HOW ROOSEVELT WAS GREETED BY NEW YORK

A Great Gathering of His Admirers and a Big Procession

Enormous Crowds in Streets — Harbor Filled With Vessels—Very Noisy Demonstration.

Special to The Montreal Star.

New York, June 18.—Mr. Theodore Roosevelt returned to the United States to-day after an absence of fifteen months, during which period he has hunted big game in Africa, visited Rome, and been the guest of European royalty, as well as acting as the representative of his country at the funeral of King Edward, in London.

He went away on March 23, 1909, shortly after his retirement from the highest office in the gift of the American people. He came back to-day a private citizen but was tendered one of the most enthusiastic greetings ever given a returning American.

The reception to Colonel Roosevelt started at daybreak this morning, when the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria came abreast of Fire Island, down the Long Island coast, sixty miles out of New York harbor. It continued at Quarantine and in a naval pageant up the Hudson River; it reached a climax in Battery Park where the official welcoming took place, and became a real American greeting in the march up Broadway and Fifth avenue.

Relatives Went out to Quarantine.

At five o'clock, just about daybreak, the revenue cutter Manhattan, which had been placed at the disposal of the Roosevelt family by Collector of Customs William Loeb, Jr., Mr. Roosevelt's former secretary, made her way to Quarantine and was hove to there when the liner anchored, including Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles (retired), and Mrs. Cowles, the latter Mrs. Roosevelt's sister; W. S. Cowles, Jr., Douglas Robinson and wife, the latter the sister of Mr. Roosevelt; T. Douglas Robinson and wife; Monroe D. Robinson, R. D. Roosevelt and wife; C. Hall Roosevelt, J. W. Alsop and wife, the latter Mrs. Roosevelt's niece; Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and his fiance, Miss Eleanor B. Alexander and her mother, Mrs. H. A. Alexander; Archibald B. Roosevelt and Quentin Roosevelt, the younger sons of Mr. Roosevelt; Nicholas Longworth, his son-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. W. Elmer Roosevelt, George E. Roosevelt, Miss I. S. Wagner, formerly Mrs. Roosevelt's social secretary, and Misses Langdon and Osborne, neighbors of the Rooseveis at Oyster Bay.

As soon as the Kaiserin was passed by the health officer the Manhattan drew up alongside and the Roosevelt party boarded the cutter. There was a happy scene as Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt greeted their sons and other relatives.

The Naval Parade Formation.

While the Roosevelt party was thus engaged the naval flotilla that was to act as escort gathered. The vessels, three hundred in number, were divided into twelve divisions, each commanded by a vice-commodore, all under the general command of Commodore Fred B. Dalzell, on board the tug Dalzelline. The first and second divisions consisted of steam ships and steam boats, each laden to the gunwales with cheering thousands.

At 7.45 o'clock the revenue cutter Androscoggin left the Battery for Quarantine, carrying the Roosevelt Reception Committee, of which Cornelius Vanderbilt was chairman. Among those on board the Androscoggin were Chairman Vanderbilt, William Loeb, Jr., Judge E. H. Gary, of the Steel Trust; John Hays Hammond, Lewis Nixon, the ship builder; Herman A. Metz, former Comptroller of the city of New York; Levi P. Morton; J. Bronson Reynolds, a member of Col. Roosevelt's famous "tennis Cabinet"; Judge J. W. Gerard, of the Supreme Court of the State of New York; Major General C. T. Roe, of the New York National Guard; George J. Gould, George R. Sheldon, former treasurer of the Republican National Committee; Ogden Mills, William C. McAdoo, builder of the Hudson River tunnels; Kerry Clews and Jacob Schiff, bankers; Joseph H. Choate, Francis K. Pendleton, former corporation counsel of New York, and many others prominent in New York and Washington business and political circles.

Promptly at nine o'clock the Androscoggin went alongside the Manhattan at Quarantine and Mr. Roosevelt and the newspaper men were removed. Mrs. Roosevelt and the remainder of the Roosevelt family remained on the Manhattan.

THEN THE NOISE WELCOME BEGAN.

As Mr. Roosevelt stepped on board the Androscoggin, the tug Dalzelline sounded three sharp blasts from her siren. This was the signal for the noisiest demonstration heard in New York bay in many a day. Every craft opened its whistle wide and for several minutes the din was terrific.

This tiny fleet led the procession, passing through the long lines of craft, which dropped their colors and then fell into line in order. The Androscoggin, with Mr. Roosevelt on the bridge, sped up the Upper Bay, and, following close along the Jersey side of the Hudson river, proceeded to the stake boat, anchored off 59th street. All the piers along the Jersey and New York side of the river were decorated and packed with people to cheer Roosevelt, while every boat that was passed on the river sounded its welcome.

MR. ROOSEVELT WIRES FIRST INTERVIEW.

Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, by Marconi Wireless to Siasconsett, Mass., June 18.—Mr. Roosevelt, on the evening of his arrival home, gave out the following interview:

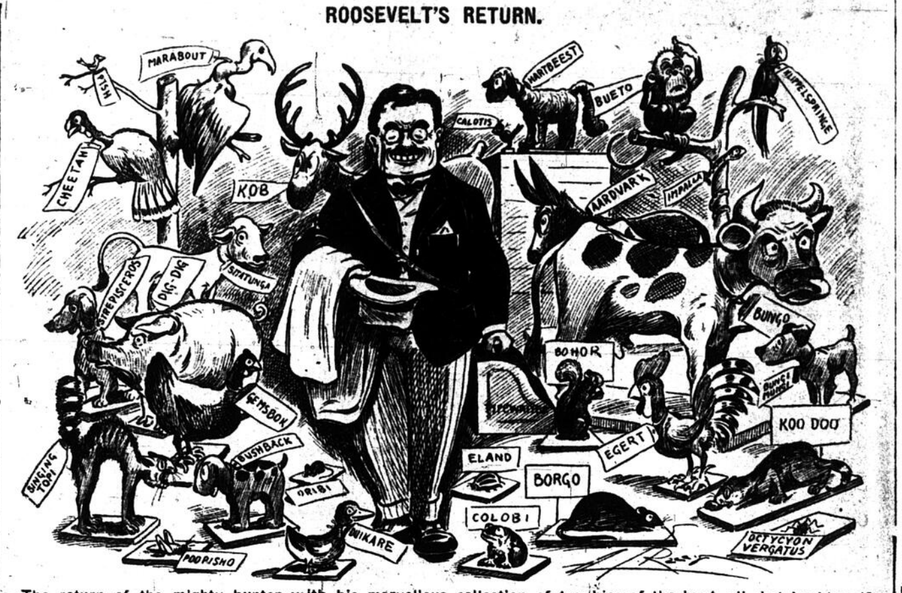
"I have been away a year and a quarter. While I enjoyed Africa most, I enjoyed Europe a very great deal. In fact, I fail to see how any one could have had a more interesting or pleasanter trip than I have had.

"I wish to express my very deep appreciation of the more than generous courtesy and hospitality with which I was treated by the people and the rulers of the countries through which I passed. But, of course, I am very glad to get home.

"I appreciate deeply the kindliness of a multitude of friends who asked me to speak in different places, and hope they will understand that it is simply a physical impossibility for me even to consider accepting more than one in a hundred of these invitations. I shall not speak for more than two months, and then speak first at the John Brown celebration, in Kansas City, at the Cheyenne Frontier Gathering, at the Conservation Congress in St. Paul, and possibly at one or two other places. I shall have nothing whatever to say in the immediate future about politics, and will hold no interview whatever on the subject with any one, and anything purporting to be an interview with me that may appear can be safely set down at once as an invention.

"I take this opportunity of acknowledging with the heartiest of thanks the numerous Marconigrams and letters of greeting which I received in London before starting, and which it has been impossible to acknowledge. I need not say how deeply I am touched by these kind messages, and am sure the senders will understand that my failure to answer all of them is due simply to the fact that they are so numerous that it is an absolute physical impossibility."

ROOSEVELT'S RETURN.



The return of the mighty hunter with his marvellous collection of trophies of the hunt, all shot by himself.

GIFT FROM LORD STRATHCONA

High Commissioner Aids the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition.

Western Associated Press Special.

Winnipeg, June 18.—The Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition Association body received the largest individual money gift in its history from Lord Strathcona. The amount of the contribution has been withheld by the exhibition directors, at the desire of the donor, it is understood, but the size of the gift marks a unique record of its kind. A few months ago Portage la Prairie Fair was also remembered by Canada's High Commissioner to the extent of $2.000.

FOREST FIRES BEYOND CONTROL

Fiercest That Have Ever Occurred Back of Port Arthur, Says Crown Agent.

Toronto, June 18. — According to a report made by J. A. Oliver, Crown Lumber Agent, to Deparment of Lands, Forests and Mines, little valuable timber is being destroyed by raging forest fires back of Port Arthur. Mr. Oliver says that all the homesteads in Conmee and part of Seable Townships have likely been destroyed, and the settlers left homeless.

The fires are the fiercest that have ever occurred there. They have now extended till they are beyond the control of fire rangers, and back-firing is useless. Nothing but rain will extinguish the flames.

CUSTOMS OFFICER G. C. RITES DEAD

Sailed First Squared Timber Raft Across Lake Ontario—A Terror to Smugglers.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Cornwall, Ont., June 18.—Mr. George C. Rites, senior, of His Majesty's Customs, died at his home here yesterday afternoon after only a week's illness, in his 76th year. Mr. Crites was a native of Cornwall, and was the father of the Crites brothers, the well known lacrosse players, who figured on the Cornwall team some years ago.

The late Mr. Crites was one of the Queen's bush pioneers in Wellington county, and in 1858 helped to sail across Lake Ontario the first raft of square timber ever taken from Toronto to Quebec. In 1875 he was appointed a county constable, and in 1878 entered the service of the Dominion Government in the Weights and Measures Department.

Two years later he was appointed Customs Detective, a position he has since held, and he was the terror of smugglers along this part of the St. Lawrence. Six sons and four daughters survive. Among the former are Mr. Wm. P. and Mr. David M. Crites, of Montreal. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon.

TWO WOMEN DROWNED.

Toronto Ferry Ran Down Gasolene Launch—Two Men Saved.

Toronto, June 18.—Shortly before 11 o'clock last night the ferryboat John Hanlan, while on a return trip from the island to the city, ran into and overturned a gasoline launch containing two young men and two young women. All four were thrown into the water and the women sank immediately and search is now being made for their bodies. The men, R. Cooper and J. Locksmith, of Weston Road, were rescued, one by the ferry and the other by a sailboat. They refused to give the names of the women, and this information was obtained later. They were Mrs. Mabel Melrick, widow of the late James Melrick, Jr., and her sister, Miss Emma Carlaw. Both resided at the Alexandria Hotel, corner of Queen and Elizabeth streets.

BROTHER RESCUED BROTHER IN FIRE

Two Sons of Mr. W. Bell Had Narrow Escape From Death at Tupperville.

Chatham, Ont., June 18.—The residence of Mr. W. Bell, of Tupperville, was burned to the ground last night, and Mr Bell's two sons, who were sleeping in the house at the time, had a very narrow escape from death. They had retired for the night, leaving a bright fire burning for their father, who had gone to the lake to fish. The elder boy awoke to find the place in flames. He rushed to the room where his brother was sleeping and found the room was already burning.

He returned to his own room, and, wrapping himself in blankets, he again tried to enter his brother's room, rushing through the flames to where he was sleeping. He then succeeded in dragging him uninjured from the building. Unfortunately, he received such severe burns himself that it is feared he may lose his legs.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK REVIEWED

Felicity.

I watched with bursting heart and tear-dimmed eye,
When high across the last pale dying glow
A bird flew by. How little did it know
The envy that its flight woke in my heart—
O, happy little bird, how blest thou art!
To chase each fleeting hue—what ecstacy!
What joy to thus explore its mystery.
And then to fly to other skies to view
God's great and gorgeous handiwork anew!

ETHELWYN GRANT.

Montreal.

An Apostle of the West.

Rev. George M. Grant, whose portrait is given to-day in the gallery of Canadian authors, was born at Albion Mines, N.S. Like most of the native-born residents of Scottish ancestry in Pictou Co., he developed a remarkable capacity for acquiring education. He went to the Pictou Academy and the West River Seminary in the same county. At the age of 18 he had won a bursary, which enabled him to take a course at the University of Glasgow. There his career was distinguished by exceptional brilliancy. This country boy, from a coal-mining village in Nova Scotia, carried off first in classics, moral philosophy and the Lord Rector's prize of thirty guineas for the best essay on Hindoo literature and philosophy. Without touching upon his career in the ministry of Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Ontario and his success as a lecturer and the principal of Queen's College, Kingston, or his reputation as one of the ablest lecturers and most eloquent platform orators of his country and time, it may be said that he had to his credit about a dozen notable books, which were widely read and received the most favorable criticism. His first work of importance was "From Ocean to Ocean." This was a description of the Canadian West, which he visited in company with Sir Sanford Fleming in the famous exploration expedition overland to British Columbia. It went through several editions, and is still regarded as an authority on the Canadian West.

James J. Hill on the Northwest.

The story of the building of the North West is told by James J. Hill in a book called "Highways of Progress," which Doubleday, Page & Co. will publish this week. President Cleveland is quoted as having said that Mr. Hill has more information than the Government in all that pertains to the development of the North-West. In the present volume, which is made up of his current contributions to the World's Work, he talks of the problems of transportation, industrial and railroad combinations and their control, the future food supply, etc. In other words, he takes up some of the fundamental questions involved in the destiny of the nation and discusses them from the point of view of a practical empire builder and man of affairs.

John Sanderson the First.

BY CAMILA SANDERSON.

(Toronto, William Briggs. 1910.)

The lives of the pioneer preachers of Canada are as full of interest as any book of adventure one could pick up. Those men who went into the forest homes of the new country, and, with their helpmeets, struggled to exist, while performing the arduous task of, perhaps, the only minister of the Gospel for a whole countryside, had a rugged manliness about them. They entered upon their career with absolute certainty of physical hardship and discomfort that they might bring spiritual comfort and consolation to their fellow-beings. Few countries can point to more devoted ministers than the pioneer preachers of Canada.

Among the noted of these was John Sanderson the First. His daughter has just given the world a most delightful biography of her father, who is described by Rev. Prof. F. H. Wallace, in an introduction, as "a typical Methodist minister of the old school, a man of excellent ability, a genial Irish temperament, which made him at home everywhere, an unsullied record, and a thoroughly useful career. He and his good English wife are to be reckoned among the men and women who have made Methodism, who have made Canada."

The daughter has depicted their lives and character lovingly and well, with a keen sense of that which is interesting. One sees the domestic life, when some noted big man of the day is to visit them, enters into the spirit of the rugged, simple life among the pines, feels the inspiration of the preacher's work, and enjoys his humor.

Mr. Sanderson had reached 90 years when he was called away. He came to Canada in 1831. When they arrived on this side there was still the tedious journey up the St. Lawrence in barge-boats, and the equally tedious overland journey to the scene of future activities. The description of the first service held by Mr. Sanderson under the sheltering trees of the forest primeval of Ontario is most touching. All through the book, the author has given just those little things which do so much to show how devoted and genial a minister Mr. Sanderson was and how thoroughly he entered into the spirit of his surroundings and the lives of the early settlers.

The Possible Japaneses Invasion.

Englishmen's fear of a German invasion seems to account for the eagerness with which General Homer Lea's new book, "The Valor of Ignorance," is being read in London. In Canada this book has caused even more interest, because of the possible Japanese invasion of North America. For the most part they do not agree with General Lea "that the United States, notwithstanding its claim of suzerainty over practically the whole of the Western Hemisphere, with the exception of Canada, is unprepared for war; that a war between the United States and Japan is inevitable, and should such a war take place the United States will lose her Pacific Coast States."

Love, Honor, and Obey (?)

The controversy about including the word "obey" in the marriage vow is probably as old as the marriage ceremony itself. When Marion Harland's parents were married in 1825 (as she tells us in her autobiography), the bride had "laughingly threatened that she would not promise to 'obey,' and that a scene would follow the use of the obnoxious word in the marriage service. The young divine, with this in mind, or in a fit of absent-mindedness or of stage-fright, actually blundered out, 'love, honor—and obey, in all things consistent!'" The costumes worn on this occasion were hardly as modern as the unfortunate amendment. "The bride wore a soft sheer India muslin, a veil falling to the hem of the gown, and white brocade slippers embroidered with faint blue flowers. The bridegroom's suit was of fine blue cloth with real silver buttons. His feet were clad in white stockings and low shoes with wrought-silver buckles." The atmosphere of old rose and lavender which this scene suggests pervades "Marion Harland's Autobiography," which is a reflection of her period as well as herself.

Ash Wednesday in Reality.

Georg Scheck has put in the pages of her new novel, "Hearts Contending," many glimpses of the quaint life of the Pennsylvania Germans. Both pathetic and humorous was Ash Wednesday in the Hellighal—"On that day every house was cleaned from top to bottom, and the dust burned; every garden was covered with ashes, which remained until the spring rains washed them into the ground; every cow was sprinkled with ashes, like a mourner in the Old Testament, and their long contemplative faces, thus oddly topped, stared out of barn-doors and over barnyard fences."

Hygiene for Young People.

BY A. P. KNIGHT, M.A., M.D.

(Toronto. The Copp, Clarke Company. 1910.)

The teaching of hygiene in the public schools is certainly one of the best means of having a clean, wholesome population. Dr. Knight has given the public the sound principles of sanitation. Dr. Knight had already contributed towards the teaching of hygience before he commenced work on "Hygiene for Young People," a work from his pen being used by the schools of the Protestant boards in the Province of Quebec, and elementary books of instruction, of which the present work is in the series, being used in the Ontario schools. The latest work has been recommended by the Minister of Education for use in the public schools of Ontario.

It is written in a plain and interesting manner, so as to convey information, which can be readily grasped, and at the end of each chapter are suggested questions for the teacher, to enable the instructor to see how far the lesson has been understood.

While the book is primarily for school purposes, it is an interesting work for the general lay reader, giving plain and easily-understood lessons as to the hygiene of the person, the house, and outside premises. It is copiously illustrated, and of such a size as to be convenient for reference in the household library.

The Boyhood of Louis XV.

The fourth volume in the Court Series of French Memoirs will be issued early in the fall. It is to be entitled "Secret Memoirs of the Regency," and deals with court life in France during the minority of Louis XV. The author, Charles Pinot Duclos, was born in 1704 and died in 1772. He attained eminence in his time as historiographer of France and member and secretary of the French Academy. Duclos compiled these memoirs from secret papers, and from what he and others of the time personally saw and heard. The translator is E. Jules Meras, who is editing and translating the entire series.

An Airship Flight in Verse.

With every one more or less a flutter and on the wing over the offering of huge prizes for airship flights between New York and Chicago, and New York and St. Louis, it is interesting to notice an airship flight in verse, taken by Julia Stockton Dinsmore, a most unusual Kentucky lady, who at 77 has just made her literary bow to the public with a book of poems. This volume, "Verses and Sonnets," includes "An Airship Barcarolle." Appropriately, it is a sustained endeavor, the only period being at the end. The lines are as follows:

Love, if our trusted ship should fail
Our dearest, direst need,
Should neither skill nor will avail
To choose its course or speed,
Never, oh! never a downward flight
With thee in the tangled wreck,
But soaring ever from height to height
A wayward, wandering speck,
By four ill-winds to the zenith blown
Our helmless back shall fare
O'er currents chartless and unknown—
A derelict of the air—
To space where hostile forces meet,
Preventive fall or rise,
And sail like the crescent fair and fleet
Round boundless, soundless skies,
Till all that's mortal, material,
Mid the ceaseless whirl of gales
Into the depths ethereal
Dissolves, resolves, exhales;
And of our frail ship and of heart and lip
Remain to the blue above
Only the sigh of the lovers that die—
Only our deathless love.

First Aid to the Injured in Real Estate.

The real estate game, as played today is beyond the comprehension of most people. The thousands of men who have never educated themselves in its finesse, plunge themselves into numerous perplexities and dangers when they desire to buy a house, sell one, or make a simple real-estate investment. Perilous pitfalls in the shape of "wild-cat" schemes and propositions made by unscrupulous brokers, lurk in their pathway, frightening and intimidating, at the cost of many a sound and profitable opportunity. Thus a book which can reveal at a glance the hidden clause, the title land "villa plots," or the tin cans lithographed into benedictient shade trees and fragrant shrubbery, comes as a rescuing hand to the drowning. Just such a book is "Practical Real Estate Methods," published this month by Doubleday, Page & Company. This volume of nearly four hundred pages is a collection of thirty chapters by as many real estate experts who have themselves succeeded by the very methods they describe.

The West in Biography.

Under the editorship of Prof. Clarence W. Alvord, of the University of Illinois, the Appletons plan to publish a number of volumes in which the history of the development of the West will be told in biography. Among the books in preparation are a volume on George Rogers Clark, on William Henry Harrison, on John Charles Fremont and on Charles Michel de Langlade. In each case, it is said, these books will be written from a careful study of available and original sources.

The Bride and the Pennant.

BY FRANK L. CHANCE.

(Chicago. Laird & Lee. 1910.)

When any sport achieves enormous popularity somebody will accomplish literature for it. Baseball, having long years since passed the peradventure as an exhibition, which, under competent management, gathers big gate money, those in it want all that can be had. When a prizefighter succeeds in making some other prize fighter realize the fleeting quality of popular fame, the successful one goes on the stage or writes a book. Why not the baseballist?

Mr. Frank L. Chance is the greatest baseball manager in the world. He confesses it himself on the very title page of his book, "The Bride and the Pennant." The probability is that no one will buy the story with a view to learning much about the "bride," but the "pennant" suggests possibilities which are realized. It is the life of a professional baseballist, who graduated from a college team in one of the big leagues.

How results are accomplished, what training means, and how it is done, the inside story of how professional games are played, including an expose of that mystery of mysteries, signaling, are given. It illustrates how a well-understood code of signals not only enables the battery to keep up a continuous conversation, but conveys directions to every man in the field as to what is expected of him.

As a wholesome relation of a baseball pitcher's adventures in the field, the story is one which is never dull, and at times is as exciting as a last inning when there is a tie, with bases full, and the most popular batter of the home team spitting on his hands. It will be not the less interesting to Canadians because among the characters — with names but slightly disguised—are such well-known personages as our old friend Paddy Moran; O'Donahue, the venerable player who caught in a Halifax team quarter of a century ago; Silk O'Loughlin whose umpire conversation was a feature in "Dooley's" day here, and Lajoie, the French-Canadian, who made batting a science.

The "bride" part of the story is sprinkled in as harmlessly as the dribble of an empty watering cart on a dusty street.

Marion Harland's Daughter a Writer, Too.

Mrs. Virginia Terhune Van der Water, author of "From Kitchen to Garret," comes naturally by her knowledge of domestic science. She is a daughter of "Marion Harland," long of household fame. Mrs. Van de Water's new book, which has just been published, is the first volume in the "Young Farmer's Practical Library," of which Mr. Ernest Ingersoll is the general editor.

Is Conversation a Lost Art?

"The Lost Art of Conversation," a collection of essays compiled by Mr. H. S. Krans and recently published in New York, is causing some controversy. Although the critics are almost unanimous in their praise of Mr. Kran's introduction and selections, they differ amongst themselves as to whether or not conversation is, as Mr. Kran's title implies, a lost art. Some agree that the conversation of bygone days is indeed no more, with its dexterous thrusts and parries, its mutual exchange of information and ideas, its adventures in realms of fancy above mere fact and commerce. Others, on the contrary, maintain that the art of conversation is by no means lost; they wax even heated in attacking Mr. Kran's title. The humor of the dispute lies in the fact that these optimists base their opinion on their own conversational powers. They cheerfully admit that they "like to hear themselves talk"—and they don't think they do it badly.

Through Library Windows.

BY F. C. HUBBARD.

(New York. Broadway Publishing Co. 1910.)

The idea of conveying instruction disguised in the form of a story, or in conversation, is usually as palatable and popular to youth as powders concealed in jam. Happy is the one who has not gone through life with a distinct abhorrence of a certain kind of jam, because of the early association of a bitter liquid to the red cloud. Since Day left the stamp of his (to children) ineffable dulness to future generations with "Sandford and Merton," and the "Juvenile Naturalist" was added to youthful libraries a generation ago, there have been many attempts to sugar coat the pill of instruction.

In "Through Library Windows" Mr. F. C. Hubbard does what the slang-user would describe as "making a noise like a novel"—that is, his book is divided up into chapters as though it were a story; but when one gets into it, the work is found to be most readable chats on a large number of subjects, which a man with exceptional opportunities for reading, a retentive memory, observation and time to devote to it all, becomes conversant with. They form, in fact, studies in nature, literature, art and experience. "These studies," he says, "are practical, the product of genuine experience—they have been lived. They were written to help some maybe earnest student of to-day's real life. They were meant to inspire wide reading, careful observation and noble living. Nature is a kind and faithful teacher; she is full of life and reveals it; she bears the impress of her Creator, and indexes it in a thousand ways; she has so much to give to the hungry-minded and gives liberally. But she demands the reverent spirit and sympathetic heart; these conditions met and the gifts are greater than can be estimated. So is it true of Literature, Art and Life; they all alike await the sincere searcher and worker, and reward him royally."

The object of the author is manifestly to help rather than sell a book; to mildly instruct from his own learning, observation and experience, rather than win renown; to suggest that which is pure, good and true, rather than remind whence the suggestions came. It is the kind of book which may never have a wide circulation, or perhaps gain great reputation for the writer, but the motives are of the best, and those who read the entertaining chapters will be inspired with the desire to "Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring."

THE FOUR GEORGES.

By his title King George V succeeds to a name that does not carry us back beyond the time of the Hanoverian succession. The name of Edward went back in Royal history to the thirteenth century. The name of George first appeared in the genealogical tree of the British Royal succession in 1714, when George I was proclaimed King on the death of Queen Anne on August 1. He had no hereditary right to the Throne of England, but he had a Parliamentary right by virtue of the Act of Settlement, his mother, Sophia, being granddaughter of James I of England. He was born in Hanover in 1660, and became Elector of Hanover in 1698. He was the first of the House of Brunswick who reigned in England. He was essentially a constitutional figure-head. At the date of his death he could speak no English, and he regarded England as a mere appendage to Hanover, where he loved to dwell, and the Whig Ministers were permitted to run the country in their own way.

The unpopularity of the "wee, wee German lairdie" was proved by the Tory and Jacobite rising of 1715, when a large part of Scotland and many in the north of England favored the restoration of the Stuarts. George I died at Osnabruck in 1727. He was characterized by Lady Wortley Montagu as "an honest blockhead." He imprisoned his wife for infidelity, while himself maintaining an establishment of mistresses in his Court.

He was succeeded in 1727 by his son George II, who carried on the Hanoverian tradition at Court, through a reign in which the country made great progress. The '45 was sternly suppressed; and Walpole and Pitt carried on the Whig policy in peace and war with little direct interference from the King, though the strong character of the Queen, Caroline of Anspach, was no doubt a factor in raising the constitutional position of Royalty. The earlier years of his reign have been described by Hallam as "the most prosperous season that England had ever experienced; and along with prosperity at home there were military successes abroad that strengthened the prestige of the country in Europe.

George II died in 1760, and was predeceased about ten years by his eldest son, Frederick Lewis, the Prince of Wales, who however, left issue; so that the sucession was taken up by a grandson. George III was born in 1738, in London, and was, therefore, the first of the Brunewick line that could be called native born. Although feeble in his infancy, he lived to the good old age of eighty-two, and had by his wife (Charlotte, daughter of Charles, Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz), no fewer than fifteen children— nine sons and six daughters. He never visited his German dominions; he took a great interest in British and Continental politics; he broke the power of the Whig ascendancy; and he lost the American colonies. His sixty years of kingship covered a great period of British progress.

George IV, the eldest son of George III, was born in 1762, and after a regency of ten years during the insanity of his sire, he was crowned in 1820. He was a most irregular person, both in private and public life, and the Bishop of Lichfield, who knew him in his youth, prophesied that he would be "either the most polished gentleman or the most accomplished blackguard in Europe; possibly an admixture of both." His love of dress secured him the title of "the Magnificent;" his other nicknames were Prince Florizel, Fum the Fourth, the Fat Adonis of Fifty, and the First Gentleman of Europe. Like his father, he governed partly with the aid of the Tories. As a son, as a husband, and as a father, he behaved badly, and he did nothing to adorn a reign which closed with his death in January, 1830.

Had Given Up All Hope of Living.

Heart Trouble Cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grattan's, N.B., writes:—"In the year 1905, I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors, but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

"One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said, 'Lizzie, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble.' My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, 'I believe those pills are doing you good.' I was able to say, 'Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning.' He said, 'Well, I will get you another box right away.' I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

"I will never be without them in my home for God knows if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now."

NOTES AND QUERIES

All persons communicating with this department must send their names and addresses (not for publication), or no notice will be taken of their enquiries. This rule will be strictly enforced hereafter.

Robert Browning.

J. E. Q., Halifax, N.S.: I am pleased to give the answer regarding the poem and its writer, in which occur the lines, "God's in His heaven, all's right with the world." Browning is the author, and "Pippa Passes" is the poem. It is a very long poem, a drama, and should be found in any collection of Browning's longer poems; to my certain knowledge, it is found in the "Everyman" edition. The lines in question are in Pippa's song. Here it is:

"The year's at the spring,
The day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven;
The hill-side's dew-pearled,
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn:
God's in His Heaven—
All's right with the world!"

I would advise the inquirer to read the entire poem; it is a splendid study in cheerfulness, and the beauty of the little cheery song can be better understood when the entire setting is clear in the reader's mind.

St. Thomas Church.

W. B., Cincinnati, Ohio: Please inform me through the columns of your paper, the denomination of St. Thomas Church that stood on Notre Dame street East?

Ans.—Church of England.

A Problem for Astronomers.

