protective organization decided upon by financial men here, Alberta's Social Credit Government planned providing for compulsory reduction of interest on the province's public debt effective Monday.

Bond dealers and representatives of trust and mortgage firms decided at a meeting last night to form a protective committee to consider action to be taken on the government's decision to cut interest payments on provincial issues from an average rate of 4.80 per cent to an average of 2.5 per cent.

The bond dealers will meet again next week to complete organization with a view to co-operating with similar possible movements in Eastern Canada. Attitude of bondholders toward the interest cut will be sounded.

DOMINION AND ONTARIO AGREE ON WATER RENT

Attorney General Announces that Settlement of Trent River and Welland Canal Power Dispute Will Permit Speeding of "Back-to-Niagara" Policy.

Toronto, May 30.—Its dispute with the Dominion as to rights on the Trent river and Welland canal "happily and satisfactorily settled," Ontario went on today with its programme of power development, while those in the eastern part of the province were assured of reduced charges.

Ontario has obtained full control of the Trent river at reduced cost, and the Dominion Government's charges for water for the Welland canal for use at Decew Falls are cut in two, Attorney-General Roebuck announced yesterday following his return from a conference with federal officials at Ottawa.

"The full control of the Trent river at reduced cost and with added power will result in lower charges and additional service to the people of the Eastern district," he said. "The reduction of water charges was a vital element in the Hydro Commission's programme of Niagara development."

"The Commission has plans for the development of continuous power at Queenston in considerable figures which, if carried to completion, will supply the steady demand of the system for many years to come, and the further storage basin capacity at Decew Falls will make possible, some time in the future, the furnishing of an additional 250,000 horsepower to handle short periods of daily demand."

"This settlement agreement is a major step in the Commission's policy of 'Back to Niagara,'" he said, speaking of the importance of possibilities of building a great reservoir at Gibson Lake.

The dispute between the two governments had reached the point where the Ontario Commission had refused all payments for water rentals both on the Welland canal and the Trent river, it was explained.

The Attorney-General also spoke of possibilities of developing power in Northern Ontario, but emphasized such plans were not under consideration now.

QUEEN MARY SETS UP NEW RECORD FOR FULL DAY'S WESTWARD TRIP

British Pride of the Seas Covered 766 Miles in Twenty-Five Hours Between Noon Friday and Noon Today, Ship's Time—Made Average Speed of 30.64 Knots During Record Run—Although Officials Insist No Intention of Attempting to Break Record, Great Liner Remains in Position to Do So.

Aboard R. M. S. Queen Mary, En Route to New York, May 30.—The British liner Queen Mary today broke the record of the French ship Normandie for mileage in a full day's westward run across the Atlantic Ocean.

The Queen Mary's officers announced the great liner had covered 766 miles in the twenty-five hours between Friday at noon and today at noon (ship's time).

The Normandie's record was 734 miles but she covered it in a shorter day of twenty-four hours two minutes last June. The French liner, therefore, still leads in average speed per hour.

The British giant of the seas averaged 30.64 knots per hour during her record run. The Normandie's average speed for the slightly shorter time was 31.37 knots.

CONTENDERS FOR HONORS CROSSED ON HIGH SEAS

Aboard the R.M.S. Queen Mary, En Route to New York, May 30.—The British liner Queen Mary and the French Normandie, contenders for trans-Atlantic crossing honors, passed on the high seas today with an exchange of wireless greetings.

The two giant liners did not sight each other.

SHIP STILL IN POSITION TO ESTABLISH NEW RECORD

Aboard the R.M.S. Queen Mary en route to New York, May 30.—Running close to her French rival's record, the great British liner Queen Mary increased her speed early today to normal life at sea.

With weather conditions still favorable on this third day at sea, it was indicated unofficially the liner was running slightly better than thirty-one knots at 3:45 a.m., Greenwich time (11:45 p.m. Friday, Eastern Daylight Time).

Cunard-White Star Line officials insisted there was no intention of attempting to capture the honors for trans-Atlantic speed from the maiden voyage to North America, but the Queen Mary remained in an apparent position to do so.

The Queen Mary covered 747 nautical miles in her run from noon Thursday to noon yesterday, with an average speed for that period of 29.76 knots.

In the night watches, however, the Queen Mary has been given bursts of speed such as that this morning. How fast she actually travels in these spurts is one of her mysteries. The only information available officially is the day's run and the average speed.

The passengers are settling down to normal life at sea. The more athletic find stimulation in Lord Burghley's record round the promenade. The great Olympic hurdler covered this slightly less than a third of a mile distance, untrained and without changing into running apparel, in about fifty-eight seconds. It is a record that won't be broken this trip.

Purchasers through the shops in "Piccadilly Circus." Many by the decorative dolls in peasant costumes made in Europe. Many find joy in the daily movie show. Others exploring the third class quarters return full of wonderment at the luxury of everything. The Queen Mary, contrary to the old stereotype idea, carries a third class forward, where vibration is scarcely noticeable.

Sixty-three newspaper writers are aboard and wireless facilities are being taxed to capacity.

British and American writers comprise most of the total, but there is a sprinkling from other countries, including Canada. In addition the vessel's progress is being broadcast to half a dozen countries, and British, American, French, Swedish, Norwegian and Danish announcers are on board.

A liaison officer attached to the purser's staff is on hand to co-operate with newspapermen, but the bulk of the news is obtained from the ordinary bulletin boards, and in exploratory journeys around the huge vessel.

MOTHER HANGS CHILDREN BEFORE TAKING OWN LIFE

Widow, "Tired of the Battle of Life," Had Frequently Told Neighbors She "Wanted Her Children to Go with Her" when She Died.

Dunkirk, May 30.—A widowed mother, "tired of the battle of life," hanged her two little children from a single bedpost and then "singed" herself, Chief of Police John J. Warren said.

A stepson found the children's bodies, half reclining on a bed, strips of oilcloth tightly drawn about their throats. The mother's body lay in a corner of the room, the end of a broken nose made from a strip of bed quilted out her throat. The nose had been fastened to a crib and her weight had broken it.

The mother was Mrs. Elizabeth Higgins, aged forty-five, the children, Patricia, seven, and Richard, six. The children were in their night clothes, and Coroner George Blood said he believed the mother killed them shortly after the stepson, Joseph H. Higgins, aged thirty-five, left the house for work.

The stepson, who helped support the family since the father's death about three years ago, and the mother had been ill almost a year. The authorities quoted neighbors as saying she told them she was

MAY COLLECT REWARD FOR WIDOW OF SLAIN OFFICER

$1,200 Reward Offered by Ontario Authorities for Capture of Gunman Pal of "Red" Ryan Cannot Be Claimed by U. S. Immigration Inspectors.

Bellingham, Wash., May 30.—No attempt will be made by United States immigration and customs inspectors at Blaine, Wash., to collect the $1,200 reward offered by Ontario authorities for the capture of Edward McMullen, gunman pal of Norman "Red" Ryan.

McMullen, wanted in Toronto for the slaying of Edwin Stenhouse at Markham, Ont., is in a Seattle hospital, near death from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head after he had shot and killed immigration inspector Charles Flachs at the Blaine customs house on Thursday.

Regulations prohibit customs officers from sharing in any reward, it was stated.

However, it was reported a movement was started to claim the reward for Mrs. Flachs, widow of the slain officer.

"Tired of the battle of life" and that she "wanted the children to go with her" when she died.

DEANES MAGILL PAID VISIT TO MINES OFFICE

Minister of Mines Michael Dwyer Declares that He Did Not Know "Officially or Unofficially" that Moose River Mine Was Operating.

Halifax, May 30.—Gold came out of Moose River mine after the gold shaft was reopened by Toronto interests but the Nova Scotia Government knew nothing of the resumed operations, the testimony of Mines Minister Dwyer showed today.

He held a Government Commission yesterday he had been without knowledge of resumed operation of the shaft which claimed the life of Herman R. Magill, Toronto barrister, and held Alfred Scadding and Dr. E. Robertson prisoners in its depths for ten days after a collapse on the 141-foot level.

Mr. Dwyer said he did not know "officially or unofficially" that the mine was in operation and declared he had not seen Magill, part owner of the property, from the time work was reported to have started until the Toronto body was taken from the crumbled mine.

In the testimony of Felix Henderson, manager of the seventy-five year old mine, the Commission heard previously, however, that Henderson had been advised by Magill that the Mines Department was aware operations had resumed.

Magill had told him of visits to the Mines Department and talks with the Minister, Henderson said. The evidence was contradicted, not only by the Mines Minister's testimony but by Catherine Wall, of the Mines Department, who said she kept a record of visitors to the mine.

She could not find any trace of Magill's reported visits in her records, she said, although Henderson had testified that Magill told him on one occasion he had visited the Minister twice in one day.

Eggs and printing are being considered as subjects for sub-codes under the Trade and Industry Act. Mr. Manning stated, while Edmonton district carpenters and Calgary district plasterers, painters and lathers were ready to adopt schedules of wages and working conditions in their trade.

ITALY STUDIES TRADING POLICIES IN ETHIOPIA

Rome, May 30.—En route from this Fascist capital to conquered Ethiopia, an Italian airplane sped southward today, bearing a committee of experts charged with devising means for the economic exploitation of the Ancient Empire.

In addition to studying prospective mercantile centres and caravan routes by which Italian goods may be brought to the native tribes, the committee will seek an agreement concerning the French-owned Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad, which Premier Mussolini is reportedly eager to purchase.

