Queen, Prince charm Westmounters

Mayor Cushing presents silver jug to Her Majesty as dignitaries look on.

By JANE BARTLETT

Citizens of Westmount and of the communities surrounding it turned out in thousands yesterday to see their Queen as she paid an official visit to Westmount, the first Royal visit to this city since that of her parents, the late King George VI and the Queen Mother, in June, 1939.

Detachments of the armed forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, which has its headquarters in Westmount, lined the route as the Royal procession moved slowly through the towers at the city's entrance near Atwater and on to the ceremony at City Hall.

OTHER SUBURBAN POLICE LEND AID

Units represented were the RMR; RCAF; 3rd Column RCASC; RCOC School; 3rd Field Regiment Eng'rs.; RCA Cadets and RCAF Cadets; 14th ROD; and 11 Signals Regiment. In addition to the Westmount Police Force, members of the police departments of Verdun, Town of Mount Royal, Lachine and Outremont were on hand.

Spontaneous cheers and clapping rose from spectators as Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip drove by, waving from an open black Imperial Chrysler bearing the Royal arms, especially built for the tour.

As the Queen's car passed from Cote Saint Antoine onto the new city hall driveway built for her visit, a crowd of nearly 3,000 in the enclosure in front of City Hall pressed closer to get a look at the Queen and her consort.

'BOBBY' RUMOR UNFOUNDED

A rumor that Westmount policemen at city hall would wear white 'bobby' hats which were regulation wear over two decades ago, proved to be unfounded: the men wore regulation parade uniform with blue serge peaked caps.

Her Majesty's colorful outfit was matched by the equally gay costumes of ladies among the spectators and those seated on a stand erected for guests of the city. Summer draperies fluttered in the breeze as the group rose to attention on the Queen's arrival.

As the Queen's car pulled up to the steps of the city hall stand, Mayor J. C. Cushing and Mrs. Cushing came forward. The Queen and Prince Philip alighted from the limousine and were introduced to Mayor Cushing by Montreal's Mayor Sarto Fournier whose car was immediately behind that of Her Majesty.

The group then proceeded to the platform, the Mayor on the Queen's left, Mrs. Cushing to the left of Prince Philip. At the head of the steps, the group turned to face the press photographers and public.

After requesting permission to introduce the aldermen, their wives and the city manager, T. J. Hughes, to Her Majesty, the

Granby Zoo trip set for Tuesday

By MAURICE MARIASINE

The Unity Boys' Club summer program season gets underway officially on Tuesday, with a trip to the Granby Zoo. A chartered bus will leave Club headquarters promptly at 9:30 a.m.

On Thursday, some 70 youngsters will commence a "Learn To Swim" course which will be conducted at the YWCA on Dorchester street under the sponsorship of the Montreal Parks and Playgrounds. Expert instruction will be provided and qualified supervision maintained. Medical examinations for this group took place at the Club this morning, 9 a.m.

A day at Belmont Park, which was a program question mark in the early planning phases, now is assured for some 100 boys and girls. The date has not been set as yet; however, we have been advised that it will take place on some Friday in July. More about this later.

A series of tours to Industrial Firms and places of interest has been arranged to take place throughout the summer months. These include the following: Wax Museum, Coco Cola Company, Regent Knitting Mills, Gazette Printing Company, Beaver Lake, Lafontaine Park, Westmount Park, library and greenhouse, Fry-Cadbury Company, Westmount Fire Department, Laura Secord Company, Post Office, main office; the CIL Company, Montreal Harbor, Montreal Fire Department, Botanical Gardens.

Bi-weekly visits to St. Helen's Island, Mondays and Fridays, will give a large group of youngsters an opportunity to picnic and swim. Buses will be available to transport the groups leaving the Unity Boys' Club every Monday and Friday at 9:30 a.m.

In addition to the special events mentioned above, the Club will conduct regular classes in puppetry, paper sculpture, figurine modelling and creative crafts. And for the athletically-inclined, there will be baseball, softball and group games playground activity. Unity's Little League and Midget Baseball Teams will continue to participate in their scheduled games.

CAMP OPENS TUESDAY

Medical examinations for the boys who are going to Camp Lewis will be conducted at the Unity Boys' Club on Monday. Nearly 300 boys are scheduled to leave on Tuesday from the Club in the first of a series of Camp periods which will continue until August 24.

Camp Lewis, situated at St. Adolphe de Howard in the Laurentian Mountains is sponsored by the Montreal Boys' Association, a Red Feather Service.

ROTARY CARNIVAL

"Fun for the Whole Family" is in store for our Club members and their parents at the Westmount Rotary Carnival, which closes tomorrow.

The Unity Boys' Club of Westmount is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Westmount. All club members are strongly urged to support the Carnival. A good time is available for young and old alike.

Westmount YMCA

Summer Fun Club almost booked up

Registration for the first two weeks of the Westmount YMCA's Summer Fun Club will officially close next Monday and the summer's program will be on its way. Already some 350 campers weeks have been booked and it is beginning to look like some boys and girls will be turned away because of lack of room.

Jim Hawkes, director of this year's Summer Fun Club, has announced plans for the first week's program and they include 3 craft periods, 8 swim periods, 4 games periods, 3 story hours, sing song, a trip to Barbe Beach and a day off to celebrate July 1. Altogether it should manage to get the group off to a flying start.

Principal Sharpe of King's elected president of Rotary

By NAT BERNSTEIN

One of the main difficulties the new president of Westmount Rotary will have when he suggests a project to the club, will be in keeping up with the club once the project gets underway, according to outgoing president Phil Page.

Mr. Page, who now joins the ranks of the past presidents of Westmount Rotary, presented a summary of the numerous events and projects which the club carried out during the year and extended his thanks to the members and special committees.

He added that the club, which had enjoyed a great deal of publicity throughout the year had completed a very successful year.

Welcomed to the ranks of the presidency by Mr. Page, Frank Sharpe forewarned Mr. Page that he would lean heavily upon him for aid following the advice of a former club president.

"You," he said to Mr. Page, "have already experienced the workings of this 'powerhouse club' and I have yet to do so. It requires a bit of help before I can function as effectively as former presidents."

