WHERE THE RESPONSIBILITY BELONGS.

Dr. Montizambert, Superintendent of Grosse Isle quarantine station, Dr. Lachapelle, President of the Provincial Board of Health, Dr. Bryce, of the Ontario Provincial Council of Health, and all the officials of the American Boards of Health who visited Grosse Isle last year, agree as to the incompleteness and inefficiency of the quarantine station at that place. In the face of such unanimous expert testimony condemning the quarantine the public will not derive much comfort from the declaration of the Hon. Mr. Ouimet that "the quarantine is as good as can be found anywhere" or from the assurance of the Hon. Mr. Carling that "he is not alarmed about cholera." The public are alarmed and with excellent reason and if the honorable minister were to manifest a little concern for the public health the care of which unfortunately, appertains to his department, we do not think it would do him any discredit. We would be the first to deprecate alarming the community if cholera had actually reached our shores, because during an epidemic nothing is more conducive to the spread of cholera than panic, but no harm can come from arousing the people now, to the necessity of taking all reasonable precautions. It would be wrong to allow the people to live in a fool's paradise until a rise in the death rate begins to alarm Mr. Carling and to arouse suspicions in the mind of Mr. Ouimet that there is something wrong at Grosse Isle. The public are not deceived by the complaisant assurances of the ministers. They know that there is a very real danger of the importation of cholera and they know that the quarantine station upon which the ministers affect to rely for the protection of the country is a miserable pretence and show. It is much to be regretted that Grosse Isle was not gerrymandered last session into a Federal constituency. Had this been done it would have had all the deep water piers the engineers could find room for by this time. Dr. Lachapelle has publicly expressed the opinion that the disastrous smallpox epidemic which devastated Montreal in 1885, could be traced to the defective quarantine, but we presume the Minister of Agriculture was not alarmed then about smallpox, and doubtless the Minister of Public Works of that day was perfectly satisfied of the efficiency of the quarantine. Is this experience to be repeated? are thousands of lives and millions of dollars to be again sacrificed because the Government will not do what is plainly and unmistakeably its duty? Should cholera find the Dominion in its present unprepared condition, there will be no dodging the responsibility for the awful loss that must follow.

THE NEW HOUSE OF COMMONS.

With the exception of one constituency—Orkney and Shetland Islands—which it is safe to count as Gladstonian, the roll of the thirteenth Imperial House of Commons of Queen Victoria's reign is now complete; and it may be useful to recapitulate the exact distribution of parties now and at the meeting of the two preceding Parliaments:

SUMMARY, 1892.
Majority of Unionists over Gladstonians	42
Majority of Gladstonians, including Parnellites, anti-Parnellites and Labor members over Unionists	42

Not since the days of Lord Palmerston have parties been so evenly balanced, and in his time there were only the two great parties organized as such, so that a majority of forty was a much more effective parliamentary instrument than now when we find anti-Parnellites, Parnellites and even a small section of Labor representatives, each pledged to make their voting with the regular Liberal party dependent upon the amount of consideration shown for their own legislative claims.

The personal changes in the new House among prominent politicians are remarkably few; only one Cabinet Minister, Mr. Ritchie, President of the Local Government Board, lost his seat, and it is a curious coincidence that the only other office holder defeated at the polls was Mr. Walter Long, his Under Secretary. Sir Horace Davey, formerly Mr. Gladstone's Solicitor-General, has also temporarily disappeared from the House, but Messrs. Justin McCarthy and Sexton, the two Nationalist leaders, defeated in Ulster, were provided with more Catholic constituencies before the contest terminated.

The return of Sir Charles Dilke by an overwhelming majority in an English mining division is an interesting feature of the election, considering the punishment which Mr. Parnell's less flagrant breach of moral laws brought upon him at the instigation of the Catholic hierarchy in Ireland and the nonconformist element in England.

Many will look forward to the Parliamentary debut of Lord Beaconsfield's nephew, Mr. Coningsby Disraeli, whose first attempt to enter the House has been successful. But undoubtedly the most important addition to the roll is the name of Mr. Blake who has an opportunity of becoming a prominent figure in the present Parliament should he succeed in gaining the solid support of the Irish party; for upon the votes of the 70 or 80 Irish members it absolutely depends whether Mr. Gladstone is restored to and maintained in office.

Notwithstanding many rumors, principally of American origin, it may be taken for granted that whatever divisions develop among the various sections when constructive legislation is taken in hand, they will all unite in support of any motion Mr. Gladstone may bring forward when the House meets with a view to displacing the present Government and in less than a month we shall see Mr. Gladstone, in his eighty-third year, for the fourth time occupying the proud position of Premier.

Irrespective of party prejudices, all must admire the genius and perseverance of the man, and express the hope that the arduous position he is about to occupy—making larger calls upon his tactical and administrative abilities than in any previous circumstance of his life—will not prove too great a strain for physical and mental strength already abnormally preserved.

The new Parliament is summoned to meet on August 4th, but nearly a week must be occupied in the swearing in of members before the debate, which is to decide the fate of Lord Salisbury's ministry, can commence.

THE officer who ordered full private Jams to be strung up by the thumbs went just far enough to give the silly people in the United States a chance to make a hero out of very poor material. Had full private Jams been divested of the uniform he had disgraced and kicked out of the camp he would probably have appreciated the punishment just as much as he did the suspension by the thumbs and nobody would have wasted any sympathy on him. Nobody would be surprised to find the Jams affair become a leading issue in the presidential campaign. The American people may forget all about retaliation and divide on the great question whether Jams ought to have been strung up by the thumbs or to have had a medal, with perhaps a third party bound together by the conviction that he ought to have been strung up by the neck.

Mr. Sharpe's Injuries Cause his Death.

Mr. Thomas Sharpe, who met with the terrible accident at St. Henri on Tuesday night, died from his injuries shortly after four o'clock yesterday afternoon. The operation was not performed, as he was too weak. The annual picnic of the Sabiston employees announced for Saturday next, has been indefinitely postponed out of respect to deceased's memory. Coroner Jones will hold an inquest this afternoon at his late residence, where the body has been removed. A widow and five children, ranging from fourteen to twenty-two years of age, survive Mr. Sharpe.

Tilley; Treas., Bro. Adams; F. S., Bro. Millar; C., Sis. H. Nelson; M., Bro. Giles; G., Sis. Bolton; Sent., Bro. Mann; A. Sec., Sis. Howard; D. M., Sis. Hinman; S. J. T., Sis. Murphy; P. C. T., Bro. Lightning Killed the Horse.

During the heavy thunderstorm on Monday night, St. Andrew's Manse, Lancaster, had a narrow escape from being struck by lightning. On Tuesday morning it was found that a valuable horse, the property of the Rev. C. E. Gordon-Smith, F. S. Sc., had been instantly killed by the electric current. The animal lay dead in the pasture, only a few yards from the house.

Argument in the Dr. Paulides Case.

The enquete in the case of Dr. Paulides against the College of Physicians and Surgeons was concluded yesterday. Mr. Geoffrion addressed the court on behalf of plaintiff. He contended that defendants had no right to refuse Dr. Paulides application for a license, and quoted several statutes in support of his contention.

Fell Out of the Window.

A man named Odilon Daoust fell out of the second story window of a house on Lafontaine street last night and was badly bruised on the head. He was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital in the ambulance.

CHILD'S COSTUME.

A child's frock made either of zephyr or surah check, blue with white and red crossings; trimmings of white lace and cream colored satin ribon. The bottom of the skirt has a double bordering of lace, and the broad revers of the bodice are also bordered with lace. The bodice opens over a Brittany plastron of cream colored woollen material with a lace entredeux at the top. The full upper sleeves fall over high cuffs trimmed with lace. A sash of white ribbon is tied in a loose bow at the front.

ANGELS ON EARTH.

What though no more in human guise,
On radiant pinions borne,
Are angels seen of mortal eyes—
Earth is not left forlorn.
Some bird that sings in hopeless hours
God's messenger may be;
And I have seen in primrose flowers
God's angels smile on me.

THE TERRIBLE HEAT.

FIFTY DEATHS IN ONE DAY IN CHICAGO.

Hospitals Filled With Patients Suffering From Sunstroke—Work Seriously Handicapped by the Heat.

CHICAGO, July 28.—The slaughter by the sun was still on in Chicago yesterday, fifty deaths and more than twice as many prostrations from the heat having occurred. Although there is now in the predictions of a cold wave a possibility of relief, it is certain that the number of deaths will be largely increased during the next few days. The hospitals are filled with patients suffering from sunstroke, many of whom cannot possibly recover. The record Tuesday, which surpassed anything in the number of deaths and prostrations from the heat that the city has ever known, was eclipsed by the awful work of the sun yesterday. The temperature of the official record of the gauge office was 88 in the auditorium tower, but down on the pavements, where what little breeze there was came hot and stifling, the mercury was in many places 105 to 112 in the sun, and 92 to 94 in the shade. As usual the majority of the casualties were in portions of the city occupied by the poorer classes. In many streets in the neighborhood of the lower district the poor people camped during the night on the sidewalks in the endeavor to procure a breath of air, but all their efforts were in vain, for the wind was hot, the pavements were hot and the buildings radiated waves of heat. The parks were packed from early morning until late at night by crowds of people, but their efforts to find a habitable abiding place were in vain. In the business portion of the city by the heat. The number of horses sunstruck and causing temporary lookakees of the crowded thoroughfares could hardly be counted. There were not enough horses in the entire police department to carry off the animals which fell during the day in and about the business centre of the city alone, and it was found necessary to call in outside help, for the ambulance and patrol waggons had all they could do in caring for the suffering people, and had little or no time to devote to horses. The police were for once the most overworked body of men in Chicago. They were on the jump from early morning until midnight, and several officers were prostrated and had to be removed to their homes. At the county hospital the physicians were engaged with cases of sunstroke. There was not enough help, although every possible assistance was pressed into service.

WORK WAS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED

A COOL WAVE COMING.

CHICAGO, July 27.—The signal service predicts at noon to-day that a cold wave is on its way here and that the temperature will fall fifteen degrees within the next twenty-four hours. The mean temperature to-day has been four degrees lower than yesterday. The maximum at 1 o'clock was ninety degrees. Sixteen fatal sunstrokes have been reported up to noon to-day, and there were twenty-six prostrations in addition. Up to midnight the deaths from sunstroke reported to the police numbered 32 and the prostrations 62. Of these a number will prove fatal.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Sergeant Dunn reports extremely warm weather for the next twenty-four hours. At 10 o'clock this morning it was 87. Within thirty-six hours he predicts a cool wave that will greatly modify the present high temperature.

NEW YORK, July 27.—At 4.30 this afternoon the temperature was 89. Several suicides were attributed to heat and five deaths resulted from prostration.

TO GET AS MUCH AS THEY CAN.

Policy of the Irish Members in the Imperial Parliament.

DUBLIN, July 27.—Prominent members of the Parnellite party were present at the meeting of the Irish National League held here to-day and a number of addresses were made. Mr. William Redmond held that the English must be compelled to concede home rule to Ireland. If necessary to gain this end, the country must be run into a general election every six months. The policy of the Parnellites, he declared, was to get as much as they could from both the Conservatives and the Liberals. In regard to the question of voting in Parliament, he said that they must follow the independent policy laid down by Mr. Parnell. A meeting of the Irish Federation was also held here to-day. Michael Davitt made an address in which he said that every member of the party would remain glued to his seat in Parliament every moment that the interests of home rule required. They met with victory written on their banners and were confident of the advent of home rule for Ireland. He said he did not believe that the members of the Labor party who had been elected to the House of Commons, would oppose Mr. Gladstone.

