First Report Blind Campaign Shows $229.65 Collected

The campaign for the Canadian National Institute of the Blind, in Huntingdon and Ormstown, is now in full swing and the canvassers are just getting in their reports. In Huntingdon, it is reported in this first report that up to Friday October 25th, $229.65 had been reported collected of the $1,500 minimum objective. This is of course, less than a fifth of the required amount, with the drive scheduled to end on October 31st.

It is only natural to expect that the campaign will have to be continued for a longer period until the minimum objective has been realized. The Huntingdon committee in charge of the campaign would like to see a much better response to this worthy cause. There are still many more canvassers to report in and the committee would like them to send in their reports whether they are complete or not, so that the progress being made in the drive can be made known in these columns each week.

Notes From The Police Blotter

Log Lodge Robberies Solved

Following up the recent robberies at Log Lodge and finding the man who abandoned the package as reported last week, an arrest was made. James Riley, Montreal, and recently a resident of Huntingdon, was given three years in the penitentiary, on October 26th, when he appeared before Judge Fortin, at Valleyfield. Most of the stolen articles have been recovered and Roger Querillion, also of Montreal and a "pal" of Riley's, was arrested in connection with the robberies and is awaiting sentence.

Car Recovered in Damaged Condition

The Racine car which was stolen in Huntingdon on the night of September 18-19, has been recovered, but suffered about $400. damage. In connection with this there is a story of a thrilling chase through the streets of Montreal. Provincial police traced the car to Montreal and after over a month they saw the car, but it had on another set of plates. Lieut. Corbo of the Stolen Car Squad, went after the car which speeded up and drove at 80 miles an hour through Montreal streets, with the police firing shots at the tires in an effort to stop the vehicle. Finally the car was brought to a halt and the driver whose name was Boucher, was arrested. He is presently awaiting sentence. The car has been returned to Mr. Racine.

Another Stolen Car Recovered

The Helm car which was stolen from Huntingdon has been recovered and returned intact to its owner. The culprit in this case was Jean Parent, of Ormstown, and he and the car were found in Montreal. He was sentenced at Valleyfield to one year in jail.

Frigidaire Demonstration At Beauchamp Frere Store, Ormstown Proves Most Successful

Much of the drudgery of running a household has been taken out today, due to the many labour saving and automatic appliances that are on the market. No longer need the housewife work over a hot stove all day making meals. No longer need she spend days doing the family wash and ironing. No longer need she spend hours and hours at preserving time and with preparing to store meats, etc., for winter keeping.

All of this was aptly demonstrated at the Jamboree of Frigidaire appliances at the Beauchamp Frere Store, Ormstown, the past week. Miss H. Goyer, Home Economist of the Shawinigan Water and Power Co. was in charge of the demonstrations and made them very interesting.

The new method of preserving a number of items in order to store them for future use — is quick freeze. There are freezers on the market for this purpose to suit the requirements of small or large families, in this case the Frigidaire type was being demonstrated. A very interested audience of ladies listened to Miss Goyer as she both explained and showed the various methods of preparation for foods for the quick-freeze preserving. Glass jars, Paper, Cellophane bags, boxes and foil can be used to wrap the various items for freezing. The main point is to exclude the air and Miss Goyer showed how to do this in the various ways of wrapping. Meats, vegetables, fruits, pies, cakes can be quick frozen and stored in the freezer for future use, in fast and easy manner with a minimum of preparation.

Cooking is made very easy with the new electric stoves and other appliances as demonstrated by Miss Goyer at this week-long jamboree. With frozen foods taken from the freezer, which are already prepared, the making of meals is done in far less time. Or if you first prepare the foods in the ordinary way, it is still done in far less time and with a minimum of effort. You may even put a full course dinner in an oven and set the dials of the automatic stove, go to church or out shopping and when you return, the meal will be ready to serve and the stove will have shut down to just keep the meal hot. Set the dials for everything — that is automatic cooking. No need to stand over the stove, or to keep watching the clock to see if the cake is cooked, or that it is not burning up — set the timer and it will either warn you, or automatically turn off the stove to the proper heat. If King Alfred were alive today, he would never be scolded for letting the cakes burn — not in this electrical age.

Take a look at that old bugbear of the housewife, the family wash. It used to be a tough assignment — but not today. The automatic washer and dryer have taken care of that. You just gather up the family wash on Monday, or whatever day you do it — or everyday for that matter — set the dials on the washer, turn it on and it fills with water, adds the soap, washes the clothes, collects up the lint. Another turn of the dial, the wash water empties, rinse water comes in, the clothes are rinsed and spun almost dry. Stop the machine, take out the clothes, put them into the dryer and the clothes in some cases are ready to be put away, or for ironing — wash day is over. Meantime you have been doing other jobs and you are all ready for that bridge party.

This was what was learned from the demonstration at Beauchamp Frere Store, Ormstown, by a large number of ladies who attended the classes on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It also resulted in a number of sales of the various appliances and those who bought them will enjoy electrical, automatic living, which takes the drudgery out of running a home. Nor was this all, for during the week door prizes were given to those attending and some special drawings were made which provided lucky winners with grocery parcels. Those who made purchases at the store during the week were given chances which allowed them to participate in the drawing for a Frigidaire automatic electric dryer. In addition to this, the prices of all the appliances were reduced considerably to provide a wonderful opportunity to share in better living.

Winners of the bags of groceries during the week were as follows: Kyle Blair, Franklin; Mrs. A. Vallee, Ormstown; Mrs. Adrien Beaulieu, Mrs. James Anderson, Mrs. E. Chartrand, Mrs. Hollis Rowe, Alex McCaig, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. Irene Brunet, Mrs. Ethel Cavers, Mrs. Gordon Watson, Antoine Reid, Mrs. Elvidge, Mrs. Hannah, Monseigneur Langlois. These were from drawings made on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. A grocery bag was also given to Mrs. Gordon McAdam, who drew the ticket for the lucky winner of the dryer on Saturday evening, for the main prize drawing.

Mrs. J. C. Brown of Huntingdon, was the winner of the Frigidaire automatic dryer, with ticket No. 7125.

Mrs. Frank Hope, Allans Corners, won the T-Bone Steak, which had been cooked in the cooking demonstration in connection with the Frigidaire automatic electric stove.

The demonstrations and the Jamboree Week were a complete success and those who attended, enjoyed all of it immensely.

Rotarians Hear Address On TCA Future Plans

Michael R. Hildred, Regional Public Relations Officer for Trans-Canada Air Lines addressed the Huntingdon Rotary Club on Monday at their regular meeting.

Mr. Hildred outlined the three stages of man's life on earth going back over the half million years of man's existance pointing out the two greatest changes: that of the production of food which turned man from a parasite into a self sustainer. This stage has a history of some ten thousand years and then the sudden transition into the development of industrial power with the enormous social changes which this development brought in its train. Now power has been so tamed as to be a new tool in the form of aviation which is, in essence, a new form of communication between people and not just a means of transportation. Hildred outlined Trans-Canada Air Lines plans for the coming years explaining how the forty-four seat Turbo-Prop Vickers Viscount was to do the short haul routes, how the new 125 passenger Douglas D.C. 8 full jet aircraft would do the long haul routes, on both trans-continental and overseas routes and how, in 1961 it was likely that the Vickers Vanguard Turbo-prop double bubble fuselaged aircraft would fit in between to do the medium stage routes. This in effect would make TCA the first airline in the world to become an all turbine fleet. "Canada will be one of the world leaders in both Domestic and International flying", he said.

A lively question period kept the speaker busy for a further thirty minutes answering questions on Safety, Sputnik, price, speed, comfort.

Chateauguay Heights Recreation Club To Hold Hallowe'en Party For Children

Hallowe'en — the evening that all children, teen-agers (and even adults) look forward to. Before the legendary witch takes off on her broomstick and just after the Youngsters complete their neighbourhood "trick-or-treat" rounds, the Heights Recreation Club are to show movies to all the wee goblins.

The movies will start at 6.30 p.m., and finish around 8 p.m. The Club feels that this is a rather painless way of getting the small-fry in off the streets at a reasonable hour, and might send them home in an even happier mood.

Following the movies, there will be music and dancing for the teen-agers and adults until 11.30 p.m. with refreshments available.

The Heights Recreation Club are holding a MASQUERADE DANCE on November 2nd, with dress optional. This will be the parents' night to howl. Dig out those old costumes or, better still, get creative and rig yourself up in an original costume.

Bank of Montreal 140th Birthday

Bankers in Quebec and throughout Canada will look back across 14 decades of history on Sunday, November 3rd, to recall the beginning of the Canadian banking system, acknowledged everywhere as among the best in the world.

The date, November 3, marks the 140th anniversary of the foundation of the Bank of Montreal, Canada's first bank.

On that day in 1817, a modest office opened for business in Montreal. The "Montreal Bank" as the B of M was known in its earliest days, had a capital of $250,000 and was the creation of nine Montreal merchants who saw the need for banking facilities in the fledgling nation. It had a total staff of seven.

From their enterprise has grown the present Bank of Montreal, with 721 offices from coast to coast in Canada and abroad, including 135 in this province, with assets in excess of $2,700,000,000 and a staff of some 12,000 men and women.

When the B of M began operations, Canada's population was about 500,000. Trade was conducted largely by barter and there was no native Canadian currency.

Immediately the B of M issued its own bills and later copper tokens — Canada's first real money — and this innovation helped to make trade on a firm foundation possible for the first time.

Within two weeks of the opening of the first office, the bank opened a Quebec City agency. This office was the cornerstone of Canada's future branch-banking system, which throughout the intervening years has proved a major factor in Canada's unique ability to grow quickly, while maintaining economic stability.

As the years passed, B of M branches were opened throughout Canada, contributing much to the flow of capital into the young industries of the country.

When Confederation was realized, B of M operations expanded quickly throughout the new nation, first to the east to serve the Atlantic Provinces and then, as the Prairies and the west were opened up, into those areas, too.

In the years that have followed, as Canada has emerged to its present stature in the world, the B of M has continued its development in step with the nation and has become an integral part of its life.

Shell Out For UNICEF By Howick School

The Howick Home and School Association is sponsoring "Shell Out" for U.N.I.C.E.F. this Hallowe'en U.N.I.C.E.F. an abbreviation for United Nations Children's Fund and a branch of the United Nations Organization, undertakes the task of assisting children from underdeveloped areas of the world in combating disease, malnutrition, and their ignorance of same. Last year, the Canadian efforts contributed $42,000. and it is hoped that $100,000.00 can be raised this Hallowe'en.

The elementary school children of Howick High School will be specially tagged and will carry a receptacle for donations of pennies, nickles and dimes, when they venture out Hallowe'en night. At eight o'clock the "witches and goblins" will return to the school for a small treat prior to returning home.

Council Of Christian Education Convention - Frontier Branch Held At Lacolle

The 91st Convention of the Frontier Branch of the Council of Christian Education of the Province of Quebec was held on Saturday, October 26th, at the Lacolle school.

The session opened with Mr. W. Wilson, President, in charge. Rev. Gaudine of Lacolle led in devotions.

The early portion of the morning was given over to registration and business.

The highlight of the morning session was "Bible Study". Rev. K. Murray introduced this study by dividing the gathering into three groups to study and discuss questions on the parable of "The Prodigal Son". Rev. K. Murray, Miss M. Quigley and Rev. Geo. Connelly were the leaders of the groups.

The results of all were most inspiring.

A delicious dinner served by some of the mothers of the Lacolle Sunday Sunday School pupils brought the morning session to a close.

The afternoon session opened with devotions by Rev. Chas. Pelletier, of Valleyfield.

Rev. Geo. Connelly, Field Secretary of the United Church, spoke mainly on "Boys' Parliament." All organized church groups should inquire about this.