He expressed his thanks to the club for the great honor shown in making him president and remarked that he would try to continue the work of Rotary as signified by the two words "service and fellowship."

"Members of the club, of the fellowship," he said, "I am at your service, in your service."

West Enders gather for Rotary carnival

People from throughout Montreal's West End gathered for the opening of the Westmount Rotary Club's annual carnival Wednesday night, held this year on the Westmount Artificial Ice Rink.

Rotarians felt that the fair was "bigger and better than ever" this year. Traditionally, the carnival has been held for many years on the same site, although in past years, problems of weather and muddy ground underfoot arose. Now, in the concrete floored, brightly lit arena, it was felt that "the whole setup was fresher and neater."

Sixty-five members of the Westmount Rotary Club manned the thirty booths lining the sides of the rink, plus nearly 200 sons and daughters helping out.

Rotarian W. H. Giles said that the main purpose of the fund-raising carnival was a home for elderly people, Prospect House, the major project on this year's Rotary agenda.

Part of the funds raised will go towards a telephone system for a girl guide camp an electricity system for Boy Scout Camp Anderson, the club's annual contribution to the assistance of Weredale House, and the Unity Boys' Club, he stated. The carnival closes tomorrow evening.

'Black Mike' looks back

By CYNTHIA JONES

WE SAY

No 'indifference' to Queen locally

JOYCE DAVIDSON, who has jumped to TV fame through a comment made on an American network could scarcely have had Westmount in mind when she said Canadians appeared to be 'indifferent' to the visit of the Queen.

Arrangements for an all-out effort had been made here long before Miss Davidson gave voice to her comment, and the crowds that turned out yesterday to see Her Majesty and Prince Philip — as they passed along the thoroughfares and stopped for a few minutes at the city hall were anything but indifferent. The crowds were enthusiastic to the extreme.

This is as was expected.

The Queen, the head of the Commonwealth, is in her Canadian territory, and this is the centre of the Commonwealth for the duration of her stay.

History is being made today as the successors in title of George III and George Washington meet on the shores of the St. Lawrence Seaway to give joint blessing to a mighty achievement in which the people of both countries have labored for the good of all.

The Queen we all saw yesterday was a symbol of national pride, yes, but also a simple person. The two are one.

If we comprehend that behind the elaboration of government the centre and inspiration is a human being like ourselves, then there is no indifference.

Seaway at opening still an enigma

THE St. Lawrence Seaway, being opened today by Queen Elizabeth and President Eisenhower, still has some unanswered questions about it.

How will local areas fare in the long run as a result of its construction?

It gives the North American heartland access to the markets of the world. It is a traffic outlet, from the Great Lakes to the ocean. Some 75 per cent of the total traffic on it is expected to be domestic.

What will it mean locally? It is still too early to say.

Current interest in stories of aviation pioneering in this country recalls that one of the most gallant of the Canadian air-greats is living quietly in our midst.

He is Air Vice Marshal Clifford Mackay McEwen, CB, MC, DFC & Bar, the famed "Black Mike," veteran fighter pilot of World War I who kept on flying as one of the original career officers of could not sleep when his aircraft were away on a raid and who used to accompany his crews, despite the superstition that the presence of gold braid jinxes an airplane, until Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris heard of it and issued an edict: No more of that!"

"That's right," said the Air Vice Marshal, during an interview at his home 490 Lansdown avenue, Westmount. "After that I had to be most careful when I sneaked out on a jaunt. Often I would go as a second pilot. You can't be an air-get black," he said. "The name stuck."

There is a picture of a mustacheless Captain McEwen at the age of 19 taken beside his small single fighter Camel aircraft in Florence, Italy. "We had gone there after the war to give flying demonstrations and to show the Italians what we could do," he said.

23 confirmed

In the First World War McEwen as deputy to the great Billy Barker, V.C. DSO and MC on the Italian front. Barker's score was 27 enemy planes destroyed, four shot down out of control, and three captive balloons set ablaze. "My role was to protect first Barker and then Flight Commander Stanley Stanger, who lives here in Montreal," said AVM McEwen. "Barker was the greatest rough pilot and Stanger the greatest finished one. Occasionally I'd get a German aircraft myself." (In Italy McEwen brought down 23 confirmed.)

The Air Vice Marshal likes to recall those First World War days. With the exception of Roy Foss, he is the only Canadian who flew on missions in both world wars. He has the longest active service record in the RCAF and his many decorations include the Italian medal valori, the French Legion of Honour, the French Croix de Guerre and the American Legion of Honour.

Like the majority of early war birds, he went overseas with the army hoping to obtain transfer on reaching England. He had enlisted in Moosejaw, Saskatchewan, as a private in 1916 in the 196th Western Universities Battalion. (The son of a hardware store owner, he was born in Griswold, Manitoba, moving a few years later to Radisson, and from there going to a boys' college in Moosejaw.)

"I joined the infantry because there was no other way of getting to England," he said. "The day after I was posted overseas with the 28th Battalion, after I received a commission, I was told to report to the Air Ministry because my previous application to the Royal Flying Corps had been accepted."

AVM McEwen will never forget his first combat. "I was sent up to Orient myself and got too curious," he said. "Crossing the enemy lines, I was chased good and proper by seven German aircraft but a French Spad came to my rescue and shot down two (Continued on page 5)

the RCAF between wars, and in World War II as air officer commanding the celebrated Canadian Bomber Group No. 6, often led his bomber squadrons on their devastating raids on German cities, railways and merchant shipping.

Stories of the escapades and narrow squeaks of this skilled and versatile flier are legend. "Black Mike" commands great respect and awe among airmen but at the same time the nickname signifies his great popularity with them.

In his history of the RCAF entitled "There Shall Be Wings," Leslie Roberts described the commander of Six Group as a "colorful, hard-hitting airman, a man who man and fly a desk and you must be a fatalist if you are an airman. Do you know that there are so many, many reminiscences that I am seriously contemplating writing my memoirs."

How did he acquire the name "Black Mike"? The Air Vice Marshal, now 60 and retired, who has fine dark eyes, greying hair and mustache, chuckled: "In the early days I had black hair and a large black mustache and flying in the sun and wind in the bush I used to in flames in quick order. The rest broke off the attack, fortunately for me, and I was escorted back to my field. I came in for a dreadful razzing."