J. F., Montreal: Is space globular in shape? If so, what may be its diameter? Outside of space there is no material substance. How then, can the rays of the stars on the limit of space find a medium for their dispersion in the direction opposed to the centre of space? Do the stars, including our sun, absorb one another's rays? If they do, what can be the value of the nebular theory of our solar system that, by the gradual cooling of the sun, life on earth shall become extinct?

Where Was James Hughes Buried?

Inquisitive, Montreal: In the old burying ground formerly on Dorchester street there stood a tombstone with the following inscription, "Erected in memory of James Walker, judge of the King's Bench (died 1800); his daughter, Amelia Ann, wife of Capt. James Romilly (died 1824), and her grandfather, James Hughes, Town Major of Montreal (died 1825, a.e. 87)". 1. Was this James Hughes the same who, with MacDonald and Garth, founded Fort Augustus, Fort a Hughes (Edmonton)? If not, (2) when and where did the latter die?

Ans.—1. No. Perhaps some reader can answer this.

The Duke of Newcastle.

Enquirer, Maxville, Ont.: Can you decide an argument? Was it the Duke of Newcastle who accompanied the Prince of Wales on his tour of Canada in 1860? If so, what was the Duke in religion; was he Roman Catholic or Protestant?

Ans.—The Duke of Newcastle was Secretary of State for the Colonies and accompanied the Prince of Wales to this country in 1860. He was an adherent of the Church of England, and attended service with H.R.H. and the rest of the suite at Christ Church Cathedral. The Duke of Newcastle had charge of the War Department during the Crimean war, and received much censure for the defective commissariat and other arrangements of the British forces. He resigned and was afterwards given the portfolio of the Colonies, which he had held before he took over the War Department.

The Late Mark Twain.

J. M. L., Quebec: I read a French book recently, "Le Prince et le Pauvre," written by M. S. Clemens (Mark Twain). I would like to know if that book was translated from the English language, or if it was composed by him in French?

Ans.—It was a translation. "The Prince and the Pauper" was published in 1880.

"Wreck of the Hesperus."

W. E. B., Montreal: Who wrote the poem, "The Wreck of the Hesperus?"

Ans.—Henry W. Longfellow. It will be found in any of the editions of his works.

United States Presidents.

Frederic R. Griffin, Church of the Messiah, Montreal: In "Notes and Queries" for Saturday, June 11, it is stated that Mr. Taft is the only Unitarian who has been President of the United States. This is incorrect. John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Millard Fillmore were all Unitarians. Further, "it is universally admitted that George Washington, though an attendant at the Episcopal Church, agreed substantially with the religious opinions of his Unitarian friends, Adams and Jefferson." Abraham Lincoln defined his religious position in exactly the words in which the National Conference of Unitarian Churches describes its platform, "Love to God and love to man." —Thus Mr. Taft is the fifth Unitarian President of the United States, while at least seven have been Unitarians in their religious convictions.

Ans.—In the list published Filmore should have been Unitarian. Otherwise the list is that which has been given in American almanacs for years. J. Adams was buried at the First Congregational Church, Quincy, Mass. J. Quincy Adams was interred in the same cemetery.

Area of Cities.

C. B. G., Montreal: Will you kindly give through the medium of the "Notes and Queries" columns the area of London City, Eng., as well as of Greater London, St. Petersburg, Paris and New York cities?

Ans.—The area of London City is 674 acres, or a little over 1 square mile; London County, 116 square miles; St. Petersburg, 42 square miles; Paris, 30 square miles; New York, 326¾ square miles.

A Railway Question.

J. B. B., Chaudiere Junction, Que.: A peculiar discussion arose to-day among railwaymen while phraseologing a casualty report, and, as no understanding could be reached, you were chosen to be the arbitrator. The point at issue is: "Which is the correct way to express the action of a brakeman in climbing a car in movement, "went up on top of car," or "mounted the car," while in motion. I stood by the latter as the most proper.

Ans.—To say he "mounted the car" does not express with definiteness what part of the car he reached. A man getting on a car from a station platform would be mounting a car. To say that he "went on top of car" (leave "up" out) would convey clearly what happened, but "mounted to the top of car" would be preferable.

Mark Twain's Toast.

Mrs. R. S., Montreal.—Could you please furnish me through your columns with Mark Twain's toast, which ends with, "I drink to the friend who stands by me when I am down and out."

Ans.—Do not recall any such toast. It does not sound like Mark Twain.

Affairs in Morocco.

R. F. L. G., Newcastle, N.B.: Will you please give me some information regarding the present Sultan of Morocco? In A. J. Dawson's book, "Things Seen In Morocco," published in 1904, the Pretender of that period was known as Jilali el Zarouny or Ba Hamara (the father of the she-ass) and was spoken of as "The Rogul." In an article by Reid Beiton in Nash's magazine for June, 1910, the Pretender (the present Sultan) is Mulai Hafid. Are these Pretenders one and the same? If not, what became of "the father of the she-ass"? What claim to the throne had either of these men? Shall be glad if you will give a brief outline of the subject in your column. Also if you will name a book giving an account of this matter.

Ans.—The present ruler of Morocco is Sultan Mulai Hafid. He is a son of Sultan Mulai Hassan, who died in 1894. The present Sultan was proclaimed in 1907, having succeeded to the throne by the simple process of defeating the military forces of his brother, Mulai Abdul Aziz. The latter had occupied the throne from the time of his father's death, in 1908 the new ruler was recognized by the Powers, and Mulai Abdul Aziz, retired to Tangier, where he lives on a pension of £7,000 a year. Bu Hamara, called the "Pretender," had been carrying on a rebellion with more or less success for years. The new Sultan, however, gave the revolutionary movement his earnest attention. As a consequence Bu Hamara was defeated and captured last August, and the horrible tortures inflicted upon the prisoners evoked a vigorous remonstrance from the Powers. The late Sultan, Aziz, was only fifteen years old when he was proclaimed Sultan. His oldest brother, Mulai Mohammed, headed an insurrection, claiming that as the oldest brother, he was the proper heir to the throne. The rising was suppressed, and Mohammed was thrown into prison. After his disappearance, Bu Hamara started up as a claimant, but the young Sultan produced his brother from prison, to demonstrate to his people that he was still alive. Bu Hamara continued his efforts, however, until he met his fate at the hands of the present Sultan. The new ruler does not mean to take chances of any more claimants coming up. His oldest brother, Mohammed, who had been defeated and imprisoned by Aziz, was taken to Fez in manacles, and mysteriously died. Aziz is pensioned to keep out of the country. Mulai Hafid, it may be said, had been practically ruler of Southern Morocco, by force of arms, and when his forces met those of Aziz, although numerically inferior, the artillery "went bad," and Aziz's troops deserted wholesale. The later events referred to are still in current periodical literature, but probably will be brought up to date in book form.

OMINION IS LIKELY TO GIVE MONEY GRANT

hat Will Probably Be Result of Appointment of Federal Commission on Technical Education.

It is probable that the appointment the Commission on Technical Education by the Dominion Government ill result in a financial contribution om the Federal treasury to the supart of this branch of education. In e frequent discussion on the subt in Parliament the constitutional estion whether technical education es not belong to the provinces has ways been raised, and the proposal a grant of money has been brought ward as a means of avoiding the nstitutional difficulty. It has been gued, without contradiction, that s would not involve any interfernce with the rights of the provinces. e character of the education could left to the provincial authorities d the Dominion activity confined to monetary subvention granted to the ovinces. A parallel has been cited this proposal in the present grant the Dominion Government in aid the Railway Department at McGill iversity.

Another proposal has, however, been oached as to the form of the Dominn contribution. This is that the Doma should establish a technical colge itself, for which precedents are und in the Royal Military and Naval lleges. This college would be conceived on the most thorough and adnced lines, and would be made a ndard for all the technical colleges the country. The proposal for Govment grants to other colleges ght be combined with this second oposal, and in that case the Federal bventions could be confined to colges which attained an equal standd with the Federal institution.

These are two questions which will ne before the commission for conderation. The work of that body ll be divided into three main anches. In the first place they will dit the various industries in Canada ascertain the needs of the country regard to technical education. hen that information has been obned, they will visit the United States, eat Britain, Germany, and France, ere they will study the work that is ng done in the technical schools. eir report will include a statement the needs of Canada, an examinan of the methods in vogue in other untries, and the commission's recmmendations as to the best method be applied in meeting the needs of a Canadian situation.

LITTLE WORK SO FAR.

Comparatively little work has yet en done in technical education in nada. For many years there has a technical school in Toronto, ich was organized by the Trades d Labor Council of that city, ough on a modest scale, this school d good work and was eventually ken over by the Board of Education, ich has constituted it as a technihigh school. A similar institution s in recent years been established Montreal. Manual training has also en given a place in the general edutional system of most of the proces.

nterest in the subject has, however, reased very greatly of late years. e Canadian Manufacturers' Associon has made a special study of the bject, and has contributed much to the success of the campaign. There is present nearing completion in ntreal a technical institution which the fruit of the more recent discusn. The Province of Quebec and the y of Montreal have both made large ants towards it. It is being built by board of leading citizens, at the head which is Mr. Gaspard DeSerres. It ll probably be ready for occupation the autumn, and will be the best uipped institution of the kind in nada.

LOOK TO GERMANY.

Germany is the country to which Dominion commission will look the most up-to-date methods in hnical education. Her technical hools are generally credited, along th her tariff policy, with the marlous strides she has made in industrial development. For all but certain epted classes the provision by law mpulsory technical education. The epted classes are lawyers, notaries, rchants, and army officers of a tain grade. This technical educan is entirely separate from the genal system of education. The average rman boy proceeds as far as the ddle school in his general training. is corresponds generally to the high hool of our system. After leaving the ddle school, in case he goes into y trade, he is required to take a ur years' course in technical educa-

Eczema Must Yield to

THE WONDERFULLY SOOTHING HEALING INFLUENCE OF

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

There is one thing you can depend on Dr. Chase's Ointment to do every time, and that is to cure eczema. No case is too severe for this ointment can be put, and because Dr. Chase's Ointment triumphed over eczema it has become the standard ointment.

When another ointment is praised it is said to be as good as Dr. Chase's, and this illustrates the high position held by this preparation.

Mrs. Oscar Vancott, St. Antoine St., writes: "I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment to be a permanent cure for eczema and other skin diseases. One son while nursing broke out with running, watery sores all over his head and around the ears. Many salves were prescribed to no effect. The child's head became a mass of scabs and he suffered agony untold. He became weak and frail, could not eat and we thought we would lose him.

Providentially we heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment and it soon thoroughly cured him. He is seven years old now and strong and well. Another boy was also cured of eczema by the Ointment and we hope more people will learn about it so that their little ones may be saved from suffering.

We do not be satisfied with the experience of others but put Dr. Chase's Ointment to the test when occasion arises. Try it for chafing and irritation of the skin, for chapped and cracked hands, for chilblains and frost bites, for sores and burns. It is delightfully soothing and healing. 60 cents a box, all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

Unpopularity of Domestic Service

One of the reasons of the dearth of domestic servants and the preference of young women for work in shops and factories is the lack of definite hours for work. "A business girl works to set of sun, but a servant's work is never done," to paraphrase an old saying. Until there are more definite hours and more consideration shown it will be impossible to expect a young woman to work in a home instead of a shop or factory. One constantly hears women lamenting the fact that girls prefer the long hard hours of a shop to the comparatively easy work in a house. The reason, at least one of the chief reasons, is that all young women want some definite time to themselves. They want their own friends, their own amusements, their definite hours of leisure. A shop girl knows that no matter how long and how hard the day that after six o'clock she is free to do as she pleases. The human soul longs and pants for freedom. It is the flavor of serfdom about domestic service that spoils it for the majority of girls. The mistress can say, "Mary I want you to stay in this evening for I am having company," when very probably Mary has made arrangements for a pleasant evening of her own. What is needed in domestic service is a more strictly business attitude. There should be definite hours of work. It should all be down in black and white when the maids are engaged. Of course, it is impossible in many homes where entertaining is done or where the family dines quite late, to let the maids go every evening. But in such cases they should have stated evenings off; if the nights they are kept to work late they should not be expected to begin so early. I know one woman who often gives her maid-of all-work a morning off, especially if there is a sale of something the girl wants. Of course, it means extra work for the mistress, but by exercising forethought this can be reduced to a minimum and what is it anyway in comparison to keeping a satisfactory maid? And Sunday should be as much as possible a day of leisure to all the maids. An early dinner is customary and afternoon tea is easily prepared, and the cold supper, the most delightful meal often of the week, in its informality, all ready on the table and in the refrigerator. In this manner Sunday becomes a light day instead of, as it is in many houses, the heaviest day of the week. In many other ways business methods can be used with advantage in the dealings with servants. For one thing, business promptness in paying wages is desirable. It seems incredible, but there are many homes where wages are delayed weeks and sometimes months. When the house-mother learns to be a business woman the problem of domestic service will be well on the way to be solved.

From Our Readers

Preserved Pineapple.

Mrs. Matthews writes and asks for a recipe for preserved pineapple. Rather than take one out of a cook-book I should prefer to give on which some of the good housewives who read this page might furnish and guarantee as satisfactory. Will someone send this recipe?

Dandelion Wine.

The heartiest thanks are due the ladies who so kindly sent in recipes for Dandelion Wine. They are very much alike and one has already been given. Here is another for N.P., who mislaid the first.

"Measure three quarts of dandelion flowers, pressing them hard into the measure so as to give the wine a wholesome bitter. Pour over the flowers four gallons of boiling water, and let sand over night. The next day boil it fifteen or twenty minutes; add three pounds of sugar, one orange and one lemon sliced, then boil a few minutes longer. Take from the fire, and when cooled to luke warm, strain, and add one cake of Fleischman's yeast, which has been softened in a little water. When quite through working, bottle and keep in a cool place. Gather the freshest blooms possible.

A SMART SUMMER FROCK

6671 Child's Dress.

Smart frocks made with square necks and short sleeves are both smart and ideally comfortable. This one is finished with a pretty little collar or trimming at the neck, and is absolutely simple. It is made only with front and back, the opening being cut under the box plait at the back, and the little sleeves require only to be gathered into bands. French gingham is the material illustrated, blue and white, and it is piped with plain blue and worn with a patent leather belt. All the materials that are used for children's dresses are appropriate, however, for the same model would be attractive developed in flowered batiste or embroidered muslin and utilized for afternoon occasions, while for morning wear linen and chambray, galatea and the like are to be desired. If preferred, the little collar or trimming portion could be of contrasting material, and blue or pink linen with the collar and sleeve bands of white would be dainty in the extreme. For very warm days or for more dressy occasions, Dresden dimity with these trimming portions of handkerchief lawn scalloped would be both attractive and fashionable.

For the four-year size will be required 3¼ yards of material 24 or 27, 2⅞ yards 32, 2⅜ yards 44 inches wide.

A May Manton pattern, No. 6671, sizes 2, 4 and 6 years of age, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (If in haste, send an additional two-cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.)

In Lighter Mood

The schoolmaster of a certain village asked his pupils the following question:

"Suppose in a family there are five children and mother has only four potatoes between them. Now, she wants to give to every child an equal share. What is she going to do?"

Silence reigned in the room.

Everybody calculated very hard, till a little boy stood up and gave, to the great surprise of the schoolmaster, the following unexpected answer:

"Mash the potatoes, sir."

Schoolmaster (entering boys' dormitory): "What are you doing out of bed, Murphy?"

Murphy—"Oh, sorr, I got out to tuck myself in."

First Fair Autoist—Did you have to pay any damages to that man you ran over?

Second Fair Autoist—No. Fortunately, he was my husband.

WHERE HE MISLEAD THEM.

Surgeon — Where the deuce can I have left my glasses?

Wife—You haven't been performing an operation to-day, I suppose.

Maple Sugar Frosting.

Mrs. P. and others have asked for a Maple Sugar Frosting recipe. Here it is: A—Half-pound maple sugar, scraped, quarter cup boiling water. B.—One egg-white beaten stiff. Melt A., boil without stirring until it threads, add slowly to B. and beat until thick enough to spread.

Throat Beautiful

Now is the time when an ugly neck is at its worst, for so many women go collarless in summer who never think of wearing low collars in winter.

Careful bathing, loose clothing, skilled manipulation and a good astringent is essential if a neck is to be kept in good condition.

Give it a vigorous scrubbing twice a day. Just rubbing with a wet wash cloth will not answer. Scrub hard night and morning with a rough wash cloth, using plenty of hot water and the soap that best suits your skin. Follow by the free use of a well-lathered compexion brush. Rinse off the soap with warm water.

Dash again and again with cooler water,to which has been added enough tincture of benzoin to color. Then spray the neck and shoulders with very cold water to tone up the muscles.

This scrubbing should be repeated in the evening, followed by a careful massage with good skin food.

Three Danger Signals.

With the finger tips knead upward in short circular movements from base of neck to point of chin, to the hair line at back and to the ears on sides. There are three danger points on the neck where the years get in their work. If you would not look older than you need, watch for withering and wrinkles just back of the ears on the cords at the side of the neck and on the double chin. There is also a hollow under the ears that will need to be massaged if it is not to grow unsightly.

Wear Surplice Gowns.

To keep the neck full and supple, practice slow rolling motions in all directions and around the circle from left to right and back again.

No matter how well shaped a neck is, it is unsightly if the skin is bad. A red neck with brown lines, or a pimpled neck need careful treatment. Tight collars are the chief cause of such defects.

Wear a loose collar, preferably none, whenever it is possible to do so. Around the house wear gowns with slightly surplice neck, even in winter. This strengthens the neck as well as beautifies it.

To remove discolorations use lemon, or peroxide solution, or rub with pumice stone. A new remedy particularly seasonable is to bind the neck with a paste made of chopped ripe cucumber. Let it stay over night. Repeat until the marks are gone.

The Newest Hats

Two qualities the fashionable hats worn by the girls have—they are excellent protection from the sun and they are light—that is, if they are made of modish material in a masterful way. Everything, including hat materials, is reduced to a minimum of weight, and since trimmings on smart models are sparse there is not even an overloaded and heavy appearance.

The bonnet shapes are a perfect craze with the girls and their outlines are multitudinous. If only the head is covered to the ears and over them with any quaint shape it seems to "go". Charlotte Corday models with many plays on them are one of the leaders. The full crowns are made of lace, of silk, or of straw, with often nothing more than a band of velvet or ribbon going around them and ending in a "simple simplicity" bow at the front. Other bonnet shapes might have been copied from the early Victorian pictures but the flaring bonnets of Civil War days are not in the run. The hats as a rule sit close to the head.

One of the fancies that cropped out in the spring—that of draping the entire crown of wide-brim hats with silk in bandana style and ending the silk in a sort of sailor's bow at the front, back or side as the maker decreed, is still here with us, but is becoming over used. All such styles are sure to be captured by the multitude and run to death before the season is fairly on.

Old-timey trimmings are plentiful. One of the oddest is the tiny wreath of flowers in colors so faded that one wonders if they came from the fastnesses of some old chest, where they have lain since the middle of the last century. Such wreaths are made up of little roses and tiny flowers, the mingling of various colors being one of the fancies of the hour. Roses and forget-me-nots are a frequent blend, oldfashioned as it is.

All black hats, always liked, are given a new impetus by the prescribed mourning of England and the natural influence felt in Paris. So the milliners are bringing out the jauntiest models without a trace of color and it looks as though garden parties later on will be rather sombre so far as the headgear of their guests is concerned.

Many of the new wide-brim models are bound around the edge with wide bands of black velvet, especially on crinoline and hemp braids. Such a hat seen on the avenue last week was of crinoline with a very wide brim that was bent in a peak at the front and down at the sides and back. The edge was bound with black velvet and the only trimming—the only trimming there was room for—was a huge black Chantilly lace bow which entirely eclipsed the crown and which stood high in the front and sides and flared back and around the crown.

One of the modish shirred wheel ornaments trims the bonnet hat in the drawing. It is made of draped fine straw trimmed with a band of silk across the front which ends under the wheels. The big hat is of horse hair with a plaitng of tulle all around the brim and crown and little roses catching the chiffon at intervals. The tulle is very faint rose color over pale blue and roses pink.

Pansies, giant ones that ought to make the gardener envious, are one of the favorite flowers of the season. Their blend of yellows and purples is beautifully copied by the milliner with silks and gauzes and repeated in trimmings.

Spiky flowers to give height to the wearer come out in all sorts of old-fashioned varieties—larkspur, iris and even hollyhocks figuring in the effort. One very smart black hat of coarse but satiny straw in the shape of an inverted flower pot is trimmed solely with one great bunch of black fleur-de-lis with the dagger-shaped foliage projecting menancingly toward the back.

Reliable Recipes

Egg Nests.

Toast a slice of bread for each person to be served, then beat the white of one egg, for each slice, very stiff. (The whites may be beaten separately or all together and then divided.) Pile this on top of the toast, make a little depression in the centre of each, in which to drop a bit of butter and the unbeaten yolk of an egg. Place the slices in the oven until the egg is sufficiently cooked.

This is not merely an appetizing breakfast dish, but delicious to the taste and exceedingly healthful. If the bread is toasted beforehand, the rest is easily done while the guests eat their fruit. It should be served hot from the oven.

Irish Sweet Bread.

Soften a cake of compressed yeast (one-half a cup of home-made o brewers' yeast may be substituted) in one-fourth a cup of scalded-and-cooled milk, and add to one cup of scalded milk, cooled to a lukewarm temperature; stir in nearly two cups of bread flour, beat until very smooth, cover and set aside to become very light and puffy. Add one-fourth a cup of sugar, one-fourth a cup of melted shortening, half a teaspoonful of salt, half a cup of cleaned currants, two eggs (additional color is often added by means of saffron) or, if convenient, four yolks are preferable, and enough flour to make a soft dough that may be kneaded. Knead until very smooth, cover and set aside to become light. Shape into two loaves and, when again light, bake in two rather small brick-loaf bread pans. Glaze with white of egg just before removing from the oven.

Soft Ginger Cakes.

One cup of lard and butter, one cup of molasses (Orleans), one cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of soda, one cup of boiling water, salt, two eggs, five scant cups of flour, two tablespoonfuls of cinnamon and two of ginger. This batter can be kept for a fortnight and baked in the gem pans at the shortest notice, even after the company are on the porch. Have used it for over thirty years.

The Problem of Making a Living.

To aid in solving the problem of the young man or woman just out of school, "What shall I do for a living?" is the purpose of the National Vocation Guidance Congress to be held in Boston in November. The Chamber of Commerce has extended to the congress an invitation to use the Chamber's building, and the Chamber will itself invite commercial organizations in all parts of the country to take part in the conference. The organizations which will be invited will include chambers of commerce,boards of trade, commercial clubs, school committees, colleges and universities, city clubs, Y. M. C. A.'s, settlement houses, and other civic organizations, city, town and State governments, labor unions, parents' associations — all organizations and individuals interested in the problem of giving boys and girls a chance to start life right. The conference will last for several days. Notable speakers will develop a logical plan of work.

The first purpose is to call attention to the enormous waste of the haphazard system of to-day, of dumping young people into the world from school, and even from college, absolutely unprepared to face the problem of choosing a life work. The unhappiness of the individual as well as the loss in production and in human resources will be pointed out. The second purpose of the Congress is to devise methods of meeting the problem. The establishment of vocation bureaus, the training of school teachers to advise children, the creation of handbooks and other literature setting forth the requirements, advantages and opportunities of various occupations, provision for continuation of education after a person has begun to work, are some of the ideas already in mind, and the conference will be expected to develop others.

MACHINE GUNS FOR GUARDING OF SEALS

Extensive Rookeries of Pribyloff Island are Being Zealously Protected This Season.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Victoria, B. C., June 18.—If the Japanese poachers, or any others for that matter, attempt to raid the Pribyloff Island seal rookeries this year they will get a warm recepton. News has been received here that the American government is mounting machine guns at the rookeries and anyone attempting to land will be treated to a fusiliade. Attempts to raid the rookeries have been made at different times, sometimes with success. This year, however, special preparations are being made, and it will go hard with anyone attempting to take the skins.

No orders have yet been received at Esquimalt in regard to either of the sloops of war going to Behring Sea this year, neither has Captain Vivian, who is in charge of the station, been notified whether or not the Behring Sea award is still in force. It is not customary for the British boats to go to the sea until the open season commences in August, their object then being to prevent the British sealers from doing anything in contravention of the award. Probably the Algerine will be dispatched later.

Discussing the question of the rights of sealing schooners which were otter hunting at this season of the year, Captain Vivian said that, according to the Behring Sea award, the provision for sealing the guns was put in for the protection of the schooners. It was to be done on the request of the skippers, and there was no penalty for breaking the seals except that, if it should happen that skins with bullet holes were found onthe schooner, the fact that the arms were unsealed would be evidence against them.

Captain Vivian gave it as his opinion that the American cutters would not interfere with the hunters, but if the guns were sealed the hunters were quite within their rights in breaking the seals. He did not thnk any court would find them guilty of an offence for so doing.

TWO GIRLS SEEK DEATH.

Brooklyn Broker's Daughter Suicides and Another Fails in Attempt.

New York, June 18. — Two New York girls made sensational attempts at suicide yesterday. Theodora Elwell, grand-niece of one of Brooklyn's great philanthropists, James E. Elwell, daughter of J. D. Elwell, a member of a New York Stock Exchange firm, and a graduate of Radcliffe College at Cambridge, hanged herself in an abandoned gymnasium in Brooklyn. She had suffered from melancholia following an illness.

Jumping in front of a subway express train at the 72nd street station, Miss Edith Hardcastle, 24 years of age, living at the Hotel Regent, attempted suicide to-day, the police say. Although two cars of the train passed over her as she lay between the rails, she was uninjured.

After her remarkable escape, Miss Hardcastle was taken to court, where her father told Magistrate Harris that his daughter was weak and sickly, and that she had fallen on the tracks. Mr. Hardcastle said that his daughter had not attempted suicide.

SYNOD AND MARRIAGES

Clergy Discuss Rights of Youthful Widows to Allowance.

Toronto, June 18.—An amusing discussion took place at the Anglican Synod yesterday. The report of the Widows' and Orphans' Fund Committee was under consideration, when an amendment was proposed to the effect that when any clergyman fifty-five years or over married a woman ten years younger than himself, the latter should forfeit all rights upon the fund in the event of her husband predeceasing her.

Some delegates were quite serious in approval, as were those who opposed. All, however, managed to make some bulls. One man suggested that a woman "who took care of an old minister" was entitled to some consideration. Another suggested that young widows should rank only as children, and got rather warm when asked whether, on reaching the age of eighteen, they should then rank as adults. The amendment was defeated.

American Railroad Bill Passed.

Washington, June 18.—The Senate yesterday placed its final stamp of approval on the administration railroad bill by adopting the report of the Conference Committee on that measure.

The vote came at the close of a day devoted to a fragmentary discussion of the measure, and was without especial feature. The report prevailed by a large majority, the ayes being 60 and the noes 11. All of the negative votes were cast by Democrats.

There are many breakfast tables where things are all wrong; cross children, father a thunder-cloud, mother with "nerves." These people slept on poor beds last night.

There is no occasion for this. If a good spring bed cost a lot of money, or if it wore out every short time, even then the excuse for bad beds would be a poor one, but when a No. 0 "Hercules" spring bed costs only about $5, and lasts from one generation to another then the continuance in use of a poor spring bed is utterly inexcusable.

Hercules No. 0 is sold by a best furniture dealer everywhere. In Montreal by H. A. Wilder & Co., St. Catherine street west; N. G. Valiquette, Limited, St. Catherine street east.

About Jack Spratt.

Jack Spratt could eat no fat,
His wife could eat no lean;
And so 'twixt them both, you see,
The licked the platter clean.

But, as the children older grew,
And times and customs changed,
The table manners of the Spratts,
Perforce, were rearranged.

With six young, hungry mouths to feed
They could not choose and pick.
With twelve observing eyes to see,
Of course, they could not Nek.

While father carved the roast for all,
The children had their broth—
The heathen got a penny for Each spot upon the cloth.

Spratt and his wife are much improved—
Their table manners too—
Which only goes to show the good
That children sometimes do.

KINDLY DEEDS—A COMPETITION.

The little story writers who have entered in the Montreal Star's list for anecdotes of kindly deeds are certainly taking a large lead at in the competition and stories are coming in from all parts of the continent. A very large number are received after those for the week have been passed upon. They will be considered with next week's. As there is quite a difference in the maturity of the little ones under twelve and those of fourteen, it has been decided here after to divide the prizes differently. With this week there will be prizes of $3, $2, and $1 for stories written by children between twelve and fourteen, and prizes of $2, $2 and $1 for stories written by children of twelve and under. Stories must positively be the original work of the competitors, not copied or re-written, and true stories are preferred. A misunderstanding as to rules is probably the reason that a few stories have been sent in which were not original.

THE SENIOR PRIZES.

The Prizes for stories by children between twelve and fourteen years of age ($3, $2, and $1) have been awarded this week as follows:

The Motherless Birds.

(First Prize)

Not far from our home in the country, there lived a little boy who was very fond of nature and especially of watching the little birds that flew and built their nests around his home. He observed particularly two robins which had built their nest in a small tree close to the house. One day he missed one of the birds and a few days afterward the other parent disappeared also, probably eaten by some vicious cat. Our little birds were left in their nest to starve. The poor little orphans were just getting their feathers and were too young to get out of the nest. The little boy seeing their plight sat about to feed them. Every day he made many trips up into the tree bringing with him worms, flies and all things the little ones would eat. They grew strong under his care and in a short time could fly. They remained near the little boys home all summer and made his heart glad by often flying down on his shoulders whenever he had something for them to eat.

Grant Barrett, aged 14, Williamstown, Ont.

Saved the Kitty.

(Second Prize.)

I have taken a great amount of interest in your competitions although I have not hitherto entered them.