Miss Quigley and Mrs. Dobson then took respective groups and all shared their knowledge of "Methods of Teaching" in Sunday School.

A very inspiring day came to an end with Rev. K. Murray pronouncing the Benediction.

Salvation Army Annual Pick-up

Once again, the Salvation Army, pick-up truck will be in the Huntingdon locality on November 7th, and you are asked to give any old articles you may have no further use for.

Old Furniture, magazines, newspapers, glass ware, clothing and many other items that may have collected around your premises, will be picked up by the truck when it comes to town. All these things which have no value to you, can be made use of by the Salvation Army. Those people who, live in the country are asked to bring in these articles and they may be left at Builders' Supply and Feeds Yard.

People in town are asked to contact the same place and the Salvation Army Truck will call at their homes and pick up whatever they may have. Save those articles for the Salvation Army, you will be serving two purposes — getting rid of articles you have no further use for and helping the Salvation Army, and no cost to you.

Remember the date: Thursday, November 7th — Call Builders' Supply and Feeds Ltd.

Keep Your Porch Light Burning

Keep Your Porch Light Burning on Friday evening, November 8th, as the welcome sign that you will support the Poppy Sale drive. One of the old songs of the war was: Keep The Homes Fires Burning Until The Boys Come Home, we had a job to do then and we still have a job to do now. Those boys came home, but many of them returned in poor condition and needed more than home fires—we cannot let them down now anymore than we did then.

Buy a Poppy from the Legion member who will call at your home, make a generous contribution to the cause. The money so raised will be used to help disabled veterans and their dependents, some of whom make the very Poppy you may be buying. They depend on the sales of these poppies to provide them with a steady income throughout the year. It helps to make them independent and self-supporting, as everyone likes to be. Some of the money is used to help needy local veterans and their dependents. The money you contribute is just another way of giving thanks that you are able to share in the good things of a prosperous country. It could have been different if these men had not sacrificed themselves on our behalf. We might be like many other countries, under the rule of a ruthless conqueror, working as slaves for the State, our freedom gone. It is not much to ask—that you contribute something to the Poppy Fund and wear a Poppy on Remembrance Day—wear it proudly. Remember November 8th and Keep that Porch Light Burning.

Paris Meeting To Show Solidarity Of Western Alliance

Western leaders will gather in Paris in December for a meeting of the NATO council, in a move to make the 15-nation meeting a "summit" conference of the western alliance.

The French Foreign Ministry was formally notified last Saturday that President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan intend to go to Paris. Prime Minister Diefenbaker at Ottawa announced he would lead Canada's delegation. Diplomatic informants in Bonn said Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany also could be expected to make the trip.

The British and American leaders at their Washington talks last week began making plans for a revolutionary revision of the allied defence systems in which NATO plays a leading part. A drive to speed up military modernization of NATO forces was indicated in the reports of growing war strength in Russia.

The visit to Paris will be the first voyage of a United States president since Harry Truman went to Potsdam in 1945.

Show Solidarity

Prime purpose of the meeting, it was said in authoritative quarters in Paris, is to demonstrate to the whole world the solidarity of the western alliance. It was also felt that many new decisions must be taken quickly because of Soviet advances in scientific, military and economic aid fields, notably the Russian earth satellite and her reported intercontinental ballistics missile.

The communique following the Eisenhower-Macmillan talks at Washington said the December meeting of Atlantic alliance ministers will have "special character".

With Russia's Sputnik orbiting the earth, with Soviet H-bombs and long-range rockets undergoing tests, and with Red economic aid experts roaming the Middle East, Eisenhower and Macmillan agreed the old policies no longer were good enough. The broad answer they came up with was to draw together the whole free world into a genuine community behind the protective shield of free world atomic-rocket might.

American and British officals have been working for many months on machinery for a new approach. Some of it undoubtedly will be unveiled at the Paris meeting. Specific ideas already have developed, Washington reports say. A major one is the supplying of American bases in friendly countries around the world with the most modern of defensive weapons, such as the 1,500-mile intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM).

But Washington officials want to proceed carefully. It is reported they have no intention, for example, of indiscrinately arming every free world nation with these weapons. Central control would be kept in Washington.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's announcement of his intention to visit Paris was made in a statement just before he opened talks at Ottawa with Prime Minister Macmillan last Saturday. It was learned he had made his decision however even before Mr. Macmillan and Mr. Eisenhower proposed a NATO summit meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker likely will be accompanied by External Affairs Minister Smith, Defence Minister Pearkes and Finance Minister Fleming as well as senior departmental advisers.

Urge Your Children To Study And Make A Success Of Schooling

In this day and age when facilities are available for a good education for our children we have cause to wonder "Who is to blame, the parents or the children?

During the past week The Gleaner ran a small advertisement requesting the services of a handy man. Many applications were received and on questioning the applicants it was found that a large percentage of them had only Grade 6 or 7 standing in school as the educational background. Further questioning elicited the facts that all were smokers but one and a large number drank beer. Both of these are expensive habits to say the least. We believe it was this poor standard of education that could be the reason we had so many applications.

Thinking over this, we feel that had the parents insisted that these boys had applied themselves more while at school, they could have attained a better standard of education and thus be in a position to apply for a better job. It is not likely they will command a position which will pay a really good wage and thus they will be handicapped for the rest of their lives. Education is a necessary tool in any work we may do, even though it be just a handy man. An employer is quick to notice the boy or man or shows promise and thus he is given a better chance of earning a good living.

Perhaps the teaching staff at our schools could lend such boys and girls presently attending school, a helping hand and encourage them to carry on with their school work. If this could be done it might prove of mutual benefit to the pupil and the school. The question might be asked, How would this benefit the school?

Let us put it this way. If these boys and girls could be encouraged to do better work at school and to continue on at least to High School, they would be better equipped academically to better themselves and become more useful citizens. Assuming that they would have more financial resources at their command, they could become owners of property and be taxpayers. Being taxpayers, they would contribute a share to the upkeep of the schools and other municipal requirements.

Under the circumstances and with such a little amount of education as Grade 6 or 7 standard, it hardly seems likely they will really progress. If they could progress they would enjoy more of the pleasures of life which will otherwise be denied them.

We heartily commend the parents of children to urge their sons and daughters to do their very best in school and to see that they attain better school leaving than the grades mentioned.

Successful Fashion Show Sponsored By Daughters Of Isabelle, Huntingdon

On Thursday evening, October 24th, the annual Fashion Show was held in the new modern hall of Notre Dame School, at Huntingdon. It was sponsored by the Daughters of Isabelle for the benefit of their organization, through the courtesy of Elite Dress Shoppe, Mercedes Shoppe, Kiddy Town and Denicourt Bros., Furriers, of St. Johns, Que.

The hall was filled to capacity with enthusiastic people who saw the latest styles exhibited by nineteen models in a setting of a very modern ladies' apparel shoppe. The wee models were as usual, the main attraction. The models were Misses Rita Allard, Lise Dumouchel, Francine David, Rita Saumier, Lily Dumouchel, Monique Tremblay, Simone Gariepy, Isabelle Castagnier, Lise Baillargeon, Eveline Sherry, Mrs. Micheline Latreille, Jacqueline McCallum, Ruth Taylor, Ursule Gagnon, Olga Lefebvre, Armand Lefebvre, Ernest McDermott, R. Daigneault and P. Rhodes. Father David drew the lucky winner of the mink stole. Mrs. Liette Bergeron had the lucky ticket. The winners of the special prizes graciously donated by Elite Dress Shoppe, Mercedes Shoppe and Kiddy Town were Mrs. Laurence McCallum, J. A. Boyer, Arthur Trepanier and Lucille Goyette. Mrs. R. Menard and Mrs. R. Montpetit helped the Regent, Mrs. L'Heureux, with the drawing. The organization and arrangements of the Fashion Show were in the capable hands of Mrs. Gisele L'Heureux and Mrs. Edmour Castagnier.

Delicious refreshments were served in the Parochial Hall to reward the models.

The Daughters of Isabelle wish they could mention all those who helped to make the evening a success but they can only say to everyone, "Thank You".

They were Brian and David Ouimet, Murielle Proulx, Cynthia Rosenschein, Nicole Daigneault, Ester Fortin and Wayne Kruyk, Mrs. Edmour Castagnier. Mrs. George Collum commenting on each ensemble in French and English, was one of the main reasons for the successful evening. Talented Miss Gilberte Demers played soft music throughout the evening. Again this year the latest styles in furs were exhibited, all were luxurious and the envy of all the ladies present. Mrs. Remi Gregoire and Mrs. Rene Brunet were in charge of the make-up department, and they certainly made the models look very attractive.

Shell Out For Care

On Hallowe'en strange creatures roam
Around the streets, the school, the home,
And as is the custom in this great land,
Apples, candy and peanuts they demand.
Wouldn't it be better if they tried
To help those in need on the other side
Of this wide world where disasters abide.
In Korea, Greece and also Hong Kong
Hunger and want are everywhere found.
There are no apples, "tricks or treat"
In fact, there's hardly enough to eat.
So this Hallowe'en when you are one
Of the witches or goblins having fun
Instead of demanding "trick or treat,"
An apple, peanuts or something sweet,
Make "Shell out for CARE" your loud cry—
"A penny for a poor little girl or boy
In a land far off—a land in need"!
This would be your very best deed!

QUEBEC FARMER IN PLOWING MATCH FIRST TIME

Canada's entries at the World Plowing Match next year at Stuttgart, West Germany, will be Joe Tran, of Claremont, Ont., top, and Allan Hammond, of Lachute, Quebec. At right, Tran shows the plowing form that won him the Esso Silver Plow, emblematic of the Canadian championship, for the second time. He previously won it in 1954 and represented Canada at the world match in Sweden in 1955.

Hammond placed third in the quest for the Silver Plow, highlight of the 44th International Plowing Match at Simcoe, Ont., October 15—18. Both men will attend the world match as guests of Imperial Oil. The runnerup in the Canadian championship class, Bob Timbers of Mount Albert, Ont., did not qualify for the European trip because the winner was an Ontarian and no province is permitted more than one representative at the world match.

Simcoe, Ont.—For the first time in the history of world plowing matches, a Quebec farmer will represent Canada next year in the match at Stuttgart, West Germany.

Allan Hammond, of Lachute, Quebec, won a place on the two-man team by placing third in the International Plowing Match here October 17. He was competing for the Esso Silver Plow, emblematic of the Canadian championship.

Two Ontario farmers—Joe Tran of Claremont, and Bob Timbers, of Mount Albert, both former Canadian champions, placed first and second. Hammond therefore becomes Tran's teammate in the world match at Stuttgart next year, since competition rules permit only one representative from a province on the world team. Tran and Hammond will attend the match with a manager to be named later. All three will travel as guests of Imperial Oil.

Hammond, 32, raises Ayrshire cattle on a 300-acre farm near Lachute and was competing at the International for the second time. He scored 139 out of a possible 200 points.

The competition for the Esso Silver Plow was the highlight of the 44th International match, sponsored by the Ontario Plowmen's Association. The match drew contestants from seven provinces and an estimated 75,000 spectators.

Another Quebec plowman—Albert Raymond, of St. Scholastique—tied for fourth place with 138 points.

Planning For Fairs Now

AGRICULTURAL Fairs are not just around the corner — but they have just disappeared around the corner. However, they cannot be forgotten, for in these days they require a lot of planning if they are to follow year after year.

Apparently Huntingdon and Ormstown Fairs are not the only ones which have troubles trying to keep the people interested and the necessary dollar coming into the coffers. Lachute Fair officials have been pondering over ideas to make for improvement and attract a larger attendance, just the past week. They have called in the officials of several service clubs in that vicinity, as well as the Chamber of Commerce and other like organizations. The idea is for a co-operative effort to overcome the difficulties that have beset the Fair over the past few years. Some very good suggestions were offered and are to be investigated before the next Lachute Fair.