According to Il Duce's present intention, the Ethiopian financial problem will be met by substituting the lire for the Maria Thaler as the national currency.

WIDELY-KNOWN MINISTER ENDS NOTED CAREER

Death Claims Canon of Westminster Abbey and Recognized Authority on Art and Music in Relation to Church Worship.

London, May 30. — Rev. Percy Dearmer, who claimed to be the originator of the idea of burying an unknown soldier in Westminster Abbey, died suddenly last night.

He is generally believed, however, that this commemorative idea arose in more than one mind.

Dearmer was sixty-nine years old. He was considered one of the greatest Anglican authorities on art and music in relation to church worship and practice. His efforts were particularly directed to showing Anglo-Catholics that they had strayed considerably from primitive usages in much of their present-day ceremonial.

He performed highly valuable work as joint editor first of the English Hymnal and later of Songs of Praise.

Dearmer had been Canon of Westminster since 1931 and professor of ecclesiastical art at King's College, London, since 1919. He has widely travelled. In 1915, during the World War, he was chaplain to the British Red Cross in Serbia. In 1918 he was on a mission of help in India. He lectured in India, Japan and the United States between 1917 and 1919.

Dearmer edited or wrote many books on ecclesiastical and other subjects. They included a popular edition history of the English Church, a popular edition history of the prayer book, "Art and Religion," "A Short Hand-Book of Public Worship" and "Christianity and the Crisis," published in 1933.

Recent visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Michael McMahon's include Mr. and Mrs. Brophy, of Montreal, Mrs. Michael Royston and Mrs. Bullard, of Dunham.

Miss Marchessault, of Montreal, spent the week-end and holiday with her sister, Mrs. Picard and Dr. Picard.

New York, May 30. — All important security and commodity markets in the United States with the exception of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange were closed today in observance of Memorial Day.

INFLUENCE OF CEZANNE IS EVIDENT IN NEWEST GOWNS

Exposition of Painter's Works Inspiring Couturiers Just as Chinese Art Exposition in London Did at Beginning of Year.

Paris, May 30.—The gowns of next season will show the influence of Cezanne.

The exposition of the painter's works which just opened in Paris, is inspiring the couturiers in their creation of next fall's gowns just as the Chinese Art Exposition in London did at the beginning of the year.

In the collections which will be shown in the next few weeks the lines are simple, the narrow fitted skirt still marks the normal waist-line with a creased look, but the materials are supple and give freedom of movement necessary to modern life.

The shoulders are still widened by full sleeves of the leg-of-mutton type.

EXPECT EARLY SETTLEMENT OF FRENCH METAL STRIKE

Paris, May 30.—Striking French metal workers, encamped in half-a-dozen factories in the Paris region, mapped plans today for dropping their occupations and enjoying the week-end Whitsuntide holidays.

Their leaders predicted a settlement before nightfall of the "folded arm" strikes estimated to have involved 80,000 men in automobile, airplane and munitions factories.

After employers expressed willingness to enter into collective bargaining, work or ended their factory occupations, the workers were ready to return to their posts in establishments agreeing to sign collective bargaining contracts.

SPORTING NOTES

THIRTY-THREE RACERS SEEK SPEEDWAY LAURELS

Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—With motors roaring and spectators breathlessly excited, thirty-three of the fastest race drivers in the United States lined up their tiny streamlined cars three abreast this morning and awaited the explosion of a bomb at 10 a.m. C.S.T., (12 noon, E.D.T.), starting the five hundred-mile automobile race over the Indianapolis road speedway.

The field was the fastest ever to roll up to the starting line in America's speed classic. Not one of the thirty-three roaring cars had surged through the twenty-five mile qualifying test at less than 111 miles an hour. As a result of this terrific speed, records for the race were in danger.

The race, the twenty-fourth of its kind, annually attracts the largest sporting crowd of the year in the United States and officials were hopeful of breaking the record 1935 crowd of 140,000 at the recently rebuilt and remodelled speedway.

Prizes totalling $100,000 dangled before the speeding drivers with $20,000 going to the winner.

CANADIAN GOLD INDEX AT NEW HIGH FOR YEAR

Continued Strength of Sterling More than Offsets Slightly Lower Price of Gold on London Market—Newer Issues Found Difficulty in Maintaining Advance.

Toronto, May 30. — Speculative interest on Toronto markets continues to centre in the Canadian gold stocks to the partial exclusion of other mining stocks and the industrial. Excitement was intensified this week by the more bullish demonstration in the veterans of the yellow metal list, emphasized by the advance of Dome and Lake Shore to prices exceeding all previous highs. Trading in the big group expanded to the heaviest volume in some weeks.

The gradual advance of prices for the golds over the last two weeks brought the Toronto Exchange gold share index to a new high level for the year yesterday at 138.16. The high of 135.81, set on February 4, stood till this week with the indicator dipping to 115.97 in the interim.

The London gold bar quotation has been easing down a little in recent weeks but the situation is right-line for Canadian producers by the strength of sterling which holds around the five dollar level.

The best move of the week on the Toronto mining section was Dome's gain of two dollars to $60. The price touched $61 on the Toronto market yesterday compared with a previous high of $59.35.

Some of the newer golds were kept busy trying to retain part of the gains accumulated somewhat speedily in the previous two weeks. Hard Rock and McLeod-Clackshutt were subjected to heavy selling, the former declining twenty-five cents and the latter twenty-five cents. Buffalo-Ankerite also paid the penalty for hardness on the rise and it declined eighty-five cents to $7.

Noranda firmed with the golds, helped also by the announcement of an increase in the current dividend payment. The close yesterday at $56.75 was up $1.75 for the week. The copper and silver side of the market picture was not particularly glowing. Hudson Bay had a drop of $1.50, Falconbridge added twenty cents and the cheap coppers were off a few cents each. Silver issues drifted within a narrow range in quiet trading. Only a few of the oil listings of the mining section showed action and these were strong. Royalite gained twenty-five cents and Home Oil fifteen cents.

Trading continued on a small scale in the industrial share markets with groups moving independently of others and holding the price balance about even. Metals, utilities and foods were fairly strong, offsetting weakness in the oil and distillery issues.

Strong spots in the utilities and steels were Montreal Power Shawinigan, Pressed Metals and Dominion Bridge. International Nickel and P.R. added fifty cents to one dollar and Bell Telephone three dollars.

Those who braved the storm to come felt well repaid, as the continned and hearty applause showed. As in past years, the play was splendidly given. The Ayer's Cliff players have earned a name for themselves and "The Road Home," proved to be of the same high standard. The play was staged under the direction of Mrs. McVey. Each actor seemed "born" to the part and too much praise cannot be given to their coach. Following the play, refreshments were served in the dining room by the Ladies' Guild. half the cast, thanked the Guild for their help and refreshments. Rev. B. Watson replied, assuring them of the pleasure provided by their evening's entertainment and that all would look forward to a play next year.

The Chain Store Tax.

The private bills committee of the Quebec Legislature displayed wisdom in rejecting a proposed amendment to many civic charters providing for a heavy tax on chain stores operating in the various municipalities. Not only would this be legislation of a most discriminatory type, singling out a certain branch of commerce for unjustified levies, not for the purpose of revenue but rather with the idea of forcing it out of business, but it holds many dangers not readily apparent on the surface.

Although designed principally to suppress chain food stores, it could easily be made to apply to departmental stores, insurance offices, theatres or in fact any form of commercial activity. Carried to its logical conclusion it would result in the disintegration of the country into a series of separate, commercial principalities, the citizens of one town being virtually prohibited from trading in another, with trade and industry generally suffering.

But aside from the probable result of the tax proposals is the question of justice to the chain stores themselves. True enough, the chain stores bring certain evils in their train. But they also bring many benefits.

The entry of a chain store into a community is generally followed by a lowering in prices to the public. Store sites are leased at good rentals, they purchase when possible from local farmers, improved merchandizing methods are introduced and business generally is speeded up. The local merchant admittedly meets with keener competition, but the efficient dealer adopts an up-to-date policy, advertises his wares, and continues to make money. The inefficient dealer passes out, probably a little quicker than he would under ordinary conditions.

A Call For United Action.

A clarion call to Canadian politicians to cease their party bickerings and unite in the formation of a political party resolved to "put the interests of country before race, class or place," was sounded yesterday by Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian Minister to Washington. "The forces of dis-union are 'on the march,' and only the power of the Canadian people, one and indivisible, can turn them back," was the warning Major Herridge sounded before the Hamilton Canadian Club.

This declaration forms a definite and clear-cut challenge to Canadian statesmen. Not a challenge to any particular party or government body, but to all statesmen and to all administrative bodies.

In the Dominion Parliament, in provincial legislatures and in the municipal councils, precious time is being wasted on needless debate. Government proposals are opposed by the Opposition groups for no other reason than that they are Government measures. Suggestions from the left of the Speaker are pigeon-holed merely because they did not originate with the ruling party and, therefore, hold promise for a little credit for the Opposition.

Delay, uncertainty and confusion reign in the halls of Parliament instead of the speed and directness that should prevail. Many important matters urgently require settlement. The Dominion Government should immediately tackle the railway problem. The Quebec administration should advance its social reform policies without delay. Coming closer to home, the Sherbrooke City Council should be making headway with plans to provide the citizens with purer water.

But small groups are continually placing wrenches in the wheels of progress, and in the meantime, as Major Herridge warns, the forces of dis-union are on the march. Fresh difficulties are continually besetting the path of Confederation and they can only be repelled by a determined and united people. A country torn with political dissension cannot conquer.