In Favor of Prohibition.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 28.—Roderick McDonald of McDonald & Co., iron manufacturers, was the first witness before the Prohibition Commission yesterday afternoon. He considered the capital put into the liquor business wasted. That business employed the least labor of any industry in comparison to the capital. He considered that a prohibitory law would work well. He thought drunkenness had decreased. Did not think prohibition would promote smuggling.

Mr. L. S. Briand, secretary of the Licensed Victuallers' Association, said that the total wages of the liquor business would annually amount to $83,000. Hotel property would depreciate one-third. The present law in Halifax was bad. It had increased drunkenness and the people were not in sympathy with it.

A Proposition to Mr. Carnegie.

NEW YORK, July 28.—It is stated that Chauncey M. Depew, who sailed yesterday for England, took with him a proposition from the locked out Homestead men to Mr. Carnegie. The proposition for a cessation of the troubles is said to provide that the workmen will give up everything for which they have contended: Will sign the reduced scale proposed by the Carnegie works and will permit the scale agreement to expire in December instead of June, provided the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers is recognized as an association.

The Norwegian Cabinet Crisis.

CHRISTIANA, July 28.—At a cabinet council yesterday, at which the King presided, His Majesty requested Mr. Steen, prime minister, and his colleagues who recently resigned, to remain in office. Mr. Storn agreed on condition that His Majesty accepted the resolution adopted by the members of the Right and Left in the Storthing, in which the Cabinet was requested to postpone indefinitely the settlement of the Norwegian consulate question, a disagreement concerning which led to the tendering of the resignation of the ministers.

The Ashfield Failure at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 28.—The stock of Mr. John Ashfield, crockery dealer, who recently assigned, valued at $5210, has been sold to his brother, Mr. George Ashfield, for forty and a half cents on the dollar. The liabilities are about $11,000. Rent and taxes amount to over a thousand dollars, and Mr. C. W. Mitchell holds a chattel mortgage for fifteen hundred, so that the ordinary creditors will not get a cent.

Firmly Established at Uganda.

LONDON, July 28.—The latest advices from Uganda, state that the British East Africa company has become firmly established there. It is further stated that King Mwanga has escaped from the French Catholics who recently had him in custody and has rejoined the Protestants. The French Bishop of Uganda urged the Catholics to continue the war against the Protestants.

Richelieu Contested Elections.

SOREL, Que., July 28.—The contestation of the election of Mr. A. A. Bruneau, Federal member for Richelieu, came up yesterday before Judge Gill, for the hearing of the defendant's evidence on the preliminary objections. Nine witnesses were heard, and after hearing counsel, the judge took the case en délibéré. Judgment will be rendered on the 10th prox.

Terrible Storm at Wiarton.

WIARTON, Ont., July 28.—The most terrific storm that ever visited this section passed over Wiarton about 7.15 last evening. Almost every blacksmith shop was blown horizontally, every boat house, a large two story building, and the skating rink, were blown over, one side of Young's mill roof was lifted and the business office flooded, windows blown in and much damage done.

Attended a Funeral at the Altar.

MADRID, July 28.—In the city of Burgos yesterday, while Canon Simon was celebrating mass in the cathedral, a man suddenly rushed from his place in the body of the church and bounding up the steps of the altar, attacked the canon with a knife, stabbing him in two places. Instantly the worshippers were thrown into a state of excitement by the sacrilegious act and a number of the men present made an attempt to apprehend the man. He fought desperately to make his escape, and stabbed two of those who had seized hold of him before he was overpowered and his bloody weapon was wrested from his grasp. The motive which induced the man to attempt the life of the canon is not known.

THE CASE OF PRIVATE JAMS.

What the English Papers Say—The General and Colonel to be Prosecuted.

LONDON, July 28.—All the papers print comments upon the punishment inflicted upon Private Jams at the orders of Lieutenant-Colonel Streator, commanding the Tenth Pennsylvania Regiment, now stationed at Homestead, for proposing three cheers for the man who shot and stabbed Mr. H. C. Frick, chairman of the Carnegie Steel Company, on Saturday last. All assert that if the Colonel of an English regiment had treated a private in his command, as Lieutenant-Colonel Streator ordered Jams to be treated, he would have been court martialed and dismissed from the service.

The St. James' Gazette regards the incident as an illustration of the ever widening difference between the American and British characters, and says: "The punishment was more merciful than shooting, the fate which Jams deserved. Nevertheless torture is a thing abhorrent to Englishmen."

OFFICERS TO BE PROSECUTED.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 28.—A conference held to-day between Private William Jams and leading attorneys, who have voluntarily interested themselves in this case, made it certain that the courts will be asked to determine whether a citizen soldier may be, without trial, subjected to barbarous treatment by his superiors. It is also reasonably certain that Major General Snowden, commanding the National Guard of Pennsylvania, and Lieutenant Colonel J. B. Streator, commanding the Tenth Regiment, will be called upon to answer charges preferred to the Commander-in-Chief, Governor Pattison. After the conference Mr. Dickey said: "The officers were brutal and the punishment excessive. When we commence an action it will be one of trespass, and Colonel Streator is liable also to an indictment for assault and battery. However much control these magnates have over their underlings, they are still subject to the laws of Pennsylvania."

WHAT COLONEL STREATOR SAYS.

Colonel Streator has made a statement explaining his action. It does not differ from what has been published, save that he contends that he took every precaution that the life of Jams should not be endangered and that Jams deserved all the punishment he received, because he had been a persistent violator of the camp regulations.

General Snowden manifests a disposition to place the responsibility for any barbarity upon Colonel Streator. He declines to make a statement.

The Democratic County Convention has adopted the following resolution: "Resolved, That this convention strongly condemns the brutal and inhuman punishment ordered by Colonel Streator and General Snowden on Private Jams, and calls on Governor Pattison to make a thorough and impartial investigation in this matter and see that such brutality is justly punished."

The Times says: "The punishment of Private Jams for proclaiming sympathy with the attempt to assassinate H. C. Frick, while not exceeding what he deserved, was in violation of the law providing for the punishment of such offences, and the officers responsible for it must be held to account for their action under the laws of the State."

CONTRIBUTIONS OFFERED.

All the papers have letters from indignant citizens offering to contribute money to fee the lawyers who will take the case into court. To secure an investigation by court-martial of the acts of General Snowden and Colonel Streator, it will be necessary to prefer charges against them to their superiors in the guards. There is little doubt that this will be done, as neither General Snowden nor Colonel Streator are popular in the guard.

BOSTON, July 28.—General Butler, in an interview, expressed himself very forcibly against the recent punishment of Private Jams at Homestead. He said: "The proceedings is barbarous, cruel and unjustifiable by any law in peace or war, and, if it is not, is reprobated so fully and thoroughly by public sentiment that it will never occur again. It will do much to disorganize our State militia and prevent them from coming out when called upon, because no man will go out voluntarily to perform duty where such punishments may follow if he disagrees with his Colonel in political, social, moral or religious sentiments.

"Has Private Jams any redress in this case?"

"If there is an honest jury in Pennsylvania he has. It was wholly unjustifiable. In the first place the Colonel should be tried by a military commission of the National Guard, and his punishment by that tribunal can only extend so far as to take away his commission. Then he should be tried by a jury for a cruel assault and put in gaol or fined, and then he should be sued by the man and made to pay many thousand dollars, if he can pay it, for the outrage. That is all that ought to happen to the Colonel that I can think of now."

MOVEMENTS OF WAR VESSELS.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

HALIFAX, N. S., July 28.—H. M. S. "Blake," on her return from Charlottetown, for which place she leaves to-morrow, will go to Quebec. H. M. S. "Canada" will go to the West Indies to relieve the "Tourmaline," which comes to Halifax to await the arrival of the "Spartan," which comes direct from England. H. M. S. "Pylades" on her return here, will go to the West Indies to relieve the "Tartar," which will come to Halifax.

A YACHT RACE NOT A SUCCESS.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, July 28.—The yacht race down the St. Lawrence yesterday was not a success from a spectator's point of view. Nothing could be seen of the start and the finish. The course covered twenty miles, with but one turn, and resulted as follows: "Sirius," 1 hour 3⅘ minutes; "Crossmon," 1 hour 39⅕ minutes. The "Seyara" did not finish.

A British Vice-Consul Seized.

NEW YORK, July 28.—A despatch from Caracas, Venezuela, says: The latest sensation is the report being circulated in La Guayra that the Legalista troops at Cavenero seized, en route to Rio Chico, the steamer upon which Mr. Anderson, the British vice-consul, recently left La Guayra to carry relief to the overflow sufferers in the Tuy Valley. Mr. Anderson and party were expected back four days ago, and their friends cannot imagine why they have been delayed. There is no telegraphic communication with either Caranero or Rio Chico (owing to the strike), and Acting President Villegas has ordered a Government man-of-war to go in search of them.

The Treaty With Morocco.

PARIS, July 18.—Le Soir declares the draft of the treaty which Sir Charles Euan Smith, the British representative, recently presented for the signature of the Sultan of Morocco, contained clauses providing for the creation of a Moorish state bank with English capital; the creation of a police force in Tangier controlled by Englishmen; the erection of fortifications by the English in the Highlands of Marchan; the cession to England of various plots of land, and the resignation of the sovereignty of England over Cape Juby.

Conspiracy to Depose the Sultan.

LONDON, July 28.—A Turkish correspondent says: "The persecutions of the Ottoman Reform party continue unabated. Monstrous measures are enforced to suppress the agitation, and numerous arrests have been made. The Sultan is convinced there is a conspiracy afoot to depose him. The constitutional party is largely increasing, being recruited from all classes."

Mount Etna Again Very Violent.

CATANA, July 28.—The eruption of Mount Etna is again very violent. Immense masses of rock are projected out of the volcano to a great height, and dense clouds overhang the summit of the mountain. The subterranean rumblings are severe enough to cause windows to rattle in the neighboring villages. The lava streams are again advancing.

Hotels Closed in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 28.—In view of the cholera in certain parts of Russia all the hotels under the control of the Holy Synod have been closed, and will not be re-opened until October.

A FIGHT FOR A BOY.

Suit for the Possession of One of Dr. Barnardo's Waifs Sent to Canada.