It has therefore occurred to us that the officials of Ormstown Exhibition and of Huntingdon Fair should be doing something right now with regard both these events. One may say they are too far off to worry about now. Such is not the case, it takes time to find out about many items and then it takes time to decide what should be done. However, while all this is going on, publicity should be given and thus keep the fair before the public eye. One of the top notes of the discussion on the Lachute Fair was the fact that the people must be entertained. It was felt that the judging should be done on the side and only the top three animals in any class be shown in the stock parade in front of the grandstand. Horse Racing should be given a more important part and there should be a band to supply music throughout the period of the fair. It was also felt that the local Councils should give larger grants, in view of the publicity brought to the districts by the fair. Other ideas were give-aways and a Queen of the Fair contest. It was also felt that at least two representatives from service clubs and other organizations should be on the committee of the Fair.

There is no doubt that the problem needs concentrated effort and much hard work, to place before the public the best possible program that will draw them to witness it. It therefore seems to us that the greatest amount of local colour that can be injected into a Fair should have the best results. The Square Dancing contests seem to have a certain amount of pulling power, so why not try other forms of contests which would use local talent — Fiddlers' contests, Amateur vocal and instrumental contests; Longest Beards, and others of similar type that could be both novel and entertaining. Such would be much cheaper than imported talent and would draw much better too. Run the contests in the form of elimination down to finals to go the period of the Fair, afternoon and evening and something different all the time. In this way a larger number would be doing something and the whole of the time would be occupied with something going on. People today do not like dull spots, they want something going on all the time. In our Fairs there are too many dull spots and for too long periods. Other Fairs have tried these things and have found that they are successful — it is time the officials of the Fairs in this locality started to think of something too. Being sorry, never helped anyone yet — it is action and perseverance which counts.

The local Fairs have a fairly large membership, yet at the annual meetings of these bodies, usually only a handful of people attend. If more of the membership would turn out and take part in the discussions, the officials would feel more encouraged. Soon these annual meetings will be called, when that happens, let the members gather and offer suggestions for their Fair. Also let any other interested parties attend and perhaps they may have suggestions to offer which would be of help. The Fairs need the support of all in the community and no one should stand afar off, if they feel they could be of assistance.

How Close Is The Moon?

THERE are all kinds of sayings about the Moon — The Man in the Moon; Crying For The Moon; The Moon Has Its Eyes On You, and very many more. However, the moon remains as much a mystery as it ever did and man will continue to Reach For The Moon. The latest enquiry is "Who Owns The Moon?"

Already some enterprising people have been selling lots on the moon, in readiness for the rocket flights that are being envisaged as in the future. How they obtain their real estate rights we have no idea, but prices have gone up from 50 cents per acre to $2.75 per acre with the appearance of "Sputnik" the Russian satellite. There is no doubt that possibilities of space travel to the moon may be better now than at any time before, but we believe such is still a long way off, as is also the moon.

Word has been given that Russia expects to launch a space platform sometime in the future. If this actually takes effect, then it may be possible to have several of these in outer space and serve as jumping off places on a route to the moon. Rockets may carry to these platforms where they can be refueled for the next stage of the journey. At the moment this appears too fantastic for the ordinary mind, but the scientist is dreaming of such things all the time.

When it does come about that a vehicle from earth can land on the moon, who knows how it will be received. According to some versions of Martians landing on the earth, the experience could prove very terrifying. The first stage to setting up communication with the moon would appear to be by contact through radio signals in the hope that there is some form of life there and that a reply could be received. It would at least settle the point of habitation on this planet. We may perhaps find out that the man in the moon is away ahead of us on this space travel and is figuring out ways of landing on our planet.

The race is on now for conquering outer space and Sputnik has spurred it to even greater speed. What the results will be is a conjecture of the imagination — in other words, your guess is as good as ours.

The Middle East Still A Trouble Spot

TROUBLE is still emanating from the middle east and is part of the original Suez flare-up. More and more it can be seen that the thin end of the wedge was to have been driven in so that Russia could obtain a foothold through Egypt. Britain and France foiled that plan, but unfortunately were not allowed to put a permanent stop to it. It would have meant a third world war for sure, but that danger is by no means past.

The United States stepped in with the idea that they could clear up the situation and frighten would-be aggressors. We pointed out at the time, that the U.S. had had very little experience in the diplomacy required for middle eastern situations. This is being proven by the events which have been taking place since the Suez crisis and as of now. An United Nations Force was sent into the troubled Egyptian and Israeli area, which has kept a certain amount of order in this domain, but the situation has not been cleared up and Nasser remains in charge of the Suez Canal. One thing that was frustrated, was probable infiltration of Russia into Egypt. However, as we pointed out at the time, Russia is determined to gain a foothold in the middle east and it was her intention right from the time when a Russian delegation toured this territory. The propaganda put out by this delegation was intended to arouse the Arab nations against supposed exploitation by the Western Nations. It is still having its effect and Russia has gained the foothold she sought. This time it is in Syria. Now the target is Turkey in the hope that trouble will be evoked and provide Russia with a chance to step in as the defender of the under dog. This of course would be Syria under present trends. Ultimately, the Russian plan is to secure control of the oil in this area and thus cut off many of the Western nations from the vital supply.

Throttling supply lines can do more damage to a nation than perhaps war. Such could mean the shutting down of industries, vital and otherwise, cause discontent among nationals of the countries affected and so on. It is much like the old fashioned blockade, or the establishment of sanctions.

If war is to be avoided, then diplomatic courses must be followed in order to show Russian influenced countries that eventually they too, will be under the domination of Russia rather than having their own free rein. This is where the United States has fallen down. Mainly through inexperience in such matters, the course pursued has not had the desired results. Now, Great Britain and other countries more experienced, are being consulted with a view to finding a solution that will prevent the threat of a new fighting war. The situation is tense, however, and fraught with great possible danger.

Russia has sent advisors to Syria and is sending out all kinds of propaganda regarding the United States and the intentions of the meetings between the States and British officials. They term this a meeting for making plans for war. They have offered many kinds of help to these Arab nations who are being "exploited by the Western Powers", as they have so cleverly planted in the minds of these people. Look to us, The Russians, if you are to be saved, is what they tell them. Under the terms of aggression, it would appear that already Russia is an aggressor by the fact she is supplying money, arms and direction for a possible attack. It is certainly not the role of a peacemaker to cause strife and provide for its means. The matter is to be discussed by the United Nations, but already this body should have a police force in the troubled area to prevent possible outbreak. Wherever trouble appears, a force should be on hand to keep control just as in the ordinary affairs of civil routine. Prevention is better than cure and action speaks louder than words. The only thing which Russia understands is action. The action does not necessarily mean war — but a show of determination that there will be no backing down on anyone's part. In other words stay in your own back yard, or we will make you.

HOCKEY

March 5th, 1896

On Monday evening a number of our young men journeyed to Ormstown to play a practice game of hockey, on an invitation received from that club. In order to play the game to win, a rink and continued practice is necessary. Huntingdon this winter had neither. Lack of form and no combination gave the Ormstown players an easy victory. On the other hand the victors played good hard, scientific hockey and won on their merits. In the first half Ormstown scored 4 goals to Huntingdon's 1: in the second half the winners added two more goals to their score making it 6 to 1. The best of feeling prevailed throughout the whole match. After the game supper was served at Smith's restaurant, where justice was done to the good things, after which speeches by the players took up a short time. Our boys are loud in their praise of the treatment received from the Ormstown hockeyists. Players and positions were as follows:

Ormstown	Huntingdon
	Goal
B. Williams	J. Duquette
	Point
P. Coates	C. H. Lamb

J. Chambers	C. J. Boyd

The curling competition for the Caledonia medal closed on Saturday evening, R. Hastie being the sucessful member. It was played for on the point system—10 ends. The winning score is 155 points.

CURLING

March 26th, 1896

The Caledonia club of Montreal played a friendly game with our local curlers here on Tuesday. The ice was in splendid condition, but it was noticed from the first, that the Calendonias, who had not lost a game this year, were being outplayed by our boys. The Montreal curlers were very much pleased with their trip to Ormstown, but were a good deal disappointed in the result of the match. The visitors were entertained at Prejent's hotel. The following is the score:

Rink No. 1

Majority for Ormstown 31 shots.

Thursday and Friday last 12 inches of snow fell, with strong winds, making our roads impassable for heavy loads. On Saturday night and Sunday morning a strong south wind brought a rapid thaw, but it was of short duration. At 11 a.m. the cold set in, with frost at night. Monday forenoon it was 2 below zero. Tuesday morning 8 below zero. Such frost is rare at the end of March.

The Ormstown curling club played their return friendly match with the English River club. Our local curlers were most hospitably entertained by their host, Mr. Henry Bennie, both before, between, and after the game. When the match was concluded in the evening, the players returned with their friends to Mr. Bennie's, where an oyster supper was found prepared for them by the club, and a very enjoyable time was spent with games, songs, recitations, and one or two speeches, after which the party broke up. The Ormstown club will long remember the pleasant time they had with their brother curlers of English River. The following was the result of the match:

English River	Ormstown

Harry Bennie	William Wylie
William Gruer	George Morrison
M. Morris	C. A. McNee

Racial Integration

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

The problem of integrating white and colored pupils in American schools is not so easy of solution as many Canadians think. It is all very well for us who are not involved in that problem to assume a holier-than-thou attitude towards the white people of Little Rock and other parts of the Southern States where the colored population in some instances is as large as if not larger than the white. If we in Canada were in the same position we would be no more in favor of racial integration than the white people of the South are.

That word "integration" means much more to them than a system of education; what white parents fear is racial blood integration of their children with the colored pupils as a result of their intimate association in mixed schools. Whatever may be said against that fear as an assumption of racial superiority and a denial of equality of citizenship, it is purely a matter of natural selection. The two races have got along fairly well together since the abolition of slavery, and they realize their mutual dependence upon each other in industrial life. They work side by side in factories and business generally, and compete on an equal basis in popular sports. They are not denied education, for there are colored schools that they can attend.

From what I have seen of large cities in the United States there is no residential integration of white and colored people. Harlem in New York is an outstanding example. In Indianapolis, which I visited recently, I saw entire blocks of houses that were exclusively occupied by colored people. They seemed to be happy together and I was told that many of them were very prosperous, owning their own homes and driving their own cars. Generally speaking, the pure-blooded negro is the happiest man in the world and is free from any inferiority complex. He prefers to live and associate with his own people. It is usually the half-caste who is the trouble-maker. He seems to be at cross purposes with himself; being neither one nor the other entirely he feels that he has had a raw deal in his birth. I was told that the half-whites were by no means favored by the full-colored people, probably because they are inclined to pride themselves on their mixed blood.

There is no doubt that the average American still regards the negroes as an inferior race. A few years ago I met a Canadian while fishing in the Kawartha Lakes who had spent half his life in the States. He was an elderly man of a kindly disposition who had retired after a successful business career and had an orange grove in Florida. He told me that he employed negroes on contract to pick and pack the oranges and in cultivation work. I asked him to tell me what he candidly thought of the negroes. "Well," he said, "a nigger is a nigger. But they are all right when they're kept in their place. They're good workers and are happy at their work. When they're all together picking in the grove one will start singing, 'O Lord!' and they'll all join in a chorus. Yes, we get along all right with them and they are well paid." Then, after a long pause he turned to me and said, "We couldn't do without the niggers, you know."