The Air Vice Marshal said he learned a lot in the first world war, especially about low flying, which served him well in the second. "Many great pilots believe that you must fight from the top but I disagree with them," he said. "I think it is just as easy to fight from below and it can be just as destructive to the enemy. My pet tactic was a flat turn instead of banking and turning round again. Did you know that we sent out bombing raids 'on the ground' under the screen of radar?"

as Hailybury, Sioux Look-
 AVM McEwen was "accidentally injured" in a crash in Italy in 1918. Once his aircraft was attacked by a huge eagle and he had to put up quite a fight.

He acquired the love of flight overseas and on his return to Canada, after a few frustrating months at the University of Saskatchewan, he was determined to make flying a career and joined the Air Board, Canada's first governing body for aviation. In the '20s he was engaged in civil flying in connection with forestry, fire-fighting and photography, operating from such places out, Dartmouth, Parry Sound, Rockliffe, etc.

From 1924 to 1929 he instructed at Camp Borden. While at Borden, in 1928, he married attractive Helen Low, daughter of the late Colonel Robert S. Low, and Mrs. Low of Ottawa. (They have three daughters — Philippa, Mrs. Peter Atkinson, of Toronto; Elizabeth (both graduates of the University of Toronto) and Joyce, who works in the engineering office of McGill University; and a granddaughter, Suzanne Atkinson.)

Then came a year for AVM McEwen at the Staff College in England followed by two at the Royal Military College at Kingston as the first air force officer assigned to the army as an instructor.

'Gigantic job'

From 1933 to 1935 AVM McEwen served as commandant of the School of Army Co-Operation at Camp Borden. In 1935 he was posted to Ottawa for three years as chief staff officer at RCAF headquarters. In 1938 he became officer commanding at Trenton and in 1940, No. 3 Air Training Command, Montreal. In 1941 he was off to Eastern Air Command, Halifax, and then in June of that year was sent to organize the RCAF in Newfoundland. "That was a gigantic job," he said. "We built Torbay, Botwood, Goose Bay and extended and re-built Gander, operating at the same time." As an Air Commodore McEwen left for England in mid-December, 1942, on what turned out to be a history-making assignment.

February 29, 1944, was a momentous day in his illustrious career. He succeeded to the command of the famed Six Group and was the Group's AOC until the end of the war, keeping his squadrons at battle pitch right up until VE-Day. Before the end of the war Six Group grew to 14 heavy bomber squadrons and had compiled in Leslie Roberts' words "a battle record exceeded by none and equalled by few."

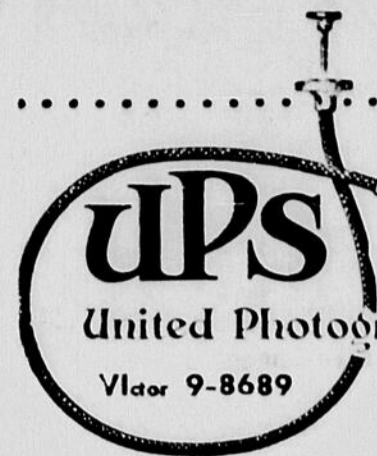

Six Group, operating from the hills of Yorkshire, participated in the Battle of the Ruhr, in the destruction of Hamburg and the Battle of Berlin. During the last 17 months of the war the Group laid 4,884 mines with a loss of only 20 aircraft. "The last year of the war Six Group was practically alone on mining and we also did our own path finding," said Air Vice Marshal McEwen. "In 1944 we held 9,000,000 tons of enemy shipping in harbor while enemy losses — sunk and damaged — were astronomical."

Air Vice Marshal McEwen said: "Our ground crews were the best in the world.

They had the advantage of being well-educated. Our air crew had the disadvantage of not having had any form of military training but they caught up and were as good as any that existed. They couldn't stop a Canadian boy. If he had a predicament to face he could meet it."

To quote from "There Shall Be Wings" Of McEwen and his Group, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris wrote after VE-Day: "I regard this officer's contribution to the efficiency and effect of the bomber offensive as invaluable. In ability as in personality he stood out amongst his fellows. He is a great commander and the value of his work was a major contribution towards the success that was achieved. I cannot speak too highly of him or of his share, and his Group's share, in the common effort."

Frances Goltman and her pupils on the stage of Victoria Hall Tuesday night at the conclusion of her annual recital marking the termination of pianoforte teaching for the season. Miss Goltman leaves Saturday for a music teachers convention at Calgary and then goes on to Vancouver for a month where she will cover the Music Festivals.

44 Frances Goltman pupils impress in annual recital

Forty-four pupils of Frances Goltman — from five to fifteen years of age — were featured Tuesday night on the stage of Victoria Hall in a recital that highlighted talent and technique.

In a program that ran the gamut of composers from Schumann and Haydn to Bach, Debussy and Beethoven, the students demonstrated the results of a season of careful practice under the watchful eye of an experienced teacher.

A dozen of those who handled the more difficult selections were encored by an appreciative audience that filled the hall, and by far the greater number were called back for at least one extra bow.

This group included Nancy Purser, Nino Calafiore, Phyllis Prehogan, Lorna Rogers, Jaelyn Snyder, Barbara Burrows, Sylvia Moscovitz, Darryl Smith, Mary Shepherd, Stephen Black, Lorraine Cosgrove, Linda Cartland and Richard Sancton.

Feature of the small fry was Beverly Burrows, five years old, who was called back by the audience for an extra bow after a rendition of Curcio's "Here comes the General".

At the other end of the pendulum a difficult Prestissimo from Beethoven's Sonata Op. 2 No. 1 was a good vehicle for the technique of Richard Sancton, who was the final performer in the long list.

Linda Cartland with Scher's Hungarian Fantasy, Terry Teblum, with Debussy's Golliwogg's Cake Walk, Lorraine Cosgrove with Valse Mignone of Thoma were examples of techniques and finesse seldom heard in recitals of this type.