Last winter I had been spending the day with a friend of mine in the city. I was told to be sure to leave before dark as it would take me about three-quarters of an hour to get home. But I was having such fun that I forgot about the time until the lights were turned on in the room. I said goodbye to my friend and hurried away. It was dusk and I was a little nervous as I had to walk a little distance along a rather lonely street to get the car. As I was going along I saw a rather well-dressed man walking in front of me with a great big bag, in it there seemed to be something moving as if it was alive. However the man had not gone far when he stopped and to my astonishment he opened the bag and threw out of it a dear little kitten into a snow-bank and ran away for fear of being caught. I suppose some one who wanted to get rid of it hired this cruel man to lose it on the street. I had pity on the poor shivering thing and took it home with me and gave it some warm milk, but it died the next day. I was glad that I made the last day of its life happier.

Violet Roy, aged 13, P. O. Box 1027 Montreal.

A Thoughtful Girl.

(Third Prize.)

I have been very much interested with the stories sent in by the little readers of the Star. Here is an experience of mine.

One very cold morning last winter, as I was going up Sanguinet Street to my work I was hurrying along when suddenly I heard a cry behind me. I looked back and saw a little girl about seven, bareheaded, no mitts on, boots without rubbers. She was crying with cold, and she too was going to school so she said.

I took my mitts off and put them on her little freezing hands. As I was speaking to her a lady opened the door and was shocked to see a child so young out with hardly anything on her, and she exclaimed: "Oh! what a mother, to let a child out in weather like that so thinly clad." She immediately put a good thick shawl around the child's head and told her to keep it. I took her as far as the school door, and left her in care of the Mother Superior.

When I went home to dinner I told Mamma about it and she cried and said she must find out who that child was. After my school was over I went and found her and brought her home to Mamma, and she put a pair of warm stockings on her, and dry boots, and a pair of flannels. We took her home and found out that her father waas a drunkard and her poor mother was sick and had four other little children to take care of. Mamma sent some one to look after them and they are doing better now.

Beatrice Hanion, aged 13, 24 Picard Lane, off Sanguinet Street, Montreal.

The Bear Trap.

(Third Prize.)

There once lived two little boys. The older of the two was six years old, and named Willie, while the other was four, and named Freddie.

As Willie's birthday happened on the next day, he received a letter from an aunt asking him which he would rather have for a present, a dog, or a rocking horse; Freddie wanted Willie to take the rocking horse, as he was terribly afraid of dogs. But, it was Willie to whom it was going to be given so Freddie could not have what he wanted.

After Willie had brought the dog home, he arranged matters, so as to have the nurse and his dog and Freddie come to meet him from school.

They walked on till the dog saw a cat; he ran after it and the nurse came home for somebody to get him.

Meanwhile Freddie was trying to get the dog, he jumped over a fence and into a yard. Here he heard a terrible noise. Going behind a hedge he found the poor little dog in a huge bear trap.

Although he was not very strong, Freddie managed to force open the trap. The dog was very sore, and after this Willie watched his dog himself.

ROYAL BOYS IN EUROPE

PRINCE HENRY.

Born March 31, 1900.

Prince Henry, the third son of the present King and Queen of England, is the humorist of the Royal family. Many stories are told about the court respecting his brisk humor and apt retorts. Last summer, together with his brothers and sisters, he was taken for a picnic by his mother in the woods above to Abergeldie Castle. Princess Mary had been allowed to make some of the cakes for tea, and the boys were asked their opinion of them. Prince Henry looked at the with a whimsical smile and then said: "It is high treason, is it not, to speak disrespectfully of the daughter of the Prince of Wales?"

Upon another occasion his elder brothers were discussing their future careers. Prince Edward was explaining that he was to be a soldier in due course, while Prince Albert declared that he meant to stick to the navy.

"What are you going to be, Henry?" he was asked.

He was silent for a moment and then said: "I will just stay at home and tell the people all the great things you are both of you doing in case they overlook them."

Prince Henry's health has never been of the most robust, and it is hoped that the bracing air of Broadstairs, where he is to go to-school will tend to improve his naturally rather delicate constitution.

OUR CLUB.

Our club meets every Saturday. Just Mary, Betty, Annie, Marjory and I belong. We each bring a penny, so as to have a few cents on hand in case necessary. We get quite a number of donations. Aunt C—— donated material for a dress and helped us make it. Mother donated some underclothes, and my sister stuff for a pinny. We play every second meeting, and on other days we sew or make scrap books. At each meeting we do some work and have some refreshments. Then we go out and play.—D. R. Mathewson, aged 12 years.

Selections from "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," by the late Mark Twain

Tom Becomes a Pirate

As Joe Harper and Tom Sawyer walked sorrowing along, they made a new compact to stand by each other and be brothers, and never separate till death relieved them of their troubles. Then they began to lay their plans. Joe was for being a hermit, and living on crusts in a remote cave, and dying, sometime, of cold, and want, and grief; but after listening to Tom, he conceded that there were some conspicuous advantages about a life of crime, and so he consented to be a pirate.

Three miles below St. Petersburg, at a point where the Mississippi River was a trifle over a mile wide, there was a long, narrow, wooded island, with a shallow bar at the head of it, and this offered well as a rendezvous. It was not inhabited; it lay far over towards the farther shore, abreast a dense and almost wholly unpeopled forest. So Jackson's Island was chosen. Who were to be the subjects of their piracies was a matter that did not occur to them. Then they hunted up Huckleberry Finn, and he joined them promptly, for all careers were one to him; he was indifferent. They presently separated, to meet at a lonely spot on the river bank two miles above the village, at the favorite hour, which was midnight. There was a small log raft there which they meant to capture. Each would bring books and lines, and such provisions as he could steal in the most dark and mysterious way—as became outlaws; and before the afternoon was done, they had all managed to enjoy the sweet glory of spreading the fact that pretty soon the town would miss something. All who got this vague hint were cautioned to 'be mum and wait.'

About midnight Tom arrived with a boiled ham and a few trifles, and stopped in a dense undergrowth on a small bluff overlooking the meeting-place. It was starlight, and very still. The mighty river lay like an ocean at rest. Tom listened a moment, but no sound disturbed the quiet. Then he gave a low, distinct whistle. It was answered from under the bluff. Tom whistled twice more; these signals were answered in the same way. Then a guarded voice said:

"Who goes there?"

"Tom Sawyer, the Black Avenger of the Spanish Main. Name your names."

"Huck Finn the Red-handed, and Joe Harper the Terror of the Seas." Tom had provided these titles from his favorite literature.

"'Tis well. Give the countersign."

Two hoarse whispers delivered the same awful word simultaneously as the brooding night:

"BLOOD!"

Then Tom tumbled his ham over the bluff and let himself down after it, tearing his skin and clothes to some extent in the effort. There was an easy, comfortable path along the shore under the bluff, but it lacked the advantages of difficulty and danger so valued by a pirate.

The Terror of the Seas had brought a side of bacon, and had about worn himself out with getting it there. Finn the Red-handed had stolen a skillet, and a quantity of half-cured leaf tobacco, and had also brought a few corn-cobs to make pipes with. But none of the pirates smoked or 'chewed' but himself. The Black Avenger of the Spanish Main said it would never do to start without some fire. That was a wise thought; matches were handed around all round. They set fire to a pile of brush in the middle of the place, and proceeded to cook some bacon in the frying-pan for supper, and used up half of the corn "pone" stock they had brought. It seemed glorious sport to be feasting in that wild free way in the virgin forest of an unexplored and uninhabited island, far from the haunts of men, and they said they would never return to civilisation. The climbing fire lit up their faces and threw its ruddy glare upon the pillared tree-trunks of their forest temple, and upon the varnished foliage and festooning vines. When the last crisp slice of bacon was gone, and the last allowance of corn pone devoured, the boys stretched themselves out on the grass, filled with contentment. They would have found a cooler place, but they would not deny themselves such a romantic feature as the roasting camp fire.

"It's just the life for me," said Tom. "You don't have to get up, mornings, and you don't have to go to school, and wash, and all that blame foolishness."

Presently Huck said:

"What does pirates have to do?"

Tom said:

"Oh, they have just a bully time—take ships, and burn them, and get the money and bury it in awful places in their island where there's ghosts and things to watch it, and kill everybody in the ships—make 'em walk a plank."

"And they carry the women to the island," said Joe; "they don't kill the women."

"What sail's she carrying?"

"Courses, tops'ls, and flying-jib, sir!"

"Send the r'yals up! Lay out aloft there, half-a-dozen of ye, foretomaststuns'l! Lively now!"

"Aye, aye, sir!"

"Shake out that mainto-galans'l! Sheets and braces! Now, my heartie!"

"Aye, aye, sir!"

"Hellum-a-lee—hard a-port! Stand by to meet her when she comes! Port, port! Now, men! With a will! Steady-y-y!"

"Steady it is, sir!"

The raft drew beyond the middle of the river; the boys pointed her head right and then lay on their oars. The river was not high, so there was not more than a two or three mile current. Hardly a word was said during the next three-quarters of an hour. Now the raft was passing before the distant town. Two or three glimmering lights showed where it lay, peacefully sleeping, beyond the vague vast sweep of star-gemmed water, unconscious of the tremendous event that was happening. The Black Avenger stood still with folded arms, "looking his last" upon the scene of his former joys and his later sufferings, and wishing "she" could see him now, abroad on the wild sea, facing peril and death with dauntless heart, going to his doom with a grim smile on his lips. It was but a small strain on his imagination to remove Jackson's Island beyond eye-shot of the village, and so he "looked his last" with a broken and satisfied heart. The other pirates were looking their last, too; and they all looked so long that they came near letting the current drift them out of the range of the island. But they discovered the danger in time, and made shift to avert it. About two o'clock in the morning the raft grounded on the bar two hundred yards above the head of the island, and they waded back and forth until they had landed their freight. Part of the little raft's belongings consisted of an old sail and this they spread over a nook, in the bushes for a tent to shelter their provisions; but they themselves would sleep in the open air in good weather, as became outlaws.

They built a fire against the side of a great log twenty or thirty steps within the sombre depths of the forest, and then cooked some bacon in the frying-pan for supper, and used up half of the corn "pone" stock they had brought. It seemed glorious sport to be feasting in that wild free way in the virgin forest of an unexplored and uninhabited island, far from the haunts of men, and they said they would never return to civilisation. The climbing fire lit up their faces and threw its ruddy glare upon the pillared tree-trunks of their forest temple, and upon the varnished foliage and festooning vines. When the last crisp slice of bacon was gone, and the last allowance of corn pone devoured, the boys stretched themselves out on the grass, filled with contentment. They would have found a cooler place, but they would not deny themselves such a romantic feature as the roasting camp fire.

"It's just the life for me," said Tom. "You don't have to get up, mornings, and you don't have to go to school, and wash, and all that blame foolishness."

Presently Huck said:

"What does pirates have to do?"

Tom said:

"Oh, they have just a bully time—take ships, and burn them, and get the money and bury it in awful places in their island where there's ghosts and things to watch it, and kill everybody in the ships—make 'em walk a plank."

"And they carry the women to the island," said Joe; "they don't kill the women."

"No," assented Tom, "they don't kill the women—they're too noble. And the women's always beautiful, too.

"And don't they wear the bulliest clothes! Oh, no! All gold and silver and di'monds," said Joe with enthusiasm.

"Who?" said Huck.

"Why the pirates."

Huck scanned his own clothing forlornly.

"I reckon I ain't dressed fittin for a pirate," said he, with a regretful pathos in his voice; "but I ain't got none but these."

But the other boys told him the fine clothes would come fast enough after they should have begun their adventures. They made him understand that his poor rags would do to begin with, though it was customary for wealthy pirates to start with a proper wardrobe.

Gradually their talk died out and drowsiness began to steal upon the eyelids of the little waifs.

HOME AT LAST.

that if 'the foe' stirred to let him have it to the hilt," because 'dead men tell no tales.' They knew well enough that the raftmen were all down at the village laying in stores or having a spree, but still that was no excuse for their conducting this thing in an unpiratical way.

They shoved off presently. Tom in command, Huck at the after oar and Joe at the forward. Tom stood amidships, gloomy-browed and with folded arms, and gave his orders in a low, stern whisper.

"Luff, and bring her to the wind!"

"Aye, aye, sir!"

"Steady, stead-y-y-y!"

"Steady it is, sir!"

"Let her go off a point."

"Point it is, sir!"

As the boys steadily and monotonously drove the raft toward midstream, it was no doubt understood that these orders were given only for "style," and were not intended to mean anything in particular.

OUR DRAWING COMPETITION.

To the readers of this page under 16 years of age The Star offers a series of prizes for the best specimens of original free-hand pen and ink sketches of animate objects. The drawings will be submitted to the judgment of an expert each week and his verdict will be final; and upon it a prize will be awarded. The competition closes each week on Wednesday night. Any or all of the pictures may be published with the names of the young artists. Communications and drawings should be sent to the "Young Folks'" Picture Competition," The Star Office.

CHILDREN'S DRAWING COMPETITION.

"My Sister," the drawing which wins the prize this week for Frieda Wonham. This reproduction is one-third the size of the original.

Another big batch of drawings came in this week for the competition. Again it is a girl who wins the prize, Frieda Wonham's drawing of "My Sister," reproduced on this page, is the lucky drawing, and the judge says it is an excellent piece of work. Many boys competed, and the Editor hopes to see a boy win a prize, just to show the girls that boys can draw. But the judge says if a girl sends in the best drawing again this next week she will get the prize.

Again the advice must be repeated that it is useless to copy drawings. They must be original. One little girl this week was very naughty. She cut a drawing out of a book, and didn't even copy it, but sent it as her own. But she was only wasting her time in trying to deceive the judge that way.

The editor cannot undertake to return drawings sent in for competition.

Those whose drawings deserve special mention this week are:

CHILDREN'S STORIES

The Montreal Star will give a book each week for the best children's story of animals. The stories are to be the original composition of the competitor, not taken from books or papers and re-written. The prize this week is given to :—

The prize this week is awarded as follows:

"Nelson."

This is a true story of my uncle's horse, "Nelson." One summer evening, about three years ago, while grazing on a nearby pasture he fell into a deep well bordered with rough stones. He could not get out and remained all night long with his forefeet grasped round one stone on the surface. In the morning another horse was seen galloping round the spot, and seemed very frightened. My father ran to see what was the matter, when to his great surprise, he saw the horse in the battered position in the well. Men were at once called and by the help of ropes and men the horse was pulled out much cut up, but still he would not let go, and had passed a long night in this state.

Was he not brave?

MARY I. S. GILLIE, aged 14, Irish Cove, Cape Breton, N.S.

OUR DOG.

We had a little puppy dog,
A little rogue was he.
He was always up to something
As mischievous as could be.

He found the baby's dollies
And pulled off all their hair,
And, although he ought not to,
Would keep going up the stair.

He would worry anything he got,
Books, dolly, or ball,
He often tried to worry us all over
To show how he loved us all.

He had brown eyes, and the sweetest face.
Bobby was his name;
And though he was always up to mischief,
We loved him all the same.

Reputation.

Reputation is the one large word that distinguishes the excellent from the good, the near good, the average, the mediocre, the bad and the unspeakably bad.

Gloves must be classified in your mind under one of these headings.

"Perrin" is a name of excellent reputation that in fifty years has become the standard in Kid Gloves, owing to a steady and unswerving policy of making only gloves of the very best quality.—A fact which keen shoppers have not been slow to learn.

There is buying wisdom in purchasing "Perrin Gloves." 132 4 law

NAAS INDIANS AGAIN THREATEN TO MAKE TROUBLE

British Columbia Tribe Declare They Will Fight for Land, if Necessary.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Victoria, B.C., June 18.—Trouble is again threatened by the native inhabitants on the Naas river, who last winter inaugurated a short-lived campaign against the whites, which would have doubtless been disastrous, but for the prompt measures taken by the Government to protect the isolated settlers in the district.

During the past few weeks numerous land-seekers and prospectors have been turned back by the Indians, with the message that the natives claim proprietorship in the country, and can only be defeated in warfare for possession.

Indian Agent Perry states that the latest recrudescence of trouble arises through the intemperate boasting of certain white men, who have taken a perilous pleasure in taunting the Indians that if they do aught to break the peace of the land, soldiers will be sent north, and "the Naas will run red with blood."

The Naas Indians are highly civilized, and take their stand on the established principles of international law that national ownership of any country may only be established by right of conquest, treaty acquisition or formal purchase. The Naas country, they assert, has never been so acquired by Great Britain, and if it is to be claimed by right of conquest, they propose to fight for their heritage. During the past two years the natives have spent upwards of $2,000 in securing legal opinions from eminent constitutional lawyers in Toronto and Vancouver.

During the past few weeks each land-seeker turned back has been duly served with a copy of the formal statement of the Indians' position, which is a remarkable document.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 18. —The funeral of the twelve victims of the Falls View fire, took place yesterday. Each body was placed in a separate coffins. Biggest Indian on Coast Dead.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Victoria, B.C., June 18.—The biggest Indian in British Columbia has just been laid to rest in the native cemetery of the Cowichan tribe, with all the honors due to a great man in his own country. "Doctor Tom" was the departed brave, a hereditary medicine man in the Cowichans, who in addition to being reputedly a mighty healer of medicine, weighed in life but [illegible] pounds, short of a quarter of a ton.

Over three hundred Indians were present at the funeral, and nine stalwart tribesmen were required to act as bearers of the pall.

RELATIONS OF BRAZIL AND ARGENTIA WILL CONTINUE FRIENDLY

Declares Dr. Drago, Representative of the Latter Country at The Hague.

Special to The Montreal Star.

The Hague, June 18—Alarmist rumors current in Europe about the alleged strained relations of Brazil and the Argentine republic were ridiculed by Dr. Drago, one of the five arbiters in the fisheries case, and the Argentine delegate to the second peace conference in an interview here.

It will be remembered that the Brazilian colors were recently torn down in some of the Argentine towns and that the same thing happened to Argentine flags in Brazil. Further, Brazil has sent no war ship to take part in the Argentine centenary celebration.

These facts have caused some anxiety in European commercial circles, and especially in Holland, on account of the trade relations that have developed between the two countries.

"I have not the slightest fear that Brazil and Argentine will come to blows," said Dr. Drago. "War can never occur between these states, because the leading men in both governments, and the mass of the people realize sufficiently that their countries are only nations in the making, and that only a prolonged period of peace and security can bring about their full development.

"Besides, the two states do not interfere with each other, commercially. On the contrary, so far as their products are concerned, they are complementary to each other. Ours is a grain and cattle producing country while Brazil exports lumber, coffee, tobacco and rubber. Both are in favor of a peaceful settlement of disputes as was indicated at the second peace conference.

"The warlike reports that are alarming Europe must be attributed to a handful of reckless jingoists, who, however, are powerless to affect the relations of the two governments."

BACTERIA MAKES RAW MILK THE MOST TERRIBLE FOE OF THE CHILD!

PURIFYING milk is annually saving thousands of young lives in a few of the larger cities. Nathan Strauss, the millionaire milk philanthropist of New York City, states that he has seen the use of properly purified milk reduce the death rate of infants in that city from 96.2% to 51%; and of children from 41% to 16%. ¶ Right in the city of Montreal in 1908, out of a total of 7,923 deaths, 4,810 were those of children of less than 5 years of age—over 55% of the total deaths. The average since 1890 has been slightly higher—58% of the total deaths. How many of those children might be alive to-day had it not been for germ-laden milk? ¶ The same year, the Medical Health Officer of Montreal secured convictions against 109 milk dealers selling impure or adulterated milk. How many more were never found out? ¶ In the same period, 810 gallons of milk were confiscated. How much more was sold that should have been confiscated? During the same twelvemonth, 68 cans and 32 lids of cans were condemned as being in a foul and unsanitary condition. How many more of these filthy containers do you suppose are still doing duty undiscovered—distributing bacteria and spreading disease? ¶ And the same situation holds good in a multitude of other towns and cities in Canada. Indeed, in some places where the inspection is less rigid, the condition of affairs is even worse.

JERSEY CREAM BRAND EVAPORATED MILK

THE process of manufacture not only makes Jersey Cream as nearly germless as modern science can render it, but after the can is sealed, it is sterilized once again. No bacteria of any kind can remain in it. Jersey Cream is simply pure, rich, creamy milk with the water—the superfluous moisture driven out. Nothing is added to it to make it keep—the sterilization does that. And nothing is taken from it except the water—its food value and nutritive qualities are undiminished.

In an analysis of the different brands of evaporated milk (unsweetened), the Dominion Government's food expert places Jersey cream at the top of the list, with total solids of 27.96%, and butter-fat of 8.05%. The blood-creating and sinew, muscle and tissue building qualities are all retained in full strength. You can feed Jersey Cream to a baby—to any child—for Jersey Cream is nothing more nor less than pure milk evaporated, sealed and sterilized while it is sweet and fresh.

For superb milk dishes, Jersey Cream is unexcelled. Try it for making boiled rice or barley, for soup puree, for ice cream, as a sauce on puddings, jams and stewed fruits, for tea biscuits instead of butter—not to mention its ordinary uses for tea and coffee and on the youngster's porridge.

Be sure to ask for JERSEY Cream by name—JERSEY Cream—and to look for the JERSEY cow on the label.

ANSWERS TO LEGAL QUESTIONS

Rent Of A House.

D. C.—I signed lease form for a house on the 5th of May, for immediate possession; the late tenant was still in the house, it being understood that she would vacate the said house at a day's notice. I told the owner to 'phone her, that I intended to move in on the sixth of the month. He failed to do so; the consequence was when I went to move in, she was not prepared to go, and, before she would give me entry into the house, I had to sign an agreement with her, that I would store her household effects for her in the said house until the 10th day of May, she having paid rent on the said house until the said date to the landlord, and having made arrangements with him to stay on until said date. Can he hold me responsible for rent of the said house from the 1st of the month or from the 10th, as I did not get full possession until the 12th day of May. Sermon for the Readers of the "Star"

SOULS OF THE SAINTS IN INTERMEDIATE STATES.

(By Rev. M. D. M. Blakely, Pembroke, Ont.)

Text:—"And they cried with a loud voice, saying How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?—Rev. 6: 10.

There are three states for the soul of the saint. The first is its state from the moment of its regeneration or new birth to the moment of its separation from the body, the moment of the body's death. The third or last state is that of the soul from the moment of its re-union with the body on the day of the resurrection onward throughout eternity. The second or intermediate state is that of the soul during the time of its separation from the body. Upon that second, middle, or intermediate state, much light is thrown by our text. The souls of the martyrs seen under the altar were in the intermediate state. Our text represents them as asking a question. That question was:

I.—Power Proving—What is said of their asking the question proves that they had the power of consciousness. They were neither dead nor asleep. They spoke intelligibly. They thought coherently. They had, moreover, the power of manifesting the depth of their interest in a particular matter. They cried with a loud voice. Their utterance was marked by no tone of sleep or indifference. It had the ring of the most wakeful and heart-felt earnestness.

But our text shows how their powers were employed. It shows that the question was:

II.Praise-Giving.—It praises God. It proclaims him holy and true.

On earth they had, no doubt, often solemnly reflected on the difference between their own holiness and the holiness of God. Here they had bemoaned their own unholiness. Here they had adored the holiness of God. Even long before leaving the earth, they had a high estimate of God's holiness. But once they emerge from this world's limitations, once they stand under the altar, once they see Him as he is, that estimate is unspeakably exalted. Their perception of God's character is then clearer. Then their appreciation of that character is correspondingly nearer to, although yet very far off from, an adequate appreciation. As soon as they have been carried up to the altar in heaven, they have a new vision and a new devotion. Then as never before, they see, and then, as never before they praise the perfection of God's holiness. Their exclamation is: — O Lord, thou art holy; perfectly, absolutely, and unapproachably holy.

But of the many factors of God's holiness, the martyrs under the altar, give special mention and special praise to God's truthfulness. Why they should do so we can readily understand.

On earth from childhood, they had listened to portrayals of the glories of heaven. Parents, preachers, and other teachers had, time after time, drawn for them from the word of God, such pictures of the pearly gates and golden streets, of the joyous saints and crowned Saviour, that now and then, they had almost yielded to the temptation to think, if not to say:—"It cannot be. It is too good to be true. If those paintings are in God's word, then God is not true." But once under the altar, there is in them no more spirit of doubt. Then they cannot doubt for they see the excellencies of the glories of heaven. There they lift up voices like trumpets to declare they were true reports that we heard on earth; yea, behold the half was not told us. Under the altar their song is:"O Lord, thou art true, thou art true. We praise thee because thou art so true, Concerning the bliss and the beauty of heaven thine every word was true."

But the martyrs' question is:—

III.—Wonder-Expressing—Some one, in genuine godliness, head and shoulders above the average saint, devoutly confessed his belief that if ever he got to heaven his greatest wonder would be to find himself there. It is easy to apprehend how the purest of earth's saints, on entering heaven should wonder why the porter had not against him shut and barred the door. Seeing for the first time in anything like right prospective his own innate and life-long sinfulness; and seeing with his own eyes the glories of the Paradise of God, he cannot help saying.—"O what a wonder that Jesus ever brought a sinner so vile as I to this home so glorious!" And yet, I am persuaded, the saint's wonder at finding himself in heaven is far from his greatest wonder. Unless I misread our text, the greatest wonder of the saints to-day in heaven is God's goodness and mercy towards the vilest sinners on earth. They wonder that he spares the lives of such men. They wonder still more that, by his servants and spirits, he still pleads with them to accept of salvation. To the saints in heaven God's patience is amazing. Their wondering cry is:—"How long, O Lord! how long, wilt thou not judge and avenge those Herods and Ahabs, those Herodiases and Jezebels?"

Let us now observe that the martyr's question is IV. Earth-Remembering—Our text makes plain that the saints under the altar have not lost their memories. They remember the earth, its hills and its valleys. They remember their bodies, their parts and their powers. They remember their enemies. The martyrs seen by John remembered their persecutors and murderers. Surely then not unwarranted is the inference that saints in heaven remember their friends on earth. Abraham in heaven remembered not only that the rich man in his lifetime had received his good things but also that Lazarus had received evil things. Saints in heaven remember their friends on earth just as certainly as they remember their enemies on earth. The mark made by cruelty on the mind of a saint is not more firmly fixed than that made by kindness. It is the very reverse. During life here it is the habit of the saints to forget injuries and to remember favors. At death, that, like every other trait of Christian character is made perfect and permanent. Obviously then the husband, under the altar, remembers that faithful and loving wife who, day and night for weeks, kept sleepless vigil by his deathbed. Nor is it less certain that infant nurslings in heaven remember their mothers. Heaven's melodies are sweetened as each darling sings:

"I ought to love my mother,
She loved me long ago;
There is on earth no other,
That ever loved me so."

Our final observation is that the martyrs' question is:

V. Earth-Seeing—Abraham not only remembered what had been the rich man's experience on earth. He also saw and knew what were then the actual circumstances of the rich man's brethren upon the earth. Had he not had clear and specific vision of earth, he could not have said, "They have Moses and the prophets." In all ages a large portion of the earth's population have had neither Moses or the prophets. Abraham in heaven saw the earth. So too, the martyrs under the altar were not ignorant of conditions upon earth. They knew that their murderers were still dwelling upon the earth, unpunished and unrestrained; the subjects of neither judgment nor vengeance. But can any one imagine that those martyrs could see their blood-stained murderers without seeing their heart-broken widows and orphans?

Manifest it is that saints in heaven see their friends on earth.

Perhaps some one says: "I cannot believe that doctrine. I do not see how a mother could be happy in heaven and see her son acting the scoundrel upon earth."

To that objection a little reflection will, I think, give ample answers. In the first place, let us remark (1) The objection is unsupported by Scripture. No passage or verse of Scripture is quoted to prove that Saints in heaven do not see what is taking place on earth.

Take a second answer (2) The objection is founded on a misconception; namely, the idea that the happiness of the saint in the intermediate state is in all respects perfect. That its happiness is great we freely and gladly admit. But that that happiness is perfect Scripture nowhere affirms. It does the opposite. Scripture affirms that the happiness of the glorified saints is not now perfect and shall not be perfect until the resurrection. We certainly admit that the mother's happiness in heaven may be lessened by her seeing her son's misconduct on earth. That the mother's happiness may be affected by her knowledge of her son's character is, however, no proof that the mother does not see his doings. But it is a powerful appeal to him to act rightly that he may thereby, not detract from, but add to his mother's happiness.

Here is a third answer (3) Denying that saints in heaven see what is transpiring upon the earth, implies that they do not remember the events and experiences of their own day upon the earth. If we deny that saints in heaven see what is taking place here, because a mother's happiness should be lessened by her seeing her son's misconduct, we must, by parity of reasoning, affirm the inconceivable and unscriptural dictum, that a woman in heaven forgets her motherhood, forgets she left a family on earth; because, undeniably, her happiness should be lessened by her remembering her children and not knowing how good or how bad was their behavior.

Now take a fourth and final answer (4) The doctrine that saints in heaven see what is being done on earth seems to be abundantly sustained by Scripture. In view of quotations and comments already made there is little need for further citations. Let us add only two (a) First, Moses and Elias appeared to Christ and the disciples at the transfiguration. They were then familiar with the events of earth. Had they not been so from the days of their deaths?

(b) Secondly, the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews gives a lengthy list of the heroes of faith, and impulsively exclaims: Seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses let us run the race that is set before us. What is the purport of that passage? What does it say to us? This I think. "As at the Olympics the athletes did their best when they knew that looking upon them was a vast multitude; so be ye moved to run with the full might of your powers, for set upon you are the eyes of a myriad of spectators, spectators not only majestic but interested and affectionate."

Altogether there are, we believe, the most solid and satisfactory reasons for believing that the saints in heaven see and know the persons, circumstances and characters of those on earth.

In conclusion it only remains to be said that every consideration of the souls of the saints in the intermediate state is well fitted to baptize us with the fire of consecrated evangelical enthusiasm.

Behold what witnesses unseen encompass us around;
Men once like us with suffering tried but now with glory crowned.
Let us, with zeal like theirs inspired,
begin the Christian race,
And, freed from each encumbering weight their holy footsteps trace.

OTTAWA FIRE CHIEF ADMIRES MONTREAL BRIGADE.

Chief Graham, of the Ottawa Fire Department, is in the city to-day in company with Alderman Nelson of Ottawa and Mr. Weaks, of the firm of architects of Weaks and Keefer, of Ottawa.