And that last remark is true. The colored American is already an integral part of American industrial, commercial, and professional life. If he has not been integrated socially it is because he is a negro and the white people prefer to associate with their own kind, just as we do here in Canada. We cannot truthfully claim that there is no color line in the social and fraternal life of Canada. One need not go into details, but, speaking generally, Canadians have no more desire to mingle socially with the comparatively few negroes in the population than have the white people of the United States.

Round Byre AND Ring...

By FRANK NAPIER

It has been announced that David Gibson, Jr., Strathglass Farms, Port Chester, N.Y. has been appointed Executive Secretary of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association of the United States. We are thereby reminded that his father, David Gibson, Sr., made his debut as a herdsman on this side of the Atlantic at Burnside Farms, Howick, Que., some 50 years ago.

Fifty Years Ago

David (Dave) Gibson, Sr., of Strathglass Farms, Port Chester, N.Y., is well and favourably known to many Canadian Ayrshire people, intimately to quite a large number of them. However, 50 years is a long time ago and only the older generation will recall that Dave Gibson made his debut as a Herdsman on this side of the Atlantic, as have so many others, at Burnside Farms, Howick, Que.

Born in Borgue, Kircudbrightshire, Scotland, Dave Gibson came to Canada in 1907 with a shipment of Ayrshires for R. R. Ness of Burnside and Hector Gordon of Stoneycroft Farm, both of Howick. During the next four years, or so, Dave Gibson was successively herdsman at Burnside and Cap Rouge (for 2 years) and for a time with Hector Gordon. However, in October, 1911, he went to Strathglass Farms as herdsman, having been recommended for that position by R. R. Ness.

It may therefore be said, that to use an old expression, Dave Gibson "growed-up" with the Strathglass Ayrshire herd. In other words one might say that as the Strathglass herd advanced to and maintained its long time International status, so also did Dave Gibson's reputation as an outstanding Herdsman or Herd Manager advance. It might also be said that Dave Gibson well merits his "mede" of praise, along with Owner Hugh J. Chisholm, former General Manager A. H. Tryon and present General Manager Gus Bowling for the success attained and maintained by Strathglass Ayrshires.

Interlude in Scotland

However, Dave Gibson's 46 years of service to Strathglass have not all been spent at Strathglass Farms. During the early 1920's, he was in Scotland in assistance to Mr. Chisholm in the selection of a very select group of Ayrshires for Strathglass Farms. Just as the final selctions were made there was an outbreak of Foot and Mouth disease, with a consequent U.S. quarantine on cattle importations which was to prevail for some two years. However, Mr. Chisholm was not deterred and so he rented the farm of Thornhill, in Ayrshire and placed Dave Gibson in charge of same. We are not aware of how many of the original animals finally reached Strathglass, but those who came, together with the natural increases, made a sizeable, notable shipment. Probably, in a transportation way, because of the delay and the extra costs involved, one of the most expensive shipments ever made from Scotland to either the United States, Canada or elsewhere.

Wife and Son

However, during his enforced stay in Scotland, Dave Gibson was united in marriage to the former Miss Alice Munn. It therefore was that he finally landed back at Strathglass with a wife and a young son, David, Jr.

Young "Dave"

As time went on David Gibson Jr. (Young Dave to a great many people over there) was educated at the elementary School in Purchase, N.Y., and Port Chester High School—where he was a linesman on the football team. Then came World War 11 and several years service by Dave Jr. in the United States Army, after which he entered Cornell University where he majored in Dairy Production. While at Cornell he was active in undergraduate activities and was a member of Alpha Zeta. He was also a member of the Dairy Cattle Judging Team that won the Eastern Intercollegiate Dairy Cattle Judging contest at Eastern States Exposition in 1949, which team also won second place in the National Intercollegiate Contest at Waterloo the same year.

After graduation from Cornell in 1950, Dave Jr. worked with the Active Acres herd of Brown Swiss for a time before returning to Strathglass Farm, where he supervised the field operations, and had charge of the sale and show cattle. Also for the past few years he was in charge of the New York State herd that went to the Waterloo Dairy Cattle Congress and the International Dairy Show at Chicago. Currently he is serving on a committee that is assisting in the selection of a new foundation herd of Ayrshires for Cornell University. He has also been a 4-H Club Leader in Westchester County, New York, for several years.

Yes, there is also a Mrs. Dave Gibson, Jr. She is the former Miss Maridon Zimmerman of Rockville Center, Long Island, N.Y., and a graduate of Cornell University. They have two sons.

As already indicated Mr. Gibson will assume his duties of Executive Secretary of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association of the United States on December 1, 1957.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Mr. Editor:

I am glad you have come forward with an editorial in your paper on behalf of my dad, Alderman McWhinnie.

I was shocked and disappointed with the method the aldermen and mayor of Huntingdon used in eliminating alderman McWhinnie from his ward. If this Bill has not been passed as yet how could the Council make this so called drawing? I don't suppose many will know or will realize my dad has been elected by acclamation eleven times, twenty two years in all and it would be very interesting to know if any other alderman in the past or present has ever had that record. To me and my family he has served his town long and well and has given it so much. Then to have his name put into a drawing along with two other aldermen (which must have been equally embarrassing to these other men) is very hard to understand.

My dad has always carried out his duties everywhere with dignity and if this Bill is passed, it is to be hoped that the councillors and Mayor of Huntingdon will give alderman McWhinnie the opportunity to resign in his own way with dignity.

Thank you for space in your paper.

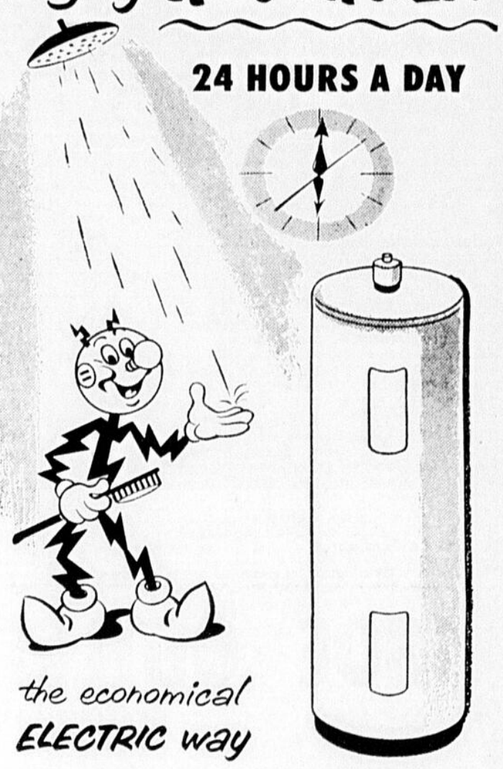

Yours sincerely

(Mrs) Norman Clifford
(nee Lorna McWhinnie)

Nineteen relatives were present for a turkey dinner. The tables were decorated with chrysanthemums, a gift from a niece's family at Waterloo, Que.; also a corsage of red and white carnations for the bride.

Following the dinner, Garth Harrison presented Wilfred and Martha with an electric frying pan, from the Camerons. Cameron Bryson gave them a steam iron; and two pretty gifts were received from aunts of the bride.

The Gore

ANDERSON - STEVENSON

THE GORE — At the Methodist Church, Chateaugay, N.Y., on October 15, 1957, Helen Marie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stevenson of Chateaugay, N.Y., was united in marriage by Rev. S. Livingstone, to Ross Glen Anderson, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Anderson of "The Gore", Huntingdon, Quebec. The marriage took place quietly at the altar, the only attendants being Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stevenson, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

The bride wore a brown street-length dress, white hat and gloves, black suede shoes and carried a black leather purse. Both the bride and Mrs. Stevenson wore corsages of brown and bronze mums.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were entertained to dinner by their attendants, at the Flanagan Hotel, Malone, N.Y., after which they left by car for Toronto, Ont., where they spent a week the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray W. Anderson, 145 Martin Grove Rd.

On Friday night, October 25, the friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Anderson held a reception in their honour at the Town Hall, Herdman's Corners. The Hall was filled to capacity with well wishers and about midnight the bride and groom were called to the platform where, on behalf of all present, Mr. Josie Moneypenny presented them with a well filled envelope.

Ross and Helen thanked everyone for their kindness after which refreshments were served and dancing resumed. Music was supplied by the Mainliners.

Rockburn

ROCKBURN — Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Arthur of Trout River were guests during the past week of Mr. and Mrs. Rod. Arthur.

Mrs. B. H. Pennington spent a few days in Montreal recently and visited with her son, Mr. S. E. Ames and family while there.

The members and visitors who attended the meeting of the Franklin W. I. at the home of Mrs. Wm. Hope on Saturday afternoon, thoroughly enjoyed the program — especially Canon Dawson's stories of the early settling of the country from River Richelieu West, even to Dundee. In the brief time only the high spots could be touched, and they were confined pretty much to names and places, familiar and well known to all present. But all were very grateful to Canon Dawson for the information and reminiscences given his audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldwin Gowan and daughter Florence of Saskatchewan were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rod Arthur and called on a few old friends. They had motored from home, visiting at Saranac with Mr. Gowan's sisters, then to Washington, D.C., New York and Ottawa and returned by way of Ticonderoga and back to Saranac and towns south of Lake Ontario where Mr. Gowan will see other members of the family on his journey home. The few old neighbours and friends left here were very glad to see Mr. and Mrs. Gowan and review the many happy times spent together.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Arthur and children enjoyed a holiday recently and motored to Ottawa to visit Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Arthur, to Smiths Falls, visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Crosbie, to Thurso where they visited Newton Arthur and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henry of Montreal were dinner guests Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver and Saturday afternoon Mrs. Oliver was most happily surprised by a visit from an old friend, Mrs. Edna Chambers McLean, who taught in the Elm Tree School in the early 1890's. Mrs. McLean's son, Mr. Hamilton McLean, his wife and two sons, from Greenwich, were en route to Ormstown where Mrs. E. C. McLean intends spending the winter with her brother, Mr. Hugh Chambers.

Obituary

The Late W. H. Arthur

Mr. Walter H. Arthur of Athelstan passed away very suddenly at his home on October 16, 1957, in his 66th year. Born at Rockburn, son of Mr. Wm. Arthur and his wife, Sarah Knowles, he grew up a regular attendant and faithful member of the Rockburn Sabbath School and Church. He always took his part in their activities, and the concerts being participated in by the younger people of the community. Being always ready to assist in any way where his help might be needed, it was with real regret it was learned that Mr. and Mrs. Arthur were leaving in 1920. Walter had married Miss Annie Burnell in 1913, and they had lived since on their farm home in Athelstan, but the family had always maintained an interest in the Rockburn affairs. Walter had continued his work, leading in the boys class in the Athelstan Church and Sabbath School, as he had in Rockburn — ever interested in municipal affairs and in the wider affairs of our country, and able to discuss them intelligently. He became well known locally, and will be deeply missed by his neighbours and friends, as by his wife and family, consisting of four sons, Hartley, John, William and Robert and four daughters, Hazel, Mrs. Cottingham, Margaret, Mrs. McIntyre, Joan, Mrs. Ykema and Eloise at home with her mother. Mr. Arthur had joined the Oddfellows a good many years ago, and had received the medal denoting 25 years service in that Lodge.

The funeral was held in the Athelstan Church on October 18th, and was conducted by Mr. J. Anderson, assisted by Rev. A. S. Reid, D.D. and interment made in the Athelstan Cemetery. Six of his brethren of the Oddfellows Lodge — Messrs. Clarence Stark, Roy Goodfellow, Douglas Elder, Wm. Dawson, Mac Ruddock and C. H. McLean were the pall bearers. His two nephews Alvin Arthur, Allen Mack carried the flowers which were beautiful. The sympathy of her friends in his community is offered Mrs. Arthur.

Dundee

DUNDEE — Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm Marston and son Wayne of Montreal, spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ferguson.