Iron men in wooden ships dominate doctor's ancestry

The days of iron men in wooden ships may be over, but they live on in the memory of Dr. E. E. Robbins of the Reddy Memorial Hospital, who has behind him 11 generations of hardy Nova Scotian sea captains.

Dr. Robbins, who was brought up by the sea and on the sea, plans to retire from his post as director of internal medicine at the Reddy this summer. But even though it is 57 years since he first began practising medicine, Dr. Robbins is not prepared to put aside the reins of his profession yet. He will continue in private practice.

A Maritimer from Yarmouth, N.S., Dr. Robbins family have been there since 1760. Curiously enough, he was born in Scotland, the first Robbins to be born out of Nova Scotia since the family settled there.

"Often in those days captains sailing between Canada and Scotland married Scots girls," says Dr. Robbins. "I didn't actually see Canada until I was fourteen."

He first saw Montreal when his father's ship sailed into the harbor with a cargo of sugar from the Phillipine Islands.

Dr. Robbins has been across the equator 14 times, and at the age of 16 made a voyage of his own — as ship's apprentice. "I saw among other places, Calcutta and Ceylon," recalls the doctor, "but when I reached Boston I'd had enough and jumped ship."

In the years after Dr. Robbins gave up the sea for the medical profession he was to face perhaps as many hardships as the stern seamen of his father's family. Six of his eight uncles were lost at sea in the treacherous storms of the Atlantic.

After graduating from Dalhousie University in Nova Scotia, and McGill University, he interned at the Montreal General Hospital, and started practice on the Western prairies, far from the salt air. He is grateful for his Scottish primary education, which he believes gives excellent grounding. "There, for example, we had a teacher with a Master's degree in Grade III."

"Those were the horse and buggy days — even the railway wasn't in then," he recalls. He worked within a 30 mile radius of Govan, Saskatchewan, a small town halfway between Regina and Saskatoon.

In his last year out west, 1912, he learned to drive: "Out on the prairie where there was no one to hit," he smiled. Speed? In those days 40 miles per hour was going some," he stated. Dr. Robbins has been driving for 47 years, and will continue "as long as I can get a license."

At the Montreal General for 32 years before coming to the Reddy Memorial Hospital, in 1945, Dr. Robbins is now honorary consultant in internal medicine to the former hospital. Chairman of the medical board of the Reddy since 1948, he was formerly secretary.

In medical circles, Dr. Robbins is well known as an expert on home care, and has given papers on the subject in Canada and the U.S.

"The object of home care is to release a bed in the hospital for further use," says Dr. Robbins. "It is mostly used in cancer cases, and for indigent patients who come under the Quebec Provincial Charities Act. Interns visit the patients in their homes, and we work in conjunction with the Victorian Order of Nurses." Married to the former Ethel Grace Wray, a Montrealer, Dr. Robbins has a son and a daughter, who lives in Snowdon.

There's no better, sounder, more convenient way to finance your purchases for your home and family than the new Bank of Montreal Family Finance Plan. With it, you can plan your purchases and meet unexpected opportunities and emergencies under one single comprehensive plan.

Read these four good reasons why — whether married or single — you should use the B of M's Family Finance Plan. See if they don't add up to better living for you and your family.

- 1 All loans are automatically life-insured. Should you die before your loan is repaid, your debt to the Bank will be cancelled.
- 2 Monthly repayments can be extended up to two years — or even three, if need be. This means that FFP can be tailored to suit any salary.
- 3 You can borrow up to $3,500, depending on your income, to buy the things you want for your home and family, or to meet emergencies.
- 4 Planned repayments help you run your income — instead of letting it run you.

Almost any reasonable purpose may be financed through the Bank of Montreal Family Finance Plan — including vacation, school and college expenses and so on. The Bank of Montreal will gladly advance the necessary cash as long as you can afford repayments without hardship.

Whether you are a B of M customer or not, this modern low-cost way to get the things you want for your home and family is available to you.

Summer Sports and Resorts

Gee, Dominion Day is coming up again! If you happen to be heading down to the Adirondacks be sure to take in the fine shows at the Land-of-Make Believe, Upper Jay, N.Y. and Santa's Workshop at North Pole, N.Y., both just a few miles off route 9N . . . They're what as known in show business jargon as solid and stellar attractions for young and old . . . The Indole Golf and Country Club at Ausable Forks on the same highway is making an earnest pitch for visiting Montreal golfing fans . . . This is one place one can pretend to make like a Ford or Leonard — or just dig divots — safely hidden behind a small mountain . . . The golf club at Stowe, near the Center Motel, gets quite a few travelling performers, too . . . the Center's owner, Jim Reynolds, hosted a large party of Vermont Beverage Commission personnel last week . . . The nice part about the affair: we didn't even see one of the group stagger ingloriously up to a tee . . .

A couple of weeks ago we ran an item about Bruce (Connaught Inn) McKay's diet problems and a proposed exercise regimen which would include walk-on parts . . . So, a note arrived at this desk today from Steven Hall, director of the Stowe Playhouse . . . she's willing (Steven is a girl, by the way) not only to cast the handsome innkeeper-thespian in some very juicy parts, but will also supply a bag-piper to play stirring Scottish marches en route, if Bruce will walk the 70-odd mile between North Hatley and Stowe . . . Please, Steven, our own Bruce is a very sensitive stage artist — not an athlete! . . .

Which brings to mind the advice of Uncle Beauregard, before and after reading the recent newspaper accounts of the Bardot nuptials, whereat several fourth estate picture lads had their heads conked in an ensuing fracas. Everwise Old Beau always said: "If you're silly enough to embark on a newspaper career, be a writer — and as an avocation you can always be a lover. But never enter the field as a photographer, because sure as shooting you'll wind up a punch drunk fighter as well."

Summer theatres at Stowe, Ste. Agathe, North Hatley are all blossoming forth this coming week . . . at the Playhouse in the Vermont resort town "Janus" will run from July 1 to 4 . . . The Barn at Ste. Agathe opens with "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter" starring the talented Kit Merriman beginning June 30, and at North Hatley Ray Hatrick's Playhouse will have "Mr. Pennypacker" showing . . . That's pretty nice theatre fare . . . As for fare in the eating department if you're in Quebec or vicinity try the Bastogne restaurant in the Laurentide hotel-motel on boulevard Ste. Anne . . . fast becoming one of the continents top dining delights . . . Uncle Beauregard ate there last week, and he's been singing its praises ever since . . . Sir George Williams College study group, numbering about 20, at Pleasant View hotel in North Hatley for some quiet discussions surrounded by lovely scenery . . .