LONDON, July 28.—Another stage in what seems likely to be an interminable law suit was reached Monday, in the form of an appeal now on its second hearing from a judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench division, where it was ordered that a writ of habeas corpus issue, commanding Dr. Barnardo, director of the famous East End Home for Waifs, to produce the body of Henry Gossage, son of the respondent, Mary Ford. The boy was born in 1880, and was the child of the woman by a former husband. She is the indigent wife of a laborer and is a Catholic by faith. In the autumn of 1888 she virtually sold the boy to an organ-grinder, who afterwards deserted him on the streets of Folkstone. A local clergyman sent the child to Dr. Barnardo. The mother, learning of the facts, wrote approving this disposition of her child. The boy was some time later sent to Quebec in care of one Norton, who was described as a man of good character and Christian principles, but who cannot now be located. Dr. Barnardo, it will be remembered, is in the habit of sending his reclaimed waifs to Canada, where they are given homes. Meanwhile the priests in the locality where Mrs. Ford, lives persuaded her to take steps to have the boy removed from the care of Dr. Barnardo, whose institutions are conducted on an ultra-Protestant basis, and to have him placed in a Catholic home. When such an application was made Dr. Barnardo replied that he had

SENT THE BOY TO CANADA,

and was not now able to learn either his address or that of Mr. Norton, who had adopted him. A writ of habeas corpus was applied for, and Dr. Barnardo made the same answer in court. The writ being granted, Dr. Barnardo appealed, and being overruled obtained a new hearing which was had before the Lords Justices sitting as the House of Lords, the tribunal of final appeal. After hearing argument, they dismissed the appeal and ordered Dr. Barnardo to produce the boy within three months. Dr. Barnardo claims that he has not exhausted all his resources and that he will find some means to avoid the consequences of not producing the child at the end of the prescribed period. The suit is really a struggle between the Catholics and Protestants. The Catholic hierarchy is paying the mother's expenses, while those of Dr. Barnardo are being taken care of by the Protestant Alliance. It is estimated that the quarrel over the custody of the boy has already cost more than $5,000 in legal expenses. Four Queen's counsel and several juniors hold briefs in the proceedings, which were begun and, for the time being, ended Monday. They are men of note in their profession, and will be sure to find means, if possible, to prolong the litigation as long as the backers of the respective parties are ready to pay the costs.

ONE EFFECT OF RETALIATION.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, July 28.—B. W. Folger, superintendent of the Kingston & Pembroke Railway, and a leading marine man, says that if the retaliation policy of the United States Government is carried to its utmost extent, Canadian tugs and barges may be prohibited from going through American waters on their way down the river to Montreal. The only route for a tug with a long tow is down past Clayton and Alexandria Bay, as the islands are too numerous and the current too swift to permit of them taking any other. Consequently if their present route is shut off, a serious check to the grain carrying trade will be given.

THE LONGUEUIL RACES.

THE LACHINE REGATTA PROGRAMME.

Lawn Tennis in the Maritime Provinces—The National Regatta—Standing of the League Clubs.

A large number of Montrealers took advantage of the fine weather yesterday to attend the second day's racing at Longueuil. The local people turned out in good force also, so that the attendance was very satisfactory. The grand stand was well filled, and the enclosure on the opposite side of the track was well patronized by owners of vehicles of all descriptions. It was evident that the sport, pure and simple, was the main attraction for most of those present, for though the usual facilities were provided for either speculation, upon the results of the various races or upon the vagaries of the fickle wheel of fortune this was not indulged in to any noticable extent. The racing, while not abnormally exciting, was sufficiently even to keep up the interest to the close. Big fields were the order of the day, and in some instances, the starter had considerable trouble. This was especially the case in the first half of the special race, when after repeated breaks Mr. Tom Foster, who was judge, "and a good judge too," was obliged to fine all the drivers $5, except Mr. Vail of Blue Bonnets, who had not offended. This "special" race had been substituted for the "named" race which appeared upon the card, as the owners of the other horses would not start with Burbanks and Williams' "Katisha," whose entry had been received without their knowledge. The race ultimately fell to "Dan" after some very keenly contested heats." "Dodger and "Fred. D." had the race in the 2.45 class between them, the former ultimately coming out ahead. There was a great deal of breaking in this event, "John, A." being a notable offender, as in the third heat he broke no less than nine times and had to be sent back. In the 2.29 class "Ben. B.," skilfully handled by his driver, managed to beat his field after a close contest, in which "Minnie" showed up well. The meeting so far has been very successful, and the promoters have every reason to be satisfied. The arrangements are good, although the telegraph is not altogether what it might be. The track was watered in the afternoon, an excellent idea, as the dust was thus prevented from becoming too disagreeable. The following are the details of yesterday's racing:

Following is the summary:

For the accommodation of the members of the Longueuil, St. Lambert and Grand Trunk Railway clubs wishing to send boats, a special baggage car will be at St. Lambert on Friday evening, and at Bonaventure station on Saturday morning, leaving by 12 o'clock train for Lachine, and returning Monday morning.

The National Regatta.

SARATOGA, July 27.—To-day was oppressively hot here. All the morning the lake was as smooth as a mirror, but at two o'clock a wind sprang up from the south and made a choppy sea. Referee Stinson, however, was satisfied that the water was smooth enough for racing and called out the senior single scullers. Ryan, who last week won the championship of Canada, crossed the line first in 10.24, followed by Hedley. The other scullers came in as follows: Caffrey, Hawkins, Bergin, Bolger and Thompson.

In the junior singles Lehaney made a beautiful spurt at the mile point, forged to the front and won in 11.25; Cady, 2; the others, Seaton, Blackington, Bensley and Coughlin, in the order named.

In the senior and junior of the Jonas, Philadelphia; Cody and Delaney, of the Nonpareils, New York; the Lane brothers, of the Atlantas, New Yorks; and Standish and Lyon, of Detroit, contested in the pair oared race. The Detroits won in 10.43; Jonas second, and Atlanta about a length behind.

In the double scull race, Park and Hedley won, Quinn and Freth second, Henderson and Case third, and the O'Donoghues last. Time, 9.53.

Everybody looked for wretched steering by the junior fours and there was no disappointment. Crews were entered by the following clubs: Institute, Newark; Ariel, Baltimore; Astoria, New York, and Atalanta, New York. The Ariels turned their buoy first, then came Astoria, Atalanta and Institute. The latter crew were here accidentally run down by the steering of the Astoria's, and their boat filling they retired from the contest. The Ariel's won easily in 9 min.

Much interest was centred in the senior four-oared race, in which the Wyandottes took the lead, followed by the Moderes and the Argonauts. At the half mile the crews were bunched together, but it was evident the Moderes led with a half length advantage over the Wyandottes and the Atalantas. As the turning buoys were approached it was evident there would be a general fouling, the buoys being so near each other. There was a general mix up. The referee lined up the boats and gave them another start, making the race really a quarter of a mile dash. The "Moderes" and the "Wyandottes made a dead heat of it in 4.08, the "Argonaute" and "Atalanta" crews fouled close to the finish, "Fairmount" fifth and "Wolverine" last.

It was late in the afternoon, but the referee decided to send off the junior eights. Everetts won easily in 9.05¼ minutes.

The last event of the day was the senior eight-oared race. The water was perfectly smooth and the wind, if anything, favored the crews in the contest, which was one mile and a half straightaway. The Athletics, of New York; Manhattans, of New York, and Maltas, of Boston, rowed and finished in the order named. Time, 7.55.

CRICKET.

Actors Want Another Game.

It is rumored that the gentlemen of the New York Comedy Company, who tackled McGill on Friday last, have become so enamored of the "grand old game" that they are trying hard to get up another match before their departure. They are after the newspaper men's scalps this time, and the latter profess themselves ready to meet them, if a ground can be procured.

Rosedale's Awful Thrashing.

TORONTO, Ont., July 27.—The Brooklyn, N.Y., against Rosedale cricket match was played to-day before a fair crowd on the Rosedale grounds. The home team went first to the bat, facing the bowling of Brown and Durrant. On a fast wicket they could not do much with the visitors' balls, and the tenth wicket fell for the small total of 43, of which Montgomery was the only scorer in the double figures, Brooklyn then went to wicket and thanks to Durrant's 22, Coyne's 17 and Helm's 11 they put together 72 runs. After lunch, Toronto started her second innings, but rain delayed the game for an hour and at half an hour to time they declared the innings closed with 72 runs for seven wickets in the hopes of preventing their opponents making the necessary 43 runs to win in time, and so securing a draw. This they failed to do, however, and Brooklyn hit off the needed score with two or three minutes to spare, losing only two wickets in the attempt. Brown's not out for 4 and Durrant's 15 were the chief contributions.

The Halifax Tournament.

HALIFAX, July 27.—The officers of the garrison and the Germantowns commenced their match to-day. The home went first to the bat and made 126 runs, Hughes contributing 57 and being at bat an hour and a quarter, his score including seven fours, one three and six twos. In the Germantowns' first innings they put together 175, Brewster and Patterson getting 76 of the total, the former being not out and the latter run out through no fault of his.

The following are the scores:

LAWN TENNIS.

The Annual Tournament.

TORONTO, July 27.—Good weather and a large crowd favored the morning's play in the second day. Soon after play was resumed in the afternoon a thunderstorm broke over the city, with torrents of rain, delaying the games for an hour and a half, but cleared for an hour's good sport, although the grass was a little slippery. Appended is the score:

The "Pomeranian" at St. John's

The Allan line steamship "Pomeranian," which arrived in port yesterday, from Glasgow, called at St. John's, Newfoundland, on the way out. She had a quantity of stores for the fire sufferers. On board the "Pomeranian" were Mr. Murray, M. P., Mr. W. B. Grieve, shipowner, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Winter, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Cowan, Mr. J. E. Roach and Mr. Baird, all prominent Newfoundlanders, who were returning to the island from England and Scotland. Mr. Baird was in charge of the stores. A concert held on board the "Pomeranian" in aid of the fire sufferers realized $5.

JOHN MILBANK'S CONFESSION;

—OR,—

A LIFE'S REMORSE.

CHAPTER XV.—(Continued).

"Blake said a very aggravating thing this time, however," replied the other, looking at the engraver very fixedly; "and supposing it was all lies, as I hope it was, I don't blame John—speaking as a man, of course not as a lawyer—for taking the matter up. But Blake was drunk, it seems; indeed, if he had not been, he would not have dared to say what he said; and John has beaten him within an inch of his life. I say again, it is a serious business. The case will have to come to-morrow before the magistrates; and if it should turn out that Blake was only telling the truth, or what he believed to be the truth"——

"The truth about what?" inquired the engraver impatiently. "You don't mean to say, I hope, that it was anything disgraceful, which yet might be true of my Maggie?"

"Now, my dear Thorne, it is no use your putting yourself in a passion; I have come here to get at the facts of the case, whatever they may be, for I shall have to meet them to-morrow. Mind I assert nothing of myself; but if what Blake said was true, Richard Milbank has left a legacy of shame and wrong behind him, such as my heart bleeds to think of, for your sake. There's a child in Poulter's Alley out at wet nurse'——

"Silence!" exclaimed the engraver, in sharp shrill tones, and rising from his chair as hastily as his lame limbs would let him. "You do not know Herbert Thorne's daughter.—"Maggie!" cried he, going out upon the landing, and calling up the stairs, "come down here, lass; thou'rt wanted.—"Not a word more, Mr. Linch, I beg, until she comes."

"It is an unnecessary ordeal," commenced the lawyer; but the next moment, the girl stood in the doorway, pale and undisturbed, with her quiet enquiry: "What is it, father?"

"John Milbank has got into trouble through thrashing Dennis Blake, for uttering lies about you, Maggie. Mr. Linch has called to know whether they are lies, in order that he may adopt the proper line of defence. Please to answer any question he may put to you!"

"Your father has imposed a very unpleasant duty upon me," observed the lawyer hesitatingly; "it is none of my seeking, of course. I merely came here as John Milbank's legal adviser, in order to get at the facts."

Maggie bowed like a princess, walked quickly up to her father, and kissing him, forced him gently into a chair; for, notwithstanding his attempts at self-control, he was trembling excessively; and then stood up with her hand on his shoulders, confronting the visitor.

"Well Sir?"

"You have—ahem!—a pensioner, I believe, in Poulter's Alley," he began—"a young woman?"

"Not now," replied she, with quiet sadness: "the person you speak of is dead."