Miss Thelma MacMillan accompanied by Mrs. E. Fleming, Mrs. Grace Fleming and Mrs. Lyle Currie motored to Ste. Agathe last Wednesday where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Ted Robinson and family.

Rev. Howard Fraser of Sawyerville and Miss Shirley Messenger of Grande Ligne spent Tuesday at the Fraser home in Dundee. Howard's mother, Mrs. D. A. Fraser, returned with them and will spend the winter months with her son at Sawyerville.

Glenelm

GLENELM — Mr. and Mrs. T. Knox of Ottawa visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Art Goodfellow over the weekend.

Church service was cancelled last Sunday morning at Kensington United Church, owing to illness of Mr. Van Goudoever. Rev. Beal took the service at Powerscourt.

Mr. Millard St. Ann, of Flint, Michigan, brother of Mrs. Spencer Gavin, spent Sunday afternoon at her home.

Tatehurst

TATEHURST — Mr. and Mrs. Preston Hooker spent two days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Dale Morrison, Cowansville.

Mrs. Mary McNeil spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robertson and family, Riverfield. Mr. and Mrs. Alan Hooker, Mary Catherine and Alanne were Sunday guests at the Robertson home.

Mr. Otis Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. R. Fowler of Kingsbury, Que., were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Hooker.

On Friday evening, October 25th, in the Huntingdon High School gym, the boys' and girls' basketball teams played their first games of the year against teams from Ormstown High School.

The girls all played a very fast moving game. Susan Faille scored a total of 16 points. Hope Stewart, Dorothy Taylor, Diane Starr and Anne Rutherford each scored 6 points. Dawn Graham made 2 points.

Huntingdon girls won by a score of 42-22. After three cheers for the Ormstown girls and our own school yell, we left the gym, hot and tired, but very happy.

The Basketball Teams will be playing Valleyfield next Friday night, November 1st.

Talking Things Out Can Relieve Tensions

Talking things out can go far toward relieving the tensions which everybody experiences. So writes Dr. George S. Stevenson in a National Association for Mental Health booklet the title, "How to Deal With Your Tensions".

"When something worries you, don't bottle it up," says Dr. Stevenson. "Confide your worry to some level-headed person you can trust. Talking things out helps to relieve your strain, helps you to see your worry in a clearer light, and often helps you to see what you can do about it."

He also makes these suggestions:

Escape for a while. Sometimes it helps to escape from a painful problem: to lose yourself in a movie, or a book, or a game. But be prepared to come back and deal with your difficulty.

Work off your anger. If you feel like lashing out at somebody, pitch into some physical activity instead and work the anger out of your system.

Give in occasionally. If you do this, you'll find others will yield too. The result will be relief and a feeling of satisfaction and maturity.

Do something for others. You'll find this will take the steam out of your worries and even better give you a warm feeling of having done well.

Take one thing at a time. Pitch into a few of the most urgent tasks one at a time, setting aside the rest for the time being.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Down Time

A look at the personnel records of industrial plants will show that an enormous amount of disability and loss of time can be traced directly to the common cold.

The absentee problem is particularly critical at an industrial plant doing important military research, as does the Aerojet-General Corporation in Sacramento, Calif.

Since there is no cure for the common cold, Dr. A. L. Kuntz, Aerojet-General's plant physician, studied the possibility of lessening absenteeism by relieving cold symptoms. In this way, perhaps, employees could be kept comfortable and "in working condition" despite their colds.

Altogether 724 employees at both indoor and outdoor jobs were studied. When these workers came down with a common cold, they were given Coryban, a combination of tested drugs specifically aimed at cold symptoms. The patients received two capsules of Coryban at the onset, followed by one capsule every four hours.

Dr. Kuntz found that 83 per cent of the workers were helped by this course of treatment. Most of the employees said they felt much better and any remaining symptoms did not interfere with their jobs. Others who obtained less marked relief nevertheless felt they would not have been able to work without the medication.

Such symptomatic relief, described by Dr. Kuntz as "excellent," will give the country's factories, schools and businesses many added days of progress that might have been spent — uncomfortably and unprofitably — in bed.

Scientists Probe Mysteries Of Earth

How often has the weatherman disappointed you — promising a sunny day which turns out to be rainy?

Chances are that the weatherman's report in the future will be more dependable. For weather forecasting is a service which should benefit from the International Geophysical Year, according to an article in a recent issue of a trade publication.

Scientists from 62 nations, experts in 14 major fields of learning are busy investigating our earth and the space which surrounds it. From their findings they hope to clear the way for improvements in such familiar things as weather forecasting, long distance radio communication, aerial navigation, and exploration for oils and minerals.

In Canada about 80 stations stretching from coast to coast and to within 500 miles of the North Pole are taking measurements during the "big year".

An interesting sidelight of this co-operation between nations is the effort of scientists to break down the language barrier which makes international communication so difficult. As a solution to the problem, the use of an auxiliary language is being discussed. This new language is called "Interlingua" and has its bases in many western languages.

The article was published in "Interlingua" as well as in English and here is a sample to test your lingual skill:

"In le scientias, le Anno Geophysic International representa un culmine del effortios de multe seculos de resolver le mysterios del terra e del sol. Sed ab le puncto de vista human, illo es non minus importante como symbolo del bon voluntate inter le nationes."

In case you had a little difficulty, here is an English translation of the above:

"In science, the International Geophysical Year climaxes the efforts of many centuries to solve mysteries of the earth and the sun. But in human affairs, it is equally important as a symbol of goodwill among nations."

New Conduct Code Helps Teen-agers And Parents

What should teen-agers — and their parents — do about smoking, drinking and "lights out" parties?

In Minnesota, there is now a state-wide code, largely worked out by youngsters themselves, which answers these questions, reports Jean Libman Block in a magazine article, "Conduct Code for Teen-Agers," condensed from American Weekly.

A parent, or some other responsible adult, should be at home when teen-agers entertain, but should allow the youngsters a sensible measure of privacy.

Here are the key provisions of the code:

"Lights out" games have no place in a well-ordered party.

Young people and their parents should agree in advance on a definite time for getting home from dates.

Young people should come directly home from an evening out unless other plans have been approved by parents.

Parental consent for driving the family car should be based on: 1) possession of a driver's license; 2) young people's proof of ability to control themselves and the car.

Riders have a share in the responsibility for safe driving. Dares and jeers from riders have been responsible for many deaths.

Young people should understand that it is not a disgrace to decline an alcoholic drink.

Suggested times for terminating social affairs on non-school nights range from ten o'clock for the seventh grade age level to one o'clock for high school junior and senior formal dances.

Shun the superhuman urge. Don't try for perfection in everything. Decide which things you do well, and put your major effort into these.

Go easy with criticism. Some people expect too much of others, then feel let down when another person doesn't measure up.

Schedule your recreation. It is desirable for almost everyone to have a hobby that absorbs him in off hours—one into which he can throw himself completely and with pleasure, forgetting all about his work.

Boy Scout Activities

On Thursday night, October 24th, Assistant Scout Master C. Creppeau had a showing of coloured slides of the Queen's visit to Ottawa with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police on guard duty.

Five new Cubs were taken into the pack: William Crawford, Edward Gardner, Robert Moore, Graham Brunett and Raymond Lennox.

Lyndon Graham received his first star.

On Hallowe'en, Thursday, October 31st, there will be no meeting of the Cubs.

French Setback

Most French workers returned to their jobs last Saturday after a 24-hour strike slowed France almost to a standstill and cost industries millions of dollars. Transport was crippled, factories closed and striking workers milled in the streets during the walkout, a massive protest against the rising cost of living in France.

The workers had apparently expected no direct results. The most they could hope for was increased public sympathy with their plight, since there was no government to do anything about the general economic problem.

Some observers said the frustration evidenced by the walkout might help Socialist Guy Mollet become premier to end the month-long politicial crisis. He hoped to win National Assembly approval of a new cabinet this week.

Death in Barbershop

Police at New York called in a stream of underworld characters in search for clues to the killing of bigshot mobster Albert Anastasia, rubbed out by two gunmen in a plush barbershop of a mid-Manhattan hotel.

The 55-year-old former boss of the old Murder, Inc., syndicate, who assertedly was responsible for the murder of dozens of victims himself, was riddled with five bullets by two masked gunmen as he sat in a barber chair. The assassins apparently escaped in crowds in the subway after discarding the two guns that were used.

Use Safety Precautions In Highway Emergencies

You must not travel at any time at a speed endangering life or property. The Province of Quebec Safety League tells you are endangering both life and property when driving so fast that you can't control your car in an emergency. Think for a moment on this—at 30 m.p.h., you require 27 yards to stop on dry concrete. On a dry icy surface at the same speed, you require about 60 yards to stop, but if the ice is wet, the distance jumps to the amazing figure of over 100 yards! With every additional 10 m.p.h. over 30 your total stopping distance increases by over 50%.

Observe The Stop Signal

Court records are apparently sometimes more illuminating than traffic lights. They show that a large percentage of urban accidents are due solely to failure to heed "Stop" signs and traffic lights. The Province of Quebec Safety League recommends that you must come to a full stop at all "stop-signs", and that does not mean merely slowing down, shifting into low gear and then proceeding with gay abandon! Obey your traffic lights, and that includes the YELLOW one. It is "cautionary", and is not placed there to add to the local colour of the town. It means "stop" at the crosswalk and isn't a come-on for a sneak run through the line. Yellow indicates it is time to STOP, not to start.

Cherished Memories That Live Forever

Hold Annual Hallowe'en Dance

The Huntingdon Volunteer Firemen are holding their annual Hallowe'en Dance at Heath's Hall, on October 31st. Patrons are asked to come in costume, but it is not compulsory. However, prizes will be awarded for those in costume and there will be other prizes also. This annual event is sponsored by the firemen to raise a fund which is used to buy extra equipment for use by the firemen. We all know that our firemen do a really good job of getting out to fires and Huntingdon has been particularly free of disastrous fires for many years now. In part, at least, this is due to the firemen being prompt in answering fire calls and keeping the equipment in condition and readiness. It is also due to regular drills and keeping in contact with the latest methods of fire fighting. You will be helping a good cause by attending the dance.

United Church Activities

The Teen Age Group of Huntingdon United Church met in the Church Hall last Monday evening, with a large number in attendance. The evening began with a period of recreation, planned by the program committee, and was followed by a brief business meeting conducted by the President, Pat Dahms. Mr. Beal introduced the study program for the next two weeks on the theme: "The basic Beliefs of the Protestant Church." The group then divided into four discussion groups to consider the spiritual needs of the Teen-ager and how these needs are met through prayer, the Bible, and the worship and Sacraments of the church. The meeting was brought to a close with refreshments being served by the members of the Refreshment committee.

The Explorer and C.G.I.T. Groups of Huntingdon United Church began their regular weekly programs last Friday afternoon. The Explorer Group began their "Exploration of the Community" with a visit to the Post Office. It was announced that all three groups of the C.G.I.T. had won their chevrons in the past year. These awards will be presented to the girls at a later meeting. These groups will meet again on Friday afternoon of this week.

The Junior Boys Club of Huntingdon United Church will resume their activities when they meet in the Church Hall on Friday evening. At this meeting the boys will continue their study of the "Christian Boy in his Home".

The United Church of Canada, through its General Council, has set up a special commission to study its official position in respect to temperance abstinence, and the place of moderate drinkers within its fellowship. The work of this Commission is of particular interest to all church members and wll form the basis of the sermon at the morning hour of worship at Huntingdon United Church next Sunday. At the evening service Mr. Beal will continue his series of Sermon-Lectures on "The Christian in Society" when he takes as his subject; "The Christian in his Community".