True Greatness.

Grenville Kleiser.

If your heart is daily growing great and generous, if you are taking increased interest in the common happiness of others, if you are earnestly endeavoring to fill the hours of the day with useful work, if you are frequently making earnest supplication to God for guidance and wisdom, then be assured you are progressing toward the kingdom. The way to peace, happiness and perfection has been implicitly pointed out to you. You are to practice humility, serve and glorify God in your body and in your spirit, run with patience the race that is set before you, and let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven. The way is plain to every sincere disciple of truth.

The vital step to the apprehension of truth is to desire it sincerely and earnestly. To make truth wholly yours, you must both understand and practically apply it. You will better appreciate the value and importance of truth when you seriously consider that erroneous thinking is the chief cause of all the sin, disaster, misfortune, sickness and failure in the world. Truth to be properly grasped must be studied for truth's sake. Truth to be of real significance to you must be something more than theory; it must be a vital, personal, demonstrated power in your daily life. There is nothing which will bring to you so much satisfaction and permanent benefit as a profound study of truth. It transcends all material possessions, since it is eternal.

True prayer is co-operative. You can not properly ask God to relieve you of responsibility. You ask Him to make the way clear to you, to give you desire and diligence to labor, to endow you with power equal to your duties and obligations. Prayer is not a substitute for personal effort. Your petition to God must first be right, followed by earnest and intelligent co-operation on your part. Every right prayer is answered, though not always in the precise way you desire. The immediate value of prayer is manifest in its regenerating and uplifting influence upon him who prays, but the larger effect of such prayer can be understood only by the omniscient God. True prayer is receptive, co-operative, confident, and submissive.

There are subtle forms of evil which you should guard yourself against as you would against disease and pestilence. When you feel towards others the first intimation of resentment, envy, contempt, or discontent, annihilate the thought on the instant. Drive it out of your mental world and be done with it. As a great growing personality you should be eager to discover and destroy any weakness in yourself. Let thoughts of appreciation, admiration, approval, gratitude and generosity be uppermost in your mind. The best antidote for evil of any kind is to keep your mind filled with good thoughts and your life occupied with good works. As you ascend in your thought, you will find yourself in a new world of beauty and usefulness.

Editor's Note-Book.

Claude L. Spafford says it feels like old times to be back in his former haunts at the Sherbrooke Machineries, Limited, where he has assumed the management with complete control as to the policy of the company. His many friends are also pleased to see his smiling countenance about the place again.

Mr. Spafford spent twenty-six years making machinery for the pulp and paper industry. He started as an apprentice in the machine shop and worked up to the position of chief engineer of the Jencks Machine Company. In 1915 he became engineer for the Sherbrooke Machinery Company, Limited, and in 1918 was named manager. In 1930 the name of the concern was changed to that of Sherbrooke Machineries, Limited, and Mr. Spafford was appointed managing director. In 1934 he discontinued his active part in the company's management to continue as shareholder and director. In the interim he has been manager of the Philip Carey Company, Limited, a Lennoxville firm engaged in the manufacture of asbestos products, which position he has relinquished to return to his first love.

A persistent traffic discourtesy is simply an accident looking for a good place to happen, in the opinion of Judge J. F. Dickman, of St. Louis.

What Editors Say

MARKING EXAM. PAPERS.

One hears much comment at various times on the close marking of students' examination papers. Even examiners have stated that it is impossible to mark accurately a student's paper to within one or two marks of its value. And yet in various colleges, students have failed to pass by the very small margins of a mark or two. In a subject like mathematics in which the answers are required to be very exact, close marking may be possible; but on the majority of other examination papers written by the student the closest of marking would appear to be impossible, and the "plucking" of a student by a mark is looked upon as unfair, especially when a young man's future life depends upon his examination success. A college professor, who has had thirty-five years' experience in setting examination papers and marking them, tells us that he regards himself as a good examiner but declares it is impossible for any examiner to grade a student to within a mark or so of the value of his written paper.

Parliament Hill Hears...

By Wilfrid Eggleston.

Add to your collection of naive admissions in the House of Commons:

"I do not want to take up any further time because I know we should be conducting the business of the committee. However, since everybody else wants to talk, I am forced to say something. The people in my constituency will think I am dumb. I do not want to be considered a deaf mute, and I must say something at times or next year some of my friends will say that I am not on hand and I may not get any votes."

This came from Irish Dave Spence, of Parkdale Toronto, the outstanding authority on asparagus and roses and other horticultural matters in the House.

The member for Rosetown-Biggar possesses a very military name and at the same time a passion for peace, which sometimes mixes things up. He was christened Major James William Caldwell, the Major standing for an old family name which it was desired to perpetuate. To get around the difficulty of a pacifist bearing such a misleading name, he managed one day to get his friends to call him "M.J." Hardly anyone knew what M. J. stood for, but I wormed it out of him in 1932 when I first interviewed him.

The other day, on the defence estimates, the member for London, F. C. Betts, not being aware of the above, proceeded to twig the Saskatchewan member being such an opponent of expenditure on military matters, and at the same time of having gone to the polls as "Major" James William Caldwell.

It was slightly vulnerable, as an interruption, and the C.C.F. member was able to set his interlocutor straight with a flourish.

I sometimes look down from the Gallery on the House and speculate what it will look like some years from now. Who will be in the front benches then? Which of the obscure back bench members will be leading the Government, or the Opposition. Who will be in the seat of the present Governor? Will J. S. Woodsforth, or Gordon Ross, or Archibald Mitchell, or someone like that be ruling with a rod of democracy? Or will someone not even in Parliament now be the centre of attention?

Nobody can answer those questions. But I amused myself for a few minutes looking back twenty-five years to see where our present leaders were then, and to what extent the commentators of the day saw their brilliant future.

Some of them, of course, were already shining. Quoted in Morgan's "Canadian Men and Women of the Time" (1910) were such illuminating passages as these: "Of our coming statesmen" (late Hon. A. G. Blair); "One of the ablest young men in the Territories" (Mail and Empire).

Of the present Prime Minister, who has just gone a long way, the Canadian Courier was quoted to this effect: "A virile upright man" while Saturday Night, in 1910, said: "A feather in the cap of Sir William Mulock, who discovered him about thirteen years ago."

Arthur Meighen was described as a lawyer and legislator, and the Toronto News saw in him "a man of remarkable keenness of mind and clarity of expression."

The "Who's Who" of that day contained nearly 8,000 names. It did not, however, mention Ernest Lapointe, H. H. Stevens, T. A. Crerar, C. A. Dunning, P. J. Cardin, W. D. Evans, nor several other leaders of today, whose rise to prominence has occurred since. Nor does it include the present Speaker of the Commons, Hon. Pierre Casgrain.

The Speaker of the Senate is there, however. Walter E. Foster is described as a merchant, but his leaning toward public life is foreshadowed by the comment: "A Liberal and a great admirer of Laurier and Fielding; advocates a Maritime Union."

One would hardly expect to see such promising young men in its as Hon. Norman Rogers, and of course he is not, having been only a high school youth at the time. But Morgan does contain a sketch of Mrs. Grace Dean McLeod Rogers, who is described by Dr. Thomas O'Hagan as: "Unquestionably one of the most gifted among Canadian writers."

The "south-east corner" was represented by at least one man, already notable in 1911. Rev. J. S. Woodworth was the "Methodist" as the way he was described. The sketch went on to say that he was "actively interested in philanthropic work—believes in the necessity of practical Christianity that will meet the needs of our modern civilization."

Our elder statesmen were of course a familiar sight. Concerning Sir George Perley (not then knighted) we learn that he is of Welsh descent, and that the name was originally Apperley—a fact which the Parliamentary guide seems to have missed. It was further stated that Sir George's family emigrated to America in 1836, so that if they were in the Mayflower, they were only a few years after it.

Hon. Raoul Dandurand, described as statesman, lawyer and capitalist, was relatively the most prominent of all twenty-five years ago, and was lauded highly in the contemporary press as a "man of great executive ability."

C. H. Caban, similarly, was given extensive space as "a courageous, ready and powerful speaker," which he still is. Another quotation says of him: "as promoter, a winning hand; as corporation lawyer, a great success."

Hon. Charles Marcell, the dean of the present House, was of course already a man widely known, and is described as "a wholesome, genial, tactful gentleman."

Dr. Arthur Beauchamp, the Clerk of the House, finds a place in Morgan along with his father, who sat for Bonaventure at one time. The present Clerk is described as a journalist, and now (1911) about to edit a new journal in Montreal, to be started in opposition to Le Devoir.

WHAT NEEDS IS THE TWELFTH GRADE MEETING?

W. P. PERCIVAL, M.A., Ph. D., Director of Protestant Education for the Province of Quebec.

The frontiers of knowledge are ever widening. The extension of man's enlightenment will necessitate better trained and more fully furnished minds in the future than the education of even a generation ago provided.

Closely allied with the vast expansion of learning is the situation caused by the acknowledged efficiency of the machine, which is demanding the re-shaping of many long established conceptions of economic and social life. The perfecting of the machine is largely responsible for unemployment and, though all thinking people hope an expected satisfactory re-adjustment will be made to more rapidly its ill effects, the day has certainly dawned when men and women must expect to face a longer period of preparation for their work than has been necessary hitherto.

The ability to make the increased amount of knowledge serve useful ends in the interest of richer and happier living is the vital problem of the immediate future. In the solution of that problem, the school must naturally adapt itself to the changing circumstances if it is to perform its full service.