"Indeed! I saw her myself, not an hour ago."

"You are mistaken. However, there was a poor girl there, to whom I gave assistance—as much as I could, though much less than I would fain have given."

"There is a child—an infant—out at nurse there is it true that you support it?"

"I do so."

Maggie felt her father shiver beneath her touch, and sliding down her hand till it met with his, clasped it assuringly.

"My daughter is always good to the poor," said he, "though we are poor ourselves."

"And who is the father of this child?" enquired the lawyer, looking at his fingers, and dropping his voice to almost a whisper.

"Must I tell that?" asked Maggie, in the same hushed tone.

"It will have to be told to-morrow, and if I am unacquainted with the fact, my client will be placed at a disadvantage," was the rejoinder.

There was a long pause; and Maggie's lips moved twice in vain before they could shape her answer: "It is Richard Milbank." Then she burst into tears.

"It is mere cruelty to your daughter, Thorne, to continue this investigation," said the lawyer, himself greatly moved; "we must make the best fight of it we can for John, that's all."

"Maggie! darling, Maggie! he does not know you as I know you, he has not your hand in his as I have, bidding me trust on through all. You must bear one question more, and answer it. You may ask it, Linch, without fear. Nay, if you will not, I will. Richard Milbank is the father of this child, you say, Maggie; now, tell us one thing more, who was its mother?"

"It was Alice Grey of Dardham. She ought to have been Richard's wife. May Heaven forgive him for his wrong to her! She died some weeks ago—I fear, in want—I was too late to help her, only just in time to save the child."

"And this can be corroborated by proof?" exclaimed the lawyer excitedly.

"If necessary—if absolutely necessary to John. But oh, spare Richard!"

"My dear Miss Maggie, we will admit nothing unless we are absolutely obliged. After what you have told me, I should think this Blake would be only too glad to compromise the affair. However, though he spoke in malice, it was probably in ignorance of the facts of the case, and he has certainly been most terribly knocked about. We shall have to pay the man a good lump sum, no doubt. It is very hard upon our friend John," continued Mr. Linch, addressing himself to the engraver, "to suffer thus in pocket for his brother, having just paid off his debts. I settled the last one for him yesterday. I never knew a man with so fine a sense of duty. Well, I go away with a light heart, Thorne, upon all accounts. Miss Margaret, I wish you good-day." His friendly and effusive manner had quite returned. Maggie suffered him to take her hand, which most young women who had been subject to such an injurious suspicion would probably not have done; but her nature was eminently a just one. She perceived that the circumstances of the case had afforded Mr. Linch no other alternative than to believe the child in Poulter's Alley was her own. Was it possible, thought she, with a shudder, that John Milbank also believed it, notwithstanding that he had resented the accusation in another's mouth. What a good brother, as Mr. Linch had said, had he proved himself, and now unostentatiously had he performed his good deeds, for not a word, had he dropped to them about settling Richard's debts.

The consciousness of having grudged him praise, and the sense of his late kindness to her father, in the matter of the loan—as well, perhaps, of this last action in her own behalf, though she tried to shut that out from her consideration—prompted her to speak of John as she had never done before. She said he seemed to her to be the most unselfish and unsullied of all men of their acquaintance.

The engraver smiled; her choice of adjectives was particularly agreeable to him, since it appeared to be suggested by the contrast in the characters of the two brothers; but, taught by experience, he refrained from eulogy. John was always a good fellow, he admitted; but why was he not more popular? There must be something wrong, he feared, about one who was a favorite with such few people.

Maggie quoted from the book that she had been reading to her father before the lawyer had looked in, the observation that the friendship of the world was not to a man's credit, but altogether the other way.

A DANGEROUS PERIOD FOR BABY!

Mothers, Take Warning!

We cannot too strongly impress upon mothers the fact that teething time is a dangerous one for baby. The summer time, with its prostrating and weakening weather, is always the most critical time, and great care must be exercised in order that baby's life be saved.

The teething period is, at the present season, attended with considerable constitutional disturbances. In some cases the derangements are truly alarming. Diarrhœa, dysentery and convulsions are to be dreaded,—and every possible effort should be made to avoid these often fatal troubles.

During the process of teething the child's safety depends upon proper and sensible dieting. Improper foods cause intestinal irritation, and often result in cholera infantum and dysentery; and in many instances cause stubborn constipation. These improper foods cause fever; the infant becomes very restless; it is then that convulsions are to be feared. Common prepared artificial foods and a poor quality of cow's milk are conducive to these dangers.

To destroy a predisposition to convulsions, fevers and irritation of the intestinal parts at this particular season, pure and health-giving Lactated Food should be fed to the child, if the supply of mother's milk is not sufficient, pure and strengthening.

Experience has proved that Lactated Food is the safest and best diet for infants who are teething in the hot weather. Lactated Food has been the saving agent of thousands of little lives during the dentition period; and hundreds of thankful mothers have testified to this fact.

Lactated Food being a predigested food, and its constituents coming so near nature's food, renders it an invaluable article of diet for every baby that is teething during the oppressively hot weather.

Try Lactated Food, mothers, during the teething time; you will certainly be delighted with the results.

HEALTH AND RECREATION.

"AN INFERNAL CRANK,"

WHAT MOST CALLS BERGMANN.

The New York Socialist Says He Had Nothing to do With the Frick Affair—Bergmann's Assassination Fund.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Anarchists in New York were considerably disturbed yesterday over the rumors that John Most and a lot of others were to be arrested for conspiring to kill Manager Frick. Most himself, although he laughed at the idea that he should be suspected of complicity in the attempted assassination, kept directly out of the way after an early hour in the morning. Most heard about the possibility of his arrest at two o'clock in the morning, when he was aroused by reporters at his flat, No. 256 William street. That bothered him so that he could not get to sleep again, and not long after daybreak he learned that his best friend, Mrs. Ida Hoffmann, was dead. Mrs. Hoffmann lived at No. 62 East Seventh street. She gave bail for Most to the extent of $5000 on the occasion of his last arrest, and promised to go security for him whenever he was in trouble as long as she lived. Most called at Mrs. Hoffmann's house in the forenoon and then went to one of his favorite haunts for beer. There he unbosomed himself unreservedly to his friends. "The idea that they want to arrest me for the deeds of this infernal crank!" he exclaimed. "It would be funny if it wasn't so infernally inconvenient. Mrs. Hoffman dead, and the thermometer climbing up into the hundreds! And all for this confounded fool Bergmann," he continued, "who has been black-guarding me for the last year and a-half, and endeavored to incite my best friends to leave the camp. Most then produced a copy of the Anarchist, a small weekly that is published by the New York Autonomist group. "Here," he cried, "is Bergmann's letter to the editor on May 14, in which he says:

"I am sure every autonomist would rejoice if Most had been hanged years ago."

"Still," he continued, "the police say he is my friend and compatriot, and we have been hatching plots together. Maybe they will hang me on just such a supposition as this!"

Mr. Feiorabend, a friend of Most's, said: "I think I can vouch for it that Most had nothing whatever to do with Bergmann's enterprise. The two men never agreed. They fought each other tooth and nail."

"Do you know Bergmann personally?" I asked.

"I have known him for the last two years," answered Mr. Feiorabend, "but never had any use for him."

The business manager of Freiheit, Mr. L. Kraemer, said:

"Bergmann has been working against Most and against the interests of the Freiheit newspaper ever since he was discharged from this office. When Knold asked us if we could recommend Bergmann as a worker in our common cause Most at once sat down and wrote a letter of warning, in which he characterized Bergmann as a fraud and anarchistic bunco steerer. I myself posted the letter and put a special delivery stamp on. It was addressed in care of our Allegheny agent, Henry Bauer, the man who has just been arrested."

"I have been told that Bergmann made a business of writing to all persons known as being in sympathy with the cause of anarchy, demanding money under the pretext that he needed funds to accomplish the destruction of some person or other against whom workingmen had a grievance."

Mr. Kraemer gave a look of surprise.

"Why, who told you that?" he exclaimed. "I thought this a secret known to only a few of the autonomists! I have heard of such letters time and again. Bergmann constantly asked for contributions for the assassination of the Czar, of police authorites and capitalists. He selected the names with a view to the special grievance the person addressed might have. Among others he offered to slay (if certain contributions had been exacted) was Mr. Carnegie. I don't know whether he intended to travel to the other side for that purpose, or if he had an accomplice on British soil."

"Do you suppose," I said, "that Bergmann has secured special contributions for the killing of Frick?"

"I cannot answer that question," said Mr. Kraemer. "I never heard Mr. Frick's name mentioned in connection with Bergmann's assassination fund."

"Have you ever forwarded any money to Bergmann while he has been in Pittsburg?"

"Never. We were anxious to do that fellow up. Why should we contribute to his support?"

"Is it also true that Bergmann also sent assassination fund letters to Europe?"

"I have heard rumors to that effect. He was in constant communication with people on the other side."

WELL KNOWN SHOWMAN'S MISHAP.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

BELLEVILLE, Ont., July 28.—Charles Ockerman, the well known showman, who has travelled all over Canada and the United States, was so badly burned this morning that he cannot recover. He had gone into an outbuilding about 4.25, when the light from a match ignited some paper and the building was soon in flames. When his wife rushed into the house her husband was in the midst of the flames still holding a lamp in his hand. She pulled him out in a stupified condition. When she pulled his shirt off the skin came off his arms, legs and body in a terrible manner. He is still unconscious.

The case of Alfred Wheeler, for rape, occupied the police court all day yesterday. The prisoner was committed for trial.

The Funds for the Irish Campaign.

DUBLIN, July 28.—At the Irish federation meeting here yesterday, Mr. Timothy Healy said he calculated that the expenses of the Parnellites in the recent elections amounted to £11,000, and in the incoming Parliament the Parnellites would be steered by the hands that furnished that money. Continuing, Mr. Healy said that Rockfort Maguire, for whom the Parnellites had found a seat in Clare, was a pal of the Duke of Abercorn and the Tories. He (Healy) regarded Maguire as the Parnellites' paymaster, and said that Maguire would practically be the dictator of the Redmondites. On the eve of the elections, he said, the McCarthyites were almost entirely without funds, and when he (Healy) drew a cheque for £33 for expenses, he had to ask the payee not to present the cheque for a few days, but within ten days the McCarthyites had received £10,000 from America and Australia, and it should be remembered that if Home Rule was obtained with the aid of the Irish party, the latter would have been non-existent from inability to pay sheriff's fees, except for the welcome support from America and Australia.

The Situation at the Carnegie Works.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 28.—The Carnegie Steel Company notified their former workmen yesterday that as they were no longer in the employ of the company, interest on money deposited by them would stop and the principal would be paid upon application at the office. There are now 700 men at work and all the departments are running. A conference of delegates, representing various trades and labor organizations throughout the country, began in Saller's Hall here yesterday. The object of the meeting is to devise some plan of forming an international organization which will "keep in touch" with the labor organizations of the world. The question was discussed all day and finally referred to a committee. The iron manufacturers and Amalgamated Association resumed their conference yesterday, but accomplished nothing. Another session will be held to-day.