The renovations at the house at the corner of Prince and Bouchette Streets, owned by Dr. F. G. McCrimmen, are nearing completion and the house now presents a much improved appearance. Mrs. McCrimmon has been responsible for the changes that have been made and they are most creditable. This corner is now greatly improved.

Renovations going on at Marchand Frere Store on Chateauguay Street are beginning to give some idea of the elaborate front which this store will have when completed. There is every indication that this will prove another needed improvement among the stores in this area. More of this kind of renovation is needed to give Huntingdon a touch of progressiveness.

Odds and Ends

We won't vouch for this item of information, but it's a delightful tale:

Once upon a time in China there lived a craftsman who became famous for his jewel boxes and cabinets. These he finished with the juice from a tree, giving them a satiny gloss. His name was Ting Pain and it became synonymous with smooth, gleaming surfaces. Written in western style, Ting Pain became Pain Ting. And that, the legend claims, is the origin of our word "paint".

When washing a duster, place one teaspoon of raw linseed oil or two tablespoons of kerosene in the last rinse water and hang it up to dry. The result—a "dustless duster".

Ingenuity is called for a dealing with a wasp's nest. One man who was plagued by wasps making their home under the roof of his house resourcefully pulled a transparent polythene bag over his head, put another bag on each hand (secured with rubber bands at the wrists) and removed the nest in perfect safely!

Scientists report that the average shower bath adds between a quarter and a half pound of water vapor to the air in a bathroom and a tub bath contributes about a quarter as much. That is why the walls and ceilings of a bathroom should be painted with high-quality enamel which resists moisture.

Can't Sleep? Try Mental Block Or Alphabet Games

If you can't get to sleep by reading, relaxing or drinking hot cocoa, you can try a mental block or an alphabet game to speed your rest. So suggests Peg Braken in a November magazine article, "What to Get Back to Sleep"?, condensed from the Atlantic Monthly.

"Soothing, soporific, sleep-making gimmicks are what you want," she writes.

"One of the handiest is a good dependable Mental Block. If you don't have one, get one. My own is the name of my best friend's doctor. I just can't remember it....

"I recommend thinking up Mystery Titles, too .. The way mystery writers get their titles is simply to take any common phrase and ugly it up A Corpse of Another Color, Murder Machree".

Best of all, she reports, are the Alphabet Games. Just look at all you can do with those 26 letters!

"The people whose names come most trippingly off the tongue are those whose Christian names and surnames begin with successive letters", she writes. "Aaron Burr. Charles Dickens. Eddie Foy.....So the game is this: starting with A, make up just any old people. Art Billings, Bob Collins, Chet Davis ... Notice the hypnotic, effortless flow."

But the most satisfactory alphabet game from all standpoints, says the author, is Minister's Cat. It can start:

"The Minister's Cat is an aristocratic cat who adores anchovies."

"The Minister's Cat is a bad cat who bites birds."

"The Minister's Cat is a curious cat who cuddles canaries".

"The Minister's Cat....."

And so to sleep.

Middle-Aged People Need Daily Exercise

The question as to whether it is safe for a middle aged person to start taking violent exercise after he has not taken it for a number of years is answered in an article appearing in the current issue of Health Magazine, official publication of the Health League of Canada.

It all depends, states the article, on how violent the exercise as well as how much one has let oneself go to seed. To begin with, on one ages evenly all over. One may have a good heart and lungs, snow white hair and a tendency to look and feel much younger than one's years and still have somewhat narrowed coronary arteries or stiffened heart valves. At eighteen it is not hard to "get back into shape" after a spell of sedentary work, at the cost of a little puffing and muscle stiffness. At forty, one has probably got much softer, and as well the system is less elastic, so that physical fitness takes longer to attain.

The writer feels that it is safe to take reasonably "violent" exercise provided that (a) one has had a physical examination and knows that one's heart, arteries and joints are sound, and (b) that one takes time and builds up to it.

"Many busy people do not feel that they have time to keep fit. There are many opportunities for exercise missed in the course of a day's work. One can always park the car a bit further from the office and walk a few blocks, at the cost of starting a bit earlier. I have rarely seen an office where there was not time to climb the stairs instead of taking the elevator," the article concludes.

streaking around the earth at 18,000 miles an hour. It was launched on Oct. 4.

In London, scientists who have been tracking the satellite on its fast regular orbit said they could hear neither a beep nor a whistle. But the naval research laboratory in Washington reported five U.S. stations had picked up some signals, weak and intermittent.

A scientist at the radio observatory at Cambridge, England, said the satellite—launched at a height of 560 miles—appeared to be dropping by about two miles a day at the high point of its orbit.

Meantime Dr. Fred Singer, an American physicist who deals in space research, said the U.S. Air Force "Far Side" rocket project may eventually lead to a rocket which will circle the moon and return to earth. But the White House denied a published report that President Eisenhower had ordered construction of the first U.S. moon rocket.

How To Help Your Husband Retire

"The first day your husband goes off to work is not too early to plan for the day when he will stop work altogether:" that's the advice of Dr. Reva Gerstein. Preparation for retirement is like getting ready for old age, according to Dr. Gerstein. "You need a bank balance of the right attitudes and a pension plan of interests to help you."

In her experience, "Retirement for a man is accompanied by much the same emotional disturbance as menopause for a woman." She described it as "a definite physical punctuation point, marking the end of one phase of life." A wife's important role at that time she defined as being "her husband's staunchest friend and most understanding adviser."

There were three basic ingredients for a happy retirement, Dr. Gerstein said. The first was the good health. But the other partners. The next requirement was "an adequate income". Finally, there were the "plans, hobbies and interests" that a couple had built up together throughout their marriage.

Dr. Gerstein concluded: "Retirement is a family affair. Husbands need the help and understanding of their wives particularly at this time".

McKINLEY HIGHEST PEAK IN NORTH AMERICA

Mount McKinley, in Alaska, with an altitude of 20,269 feet, is well known as the highest point of land in North America; but the Book of Knowledge points out that the loftiest peak in the whole western hemisphere is Mount Aconcagua (pronounced Aw-kon-kaw-gwa) on the borders of the Argentine and Chile. It stands 23,081 feet above sea level).

Alaska is notable for its profusion of great peaks and has at least 15 that are higher than any mountains in the United States proper. The highest mountain in Canada and the second highest in North America is Mount Logan, 19,850 feet.

Everest tops them all at 29,002 feet, monarch of the mighty range in which stand a half dozen mountains each over 25,000 feet high.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

It's Got You Covered

Whether or not you subscribe to any particular plan, you are covered by health insurance all your life. This "insurance policy" is your skin—one of the busiest, most important organs of your body.

More than a mere container for the body, your skin is a barrier against diseases. It is a built-in heat pump, regulating body temperature in hot weather or cold. Another important function of the skin is its power of excretion, which helps to regulate both body temperature and the salt content of body fluids. The skin receives and transmits the senses of touch, pain, heat and cold, while it encases in a protective sheath delicate tissues that cannot survive exposure to air or sunlight.

Diseases of the skin, therefore, can disrupt the economy of the whole body. Most skin diseases are characterized by itching, swelling and oozing, and are often complicated by infection.

Medical research, taking advantage of the skin's power to absorb, has developed fast-acting drugs against skin inflammation and infection. The newest, called Neo-Magnacort ointment, combines a hormone-like substance (Magnacort) with an antibiotic (neomycin) to clear up the infection while it quells the irritation.

Skin diseases, though rarely fatal, keep thousands of people from work each day, make life uncomfortable or even miserable for thousands more.

With today's scientific discoveries, however, the doctor can give prompt accurate relief to sufferers of skin diseases.

Blames Government For Lack Of Boating Facilities

The urgent need for marine facilities and national education of pleasure boaters is the responsibility of Canadian governments according to Jack Perdue, Director of Public Relations for Outboard Marine Corporation of Canada.

Speaking at the Canadian Tourist Association convention in Ottawa today, Perdue laid the blame on provincial municipal and federal governments for the shocking inadequacy of marine facilities serving the 750,000 Canadian families who own pleasure craft. He added that the nation's oil companies must also share this blame because of their failure to provide fueling services for boat traffic.

Levelling his charges at government and oil industry representatives present, Perdue pointed out that a few decades ago there were fewer cars on our highways than there are boats on our waters today. Nevertheless, government groups and the oil industry recognized the need for good roads, service stations and safe driving campaigns. As a result, Perdue stated, the development of motoring facilities kept pace with the increase of traffic on the country's roads.

This finds no analogy where boating is concerned today, Perdue alleged.

Responsible groups cannot satisfactorily account for the fact that virtually nothing has been done to provide even minimum docking and servicing facilities for the thousands of pleasure craft in summer-long use on Canadian lakes and rivers.

Pleasure boating cannot advance under these conditions, Perdue continued. The many thousands of Canadians associated with pleasure boating as an industry; the countless tourists arriving annually from the United States and the soaring number of Canadians taking to the water demand action on this problem.

As a life-giving adjunct to the tourist industry in this country, pleasure boating must be given a place on the same budgets providing funds for less urgent projects, Perdue concluded.

Bulk Tank Frend On Dairy Farms

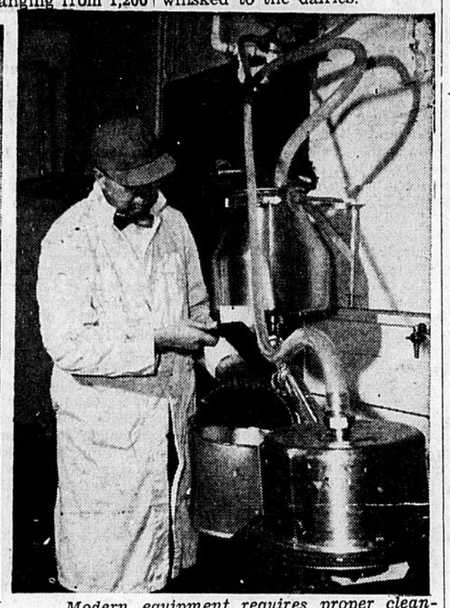

Bulk Cooling tanks require careful cleaning to ensure highest purity standards. Here a farmer-education team headed by Cy Whitlock of The Diversey Corporation (Canada) Limited, Port Credit, Ont., is demonstrating the proper cleaning techniques. At a community demonstration on the farm of Richard Perry in Alliston, Ont., the team is using brushes with "Tynex" nylon monofilament bristles to scrub out the tank after emptying.

The milk can, a familiar sight along rural highways and on railway platforms, may disappear before long.

Dairy farmer and dairy alike in one region are doing away with this collection method, traditional in the $900,000,000-a-year Canadian dairy industry. Instead, the dairy farmers are installing stainless steel tanks, with capacity ranging from 1,200 to 4,400 pounds of milk or 15 to 55 cans, which keep the milk at 36 to 38 degrees. Then it is drawn off into tank trucks and whisked to the dairies.

Possibility of contamination of milk during collection is greatly reduced by proper cleaning. Here milk receiving cans are scrubbed with disinfectant applied through a brush with "Tynex" nylon monofilament bristles.

Modern equipment requires proper cleaning as a factor in quality milk production. Here a brush of "Tynex" nylon monofilament is used to clean a collection can. Disinfectant does not affect the nylon bristles.

But as the milk producer goes modern, so do his problems. Proper cleaning, for instance, becomes imperative when up to 55 cans are poured into the same chilling tank and held for dairy truck pick-up. Those farms which use vacuum lines directly to small collection cans or even to the bulk tank itself have additional cleaning problems.

In one recent week the Toronto department of health destroyed 1,340 pounds of milk in one dairy because of contamination. This type of economic waste can mean bankruptcy for a dairy farmer just as easily as acceptable milk can mean economic comfort.