Undoubtedly the improvements in the methods of teaching and of keeping abreast of the progress of the world to bear upon the question. A better attitude of children, parents and ratepayers towards the school and an improvement of the tools of learning have aided in the enrichment of the course of study. Nevertheless the stage has been reached where even these advances have proved to be insufficient to meet the needs of the day. Further facilities have become necessary, particularly in the High School grades, and the resources of the schools have had to be enlarged.

Youth in Quebec has not been slow to embrace the opportunities afforded by further education. Thus, despite a declining enrolment in the Protestant schools, the number of pupils in high school grades has increased greatly. In June, 1929, the High School Leaving examinations were written by 701 pupils. In 1935, 1,863 pupils wrote the full examination. This is an increase of almost one hundred per cent. Such an expansion in the number of graduates, together with the impossibility of finding places for many of them in the ranks of the gainfully employed, made it incumbent upon the schools to seek yet further means for keeping them at their studies.

APPEAL BEING CONSIDERED IN BROWN'S CASE

Attorneys Declare New Evidence that Might Help Young Vermonter in an Appeal Uncovered During Trial of "Red" Morin for Murder of W. K. Baldwin.

Attorneys for Kenneth Brown, of Milton, Vt., under sentence to hang on July 10 next for the murder of Willis Keith Baldwin, former Member of Parliament for Stanstead County, this morning stated that the question of appealing the conviction is being considered. They have until Friday next, June 5, in which to inscribe-in-appeal.

"We have good grounds for an appeal," Antonio Drolet, who defended Brown with Albert Fregeau, of Rock Island, stated to a Record representative today. Lack of funds with which to carry on the fight for the young Vermonter's life appeared as a serious obstruction. Appeal cost money, not necessarily in lawyers' fees, but in the preparation of the case itself.

It is held that during the trial of Lucien "Red" Morin, Barnston Colby co-accused with Brown of the murder and convicted of manslaughter with a recommendation for clemency, new evidence that might help Brown in an appeal was uncovered.

Morin's testimony at Brown's trial was largely instrumental in the conviction of the young Vermonter. When called to give evidence against his pal of penitentiary days, however, Brown refused to talk. He told the Court that he had nothing to say and that no one could force him to speak. As a consequence, all the Crown could use was the deposition of the evidence given by Brown at Morin's preliminary hearing. It was favorable to the defence, for in it Brown declared that there had been no understanding between himself and Morin to rob Baldwin on the day the latter was killed.

OPPOSITION TO THEATRE PLAN IS INCREASING

The stand the Sherbrooke Record adopted in its editorial columns—condemning the purchase of His Majesty's Theatre for the purpose of a municipal auditorium—has been seconded by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce. The Record, after thoroughly examining all angles of the proposal sponsored by local societies, found that the purchase of His Majesty's by the City at $47,000 was impractical. The same conclusion was reached at a meeting at which Sherbrooke's younger business men discussed the project.

The members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce were told by Denis Tremblay that a personal inspection of the theatre had led him to conclude that the cost of renovations would exceed the actual purchase price. The organizations behind the scheme estimated that $10,000 would be necessary to make the required repairs. Mr. Tremblay expressed the belief that an outlay of $100,000 would be needed to buy the property and put it into proper shape.

Further arguments were deduced from the Record's editorial, particularly in the matter of reduction of revenue. The Junior Chamber was told that the loss in annual taxes would total eighteen mills on a valuation of $60,500.

Other strong points against the idea were developed by another member of the Junior Chamber, Hector Bailey, who suggested that it would be more advantageous to construct an up-to-date edifice which would more fully meet the various requirements of a municipal character. As the basis of his argument, Mr. Bailey pointed out that His Majesty's was thirty-six years old and could be used only for limited purposes.

Several members joined in the general discussion at the meeting over which Maurice D'Almeida presided. It was finally decided to leave the matter in the hands of a special committee composed of P. Bachand, D. Tremblay and R. Beaulieu before a definite stand was adopted.

MANY THOUSAND PILGRIMS PLAN TO HONOR POPE

Faithful from Europe, the Americas, Asia and Africa to Attend His Holiness' Birthday Mass Tomorrow. Vatican City, May 30.—Telegrams began to arrive today, along with thousands of pilgrims, to congratulate Pope Pius on his seventy-ninth birthday tomorrow.

Many Cardinals living in Rome and Vatican City called upon the Pontiff to present their felicitations. Hotels are crowded with a throng of pilgrims who come from Europe, the Americas, Asia and Africa to attend His Holiness' birthday Mass tomorrow morning in St. Peter's and to be received in special audience by him tomorrow afternoon.

Tomorrow begins a kind of semi-jubilee year. Many pilgrimages have been organized in many countries to visit Vatican City to help the Pope celebrate his entrance into his eightieth year. The Holy Father is expected to make a speech of some importance tomorrow. At the conclusion of the Mass, he will impart an apostolic blessing.

The Pontiff's theme will be the law activities of the church. This is a special favorite of his. Under his influence was instituted the Catholic action organization which controls laymen's action in the church and which has now numbers millions of members. Prelates believe His Holiness is planning the creation of a new congregation, or administrative department of the church, to supervise their activities. He may announce this tomorrow.

Pope Pius' birthday coincides with the festival of Pentecost. NEWS RECORDS DEATHS OF SEVERAL PUBLIC FIGURES. Former British Jurist, Veteran Scottish Shipbuilder and One of Oldest Anglican Ministers in Canada Among Those Who Have Concluded Active Careers.

MACDONALD HAS FINE MEMORIES OF DOMINION

Former Prime Minister of Great Britain Offers a Host of Pleasant Impressions of Canada in Book of Essays, "At Home Abroad."

London, May 30.—Ramsay MacDonald offers a host of pleasant impressions of Canada in a book of essays, "At Home Abroad," published today. The recital embraces more or less informal wanderings in Canada, Newfoundland, England, Ceylon and Algeria, of which half are concerned with Canada.

These wanderings obviously happened some years back, but the impressions appear to have been set down there and then. The former Prime Minister's ruminations at the scene of the death of Wolfe and Montcalm were a trifle disturbed it seems. "Why do men smooth and trim the places where great primitive deeds were done?" he asks. "It is hard to live through that morning of wild alarm and mad assault upon smooth and trim grass, to see that tall, lank figure arrayed in all the finery of his command, like Nelson at Trafalgar."

"It is hard, too, at the street corner farther down the road, where the red and black pedeslars, to imagine Montcalm receiving his death wound. There are places where huge blocks of flats ought not to be built and streets laid out, but which should be left to history and ghosts."

MacDonald is also regretful over the approach to Niagara, with "ugly, dusty, dirty, smoky erections on the United States side." Niagara itself he describes as an emotion of the stupendous. "What is the use of recounting its material dimensions," he asks. "It is thing to drive one back like a hammer and lightning to those tremors which man strives to calm by putting gods into the heavens."

Arrived at Moose Jaw, MacDonald prays that such names will remain with their reminiscences and not be changed as "Bat Cottage" for instance, has been changed. Of course the former Prime Minister met with Scots galore, "the whole of this far-flung middle prairie land seems to be a Scotch colony," he declares. The author's Scottish heart and brain glow with renewed fervor when he reaches the Maritimes. "This is indeed an annex of Scotland," he writes of Nova Scotia.

"The people I met there are ready to discuss the history of the island, the church spires attest, 'the old religion' was taken there by Highland families of Jacobite clans. Its hold is still firm. Its authority is like a post-war dictatorship. "One day I met a MacDonald who had just returned from his first visit to Scotland. 'Man,' he remarked, 'it reminded me of Antigonish.' For his part, he found Antigonish a little continental in appearance, and he thought Pictou just like other places of its size and circumstance, not paying much attention to its appearance.

"Nova Scotia without its past," he comments, "would be as attractive as a playground. With its past it is as alluring as a sanctuary. There is a presence in Nova Scotia—a cloud of witnesses—the shades of simple men and women whose deeds of faith endur'd in grim outline by musket flash and sword glitter. The story belongs no longer to themselves but is shared by us who are of their kindred."

MacDonald relates a conversation with an old Scottish peasant woman in Nova Scotia. "What would your tartan be?" enquired the MacDonald. "The MacLeod," was the answer. "Mine is the MacDonald," returned the late Premier. "Aye, the MacDonalds were a masterful lot. A wild self-willed, masterful lot," declared the peasant woman.

PEACE SOCIETY HAS DRAWN UP NEW MANIFESTO

Firmly of Opinion War Can Best Be Prevented by Firm and Continued Support of Methods Embodied in Covenant of League of Nations.

Ottawa, May 30.—The League of Nations Society in Canada today left a new manifesto after ending yesterday its annual meeting, described as the largest and most successful in its history.

A communique from the convention, released late last night, quoted the manifesto as declaring aims of the Society were: "To assist in the attempts being made to prevent war; to promote international co-operation; to achieve peace and generally to improve the conditions of human welfare."

It expressed belief "this can best be done by firm and continued support of the methods embodied in the covenant of the League of Nations" and that the Society understood these included: Measures of conciliation, arbitration and judicial procedure for settlement of international disputes; measures looking to organization and regulation of international society; provision for collective action to restrain aggression; measures to eliminate injustices and to make such changes in international relations as may insure peace; general limitation and reduction of armaments of all nations by international agreement.