Lost Their Lives in a Volcano.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 28.—James Walton, of Brekenhurst, England, and Henry Adams, of Bellow's Falls, Vt., attempted to reach the largest crater of the volcano of Colimao a few days ago. Both men were engaged in the mining business, and after some bantering they determined to settle the question, which were the braver, Englishmen or Americans, the test being the ascent of the volcano. The guides say that with their respective flags they reached a shelving rock, from which frequently a volume of ashes shot from the crater. Walton and Adams, after the ashes had fallen, were seen grasping hands. The next instant a solid volume was vomiting forth, reaching a height of thousands of feet. Walton and Adams were killed, but the guides escaped.

Morocco Seeking a Russian Alliance.

LONDON, July 28.—A despatch to the Times from Tangier says: "The Sultan announced to the court at Fez on the 20th instant that he intended to ask the Czar to accredit a Russian minister to Morocco, as if this was done, the close alliance between France and Russia would render him independent of other European powers. The Sultan and his advisors are reported, however, to be extremely nervous as to the possible consequences of this treatment of Sir Charles Euan Smith in Fez. There are 12,000 rebels encamped in sight of Tangier. The Sultan and his soldiers are extremely unwilling to fight, but they continue their terrible cruelties and their work of plundering villagers.

THE SANGIER DISASTER.

Details of the Eruption of the Volcano Gunona—Immense Loss of Life.

AMSTERDAM, July 28.—Letters from Celbes give details of the recent eruption of the Volcano Gunona on the Sangier Island. The eruption commenced at 6 p. m. on a day early in June, and was unheralded by the slightest warning. Volumes of flames, smoke and masses of stone suddenly burst from the volcano. The stones fell all over the islands, killing hundreds of natives, who were busy in the fields getting in their crops. Those who succeeded in reaching the supposed shelter of their homes found no refuge, many houses having been crushed beneath the weight of the falling stones, and roofs having collapsed under the weight of ashes, burying the inmates, in many instances whole families. Streams of lava flowed with frightful rapidity down the slops of the burning mountain, upon which there were situated numerous farms and villages, which were overwhelmed by these rocks. It is estimated that over 1000 persons perished on the slopes of the Mountain, and many hundreds more in the lowlands, but the exact loss of life is not yet known. A week after the eruption had abated the inhabitants were still in a state of terror and would not approach the scene of the disaster. The island is now threatened with famine, all the crops having been destroyed. Cocoa trees are still standing, but their leaves and fruit have been destroyed and their stems left bare. In many parts of the island good wells have become dry. The authorities are doing the best they can to alleviate the distress of the people. The inhabitants, though nearly demented with terror, are docile and the authorities have met with no disorder.

FRENCH CANADIANS AND ANNEXATION.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, July 28.—Le Canada of this city publishes a remarkable editorial on the Manitoba provincial elections. It declares the crusade carried on there to abolish Catholic separate schools, a privilege guaranteed by the constitution, is openly supported by the Liberal press and tacitly endorsed by the Conservative press. The article goes on to assert that an effort is being made to denationalize the French Canadians and make them hewers of wood and drawers of water. It adds: After a century of struggles, of sacrifices and of progress under the English flag, are we going to allow ourselves to disappear slowly, but surely, in order to give way to English colonists? Will we submit to that humiliation? No! decidedly no! Before allowing ourselves to be engulfed in the soil of our ancestors by a foreign antagonist element we will range ourselves under the American flag and work for the glory and grandeur of that grand country.

TO BE TRIED AT MURRAY BAY.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

QUEBEC, July 28.—Judge Chauveau rendered judgment this morning upon the question of jurisdiction in the case of the Federal Government against Bouchard and Landry. His Honor decided that as it was a case of felony committed in the district of Saguenay he remanded both prisoners to Murray Bay, where the investigation will be commenced next week.

Mr. Languedoc will leave for Murray Bay to-morrow morning and the two prisoners will also go down by the same boat in charge of the provincial police. Judge Chauveau, the witnesses and the other lawyers in the case will leave for Murray Bay on board the "Constance" on Tuesday next. As Judge Chauveau has jurisdiction over the whole province of Quebec he will preside at the investigation at Murray Bay.

DR. BERGIN AND THE QUARANTINE.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, July 28.—Dr. Bergin M. P., has arrived from Cornwall for the purpose of laying before the Minister of Agriculture his views upon the measures necessary to strengthen the efficiency of the quarantine service in the St. Lawrence. During the epidemic of 1854 the surgeon general formed intimate personal acquaintance with the disease, and is known to entertain strong opinions upon the question of an efficient quarantine. Dr. Bergin was attacked by cholera while returning from a long ride in the country. He fell from his horse and lay for several hours unconscious before he was discovered and taken home. Strangely enough the doctor ascribes his recovery to a wilful disregard of the accepted medical treatment of that day.

AWAY ON THEIR HOLIDAYS.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, July 28.—Mr. A. Gobeil, Deputy Minister of Public Works, is away on a holiday trip. During his absence the departmental secretary, Mr. Macpherson, is acting deputy minister.

Hon. Mr. Carling and Hon. Mr. Patterson were the only Cabinet Ministers in town yesterday.

An air of mid-summer dulness and the smell of fresh paint pervade the corridors of the departmental buildings just now. The annual cleaning and renovation of halls and offices are being done by the staff of the public works department, while on the outside painting and repairing the masonry work is being carried on.

A SCHOONER CAPSIZED.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, Ont., July 28.—The schooner "Keats" capsized while coming out of Picton harbor this morning in a terrific thunder and lightning storm. She was bound for Oswego, light. The vessel took a complete roll over and turned bottom up. The steamer "Hero" happened to be close to the schooner at the time of the accident, and succeeded in rescuing Captain Duetty and two seamen. The Cook, Mrs. Papa, of this city and one sailor, James Salmon, of Belleville, were drowned. The captain purchased the "Keats" about three weeks ago for $1600 and had no insurance.

FELL OVER THE CLIFF.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, July 28.—William Hutchison, an employe of the Gatineau Valley Railway, met with a very serious, if not fatal accident shortly after o'clock four yesterday afternoon, by falling over a cliff at Nepean Point, in rear of the Government Printing Bureau. He was walking leisurely along the top of the cliff when a small piece of earth that he stepped on, gave way and rolled to the bottom. Down he went after it and in his descent had his right wrist badly dislocated in trying to save himself by clutching at some projecting rocks.

A TORONTO NEWSPAPER STORY.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, Ont., July 28.—Among the journalistic rumors floating about, the World gives the following: A well known gentleman who is identified with the one-time Conservative organ is predicted for an early retirement, so as to allow of a consolidation of the Mail and Empire into the Conservative organ. The name of Mr. E. E. Sheppard has also been recently mentioned a great deal as prospective head of the Empire or of the consolidated Mail-Empire. So has the name of ex-Mayor Clark.

THE HEAT IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 28.—St. John is experiencing the heated term. Yesterday the mercury mounted to 88°, and this morning the heat would be insufferable were it not for a breeze that is blowing gently from the north-west. At Moncton, Fredericton, and other towns throughout the province, the mercury has been up in the nineties for the past two days.

JUMPED INTO NIAGARA FALLS.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 28.—Yesterday Victor Freiman committed suicide by jumping into the Falls. He left a note saying he was tired of life and a curse to himself.

QUEBEC, July 28.—The Executive Council will meet to-morrow morning. Hon Messrs. De Boucherville, Hall, Pelletier and McIntosh were in their offices this morning. Hon. T. C. Casgrain will arrive up from River du Loup this afternoon.

INSUFFICIENT ATTENTION.

Another Coroner's Jury Brings in a Verdict Censuring a Railway.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, July 28.—The verdict of the coroner's jury in the Erinsville Railway collision case is: "According to the jury's interpretation of Rule 7 of said railway company and the working order given to the conductor, Wilkinson, we must exonerate the said Conductor Wilkinson from blame, as it appears to us he had sufficient time to get into the siding at the gravel pit before the arrival of Richardson's train. We find also that the conductor, Richardson, in charge of the mixed train from Tweed, was running ahead of standard time, in consequence of imperfect timepieces, but not on account of any negligence on his part. Further, we find that the rules of the road admit of so many different interpretations that conductors and engineers cannot be expected to fully understand them, when compared to the working orders issued from the superintendent's office, and we hereby censure the Bay of Quinte Railway Company in control of said road. We consider that there is not sufficient attention paid to the comfort and safety of the travelling public."

The Water Works Superintendentship.

To the Editor of the STAR:

DEAR SIR,—"Who is to be the next superintendent of water works?" is a question to which the individual citizen may give little concern; but it is in reality of more importance to the city than the question of "Who is to be the next mayor?" To some of the aldermen it is of very special and tangible import, and the electors will wake up some day soon to find as they have always found, how futile it is to make a fuss after the deed has been done, and the city will have to pay as it always has to do. Of the candidates whose names are brought most prominently forward all are more or less objectionable. As regards Mr. A. Davis, his want of training as a civil engineer renders him conspicuously unfit for the position. If it were a mechanical specialist that was wanted he might do very well. And if in addition to his mechanical knowledge it could be proved that he had good administrative abilities, laying other objections aside, he might do, with this important proviso that he had a really efficient civil engineer as his deputy. And, the condition of the North Shore Railway when taken over by the Canadian Pacific is very poor evidence of his management. As for the present assistant superintendent he may count himself lucky that he holds the position he does, and there are many people who would like to know just exactly how he got there. He was pitchforked into a position that many far better qualified men would be glad of, and while there has done less than nothing to warrant advancement. It is perfectly absurd to think for a moment of putting him in a responsible position like that, and any alderman voting for him can do so only in crass ignorance, or for their own aggrandizement. The appointment of either of the foregoing men would simply mean the perpetuation of the system under which the department has become rotten. As for Mr. Vanier whose name has been brought forward of late to fill the manifest void, not much can be said against his qualifications for the office, but there is one important question to be asked, which demands a very satisfactory and conclusive answer. Mr. Vanier, according to his own and his friends' showing, has a private practice which brings him an income of not less that $10,000 a year—certainly, it is very considerable. How, then, does he propose to squeeze $3500 with that, to say nothing of slavery and harassment on the one hand and freedom and independence on the other? The aldermen will require to make it worth his while some way or another, and quid pro quo. The proverbial nigger is lurking somewhere about. Now, there is not the shadow of a doubt, but that Mr. McConnell has been treated abominably. A man of ability and integrity, his long service has well merited the position, and with it a fair show to carry out the reforms he would have tried. This he never got, and whenever he tried to take a stand he was trampled on, and at the last moment deserted in a shameful way by those who ought to have supported him. Whenever there was blame to put it was laid on his shoulders, and whenever there was credit to be got it was taken by the aldermen and the Mayor. Mr. McConnell's name has been frequently contrasted of late with that of the City Surveyor. There can be no doubt that the city has in the latter a most efficient and valuable servant, especially in the present condition of affairs. To his ability as an engineer and administrator, he adds a faculty of the most consummate tact. Herein the difference lies. Mr. St. George knows just when to take a stand, but, as every engineer is aware, who sees anything of the work done for the city, he knows just when to put his "telescope to his blind eye" after the manner of Admiral Nelson, and to "wink with the other eye." If Mr. McConnell had half the tact of Mr. St. George he would have been superintendent of Water Works to-day, and they would have been proposing to increase his salary likewise. Now, there can be only one fair solution of the difficulty. The Council have advertized, and they have not got one application worth serious consideration. God knows there are plenty of engineers in the country and even in the city to-day, who would jump at the position, if they thought they could do so with any satisfaction to themselves, let alone decency to Mr. McConnell. Can any assertions have been cast, but Mr. McConnell's efficiency has never been seriously assailed. The blame for the whole thing lies not at his door, but on the aldermen who hounded and harassed him, and on those who had not the manliness to support him. Let them be made to suffer, not he! There is more in this, however, than affects the mere personality of Mr. McConnell. There is a principle involved which must be held up, high and clear, in the sight of every citizen. That a man in the service of the city either dares to be honest and straight forward with impunity, or else, he does not dare? The Aldermen will answer that by their votes on Monday. Let the citizens mark what the answer is! Surely the eyes of the electors as a body will not always remain closed to the acts of aldermen, who, if they are not entirely iniquitous, seem to be simply stupid. Will no one take a stand and not be driven back? C. E.