One progressive organization, The Diversey Corporation (Canada) Limited, Port Credit, Ont., which sells cleaning equipment and chemicals, decided about a year ago that selling was not enough. The dairy farmers wanted to know how to take care of the equipment. This company organized farm demonstrations on the cleaning of bulk tanks, vacuum lines, rubber hose and metal parts and the proper sanitizing of all milk-handling equipment. The program has been so successful that it has been established on a permanent basis.

While the company uses its own products such as "Diversol", a non-corrosive disinfectant, or "Dilac", a milk stone remover, and "Rub-R-Kleen", especially designed for cleaning rubber, among others, it does not try to sell the farmers on anything except keeping the equipment clean.

A major problem in this clean-up business was the quality of brushes. Bristles broke off or wore quickly, making for ineffective cleaning and dirty equipment. One of the education team members says: "It was difficult to convince milk producers that brushes are only good when they have bristles on them".

Tackling the brush problem, the company has decided to make its own out of "Tynex" nylon monofilament bristles which, they have found, retain their stiffness and their cleaning effectiveness mucn longer than ordinary bristles and last longer, also. They found at one farm in North York, in Metropolitan Toronto, that one such nylon bulk-milk brush has kept its bristles for two years.

The farmer-education teams are preaching the gospel of getting quality milk at the source of supply through proper care and cleaning of equipment. After broad realistic experience, team members have drawn up cleaning suggestions which will help milk producers maintain quality milk control. These suggestions are available in the form of a milk-house hang-card from The Diversey Corporation (Canada) Limited, 250 Lake Shore Road West, Port Credit, Ont.

Dr. Marion Hilliard's Philosophy

One of Canada's most famous physicians, Dr. Marion Hilliard, writing in a Nov. magazine, summed up her philosophy of life in a single sentence: "Man was born to love and be loved."

As she prepared for retirement from the staff of Woman's College Hospital in Toronto, Dr. Hilliard sorted out her beliefs and realized, she said, that she had "no faith in the fairness of life." "No one can expect," she advised, "that life will be gracious and filled with esteem for the mere reason of worthiness." She recommended acceptance as "the only hope for survival."

Dr. Hilliard also stressed the importance of "the timing process", of not rushing or jostling "the pattern of life." In her long experience of listening to the problems of literally thousands of married women, the single doctor found that "life holds one certain quality for everyone—suffering". Only faith, she held, was an antidote for suffering. With faith came the ability to love which she termed "the greatest treasure of them all."

Dr. Hilliard's summing-up was the last of a series of articles, written from her own experience as a staff member of the largest women's hospital in the country. She told about her own background, her close-knit family, her early ambitions (she wanted to be a concert pianist) and how she finally came to be the trusted doctor and friend of thousands of Canadian women.

HUNTINGDON DAIRY CATTLE BREEDERS' CLUB NEWS

NO. 3 OCTOBER

The following is taken from a report in Farm News, issued by the Information Service, Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa, in the issue of October 2nd, 1957. We believe it will prove that Artificial Insemination is not just a fad, but something that is here to stay and will prove more and more popular with producers as time goes on.

Artificial Insemination Increased — The number of first artificial inseminations in 1956 increased by 12 per cent, or from 419,825 in 1955 to 470,919 in 1956, reports the Livestock and Poultry Production Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. A total of 76,562 cows were bred in 1956 by frozen semen, an increase of 29.8 per cent over 1955. Artificial insemination was practised in more than 64,000 herds, and 149 units and clubs were operating. The total number of bulls in use in 1956 was 439, averaging more than 1,000 cows bred per bull. On the basis of the 1956 census of cattle on farms, 14 per cent of the milking cow population, and two per cent of the beef cow population, or an average of nine per cent of the total cow population, were bred artificially.

Knowing that producers want the very best type of bulls for breeding purposes, Centre at St. Hyacinthe, with which the Huntingdon Club is affiliated, is always trying to obtain bulls of good bloodlines and reproduction backgrounds. Listed below are those from which Club Members may draw for their breeding purposes:

The Week at Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial Secretary Yves Prevost said this week the fields of Health and Welfare should be left to the provinces.

Federal aid, he said before the Association Patronale des Services Hospitaliers — a group of hospital workers' employers — must be accidental "if we are to conserve our traditional system based on Christian charity and fastened to our religious communities."

Touching on a Federal Hospital Plan, Mr. Prevost said several schemes have been proposed in recent months but that Quebec would not accept any system contrary to traditional policies.

Quebec has all the raw materials and tools necessary for industrial expansion, Paul Beaulieu, Provincial Minister of Trade and Commerce, said Thursday.

Adressing a meeting of the association des Commissaires Industriels — a group concerned with expanding Quebec industry — Mr. Beaulieu said the land holds the raw materials and the universities are capable of turning out experts to develop them.

He quoted a recent group of touring foreign industrialists who claimed the province had developed no more than five per cent of its possibilities.

Before the same association Professor Pierre Camu of Laval University said completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway may mean a loss of traffic for Quebec's established ports but booming Mineral Development will offset it by making others more important.

Mr. Camu estimated Montreal harbor traffic would drop 42 per cent, Sorel, 45 per cent, Trois-Rivieres 25 per cent and Quebec City 24 per cent.

But giant iron ore deposits in the Ungava area are just beginning to be tapped, he said. Deposits of other vital minerals are also on the verge of development.

When these ores begin to flow out of the north they may lead to construction of smelters and mills and the logical place for these is along the St. Lawrence River Valley where 90 per cent of Quebec's industry is located. Such basic industry would provide the spurs for strings of secondary industries.

"There may be losses in these four main ports but there will be extraordinary gains elsewhere," Mr. Camu said.

Jean-Baptiste Lemoine, President of the Quebec Union of Catholic Farmers, this week said although farming in Quebec cannot be called "prosperous" the industry is adapting itself to new economic conditions brought on by rapid industrialization.

Addressing the Annual meeting of the Union, Mr. Lemoine said farming methods and practices are being reorganized to boost production. This means any farm which cannot turn up a profit will disappear.

Delegates adopted a resolution calling for permanent federal price supports for farm products. Premanent policy would hold prices at a reasonable and stable level and thus lead to sensible exploitation of farm resources, the Union feels.

At Boischatel, 10 miles east of Quebec City, the two farmers who blocked a three-mile stretch of road Oct. 18 by digging and erecting barricades across it, fought the Municipal Council to a standstill this week. A motion to have the Council approve reopening the road by police was defeated and the session ended with the situation unchanged.

There are about 10 farms between the two barricades and a number of summer cottages along a nearby river. The 10-foot deep trench with the earth barricade each man dug in front of his home cuts off all but pedestrian traffic.

Farmer Garneau stated the case for the two men, backing up reports they were particularly displeased by conduct of couples who find the road attractive for parking.

"There is this question of morals," he told the meeting. "I don't pretend to be more Catholic than the Pope but at 63 years of age one has some judgment."

Mr. Garneau also said persons IXX using the road have no regard for farm property.

"There is no need and would be no advantage for the community to reopen this road," he said.

Other residents differed but the blockers won out and the meeting was adjourned without a vote for action.

The bore VII, a 7,000-ton Finnish freighter which ran a ground last Monday near Ste. Anne-des-Monts was pulled free two days later. The freighter was driven aground by high winds after one of her mooring lines parted. She took some water and was pounded heavily by waves.

The Roman Catholic School Board of Quebec City last Monday decided to close down all its schools for two weeks. There are some 12,000 school children suffering from Flu in the City.

Facts On Alcoholism In Canada

As Provided by the Ontario Research Foundation

1 Alcoholism is an illness that can be treated.

2 In Canada, there are more than 180,000 alcoholics.

3 In Canada, approximately three per cent of those who use beverages suffer from alcoholism.

4 In Canada, alcoholic employees lose about 19 working days per year as a result of this illness—more than twice the absenteeism of non-alcoholic employees.

5 The average Canadian alcoholic is a skilled or semi-skilled person between 35 and 45 years of age, married, with two or three children maintaining his own home and he is employed.

6 In 1943 there were 1,240 alcoholics for every 100,000 adult Canadians, and in 1956 the rate of alcoholism was up to 1,850 alcoholics in every 100,000 adult Canadians.

7 More new cases of alcoholism are developing in Canada each year than can be treated by all the resources now available.

8 Ontario was the first province in Canada to establish an organization for the study and treatment of alcoholism. The Alcoholism Research Foundation Act was passed by the Ontario Legislature in 1949. To date, four Canadian provinces have established organizations for the study and treatment of alcoholism—Ontario, Alberta, British Columbia and Manitoba. The Province of Saskatchewan has a division of the Department of Social Welfare working in this field also.

9 Alcoholism is a form of illness involving medical, emotional and social aspects. It involves chronic excessive indulgence in alcoholic beverages and loss of control over their use.

10 Mental health has been defined as the degree to which the individual can utilize his skills and capacities with satisfaction to himself and constructive value to his society. The acoholic needs human help that he may achieve this, rather than help from a bottle.

11 Some of the danger signs of approaching alcoholism are there: 1) a pattern of repeated excessive drinking; 2) the disruption of family, business, and social relationships as a result of drinking; 3) an excessive proportion of one's budget spent on alcohol; 4) one or two drinks begin to lead regularly to a drunk; 5) the drinker begins to invent elaborate excuses to rational ize his behaviour.

GIBRALTER

BRITISH POSSESSION SINCE 1704

How is it that Gibraltar, the other side of Europe from Great Britain, and geographically a part of Spain, is a British possession?

In explaining how this came about, the Book of Knowledge says that Spain took Gibraltar from the Moors in 1492 and then lost it in 1704 to a combined British and Dutch fleet during the War of the Spanish Succession. They ceded the fortress to Great Britain in 1713.

For the next 70 years Spain and France several times besieged it without success, but no serious challenge to British possession has occurred since 1783.

The present-day fortress is probably the most formidable stronghold in the world, a huge rock honeycombed with arsenals and equipped with weapons of terrifying power commanding the strait between Europe and North Africa.

A Retailer's 6 Point Advertising Check List

No. 1 — Do You Plan Carefully?

Haphazard, hit or miss advertising is bound to be wasteful and ineffective. Fix your sights on your objectives. Outline what you want your advertising to do, then plan carefully how your advertising should proceed to do it.

No. 2 — Does Your Copy Sell Human Benefits?

Always try to interpret your product or service in terms of how it will benefit the buyer. People don't buy toothpaste just because it is toothpaste, but because it gives them beautiful teeth and a pleasant breath.

No. 3 — Is Your Sales Copy Simple and Clear?

Avoid long words and long sentences. Always search for the simplest word when you write your copy.

No. 4 — Are Your Layouts and Typography Simple?

Try not to crowd your ads with too many elements. Avoid using too many different type faces. Use sufficient white space to bring out individual items.

No. 5 — Are You Fair With Your Competitors?

Never make derogatory comparisons with the products and services of your competitors, no matter what the provocation. Your fairness will win friends and earn the respect of your community.

No. 6 — Are You Stating Prices In Your Copy?

The first thing a reader wants to know when he considers the purchase of a product is: "What does it cost?" Except in very special circumstances, never fail to quote prices in your ads.

FOOD SENSE

About Carbohydrates and Calories

It's time to talk about carbohydrates. They are the starches and sugars in your daily meals, and often are referred to as energy foods.

The total amount of energy you need is based upon how active you are, upon the heat required to keep you warm, and upon the energy needed to keep your body 'operating' smoothly. This total amount is known as your calorie requirement. Every bit of food you eat and digest produces some calories. Calories are merely the units of heat and energy produced when the food is oxidized or 'burned' during the digestion process. In case you're interested, one calorie is the amount of heat needed to raise the temperature of 36 ounces (just less than a quart) of water one degree Centigrade. Thus, when we speak of a food containing 100 calories, actually we mean that food will produce 100 calories when it is digested and used by the body.