The gentlemen are visiting the city to-day making a tour of the several leading fire stations throughout the city, getting ideas for a new station that is to be built in Ottawa.

We are opening one station next week, said Chief Graham, situated on Bank street, near the Exhibition grounds. We purpose building another one now, and we are in the city to gather ideas. This station we will erect at the corner of George and Cumberland streets. It is to cost $25,000 and will be built after the style of your Fire Headquarters here at the corner of Craig and Chenneville streets,though not quite so large.. We will have in it an engine, a ladder truck and a hose waggon. This will make the eleventh station in Ottawa.

Asked as to how he found the Montreal Brigade, Chief Graham remarked, "It is a fine system from what I have seen of it. I will make further tours with Chief Tremblay in his big automobile this afternoon. I am returning to Ottawa to-night."

Flowers, trees and grass, green grass, shaggy mountain, glistening lake and flowing river, are all calling to the weary city dweller; and the city dweller is only too willing to listen to the glad call. ALL PREPARED FOR HAY FEVER

Ascatco, Best of All Hay Fever Preventives, On Hand, "Ready for the Conflict"—Keeps Nasal Passages Clear and Permits Free Breathing.

MUST BE TAKEN EARLY.

"Ascatco was called to my attention by a doctor, I am never without it, and right now have a bottle on hand ready for the conflict when the festivities commence. The fact that I can breathe all the time, my nasal passages are clear, and I can sleep nights during the hay fever season is my tribute to the best of all hay fever cures, and I tried I believe everything going." So writes Mr. A. C. Arthur, Louisville, Ky.

The best results in the prevention of hay fever are seen when Ascatco is taken some weeks before the expected attack; then the system is fortified to withstand it. Climatic change is unnecessary. If afflicted with Rose Fever or June Colds, take Ascatco at once. In any form of asthma, Ascatco's benefits are positive, cases of as many as fifty years' standing having been eradicated. Ascatco may be obtained at Quennevill & Guerin's, and other drug stores, in two sizes at 50 cents and $1. Be sure to obtain one of the free samples of Ascatco which are mailed upon request by the Ascatco Laboratory, 32 West 26th street, New York City.

THOUSAND ISLANDS.

On the St. Lawrence between Brockville and Butternut Bay, preparations are underway for what promises to be one of the busiest seasons in the history of the river. Several properties have recently changed hands and the number of bungalows and cottage boat houses that were erected and occupied last season at the resorts between Brockville and the Bay, will be considerably augmented this summer. The majority of these are within easy approach to the town.

At Fernbank Mrs. Hayward and the Misses Jackson have erected boat-houses in McDonald's Bay and Dr. R. A. Bowie has completed a similar building on the point.

In the Pines Messrs. J. L. Upham and G. F. Sayner have completed handsome cottages erected out of concrete blocks. Each faces the river and present commanding appearances.

Mr. Fred Carling, of Ottawa, who last year purchased from Mrs. Pattee the latter's cottage at "The Rocks," has this year purchased Mrs. Kincaid's cottage. An addition is being made to Mr. Carling's first purchase which will connect it with the newly-acquired property. An automobile garage and a launch house are also under way.

Col. Graves, of Ottawa, has purchased two lots east of the cottage owned by Mr. W. H. Brightman. He proposes erecting a cottage on the property to be completed this season.

Mr. H. B. McGivern, M.P., Ottawa, has completed a substantial stable in the rear of his cottage.

Mr. J. G. Turriff, M.P., and family have leased the cottage at Villa Minerva for the summer. They intend taking possession immediately.

At Hillcrest Mr. A. E. Cameron and family are quartered for the season in their cosy cottage, to which a large addition has been made.

So far no noticeable changes have been made at Butternut Bay, though many summer homes have received a general overhauling. The influx to the various resorts have started in a small way, but the big rush will not take place before July 1st, when the summer vacation will be on.

Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Fraser and family, and Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Gardiner, are at Butternut Bay; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant and the Misses Grant, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brightman, at Fernbank; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Bryson and family, Montreal, at Pinebray; Mr. W. E. Brough and Mrs. Thomas McEwan and Miss McEwan, at Fairhaven, and Messrs. J. A. Hutcheson, K.C., W. C. McLaren and J. R. McCullough, at "The Ranch."

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Myron E. Gray and son, the following are occupying cottages at Edgewater Park: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Price, of Brockville; Mrs. Morgan and daughter, Miss Eva Morgan, Clarence Kelly and family; Mr. Wm. Bowen, Ogdensburg.

John P. Dunne has opened his cottage at Phillips' Point, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Weeks their summer home at Livingstone's Point.

Nearly all the big hotels of the Thousand Islands region got going this week, and the managers report large bookings. The number include the Thousand Island House, Fine View, Columbian, New Wesley, Westminster, Crossman, Edgewood Park, Frontenac, and the Lotus. Murray Isle does not start until July 1st.

All the rooms at Echo Lodge, a particularly beautiful spot in the Thousand Islands, have been engaged for the summer even now, and Mrs. Potter is erecting several bungalows to be utilized as sleeping rooms. This spot attracts large numbers of week-end visitors from Brockville.

The Yenneck, a boat owned by Capt. Kenny, of Gananoque, will be engaged for the next three months on the Brockville-Butternut Bay route, succeeding the Victoria which has been disposed of to Capt. Davis, of Smith's Falls. The Yennick is a commodious and substantial craft with a mocking-bird whistle.

RECKLESS ESTIMATES FALSIFIED

Designed to Deceive Both Parliament and the People.

So Alleges Mr. Borden in Indictment of Government's Policy re National Transcontinental.

Special Staff Correspondence.

Aylmer, Ont., June 18.—It was the Government's contract with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway that Mr. R. L. Borden selected for condemnation at his meeting held yesterday afternoon at Aylmer, in the heart of the riding of East Elgin, where he was given the best welcome that he has yet received on his tour. Reckless estimates that had been outrageously falsified, and that were evidently designed to deceive Parliament and the people, Mr. Borden declared in his speech, had been originally submitted by the Government concerning the cost of the Transcontinental Railway. As a matter of fact, Mr. Borden said, the railway would cost four times the amount the Government originally estimated in 1904.

When handed over to the Grand Trunk Pacific, the road would cost the Government over $175,475,754, and with rentals the total cost would be $218,467,314 before any return was received by the people. Then the country was bound by the contract to pay the bonds for the western section of the road, amounting to almost fourteen million dollars, thus bringing the cost up to $231,881,064, or an increase of $150,000,000 over the Government's original estimates.

Mr. Borden also mentioned his belief that as the Grand Trunk Railway Company practically controlled the Grand Trunk Pacific,and as that company was much interested in Portland and other American ports, these American cities would derive more benefit from the railway than the Canadian ports of Montreal, St. John and Halifax.

"Of course," said Mr. Borden, "I am not finding fault with the Grand Trunk Railway for making the best possible contract, but it is apparent, as the company realizes that it is bound by no stipulation whatever,that this great railroad will be very much more to the benefit of ports in the United States than those of Canada."

ALLEGES MIDDLEMEN'S INFLUENCE.

Mr. Borden also referred to the charges made by Mr. H. A. Wood,chief engineer of the Grand Trunk Pacific, concerning the alleged charging for earth excavation at prices for solid rock. "Those charges," he said, "remain uninvestigated to the absolute discredit of the Government. "I do not believe a Government with a record so black ever received the approval of the people of any country. We had proved from their own mouths the expenditure of public money for purposes absolutely not in the public interest. Figures were there in black and white for the people to ponder upon. We proved over and over again the influence of the middleman. We showed him taking 100, 200 and 300 per cent. of what the original purchase price was. We placed that before the people of Canada, and I do not believe that the right-thinking people of Canada were fully seized of these conditions, or the results would have been different."

Before closing his speech, Mr. Borden again referred to the navy, and said that unless the Britons in Canada had sadly degenerated from the days of old, no neutral navy would ever be allowed.

Mr. Borden closed his remarks by saying: "We would be cowards and recreants if we felt in any way discouraged over the present position of the Conservative party. I believe public opinion will be such as to drive the Government out of power at the next elections. But remember that the maladministration of the Government is not in itself enough to drive these people out. Without good organization we cannot do it."

MR. DOHERTY AND DR. PYNE.

Mr. C. J. Doherty, M.P. for St.Ann's, followed in praise of his leader, and said that the Government had failed utterly in giving the people honesty in public affairs. He denied that the Conservatives had ever raised racial prejudices between Ontario and Quebec, and said that creed and languages did not influence the party.

Dr. A. Pyne, Minister of Education in the Ontario Cabinet and Mr. Crothers, M.P. for West Elgin, were the other speakers of the afternoon, the latter conducting an attack on the "sawdust wharf affair," which he said was a conspiracy whereby the Treasury was robbed in order to corrupt the electors of Kent county, New Brunswick.

There was more enthusiasm during the meeting than at any of the previous gatherings that had welcomed Mr. Borden. The grounds where he was heard were decorated with streamers and banners, on which were inscribed the words: "One flag. One fleet. One throne." Which fitted in with the terms of Mr. Borden's condemnation of the navy. After the meeting a large procession of automobiles was formed and the party drove to St. Thomas, where Mr. Borden was entertained at a garden party given by Mr. Crothers, the member for the riding.

The next meeting of the tour will be on Monday afternoon at Niagara Falls, where the strongest line-up of speakers billed for any of the meetings will be on hand,including Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario.

Mr. Doherty returned to Montreal last night, but will rejoin the party in time for the Niagara meeting.

The Tale of the Transcontinental.

Discussing the Grand Trunk Pacific, Mr. Borden said:

The project of constructing a national transcontinental railway was initiated by the government in the session of 1903 and amended against the interest of the country in 1904. The Conservative party has never receded from the position which it then took that as the contract bound the country to supply nine-tenths of the financial assistance necessary for the construction of the road, it would have been infinitely better to supply the other tenth and own the whole line, including the profitable prairie section.

To what extent is the purpose of the undertaking being fulfilled, and how far have the pledges of the government with respect to its cost been carried out? The statute providing for the construction of this railway declared that one of its main objects was to develop commerce through its Canadian ports. Certain clauses were inserted in the agreement which, according to the intention of the government, would accomplish that purpose. Those clauses were binding only upon the Grand Trunk Pacific, and did not in any way bind or concern the Grand Trunk Railway. But under the terms of the relevant statutes and accompanying agreements, the entire capital stock of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, amounting to $25,000,000, has been vested in the Grand Trunk Company, for the nominal consideration of $200,000. The Grand Trunk Company therefore absolutely controls the Grand Trunk Pacific Company, dictates its policy, and governs its operation, although the Grand Trunk Company itself is in no way bound by any obligation to carry traffic through Canadian ports.

The Grand Trunk Company has enormous interests at Portland in the United States, and it is acquiring further great interests at Providence, Rhode Island. It will be cheaper for the Grand Trunk Company to carry traffic to Portland or Providence than to St. John or Halifax. Its business interest will impell it to take that course. The recent acquisition by the Grand Trunk Company of a line to Providence and its entrance into that city indicate most clearly that it thoroughly realizes how independent it is of any control in this respect.

Canada's Right to Exact Safeguards.

The National Transcontinental Railway will cost the people of Canada between $225,000,000 and $250,000,000. Present indications distinctly foreshadow the result that this enormous sum will have been expended very largely in the interest of the great ports of the United States, while our own national ports are quite capable of handling all the business thus diverted to a foreign country. The probability of this outcome was most distinctly pointed to the government during the debates of 1903 and 1904. The Government gave no answer worthy of the name. The final refuge of Mr. Fielding was made in the assertion that although the provisions of the contract might be inadequate, the patriotism of Canadian shippers would lead them to route traffic through Canadian ports instead of United States ports. Such a contention requires no comment. Canada, expending more than two hundred millions in this undertaking, had the right to exact adequate safeguards, not only from the Grand Trunk Pacific Company, but from the Grand Trunk Company which really controls the whole situation.

Some Astonishing Figures.

The estimated cost of the road requires revision year by year, because the official returns brought down indicate a continued increase in the estimated total. Mr. Haughton Lennox, M.P., who has made an exceedingly careful study of the returns, has prepared and submitted to Parliament an estimate based on these returns indicating that the cost of the Eastern Division alone, at the time it is to be handed over to he Grand Trunk Pacific Company, under the terms of the contract, will be no less than $175,075,754. The company is to have the road free of rental for seven years, and the interest for that period at 3 1-2 per cent. amounts to $42,991,560, thus bringing the total cost to the enormous total of $218,416,314 before the country can receive any return. To this must be added the cash assistance which the country affords towards the construction of the Mountain Section of the Western Division. That assistance consists of the payment of interest on the bonds guaranteed by the Government for a period of seven years and which will amount to no less han $13,413,750. Thus the total cash expenditure by Canada will be as follows:

Cost of Eastern division at end of seven years' period.	$218,467,314
Guarantee on Mountain section...	13,413,750
	$231,881,065

This startling total shows that the road will cost the country at least four times the amount estimated by the Government when the contract was forced through Parliament. No reasonable explanation, nor, indeed, any explanation, has been given of this enormous increase. It is alleged that it is due to greater cost of material and labor and improved standard of the road. Any increase in the cost of material and labor would count for little in the enormous total, and the Government, in making its estimate in 1904, took into consideration a gradenot exceeding four-tenths of one per cent.

"Avowedly Academic" Excuse.

A leading Government organ, in a recent attempt to explain the startling discrepancy between the estimates of the Government and the actual results, declared that it would be "somewhat pragmatic" to hold Mr. Fielding down to detailed estimates of the cost. It also asserts that his estimates were "avowedly academic." On the contrary, he declared that they were based on the report of an able engineer. "Somewhat pragmatic" and "avowedly academic" are rather unsatisfactory explanations of an increase of $150,000,000.

The Minister of Railways has produced statistics upon which he bases the contention that the cost of railways in several foreign countries as well as in Canada has been equally great. These statistics were available to the Government in 1903 and 1904, when they made the reckless estimates which have been so outrageously falsified. The Government can take refuge behind Mr. Graham's contention only upon the assumption that its estimates in 1903 and 1904 were wilfully false and designed to mislead Parliament and the people.

The Classification Variations.

Mr. H. A. Woods, the chief engineer of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, made startling charges as to the cost of the eastern division in a letter dated October 7, 1907. His letter is in the official returns of Parliament, and has been quoted repeatedly upon the pages of Hansard. He deliberately stated over his own signature that common earth excavation, worth about 25 cents per cubic yard, was being classified as loose rock, worth about 50 cents, and as solid rock, worth about $1.50 per cubic yard, to an alarming extent. It should be remembered that the contracts upon this road are not for a lump sum, but are based upon schedule prices for the various classes of work. Mr. Wood's statements are supported by the official records. Under such contracts, in order to determine the lowest tender, it was necessary for the Government to make an examination of the line and to estimate approximately the quantity of common earth excavation, of loose rock and of solid rock excavation respectively. Otherwise the lowest tender could not be determined, because one tender might be lowest in one class and highest in another, or in both of the others.

The following table shows the cubic yards of each class estimated by the Government engineers and the actual results upon the work, up to date, in respect of five of the contracts:—

	Estimated by Govt. Engineers. Cubic yds.	Rate.	Amount.	Actual cost to 31st December, 1909. Cubic yds.	Amount.	Finish.

All geological theories must be revised if common loose earth or sand can become converted into loose rock or solid rock within a period of three or four years. No such metamorphosis has manifested itself in Canada except within the narraw area comprised within the boundaries of the Grand Trunk Pacific. North and south of that line, geological conditions have apparently remained stable. Within the boundaries of this railway this remarkable change has occured,—to the great detriment of the country from whose Treasury many million dollars must be abstracted in order to pay the increased cost thus occasioned.

The Lumsden Inquiry.

Shortly after the opening of the present session, the Prime Minister, in consequence of the resignation of Mr. Lumsden, proposed an exceedingly restricted inquiry into the causes of that resignation. The Conservatives moved an amendment that, having regard to the enormous and unaccountable increase in the cost of the road, a thorough investigation and inquiry into the whole matter should be forwith undertaken and carried out. According to the regular formula of the Liberal leaders, this inquiry was voted down. The Conservative members of the committee which was thereupon constituted demanded the employment of counsel who would represent the people of Canada in the investigation, without constraint or interference by the government or by the representatives of the Government upon that Committee. The demand was refused, and the three conservative members, realising that the investigation must develop into the farce which was intended, withdrew from the Committee.

Toward the close of the pretended inquiry Mr. H. A. Woods, chief engineer of the Grand Trunk Railway, who had made these definite and specific charges over his own signature, was placed upon the witness stand. No member of the Committee (the Conservative members having withdrawn), nor either of the counsel employed by the Government asked him a single question as to the startling charges contained in his letter of October 7th, 1907. Those charges and other equally important matters have up to the present remained avsolutely uninvestigated, to the infinite descredit of the Government and of the Commission itself.

SYNOD ENDS ITS WORK.

Moral Questions Considered by the Anglicans of Toronto.

Toronto, June 18.—The Synod of the diocese of Toronto concluded its business last night. There was much opposition to a resolution condemning the granting of liquor licenses to clubs, but it passed by a close vote. The Synod adopted a resolution by Mr. C. J. Agar, advocating the use of the lash in the cases of offenders against women and girls. A resolution deploring the release of Skill and King, who were sent to Kingston penitentiary for dealing in obscene literature, was also carried.

An amusing discussion took place when the report of the widows' and orphans' fund committee was under consideration. An amendment was proposed to the effect that when any clergyman 55 years or over married a woman ten years younger than himself the latter should forfeit all rights upon the fund in the event of her husband predeceasing her, but it was rejected.

W. J. Bryan in Defence of Missions.

Edinburgh, June 18. — William J. Bryan addressed the evening session of the missionary conference here yesterday. He refuted many of the objections to missions, and said that missionaries were much less apt to get nations into trouble than persons who went abroad for the purpose of making money.

Binghamton, N. Y., June 18.—In United States Court last night, Judge Rye sentenced C. L. Chandler, of Montreal, to the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., for thirteen months, and fined him $25 for using the mails to defraud.

Aaron Colle was sentenced to Atlanta for ten years and to pay a fine of $500. Colle was convicted of having four counterfeit nickels in his possession, but while the jury was out, threatened to "get even with the witnesses who had testified against him."

SPORTS FOR THE MILITIA AT FARNHAM

Colonel Gordon Mindful of Troops and Popular.

Some Trouble With Water Supply—Montreal Batteries at Work—Cavalry Progressing.

Special Staff Correspondence.

Farnham, June 18.—This is an off day in the Farnham camp. Outside of the regular morning drills in both the artillery and cavalry brigades the work of the troops has been lifted by the Camp Commandant, Colonel Gordon, and the officers and men are to devote themselves to sports. An elaborate programme of military games has been arranged by a special committee, and there is great interest among all ranks in the several contests which will take place between the various regiments. Foot races, tugs of war, jousting, and riding competitions have been planned and many stirring events will undoubtedly be pulled off by the troopers.

The action of Colonel Gordon in regard to the men's entertainment is much appreciated by all ranks. The commandant is very popular in the camp, the men feeling that he has their best interests at heart and is willing to do all in his power to judiciously mix up the greatest amount of amusement possible with the regular work of camp life. Brigadier-General Otter's presence at headquarters has had a very appreciable effect on the officers and men, who are putting forth every effort to make as brave a showing as possible before the veteran soldier. General Otter has the reputation of being a strict disciplinarian and a most exacting officer; the regiments, therefore, are anxious to ensure a favorable impression on him.

The 17th Duke of York's Hussars had arranged to hold a military afternoon to-day and, under Colonel J. J. Riley's supervision, had drawn up an elaborate programme of military sports, but this will, in all probability, be merged in with the general sports this afternoon. The men of this regiment are now quite comfortable in their new location, although the absence of water is felt keenly by the squadrons, there being no piping in the space now occupied by the regiment. However, it is expected this will be remedied in a day or two.

Shortage in Water Supply.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced by the detachment of engineers in charge of the camp supply of water, the troops using about twice the quantity it was originally estimated would be consumed. This is due to a great extent to the warm weather which has prevailed since the regiments came to camp, the troopers taking advantage of every possible opportunity to enjoy the cooling influence of a bath under the many showers with which the camp is abundantly supplied. The quality of the water is excellent, and no sickness whatever has been reported as due to its consumption.

At the headquarters of the 6th Duke of Connaught's Royal Canadian Hussars a decided air of Montreal prevails, nearly all the officers of this regiment being professional and business men of the city. Lieut.-Colonel Schneider, who is in command, is immensely popular with the officers and men under him. In fact, a splendid esprit de corps prevails throughout the four squadrons forming the regiment. Major Dr. Lafleur is also a very popular officer, and has constituted himself a special medical adviser to the men. There has been little or no sickness in the ranks, however, the medical assistance has been required to date being almost entirely due to the intense heat or kicks from horses. The 6th have lost several valuable animals since coming into camp in spite of the great care exercised by the officers to prevent the horses from doing injury to each other as they stand tethered in the lines.

Good Work by Montreal Batteries.

Colonel Costigan, who is in command of the artillery brigade, has been giving the men under him some excellent practical work in the different branches of field exercise. In spite of the hot sun and the great clouds of dust—conditions under which the artillery have had to work—the men have displayed the keepest interest in the training they are undergoing.

The officers on Colonel Costigan's staff are two Montrealers, well known in military circles. Major J. B. Gibson, of the Reserve of Officers, is Adjutant, and Capt. John A. Gunn, of the 3rd Victoria Rifles, is the acting brigadier's Orderly Officer. The work being done by the two batteries from Montreal, Colonel Costigan states, is of a splendid order and the men seem happy and contented. Major Creelman is in command of the 3rd Battery, and Lieutenant Armstrong is acting in a like capacity in the 21st, or Westmount unit.

During the evenings and to encourage the men to stay in camp instead of going into the city, the band of the Royal Canadian Dragoons furnishes music at stations throughout the camp. The band is a small one numerically, but is composed of excellent musicians and the music rendered is of a superior order. The troopers and batterymen enjoy the concerts exceedingly. The idea is one of Colonel Gordon's and is another evidence of the commandant's consideration for the men under him.

Other music is also indulged in by the members of the regiments. Concertinas, banjos, guitars, and all sorts of musical instruments are possessed by the men, and the evenings spent around the tented lines are jolly in the extreme.

Another source of amusement, and one of which the men seemingly never tire, is "Teddy," the pet bear and mascot of the Royal Canadian Dragoons. The antics of the bear are amusing, and the animal never seems to tire of the many opportunities for play furnished him by the men. During his stay in the Farnham camp the bear's life has been as strenuous a one as that of his irrepressible namesake.

Cavalry Under Lt.-Col. Turner.

The cavalry is improving wonderfully under the guidance of Lieut.-Colonel R. E. W. Turner, V.C., D.S.O., who is acting brigadier of this division of the camp. Colonel Turner is perhaps the most distinguished officer in the Canadian service, holding as he does both the highly-coveted Victoria Cross and the Distinguished Service Order. Both these were won by gallantry in South Africa, and there are only three or four other soldiers in the service of the Empire who have the distinction of possessing both. Lieut.-Colonel Turner's gallantry at Witkop, in the Transvaal, is well known to Canadians, as, indeed, it is in nearly every branch of the militia service of the Crown. The acting Brigadier bears his distinction with characteristic modesty and is a great favorite with the officers and men of all ranks in the cavalry brigade.

Services in Farnham To-morrow.

To-morrow the Roman Catholics in the camp will parade to church under the command of Major Boyer, of the 17th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars. The Protestants have received an invitation from the rector of the Church of England in Farnham and will in all probability attend divine service on Sunday morning in the town. The camp branch of the Young Men's Christian Association has also arranged to hold services on the grounds to-morrow.

Word was received to-day that A Squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons had been detailed for duty at the coming meet of the Montreal Aviation Association at St. Anne's. The squadron will report for duty on the 25th, under Capt. Morrison.

The Fresh Air Fund

The season at the Fresh Air Home at Chambly has just opened with its blessings for the tired mothers and sick children who would otherwise have to pine away amid city heats all through the summer. The first party for this summer is now at the Home and for two weeks will drink in the life-giving air that blows along the valley of the Richelieu.

For you perhaps two weeks in the country would not be a great boon. But what if you lived in one or two rooms in a house on whose roof the sun beat pitilessly all day? What if you had to spend all day and all week and all summer with your only breath of air caught from a street whose heated pavement returned the sun's rays with double force? What if this holiday was your only opportunity in the whole summer to escape heated rooms and heated street, and what if even this opportunity did not come every year?

How then would you value this holiday? It will be difficult for you perhaps to put your self in the place of those whose circumstances an inadequate attempt has been made to indicate. But if you can catch any little glimmering of an idea of what it means to that mother or to that child, you will be able to imagine no greater pleasure than to help to give one or more of them this holiday, which to them may make all the difference between life and death.

The party which went out this week numbers one hundred and fifty. That is well; but that only touches the fringe of the numbers who stand in need of the help that the Fresh Air Fund can give—if you will put it in its power. For in reality the possibilities of this work depend upon you. The Fresh Air Fund is sure to have a need to meet greater than its resources will suffice to supply. How near it may come to meeting that need depends upon you.

WANTS BIG PRIZE FOR FLIGHT FROM MONTREAL TO OTTAWA

"I would like to see the newspapers organize an aviation contest between here and Ottawa," said Mr. J. A. D. McCurdy, of Baddeck, to a representative of The Star at the Windsor last evening.

"One Montreal paper and one Ottawa paper might join in offering a prize of ten thousand dollars. A time limit might be set when the offer would expire. The conditions should require one continuous flight from city to city. That would establish a new record and would bring Canada to the front. If such a prize were offered I am sure there would be competitors."

Mr. McCurdy is bringing up Baddeck No. 2 machine for use in the meet which opens next Saturday at St. Anne de Bellevue. This is the same biplane in which he and his colleague, Capt. Baldwin, made the trials at Petewawa last year. The machine was damaged at that time, but has since been overhauled and is now in excellent condition. Mr. McCurdy has brought two members of the Baddeck staff with him to look after the machine and as soon as it arrives they will at once set to work to assemble the parts and get it in working order for preliminary flights before the opening of the meet.

Mr. McCurdy will not have the assistance of Capt. Baldwin on the present occasion, as he is just now with Professor Bell in Australia. Before returning they expect to visit New Zealand, where they will spend four or five months, the interior of India, Persia and Arabia, and then cross Asia to China and Pekin, whence they will go on to Europe by the Siberian railway. The trip will probably occupy a year.

ASKS EXPORTERS TO HELP BOOST PRICE OF QUEBEC CHEESE

Mr. Gigault, Deputy-Minister of Agriculture for the Province of Quebec, delivered an interesting address in the Board of Trade yesterday afternoon in which he asked the exporters to co-operate with the newly-formed Co-operative Society of Cheese Manufacturers of Quebec.

He said that the object of the Co-operative Society was to see that every box of cheese was sold according to its real worth, and not sold in big lots from all over the country at a set price of so much per box. At every meeting of the Dairymen's Association the fact that all Quebec cheese was selling at lower prices than Ontario cheese was alluded to. A portion of Quebec cheese is inferior to the best western cheese, said Mr. Gigault, and at the same time some of the Quebec factories produce a grade of cheese as good, if not better, than the best western product. It was necessary, therefore, that the price be arranged accordingly to the true worth of the cheese.

The meeting voted to do its utmost to further the aims of the society.

Those present were: Mr. J. A. Vaillancourt, A. J. Hodgson, R. M. Ballantyne, Arthur Jones, James Alexander, A. N. Grant, G. D. Warmington, E. Denning, Geo. Hodge, A. McCulloch, John McKergow, A. C. Wieland, A. J. Brice, E. A. Brice, A. Trudel, and a number of others.

ENDORSE FOUR CANDIDATES IN THE ALDERMANIC FIGHT

Bernard; Emard ward, J. U. Emard; Côte des Neiges ward, A. Yale. In Rosemount, Ahuntsic and Bordeaux wards, matters were left in abeyance. The committee decided not to interfere between the present candidates in Notre Dame de Grace.

Mr. Asselin was the only dissenting member of the committee. Without reflecting on the candidates chosen, Mr. Asselin thought that pledges should have been exacted.

CENERAL FRENCH TO INSPECT CAMP AT PETEWAWA

Three Thousand Men Under Canvas, Almost Enterely Mounted Units —Niagara Camp.

Petewawa Military Camp, Ont., June 18.—Petewawa camp this year is wholly devoted to mounted units, cavalry, artillery and engineers. About 3,000 men will be under canvas here on Sunday and more are due to arrive next week.

General French will arrive to-day. There will be very little change of procedure while he is on the scene from the usual programme.

The batteries now under canvas are the 2nd Brigade, including the 4th Battery of Hamilton, the 7th Battery of St. Catharines, and the 9th Battery of Toronto, the 8th Brigade, including the 2nd and 23rd Batteries of Ottawa. The advance parties of the 5th of Kingston and the 8th of Gananoque are here, and the remainder of these corps will arrive to-morrow. The 2nd Cavalry Brigade, including the 3rd Dragoons of Peterborough, the 4th Hussars of Kingston and the 5th Dragoons of Ottawa, with a total strength of about 550, is in camp.

General French Praises Cavalry.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., June 18.—Niagara camp practically broke up last night with inspection of forces by Genera French, who immediately left for Petewawa camp. The famous cavalry officer was particularly interested in the performance of the mounted corps.

Among those receiving commendation were the 9th Mississaugua Horse. General French was struck with one feature of the regiment which makes them unique among the mounted corps of the Dominion. This year they have adopted the plan of sounding the call for all movements by means of the trumpet Sir John remarked that the 9th was the first body of horse in Canada to employ this efficient method of manoeuvering its squadrons.

FOUR BODIES YET UNDER THE DEBRIS IN VICTORIA SQUARE

Those of Clement Borremans and John Cunningham Identified Yesterday Making 28 Known.