That Protest to the Orange Resolution.

To the Editor of the STAR:

SIR,—An old schoolmaster and a Scotch Protestant at that, is not only surprised, but more than surprised, at my protest, as well as my assertions without proof in reference to the Orange resolution and the school question. I can give the old schoolmaster all the proofs he wants to back up my position. In the first place I have been a schoolmaster, in the Highlands, for three years and a half before I came to Canada, and therefore I ought to know something about school matters. The Protestants of Quebec are only making themselves ridiculous by opposing the Roman Catholics of Manitoba in their very reasonable demand, that they should get their share of the public money to support schools to suit themselves. Sauce for the goose, sauce for the gander. The Roman Catholics have a sacred right to spend their own money and educate their own children in their own way.

Any one that has taken the trouble to read my communications to the press during the last five or six years, may know my opinion about Romanism as a system.

I consider the church and school so closely identified that I believe the the church and the school should be united, and both should be entirely seperate from the state. I consider that religion and moral principles are the most important parts of education. I consider that a boy or a girl well educated in Bible knowledge, the shorter catechism, and the history of the reformation, is better educated than a boy or girl who is taught music, vulgar and decimal fractions, and a smattering of drawing, but who is ignorant of the former branches? Professor Blackie, in his "Self Culture," says that the best way is to get a good knowledge of the Bible, and then half the battle is won. The old schoolmaster seems to have misunderstood a part of my letter. I cannot understand any Protestant sending his children to a Roman Catholic school when any other is available. He says that my assertion that "the best Protestants are those educated in Catholic schools" is contrary to common sense and without historical proof. Is it, indeed? Where were Luther, John Knox, Gavazzi, Father Chiniquy and the whole generation of Reformers of the sixteenth century educated? What about the Rose Bible and Marmion in Ontario?

FINANCIAL.

The London and foreign markets are practically doing little or nothing in the way of American securities. Speculation is restrained in part by fears of the anti-option bill becoming law. The discussion of this and other economic and financial questions has aroused a feeling of uncertainty in Europe, which may not easily be allayed. Europe has not yet resumed active selling of American securities, but recent developments have tended to exert an influence in that direction. The bill introduced in the United States Senate, proposing to negotiate with England, France and Germany for coinage of silver, embodies a very shrewd idea. English and German financiers have been asking what they were going to get out of any scheme for relieving the United States of its burden of silver, and to this problem a smart Yankee banker answers by saying that "if it can be shown that the commercial interests of Great Britain, for instance, will be enhanced in two ways by a greater use of silver, a measure to that end will come before Parliament with a good deal of strength. According to this plan English manufacturers will derive an advantage in transactions with India from the increased stability in Indian exchange, and will also secure larger markets in this country from the reduced duty on imports. The same line of reasoning holds true to a partial extent with respect to France and Germany." That's all very nice and reads well, but if the American manufacturers in the Eastern States refuse a curtailment of their profits to a lowering of duties for the sake of enhancing the stability of the currency, where are you with the commercial men of Great Britain and Europe. They will require pretty solid arguments before favoring the schemes of the silver coinage advocates of the United States to their own detriment.

Money in London is plentiful and unchanged, at ½ p.c. on Call and ¾ p.c. on short bills.

In New York there is more strength in the shares market than for weeks past.

The shock to public confidence imparted by the outbreaks of operatives at the Carnegie works and the mines in Idaho has been repaired by the promptness with which the authority of the law has been asserted and the leaders held responsible for their acts. These too frequent recurrences of lawlessness by misled operatives show, however, the necessity of maintaining the militia force of the State, as well as that of the Federal army, at a high standard of efficiency.

Money in New York remains unchanged at 1½ to 2 p. c. on call. For Timemoney the demand is light and lenders' rates are now 2 to 3 p. c. for thirty to sixty days. While there was no notable change in sterling exchange, foreign bankers say that bills are rather scarce, and that unless "futures" become more plentiful it may become necessary to ship a little gold this week. The posted rates are 488 for sixties and 489 for demand. Actual rates were 487 to 487¾ for sixties and 488 to 488¼ for demand and 488¼ for cable. Commercials were 485 and documentaries 484, and Paris francs 516¼ for long and 515⅝ for short.

Grand Trunks opened in London this morning at 62¾ for 1st pref. and closed at 64¼, while 2nd pref. sold down from 40¼ to 40.

There is no change in the local situation, the banks are well supplied, ready for good customers. Call loans are made at 3 to 3½ p. c., and for prime commercial paper, 6 to 6½ is the rate.

The exchange market is firmer in tone. Sterling sixties, 9¼ to 9⅜, and demand drafts, 9 11-16 to 9¾ between banks. Over the counter sixties, 9 9-16 to 9⅝, and demand drafts, 9 13-16 to 9 15-16. Cables are 10. New York funds are 1-10 to 1-16 between banks and 1-16 to ⅜ over the counter.

Dried Human Heads.

"A remarkable tribe of Indians," said Mr. Childs, who was recently in South America, "are the Napos, who live in the northern part of Chili. Instead of wearing scalps at their belts as trophies, like the American savages, the heads of their enemies dangle at their girdles. By a mysterious process known only to themselves, they remove all the facial and cranium bones without cutting the skin or destroying the interior. The head is then reduced, without maiming any of the features, to the size of a man's fist."

Mr. Childs brought one of these heads with him, and he intends to put it in the museum of the Carnegie library here. In San Francisco he showed it to the County Medical Society, and the doctors offered him $1000 for it. He said no sum of money would buy it. He thinks there is one in the Smithsonian institution, and outside of his own he doesn't believe there is another in the United States. The Indians discovered they could sell the heads to the whites at a good price, and to prevent them from luring people into the mountains and killing them, or murdering the aged of their tribe and preparing their heads, a law was passed forbidding their sale. Through the kindness of Gen. Casmano and Gen. Sorsby, the American Consul-General to Ecuador, Mr. Childs secured the head. He says Gen. Sorsby has eight orders for heads from museums and colleges in the United States, and he is afraid he will not be able to get them.

The head and face that Mr. Childs has is not as large as a baseball. By the secret process the bones were removed and the features reduced. All the hair on the original head is still there. It is long and black, and probably reached to the shoulders. The Indians put a string through the lip for every enemy they had slain. This head has four strings in the lip, and the mouth is drawn out of shape. The microscope reveals the pores of the skin, greatly crowded together.

The head was cut off even with the shoulders, and there is a hole in the windpipe, directly under the chin, where the victim was evidently stabbed. A number of people have looked at the head, and all are puzzled how it was prepared. Gen. Casmano thinks that immediately after the bones are taken out red-hot gravel is put into the head. The heat reduces the size, tans the skin, and makes it hard and tough. Then the gravel is removed.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Island of Papua.

A Russian naturalist, Prof. Maclay, who passed several years in the interior of Papua, describes the Highland district of the great island as a region as remarkable for its scenery and productiveness as for its salubrious climate—a perpetual May in the terrace lands, with March and April plateaus here and there in the highest mountains. The area of the whole island exceeds that of Texas, but its population hardly aggregates a million, nine-tenths of the aborigines being lowland settlers, black idlers gorged with the yam roots and wild-hog steaks of the coast plain. The uplands, too, abound with game and fish, and the only conceivable reason why the natives should limit their hunting grounds to the sweltering coast jungles, is their preference for a climate that enables them to dispense with dry goods the year round. In the Torres range there are summits towering to a height of 11,000 feet, but the close proximity of the equator has covered the highlands with a luxuriant vegetation. Snow is hardly ever seen, but chill nights — light frost oven — occur now and then, and the frizzle-haired coast dwellers avoid the mountains as the Indios Mansos of the Mexican lowlands avoid the tierra fria. Papua is a paradise of birds, but the kingdom of mammals is represented only by a few marsupials (ground kangaroos, tree kangaroos and opossums), besides the wild hogs of the river jungles.

THE SMUGGLERS.

THEIR TRIAL COMMENCED AT QUEBEC.

Evidence of Captain May and Chief Mate Demers—The Question of Jurisdiction Raised by the Counsel for the Defence.

(SPECIAL TO THE STAR.)

QUEBEC, July 28.—The prisoners, Bouchard and Landry, were brought up in the Police Court yesterday afternoon, when the evidence given by the Customs officers and officers of the cruiser "Constance" was read over in their presence. Judge Chauveau presided, and a large number of persons were in attendance. The evidence of Captain May was as follows: I am master of the Dominion Revenue steamer "Constance" and hold a commission as a special preventive officer of Her Majesty's Customs of Canada. On the seventh of July instant I was cruising in my vessel in the Lower St. Lawrence, when, at a point a little below St. Faneres Bay, I sighted a schooner under sail which appeared to be coming out of St. Nicholas harbor. I at once gave chase, suspecting she might be a smuggler. On nearing her and examining her through my glass, I found she bore on her starboard quarter the letters, "P. B. & Co." the ordinary and well-known mark of Messrs. Price Brothers & Co., of Quebec. My first impression was that the schooner was one belonging to that firm, but on nearing her I found her general appearance suspicious, especially when I ascertained that she had no name painted on her stern. I hailed the captain and asked him where he was from, but he mumbled his answer in such a manner that I could not understand him. I then told him that I would have to board him, to which he made a reply I did not quite understand. I thereupon ordered my mate, Louis Arthur Demers, to lower the boat and

BOARD THE SCHOONER,

He thereupon did so, taking five men with him. As the boat proceeded to the schooner we became separated from her a short distance so that I could not hear everything that was said. As the boat approached the schooner I saw men issuing from the cabin of the latter, some, if not all, armed with guns. They in number eight or ten, which, with the two already on deck, made ten or twelve. I noticed that they were making threatening gestures at my crew. The boat returned. I then tried to board her by bringing my vessel alongside her, but she manœuvred to prevent me. The man at the wheel, captain of the schooner, was the prisoner Bouchard. In view of the resistance thus offered and finding myself short-handed, I determined to at once report to the authorities and proceeded to Gadbout for that purpose, and to receive instructions.

The evidence of the first mate, Demers, was in substance as follows: On the seventh of July instant, I was ordered to lower the boat and board the schooner mentioned by the captain. I proceeded to do so with five men of the crew. When within speaking distance of the schooner, the prisoner Bouchard, her captain, called out to me that I had no right to board her as he was three miles from shore. He ordered me away and at the same time eight or ten men came out of the cabin on the deck. One man, I am sure, had a gun; the others all had something in their hands which I saw them lay down on the deck. I thereupon returned to the "Constance" for further orders.

After the reading of the evidence Mr. Languedoc, on behalf of the Crown, asked that the prisoners be remanded. Messrs. Fitzpatrick and C. Langelier resisted this application, and the latter said that there was an important question to decide at first whether to investigate charges committed in the district of Saguenay.