Remember, please, what the sign boards say "YOU ARE MORALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR SAFE DRIVING." . . . Take it easy, huh?

Lovely and talented Kit Merriman, who stars in George Axelrod's comedy hit "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter" opening at the Barn in Ste. Agathe, June 30.

Manitoba's many lakes and streams, parks and forest areas make this province a great natural playground, while visitors to Churchill may explore the ruins of Canada's most northern fortress.

NOW more than ever . . .

Cars collide at Sunnyside

Sean Hayes, 24, of 4898 Wilson avenue, received an injury to his right arm when two autos collided at the intersection of Sunnyside and Upper Belmont avenue at one a.m., June 19.

The vehicles were driven by Andre Demers, 31, of 4974 Grosvenor avenue, and John Ross, 23, of 376 Redfern avenue, in whose car Hayes was a passenger.

Demers told police that he was proceeding west on Sunnyside avenue at 30 mph. When he reached Upper Belmont avenue, he stated, an auto turned in from that street; he applied his brakes, but skidded into the auto.

Ross said that he had been travelling south on Upper Belmont, and was stopped for a sign at the corner of Sunnyside. He said that he was attempting to make a left hand turn when Demers' auto struck his car.

Royal Visit

By JANE BARTLETT and

You can strike the word 'staid' from the local vocabulary. Westmount's reputation for stolidity went by the boards yesterday as men and women, boys and girls turned out to jam the entire area around city hall park and participate in one of the enthusiastic welcomes the Royal Pair will receive anywhere along the tour.

As much as two hours before there was any chance of action on the line of march, residents began to take up their stations in the park, at the curbsides, on steps in front of the homes in the district — while small boys climbed onto roofs, and some even clambered up the poles holding the various pennants.

* * *

Police and security personnel soon persuaded these to give up their posts for safer sites.

As the hot sun beat down and a p.a. system announced that the Royal Pair would be slightly delayed, many women in the crowd opened umbrellas to shade themselves from the heat

By 2:30 p.m. half the seats in the official stand in front of the city hall were filled and in front, on the special roadway laid for the occasion and on the grass, platoons of photographers began checking on photo angles and pacing off distances.

All manner of dress was to be seen on the gay celebrants. Women wore party frocks and street dresses, suits and playsuits, shorts and slacks. Men, some of them in baseball caps with visors to shade their eyes were in short sleeves and in business suits. Many uniforms were to be seen, adding color to the groupings.

The Hawkers went here and there selling red-white-and-blue balloons, flags and streamers.

At the front of the city hall and immediately before the officials stand a detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police were drawn up, resplendent in their scarlet coats, their big brown riding boots sporting a high polish.

Also lined up were RMR men in blue with berets under command of Major Lloyd Crag and RSM A. Crouch CD. Officer commanding, Lt. Colonel J. Kennedy CD was in the official stand with the other dignitaries.

* * *

All along the route and around the city hall, arrange-

Should have been holiday

It was a great day for Westmount.

Not an official holiday, it might just as well have been one, for there was no business done in Westmount yesterday afternoon.

Some residents took up their spots on the line of route ahead of their usual lunch hours and brought along sandwiches which they munched as they stood by the curb.

Others brought folding chairs and sat right down at the curb, undismayed by passing cars and buses and children running along at the edge of the road.

Red-coated mounties, tall and bronzed by the sun, were the target of feminine eyes, and more than one girl was heard to explain "Aren't they handsome?"

* * *

Near the city hall park, by the curb, a blind man, with a suitcase in one hand and a small boy by the other stood silently, with head bowed, the boy apparently relating to the man the details of the situation.

* * *

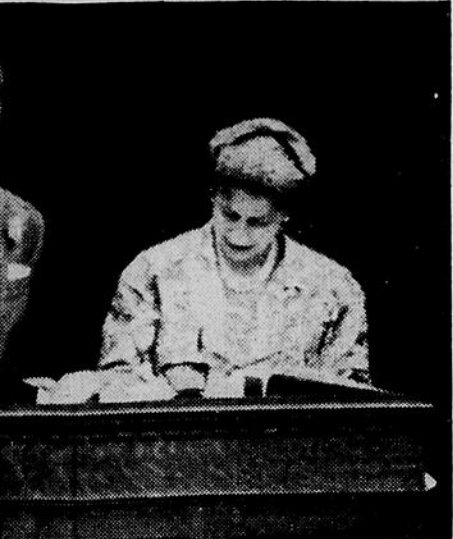

An impressive sight were the members of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, in white suits, standing at intervals of about ten feet, each holding a flagstaff bearing a Union Jack.

ments had been made so that children were in front of the crowd where they would get a good view of the Queen and Prince.

At the last moment before word was received that the Royal Party had entered Westmount, City Manager Tom Hughes came out of city hall with the city's gift, a silver syrup jug, bearing the crest of the city of Westmount.

He also brought the Golden Book for the Royal Pair to sign and a red plush cloth on which the jug and book were laid.

At 3.33 the p.a. system announced that the official city of Westmount escort had joined the parade and a stir went through the crowd.

As the 25 motorcycles, red lights flashing, swung into view cheering broke out, increasing to a crescendo as the big, sleek Chrysler Imperial came to a halt and Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were officially 'in Westmount'.

The Queen, wearing a grey-and-pink print suit-dress, a chiffon cloche hat, after receiving the Mayor and Aldermen and their wives, began a brief conversation with Alderman A. Ouimet.

Prince Philip, in a grey suit, a green tie, with a jaunty pink boutonniere, chatted with City Manager Hughes, and apparently found some humor in the situation for the two smiled several times during the conversation.

After the formal presentation of the syrup jug Mayor Cushing delivered a short explanation of the use of the gift and said a word about Canadian maple syrup.

Mayor Fournier and Mrs. Fournier of Montreal and Postmaster General William Hamilton were also in the official party.