All bodies taken from the ruins on Victoria Square have been identified, the last being John Cunningham, whose remains were recognized by his father this morning. The other body unidentified last evening was recognized as that of Clement Borremans by a key which was found imbedded in the charred flesh. On the handle of the key was also a lump of lead which must have dropped on it while molten and is evidently from the metal pot of the stereotype department, which went down with other machinery and upset.

The key that was found appears to belong to the lodge room of the L'Union Belge, of which Borremans was the treasurer. Further evidence was that the bones of one leg were crooked.

Four Bodies May be in Lane.

With twenty-eight identified it is thought that there remain still four bodies under the debris.

John Wade, 15 Belmont street.
Gustave Lippe, 170 Wolfe street.
John Clouthier, 283 Amherst street.
Reuben Morrison, 67 McGill College avenue.

The work of clearing away the debris further is now in the hands of Peter Lyall and Sons, who have had a gang of men start work on the ruins this morning. They are starting to clear away the ruins, and piles of bricks in the lane at the back of the building. It is probable that the four missing bodies are under the piles of debris which is choking this lane. As there is considerable machinery and other iron work, it will be a considerable time before enough can be removed to extract bodies which must of necessity be buried under the heap.

The proprietors of the building have now undertaken the work of clearing and carting away debris, and the city employes who have been at work, are withdrawn. The work, however, will still be carried on under the direction of the chiefs of the fire department, who state they will see the work through until all the bodies are recovered.

The Route of the Funeral.

The route for this afternoon's funeral of ten of the victims has been arranged. The cortege will leave Wray's undertaking rooms at 290 Mountain street, where the various organizations will form up.

From here the procession will proceed along Dorchester street, up Union avenue to Pine avenue, then to Park avenue, and to the cemeteries. The Roman Catholic party will proceed on to Cote des Neiges. The commital service will be read here by Father Gerald McShane over the remains of Frank Jansen, Rene Tittlejohn, William Murphy and Clement Borremans.

Commital services will also be held at the Mount Royal Cemetery over the bodies of Dorothy Ward, Reginald Harris, Campbell Morrison, Isaac Jones, George Gundy. The body of Duncan J. Miller, will be laid to rest with military honors. A firing party with arms reversed will march on each side of the hearse and volleys will be fired over the grave.

For the sufferers a Requiem Mass will be held at Notre Dame Cathedral, at 7 a.m., Monday. This has been arranged in response to a request from the employes of the bindery of other newspapers. A Mass will also be held in St. Ann's Church, on Wednesday morning, at 7 o'clock.

Benefit at the Princess.

For the relief of the sufferers in the recent catastrophe, on Victoria Square, the managers of the Princess Theatre have decided to give the proceeds of next Monday evening's performance of "Salome," by the Ryan Sock Company. The whole of the receipts will be devoted to the benefit fund, and Dan Ryan and his company will give their salaries for the evening as well.

BODY OF MISS LANDRY TAKEN FROM THE RIVER

The body of the young woman found at Vercheres, and thought to be that of Miss Lena Healy, who jumped from Victoria Bridge last Sunday after her foster father had also taken the fatal jump, was closely examined at the inquest last evening, and it is now believed the remains are not those of Miss Healy, as the description does not tally. There is a belief that the body may be that of Miss Aldea Landry, of 169 Desery street, who disappeared from her home several weeks ago. The father of the young woman left for Vercheres this morning to examine the remains.

STRUCK BY AUTO AS HE GOT OFF STREET CAR.

While getting off a street car at the corner of St. Catherine street and Western avenue, at one o'clock this morning, Robert Tomlinson, of 38 Calumet avenue, was struck by an automobile which came up behind and knocked him down. He sustained a fracture of the hip and had to be removed to the Western Hospital in an ambulance.

ARE YOUR JEWEL SETTINGS SAFE?

¶ The Summer months of the year are disastrous to jewel wearers. The out-door life of vacation time leaves many a loop-hole for the loss of insecure gems and jewellery with faulty fastenings.

¶ We will examine settings free of charge. Should repairs be necessary, you will find our factory facilities such as will restore an impaired setting to its original security at very moderate cost.

¶ It's a growing custom, and a good one, for patrons to leave their jewellery with us for necessary repairs, while they are away on vacation.

MAYOR'S SISTER FIRST TO SUGGEST DOLLARD STATUE

Miss Bellelle Guerin Started the Movement in Paper Read Before Antiquarian Society.

Now that an active campaign for subscriptions for a monument to Dollard has been undertaken by a Citizens' Committee, and close upon $2,000 already collected for the purpose, it is interesting to note that the suggestion for the proposed memorial first came from Miss Bellelle Guerin, sister of the present Mayor of Montreal.

She put forward the idea in a paper on Dollard under the title of "A Hero of New France," which she read at a meeting of the Antiquarian Society in the autumn of 1908. In this paper, which was printed in the "May Court Magazine," of Ottawa, of which Lady Sybil Grey is the editor, Miss Guerin drew a graphic sketch of the circumstances which led the 22-year-old Dollard and his sexteen companions to go forth from Montreal, or Ville Marie, as it was then called, vowing "to meet the aggressors, to surprise and disperse them on the river, or to challenge them face to face; to give no quarter; to take no quarter; to fight even unto death for God and country."

The cause for this heroic resolve was the news that 800 Iroquois were preparing to wipe out the colony of Ville Marie, which numbered but 140. Miss Guerin told of the way in which Dollard and his men met this horde of savages, and of the terrible punishment they inflicted on the Iroquois. As everyone knows, every member of the expedition was killed, but they accomplished their object. The Iroquois retreated, concluding that if 17 men behind such a poor fortification as they had could deal such disaster to 700 warriors, their attempt to wipe out the colony would be madness.

Miss Guerin said that the gallant exploit was the most brilliant in the annals of America, and she recalled that Abbe Faillon, in his "Histoire de la Colonie Francaise," says that the Greeks and Romans can boast of no more magnanimous act; also that Parkman calls it one of mediaeval chivalry. She concluded her paper with the following:

"Oh Canada, thou art worthy of all the brave hearts that have bled for thee. Thy mountains are clothed in beauty, and thy valleys yield flowers of gold. Peace and prosperity is thy portion beneath a glorious and beloved flag. Turn, then, thy fair hand to gracious deeds. Call back thy heroes from their graves and bid them live again in monuments of bronze and stone. Choose some bright spot where youth throughout all time may gaze upon heroic youth, and there, in imperishable letters carve the name of Adam Dollard Sieur des Ormeaux."

The memorial for which funds are now being collected will take the form of a statue, but it has not yet been decided in what part of the city it shall be erected.

FIRST IN THE HEARTS AND HANDS

First in England, first in France, first in America, and first in Canada, the name of "Perrin" signifies the ultimate in glove achievement and expresses the supreme accomplishment in glove production.

"Perrin" quality is the refinement of Parisian style ideas as endorsed by London, approved by New York, and worn in all fashion centres throughout Canada.

So perfect is the "Perrin" fit, that in Paris, when people want to say of a garment that "it fits like a glove," they put it this way, "It fits like a Perrin."

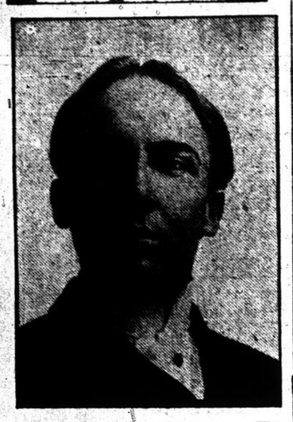
AMUSEMENTS

ALFRED SWENDSON.



At the Princess next week.

AT LOCAL THEATRES.

Princess.

The Messrs. Shubert and the Ryan Stock Company have placed their theatre and the services of the players at the disposal of the Relief Committee for the sufferers by the Victoria square catastrophe on Monday evening. The performance of the reverent and powerful drama, "Salome," at the Princess that night should net a goodly sum for the relief fund. Mr. McLeish, manager of the theatre, and Mr. Ryan at the head of the stock company were the first to come forward with an offer of a benefit performance. The committee which is being formed to administer the fund will consist of prominent citizens and officers of the unions and benefit societies, whose members are affected, and the Mayor has been asked to participate in its formation and to give the event of Monday evening his presence. The entire proceeds will go to the fund. "Salome," the bill to be presented by the Ryan Stock Company at the Princess Theatre next week, commencing with a special matinee on Monday on account of the evening performance being a benefit for the fire sufferers, is by no means the salacious drama of that title about which, and the opera based upon it, so much has been written of late. It is a respectful but at the same time highly dramatic treatment of one of the most stirring tales of Biblical history, that of John the Baptist and the daughter of Herod, with Mr. Ryan in the role of the prophet. In scenery and costuming as well as in acting qualities this is the most ambitious piece in the company's repertoire.

Francais.

The patrons of the Francais will have another big laughing bill next week to talk about. There is no reason why the attendance should drop off at "The Coolest House in Town," while such good attractions continue to be produced.

The big comedy feature for next week will be Edward, Gordon and Fox, in an acrobatic nonsensicality. This team of comedians has played in most of the first class houses on this continent, known as the Three Hanlons. The Clarence Sisters and Brother, the Australian midgets, will present a novelty transformation act, introducing descriptive songs and dances. Barry and Mildred in a farce, "The Plumber's Mistake," should convulse the audiences, and the poor plumbers certainly are a standing joke in the public mnd.

The Piottis in "The Italian and his Sweetheart" come with a good report. Billy Chase, a monologist, will endeavor to be a worthy successor to Joe Hartman, who has made such a hit this week. Cadeaux, the bounding wire artist, is well known in Montreal, as he has appeared at the various parks a number of times. Others on the bill will be May and Lily Burns, Koppe and Koppe, comedy hoop rollers; Winifred Stewart, a singing comedienne; and Bowen Brothers, song and dance artists.

Lyric Hall.

Lyric Hall still continues to present a fine collection of new moving picture subjects. The programme is usually divided, being about one-third travel subjects, about one-third dramatic picture plays, and about one-third humorous subjects of the best class. The illustrated songs are sung by Miss Flo Lorng and Mr. J. C. Henderson. As well as these there are always one or two special acts of importance, making a most diversified two-hour entertainment.

AT THE PARKS.

Sohmer.

Sohmer Park is getting the full benefit of the warm weather, the crowds in attendance being even greater than last year. An excellent bill has been arranged for the coming week. Many Montrealers will read with pleasure that Spencer Kelly will be among the features. Many times he has appeared here in oratorio but he is now, in company with Miss Ada Wilber, presenting in vaudeville "Melodies past and present." The Woods and Woods Trio appear here for the first time in an act entitled "An elopement by wire." It is said to be one of the cleverest tight wire acts yet introduced. Roman sports and pastimes will be presented by Laveen, Cross and a company of five. This feature is entirely new. Modern gymnastics will have a turn at the hands of Reo, who, according to the celebrated Sandow, is the nearest to perfect form of manhood he has yet discovered. An interesting feature will be the first appearance of Anton Romaine, the eccentric gipsy violinist. The Park band will have a new programme and will play after each regular performance for an hour on the terrace.

Dominion.

The first real summer weather has been experienced the past week and the attendance at Dominion Park showed it. Last Tuesday was Victorian Order day, and an immense number of people were on the grounds at one time. All through the week bumper crowds have been in attendance. Freddie Cunningham, the boy wonder of the high wire, pleased with his wonderful feats on a wire fifty feet above the ground. Next week the thrilling act of the Greggs has been secured. The Greggs have an automobile race down an incline—one of the machines turning three complete somersaults while making the trip. To-morrow the vaudeville theatre at the Park opens with a bill of summer vaudeville. The programme for this week is a very good one, featuring as the headline act the Long Acre Quartette, one of the best quartettes in vaudeville. August Aramine will deliver selections from French operas and slip in a few of his original parodies. The Tennis Duo are billed as "two pretty girls who offer a novel juggling act." The Yoshimate Troupe of Japanese are well known to Montreal theatregoers, having appeared at local theatres during the past season. An exhibition owned by Mr. Wm. Carruthers and which is attracting considerable attention at the Park is a Bleriot monoplane. Mr. Carruthers is going to enter this machine in the coming aviation meet. The new show from Coney Island—the Diving Girl—will throw open the doors to the public tomorrow afternoon.

NEW YORK THEATRES

Special to The Montreal Star.

New York, June 18.—The sixth play of farcical fol-de-rol and musical fiddle-de-dee to be placed in Broadway for the summer — with more to come—begins with an exhibition of new girls. The advertisements said there would be "sixty girlies, all under twenty and none married." That would exclude noted and notorious show girlies. A crush of modish men and women went, on the opening night, to see if the promise would be kept. Yes, "and women;" for it is a curious fact that feminine curiosity among New York smart folk as to members of the chorus-ballets is quite as keen as masculine interest; and less dissembled by mock apathy; so the men eyed the fresh output furtively at first sight, while the women began an instant scrutiny through glasses.

In my professional capacity I focussed a strong field-glass on the sixty girlies as they came out in relays of twelve. They purported to be pupils at a college, white frocked innocent simplicity for a scholastic occasion. My lenses revealed no footlight familiars, nor any faces older than twenty, and a slender smaliness of figure was uniform. The word girl has been used so much in plays' titles, and the creature girl in so many performances, that it takes ingenuity to devise a girlish novelty to catch the fancy of those whose devotion to dramatic art is for indecorous art's sake only. The show I am going to describe was called "The Comic Supplement" during a half week of practice over in Jersey, but for New York it was renamed "Girlies." Read it out loud. "Girlies." Doesn't it sound as foolish as it looks? Yet I don't doubt that a label ought to indicate the main contents of a package; and the five dozen young girls are the selling element of the extravaganza.

The custom long has been, in stage displays of girls at school, to make their preceptresses always austere, usualy hideous and often ludriciously amorous under a pretense of prudery. The matron and chaperon here is embodied wholesomely by good-looking Carrie Perkins undisfigured for eccentricity. Carrie is older and heavier than when she was a stage girlie, and I guess she is put in front of the young sixty to emphasize their juvenility and lightness by contrast. There is shrewd craft, too, in making their opening chorus infantile in music and movement; and the first of them to talk do it in babyish, prattling voices on purpose, although they couldn't help it if they tried to. The method of their introduction is calculated to prove the assertion that "all are under twenty," if not that "none is married." The last effort of the advertising agent was a report, printed by the more complaisant and less conscientious of the newspapers, that a recruit would take the place of one discharged for breaking her agreement not to marry. I couldn't help wishing that all of them might merge their maidenliness in matrimony.

There was a reason for the title of "The Comic Supplement." George V. Hobart, the author, is a writer for newspaper Sunday print. He saw fun for the stage in a man clothed only in bright-hued, pictorial paper leaves. So he plotted it out that a college professor, rejected as the matron's wooer until he should make himself remarkable, undertook on a dare by students to quit the college in a suit of paper supplements and return in three days dressed ordinarily and completely in textile fabrics without having begged, bought, borrowed or stolen anything. He gets permission, though, to take his dog along, and depends on the brute to pilfer the needed garments. Good idea, don't you think it is? The professor's first set-back is to sit on some fly-paper and leave an embarrassing section of his paper garb behind him. He is beset, too, by a female detective employed to discover the stealer of articles from the schoolgirls' dormitory. He has various troubles, but his dog rehabilitates him in time to win the wager and the matron.

Joseph Cawthorne, a droll speaker of German dialect, and Maud Raymond, apt with mimicry, sing into hilarity with a good set of new ballads; and David Abrahams makes a ludricously

SPENCER KELLY.

Kelly & Wilder, at Sohmen Park next week.

knowing dog; but they are crowded out of sight at times by specialists from vaudeville, as well as by the girlies, and especially by some burlesques of dramas that haven't gone out of New York yet. These travesties are given rapidly in four rooms on two floors of an apartment house, one being lighted up when in use, while three others are dark. That is a new, good idea, but requires a heavy setting.

"Girlies" is a clean show, thank goodness. Not a word of Tenderloin slang is spoken. No cafe joke is cracked. And the girlies are blameless in their behavior, for they didn't know that one wall of their dormitory has been removed to let fifteen hundred persons see them cut capers in their nighties. Twelve are shown in as many beds. The others come in for midnight sport. Pauline Chase, you know, got initial attention in the pajamas of a schoolgirl and now is said to be betrothed to J. M. Barrie. A dainty, diminutive Violet MacMillan is here started off as the leader in pajamas of her schoolmates in nightgowns for a pillow fight and a dance in which, at the climax of a romp, they lie on their backs and fill the air with their hands and feet. As I said, they haven't the faintest idea that they are on public view to paying spectators. The moment they hear the boys from a neighboring college serenading under their windows, they pull the curtains so tight that they can hardly thrust their hands through to shake a day-day.

The ugly Polaire from Paris affords an example of craft in theatrical exploitation. At sight I identified her as a woman who had sung a dozen years ago in vaudeville, and gone home obscurely and ingloriously. She then showed some talent, but a foreign tongue hid it, and the people saw nothing but a plain, common, unamusing French pantomimic balladist. Her ability developed no American value; but some one devised a way to fool New York with her, and so she is one of this summer's stage singularities.

The ingenuity of Polaire's new promoter didn't seek a way to lessen her ugliness, but on the contrary he made it the main point in getting publicity. She was advertised as "the ugliest actress in the world." The oddity of the claim aroused curiosity, and she introduced herself on a Broadway roof garden to a crowd containing many who have located fashionably in the country already, and come in automobiles for an evening when they wish to see a show. So motor wraps, hats and veils were plenty. Not all these togs of costly luxury, however, were worn by women who had motored from summer homes ten to fifty miles distant; for I saw chorus girls who had rigged themselves out like smart-set belles, from rural villas for trips in taxicabs from flats near Lobster Square. Broadway audiences are never more interesting than in summer time.

The Polaire that came forth enveloped in a long evening cloak, and overshadowed by a widespread hat, gave a few seconds to quite dramatic suspense before revealing her physical individuality. The promoter had got the assertion into print to the utmost possible extent that, positively, no actress alive equalled her in unsightliness; yet upon her arrival she had told the reporters that the claim displeased her much. She asked them to look at he, and see for themselves. They sized her up as uglier than the worst fifty in every hundred off the stage, yet not incomparably ill-looking even among actresses. So there was uncertainty in the audience's expectation.

Under the guidance probably of her promoter, to put it in the phrase of his trade, Polaire made good. With hands likely enlarged by gloves too big to fit, she unpinned her hat and uncovered a shock of short, stiff, unkempt black hair like that of a never-combed Fiji Islander. A smile like a grimace put her irregular features into a change of expression suggesting a spasm of agony. Next she removed the wrap and disclosed thin, unshapely arms and a flat, bony breast, while she stood a little longer scrutiny in a pair of number seven shoes, although the feet in them may have been fours.

The woman's own homeliness was carried towards hideousness by trick and device. No rouge vivified the deathly pallor of her face; but her eyelids were skilfully tinted for disfigurement, and black as well as red paint extended her naturally wide mouth to astonishing dimensions. Even the promoter's one appeal for admiration, "the smallest waist of any woman of her size," was so artificial through apparently torturing corsage that her shape was like a clumsily carved wooden toy.

Having thus made good as the ugliest of actresses, did Polaire satisfy the other claim of the great genius? of course not. Yet she is an uncommonly facile artist who has played many roles so well as to gain Parisian renown. What she does here is to personate in "The Visitor" a female of a boulevard music hall who has one preferred lover and many for whom she doesn't care; and she is noted for fearlessness in associating with drunkards and criminals.

"I'll wager," says her sweetheart in French,—for the piece is given in its original language "that you would lose your nerve if some visitor turned out to be a robber or assassin."

Late one night, alone in bed, she hears a window of her room opened, and for a moment, in the dim light, she thinks the man who enters is her lover disguised to scare her. But the burglar is awfully genuine. He shows the bloody knife with which he has killed the lover in the yard, and swears he will slay her, too, if she doesn't give up the jewels he has seen her wear on the stage. He says he has admired her ardently from the gallery. You now surmise easily that, being a cajoler by profession, the girl catches at the chance to operate on this ruffian. She does it with a nerve that would win the bet with her lover if he were not murdered. She wheedles the burglar to hear her sing, and so gets close enough to snatch at his knife; but she doesn't get it, and he would stab her, but that she distracts him with a dance.

Polaire has sung a wicked ballad to the criminal with well-simulated gaiety in her terror, and now she dances in a mock wanton spirit, that fools his vanity. As the ugliest of actresses, she may be a fake; but as a composite comedienne, tragedienne and pantomimist she is uncommonly expert. Her face is no more distortively expressive than all the rest of her anatomy to the fingers and toes. If this woman were the first of the apache waltzers, and that dance hadn't been familiar a year, she would shake the town with it in "The Visitor" instead of merely rousing it a little.

As I told you last winter, lawless loafers in Paris, called apaches, dance in squalid cafes; and here and there one is enough of a hypnotist to make his girl submit, in a trance-like waltz, to being brutally mauled and thrown about. That is the peculiarity of the apache dance. Well, the final, desperate recoure of the girl in this play is to make the burglar believe, by flattering his vanity, that he is exercising that kind of mesmeric control of her—that she can't resist his fascination—that she clings to him in a mad waltz even though he may slay her with the knife. Thus she is able at last to grab the weapon and stab him to death. So in one way and another, through humbug and merit, she has seemed to me a readable subject.

And the price of the better seats is two dollars, the same as at the heaviest winter drama, with as much more for the choicest as can be got by selling them on the sidewalk through hawkers.

WESTERN HINDUS PLAN APPEAL TO GAEKWAR OF BARODA

Courtrymen Will Ask Indian Prince to Assist in Securing Better Conditions.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Victoria, B. C., June 18.—His Royal Highness Sir Sayaji Rao III, Gaekwar of the independent state of Baroda, second most powerful prince in India, ranking next to the Niyzam of Hyderabad, the ruler of the Deccan, and the foremost native ruler in Asia in the adaptation and application of Western methods of education, sanitation, irrigation, and transportation, will arrive in Canada, June 25th, and will be met here by all the foremost representatives of the Indian peoples have emigrated to Canada and the United States, and who are now appealing to the Gaekwar to act as their mediator and champion at Ottawa and Washington, in an endeavor to secure some improvement in the conditions under which they live in America.

The Gheakwar will also be asked to urge a relaxation of the restrictions now imposed by the Government of Canada upon immigrants from Hindustan.

The Gaekwar's visit to America, however, is purely a pleasure tour, and for the purpose of renewing acquaintance with old friends of His Royal Highness' College days. He will traverse Canada, visiting Niagara Falls, and many eastern cities.

Sikhs Appeal to Mahratta Prince.

The spectacle of many Punjab Sikhs coming to a Mahratta prince for protection and championship, would be almost unbelievable in India, and illustrates the revolutionary influence of imigration upon the traditions and caste affiliations of centuries.

Whether the Gaekwar will undertake the honors and responsibilities thus thrust upon him, no man can say, but if he should consent to do so, the East Indians in America will have a sagacious councellor, and one deeply versed in all the subleties of diplomatic negotation.

According to old Anglo-Indians the Geakwar is to-day more in touch and sympathy with the English, and English standards and ideals, than with his own people and their lives. A Bruce County, Ont., Scotchman, Mr. Clarke, presides over the educational system of Baroda.

WEIRD DECISION OF PARIS JUDGE COMMENTED UPON

Surgeon Awarded Fee for Second Operation Necessitated by His Carelessness.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Paris, June, 18.—Have you had an operation for appendicitis and did the surgeon leave inside of the wound a sponge, a pair of scissors and a cigarrette stub? If he did, he had a perfect right to do so, according to a decision just made by a Paris judge, and you need not expect to have the articles removed free of charge.

The case was that of Louise Martens a young woman who contracted appendicitis, and was operated on by Dr. Picque, in the Bichat hospital. The surgeon forgot the sponge and as the wound would not heal, the error was discovered and a second operation was performed.

When a double bill was presented, Mlle. Martens not only refused to pay for the second operation, but asked for damages. The case was taken into court, and the judge, after his deliberations, announced that "even admitting the sponge was forgotten by the doctor in the course of the operation, this was a neglect which many circumstances can explain, and does not constitute a fault involving responsibility."

Much of the coment on this remarkable decision shows that the sympathy of Paris is with the young woman.

"Very simple," remarks one sarcastic editorial. "The doctor forgets in the obdomen a snuffbox, a time table and opera glasses, plus personal letters, but you have no right to complain. The doctor may ask, 'When did you have the operation?' and you answer, 'A year ago' Then the doctor may generously admit that the articles in question are your's since 'I have not claimed them within the legal time limit'."

Other commentators suggest that it must be annoying for a doctor to find that he has left his watch inside a patient but is unable to recall which one.

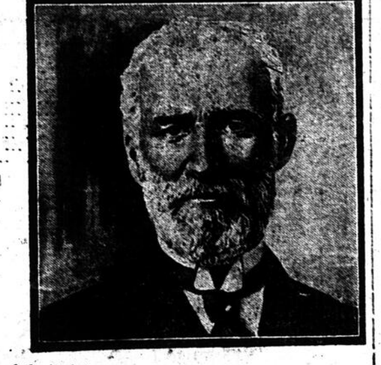
"The judge must be very healthy, since he has such a lack or regard for the insides of others," remarks La Liberte.

"I FEEL IT MY DUTY

To Give You a Statement In Regard to 'Fruit-a-tives'"

Hardwicke, Miramichi, N.B., Jan. 17th, 1910.

"I feel it my duty to give to you and the world an unsolicited statement in respect to the wonderful cure I received by taking 'Fruit-a-tives.' Chronic Constipation was the complaint I suffered with for years. My general health was miserable as a result of this disease, and I became depressed and alarmed. I was treated by physicians without the slightest permanent benefit, and I tried all kinds of pills and tablets but nothing did me any good.



"I saw the strong testimonial in favor of 'Fruit-a-tives' by New Brunswick's 'Grand Old Man,' the Hon. John Costigan, and I knew that anything he stated was honest and true and given only to help his fellowmen. I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and the effects were most marvellous, and now I am entirely well from all my Chronic Constipation that I suffered from for so many years. My general health is once more excellent and I cannot say too much to express my thanks for the great benefits derived from taking 'Fruit-a-tives.'"

A. G. WILLISTON.

"Fruit-a-tives" is not gotten up by druggists or expert chemists—who know nothing about disease and the needs of the human body—but is the scientific discovery of a well-known physician, and is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

KILLED HIMSELF TO FREE FIANCEE

New York, June 18.—Realizing that he was living in the shadow of death and wishing to spare the grief of widowhood to the girl he had promised to marry, Leon Guipon, who had won distinction as an artist, mailed to her a cheque for $7,292. Then he made a will disposing of his effects and, asking that his body be cremated and the ashes cast to the four winds, he sat at his easel and marked in faint outline the profile of a woman's face. Then he fired a bullet through his head and died in his studio, No. 360 West Twenty-second street.

He had written two letters, one to Miss Agnes Foster, daughter of A. J. Foster, president of the People's National Bank at Roxbury, Mass., and the other to H. C. Merrill, of No. 514 West 134th street. Miss Foster, who lives with her parents at No. 41 Winthrop street, Roxbury, was his fiancee. Mr. Merrill was his best friend.

Mr. Merrill was at home when he received the letter. It told him that if he would call at the studio he would find the artist dead. He hastened to the house and, calling a policeman, went to the studio. There was Mr. Guipon lifeless on the floor.

Everything in the apartment was in order. The man had laid a strip of matting on the floor beside the couch on which he was accustomed to sleep. His head rested on a cushion. He had used a mirror to make his aim certain. On the carpet near the mirror he had dropped his revolver.

They Have Cured Thousands

Father Morriscy's Famous Prescriptions Have Earned The Confidence of Those Who Have Tried Them.

Father Morriscy's "No. 7"

Cures Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble

There are different ways to relieve the wearing ache and grinding pain of Rheumatism—but only one way to cure it. That way is to clear the blood of the poisonous Uric Acid which, settling in the joints and the fibres of the muscles, causes all the suffering. This Uric Acid can only be removed by and through the Kidneys.

They are the natural filters of the body, whose work it is to take out of the blood the worn-out tissue and other waste matter that, if left in, so soon turns to poison.

Father Morriscy's "No. 7" acts directly on the Kidneys, toning them up to vigorous action. Immediately they begin to clear the poisonous Uric Acid from the blood, and in time remove it entirely, and with it, of course, the Rheumatism.

"No. 7" Tablets are most effective, and perfectly safe.

Price, 50c. a box.

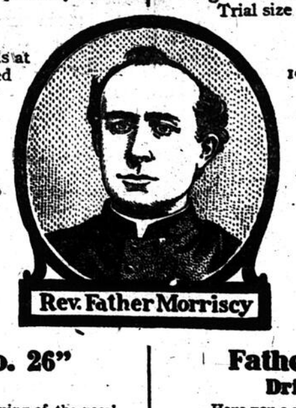
Mr. Barbarie, who is Registrar of Deeds at Dalhousie, Restigouche Co., N. B., suffered for years till a friend recommended Father Morriscy's "No. 7" to him. He tells the result:

Dalhousie, N.B., April 14th, 1909.

THE FATHER MORRISCY MEDICINE CO., LTD.

I suffered from Rheumatism for years and recently have been confined to my house with it with Doctors attending. A friend recommended your medicine and I tried your No. 7 Tablets and also your Liniment and can recommend them to all sufferers, as they certainly gave me relief and to-day I can get around as well as I could years ago.

Yours very truly,
JOHN BARBERIE.



Father Morriscy's "No. 10"

Cures Coughs and Strengthens Lungs

The man or woman who trifles with a cough—who lets a "common cold" run its course—who disregards a pain in the chest, that each full breath causes—is playing with death itself.

Father Morriscy's "No. 10", commonly called "Lung Tonic" is one of the safest and most effective remedies that has ever been used for these troubles. It not only relieves the cough and breaks up the cold, but it goes further, and actually builds up and strengthens the lungs and the whole system.

It is combined according to Father Morriscy's original prescription, from Herbs, Barks and Balsams, and does not contain a trace of Opium, Morphine or any other similar drug. It is therefore perfectly safe, even for babies.

Trial size 25c. a bottle. Regular size 50c.