His Honor Judge Chauveau said that there were two distinct charges, one against Bouchard alone for resisting Captain May and his officers in the lower St. Lawrence and the second against the two prisoners for resisting Customs officers at Pisle-aux-Coudres.

Mr. Languedoc stated that a charge would also be made against Bouchard for scuttling his schooner.

Judge Chauveau suggested that the investigation be commenced to-day, as Capt. May wished to leave port as soon as possible.

Mr. Fitzpatrick then said that he was ready to discuss the question of jurisdiction immediately, and this was agreed to.

Mr. Languedoc and Mr. C. P. Angers argued that according to section 226 of the Customs Act the investigation could be proceeded with in this district.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, on the other hand, cited authorities in support of his contention that the case should be proceeded with at Murray Bay, in the District of Saguenay, where the offence is supposed to have been committed.

After hearing counsel on both sides, Judge Chauveau took the case en délibéré and will render his judgment on points raised to-day.

Mr. Parmalee, Deputy Minister of Customs, was present in court during the afternoon.

A RECKLESS BANK ROBBER

Arrested in Frankfort-on-the-Main—Wanted in Canada and the United States.

BERLIN, July 27.—Henry F. Hardy, one of the most desperate and reckless bank robbers and gaol breakers that this country has ever produced, is in the custody of the police of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. When arrested he was living on the proceeds of robberies in Berlin and Baden-Baden, in handsome style, as Edward Carson, a wealthy American mine owner. He had apartments at one of the fashionable hotels in Frankfort, and was associated with several well known Americans and their families and with two English noblemen. His clothing was of the finest quality, and he wore expensive jewelery. His lavish expenditure of money had won him the title of "The American Millionaire." Hardy, on September 10, 1888, robbed the First National Bank of New York of $2750, and the Commercial National Bank of $8450, by snatching the money from the tellers. He was arrested, but escaped from the court room while the trial was in progress. He was recaptured and next day was sentenced to 18 years' imprisonment. He was taken to Sing Sing, and then transferred to Dannemora prison. Two weeks later a gang of painters was put to work in the yards. Hardy donned a pair of overalls and joined the painters. Half an hour later he walked out of the yard and disappeared. He was captured in Plattsburg after a desperate struggle, during which a policeman shot him in the leg. He was sent to the Clinton Prison hospital, and on the night of his arrival there he made a rope of his bedding and escaped in his night clothes. He went to Montreal, and a few days later he robbed in his old reckless way the Bank of Quebec of $3000, and the Bank of Montreal of $7000. He next turned up in Philadelphia, where he was again arrested and taken to Dannemora prison, from which he again escaped in two months. Hardy has 37 years' imprisonment to serve in America.

Anarchists Create a Scene in Court.

PARIS, July 28.—During the trial at Versailles yesterday of four Anarchists charged with stealing dynamite which was used on last May Day, one of the prisoners, named Ettievant, was ordered by the judge to stand up. Instead of complying with the order, the prisoner remained in his seat and impudently replied: "Get up yourself; why don't you get up?" The judge answered, "I am a magistrate and need not rise to speak to you." Ettievant retorted, "One man is as good as another. Get up if you want to speak to me, then I will get up too." The other prisoners followed the example of bravado set by Ettievant and adopted an insolent mien towards the judge. Each in turn began a violent harangue, and began to expatiate on the subject of Anarchism. The judge, after a scene of considerable disorder, succeeded in silencing them.

Decorated by the Queen.

LONDON, July 28.—The Queen has conferred the Order of the Garter upon the Duke of Devonshire and the Duke of Abercorn, the Grand Cross of the Star of India upon Viscount Cross, Secretary of State for India, and the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath upon the Earl of Lathom, Lord Chamberlain of the Queen's household; Sir Philip Wodehouse Currie, Permanent Under Secretary of State in the Foreign Office, and Sir Robert George Wyndham Herbert, Permanent Under Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Another Famine Feared in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 28.—The Zemstovof has asked the treasury for a loan of 500,000 roubles for seed and 140,000 roubles for sanitary measures. Similar applications are expected from other provinces, which suffered from famine in 1891. This foreshadows a repetition of the famine unless rigorous measures are taken.

AN ENERGETIC STAND.

The Reforms Needed at Grosse Isle Clearly Set Forth.

AN ANSWER TO THE CITIZENS' PETITION.

In reply to the petition respecting the quarantine presented by the citizens to the Provincial Board of Health, the following letter has been sent:

Montreal, July 27, 1892.

"To E. B. GREENSHIELDS, Esq., H. & A. ALLAN, THOMAS MAY & CO., and others:

"GENTLEMEN,—In conformity with the desire expressed in your petition received yesterday, and addressed to the president of this Board, I beg to inform you that a special meeting of the local committee of the Board was held this morning.

On referring to the minutes, the committee found that from September, 1887, this Board frequently made representations to the Federal Government on the want of extended wharfage and accommodation at Grosse Isle, on the insufficiency of the different appliances for the disinfection of vessels, and also on the want of more commodious buildings for the accommodation and classification of suspected passengers detained at the station.

Furthermore, it is on record that the president himself personally inspected the Quarantine in 1888, and, no attempt to improve the position of affairs having been set on foot by the Federal Government, on September 6, 1889, the members of this Board specially visited and reinspected this important station, an elaborate report being sent to the Federal authorities.

Later on a delegation of this Board was sent to Ottawa to interview the Government on the matter; the views and suggestions of the Board were then again fully exposed, and the Government was requested to take an immediate action for the protection of the public health.

Finally, as late as the last May meeting of this Board, the following resolution, being passed at the request of the Board of Trade of the City of Quebec, was forwarded to the Government:

"Resolved: That the Board of Health of the Province of Quebec sees with pleasure the steps taken by the Board of Trade of the City of Quebec, to obtain from the Federal Government the needed improvements at Grosse Isle Quarantine station.

"That this Board takes this opportunity to call to the suggestions repeatedly made to it in connection with those improvements, and partially in a report transmitted in 1889, of which the following is an extract.

The Board is more and more convinced that the extension of the wharf, such as it has already recommended to the Federal Government, is absolutely necessary, not for the inspection of vessels, which would nevertheless be done in mid-river; but in cases where, after inspection, the whole vessel requires to be disinfected. The wharf once extended, the long detention now necessary for the landing of passengers and luggage on yachts, would be dispensed with. Moreover, the disinfecting apparatus being erected upon the wharf, and not on the yacht as at present, disinfection would be more efficient and much easier, especially in a heavy sea.

Considering the efficiency of superheated steam disinfection and its superiority over other methods for the disinfection of clothing and bedlinen in large quantities (in consequence of its being more rapid and not injuring tissues) the Board hopes that the Government will provide Grosse Isle immediately with the best of apparatus recommended for that mode of disinfection.

The extension of the wharf, the placing on that wharf of the battery generating the sulphurous acid, and also of a large tank constantly filled with mercuric solution, and lastly the construction on or near the wharf of the latest apparatus for superheated steam disinfection. Such are the improvements by which the detention of vessels would be reduced to a minimum, and at the same time would guarantee the efficiency of the St. Lawrence Quarantine system; and, therefore, the Board hopes that the Federal Government will appreciate the very urgent necessity of these improvements, and grant them to Grosse Isle.

The Board thinks it should also mention the necessity of erecting, on the west division of the island, buildings more suitable and better adapted to of different classes who may be detained there, so that as much as possible these passengers may have the same comfort they had on board ship."

That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Federal Government, and also to the Board of Trade of the city of Quebec.

In conclusion, gentlemen, the local committee of this Board begs to declare that it does not recede in the least from the position the board has already taken with regard to the actual condition of the Grosse Isle quarantine station, as previously explained in this letter, and instructs me to state that this Board is at present in further communication with the Government on the subject.

I have, etc.,

ELZEAR PELLETIER, Sec.

Cheeky Robberies.

Last Saturday night a daring robbery occurred on Palace street, and the thieves made every effort to cover up their tracks. The owner of the house, before retiring, had placed a wallet containing eighty dollars in cash on the bureau. Next morning, on awakening, he noticed that the wallet had disappeared, and found that during the night burglars had forced an entrance through a back window. Evidence of their presence was found in every room in the house, but nothing else was missing. They were evidently not novices at the trade, for they took nothing that could be afterwards identified; the empty pocket-book being afterwards found in the yard. A similar burglary is reported from St. Monique street, in the same locality.

SPECULATIVE MONTREALERS.

Brokers Satisfied With the Present State of Business—The Bucket Shops.

"Speculation is on the increase in Montreal," remarked a well known stock broker to the STAR this morning. There has undoubtedly been a revival of speculation here, which brokers are very glad to see after a long period of depression. Brokers are at present indulging in some talk regarding the probable outcome of the Hatch bill now before Congress. This bill prohibits dealing in futures, and is being violently opposed by those engaged in the speculative business. It is the general opinion among brokers here that the bill will never become law, although those engaged in the broking business in Montreal would like to see it pass. The reason for this was explained by a broker to the STAR this morning. "If the Hatch bill passed," said he, "the business would be transferred to Montreal and we would profit by it. See?"

The bucket shops here are apparently playing in luck these days. It has been some time since one went up and cheated its clients, and all of them have been obtaining plenty of business lately. There are a number of bucket shops now operating in Montreal, and a couple of new ones have opened up lately. "The Abbott bill, which was to prevent bucket shop gambling, has turned out a perfect farce" said a broker to the STAR. When bucket shop proprietors have been brought up under the act they have always come out victorious. What Mr. Abbott should have done, was to have allowed a broker to have drawn up the bill. A practical man would have framed a measure that would have closed the bucket shops up, but a lawyer cannot draw up such a bill."

Certainly a speculative mania has struck Montreal now, and the brokers are not complaining thereat.

The most of them were purchased by the Bickerdike Crowe Cattle Company, and will be at once shipped to the Old Country.

IS IT MURDER?

A SUSPICIOUS CASE IN PORT.

The Body of a Missing Man is Found in the River With Marks of Violence—The Coroner to Hold an Inquest.

Missing since Monday night and this morning his body was found floating on the bosom of the old St. Lawrence. Such was the fate of Michael Murphy, a laborer, who lived at No. 1439 Notre Dame street. There are circumstances in this case, which, if brought out at the coroner's inquest to-night, will not justify the jury in returning a verdict of "found drowned without marks of violence." This morning Mrs. Murphy reported at the Central Police Station that her husband had left his home on Monday afternoon to go and collect his wages from a paper-box factory, at which he had been employed, and that he had never returned. She was sure that he and had been robbed, for he was not a man, accustomed to go off on sprees after being paid, and as for his having committed suicide, she ridiculed the idea, for they were very happy and comfortable and he would have had no reason for such a rash act. Her story was investigated by a STAR reporter and it was found that after drawing his pay, Murphy had visited several saloons on Commissioners street. Among others he called at the Liverpool House, which is kept by Philip Murphy, who however, is not connected with the deceased. When questioned about Michael Murphy, the bar-maid employed there told the following story:

"Yes," she said, "I remember Murphy coming in here on Monday; he stayed here nearly the whole evening. He appeared to have plenty of money and I noticed that one of the loafers, was sticking to him pretty close. So I kept my eye on them and by and by saw the loafer with his hand in Murphy's pocket. I told Murphy of it and he said, "Oh, he can't rob me." But I took him into a side room away from the other man. He would not stay there long however, and insisted on going into the bar again. By this time he was pretty drunk, so he sat on the bench with the loafer. They stayed there till midnight, when we closed, and they were obliged to leave, both going together. Since then I have not seen either of them, but I know that the other man on a steamer, the name of which I do not know. However, it is due in port again to-morrow, and I think Murphy may have gone with him for a trip."