The Society passed a resolution last night, the communique said, urging the Government appoint a parliamentary under-secretary of external affairs to see that more interest is given in the House and in committees of the House to Canada's League and external affairs."

It re-elected Sir Robert Falconer, former president of the University of Toronto, as its president, named John W. Daffoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, an honorary vice-president, and added the name of Dr. R. C. Wallace, new president of Queen's University, to the list of active vice-presidents.

DEATHS REPORTED

MR. J. ARTHUR ALLEN, FOSTER. Foster, May 30.—The community was saddened on Sunday evening, May 17th, when the death of Mr. J. Arthur Allen occurred at the residence of his only daughter, Mrs. G. Claude Whitcher, where he had made his home for the past two years.

The late Mr. Allen was born on February 25, 1857, on the farm now owned by his son, Mr. R. E. Allen, and was the son of the late Sylvester J. Allen and his wife, Eleanor Turner.

On July 1, 1880, he was married to Miss Mary Durrell in St. Luke's Church, Waterloo, by the late Archdeacon Lindsay and in 1930 Mr. and Mrs. Allen celebrated their golden wedding. Mrs. Allen predeceased her husband on July 4, 1934.

Of this union a son, Mr. R. E. Allen, and a daughter, Beulah, Mrs. G. Claude Whitcher, were born. Nine grandchildren, Messrs. Wilfred, Rupert, George, Clarence and Myrton Allen, Allen Whitcher and the Misses Phyllis and Mary Allen and Edythe Whitcher, all of this place, one half-sister, Mrs. M. A. Martin, of Frost Village, and three brothers, Mr. Charles Allen, of Waterbury, Vt., Mr. William Allen and Mr. V. J. Allen, both of this place, survive.

In the year 1918, the late Mr. and Mrs. Allen moved from the farm to Waterloo, where they remained for six years, at which time they purchased a property in the village here, where they resided until Mrs. Allen's death two years ago. The late Mr. Allen was a member of the L.O.O.F. Lodge No. 27, Waterloo, and served several years in the Municipal Council both in West Bolton and Foster during his residence in each place.

The late Mr. and Mrs. Allen attended the Creek United Church during their lifetime. Mr. Allen being a member of the choir. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, May 19th, at the residence, Rev. W. H. Thompson, pastor of the Creek Church, conducting the service. The flower-laden casket was borne to its last resting place by four grandsons, Messrs. Wilfred, Rupert, George and Clarence Allen. Interment was in the Creek Cemetery, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows conducting the service at the graveside.

The late Mr. Allen will be greatly missed by his immediate family, who tenderly cared for him during his several months' illness prior to his death.

Among those from out-of-town attending the funeral service were Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Bell, Frelighsburg; Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Allen, Granby; Mrs. Alvin Mizener, Mr. E. A. Duboyce, Mr. Ray Duboyce, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Mizener, Mrs. Sarah Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Mizener and Mr. Arthur Woodley, of Knowlton; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Martin, Frost Village; Messrs. O. P. Quilliams and Walter Draper, South Stukely, and Henry Bird, S. J. Bloomberg, S. Mathewson and G. G. Bresse, Waterloo.

The hostesses were Miss Katherine Davey, president; Miss Vivian Parr, vice-president; Miss Ruth McQuat, treasurer, and Miss Patty Wiggett, secretary. Tea was poured by Miss Greta Frizzell and Miss Muriel McFarag, the lace covered tea table charmingly carrying out the club colors with white narcissi in a silver bowl and green candles in silver candlesticks.

Mrs. George Davidson entertained at a bridge and pantry shower at her home on McManay street in honor of Miss Eleanor Gaffney, a bride-elect of the week. Bridge was played at three tables, the prizes being won by Mrs. E. Kennett and Mrs. Ralph Curtis. Congratulations and best wishes will be extended to Mr. and Mrs. William Reed, of Quebec, formerly of Sherbrooke, who on Tuesday next will celebrate the golden anniversary of their wedding day. Mr. and Mrs. Reed were married on June 2nd, 1886, in St. Peter's Church. The then rector, Rev. George Thornloe, afterwards Lord Bishop of Algoma, and later elevated to Archbishop, officiated, and many friends will remember the marriage ceremony in old St. Peter's. The groom was at that time organist of St. Peter's and Mrs. Reed is the second daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. J. F. Bacon, of Sherbrooke. Mr. and Mrs. Reed are now residing at 127 Murray avenue, Quebec.

The hostess also presented a special gift to the guest of honor.

Spring flowers daintily arranged in a brass bowl and green candles in brass candlesticks adorned the pretty table, at which Mrs. Peabody, the bride-elect's mother, poured coffee. Mrs. Earle Peabody poured tea and Miss Eva Mallory cut the cake. Assisting in the tea room were Mrs. Lee Watson, Mrs. John Stein, Miss E. Tilton, Miss M. MacAulay, Miss Evelyn Symons and Miss Peggy Holding.

The Dragon Murder Case

By S. S. VAN DINE

Copyright by PUBLIC LEDGER, INC.

When Mrs. Schwarz opened the door for Mrs. Stamm was standing at the open window overlooking the pool, her back to us. As we entered the room she turned slowly until her fiery eyes rested on us. There seemed to be a new glittering quality in her gaze, but there was no smile on her lips; her mouth was at once grim and placid.

Vance walked directly toward her, halting only when he was within a few feet of her.

His expression was severe; his eyes were determined.

"Mrs. Stamm," he said, in a stern, quiet tone, "terrible things have happened here. And more terrible things are going to happen—unless you help us. And these other terrible things will not be of a nature that will please you. They will befall those who are not enemies of the Stammers; and, therefore, your dragon—that protector of your household—could not be held responsible."

A frightened look came into the woman's eyes as she stared rapidly at Vance.

"What can I do to help you?" Her voice was a hollow monotone, as if she had merely thought the words and her lips had automatically articulated them.

"You can tell us," Vance answered, without relaxing his severity of tone, "where you have hidden the key to the family vault."

The woman's eyes closed slowly, as if from some great physical reaction, and she took a long, deep breath. I may have imagined it, but I received the strong impression that Vance's words had brought her a sense of relief. Then her eyelids went up quickly; a certain calm had come into her gaze.

"Is that all you wish to know?" she asked.

"That is all, madam—but it is vitally important. And I give you my word that the tomb of your dead will not be desecrated."

The woman studied Vance appraisingly for several moments. Then she moved to the large chair by the window and sat down. With slow but resolute determination she reached into the bosom of her black lace dress and drew forth a small rectangular scapular on which I could see the faded image of a saint. The stitching, which held the linen and chamois-skin together, was open at the top, so that the scapular was in actuality a small bag. Turning it upside down, she shook it; and presently there fell out into her hand a small flat key.

"Mrs. Schwarz," she commanded dictatorially, "take this key and go to my old steamer trunk in the clothes closet."

Mrs. Schwarz took the key turned stoically and, opening the small door in the east wall of the room, disappeared into the semi-darkness beyond.

"Ja, Frau Stamm," she called from within.

"Now unlock the trunk and lift out the tray," Mrs. Stamm instructed her. "Carefully turn up all the old linen you see there. In the right-hand back corner there is an old jewel box, wrapped in a damask tablecloth. Bring out the box."

After a few moments, during which Vance stood in silence looking out the window at the cliffs beyond the pool, Mrs. Schwarz emerged from the closet, carrying a beautiful Venetian box, about eight inches long and six inches wide, with a rounded top. It was covered in faded mauve brocade velvet, surmounted with hammered-metal scrollwork.

"Hand it to this gentleman," Mrs. Stamm made an awkward gesture toward Vance. "The vault key is inside."

Vance came forward and took the box. He threw the catch and opened the lid. Markham had stepped up to him and stood looking over his shoulder. After a moment's inspection Vance closed the box and handed it back to Mrs. Schwarz.

"You may put it away again," he said, in a tone and with a look which constituted a command. Then he turned to Mrs. Stamm and, bowing, said: "You have helped us no end! And I want you to know that we deeply appreciate your confidence."

A faint smile of cynical gratification distorted the contour of Mrs. Stamm's mouth.

"Are you entirely satisfied?" she asked. (There was an undertone of both sarcasm and triumph in her voice.)

"Quite," Vance assured her.

He took his leave at once. Dr. Holliday remained with his patient. When we were again in the hallway and Mrs. Schwarz had closed the door behind us, Markham took Vance by the arm.

"See here," he said, frowning deeply, "what was the idea? Off you going to let her put you off with an empty box?"

"But she hasn't, don't you know," Vance returned dutifully. "She didn't know the box was empty. She thought the key was there. Why upset her by telling her the box is empty?"

"What has the key got to do with it, anyway?" Markham demanded angrily.

"That's what I'm trying to ascertain." And before Vance could say anything more, Vance turned to Leland, who had watched the entire proceeding in puzzled silence. "Can you show us where Tatum's room is?" he asked.

We had now reached the second-storey landing, and Leland drew himself up with a curious start; his habitual air of cool reserve momentarily deserted him.

"Tatum's room?" he repeated, as if he doubted that he had heard Vance correctly. But immediately he recovered himself and turned.

"The room is just here, across the hall," he said. "It is the one between Stamm's room and Greeff's."

Vance crossed the hall to the door Leland indicated. It was unlocked, and he opened it and stepped inside the room. We followed him, puzzled and silent.

Markham appeared even more surprised than Leland had been at Vance's sudden and unexpected entry into Tatum's room. He now looked at Vance with an inquiring look, and was about to say something, but checked himself and waited.