Mr. Aylward got Father Morriscy's "No. 10" just in time to save his life. Read his story:

Campbellton, N.B., Feb. 5th, 1909.

THE FATHER MORRISCY MEDICINE CO., LTD.

During the winter of 1907, while travelling on the Gaspé Coast, I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs.

After I returned home I wrote to Father Morriscy explaining my case. I received a letter from him with a Prescription for his medicine, which could could not be filled at the time here. After one week's delay I received it just in the nick of time to save my life. After one month's use I felt like a new man.

Yours truly,
JNO. AYLWARD.

Father Morriscy's "No. 26"

Cures Catarrh

Colds in the head, neglected, soon get the lining of the nasal passages into a state of chronic inflammation, almost certain to lead the Catarrh. While the earlier stages of Catarrh are not immediately dangerous, they are disagreeable. The more advanced stages become loathsome and usually end in fatal lung or stomach diseases.

Unless something is done to check it, Catarrh almost always grows steadily worse, so that it is not safe to neglect it. According to the testimony of hundreds in the Maritime Provinces, the most effective remedy is Father Morriscy's "No. 26"—a combined internal and external treatment.

The tablets taken internally purify the blood and give the system added vigor to throw off the disease. The salve, applied directly to the inside of the nostrils, cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased tissues. The result, in almost every case, is a complete cure, even where other remedies have failed.

Price 50c. for the combined treatment.

Father Morriscy's Liniment

Drives Out Aches and Pains

Have you a really good Liniment in the house, ready for the many emergencies that are sure to come?

If you have a bottle of Father Morriscy's Liniment handy you can save yourself and your family hours of needless suffering, if nothing worse. It has been used for years by hundreds of the late Father Morriscy's patients, and has proved most effective for sore muscles—bruises—cuts—sprains—strains—chapped hands—chilblains—burns—frost bites—tooth ache—ear ache—back ache—pain in the kidneys—muscular rheumatism—swollen, aching or stiff joints—sore throat and pain in the chest. It is especially valuable in rheumatism if used externally while the "No. 7" Tablets are being taken. Similarly, it is particularly effective when rubbed on the throat and chest at the same time that Father Morriscy's "No. 10" is taken to cure coughs and colds.

Father Morriscy's Liniment is clean and pleasant to use, and a splendid "rubbing" liniment.

Price, 25c. a bottle.

These remedies are not new, nor are they in any sense "cure alls." Each prescription was worked out scientifically by the late Father Morriscy to cure a certain kind of disease. Each prescription has been tested for years, and has proved beyond a shadow of doubt that it will cure that disease. Each remedy is therefore worthy of a place in the family medicine chest ready for the need which is so likely to arise suddenly. Get them at your dealer's, or from

SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1910.

THE CHANGES OF THIRTEEN YEARS.

The Star had occasion a few days ago to deal with the article on Anglo-German relations, contributed to McClure's Magazne by Prof. Theodor Schiemann, of the University of Berlin. It showed that in order to represent Great Britain as meditating mischief to Germany, Professor Schiemann actually misquoted and gravely misrepresented articles published in 1897 by the Spectator and the Saturday Review. It is worth while to return to the subject, for a purpose rather different from that of our former article.

The Spectator article which Professor Schiemann quoted in so ingeniously uncandid a manner, appeared in January, of 1897. A German newspaper, the Hamburger Nachrichten, had inveighed against "the megalomania of England," had described the fighting strength of the Empire as a phantasm, and had declared that it wished that Great Britain only would try a war with Germany. Thereupon the Spectator, in a tone of pained gravity, peculiarly its own, undertook to prove to the Hamburg journal that its belief in the powerlessness of Britain was a mere hallucination. "Let us consider quietly and without heat," the Spectator said, "what would have happened had the State whose power is a mere phantasm tried the experiment of war with Germany last year"—i.e., at the time of the Kruger telegram.

The Spectator sketched the events which would follow a declaration of war in 1896 or 1897. The German fleet, hopelessly overmatched, would shut itself up tightly in port. German warships in distant seas would be promptly captured. German foreign possessions would fall easy preys to British expeditions from India, Cape Colony, Australia and England. The German merchant marine on all the oceans would be seized. German sea-borne trade would vanish, and subsidized steamer lines like the North German Lloyd, would be ruined. German trading houses in various parts of the British Empire would find it necessary to cease their operations, German ports such as Hamburg, would be closed. "What would be Hamburg's condition if practically not a single ship could leave it or enter it? Blockades are no doubt very difficult things to maintain strictly, but Hamburg is so placed that the operation would be comparatively easy. In truth, the blockade of all the German ports on the Baltic or the North Sea would present little difficulty." In a word, the British navy would establish itself in sight of the German shore line, not a German war-vessel would dream of putting out of its fortified harbors, and the German flag would be wiped off the map of the world outside of Germany.

The interesting thing is the marvellous way in which conditions have changed in the thirteen years which have elapsed since that article was written. It probably was in the main a correct appreciation of war conditions in 1897. How is it to-day?

1. The German North Sea coastline is absolutely impregnable to blockade. Advantage has been taken of the string of islands such as Borkum and Norderney, which mask it, to establish a series of fortified torpedo bases, which would force an enemy, however powerful, to remain out of sight, not merely of the coast, but of the islands off it. So far is Hamburg from being easy to blockade, that a vessel could get a good many miles from it before it could be attacked.

2. It is highly doubtful if any British war-vessel could enter the Baltic in war time, much less blockade the Baltic coast of Germany.

3. The German fleet, instead of being a few inferior vessels, which would scuttle to shelter on the first word of war, is now the second or third strongest in the world, is giving grave uneasiness to Great Britain, and might be as strong as the British Home fleet if it were necessary to send a powerful British squadron far away, say to the Mediterranean or the Pacific.

4. So that the prospective wiping of the German flag off the map would be conducted in the rear, not of an easy blockade of the German coastline, but of a desperately fought struggle in the North Sea. The swift liners, instead of lying up at the Hamburg wharves, are more likely to be attacking British commerce in the ocean, or serving as scouts to German battle squadrons. In a word, that which in 1897 was a walk-over in 1910 has become a serious proposition.

The contrast has been effected in a dozen years of work by the Germans. That is why the British Empire is turning its mind to ships of war.

THE KAISER AND M. PICHON.

Exactly what the Kaiser said to M. Pichon during their meeting in London at the time of King Edward's funeral is as much a subject for mystification as what M. Pichon replied to the Kaiser. The German as well as the French press have, each after their inclination, concocted or otherwise secured and published their respective versions, and each new report of the conversation differs from every other in all respects but one—that the question of the maintenance of the peace of Europe was referred to by both the distinguished statesmen.

In endeavoring to separate the wheat from the chaff, it is well to bear in mind that the newspapers of France were the first to give publicity to the fact that a long and intimate conversation had taken place—a fact which was incontrovertible—and to follow up this announcement with alleged details of what was discussed, how M. Pichon and the Kaiser differed and where they agreed—the greater part of which information is susceptible of confirmation only by the two gentlemen in question. This put the tactical advantage in any discussion which was to follow with the French since it forced the Germans to open their game with the customary formal denials and semi-official reflections on the good manners of making public a private conversation. When, therefore, we learn, through Le Matin, that the Kaiser expressed to the French Minister his confidence in the maintenance of European peace, and that he also waxed generally eloquent on the subject of an agreement between the European States which should ultimately develop into a League of Peace, prefaced by universal disarmament, we must make allowances for both the traditional enthusiasm of the Kaiser in discussing large subjects, and the natural tendency of a French editor to make as much as possible of any German indications of a desire to curtail warlike expenditures.

The German denials, however, are neither very vituperative nor very sweeping. The North German Gazette, for instance, contents itself with admitting that the Emperor gave M. Pichon personal assurances of his determination to do everything in his power to maintain the peace of Europe and denying that the matter of a European federation formed part of the conversation. The beautiful thing about a denial of this kind is the number of loop-holes it leaves for subsequent evasions, should they prove to be necessary. There is a wide difference between an agreement between states and a confederation of states; while the Kaiser might casually discuss the first he could hardly be expected to admit the possibility of the second except on terms which could not well be mentioned before a representative of the French Republic.

If the incident ultimately narrows down to nothing more portenteous than a long and friendly conversation, it may still have its important results. There are so many cases on record where the manifestation of a little friendship between great nations might have averted very costly misunderstandings that the world is disposed to welcome a kindly disposition even if it does not get farther than the stage of generalities.

CHASING THE CHILDREN.

The by-laws of Montreal forbid "skating" on the streets. It is desirable that this should be so. It is well to remember, however, that this by-law was passed many years ago, and that "skating" meant the use of blades on the ice. Similar by-laws are to be found on the statute books of almost every community where they have ice in the winter. It was never the intention to have this apply to what is known as roller skating. Until recently there has never been any attempt to so apply it. Now, the police in Montreal have instructions to put a stop to roller skating on the streets and, in obedience to orders, are making themselves a terror to the little ones. There was something pathetic in the question of the little chap who wrote to the editor of Notes and Queries in Saturday's Star to know if he really was committing any crime in using his roller skates on the pavement near his own home in Laval avenue. A policemn had threatened to arrest him.

In every town and city of this continent, even those which are very models of neatness and law and order, as for instance, Washington, D.C., and Boston, Mass., the children out in the residential sections, away from the busy traffic and the street cars, are to be seen constantly roller-skating to and fro, in the neighborhood of their homes. Not only do the police not interfere with them, but they protect them from the annoyances of roughs.

It seems that the cause of recent activity in the police in chasing the children is that "complaints have been made." There are some people who feel a "grouch" if they see children alive at all; the gay laughter of little ones, the harmless enjoyment of youth seem to them an offence. They try to imagine themselves philanthropists—save the mark—when they stop children from laughing, talking or playing on the streets.

Our laws and by-laws are not made to enable such people to interfere with their neighbors, big or little, and if they are made use of for that purpose, we should have our by-laws changed. If so harmless an amusement as roller-skating is to be made a crime, and the children are to be placed at the mercy of any who choose to complain of them, the by-law should be changed to read that there shall be no skating on any streets on which there are car lines, and none permitted on the other streets between the middle of November and the middle of April. We cannot afford to allow our children to be made criminals where it is not necessary. Incidentally it may be mentioned that in Westmount the children go to and from school on rollers, but Westmount is not one of the "keep-off-the-grass' communities, anyway.

SWEET AUBURN.

"Gentlemen: I am glad to see you all here to-day." The speaker was Colonel William F. Cody, and he was addressing 1500 convicts on Wednesday at Auburn, N.Y., before giving them an exhibition of his Wild West performance. The introduction reads like a bad break—but it was cheered so enthusiastically that the colonel declares never had he such an ovation in his life. Why not? Where could the 1500 gentlemen get more considerate treatment from their paternal government? Last Sunday they had a Rubinstein-Beethoven sonata recital by Thomas M. Osborne and Peter Kurtz. Where else would the 1500 gentlemen get sonatas and Wild West shows, performed for their amusement and edification at their country's expense?

"Sweet Auburn, loveliest village of the plain,
Where health and plenty cheered the laboring swain,
Where smiling spring its earliest visit paid,
And parting summer's lingering blooms delayed—
Dear lovely bowers of innocence and ease."

As Mr. Uriah Heap observed to his visitors in the prison, "There's nothing but sin everywhere — except here." "The best wish I would give Mr. Copperfield and all of you gentlemen is that you could be took up and brought here." "I pity all who ain't brought here." The yellow kids of New York will be thinking of Auburn rather than of Heaven when they sing:

"Oh, what must it be to be there!"

They may be able to get along without the refining influence of their sonatas, but think of a free circus!

FROM THE STAR FILES THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The Late Queen Victoria.

"A curious fact is noticed by the Rev. Ayerst in a paper in the 'last 'Indian Antiquary' on Garo Hill tribes, which is that they have included Queen Victoria 'The Mother of the Feringhis' among their goddesses, and worship her as they do Mahadeva."—From The Montreal Star, June 18, 1880.

THIS might have seemed strange if it existed in Christian rather than a heathen land but to these tribe people who were in the habit of selecting all that was to their minds beautiful and noble as proper objects of adoration it is difficult to imagine a more beautiful personality to absorb in their mythology.

"A writer in the London Times states that Russian exiles in Siberia are very much better off than is generally supposed. Each one receives daily a pound of meat, four pounds of bread and plenty of tea, while their children are well cared for and educated in schools, their clothing is suitable and sufficient."—From the Montreal Star, June 18, 1880.

"The Polynesian reported aground at Port St. Francis, was floated yesterday, and will arrive in port about nine o'clock this morning. She is expected to sail for Liverpool with passengers and mail this evening."—From the Montreal Star, June 18, 1880.

THE late Hon. Thomas White once crossed on this ship, and in a characteristic letter describing the voyage he spoke of her as the "Rolling Polly," a name that stuck to her.

Thank Committee.

At a meeting of the Executive of the Victorian Order of Nurses in their new headquarters, 29 Bishop street, resolutions were adopted unanimously thanking the various committees for their good work in connection with the recent Dominion Park fete. Mrs. J. B. Learmont, presided and reported that the affair had been a great success in every way. Mrs. Leo was joint convenor fo the boxes and tags. Her assistants were Mesdames Goldstein and Goltman, Misses Annie, Tessie and Beattie Samuel, Rosalind and Gracie Lewis, Jeannette and Zerlina Blout, Annie Ballon, Sara Levinson and Rose Harris.

AT THE ALTAR RAILS.

At a marriage service performed some time ago in a little country church in Berkshire, when the minister said, in a solemn tone: "Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" instead of the woman answering for herself, a gruff man's voice answered:

"Oi will."

The minister looked up, very much perplexed, and paused. He repeated the sentence, and again the same gruff voice answered:

"Oi will."

Again the minister looked up surprised, not knowing what to make of it, when one of the groomsmen at the end of the row said:

Another Ten Storey Office Building Will Soon be Erected on St. James Street

Work of Demolishing Old Building Now Under Way, and New Building Will be Completed by End of Year--Big Deal on River Front Consummated.

St. James street will very shortly have another sky-scraper.

The Yorkshire Insurance Company secured this week a building permit to erect a ten-storey building on the land on which is situated No. 136 St. James street, near the south west corner of St. James and St. Francois Xavier streets. The work of demolishing the old buildings has already started, and construction of the new edifice will be pushed as rapidly as possible. At the time this property was purchased the sale price of over $40 per square foot was the record for St. James street. Shortly after the deal was concluded a syndicate offered the Yorkshire people $50,000 on their bargain but this was refused. The lot measures 35 feet on St. James street, and has a depth of 70 feet or less, as it is somewhat irregular as to form.

Mr. Wickham, the Canadian manager of the Yorkshire Company, stated today that the new ten-storey structure would be constructed under the architectural supervision of Messrs. Saxe & Archibald, and would be 130 feet high from sidewalk to cornice. The cost including the price paid for the land will be something over $200,000. The architects state that either sandstone or glazed English terra cotta similar to the material used in the building at the corner of St. Alexander street, and the new Lake of the Woods building, will be put in to the new edifice. It is hoped that the structure will be completed by the end of December next, but the company will not occupy the new building until May 1st, 1911.

It is proposed to rent the new building to parties who will take the whole space of each floor. On the ground floor about 2,200 feet of space will be available, while about 1,800 feet will be secured on each of the nine upper floors. Mr. Wickham stated to-day that he thought the new building would rent easily as it will be located on one of the most favorable portions of the street, and it his opinion that the building will pay 8 per cent. on a capital of about $200,000. As for the ground floor there is talk of a rental of $6.00 per square foot.

Big Deal on River Front.

The farm property owned by Pierre Vincent on the eastern boundary of Longueuil and immediately opposite the new dry dock in Montreal has been sold to Messrs. Wilks & Burnett. This property comprises 74 arpents with a frontage on the river of 3 1-2 arpents. The price is understood to be in the vicinity of $30,000 which is considered a very reasonable figure in view of the developments under way in this locality. This purchase is in conformity with the trend of events in real estate on the South Shore, there having been a great deal of activity of late on that side of the river.

It is also stated that the Mills Farm at Notre Dame de Grace, containing 164 arpents, has been sold for $260,000. This farm is situated between Montreal West, and New Westmount, and extends from the upper Lachine road on the south to the Cote St. Luc road on the north. The purchaser is not known, but it is hinted that the Montreal Exhibition Company are the purchasers. The Grand Trunk and C. P. R. lines run through the southern section of the property.

St. Catherine St. Corner Sold.

Sales of property on St. Catherine street were not so numerous during the present week, though the land and buildings at the corner of that street and Champlain sold by forced licitation for $31,501. The property belonged the the Eugene Belanger estate and was sold to Mr. Theodule David, of Amherst street. The property has a frontage of 43 feet and is 87 feet deep brings the price to about $8.50 per with an area of 3,741 square feet. This square foot, which is a very good figure, considering the sale was by the authority of justice.

Mr. A. P. Stewart, a local grain importer, was one of the big buyers of land during the present week. He purchased the property in Cote des Neiges known as Fern Grove, and bounded by Cedar, Crescent, and Lakeview avenues, and paid $29,651 for it. The area of the property is 171,224 square feet. He also purchased several sub-divisions in Westmount for $20,955. Mr. Stewart is a firm believer in the future of Montreal, in fact, he believes the city has just started to grow. He thinks that as an investment propostion there is nothing to beat real estate on the Island of Montreal.

Experiences of an Old Real Estate Agent

Some men make fortunes buying real estate; others don't. The following will illustrate why "others don't."

A man called to buy a building lot. I offered him a 50-foot lot on one of the best avenues in Westmount, above Sherbrooke, with water, gas, sewers, electric light, cement sidewalks and gulleys all in, at 30 cents a foot.

He thought it dear, and went away. I met him later, and he joyfully informed me he had made a grand purchase of a lot in a field in Notre Dame de Grace, two miles west of mine, without water, gas, sidewalks or sewers, and had paid 25 cents a foot for it. He talked of its magnificent future.

I had only an actual accomplished present to offer him. He preferred to bank the same money for an illusive future. Do you catch the point?

I don't say his 25c land is dear, but if it is not, how absurdly cheap my land must be.

My lot is still unsold. If you care to look it over, a 'phone message to my office will bring you full particulars. If you prefer Notre Dame de Grace, why I can sell you some 33,000 feet there at five cents a foot.

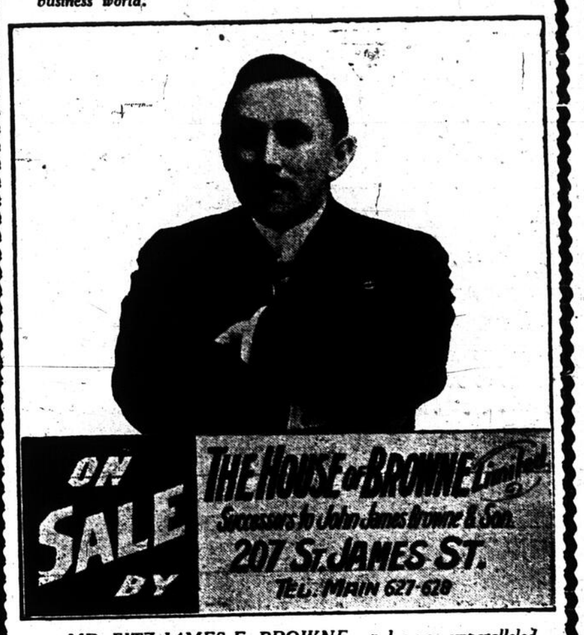
ORIGINALITY in ADVERTISING

Is a "Sign of the Times."

Our signs are seen on every hand, but right here we would remind the public that it is not the sign, but the man behind the sign who commands the respect, admiration and confidence of the business world.



MR. FITZ-JAMES E. BROWNE, whose unparalleled knowledge of the Realty business stands behind every sign of this Company, is admitted to be the leading Real Estate Exponent in the world.

He will offer by Auction the following properties, to be closed out for parties leaving town on date mentioned below —

CORNER CRAIG WEST AND ST. ALEXANDER ST.

This is one of the last properties obtainable on the most valuable section of Craig street.

We would invite your most minute consideration of this proposition You will note by plan (obtainable from us) the fact that this site is within a stone's throw of many of the most important banking, commercial and other buildings in Montreal, and faces Greenshields, Limited, large warehouse. On St. Alexander street immediately adjoining this property there has just been completed the new six-storey offices and warehouse of McFarlane, Son & Hodgson, Limited.

The width of Craig street is 80 feet and at least six street car lines pass the property, with others passing close by.

The property is practically vacant now, the size being 81.4 x about 150 ft.; total area, 11,920 feet.

As an instance of the increasing favor with which this business thoroughfare is being regarded by Montreal's shrewdest financiers, we would call your notice to our recent sale of the corner of St. George street at $6 a foot; size 96 x 167 ft.

Corner properties in the business section of Montreal are seldom offered for sale. The value of this particular corner has more than doubled within the last few years, and it will double again. Like every other prediction made by our firm, the future will verify this assertion. Consider and be convinced.

107 LEWIS AVE., WESTMOUNT.

A comfortable solid brick cottage, occupied by the owner, who will grant immediate possession to purchaser. The property is in first-class condition, and the lot contains 1805 square feet.

Lewis avenue runs off St. Catherine street, being four blocks west of Metcalfe avenue.

50, 52, 54 PINE AVE. EAST.

This nice block of three brick cottages, on stone foundations, is situated corner of Colonial avenue; the frontage on Pine ave. being 59 feet; total area, 2526 feet. No. 50 is rented at $22 and No. 54 at $24 a month, while immediate possession will be given of No. 52. City assessment is $7,400. Terms of payment, $2,000 or more cash, balance 6 per cent.

18 to 24 FULFORD STREET.

This property is situated on the corner of Workman street and consists of a lot 80 feet x 80 feet, with frontage on the two streets mentioned. The revenue derived from the brick encased buildings thereon is $600 annually, and there is never any difficulty in procuring good paying tenants. The mortgage is $3,500.

90, 92, 94, 96, 98 ROY ST.

Situated corner of Cadieux street is this well-located new block of stores and dwellings, in the centre of a populous and growing portion of the city, where realty values are ever increasing. Property is in first-class order; has open plumbing, hot water furnaces, and the rental can be increased by judicious management. The lot is 78 feet x 27 feet; city assessment, $10,000; yearly rental, $1,366; mortgage, $6,742 at 5 per cent.

1648 to 1658 ST. DENIS ST.

A new building of six flats erected last year, containing all modern appliances, open plumbing, Daisey furnaces; rented last year, $1,740. Location is north of Laurier avenue. City assessment, $16,000; mortgage, $9,000 at 6 p.c.; lot 50 ft. x 103 ft.

127-129 LUSIGNAN ST

Stone front tenement in good repair, with brick encased shed in rear. The lot is 24 ft. 96 ft. 8 in. Yearly revenue, $546; city assessment, $5,500, and situation is between St. James and St. Antoine sts.

591 ST. PAUL STREET.

Seize the opportunity now afforded you of purchasing a factory or warehouse property in the centre of the city at a sacrifice.

This property is located just west of McGill street and is in close proximity to railway, lake and river steamers, and has other factors tending to give exceptionally good shipping and receiving facilities.

The portion of St. Paul street west of McGill street is also unusually wide. The light to building is good. The ground is 30 ft. 6 in. x 74 ft. Total superficies, 2165 ft.

THE SALE WILL BE HELD AT 138 CRAIG ST. WEST (Near Bleury Street), ON WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29TH, AT 11 A.M.

Some Interesting Facts About The Growth of Montreal

No City in Canada holds out the tremendous possibilities for Real Estate Investments that are to be found in Montreal to-day.

Real Estate in close proximity to the City, which, a few years ago went begging at 5c a foot, is now selling for a $1.00 a foot and upwards.

These values are not to be wondered at when you consider the marvellous growth which is taking place.

This growth can be better illustrated by the following facts showing the strides which have been made in ten years.

In 1900 the population of Montreal was about 250,000; to-day it is over 600,000, an increase of over 140 per cent. in ten years.

The Bank clearings in 1899 were about $794,000,000; in 1909 they had increased to over $1,866,000,000, a gain of over 135 per cent.

There passed through the Montreal Custom House goods to the value of $8,640,000 in 1899; in 1909 this had increased to over $15,000,000, making a gain of over 73 per cent.

The total assessment value of property in Montreal in 1899 was about $182,000,000; in ten years, 1909, it had increased to over $398,000,000, showing a gain of over 118 per cent.

In 1899 the Street Railway carried about 52,000,000 passengers; in 1909 over 127,000,000 passengers were carried, showing a gain of over 144 per cent.

The Real Estate transfers in 1899 were slightly over $9,000,000; in 1909 they had increased to over $31,000,000, showing a gain of over 240 per cent.

When increases like these have taken place in ten years time, what will the gains be four or five years from now?

Montreal must grow, and grow fast, because it is the channel through which the products of Canada find their way to the European markets—the great shipping centre of Canada.

The fact that the population of Montreal has almost trebled within the past ten years, at a time when the country was being slowly settled and the undeveloped resources practically unknown, shows that, with the tremendous growth now taking place all over the country, Montreal must more than double its population within the next four or five years to keep pace with this outside growth.

In the history of Montreal Real Estate, there has never been a boom.

Values have gone rapidly but surely upwards.

One of the most unique offerings in Real Estate just now in Montreal, as a suburban home site is Rapids Farm.

This property is situated opposite the Lachine Rapids on one of the finest points on the Lower Lachine Road, and is easily reached by Street Cars.

The Farm has been purchased by a syndicate of capitalists, and it is intended to make it an ideal suburban residential district.

The plan of the property illustrated will show you exactly how this farm has been divided.

We believe in a Greater Montreal—we believe that in a few years from now the whole island will be thickly populated, and the population of Montreal City must grow in the direction of Rapids Farm Subdivision. This part of Greater Montreal is bound to become among the most valuable on the island.

Rapids Farm is a property which to-day offers tremendous possibilities to the investor.

The plan for the disposal of this property is a most unique one, full particulars of which are given in our booklet, "Some Facts About Rapids Farm Subdivision." Send for the booklet to-day.

SAVE SOME OF YOUR EARNINGS

Unless a man puts aside some part of his earnings, he must always expect to live a hand-to-mouth existence. The man who spends every cent he earns, particularly if he is an employee, is all the time at the mercy of his employer, no matter how indispensable he may be. The man with money saved can dictate his own terms. If sickness overtakes him he has something to fall back upon. Why not put yourself in an independent position to-day, by saving some part of your earnings?

If you should be laid up a week from now, has any provision been made to cover a period of sickness? But, it's just as important to know how to invest your money as to save it. It's just as easy to have it earn 25 to 50% as 3 to 4%. It's only a matter of the way you invest it. No absolutely safe investment offers greater opportunities than the following well-situated properties.

Don't think that in order to buy property, it's necessary to have a lot of money saved. You can begin to-day owning a Lot of your own, by making a small initial cash payment and paying the balance in easy monthly terms.

WINDSOR PARK

A comparison of prices asked for other subdivisions along Sherbrooke Street, with Lots at Windsor Park, will convince you that there are no better land values than the latter. A feature which makes Windsor Park different from most other subdivisions, is that provision has already been made on every Lot for lanes. A 25 foot Lot, for instance, where provision is made for a lane, is equal to a 40-foot Lot where no allowance has been made. Why then buy a 40-foot Lot and have to allow for a lane, when you can get a 25-foot Lot at Windsor Park, where a lane is already provided? No streets are less than 66 to 75 feet wide, and are different from most properties in this respect, where the streets are 50 to 60 feet wide. Take any St. Catherine Street car going west, pay a 5c fare and ask the conductor to give you a transfer to a Notre Dame de Grace car. Ask the conductor of the latter car to let you off at Royal Avenue, where you will find our offices. Lots are now being sold from $200 and up, payable 5% cash, balance in monthly payments of $3.19 and up.

QUEEN'S PARK

This property is well built up, has all city improvements, with schools, etc. It is completely encircled by the street car line. It is a beautiful spot for a home site, being quite close to the River St. Lawrence. Cool breezes from the Lachine Rapids keep this property at a pleasant temperature Any Wellington car going west will take you direct to this property. Our office is at the corner of Rielle Avenue and Lower Lachine Road. Lots are now being sold from $450 up, payable 5% cash.

ORCHARD GROVE

This property is being rapidly bought up. One of the features which makes it attractive is the fact that monthly payments are made without interest, that is, you can buy a property for $200 and up, pay $10 cash, and no interest is charged on the subsequent monthly payments. Everything points to the installation of all city improvements at Orchard Grove, within a few months. Any Notre Dame car going west this afternoon, will take you to Orchard Grove. Ask the conductor for a transfer to a Cote St. Paul car, and tell the conductor of the latter car to stop at St. Patrick stree. A few minutes' walk will take you to our office.

Offices on all the above properties are open week-ends. Further particulars will be gladly suplied by

"GIVE YOUR SON A DEED"

If, by way of illustration, you will review the history of the men in your town who have made money out of real estate, you will find that in each and every instance their profits were made from real estate acquired at ground floor prices.

More money can be made by those who acquire a realty interest in a town at its inception per dollar invested than from investments made after a period of years.

Do You Know That You Can Purchase With $5 Cash a Full Sized Residential Lot in Bow City, Alberta, the logical location for a great city, a city which is destined to be known, the world over, as a market place annually for hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, grown on the vast irrigated fields surrounding Bow City, a shipping point for coal from the great Bow Centre Collieries, and a purchasing depot for hundreds of prosperous farmers resident throughout Southern Alberta.

To-day is your opportunity to acquire an interest in Bow City at the ground floor price.

It will be too late six months hence, to apply for a lot in Bow City at the present prices and on such easy terms as are offered you in this advertisement.

Why not follow Russell Sage's advice, given in a letter published some years ago, to the fathers in the Western States:

"Buy your son a lot in a town being the "centre of a great agricultural country— "when he comes of age that lot will be "worth considerable money and will pro- "vide a handsome stake for him in life; it "is at least most substantial life insurance. "—sure and certain."