When Queen Elizabeth was signing the Golden Book Prince Philip looked up and saw a group of boys on the roof of Westmount High School. He nodded and winked. The boys cheered. In the windows of the school were groups of girls who acknowledged the Prince's greeting with shrieks of joy.

Ross Webster, MP for Westmount and Mrs. Webster were presented to the Royal Pair before their departure from the city hall.

Blue favorite ladies' color

Shades of blue were the predominant choices of the ladies of Westmount presented to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth yesterday afternoon.

All the gentlemen wore morning dress. The ladies were more colorfully dressed: Mrs. Cushing wore a light blue and turquoise print dress with a small white hat of net and flowers; Mrs. A. Garber, a light silk brocade of pale aqua and a small hat made of clusters of imitation white berries; Mrs. F. E. H. Gates, a navy blue dress with white print, and a small hat of tightly closed artificial white flower-buds.

Mrs. C. H. Drury, a navy blue, short-sleeved dress with turquoise flowered print, and a large navy cartwheel hat; Mrs. A. Ouimet, a dress of royal blue silk with a mixed flower print of grey, white and black, and a tiny black velvet hat with veiling; Mrs. L. W. Bovaird, a grey shantung frock with white polka dots, and a small white feathered cloche; Mrs. F. B. Common Jr., a beige scoop-necked dress with blue and green watered print and a beige feathered cloche; Mrs. A. Ross Webster, a white silk frock with a blue feather print and a small white straw cloche.

Testimonial supper, standing ovation climax career of Dr. A. Lloyd Smith

By JANE BARTLETT

"The real test of my ministry here will be what happens to Dominion-Douglas Church after I leave," said Dr. A. Lloyd Smith Monday night to a gathering of over 450 of his congregation who tendered Mr. Smith a testimonial church supper prior to his retirement this summer.

In a speech in which he relived the humorous, and some of the sadder moments of his 28 year ministry here, Dr. Smith thanked his congregation "above all, for your record of kindness." "I was reared in a school where ministers were supposed never to ask for anything, but to trust in God and the people," he smiled. "Your kindness has left me no opportunity to ask for anything."

Further proof of the congregation's good will was contained in a wallet presented on their behalf by D. M. Farish, who quipped, "If this wallet is empty, I'll have some explaining to do!"

Dr. Smith felt that the dinner served as a testimonial to those present as much as himself. "Your being here tonight is as much a tribute to yourselves as to me," he stated "It's because you are the kind of people who are seriously interested in your church and your minister, the kind of people who through the years have pulled along with me."

RECALLS DEPRESSION
"I remember those days," said Dr. Smith, "and how the Men's Club got together to help those in need—although it seemed at times that we didn't have very much ourselves, in comparison to what we had known."

He spoke of the tremendous efforts the congregation had made to raise money for causes throughout the years—$127,000 for a pensioner's campaign; $38,000 to pay off the mortgage on the church.

The church membership in his first year at Dominion-Douglas was 638, with 32 new entries to the register; this year the membership stood at 1,618, with 142 new entries.

"One of the highlights of this year for me was the reception of my eldest grandson, Michael, along with 20 other fine young people, into the membership of this church," he stated.

"I don't know how many babies I have baptized," he said. "I don't want to know." Each was a new and different individual, he felt, not to be counted merely by quantity.

He praised the quality of lay leadership within the congregation as "superb, provided by men who are recognized across the country in every walk."

MATTERED MOST
"What has mattered most to me during my ministry here is the wealth of friendship which has been open to me," he stated. "Each one of you has your circle of friends, but you are all my friends. I pay tribute to your loyalty and friendship to me."

He also paid tribute to his wife and sons, Drs. Donald and Walter Lloyd-Smith, and his daughters-in-law, for their unremitting help and support, and to his assistant, Rev. Eric MacIwain, for "a superb job in the field of Christian education."

Dr. Smith recalled the grim days of World War II, and the long list of 325 young men and women of Dominion-Douglas who served. He also remembered those who remained at home—the women who filled the church hall with Red Cross activity; the men who have since received Orders of the British Empire for their work.

"I have had two great enthusiasms," said Dr. Smith in conclusion. "The first is faith, faith that the Gospel is meant to work, and that it does something for folk. The second is missions." Dr. Smith, at one time home mission secretary for the United Church of Canada, paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Allan, who served in China for many years.

His closing words of "Thank you, thank you, thank you," were greeted by a standing ovation.

Dr. Smith was born in Varus, Ontario, the son of a Methodist minister. He graduated with honors from Victoria College, Toronto, and for some years alternated between active preaching and secretarial work. In 1926 he became minister of Grace Church at Brampton, Ontario, and came to Dominion-Douglas in 1931.

Dr. Smith has been active in other church bodies such as the Greater Montreal Council of Churches and the Home Missions Board of the United Church. He is now vice-president of the Board of Governors of United Theological College in Montreal and a member of the Board of Governors of Divinity Hall.

Following his retirement, he will lecture at the United Theological College on preaching.

Loyalty

By
The Venerable
R. Kenneth Naylor, D.D.,
Rector, Trinity Memorial Church

As this goes to print we are in the midst of the Queen's visit and one week ahead of Dominion Day, and it would seem a reasonable time to talk about our privileges and responsibilities as citizens of a great country, a great Commonwealth and a great Empire, ruled over by a young Queen.

We belong to a great country, with great resources in soil and forests, farms and mines, our rivers and lakes. We have a climate running from moderate to harsh, a climate which does not allow of carelessness, but one which breeds hardihood. It does not meet Toynbee's requirement for a climate which automatically develops culture, but it does not fall far short. The culture will develop with the thoughtful care of the citizens. The climate will not hinder it but will toughen it. We have the responsibility of building a national life that our children will be proud of. In Quebec we shall develop it on our own peculiar lines to set a pattern for all bilingual countries; for here we have not only two languages but two cultures and two forms of Christianity. Perhaps the responsibility of the citizen in Quebec is higher than in any other part of Canada with three-quarters of the population observing one national holiday, and one-quarter observing another a week later. It serves no purpose to say it should not be so. It is so; it is part of our inheritance; and we take the facts and build our life around them, and show the rest of a divided world that it can be done. That is our responsibility to the Dominion of Canada.