Vance stood in the middle of the room, glancing about him and letting his gaze rest for a moment on each piece of furniture.

Heath's expression was hard and determined. Without waiting for Vance to speak, he asked:

"Do you want me to get the guy's clothes out and make a search?"

Vance shook his head in a slow, thoughtful negative.

"I don't think that will be necessary, sergeant. But you might look under the bed and on the floor of the clothes closet."

Heath drew out his flashlight and went down on his hands and knees. After a brief inspection, he stood up with a grunt.

"Nothing there but a pair of slippers."

He went to the clothes closet and made another inspection.

"Just some shoes, that's all," he announced upon emerging.

Vance, in the meantime, had gone to the lowboy beside the window and opened the drawers, examining them carefully. He then went to the dressing table and repeated the operation. There was a look of disappointment on his face as he turned away from the table and slowly lit a cigarette. Again his eyes roamed about the room and finally came to rest on a Queen Anne night-table beside the bed.

"One more chance," he murmured, as he crossed the room and drew out the small drawer of burl walnut.

"Ah, quite!"

He reached into the drawer and withdrew some object which we could not see. Then he approached Leland and held out his hand.

"Is that the key to the vault, Mr. Leland?" he asked.

"That is the key," said Leland simply.

Markham strode forward, his face an ugly red.

"How did you know the key was here?" he demanded angrily. "And what does it mean?"

"I didn't know it was here, old dear," Vance returned with exaggerated sweetness. "And I don't know what it means. * * * But I think we'll take a peep at the vault—eh, what?"

When we were again in the lower hall Vance turned to Leland with a serious and stern gaze.

"You will remain here, please," he said. "And you're to make no mention, to any one, of the fact that we have found the key to the vault."

Leland appeared nettled at Vance's tone. He bowed with considerable dignity.

"I will, of course, respect your wishes," he replied, and turned toward the library.

Vance went immediately to the front door. We circled the house to the north, descended the steps to the pool, traversed the coping of the filter and turned into the narrow tree-lined cement walk which led to the East Road. When we had reached a point where we were entirely hidden from observation, Vance led the way through the shrubbery toward the ivy-colored vault.

Taking the key from his pocket, he inserted it in the keyhole and turned it. I was astonished to see how easily the tumblers swung back and operated the bolt. Vance leaned against the heavy door, and it moved slowly inward, rasping and creaking on its rusty iron hinges.

A musty dead odor assailed us from the dimness within.

"Let's have your flashlight, sergeant," Vance said, as he passed over the threshold.

Heath complied with alacrity, and we stepped into the ancient vault of the Stammers. Then Vance cautiously closed the door and played the beam of the flashlight about the walls and ceiling and floor. Even on that hot summer day there was a damp and chilling atmosphere in this gruesome half-buried tomb, with its incrustated walls of dark mortar, its age-discolored marble floor, and its tiers of wooden coffins, which stretched across the entire south side of the vault, from the floor to the ceiling.

After a casual inspection Vance knelt down and examined the floor carefully.

"Some one's been walking round here recently," he remarked. He moved the circle of light about the marble tiles, toward the coffins. On one of the tiles were two small dark spots.

Stepping toward them, Vance leaned over. Then he moistened a finger and touched one of them. When he moved his finger directly into the light there was visible a dark red smudge.

"That will be blood, Markham," he commented dryly, as he stood up.

Again he moved the flashlight back and forth across the floor, systematically traversing each of the large marble tiles. Suddenly he stepped forward, toward the north wall of the vault and, reaching swiftly down, picked up something which I had not even noticed, although my eyes had been following the sweep of the light.

"Oh, my aunt! That's interesting!" He extended his hand in the circle of intense illumination cast by the flashlight.

We beheld there a small gardenia, still white and fresh-looking, with only the edges of the petals curled and browned.

"Greeff's gardenia, I imagine," Vance's tone was low and held a faint undertone of sinister awe. "You remember he wore one vesterday afternoon when we talked with him. And there was no gardenia in his coat lapel when we found him in the pothole this morning!"

THE DUPLICATED DEATH
(Monday, August 13, 11:15 a.m.)

We came out of the chilly, dank vault into the hot sunlight, and there was something benign and steadying in the vista of the trees and shrubbery and the intimate, familiar objects of the outdoors.

"I think that will be all for the present," Vance said, in a curiously hushed voice, as he locked the ponderous iron door and dropped the key into his pocket. He turned, a deep frown on his forehead, and started back toward the house. "Bloodstains and a gardenia! My word!"

"But, Vance," protested Markham, "those marks, Greeff's body, surely Greeff wasn't in the pool last night. His clothes were perfectly dry and showed no signs of having been wetted."

"I know what's in your mind," Vance interrupted. "And you're quite right. Even if Greeff was murdered in the vault, the same cannot be said of Montague. That's the confusin' part of it. * * * But let's wait a bit before we speculate." He made a slight gesture, as if to request silence, and continued his way across the coping of the filter.

When we had reached the south side of the pool and were about to mount the steps leading to the house, I happened to glance up. On the third-floor balcony sat old Mrs. Stamm, her elbows on the railing, and her head buried between her hands. Behind her stood the imperious Mrs. Schwartz, gazing down at her.

Then suddenly there came drifting out of the library windows the blurred, cacophonous strains of a popular dance tune played fortissimo on the piano; and I assumed that Tatum was endeavoring to throw off the depressing pall that hung over the old house. But as suddenly as the raucous music had begun, it ceased; and at this moment Vance, who was leading the way up the steps, turned and spoke, with the air of one who had made a final decision on some moot and difficult problem.

"It would be best to say nothing to any one about our visit to the vault. The right time has not come yet." His eyes were troubled as they rested on Markham. "I can't fit the pattern together yet. But something horrible is going on here, and there's no telling what might happen if what we have just discovered became known."

He gazed at his cigarette speculatively, as if trying to make another decision. At length he added:

"I think, however, we had better speak to Leland about it. He knows we found the key to the vault. * * * Yes, we had better tell Leland, and there's always the chance that he may have some explanation that will help us."

To Be Continued.

SURPRISE WINS REGISTERED BY THREE HURLERS FAVOR AUSSIES TO DISPOSE OF UNITED STATES

Al Smith, Euel Moore and Clarence Phillips Turned in Sparking Mound Performances Yesterday, Smith Hurling Two-Hit Ball as New York Giants Blanked Boston.

Three more or less question marks of the major league fraternity, particularly "Lefty" Smith, of those surprising New York Giants, are laughing at a lot of their more established brothers these days.

Smith ranks at the head of the trio because of the calibre of his latest conquest—a two-hit fifteen to nothing triumph over the Boston Bees yesterday, which just missed putting him into baseball's no-hit hall of fame. But not far behind are "Indian Chief" Euel Moore, of the lowly Phillies, and Clarence Phillips, the Detroit Tigers' right-handed rookie from Texas, both of whom are unpinning the question mark from themselves, and wrapping it around the necks of their opponents.

Not highly regarded in pre-season gossip, the records of these three reveal that they are going quite all right. Smith has five victories against two losses; Moore had two triumphs and one setback, while Phillips is undefeated with two wins.

In yesterday's battles they faced a total of eight mound rivals, most of them with pretty fair reputations, and pinned back the ears of each and every one, Moore taking the Brooklyn Dodgers in his stride by ten to two and Phillips outlasting the Chicago White Sox for ten innings to win by four to three.

Smith, who has turned out a sound investment for Manager Bill Terry's faith in him over the last two years, stacked up against Ray Benge at the start of yesterday's New York-Boston encounter. Benge lasted only two innings and was felled by three mates, Blanche Weafer and Smith, before the final out was called. The New York ace retired twenty-three men in order through seven and two-third frames before Hal Lee connected for a Texas Leaguer with two outs in the eighth stanza and Bill Lewis rifled a hot grounder through the infield in the ninth chapter.

The Terrymen scored all their runs in three innings. Twenty-one men went to bat in the first two frames to pile up eleven runs, while four hits in the fifth canto, including Gus Mauer's home run, produced four more tallies. Whitehead and Mayo paced the Giants' twenty-hit attack with four and three singles, respectively, in six times at bat as the New Yorkers concluded their home stay with a record of thirteen victories in seventeen home games.

Moore limited Brooklyn to six safeties, only one of which was for an extra base, as he tumbled the Dodgers back into the National League cellar. He was assisted by his one-sided victory by Chuck Klein who drove in half of Philadelphia's runs with a home run, a double and a single in five appearances. John Moore collected four singles and five trips to the plate as the Phillies garnered eleven safeties off the combined offerings of Frankhouse, Jeffcoat and Leonard.

Phillips took on Babe Phelps, of Jimmy Dykes' Chicago staff, and, except for a bad second inning, out-pitched the four-time winner. Goose Goslin's three-run circuit-clout in the fifth inning and Marvin Owen's tenth-inning single accounted for all the Detroit runs which pushed the Tigers up into third position, in front of the idle Cleveland Indians. Phillips held the hard-hitting Chicago to eight hits, four of which came in the second stanza and produced all the Chicago points, and walked only one batter, Bonura's single, a double by Hayes and singles by Piet and Morrissey accounted for Chicago's markers. Owen's single was Detroit's eleventh hit and same with the bases loaded and two out in the first extra frame.