Some types of foods produce more calories than others. The carbohydrates, both starches and sugars, and the proteins provide 4 calories per gram. Fats, on the other hand, produce 9 calories per gram. The reason we often refer specifically to starches and sugars as energy foods (when actually every food is an energy food!) is because they are simpler in construction and more quickly digested than complex proteins or fats. Thus the calories from the carbohydrates are quickly available. The calorie value of a simple food like white sugar (almost pure carbohydrate) is easily reckoned. But most foods are more complex. Often they are combinations of carbohydrate, fat and protein, and their calories values can be computed only when we know what percentages of the various nutrients they contain. Milk is an excellent example of just such a complex food.

It's important to remember, also that some carbohydrate foods are known as 'empty calorie' foods. Most sugars, jams, jellies, preserves and rich desserts fall into this category because, when eaten, they provide few, if any other essential nutrients. Their sole contribution to the diet is calories or energy. Many carbohydrate foods of the starchy variety are more valuable nutritionally. Cereals, and breads, potatoes and legumes, although usually classed as starches, also contribute important amounts of cereal protein, minerals and vitamins. Whole grain cereals, enriched white or whole grain breads are good sources of high quality cereal protein plus B Vitamins and iron. Potatoes, if properly cooked, provide vitamin C, calcium and iron, while peas, beans and lentils are good sources of calcium, iron and the B vitamins. All fruits and vegetables are, strictly speaking, carbohydrate foods. But their importance as sources of minerals and vitamins, especially calcium, iron and vitamin C, often overshadows their function as sources of energy calories.

One of the most common misbeliefs about carbohyrates is that they are non-essentials or extras in our daily meals. The body needs a certain amount of carbohydrates, in the form of sugars or starches, before proteins and fats can be properly and efficiently digested. And we must not forget their value as a source of quickly available energy. Therefore the ideal meal pattern contains a sensible combination of good quality carbohydrate foods, like whole grain cerceals, enriched and whole grain cereals, enriched and whole grain breads, vegetables and fruits, plus proteins and fats in proper balance. Just one word of caution! In choosing your carbohydrates starve that sweet tooth! Remember, sugars and sweets are 'empty calorie' foods and don't give you value for your precious food dollar!.....

Athelstan

ATHELSTAN — The Autumn Thankoffering meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society was held Thursday afternoon, October 24th, at the home of Miss Tully and Miss Kimball. The president followed the Thanksgiving Service outlined on the program leaflet, opening with call to worship and hymn. Mrs. Jamieson read Ps. 103 and Mrs. Tully led in prayer.

For the lesson period, Mrs. McIntyre gave a most informative and comprehensive review of the work of the Christian Church in South East Asia. The missionary work in all fields is changing. There is now a greater need than ever for well trained native leaders and, of course, as always the financial and prayerful support of the Home Church.

The secretary was asked to write Mrs. Leatherdale for a list of persons in the Old People's home that they may be remembered at Christmas.

It was decided to send $35. to the Presbyterial Treasurer.

St. George's Anglican Church

The Band of "Little Helpers", under the Convenorship of Mrs. W. Simms, held its Annual Party on Thursday, October 24th in the Heights Recreation Club. The Rev. John Buck told the children's story and games were played. Refreshments of cookies, ice cream and milk were served to the children, and the Mothers were served tea by Mrs. J. Johnson, Group A, and Mrs. C. Grant, Group B.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.A. was held in the Church Hall on Monday, October 21st, when the ladies enjoyed a talk by the Guest Speaker, Miss Mary Barstow. Miss Barstow is on the Staff of All Saints' Hospital, Aklavik, N.W.T., and is also a Guide Leader. She illustrated her talk with most interesting and extremely beautiful coloured slides, and for many of her audience it was a great surprise to see the exquisite flowers which bloom in the short summer of that Arctic area. One picture of particular interest was taken at midnight in midsummer, when the sun never dips below the horizon. This talk was of particular interest to the W.A., as All Saints' Hospital is one of the Mission Hospital supported by this organization of the Anglican Church.

The Annual Christmas Fair will be held on Saturday, November 16th, in Julius Richardson School Auditorium. This is an event well-known to residents of Chateauguay, and there will be the usual popular features, including afternoon tea, served in the Auditorium, and a Turkey Supper, which will be served downstairs in the lunch-room.

St. Andrew's United Church

The Fall Bee, which is the major event for the men of St. Andrew's this Fall is continuing, and a great deal of work was done last Saturday on the Church grounds. Construction of the garage is also going ahead very well. The Bee will continue this Saturday, and if there are any men of St. Andrew's who have not yet taken part in this worth-while project they are cordially invited to attend. Will, not skill, is what's needed, so come down and do your part, and after a good morning's work enjoy a good meal prepared by the ladies of the W.A. A word of appreciation to these ladies, who have already provided two Saturday lunches for gangs of hungry men.

The Sacrament of Baptism was administered on Sunday, October 27th, at the close of morning service by the Rev. D. Brooker. The child baptized was Mark Graham Peers, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Peers of Chateauguay Gardens. On Wednesday evening the C.G.I.T. met in the Memorial Hall. A sincere word of thanks and appreciation was given to Mrs. T. Longley for her keen interest in C.G.I.T. during her period of leadership during the past year, and a welcome to Mrs. D. Brooker as the new Leader.

The Badminton Club meets on Tuesday and Thursday in the Memorial Hall at 8 p.m.

The choir meets for practice on Thursday and any member of the congregation who enjoys singing is cordially invited to attend. We are not looking for prima donnas or maestri, so don't be shy.

The Cubs of St. Andrew's meet on Friday at 7 p.m.

On Saturday, from 1 p.m. until 6.30 a Badminton Tournament will be held in the Memorial Hall.

This year the Remembrance Day Service will be held in St. Andrew's Church on November 10th at 11.00 a.m., with members of the Canadian Legion, I.O.D.E., Chateauguay Cubs and Brownies in attendance.

Powerscourt

The men of the local congregation have been working at the Cemetery putting in the fence on the North side. When this is finished the fence will be completed. Much credit is due to the men who have given their time freely on this project which has added much to the appearance of the Cemetery. For a county cemetery it is kept in first class condition and many complimentary remarks are heard about its neat and trim appearance.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA
by the Canadian Press

OTTAWA, (CP) — It appears there will be little opposition in the Commons to fulfilment of the government's election campaign promise of interest-free cash advances to Prairie farmers on their farm-stored grain.

Only three Commons members opposed the cash-advances legislation as it soared over its first Commons hurdle last week—a vote on the initial resolution preceding introduction of the $150,000,000 measure. Those against the legislation in the vote of 138 to three were three eastern Liberals: A. Wesley Stuart of Charlotte, N.B., Wilfrid LaCroix of Quebec's Montmorency riding and Georges Villeneuve of Roberval, Quebec.

Mr. Stuart, a 55-year-old fisherman, opposed the scheme on the ground that similar cash advances—free of interest—were not being made available to all other primary producers. Mr. LaCroix and Mr. Villeneuve did not speak in the debate.

The scheme would provide western farmers with an advance payment of 50 cents a bushel for wheat, 35 cents for barley or 20 cents for oats, on the basis of a maximum six bushels for each specified acre of current production. Maximum advance to any farmer would be $3,000.

The farmer would pay no interest on the cash he receives from the Canadian Weat Board. The interest—it may amount to $5,000,000—would be borne by the federal treasury.

The cash advance scheme, Trade Minister Churchill said, would give the farmers money to tide them over until they delivered wheat that could not now be delivered because of congested elevators.

Liberal Assurance

The Liberals have given assurances the new Progressive Conservative government will face no Liberal want-of-confidence motion until the PCs bring down a new budget of their own.

Rt. Hon. James G. Gardiner, former agricuture minister amplifying on previous Commons statements, said in an interview the Liberals will not move a want-of-confidence motion until the Conservatives place their complete program before Parliament.

And in the Senate, Opposition Leader W. Ross Macdonald gave notice the Liberals will not use their numerical strength—78 of 102 Senate seats—to obstruct government legislation.

Mr. Gardiner said the reason for the Liberal stand is that the current session "is a special session called to do certain things."

Another one will have to be called early in the new year, he added. "At that time we would expect the government to place all its programs before the pepole. We would want to look at them before we move a want-of-confidence."

He made the statements Oct. 23, the day after he had told the Commons the Liberals had given Governor—General Massey similar assurances when prime minister St. Laurent, following the June 10 election, recommended to Mr. Massey that Conservative leader John Diefenbaker be asked to form a minority government. Mr. Massey had asked how the Liberals proposed "the government should be able to carry on sufficiently long to make it possible for the people of this country to know as to whether the person to whom they had given the largest representation is a person who can command a majority."

Pension Increase

The Progressive Conservative government's proposal for a $55-a-month old age pension will pass the Commons unopposed. Spokesmen for all three opposition parties made that clear in debate on the resolution preceding introduction of the bill, which will boost the pension by $9 monthly from its present $46 for all those who are 70 and older.

The proposal also includes a similar boost in old age assistance payments to the needy in the 65-69 age bracket, and in pensions for the blind and disabled. Cost of these three programs is shared by the federal and provincial governments, while payments for the universal old age pension come solely from the federal treasury.

Both the CCF and Social Credit groups claimed the increase still isn't enough, especially for old age pensioners who have nothing to live on except the monthly government cheque.

Hon. Paul Martin (L—Essex East), former health minister, said thousands of the needy in the 65-69 age group will not benefit from the increase because most provinces now are not matching federal payments. He said only British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland now share with Ottawa the cost of the $46 pension to this group.

Mr. Martin said the other provinces "are not bearing their share of the costs of assisting the elderly people of this country." He urged the government to try to persuade these provinces to recognize "that they, too, have a responsibility in the matter."

Tourist Meeting

Tourist authorities last week heard a complaint from an Ontario farmer and resort operator that the federal government was not treating both sides of his "split personality" equally.

Dr. J. Lawson Mackie of Picton, Ont., told the Canadian Tourist Association conference that as a farmer he had no trouble getting government-backed financial help. But as a resort owner he was unable to borrow any money for capital expenditures except through "Shylock methods."

"Our government is helping me—the farmer—to grow more food to feed more people but it won't help me—the tourist operator—to put my tourist resort in a position to accommodate more tourists over a longer period each year to eat the food I, as the farmer, grow to feed them."

The Association awarded the Atlantic Advocate, a Fredericton, N.B. monthly,) the Canadian Wine Institute trophy for promoting interest in Canada's historical and cultural assets.

It also announced award of the Julian Crandal conservation trophy to Watson H. Porter, London, Ont., newspaper man and conservationist, but called off plans for an Oct. 25 trophy presentation following Mr. Porter's death at his London, Ont., home the previous day. The publisher of the semi-monthly Farmer's Advocate and Canadian Countryman suffered a fatal heart attack.

Howick High School Notes

The annual Fall Formal in honor of the graduation class of 1956-57, was held in Howick High School on Friday, October 25th. Jim Thompson and his Dance Orchestra provided the music. The decorations followed a Fall theme.

The following evening, the twenty-sixth of October, the annual graduation exercises were held in the auditorium, with a large attendance. The program consisted of the distribution of prizes for the class winners of the previous year, songs from the senior girls' group, the annual report from the chairman of the school board, and the student council report, followed by the presentation of the student council pin to Jack Tennant, past president, presented by Anne Ness. Donald Brown, representing the graduation class, gave the Valedictorian Address. We had the pleasure of listening to a very interesting address by the principal of Chambly County High School at St. Lambert, Mr. Earl Templeton, who was a former graduate of Howick High. He spoke on behalf of the teenagers.

Next Friday, November the first, the Maclean-Hunter School Magazine Sale is to commence. Mr. Pickel will start the campaign which will run for two weeks.