Buy your son a $50.00 lot in Bow City, the coming metropolis of the Western prairies. In a very short time he can re-sell the same at a big increase, which money he will find advantageous in business pursuits or in a college course.

Bow City, the Centre of the Great Granary of Southern Alberta, has a future concerning which no sane business man or banker has any doubt.

When you are assured of the success of the city, when you have proven to you beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bow City will, in the very near future, be one of the most active, one of the most progressive towns on the Western prairies, you should not hesitate to acquire at least one $50.00 residential lot, when same is on sale on such easy terms as 10% cash and the balance 10% per month until paid—a deed at any time.

Bow City is in the heart of a famous irrigated farming belt whose farmers are assured of a crop every year. They are prosperous and their prosperity will naturally enhance the value of Bow City real estate.

The great coal mines of Bow City will furnish work for 1,000 to 1,500 miners daily—these miners will constitute a substantial basis for a successful city.

The present owners of Bow City have decided that no licenses shall be issued for the sale of spirituous liquors; they intend that this great mining and agricultural centre shall be free from any traffic in intoxicating drinks—it will be a clean city.

Bow City is the headquarters of a railway which taps a territory unparalleled for richness in crops and natural resources.

The Sale of Bow City Lots Opened But a Few Days Ago.

If you are desirous of acquiring a $50.00 residential lot close in you should lose no time in making application by wire direct to the General Agents of the townsite, or to the nearest sub-agent.

Do not delay by sending your application by mail.

Wire at once your reservation for one or more lots. On receipt of wire, your name will be placed on the closest in unsold lot or lots and same will be held in your name, allowing you sufficient time for your cash payment, mailed same day you wire, to travel from your home to the head office.

You may find it to your advantage, if you are desirous of securing a business opening, or a business lot, to write for a copy of the plans, booklets and descriptive matter concerning Bow City, all of which may be had on application, free of charge.

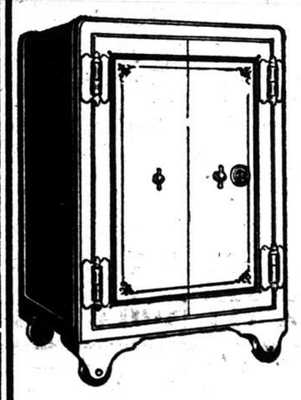
SAFER THAN A SAFE



Money put in real estate is safer than money in a safe. Land is the safest thing on earth. Financial panics may destroy banks and industrial enterprises, but they cannot possibly destroy a single foot of land. The yearly increase in the value of land in and around Montreal is enormous. The man who owns land is a King. He owns something which he absolutely controls. No other investment gives the same feeling of personal independence.

Nine out of ten wealthy people have made most of their money out of land. Put your money in Greater Montreal Land. It is the safest place you will ever find, and it is the place where dollars have been doubling for generations, and will continue to double for ages yet to come.

SPORTING VIEWS AND REVIEWS

Hopefulness is a grand quality. Without hope human effort would be paralyzed and progress practically arrested. Life is made endurable by the hope that the morrow will made amends for the shortcomings of to-day, and that the future will fulfil the promises of the present. For instance, without hope the Royals would sink into melancholy and the Montreal lacrosse team would come to think that possession of the Minto Cup was not for them. And even when hope is not realized there is always the consolation that there are other things worth while that can be hoped for.

James Cosgrave, who is soon to put his fortunes to the test on the Hemley course, seems to be a very hopeful young man. For instance, he says so himself when he writes that "I feel at heart that I will be there at the finish, if I have to break a leg." In what way the fracture of a limb, either simple or compound, will aid him in winning a sculling match does not appear, still the expression of such a determination can be taken as an evidence of good faith. It is to be hoped that his hopes will not be blasted. It is the desire of his heart to bring the diamond sculls to Canada. If he succeeds he will be one of the distinguished men of his times. If he fails he will still be a plucky, Canadian sportsman. And that is something.

There are rumors of trouble in the ranks of the Pittsburg baseball team. No doubt these rumors will cause other members of the National League to think, if not to say, that when pirates fall out, honest men get their dues, the Chicago, New York and Cincinnati teams having come into theirs by outstripping Pittsburg in the championship race.

The rumor is denied, and it probably is false; but all the same, Pittsburg has been woefully backsliding of late. It may be due to the weather; it may be due to hard luck; possibly the quality of their opponents' playing may have something to do with it.

Cricket is looking up considerably, and every lover of outdoor sports should be glad of it. Cricket is a good old sport, British in origin and temperament, and suited to any country where grass grows and summer comes—and where there are men who love a recreation that calls for skill and physical soundness. Like trade, cricket seems to follow the flag, and that is why it has gone around the world, and men in far off Australia can now play it as well as it is played in its home in the tight little island in the North Sea.

The trophy recently presented to the cricketers of Canada is a fine recognition of the worth of the sport, and should materially tend to foster it.

An all-Canada championship trophy ought to give cricket a sort of national status. In the past its honors have been too narrow, too provincial.

The coming Montreal meet promises to be as attractive to the aviators as is a splash of molasses to a swarm of flies. The comparison that would naturally first suggest itself is that of moths about a candle; but that would never do, because moths sometimes get their wings singed; and it is to be hoped that neither that nor any other sort of an accident will happen to the aviators.

One attraction at the meet will be the man with the altitude record, who has been up in the sky one hundred and eighty feet beyond the mile. If he wishes to go higher at the coming mtet he is at liberty to do so, for the management are prepared to guarantee that out at Lake St. Louis there is air fit for breathing or for flying in up to three miles. Three miles from land on the ocean is the limit of territorial waters, and probably that rule of international law will now have to be applied to the air. When beyond that limit on the water a ship is said to be on the high seas; beyond three miles in the air a flying machine will be in the high sky.

Of course there is another theory, for there always is with respect to any general principle. This theory is that a country owns all the atmosphere above it, humidity and temperature thrown in. In this case the aviation management will own all the air above their field, even up to the line where air ceases and is replaced by that mysterious ether about which no one knows anything except that it is the element in which at widely separated intervals comets give long distance performances.

An expert accountant, whether chartered or otherwise is not stated, and who claims to possess some inside information, has calculated that if Jeffries wins he will be richer by $667,000; that victory for Johnson will mean $400,000; and that the loser, whoever he may be, will make $25,000. It is, therefore, somewhat a case of heads I win, tails you lose." There is something in it for the boys, no matter who gets the laurel wreath.

Having so large and so substantial a commercial basis, it has been suggested that those wishing to prevent the match are guilty of trying to do something in restraint of trade.

JOHNSON TAKES ON KAUFMAN FOR BOUT

(From Tom Flanagan, Special Representative of The Montreal Star in Johnson's Camp.)

San Francisco, Cal., June 12.—We quietly slipped into the gymnasium and stole a march on all our friends to-day, and donned the gloves with Al Kaufman for ten rounds. This bout was not on the schedule, so there were only a few near friends there to take a peek at the big black man and the big white man, when they started in to tear. And, oh, boys, they did tear into each other!

Kaufman looked so big and tough that Johnson could not resist the temptation of taking him on. He felt sure that Al was the very man he had been looking for during all these weeks, so he hurry jumped at the opportunity of going a few rounds with him. They stepped around and roughed it, and boxed and mixed for ten rounds, and it was a good workout for both.

Though he is far from being in the class with the champion in the boxing game and the ring generalship part of it, Kaufman loomed up faster and stronger and bigger than he ever did. He looked good to everybody, especially to Johnson. The champion vows and declares that he will back the California blacksmith when he stacks up against Sam Langford. If Kaufman can get a few days' work each day with Johnson, it should do him a world of good in every department.

Johnson sent in many a stiff one to the jaw and body of the blacksmith during their mix-up. Big Al took them all with his usual good-natured smile, and was always willing to come back for another rally. Al kept boring in nearly all the time, and he managed to put in a couple of telling ones to the champion's body. This is just what Johnson want's. His work was even faster than it has been against his other sparring partners and the fans all know his usual speed.

KAUFMAN IN GOOD SHAPE.

Johnson and Kaufman were out on the road for a 12-mile spin in the morning, and both of them finished like sprinters doing the 100-yard dash. Kaufman is in good shape after those two weeks at Harbin Springs, and a week with Johnson and the others at the beach figures to get him right to make a great showing against Langford. Kaufman weighs about 212 pounds. He will enter the ring weighing slightly over 200.

The members of Jeffries camp are all happy now that they can figure the dope on the big fellow better than they could some weeks ago. It is better than an even-money bet that if he spends a busy day on the road and at boxing he will not do any work the next day outside of travelling along the streams whipping them in search of game fish.

The big fellow has rounded to such grand condition that the members of his training staff are glad to see him go, as they are taking no chances of his going stale. They think that when he takes a day off it allows him to take on some weight and reserve force, so that when he goes into training the next day he will be full of vim. His handlers think he is so good that they would like to have the fight come off within a few days from now.

Jeff will not weigh himself; in fact, he shies like a colt when he sees a pair of scales. An effort will be made to send him into the ring weighing about 218 pounds.

The final week of his training will be a busy one for the trainers in this respect. They will try to keep him in good humor and keep his mind off the battle. Comedian Kelly is expected to do his part in the psychological training of Jeff during the final week, and he is getting up a new line of stories to explode.

AMATEUR BALL

Both the Stars and the Chenier clubs are confident of winning the big baseball match to-morrow afternoon on the Chenier's grounds, Davidson street, so those witnessing the play will, no doubt, see a high article of ball. The battery for the Stars will most likely be O'Hare and Schulick. The game will be called at 2.30 sharp.

Montreal Reserve at Voltigeur and Mascotte at Richmond, on Shamrock grounds. Two games are scheduled in the City League for Sunday, on Shamrock ground, the first game starting at 1.30 and the second one called for 3.30. These games should prove good contests, as a keen rivalry exists between the four clubs.

A. MURRAY WINNER OF CHAMPIONSHIP

Following up his good card of the morning, Albert Murray improved his second round by four strokes, and yesterday won the professional championship of Montreal and district, turning in an exceedingly creditable total of 150 for 36 holes.

Charlie Murray, of Royal Montreal, finished in second place, while Arthur Woodward, of Ranelagh, was in third position, with Jimmie Black, of Beaconsfield, following in fourth place, thus duplicating the result of play in the first round.

A summary of the two rounds follows:

	1st.	2nd.	Tl.
1. Murray, A., Outremont.	77	73	—150
2. Murray, C., Royal Mont.	78	77	—155
3. Woodward, Ranelagh	79	77	—156
4. Black, Beaconsfield.	82	83	—165
5. Desjardins, Royal Mont.	87	80	—167
6. Brault, Beaconsfield....	87	82	—169
7. Stevle, Outremont	82	90	—172
8. Quesnel, Royal Mont....	89	85	—174

It looked for a while yesterday as if Outremont was not to be blessed with good weather for the afternoon's play. While the players were enjoying luncheon the thunder threats of the morning were realized, and a couple of blasts shook down a stiff shower. This lasted for a quarter of an hour, after which the sun broke through, and the sky cleared. This came as a relief after the murky morning and rendered the afternoon playing conditions more pleasant. The rain did not harm the greens, but it rendered them rather more puzzling for the competitors. Albert Murray, however, seemed to have solved all the problems offered for his consideration, while his feillows were not so fortunate.

The winner showed good form throughout the day's play, and he came home in the second round with a rare burst, showing thirty-five for nine holes, with eight 4s and one 3. He ought to have had just as good a card going out, but he was punished for an erratic approach going to the fourth hole, finding the rough stony patch which borders the green, which cost him two strokes before he was in putting distance. Then he ran down a long putt. At the fifth his failure to run down a comparatively easy putt added an extra stroke, so that his final card ought to have shown three strokes less under ordinary circumstances. However, six over 4s in thirty-six holes is a fair preliminary to a championship meet.

Charlie Murray also joined the trouble brothers in company with his rival from over the river, and each has a horrid, wicked 7 staring out on the card, each performing the same trick at the same hole, the ninth, which is a standard 5 even for the average players. Jimmie Black repeated the trick at the same hole, taking three putts after a fine recovery from a cuppy lie, but then Jimmie explained that he wanted consistent forties in his card. Charlie Murray sent out some screaming drives, but he was rather unsteady on the greens, a fault quite visible throughout the list of competitors.

Woodward, the Ranelagh pro., showed that he is able to give the best of them a stiff run. He was steady through the green, but failed to make the best use of his putter, but at that he ran down the longest putt of the day, fairly gobbling the fourteenth in the morning round.

Jimmie Black showed much cleverness in his short game, but his proverbial hard luck on the greens clung to him with dogged persistency.

Some of the caddies and assistants had good cards, and Desjardins, the young man from the Royal Montreal shop, who won the prize for the best total turned in by an assistant, showed good golf ability, and may rise to higher rank. His card of 80 for the second round was the best performed by the lesser light.

OTTAWA HOCKEY TEAM TAKE TO AQUATICS

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, June 18.—Ottawa's famous hockey septette is gradually turning to the summer sports, and yachting is one of the pastimes that is occupying the attentions of the crack winter artists.

A month ago, Fred. Lake and Bruce Stuart, switched their allegiance to the water craft and Hamby Shore is the latest of the famous Silver Seven to take to aquatics. Sailoring, apparently agrees with the ice dogs of the Capital, and with three members of the team actively engaged in the sport, Marty Walsh, a purser on one of the big liners, and Bruce Ridpath, the world's champion canoe trickster, it will be seen that the Ottawa seven are capable of putting up a good performance on the water whether the frost has anything to do with it or not.

Shore, in partnership with Ernie Healey, has purchased a fine steam launch, in which he will take a party of friends to New York this summer. The boat is now being completed and when finished will be one of the finest craft on the canal. It is forty feet long, and is decked over, having a speed of about fifteen miles per hour. Gotham has entertained many great visitors, but the Ottawa boys promise to break all records in their trip to the American metropolis.

NEW BOAT TO BE LAUNCHED.

It Will Likely Be Launched on Saturday.

It was announced yesterday that the challenger for the Seawanhaka Cup will be in condition to be launched at the end of the week, probably to-day, but there will be no ceremonial attaching thereto. Every one who has had the privilege of inspecting the new craft, is sanguine as to her capabilities.

Can't Get the Track.

St. John, N.B., June 18.—The proposition of the Montreal Driving Club to lease the local park for running races has fallen through, as the local owners refused to give up the Dominion Exhibition dates.

FOR THE MONTREAL AND DISTRICT GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

Charlie Murray driving off the fifth tee at the Outremont Links. A. Woodward beside the tee box, and Mr. C. B. Grier and Albert Murray, the champion, sitting on the bench.

BIG GRAND STAND FOR AVIATION MEET

As the time for the inauguration of the aviation meet is drawing close, arrangements for the train service and price of admission to the aviation park, have been decided upon and completed.

On both the railways, Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific, there will be a twenty minute service from ten o'clock in the morning of each day of the meet. Special trains have been secured by the Automobile and Aero Club of Canada, and a most adequate service has been arranged for. The twenty thousand people that are anticipated to visit the field every day will be accommodated comfortably, and there will be no danger of overcrowding and the like.

Tickets for the grand stand and box seats at the meet will be on sale in a day or two, when seats and boxes can be reserved. Special prices for the occupation of a box or boxes for the entire length of the meet will be arranged with individuals or companies.

Box seats will cost $2 each, while other seats in the portion of the grand stand will be $1.50, others $1.00, and one section will be only 50 cents. Railway tickets and general admission tickets to the ground can be bought at either of the two orfices mentioned.

One of the most remarkable feats in rapid construction has been the building of the grand stand at the Aviation grounds.

A grand stand eleven hundred feet long, capable of seating between ten and twenty thousand people has been put up in less than a week. The man who has had charge of the construction of this immense structure is Mr. Geo. Stagg, who makes a specialty of such work.

In an interview Mr. Stagg gave some very interesting information as to the way in which he has accomplished this feat.

"When this proposition was put up to me," said Mr. Stagg, "that is, that I should erect a grand stand of this size in a week, I did not think it was possible, however, it was a case of have to. There were several difficulties to contend with that made it even a harder proposition than it would otherwise have been."

"All the lumber had to be unloaded from the main line of the C. P. R. between regular trains, this meant that when a car was half unloaded, it would have to be taken down to Beaconsfield and shunted on to a siding to let the regular train pass. In spite of this, however, we have managed to accomplish the task."

"The work started on Tuesday. I had sixty men, from these I selected six of the more intelligent and placed them in charge of sections. Each of the sixty men were then given a hammer and told to go to work. You see the result.

Mr. Stagg pointed to the long mass of frame work which had arisen as if by magic on the south side of the big open meadow where the "Meet" is to be held.

"You can imagine what a task it was. There are three hundred thousand feet of lumber (thirty cars). It took fifty kegs of six inch nails to put this lumber together. The timbers are all three inches by eleven."

The cost of erecting the stand will be about twelve thousand dollars. It is the biggest temporary grand stand ever erected in Canada and breaks all records for speed of construction. It was Mr. Stagg who fitted up the Coliseum for the motor show recently held here, as well as that held in Toronto.

Prizes Were Presented.

The winners of the Hemsley Cup race, which was held on May 24th, under the auspices of the Central Y.M.C.A. Harrier Club, were given their prizes last night. Mr. Ralph H. Dawson, president of the Amateur Harrier Union presided, and was assisted in the presentation by various representatives from the clubs of the union. Messrs. W. Munslow, W. Showers, A. Stevens and L. Daoust composed the successful Gordon team, who received medals.

The following were the recipients of gold, silver and bronze medals in order named: W. Munslow, Gordons; H. B. Harvey, Iolas; R. Bell, Central Y.M.C.A.; W. E. Lawrence, C.P.A.A.A.; W. Showers, Gordons; A. Stevens, Gordons; A. Lefebvre, Nationals; E. W. King Central Y.M.C.A.; L. Daoust, Gordons; J. Strang, Iolas.

JEFFRIES ANXIOUS FOR THE BIG FIGHT

Special to The Montreal Star.

Rowardennan, Cal., June 18.—If Jeffries has his way, either he or Johnson will be the undisputed champion of the world on the night of July 4th. The big fellow wants to fight on Independence Day. While he is naturally anxious to win back his laurels on the California soil, he is determined to fight on July 4th, no matter where the promoters decide to pull off the battle.

After a long conference with Jeffries, Manager Berger to-day declared that if the fight had to go to Reno, Jeffries would accept that ultimatum and would be ready to enter the ring on scheduled time. Jeffries is naturally aggrieved at Governor Gillet's action in waiting until the last moment to call in the law to prevent the mill, but he realizes that the Chief Executive has the courts behind him and that it will be useless to oppose Gillet's orders.

Jeffries philosophically added:

"I guess it doesn't matter much where I lick Johnson; just so I get to do it on July 4th. I hate the idea of waiting any longer. I want to know just as soon as possible where we are to fight, so I can get acclimatized. I guess it will be Reno." Jeffries has not for an instant let up in his training. He has been convinced that some way will be found to hold the fight, and so he has kept up his work.

While Jeffries himself will not admit it, his trainer himself feels some trepidation over the pulling off the fight in Reno on such notice. Jeffries has trained in an altitude of 300 feet; Reno is 5,000 feet above sea level, and the rarified mountain air taxes the heart and lungs of man who has done his hard work down below. It is admitted that this will be a slight drawback to both fighters, but Jeffries believes it will affect Johnson as much as it will him.

Will Stop Fight To-day.

San Francisco, June 18.—Governor Gillett has ordered Adjutant-General Lauck to have two companies of militia under arms and ready to stop the Langford-Kaufman fight to-day should any attempt be made to pull it off. General Lauck arrived here this morning from Sacramento and he is now in conference with the Governor.

Promoter Louis Blot, of the Langford-Kaufman fight, after hearing the Governor's decision, declared that he would hold the contest as "he had advertised it and compel the troops to stop the fight."

Goldfield May Be The Place.

San Francisco, June 18.—Tex Rickard announced to-day on receipt of a telegram from Maurice Sullivan, a merchant of Goldfield. It contained an offer of $120,000 for the fight, and Rickard, without a moment's hesitation, declared for Goldfield. The promoter, however, immediately qualified his decision with the phrase: "If no higher bid is received from a Nevada town."

However, the majority of fight followers feel certain that a Nevada town will be named as the scene of the Johnson and Jeffries fight, probably Reno, despite Rickard's statement to the contrary.

LONGBOAT WAS IN HIS OLD TIME FORM

Special to The Montreal Star.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 18.—Tom Longboat, running in his old time form, ran rings around Frank Nebrich in a 15 mile race here last night, defeating the Buffalo boy by over five laps in fourteen miles of the race, at which time Nebrich was ordered from the track by Dr. Hall, a physician, who acted as referee of the race. An examination showed Nebrich was suffering from acute indigestion, which, he said, attacked him after the fifth mile. It looked as if Longboat could have carried a load and beaten Nebrich. He indulged Nebrich with the lead of five miles, and then, in happy mood and with a broad grin, passed him easily, and continually lengthened the space between them. He lapped the Buffalo man at the ninth mile, and gained additional laps in the tenth, eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth miles, showing speed and form that made him famous. Longboat ran the fifteenth mile faster than the first and seemed just full of running, sprinting a full thre laps at the close. The track was ten laps to the mile, and Longboat's time was 1.26:08 3-5 Johnney Hayes was a spectator and chalenged the winner to a 25 mile race for $500 a side.

SMITH TO COACH CORNWALL.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Cornwall, Ont., June 18.—The Cornwall Lacrosse Club has engaged Alf. Smith, the well known Ottawa athlete, to coach the team for the balance of 1910. Wm. T. O'Neil, who has filled the position for several seasons was again offered the post, but has declined. It was felt, in view of Mr. O'Neil's refusal that an outsider would have more influence and Smith was the man selected. Cornwall is not discouraged over her two defeats and under Smith's tuition they expect to start the ball rolling the other way against the Tecumsehs in Toronto on June 25th. Smith will take charge of the team Saturday afternoon.

The following have been selected to represent Lachine 1st against McGill 1st in "A" Division League, on the McGill campus; R. S. Hart (capt.), L. P. Gibbs, E. H. Tohmpson, G. A. Watson, H. LARGE NUMBER OF HORSES AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, Ont., June 18.—Everything is now completed for what promises to be the best meeting that has ever been held by the Hamilton Jockey Club. There are more horses stabled at Hamilton than has ever been known on any race track in Canada during the history of racing. A couple of car loads arrived this morning, with practically no place to stable, so that livery barns in the heart of the city will be used.

The track is in lightning fast condition, although a light shower fell yesterday about noon.

The entries, which closed at noon today, were the largest and of the best class of horses that have ever been made at Hamilton. The feature event of this afternoon's card is the running of the Derby, which will bring eight of the classiest three-year-olds that have ever answered the call on any Canadian track. Sager, the great three-year-old owned by Barney Schreiber, arrived from New York this morning to start in this event. Jack Atkin coming along with him, and will be sent to the post on the opening event which will bring together a first class lot of sprinters, including John Griggin I., who won at Montreal.

The horses owned by A. Scott Ives, of Montreal, were the last to arrive and are stabled on the outside of the track. Many horses, which are on their way from Latonia, were notified that they could get no stabling whatever, so that they have to ship back again. The greatest interest is shown in the Derby as many of the best Canadian stables are well represented and those who will carry the colors have shown some good trials. The following are the likely starters and the boys who will ride: Stanley Davis, the Canadian boy, is on his way from New York to ride Sager, and Jack Atkin. The following are the other riders: Detroit, 110, Hammood, x Don Antonio, 110, Taplin, x William Pitt, 110, J. Wilson. Fulfil, 110, Devonport, Banives, 125, Burns, Collis Ormsby, 115, O'Connor, Sager, 117, S. Davis, Chief Kee, 122, Musgrave, Polls will not likely start.

There will be a shortage of riders due to the longer fields.

Baltimore Shut Out Royals--To-day's Lacrosse Matches

ORIOLES APPLIED KALSOMINE BRUSH

Special to The Montreal Star.

Baltimore, Md., June 18.—There was a decided reversal of form between Baltimore and Montreal yesterday over that of Thursday, and as a result the Dunnites had not the slightest difficulty in romping home with the second of the series to the strains of 7 to 0.

On Thursday it was the Orioles who could not produce the necessary bingle on a single occasion when a hit would have meant a run and yesterday Montreal assumed these honors, every one of them. An even dozen Canucks died on the sacks and there were a half dozen occasions during the course of the afternoon when a clean, healthy wallop would have put the Barrow clan in the running, but it was never forthcoming.

Vickers and Hunter started out as the opposing slab artists and the visitor lasted but one inning in which the Birds gathered three runs, although a pair of slip-ups by Kricheli in this session was responsible for two of the trio of tallies. Keefe took up the burden in the second round and from then up to the eighth he did right valiant service, allowing but one hit and a run during that time. In the eighth there was another grand blow up, and the feathered tribe did some tall clubbing which resulted in a trio of tallies.

With two gone in the first "Rube" passed Demmitt and Nattress and Jones received a life on Nicholl's slip-up, but Deal could not produce. Although Cockill and Yeager started off the third with clean bingles, there was nothing doing in the run getting.

In the sixth session Demmitt and Nattress started off with clean hits, but Vickers still kept up his good work in the pinches and no Canucks saw the home corner in safety.

Another pair of Royals died on the sacks in the seventh and two more met the same fate in the ninth.

The game was devoid of anything sensational in the fielding line, and the three runs that were put over in the initial chapter undoubtedly resulted in Montreal losing much of its customary ginger, at least judging from the work of Thursday.

AMERICA WILL NOT PLAY.

Trouble Between English and American Tennis Associations.

New York, June 18.—Unpleasant complications between the English and American lawn tennis associations seem imminent over the Davis Cup. The English national governing body, while disposed to treat the subject with natural conservatism, does not take kindly to the fact that the Americans have failed to fulfil a promise to play the international cup preliminary tie matches in that country.

The current issue of the English official organ, received from London yesterday, contains a copy of the letter from Dr. James Dwight, which supplemented his cable message stating that it would be impossible for the Americans to play in London.

Having played in the United States twice, in the years 1908 at Boston and 1909 at Philadelphia, upon partial assurances that this year the Americans would meet them on English courts, the Britons are disappointed.

SHAMROCKS MAY SPRING A SURPRISE

There ought to be something doing at the M.A.A.A. grounds this afternoon, when the two old rivals, Shamrocks and Montreal, meet in a schedule N. L. U. match. Both teams have been hard at work during the past week, and all the players ought to be in mid-summer form. The younger Shamrocks especially have been doing a lot of practicing, and several well-known lacrosse men have stated that they would not be surprised if the younger team should finally win out. The Montrealers, however, are none too confident, and have been practicing hard since their defeat last Saturday. Even resident Findlay is not confident of a victory, and states that the past Shamrock-Montreal matches have always proved close and interesting, and he expected to see the Irishmen give the champions the game of the season. If the weather is fine the match at the M.A.A.A. grounds to-day, will likely be the fastest game of lacrosse seen here this season. The match is scheduled to start earlier than usual to allow the intermediates to play their match immediately after.

FLANAGAN SAYS FIGHT WILL BE HELD

By Tom Flanagan, Representative of The Montreal Star in Jack Johnson's Camp.

San Francisco, Cal., June 18.—Everything is consternation here regarding big fight but believe unless I am a million miles at sea, harmony will come out of chaos. The fight will be held right here in San Francisco. We have all had our ear close to the ground as to how the state authorities regard the Langford-Kauffman fight to-morrow. Being favored by General Lauk of the state militia in a special interview, he assures me that no militia will be called out to stop this fight. Of course we were all in hopes that a precedent of this kind would be undertaken, yet the state authorities are reluctant to press issue and Martin, of the San Francisco Police Force, tells me that he has no reason or right to interfere with the wishes of the citizens of San Francisco to stop the fight.

P.S.—This is the first and only positive information given from this source to the sporting publishers.

FLANAGAN.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF.

A celebrated New York Aurist has been selected to demonstrate to deaf people that deafness is a disease and can be cured rapidly and easily in your own home. He proposes to prove this fact by sending to any person having trouble with their ears a trial treatment of this new method absolutely free. All people who have trouble with their ears are advised immediately to address Dr. Edward Gardner, Suite 272, No. 40 West Thirty-Third street, New York city, and they will receive by return mail.

BASEBALL NOTES

The local city championship league series will be resumed to-morrow, when the Montreal reserves and Voltigeurs nines meet at 1.30 p.m., and Mascottes and Richmond at 3.30 p.m. These games should draw a large crowd, as the teams are putting up a snappy article of ball and are on a par as to strength.

New York, June 18.—Before one of the largest crowds that has ever witnessed a college baseball game, Yale went down to defeat before Princeton, 7 to 5.

Catcher Frank Owen, of Toronto, now of the Minneapolis American Association club, and formerly a member of the Chicago White Sox, will attempt to catch a ball dropped 1000 feet from Glenn Curtis' aeroplane during the aviation meet at Minneapolis on June 25. Owen says it must have three trials, and that the ball must come within a hundred feet from where he is stationed. The highest a ball has ever been dropped and caught is 542 feet, from the Washington monument, Catcher Street, of the Washington team, performing the feat.

San Antonio, Texas, June 18.—John Brush, owner of the New York National League baseball club, accompanied by his wife and daughter, left San Antonio yesterday for Chicago after an illness that confined him to his hotel for several months. Mr. Brush, on his departure, appeared to be much improved and his physicians express confidence that he will make the trip north without bad effect. Mr. Brush was taken from the hotel to the station in a motor car and was wheeled to the train in a chair.

Explanation of Royal's Showing.

Sporting Editor, Star:

Sir,—It seems to me none of your many correspondents have hit the crux of the matter regarding the ball team.

If the ball grounds had been underdrained ten years ago, the management would have made thousands of dollars which have been lost from "wet grounds"—made enough to get the best ball material in America.

Each year the expense of surface draining, etc., has been very large, and will ever continue till the grounds are underdrained.

And, can a pitcher practise with a wet ball without putting his arm out of kilter? Can a team practice in a submerged meadow? I trow not.

The want of underdraining is the principal cause of the Montreals' position to-day.