The latter theory, however, has been disproved. At about nine o'clock this morning Constable Despault was on duty on the wharf, when he noticed a body rising to the surface near the Allans' wharf. A rope was secured and the body towed to shore. None of the wharf employés recognized the body and it was taken to the morgue.

On being told the story learned at the saloon, Mrs. Murphy went to the morgue at noon, where as that of her missing husband. The deceased was forty-six years of age, of fair complexion, and wore a moustache. He was neatly dressed in a dark serge coat and vest, striped pants, white shirt, white collar, blue silk tie and a neat pair of shoes. When found his pants and coat pockets were turned inside out and contained nothing but an old briar pipe. His eye was blackened, and his head was cut a little above the left temple. The police think that there is no doubt that it is a case of wilful murder, and suspicions point strongly to the man with whom Murphy left the saloon on Monday night. Two stories are advanced and which is correct will be proven by the autopsy. One is that his assailant, in the fight which occurred for the possession of the money, struck the fatal blow, and then, thinking to escape detection, after performing the robbery, dragged the body to the river and threw it in. The other theory is that the scuffle occurred on the wharf and that Murphy, sobering up, missed his money, and in endeavoring to regain it, his assailant drove him back till he lost his balance and fell into the river.

Coroner Jones has been notified and will hold an inquest to-night.

Mr. Warrington's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Mr. F. H. Warrington which took place to-day to St. George's Church and thence to Mount Royal Cemetery was the largest seen in Montreal for a long time.

The pall-bearers were Mayor McShane, Dr. George P. Ross, D. A. McPherson, A. J. Brice, James Alexander, jr., and Geo. Wait. The chief mourners were Ellis Warrington, son of deceased, John, Thomas and Joseph C., brothers of deceased and John Orpe, of New York; J. N. Greenshields, Q.C., F. Robertson, W. Darling, Joseph Ward, Robert Logie, and M. Scanlan, S. Finlay, D. Duckett, John Hodge, F. Duckett, H. P. Muir, A. W. Grant, A. Hodgson, W. McIntyre, E. A. Brice, Judge Barry, S. H. Ewing, Jno. Popham, John Kirkpatrick, R. McArthur, A. A. Ayers, Bernard Tansey, G. J. Devlin and R. W. Shepherd.

Rev. Dean Carmichael officiated. The floral offerings were very numerous and pretty.

Back from the North-West.

Rev. J. T. Madden and Rev. R. D. de Wolf, of Liverpool, Eng., are at the Windsor on their way from the North-West, where they have spent their summer holidays. To a STAR reporter Mr. Madden said that he and Mr. de Wolf had made a careful inspection of the country as far west as the Rockies, with a view to reporting upon it as a field of immigration to their compatriots. The only drawback which was at all serious was, he said, the prevalence of land speculation and monopoly.

Mr. de Wolf is preparing a series of lectures on the Canadian North-West, to be delivered in Liverpool and adjoining cities and towns, and to be illustrated by limelight views of scenery along the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Improvements at Bonsecours Church.

The Church of Notre Dame de Bonsecours, founded two hundred and fifty years ago by de Maisonneuve, and the oldest church in Montreal, will shortly undergo some alterations. The vestries have been destroyed on account of the widening of Commissioners' street, and it is intended to erect a new front on that street. On the roof of the church will be erected a stone chapel three storys high. The two lower storys will be supported by pillars of grey stone. The top story will be supported by eight sculptured angels, and upon the cupola will be erected a bronze statue, thirty feet in height, of our Lady of Bonsecours, to mark the first spot at which regular religious ceremonies were performed in Montreal.

Express Rumors.

Messrs. H. S. Julien, assistant general manager of the American EXPRESS Company, and J. C. Fargo, manager of the National Express Company, are in the city on business with the Grand Trunk Railway. Their mission, it is said, is to take over the business of the Canadian Express Company, which passed a few months ago under the control of the G. T. R. A prominent express manager in Montreal said to a STAR reporter to-day: "It is my opinion that the Grand Trunk are not anxious to retain this express connection, they have their hands full enough already; and I predict that we will soon see the American Company controlling all the traffic on that line, though the name Canadian may not be changed."

Fatal Accident at the Abattoir.

An accident, attended with fatal results, occurred at the West End abattoir on Tuesday. Several little boys were playing in the building, when one, Howard John Wiseman, only son of Mr. John Wiseman, aged thirteen years and three months, fell through one of the openings used for the transmission of air, and landed on the floor below, a distance of eighteen feet. When picked up the little fellow was unconscious and frightfully bruised, also suffering from severe internal injuries. He lingered for twenty-seven hours, when death put an end to his sufferings.

Shot a Mad Dog.

A mad dog created a good deal of excitement at the Central Police Station yesterday, and was finally shot by Constable Payne. It had attempted to bite several persons.

He Threatens to Sue and Asks Strange Questions.

Mr. Norman Murray has sent a letter to the Mayor, notifying him that it is his intention of suing the city for $100 for illegal arrest. His last sentence reads thus "I will find out whether this is a British Province or a Spanish Papal State where honest citizens have no protection from tyrannical inquisition, while watch thieves and other robbers are allowed to move round in swarms."

NEW CARS ORDERED.

To be Built in St. Louis and Philadelphia and Perhaps in Montreal.

Owing to increased traffic on the street cars since the introduction of the cheap rates the management put on several extra cars this morning. The company has applied to the City Surveyor for permission to build a track on Victoria Square from St. James to Craig street in order that the Point St. Charles cars may run right up St. Denis street and vice versa. Ald. Prefontaine is not in the city at present but will arrive to-morrow to attend a meeting of the Road Committee, when permission will probably be granted the company to build this track. Mr. Everett and Mr. McKenzie went out to the Grand Trunk shops to-day to see if they could arrange for the building of some new cars. It is said that the company will be able to turn out a dozen cars in a month's time. A supply has been ordered from St. Louis and Philadelphia. The contract stipulates that the company must have 10 miles of electric road in operation by September 1. Mr. Everett and Mr. McKenzie are agreed that in order to accomplish this they will have to push matters ahead lively. Mr. St. George introduced Mr. Everett and Mr. Ross to Mayor McShane yesterday. The Mayor expressed surprise that he had not met those gentlemen before. He told Mr. Everett to push ahead with the work on Notre Dame street "all he knew how."

THE PRESENT OUTBREAK IN PARIS.

The Paris Correspondent of the London "Lancet" Regards the Position as Serious—The Asiatic Complaint.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

LONDON, July 28.—The Paris correspondent of the Lancet telegraphs that in 29 out of 49 cases of illness reported as cholera which he has investigated, he has found true cholera bacillus. The letter further says that the true cholera is limited to the suburbs of Paris and that only that form of disease known as cholerine exists in the city.

Prof. Dieulafoy, however, states that he has found cholera bacillus in two cases in Paris.

The Lancet, in an editorial says, "Cholera is making steady headway in Russia, and that even the incompiete official returns received admit that 550 deaths are daily caused by the scourge in that country. The disease is spreading westward, and report that it has invaded Roumania. If true, it is of serious import to Europe." "No proper account," the Lancet says, "has yet been issued in regard to the disease in Paris, and little importance can be attached to Dr. Proust's official statement that there is no invading cholera in Europe."

The Lancet concludes as follows: "When half the people die it matters little what name is given to the cholera in Paris and its suburbs.

THE CANADIAN "SOO."

What is Thought of the Completion of the Dominion Canal at Washington.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

TORONTO, July 28.—The Globe's Washington correspondent, in the course of a long dissertation on the "Retaliation Bill," says: "The statement in some of the Montreal papers that at some future time, when an independent canal shall have been constructed on the Canadian side the Dominion will be entirely independent of the United States does not help matters. The representatives here of the Canadian railroads make no such threats or suggestions. They have been brought face to face with the leaders here on both sides, who have given so much attention to this matter. The latter says that while it is true that the United States cannot make a new St. Lawrence, as the Montreal papers suggest, it is also true that the Canadian Government cannot prevent the St. Lawrence from being a frozen stream for many months in the year, and that, as a practical fact the only commercial outlet which the Dominion has for six months in the year is through its railways, which have their seaboard terminus on American soil. It is acknowledged that this gives to the proposition now to extend the authority of retaliation already conferred upon the President to the Canadian Railways very much greater significance. It is against the railways primarily that the movement which has just been consummated was directed. That it has stopped with a law as to the St. Mary's canal is merely an incident of the situation. It will not stop until the President shall have been given full power to proceed against Canadian railways if it shall appear to him that there is cause for it. The true friends of Canada here do not think that it is worth while to wait for an indefinite number of years until a canal, which cannot be used in the winter, shall have been constructed on the Dominion side before endeavoring to come to some amicable understanding with the United States. There is no hostility here towards the Dominion. There is a kindly feeling, but there is a very unpleasant feeling on the part of the administration towards the Canadian Government, because it feels that the Ottawa Cabinet has attempted to use the administration as a mere tool to serve its own political purposes."

CANADA'S TRUMP CARDS.

She Can Retaliate on the United States in Many Directions—The St. Clair Flats Canal.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

KINGSTON, July 28.—Capt. Gaskin states the assertion made by Benj. Folger that the American channel is the only one available for towing on the St. Lawrence is not true. Until some few years ago the Canadian channel was almost entirely used and can be done the same again. There are at least three distinct channels for boats viz., the Long Sault or Jackstraw, the middle channel or Fiddler's Elbow, and the American channel, down past Clayton, which Mr. Folger speaks about. This is a little easier for pilots than others, as the Thousand Islands are not so numerous. If the American channel was closed to Canadians we would still have two feasible routes.

Capt. Gaskin also spoke about the St. Clair Flats channel, which is in Canadian territory. It was started and partly built by the Canadian Government and has always been claimed as Canadian property. If we retaliated there, we could close off all the trade on the Detroit River.

John Brown was the contractor who started the canal for our Government. Then there is the Lime Kin Crossing, between Bois Blanc Island and Amherstburg; it is also altogether in Canadian territory. If we stopped traffic there, no American vessel can go down to Cleveland, Buffalo or any of the lower lake ports.

PARDONED BY THE GOVERNOR.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

OTTAWA, July 28.—It is said the Governor-General has pardoned Thos. Kelly, who escaped in 1875 while being escorted to gaol in Toronto, to serve a three years' term for burglary, and Kelly fled to Cleveland, Ohio, and reformed. He re-visited Toronto a few weeks ago with the Knights of St. John, and was re-arrested and sent to prison. Kelly's subsequent career in the States was honest. Consequently Lord Stanley granted the pardon, which was sought in the prisoner's favor by the Mayor of Toronto and other leading citizens.

FINANCIAL.

The change in the temperature to-day apparently put more spirit into the speculators on change, as the market was livelier than for some days past. Dull But Firm.

[SPECIAL TO THE STAR.]

NEW YORK, July 28.—The Posts financial says: "The recent manipulators of industrial stocks took occasion to unload this morning. Sugar certificates broke at the start, under heavy realising sales, and dropped 2⅝ points in an hour. This started a mild scare in cotton, oil, and other lately advanced industrials, on which the price went down in sympathy with sugar, though less violently. The general market was dull, but very firm.