Although these three turned in the standout mound jobs, the pitchers in most of yesterday's curtailed major league programme had the better of it. Curt Davis, making his Chicago debut with the Cubs, had the Cincinnati Reds helpless, while his mates took advantage of Gene Schott's wildness to win by eight to one and boost themselves into third place in the National League. Dizzy Dean, rushed in as relief after Pittsburgh had pounded two other St. Louis pitchers, Parmelee and Walker, in a six-scoring slugfest, stopped the Pirates in the last two innings and drove in the winning runs with an eighth-inning double for a nine to seven victory — his eighth mound triumph of the season.

The Cubs mixed eight passes and seven hits off Schott for their victory. Davis, recently acquired from the Phillies, allowed seven hits but tightened in the pinches, particularly in the seventh stanza when Sam Byrd doubled and Bill Myers singled with one out. Davis followed up by setting down the next two batters. Schott's wildness and a costly error by Alex Kampouris enabled the Cubs to score all their runs in the first four frames, after which Wally Hilleher held them to one safety.

Luck of Draw, Sending Quist Against Allison in Opening Singles Event Today, Makes Australia Slight Favorites to Win American Zone Davis Cup Final.

Philadelphia, May 30.—Australia and the United States, who have fought many friendly battles on the world's tennis courts, will resume their rivalry today when they launch the American zone Davis Cup final.

The opening singles matches, which comprise the first day's programme, send Wilmer Allison, the United States champion, against Adrian Quist, the Australian title holder, and flaming-haired Don Budge, of Oakland, Calif., against the veteran Jack Crawford, captain of the invaders, at the Germantown Cricket Club this afternoon.

The lone doubles encounter will be played tomorrow, barring inclement weather, with Budge and the strapping Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, lined up against Crawford and Quist. The three-day competition will be concluded on Monday when Crawford encounters Allison and Quist tackles Budge.

The draw, pitting Allison against Quist in the curtain raiser, provided a water-like edge that may develop into a decided advantage for the Australians in the series which will earn the triumphant team a berth in the inter-zone final at Wimbledon in July against the winner of the European zone. But just as Quist is the selection over Allison, Budge is a distinct favorite over his older opponent.

Although neither team was required to do so until today, non-playing Captain Walter Pate, of the American squad, agreed to Crawford's suggestion and the pairings for tomorrow's doubles event were drawn yesterday.

Before the draw, the series was regarded as a fifty-fifty proposition, but the Allison-Quist development made Australia generally a five-to-four favorite. On form shown to date the thirty-one year old Allison is the weaker of the United States field, while Quist, on the other hand, seems to be holding the peak which carried him through a series of sensational triumphs at home.

Both are the dynamic, gambling type of player, confident and in fine health. Quist appears ready and fully equipped for a major role, while Allison is a slow starter and seldom arrives at top form until mid-summer.

Budge's youth and superior stamina are figured here to carry him to victory over Crawford. The stocky Australian captain has been impressive in practice but he appears to be short of endurance.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm, of Germany, and Marcel Bernard, of France, gained the other two men's singles semi-final berths today. Von Cramm gave Bernard Destremane, rising young French star, a lesson and a 6-1, 6-2, 6-4 beating, while Bernard advanced when H. W. "Bunny" Austin, British Davis Cup star, was forced to quit his match when he pulled a ligament in his right leg.

BOUSSUS IN SEMI-FINALS WITH BRITAIN'S PERRY. Paris, May 30.—Christian Bous-sus, of France, followed the defending champion, Great Britain's Fred Perry, into the semi-final round of the French hard court tennis championships yesterday, but it was the twenty-year-old Boris Maneff, Switzerland's Davis Cupper, who caught the crowd's eye. Maneff bowed to Perry, but gave the Englishman many an anxious moment before he was eliminated.

Andre Merlin, seeking to gain a place on the French Davis Cup team, carried Bousus to five sets before admitting defeat by scores of 1-6, 6-3, 7-5, 1-6, 6-1. Every game except two went to deuce and Merlin's showing was so good that officials of the French Tennis Federation indicated he would be given a chance in later Cup play.

headers, come suddenly to life and whip the Albany Senators by nine to two under the floodlights. The Montreal Royals and the Rochester Red Wings had an open date.

Frank Pearce subdued the Bees yesterday, giving only four hits in the seven innings he worked before going out for a pinch-hitter. Lohrman finished and held the Bruins hitless. Included in the four safeties of Pearce was a home run by Max Rosenfeld in the fourth frame with none aboard.

Kemp Wicker was also effective until the eighth chapter when a circuit clout by Woody Abernathy with two mates on the base paths broke up the ball game. Wicker yielded ten safeties, Martin's triple being the second extra-base blow in the Baltimore collection. The triumph sent the Orioles into a virtual tie with Montreal for fourth place.

Frank (Beauty) McGowan, league-leading clouter, paced the Leafs to an easy triumph, their twentieth win in twenty-two games. McGowan belted a home run, a double and a single to drive in four runs and give Johnny Wilson a long lead that carried him to his sixth straight career. Wilson was driven to cover in the eighth frame when the Leafs produced four hits and three runs. Art Jacobs turned in a neat relief job.

Toronto was weakened by the absence of Les Scarcella, their hard-hitting first baseman, who was turned over to the Cincinnati Reds in a player deal. Lee Handley, who was acquired by Toronto in the exchange, did not play and George McQuinn, slated to replace Scarcella, will not be available until next week because of his father's death at Balston, Va.

Mike Meola and "Babe" Dahlgren combined to bring about the Syracuse triumph. Meola hurled eight-hit ball, while Dahlgren opened the attack with a tremendous homer inside the park with two aboard in the first inning.

There was little to choose between the youthful pair in driving, but Thomson showed better judgment on the tricky greens. On the tenth the Scot three-putted from twenty-one feet and went two down. They halved the eleventh, while Ferrier dropped a beautiful pitch shot five feet from the pin on the twelfth for a three. Thomson needed four and was three down.

Then the Scottish champion steadied while Ferrier developed a streak of wildness. They halved the thirteenth in fours, but the Australian pulled his drive out of bounds on the fourteenth and sliced his fourth, needing seven. Thomson had a four and was only two down.

Thomson also took the fifteenth with a four and squared the match on the sixteenth with a four to Ferrier's five when the latter's drive was bunkered. The sixteenth and seventeenth were played in a rain and hall storm which drove the gallery of 2,000 to cover. Thomson looked sure of a win on the seventh when Ferrier landed on the road which crosses the fairway, but the latter recovered nicely while Thomson was short. They halved the hole in fives and Thomson missed a short run on the eighteenth as Ferrier approached nicely and laid a partial stymie.

The cards for the first eighteen-hole round follow: Thomson in 534 454 435-37. Ferrier in 534 444 454-37-74. Thomson in 455 455 434-37. Ferrier in 433 475 554-40-77. The par for the course is—39. Out—444 454 434-39. In—434 454 454-37-73. Thomson and Ferrier earned the right to meet in the thirty-six hole final by progressing victoriously through two eighteen-hole rounds yesterday against opponents tested by a week of stiff competition. The Irish star, Cecil Ewing, while the broad-shouldered Australian registered a one-up victory over G. Alec Hill in the other semi-final encounter.

The Irishman went down on the first hole, where his second caught a creek. He fired shot for shot with the favorite until the ninth, but could not match the Scot's birdie three there and Thomson turned two up. Ewing muffed his tee shot on the tenth, put his second in a bunker, and Hector was three up. The Irish hope drove into the rough on the thirteenth for another loss. They halved the next two and the match was over.

In the other semi-final, Ferrier three-putted the sixth to go one down and Hill held him there until the turn. The burly Aussie squared the match on the tenth by dropping a fifteen-foot putt. The next two were halved.

SCOTTISH GOLF STAR CAPTURED BRITISH TITLE

Twenty-Two Year Old Hector Thomson Scored Two-Up Triumph Over James Ferrier, Youthful Australian Champion, in Amateur Golf Final Today.

St. Andrews, Scotland, May 30.—Hector Thomson, twenty-two year old Scottish champion, won the British amateur golf championship this afternoon, succeeding to the throne vacated by Lawson Little, of California. Thomson climaxed a brilliant performance in every round of the tournament by defeating the Australian monarch, twenty-one year old James Ferrier, by two up in the thirty-six-hole final.

After finishing this morning's eighteen-hole round all square, although he was three down at one time, Thomson established a two-up margin at the twenty-seventh and emerged victorious despite the courageous battle staged by the youthful Australian.

The pair were all square at the end of the first eighteen holes after Ferrier had made the turn at the ninth hole one up. The Australian won the first hole with a four when Thomson took three putts, but the Scot came back to win the second and third, playing superior second shots. Ferrier evened the match again at the sixth, approaching to within three yards of the flag, and went one up when he won the ninth, Thomson driving into the gorse.

In the other semi-final, Ferrier three-putted the sixth to go one down and Hill held him there until the turn. The burly Aussie squared the match on the tenth by dropping a fifteen-foot putt. The next two were halved.

Then Ferrier forged to the front with a sensational drive. His terrific drive stopped a yard from the pin and he dropped it for an eagle two. Hill had the disheartening experience of losing the hole with a birdie three.

But Hill came back on the next with a deadly approach for a four against Ferrier's five and the count was even again. The next two were halved.

The Australian took a fresh lead on the seventeenth when Hill was short with his pitch and a half in par fours on the home hole gave "Big Jim" victory.

Brief sketches of the finalists follow: Thomson — Twenty-two year old shotmaker who came to note, in a going way, six years ago by winning the British boys' championship. He was born in Macbrannish and still belongs to the golf club there, although living in Glasgow. He is of medium height. He won the Irish Open in 1934 and '35; Scottish Amateur, Glasgow championship, Hillhouse Cup and Cameron Corbett Vase last year. Has been a Scottish team player and dotes on a driving perfection.