We also belong to a great commonwealth of free nations — a form of political life which has never been tried on a world scale before. In the Commonwealth there are republics and Dominions. There is exactly the same degree of independence in the two. The difference simply is that in the Dominion there is resident a representative of the Queen, who opens Parliament and signs Acts of Parliament on the advice of the Government. He has less authority than a President who has the power of veto. In this Commonwealth each country makes its own laws, builds its own tariff and concerns itself with its own interest. Always, however, there is the awareness of a larger whole, and an attempt to keep the needs of the whole Commonwealth in mind. Call it enlightened self-interest if you will, but note also that if the Commonwealth idea were exercised in the rest of the world there would be fewer points of friction.

A few weeks ago there was a meeting of delegates from the various Commonwealth countries. They tried to determine what it was that held the Commonwealth together, and they came to the conclusion that they had nothing completely in common except the love they felt and the loyalty they expressed to the Queen.

"Loyalty" is derived from the same root as "legality," but in sense it is utterly different. It is a deeply emotional word. It goes down into the very roots of our being. It is a growth of centuries of national life, deepened and strengthened by political and social development. Perhaps it began with some of the heroic and legendary figures of the Middle Ages, such as Joan of Arc in France, or the Black Prince in England. S. R. Gardiner speaks of it in connection with the reign of Elizabeth I in England: "Under the rule of Elizabeth loyalty became more and more a passion among Englishmen." Sir Wilfrid Laurier summed it up over half a century ago when he said: "We French Canadians are loyal because we are free." Our loyalty is maintained and nourished by goes deeper than words, but it events.

Mayor performed the introduction.

MANY MEET QUEEN

Passing from the right side of the platform to the left, the men bowing and the ladies making a shallow curtsy, the following were introduced: Alderman M. Garber, Commissioner of Health and Public Welfare, and Mrs. Garber; Alderman F. E. H. Gates, Commissioner of Finance, and Mrs. Gates; Alderman C. H. Drury, Commissioner of Police and Fire, and Mrs. Drury; Alderman F. A. Ouimet, Commissioner of Electric Light and Power, and Mrs. Ouimet; Alderman Frank B. Common Jr., and Mrs. Common; Alderman L. W. Bovaird and Mrs. Bovaird; City Manager T. J. Hughes.

On the platform also stood over 320 guests of the city, including Progressive - Conservative MP A. Ross Webster, the Minister of Provincial Municipal Affairs; many of the 20 judges residing in Westmount; ex-Mayors and ex-aldermen; city officials and department heads; members of the Protestant and Catholic school commissions; officials and committee chairmen of the Westmount Municipal Association; members of the city's architectural committee and board of assessors; representatives of Westmount clubs including the Westmount Women's Club, Rotary, and YMCA; commanding officers of military units in Westmount; staff officers of the Quebec Command; members of the clergy; representatives of public utilities; and members of the press.

The city's gift to Her Majesty — a silver maple syrup jug embodying the crest of Westmount, the fleur-de-lis of Quebec, and the maple leaf of Canada — was then presented.

Her Majesty admired the gift, which was returned to a small table nearby to be picked up later by an equerry before the Royal party left.

SIGN GOLDEN BOOK

Mayor Cushing invited the Queen and Prince Philip to sign the Golden Book, placed on a table in the doorway of city hall in full view of the public.

After signing the book the Royal Couple descended the steps, the Queen halting to wave a white-gloved hand to the spectators, and stepped into the waiting limousine.

A cheer went up from the crowd as she drove away from city hall and started up Argyle avenue where groups of children from Westmount schools were assembled, waiting for a glimpse of the Queen.

As the crowd dispersed, invited guests of the city filed off the platform into city hall where tea was served.

The interior of the building had been decorated with greenery; and cut flowers were placed in the mayor's office and the general committee room, should rain have forced the Queen and her party to take cover during the official visit.

The marriage of Jessica, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Gelber of Westmount, to Mr. William I. Miller, son of the late Mrs. Miller of Montreal, took place recently in the chapel of Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, Rabbi Wilfred Shuchat officiating, assisted by Cantor N. Mendelson and Rev. J. J. Fromm. Mrs. M. N. Fineberg played the wedding music, and standards of white gladioli, carnations and southern smilax were used to decorate.

The bride chose a gown of white organza with a skirt of looped tiers, a pearl coronet holding her shoulder length veil of tulle illusion. She carried a prayer book adorned with gladioli blossoms and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Donna Evin and Miss Dulcie Evin, twin cousins of the bride, were maids of honor, wearing gowns of pink nylon net with matching peau de soie cummerbunds. Pink and white carnations formed their crown headdresses and nosegays.

Mr. Nahum Gelber was best man for his brother-in-law, and ushers were Dr. H. Goldman, Mr. William Levitt, Mr. Arthur Bronstein and Mr. Carl Gelber.

pearls and sequins. At the back, accordion pleats flowed into a chapel train, and her elbow length veil was held in place by a tiny headdress of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a white Bible from which fell feathered white carnations and red Sweetheart roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. K. A. MacDonald, and attendants, Mrs. G. April and Mrs. R. Noel, were dressed alike in gowns of pale green organza over taffeta, carrying cascades of contrasting soft pink carnations.

Mr. Arthur Shippam was best man and the ushers were Mr. James Gordon and Mr. Jess Taylor.

Miss Helen M. Carpenter awarded Canadian Red Cross Fellowship

Miss Helen M. Carpenter, assistant professor of the School of Nursing, University of Toronto, and former West End resident, has been awarded the first Canadian Red Cross Fellowship for graduate study in nursing.

The announcement of the choice was made recently by D. Bruce Shaw, chairman of the national executive of the Canadian Red Cross Society, in Toronto. Miss Carpenter will follow a program leading towards certification for Doctor of Education at Columbia University, New York.

The fellowship is offered on behalf of the National Nursing Committee of the Red Cross. For some years the committee has recognized the need of financial assistance for the professional nurse who is prepared to undertake graduate study in a specific field such as research and general education. Keeping in mind the traditional role of the Canadian Red Cross Society in pioneering in new fields the Society has made this fellowship available in order to make a contribution towards this area of need.

SHORTAGE OF NURSES

Outstanding leaders in education, welfare, medicine and nursing emphasized the critical shortage of nurses with advanced training at the first Canadian Conference on Nursing held in Ottawa in November, 1957. One of their recommendations was the establishment of educational

NCW elects new officers

Mrs. G. D. Finlayson of Ottawa has been elected president of the National Council of Women of Canada. She succeeds Dr. Fraudena Eaton, who was president through the last three years.

The election was announced during the annual meeting of the council here.

Mrs. Finlayson, a vice-president from 1950 to 1954 and 1956 to 1959, is chairman of the council's finance survey committee and a member and former chairman of the Ottawa Public School Board.

Vice-presidents elected were: Mrs. C. W. Argue, Fredericton; Jessie E. Walls, Saskatoon; Mrs. W. E. Colpitts, Halifax; Mrs. G. W. Kissick, Vancouver; Mrs. H. A. Ricker, Hamilton; Muriel Milligan, Hamilton; and Eleanor Morley, Vancouver.

Other officers elected: Mrs. E. J. McCleary, Ottawa, honorary corresponding secretary; Mrs. O. W. Struthers, Winnipeg, honorary recording secretary, and Mrs. H. M. Steen, Vancouver, honorary treasurer.

CAC wins project after five years

Standardized sizing in children's clothes should be a reality at the end of this year. For Canadian Association of Consumers, this has been a five-year project.

Clothing will be marked "Canada Standard Approved". CAC is trying to achieve tax-exemption on clothes and shoes for children under sixteen years of age who wear larger sizes than those which are now tax free.

programs at one or more Canadian universities for nurses on the post-degree level. Later, at the 50th anniversary meeting of the Canadian Nurses' Association in June, 1958, the need for professional nurses equipped to give leadership in research was emphasized and the CNA went on record to urge the establishment of post graduate degree work in one or more university schools of nursing in Canada.

The Canadian Red Cross Society hopes that the granting of this fellowship will bring the day near when it will be possible for Canadian nurses to obtain graduate training in their own country from nurses with university preparation beyond the degree offered. Miss Carpenter, as the first fellowship winner, has accepted the responsibility of studying at the doctoral level for this purpose.

REPORT of the Lake Memphremagog Conservation Club at the Derby held last weekend seem to be very promising for future affairs of this type. The weather was in their favour with approximately 350 fishermen turning out. The final results had not been turned in when I left Sunday night, so I can not give you an account of the prizes, only that everyone seemed to have had an enjoyable time.

Speaking of derbies, one of the main things I would like to see in this respect is the elimination of cash prizes, and gift certificates or fishing equipment substituted. There is nothing to stop certain types of fishermen from going out at night and setting up nightlines, nets, etc., after all $5.00 per ounce for a fish is a very tempting reward. Fishing in my estimation should be kept as a good clean sport, not a money making gimmick.

A derby that proves a lot of fun and beneficial to the conservation of game fish is the type held by the St. Eustaches Anglers Club last year on the Lake of Two Mountains. They awarded prizes to the angler who caught the most course fish during the allotted time. They cleared the lake, which was becoming polluted with these course fish, a couple of ton of various species, thereby doing a two-fold job.

They give anglers a day of competitive fishing and clearing the water for the preservation of game fish.

Sunday afternoon at the Derby I saw a strange thing happen, it could almost be classed as a believe-it-or-not tale. Two anglers were trolling idly along in oppo-

RCMP stop Pepsi's unbeaten streak of 11 games with 4-3 victory in 10 innings

Coach Steve Walker's RCMP fastballers came up with the biggest upset of the Snowdon Fastball League season at D'celles Park Monday night when they tripped league-leading Pepsi-Cola 4-3.

Not only did the Mounties win the game, but they got their man as well, this time through the co-operation of Umpire Jim McCarthy. The man in this case, was Manager Dave Broadbelt who had the temerity to dispute a strike call in the ninth inning.

After the verbal dispute Broadbelt allegedly made an insulting remark to Umpire McCarthy on his way to his coaching spot. McCarthy ejected him from the game and when Broadbelt refused to leave his team's bench, he was ejected from the park. And the Mounties didn't have to use their guns to make Broadbelt leave.

On the playing field the tables were turned as the usually reliable Pepsi defensive strength weakened and the bottlers committed four errors, including a costly one by third baseman Connie Broden in the 10th inning.

The loss was only the second of the season for Pepsi against 11 victories and one deadlock. The victory was the fourth for RCMP against nine defeats and one tie.

Pepsi shot into a three-run lead in their half of the fifth inning, but the Mounties got this trio back in the seventh. A double by Steve Walker scored a pair of runs to tie it up.

In the 10th Norm Latour singled sharply to third base and when Broden's throw got past first base, Latour scampered to second. This set the stage for a single by Gil Geoffroy which scored Latour.

A TREMENDOUS schedule, involving 214 sessions of competition in 27 categories of sport, is announced for the third Pan American Games which will be held in Chicago from Aug 27 through Sept. 7. The vast scope of the competitive schedule definitely establishes the August-September spectacle as the largest international sports carnival in the history of the Western Hemisphere.

More than 2,000 athletes from 25 countries in North, Central and South America plus the Caribbean Islands are expected to take part in the games. Men athletes will be active in 20 different sports, women in seven.

The 12-day program will be spread across 24 different sites in the greater Chicago area, with Soldiers Field, the city's 100,000 capacity lakefront stadium as the principal arena.

The games' opening ceremonies on August 27 and the closing ceremonies on Sept. 7 are both slated for Soldiers Field as are six sessions of championship track and field competition.

The track and field schedule calls for three programs under lights on the evenings of August 28, August 31 and Sept. 1. The other three sessions will be daylight events on Aug 29-30 and Sept 2.

Busiest schedule listed for games are in the team sports of basketball, baseball, volleyball and soccer football. In these sports round-robins scheduled will be in effect.

In both men's and women's basketball, 20 sessions are scheduled, with the possibility that more might be added if the entry list, which closes July 28, grows beyond current expectations.