Ferrier — This tall twenty-one year old player, Scots here are quick to point out, is the son of J. R. Ferrier, a native of Carnoustie, one of Scotland's famed golfing centres. Jim was born in Sydney, New South Wales, where his father is secretary of the Manly Golf Club. When sixteen, he won the New South Wales amateur title. In 1934 he took the Queensland open and amateur championships and the next year won the Australian Amateur and finished second in the Australian Open. Jim stands six feet two inches and weighs about 200 pounds.

DUTRA CAPTURED HONORS IN DETROIT TOURNNEY. Detroit, May 30.—Finishing with his second victory of the day, Olin Dutra, Los Angeles professional, won the $3,500 True Temper open golf championship here yesterday. Dutra's aggregate of 279 was five strokes better than his closest competitor, Harry Cooper, while his seventy-two hole total was nine strokes better than par.

LOCAL CONTENTENDERS MEET IN "CRUCIAL" GAME TOMORROW. The two Sherbrooke entries in the Provincial Baseball League were hoping for fine weather today as they completed preparations for their encounter at the Exhibition Ball Park tomorrow afternoon. Poor weather has dogged the older aggregation since the beginning of the season and Amedee Roy's squad has yet to play a league game before local spectators.

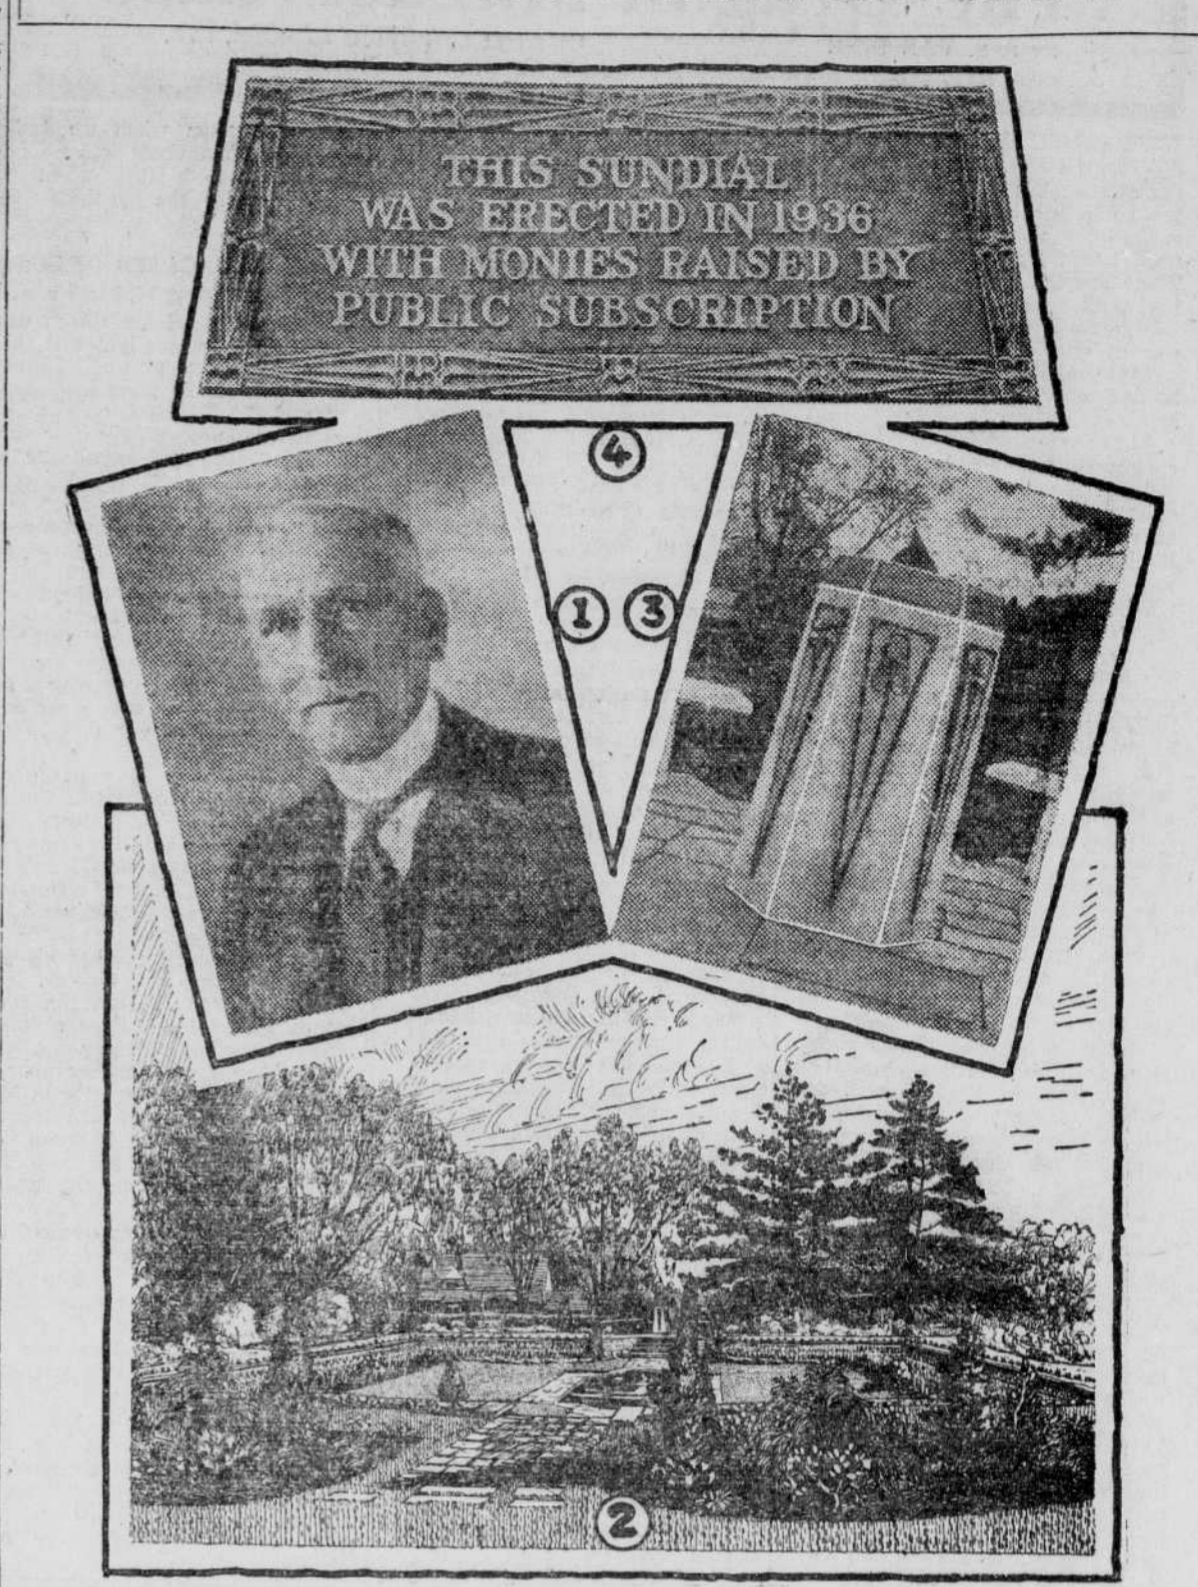

Intense interest is being manifested in tomorrow's battle, there being keen rivalry between the two aggregations. According to present indications two former Sorel team mates Jack Harris and "Ace" Lee, will be the starting pitchers, the former on the mound for Sherbrooke and Lee assuming the Notre Dame assignment.

The possibility exists that Charlie Clark, Sherbrooke's leading hitter and lead-off man, may be missing from the line-up tomorrow. Clark injured his wrist in the exhibition game against the Zulus this week and may remain on the side lines. Roy, however, has bolstered his roster with the acquisition of Albie Horsfall, former Sherbrooke High School athlete now studying at Boston College.

Ontario Not Suited to Hungarian Type of Tobacco. Tillsonburg, Ont., May 30.—A tobacco grower in this Oxford County area is at a loss to explain the failure of his attempt to introduce a Hungarian type of tobacco plant to Ontario. In Hungary the leaves grow long and narrow, but when transplanted to Ontario they became circular like lily-pads, making them useless for cigar manufacture.

NOTED BIRD LOVER DIES. Castleton, Isle of Man, May 30.—Pitchoir G. Ralfe, leading authority on Manx birds, died here at the age of seventy-five.

A Good HEAD! The foamy head is evidence of its molloy strength and sparkling purity. Frontenac White Cap Ale. An unexpected reversal of form on their home grounds is threatening to give the Newark Bears some trouble in their duel with the Buffalo Bisons. During their first long home stand the Bears were almost unbeatable, but since their return from the north in the middle of May they have not been able to hold the same pace against a couple of second division clubs. The result is that Newark is a full game behind the Bisons, who apparently will not be halted for any reason at all. After losing two out of three games to Albany at Newark, the Bears took the road for a while, then returned to drop two decisions in succession to the up-and-coming Baltimore Orioles. A six to two setback yesterday, coupled with Buffalo's thirteen to six rout of the Toronto Maple Leafs at night, broke a virtual tie for the leadership. The only other game on yesterday's programme saw the last-place Syracuse Chiefs, Newark's next opponents after today's double