DIG.

FOR BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

It is very probable that several rinks from the different Montreal lawn bowling clubs will take part in the big tournament of the Eastern Canada Lawn Bowling Association, which is to be held at Ottawa. This meet will likely have a record entry list, and a number of local clubs are already talking of making up their rinks for the occasion.

It was stated to-day that the M.A.A.A. club would very probably be represented by three rinks, while the Westmount and Valleyfield clubs are also likely to send rinks.

OTTAWA CRICKETERS WILL CHALLENGE

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, June 18.—There is every probability of the Ottawa cricket team challenging for the John Ross Robertson challenge cricket trophy this fall, and the Ottawa Club has mapped out a very extensive playing schedule, which will lead up to the final test for the cricket championship of the Dominion represented by the above cup.

Mr. M. G. Bristow, captain of the local eleven, stated that his club would certainly challenge for the cup, and as they were eligible under the rules, he thought that the game would be arranged for the latter part of August or the first week in September. Ottawas have an enviable record on their Western matches, and Capt. Bristow looks forward to the Ottawa Club carrying off the new trophy before the snow flies again.

The Ottawa eleven has been chosen to represent the Capital in the two days match with the University of Pennsylvania next Monday and Tuesday. The team has been chosen as follows: M. G. Bristow, captain; F. L. Periera, J. Johnson, R. T. Rankin, H. C. Campbell, H. Ackland, W. Knapp, F. C. A. Campbell, H. Thomas, J. Bradley, and G. Atkinson.

M.A.A.A. play Brooklyn Park baseball team at St. Lambert to-day, at 3 o'clock. M.A.A.A. are bringing over a strong team, in charge of Chaucer Elliott, coach.

The C. P. R. baseball team will play an exhibition game to-day against the Irish-Canadian of the Spalding League.

LACROSSE NOTES

The champion Montreal team has been working hard all week, getting into shape for the Shamrock game to-day. President Findlay is not going to take any chances of the Shamrock team springing a surprise.

Clarrie McKerrow is playing the same careful game that has put him among the best of defence players in the game.

George Finlayson is improving rapidly and is now ready to take his place on the defence end of the team. George has been taking advantage of the sun, and is doing a lot of light work keeping in condition.

This will be the last opportunity of seeing the champions work out before they go to the coast. When next they play at home the Minto Cup will likely be on exhibition here.

Hogan is suffering from "trop de bouillon," contracted in Toronto.

The Scott brothers are just as fearless and agressive as ever. "Si" is studying to qualify for an auctioneer.

The game between the intermediate Shamrock and Montreal teams should be almost as interesting as the big game.

Eddie St. Pere and W. McIntyre will handle the game, and they are both capable officials.

"Skinny" Aspell has been working hard for some time getting into shape, and is now showing some of his real speed. "Skin" is making a big bid for the team, and he may be seen in the line-up of the champions before the season is far advanced.

Al. Kane is playing a great game at centre field, and is just about the one best centre man in the big league at the present time.

There has been a remarkably large advance sale of seats for the Shamrock-Montreal game on Saturday. The old rivals always put up a good article of lacrosse.

Indianapolis, Ind. June 18th.—Walter Brookins in a Wright bi-plane broke the world's aeroplane record for altitude to-day, when he soared to a height of 4,503 feet. His motor stopped as he was descending and he made a glide of two miles, landing easily in a wheat field.

VISITORS TO OTTAWA.

CAPITALS EXPECT TO BEAT TECUMSEHS

Special to the Montreal Star.

Ottawa, June 18.—Only one change has been made in the Capital team that will face the Tecumsehs on the Island this afternoon, but with better condition and team work than they have yet shown this year, the locals hope to register their first N. L. U. victory today at Toronto.

Capitals got away to a bad start, losing a brace of games right off the reel, but the reorganization of the team and the change in management has worked wonders, so that the Maroons will take the field at Toronto to-day, fully confident of their ability to beat out Charlie Querrie's fast aggregation of Indians. Two weeks' extra work has made a big improvement, and while the Toronto papers are calling loudly for a Tecumseh win, the Capitals will prove to be a much bigger stumbling block than imagined, and it will be a surprise to many of the Ottawa team supporters if they do not carry off the bacon.

Capitals are taking fourteen men to the Queen City, and while only one change will be made, Coach Donaldson is going prepared for an accident and the entire squad may be seen in action before the day is out. The defence are playing grand lacrosse at the present, shifting of Whitely Eastwood having added speed to that end of the team. Alex. Seed will replace Eastwood on the home, the rest of the team remaining the same. The men are in better condition, and will put forth strenuous efforts to win.

Bob Taylor, of the M.A.A.A., will referee, in the absence of Peter Murphy, the Shamrock officer, who had been agreed upon. Taylor will be allowed to choose his own assistant.

The teams will line up as follows:—

Capitals—Hutton, Marsh, Goodwin, Pringle, Seed, Eastwood, J. Gorman, Butterworth, Seed, T. Gorman, Powers, Gaul.

Tecumsehs—Kinsman, Green, Yeaman, Graydon, McKenzie, Iors, Felker, Querrie, Murton McGregor, Durkin, McDougall.

See Scroggie's windows on St. Catherine and Peel Streets, for the wonderful display of merchandise and bargain values on sale Monday.

Hope for the Victims Of The Drink Habit

733 Drunkards Cured in 2 Years

In 1904, the Province of Quebec officially adopted the Dr. John M. Mackay Treatment for Drunkenness. Under the probation system, instead of a fine or jail sentence, the Recorders in many cases ordered this treatment. Some took it at home, making regular reports to the court.

Out of 773 cases so treated in two years, no less than 733 were permanently cured and restored to their families and to the community as good, hard-working citizens. In only 21 days of simple treatment apparently hopeless cases have been cured.

Unlike other treatments, no hypodermic or other appliance is required, and no inconvenient diet is prescribed. It does not upset the digestive system, but, on the contrary, increases the appetite for plain, substantial food. It does not depress or weaken the heart action.

The most gratifying results have invariably followed the introduction of the Dr. John M. Mackay treatment. Successful in 90 per cent. of the cases treated, it is surely by far the most dependable method of curing the victims of the terrible curse of drink. The cost is moderate.

Send to-day for official endorsements, reports of patients restored to health and happiness, and full particulars of this wonderful cure.

HIGH COST OF LIVING AND THE STOCK MARKETS

The fundamental cause of the current reaction in the stock market is due to the scarcity of new capital, and the scarcity of new capital is due to the high costs so generally ruling, and the unprecedented extravagance which prevents new savings. This, in brief, is the view taken of the general financial situation after a careful and interesting review of current conditions, just completed, by Wrenn Bros., of Boston. In part, they say:

"The downward trend of security prices the current year deserves special comment, since the decline was brought on by causes distinctly different from those which produced the breaks of 1903 and 1907. It is pretty clean cut as the principal cause of the break in 1907—that is, the cause without which it probably would not have occurred—was the exhaustion of the world's supplies of free or available capital (or loanable funds), in consequence of this scarcity of loanable funds, which itself was produced by the enormous volume of trade and production, interest rates rose to prohibitive levels, the expansion of business was forcibly checked, and the payment of debts and repayment of loans brought on drastic liquidation.

"The present decline, however, was caused not by any scarcity of capital, or money famine, or depletion of bank reserves—but rather by the over-expansion of general business, and the almost universal over-capitalization. General trade expanded more in the United States during the two years ended in November, 1909, than during the three years ended November, 1906, notwithstanding that the increase in our production of real wealth, namely commodities, was much smaller. A comparison of the trade and financial statistics of 1909 with those of 1906 shows large increases in practically every item representing expenditures, and very small increases, or else decreases, in practically every item representing incomes, or the production of real wealth.

"Capitalization of railways the past three years increased so rapidly that last year it required 27 per cent. of their gross income to pay interest and dividend charges, as compared with 24.9 per cent. in 1906, and with a normal average of 25.2 per cent.—the latter being based upon the returns of 1901 to 1907, inclusive. It may also be observed that while the quantity of farm production from 1902 to 1909 increased only about 5.19 per cent., national bank loans increased 66.3 per cent., and the amount of money annually spent for new building in fifty leading cities increased 112.6 per cent.

"This general over-capitalization, over-investment and extravagance raised average costs of living and of doing business to a point where it was no longer possible for our people to save money, or in other words, produce any new capital as fast as that capital was required by the growing financial needs of corporations and by the expansion of general trade. Curtailment and liquidation set in, not because of the scarcity of liquid capital, as in 1903 and 1907, but rather because of the scarcity of capital available for permanent investments.

"It is observed that the shrinkages in gross railway earnings, in the volume of foreign merchandise trade and in bank exchanges have been very marked; and an average of general trade returns made up from these and other items shows a fall from 205 last November to 189 at the present time. What is most needed now is a further general decline in commodity prices, and in costs, and a period of waiting in which to accumulate new capital. Thereafter we look for another period of rising stock prices and expanding trade; and in the meantime we believe there is practically no danger of any panic or any collapse of credit."

Tobacco Monopoly Causes Growling

Reuter's Paris correspondent says: There is much grumbling against the Government tobacco monopoly. After raising appreciably the price of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes of all except the commonest categories it has now curtailed the supply of wax vestas by reducing the contents of the penny box from 40 to 30. The enhanced price is also aggravated by a serious shortage in weight. A purchaser instituted proceedings, protesting that dishonest trading on the part of the State is no more justifiable than in the case of private individuals.

Tourists should be warned that they will be heavily taxed for any tobacco or cigars they may bring into this country. The idea that ten cigars are allowed in duty free is not admitted in the practice of the Customs House. A recent visitor declared nine cigars and was charged 2d on each, while some three ounces of tobacco, every grain of which was carefully weighed, was taxed exactly 100 per cent. of its retail cost. The officers declared they had the right to levy duty on a single cigar.

Earnings of French Match Monopoly

The annual report of the French match monopoly for 1908, just published, is summarized as follows:

The total receipts during that year amounted to $7,817,230, an increase of $395,155 over 1907. The net profits amounted to $5,634,615, or $155,829 gain. Ordinary wooden sulphur matches furnished 55.63 per cent. of the total quantity delivered to the public; wooden safety matches 41.16 per cent.; and wax matches, 3.21 per cent. The exports were valued at $6,157, being $4,120 less than in 1907. The average consumption per capita was 1,137 in 1908, representing $0.221.

The six match factories in France, all owned and operated by the State, are at Marseilles, Pantin-Aubervilliers, Treiaze (Maine-et-Loire), Aix-en-Provence, and Saintines (Oise). The average wage for a nine-hour day is $1.35 for men and $1.03 for women, against $1.24 and 85c in 1900, and 84c and 53c for a ten-hour day in 1890. The amount disbursed during 1908 for pensions, gratuities, medical aid and other benevolent purposes was $89,487, representing about 10 per cent. of the aggregate wage payments. The employees numbered 683 men and 1,219 women.

EXPANSION OF NICKEL MAKING IN THIS COUNTRY

The declaration of a 25 per cent. dividend by the International Nickel Co. has attracted considerable attention to this concern in mining circles.

It is probably not generally known that this company practically controls the nickel market of the world, and has ore reserves explored on its property in Ontario showing net values of $250,000,000, or enough tonnage to supply the company's needs for many years to come. It has large smelting plants at Copper Cliff, Canada, with a daily capacity of over 3500 tons, and extensive separating and refining plants at Constable Hook and Camden, N.J.

The company, since its organization in 1902, has shown a large growth, but the limited use of nickel has been a drawback that has not made it advisable to enlarge its plants to a capacity more commensurate with the size of its ore reserves. The company has been successful, however, in creating a demand where there was none before by the introduction of new compositions in which nickel plays a prominent part.

One of these compositions is known as "Monel metal," and last year the United States Government equipped the battleships Florida and North Dakota, as well as several other vessels, with propellers made of "Monel metal," and two Argentine battleships, now being constructed, are being similarly equipped. The American Sheet Steel Co., a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, makes extensive use of the metal and the Pennsylvania Railroad used it for the roof of its new terminal buildings in New York.

The fact that the company's sales are largely to steel manufacturers makes its business susceptible to the influences that govern the industry, yet the gross income of the company during the industrial depression following the panic of 1907 did not show proportionately, the large losses which some steel companies suffered during that period, as appears by the following record:

GROSS EARNNGS.

1907	2,853,281
1908	2,434,952
1909	2,162,693
1910	2,339,407

The remarkable increase during the last year is explained by President Monell as due to the broadening of the normal market and indicates the success of the company in creating a demand for its products.

To those who have watched the growth of the International Nickel Co.'s business, the declaration of a 25 per cent. dividend was not a great surprise. The company only began dividends on the common stock in September, 1909, when 1 per cent. was paid, which was subsequently increased to 1 per cent. and ½ per cent. extra. The company has, however, since 1906, set aside large sums under the item of "depreciation," which have been deducted from the amount applicable to dividends in its income account. During 1906-1909 inclusive there was thus set aside 1,700,000, equal to over 19 per cent. on the $8,912,626 common stock. The company last year earned about 17 per cent. on the common and showed a profit and loss surplus of $3,468,210.

The net earnings available for common dividends for a period of years follow:

NET EARNINGS.

1907	1,254,769
1908	790,009
1909	470,760
1910	1,532,783

Price Movement of British Securities

The London Bankers' Magazine says: Our list of representative securities shows a net decrease of nearly £10,000,000, but that fact, as we explain below, is due to the considerable fall in American railroad securities. The exact movement in our representative list of stocks is as follows:

Aggregate value of 387 representative securities on April 19, 1910, £3,726,464,000; on May 19, 1910, £3,716,915,000. Decrease, £9,549,000.

But for a shrinkage of £13,770,000 in American railroad shares, there would have been an actual small appreciation for the month. The heavy decline in American securities has been considerably recovered since our valuation was made, but during the greater part of the month the tone of that market was the weakest in the Stock Exchange, being affected by considerable uncertainty as to the general financial position in the States.

KODAK EXHIBITION AT STANLEY HALL.

If you want to get pointers in the art of photography go up to Stanley Hall to the Kodak Exhibition. There you can see the kodaks and other photographic apparatus with which the pictures is taken—of many sizes and varieties—and you can see the process of development worked out in the hands of expert photographers. There is no charge and nothing for sale. It is just a chance to learn.

This is the last day of the exhibition. There are demonstrations and lectures—two of them—this afternoon and again this evening; and this will be your last chance. The exhibition closes to-night.

The demonstrations are given by experts of the Canadian Kodak Company, who are up to all the wrinkles of the art. Their specialty is the abolition of the old dark room method of development and the substitution of development in daylight. By the use of the "Tank" developer, the photographer does not need to shut himself up in a dark room. He may have the pleasure of working by daylight and yet, as these experts demonstrate, may get just as good results as with the older and less pleasant method. In fact, the system is too easily worked, that one may carry on other occupations while waiting for the action on the films of the developing solution.

Around the walls are excellent examples of photography which have been enlarged from kodak pictures. The originals were the work of amateurs all over the world. The enlargements are specially notable for their clearness in detail and for tone and color effects. There are several pictures in which clouds play a prominent part, and it is amazing to see the faithfulness with which the sky shadows and sun effects are reproduced.

The exhibition is being held in Stanley Hall.

AFTER THE RUBBER GAMBLE IN THE LONDON MARKET

A Stock Exchange correspondent of the Economist writes: "Whether a boom ever results in permanent benefit to the Stock Exchange—whether it is not often positively mischievous to the markets as a whole—is a problem of perennial speculation, not only to members, but to a very wide circle of the public. The public would probably not think about the matter at all if it were not driven home to them by the dulness, inactivity and depression which are the sequel to the majority of Stock Exchange booms. It is too soon to charge the rubber boom with the responsibility for the stagnant and unsatisfactory state into which markets have drifted, although there are not a few Stock Exchange members who unhesitatingly trace the present lassitude to the reaction which deflated the boom in rubber shares.

"The furious gamble of March and April no doubt left physical—in some cases financial—exhaustion. The public energy for rubber speculation spent itself and people have not recovered breath enough to engage further in Stock Exchange speculation. In many ways the rubber boom stands out as unique from other kindred movements, the rise being to a large extent justified as regards the shares in the producing companies and in certain others which were moderately capitalized on the good dividend prospects. But in other respects the rubber boom had the true 'boom' stamp, and for this reason the Stock Exchange as a whole must suffer when it is gone. It, of course, the oil boom was the direct sequel to that in rubber shares, while the flashes of animation that occurred in Grand Trunks, Mexican rails, Peruvian and a few other things were more or less professionally backed. Better substance lay behind the raise in home rails, because part of the profits made—and taken — out of rubber shares went to the purchase and the payment of home railway stocks.

"These movements, however, have been too spasmodic to furnish much solid business to the Stock Exchange at large. The inquirer asking for a reply to his question whether a boom ever does the house real benefit may be forced to the reluctant conclusion that unless markets mend before long he will have to list the rubber boom in the usual unsatisfactory catalogue. It has to be remembered, of course, that business is still suffering from the general shock caused by the death of King Edward, while the continued dearness of money is another factor to be reckoned amongst those which work against a revival in market activity.

What the Ideal Banker Should Be

The principle of lending money on adequate security is a sound one, and a good banking rule. But common-sense, which is better than any rule, should tell every competent banker when and where an exception ought to be made, so that a moderate advance might be occasionally given on character alone. The word competent is used advisedly, as, unfortunately the rare qualities which go to make an ideal banker are the gift of a comparatively few. These include high intelligence, business acumen, intimate knowledge of men and affairs, sound judgment, and an abundance of that by no means common quality—common-sense; and to this might be added an attractive manner.

The bank customer should be made to feel that his interests are genuinely studied, as well as those of the bank; and a feeling of mutual confidence should be cultivated between both parties, which would greatly facilitate business.—W. J. Murray, in Moody's Magazine.

DON'T TAKE KINDLY TO W.S. STOCKS

Special Cable to The Montreal Star.

Berlin, June 18. — A vigorous campaign against American finance and financiers has been begun in certain German business circles as the result of a proposal to admit further American railway securities to quotation on the Berlin Bourse. It is accompanied by sharp criticism of America's attitude toward the Old World in business matters.

The announcement that a group of German banks was about to take over a large amount of Southern Pacific bonds was the signal for a lively attack by the German financial press. The Berlin Tageblatt, reflecting the opinion of prominent bankers, whom it has consulted, declares that America's treatment of Germany, especially in respect to tariff duties, is alone sufficient reason why the Germans should refuse to encourage its financial enterprise by investing in American securities.

"When Americans want money," says the paper, "they claim the most complete confidence, but their confidence in Germany is so small that they will not even accept the valuations of our Chambers of Commerce. They imagine that corruption in Germany is as widespread as it is in the United States."

German capitalists are, therefore, urged to confine their operations to fields where some advantage to their own country is to be expected. The proposition to list American stocks is awaiting the decision of a Bourse commission.

SOME SOURCES OF CAN. PACIFIC'S BIG EARNINGS

It is estimated that Canadian Pacific will have a surplus of $20,000,000 above its dividend requirements this year, and with 200,000,000 bushels of wheat to move, it will have the best year in its history in almost every particular.

The company has about $75,000,000 in its treasury for its construction needs, and its hidden assets are almost beyond conception.

The policy of the management of the Canadian Pacific is to enter outside business whenever such business can be of benefit to the road in the way of traffic, which it might not get otherwise. It buys and sells real estate, builds hotels, and is more or less interested in the manufacturing propositions along its lines. A case in point is the Canadian Pacific ownership of the Trail smelter. It purchased that smelter from Heinze thirteen years ago for $1,500,000, which purchase eliminated Mr. Heinze from British Columbia and gave the Canadian Pacific additional railroad mileage and large land ownership, and the smelter is to-day contributing $800,000 per annum in freight traffic for the Canadian Pacific.

Furthermore, the company's steamship business is assuming large proportions, and to-day the Canadian Pacific has more boats on the ocean than the Cunard Line, and, contrary to the experience of the United States railroad companies on the Pacific, the Canadian Pacific is making money in its Oriental trade, largely because it is able to use Oriental seamen, while the United States companies are not. James J. Hill lost $250,000 on his Pacific boats last year as against profitable operations on the part of the Canadian Pacific.

STATISTICS ON FRENCH WEALTH

A paper on "succession statistics" was read at a recent meeting of the French Academy of Moral and Political Sciences, from which the following facts are taken:

About 75 per cent. of the men and women in France 50 years old are property owners. For persons under 40 years the proportion is not so large. As a general average, every individual in France over 40 years old possesses $2,329, or double that amount for a married couple. Among the ten countries with which statistical comparisons on this subject may be established, only the Netherlands and England furnish higher figures. In Austria the average is only $767; Spain, $741; Italy, $691; Roumania, $291.

The wealth of France, however, which has constantly increased since the statistical records exist (1826), has declined since about 1895. Austria and Roumania have steadily grown wealthier. The number of successions valued at more than 2,500 francs ($482) per 1,000 persons over 40 years of age is 364 in France, 318 in the Netherlands, 186 in England, 130 in Italy, and 72 in Roumania. These figures show that wealth is most evenly distributed in France.

In France the average value of the personal property is about equal, and even slightly in excess of the real property held by persons over 40 years of age. The real property is classified into city and rural property, the former being valued at $657 and the latter at $605. The average value of stocks held in France is $870, including $219 foreign shares and bonds. The rural property in England averages $278, and city real estate $677, while personal estates average $2,906.

Stocks also constitute the greater part of the wealth of the Netherlands, averaging in value $2,147 for each person over 40 years of age, while real property figures for only $1,089. Foreign stocks play an important part in Holland, being valued at $655, or three times more than in France. On the other hand, Italy possesses very few stocks, $91, the remainder of its personal property averaging $155; rural real estate, $145, and other real estate $77.

JUNE RY. EARNINGS.

Thirty-one roads have reported weekly gross earnings for the first week of June of $9,219,667, an increase of $1,334,736, or 16.97 per cent., as compared with the corresponding period a year ago.

HOCKING VALLEY SUIT IS DROPPED

New York, June 18. — Judge Lacombe has granted the motion for the discontinuance of the suit brought by H. Raymond Munger against the Hocking Valley Railway Company, J. Pierpont Morgan, Geo. W. Perkins, Edward T. Stottsbury, and others without cost. Munger's suit, which was brought on behalf of himself and all other holders of the preferred stock of the Hocking Valley Railroad Company, asked the court to decree that the railway company, by the payment of $15,200,000 to J. P. Morgan & Company, effected a specific appropriation for the redemption of its preferred stock and parted with all ownership in it, and that the holders of preferred stock not actually redeemed had claims to the part of the trust fund in the possession of J. P. Morgan & Company. It was further asked that the Hocking Valley be enjoined from taking any steps towards transferring or disposing of the stock, bonds or any interest it had in the Kanawha and Michigan Railway Company, the Toledo, and Ohio Central Railway, the Zanesville and Western Railway Company and the Middle States Construction Company.

FOREIGNERS GET MUCH W. S. GOLD

After reading the glowing reports and speeches of certain treasury officials one might infer that all the gold mined and minted in this country belongs here, but such is not the fact. Foreigners have been gobbling up our mines and mining lands for many years back. Most of the mines in Montana, it is said, belong to Englishmen. One of these, the Drumlummon, has yielded to its owners (the Rothschilds) $20,000,000. Since 1896, English investments have been very heavy, and include the five largest mines ever opened here: the Independence, Camp Bird, Sultana, Rob Roy and the De Lamar. All the gold that comes here from the Klondike is credited to us in spite of the fact that most of the miners there are foreigners, chiefly Canadians, and the coin is consigned to Canadian banks in New York. The latest foreign investments (should I say stealings, Mr. Pinchot?) include a big part of the mining lands of Alaska, and it is safe to say that 60 per cent. of the gold from there really belongs to English capitalists represented by J. P. Morgan. — W. H. Allen, in Moody's Magazine.

REFORMERS WIN HUDSON BAY FIGHT

By Special Cable From Our Own Correspondent in London.

London, June 18.—The report of the Hudson's Bay Company, issued to-day, says the directors arranged last autumn for Richard Burbidge, managing director of Harrod's stores, to examine into and report on the condition of the sale shops. His report has received and is receiving the earnest consideration of the Governor and committee.

The retiring directors are Earl of Lichfield and Sir Walter Vaughan. Morgan, who do not seek re-election. It is recommended that Mr. Vivian Smith, of Morgan, Grenfell and Co., and Mr. Kindersley, of Lazard Bros., and Co., be elected to fill their places. Further it is considered in the interest of the company that Messrs. R. Burbidge and W. Mackenzie be also elected directors thus bringing the board up to the limit laid down in the charter and by-laws. Mr. Thomas Skinner is to be deputy-governor.

Reading between the lines of the foregoing statement in the report it is evident the reform party has won in what has been beneath the surface a strenuous struggle. The selection of Mr. Skinner as deputy-governor means the administration will be quietly but resolutely modernized. This is the imperative demand of the controlling stockholders. The shop department especially is to be remodelled, in a word, be Eatonised, to produce adequate return or be closed.

Mr. Burbidge is the most progressive of London store managers. Changes in the Canadian personnel will be made as the needs of the new policy demand. Messrs. Vivian and Kindersley especially represent those now in control of the majority of stock. Mr. Mackenzie's election is capable of several explanations.

WINDERMERE.

WOODLAND AREA OF ALASKA SMALL

It is estimated that the total forest and woodland area of Alaska is approximately 100 million acres, or about 27 per cent. of the land area, of the territory. Of these, about 20 million acres may possibly bear timber of sufficient size and density to be used as saw timber, while the other 80 million acres is woodland which bear some saw timber, but mostly only firewood.

The usual lumber cut in the coast forests of Alaska is about 27,000,000 board feet, almost entirely spruce, as hemlock is little used, a large part of this output, probably one-third, being used for salmon cases. The southern and south eastern coast having a much larger timber supply than will be needed locally for a long time to come, much of the hemlock should be cut and the spruce be given an opportunity to increase. The cutting that has so far taken place on the coast of Alaska has had small effect upon the forest, the bulk is yet untouched, and as it is now overmature, utilization for other purposes than lumber should be encouraged as much as possible. Both spruce and hemlock are good pulpwood, and taken together they comprise almost the entire forests. There is faint prospect that, so far as the coast lumber is concerned, it will ever be needed for use in Alaska. The annual growth of the coast forests is in excess of the local needs, and unless methods of utilization which will result in exportation are developed, these products cannot be rightly handled or properly conserved.

But the interior conditions tell a different story. There the forest stand varies from practically nothing, in areas of scrubby black spruce, to 20 or more cords board feet per acre in the best white spruce forests. The best timber of spruce, birch and poplar grows in the valleys, particularly along the Tanana in the Fairbanks district. The average of timber is small, white spruce rarely, and balsam poplar, somtimes attaining 18 to 24 inches in diameter; the white birch and aspen average 8 inches in diameter, though maximum of 18 ins. on unusually favorable sites are noted.

The bulk of the timber cut in the forests of the Central Plateau is for firewood. The interior of Alaska depends entirely upon wood for heat, light and power. Wood is burned by the Tanana Valley Railroad, which has 45 miles of track out from Fairbanks; the river steamers, except three large boats on the Yukon which use oil, burn wood; and the severe weather of the eight months winter, when the thermometer sometimes goes down to 80 degrees blow zero, makes the consumption for fuel in domestic affairs much larger than the population—about 30,000—would use under conditions existing elsewhere.

The present sparse population will undoubtedly be greatly augmented, and its need for timber will be large, therefore its timber supply would be conserved to lessen as far as possible the heavy expense which importation will entail, as transportation is slow, expensive and uncertain, and by boats which operate only a few months of the year.

WHITE EXPOSED WIRELESS FRAUD

Special to The Montreal Star.

New York, June 18.—Abraham White, associated with the defunct De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, and said to have had a hand in organizing the United Wireless Telegraph Company, was before the federal grand jury yesterday as a witness for the Government. White was a voluntary witness. In fact, it was said he had given the federal authorities information upon which the proceeding against the officers of the company was based, and which was contained in the statement issued by the post office inspector after the arrests had been made.

This statement was attacked by the company in a counter-statement yesterday, some of the announcements of the former document being called libellous.

THE AUTO FROM AN ECONOMIC POINT OF VIEW

An official of a large Boston bank says: "I expect to see time money firm from now until over the year at least, provided that we have fair crops, and our advices indicate that crops in the west will, at least, be as good as last year and the cotton crop a little better. We have a good deal of time paper coming due within the next three months, and if the directors follow my inclination, they will put very little of this money out on time until we see what the results of the crops are going to be. I believe this will be the policy of the banks for the next three months, and that the market for call money during that time will be a little out of joint with the time money market; in other words, there will be a considerable amount of call money available at comparatively low rates and contrasting with a firm time money market. I believe all the banks will want to be as liquid as possible with their money for the next three months. Of course, if we have a partial crop failure, the situation will be entirely different and money will be very easy.

"Another phase of the situation which must not be lost sight of is the automobile problem. While I do not like to appear pessimistic, I must say that I think this year will see the beginning of the end of the automobile craze. In my opinion it is the bicycle business all over again, except that the amount of capital involved is from ten to thirty times greater. For example, in the early days a bicycle cost $150, and anybody could make a lot of money manufacturing them at those figures. With automobiles from $1000 to $5000, the same thing is true, and the result is that a lot of mushroom concerns have sprung up, especially in the Middle West, to make automobiles, which are being sold to a lot of people who cannot afford them. They mortgage their house or anything else they have on which money can be raised, and the banks are consequently asked to make a good many loans, the cause of which is the automobile. Furthermore, I understand that there is a very large call on insurance companies at present for loans on policies, probably for the same reason.

"A good deal of money is therefore tied up in automobiles, but that is not the root of the evil. From an economic standpoint the trouble is that money spent for an automobile immediately becomes non-productive, and furthermore, not only does it cease working for the automobile owner, but it dwindles every year as his car gets older. Millions of dollars within a few years will represent nothing but junk in the shape of old automobiles. If this money were going into business, the situation would be entirely different.

"The American people do not yet realize what this automobile problem means, but they will some day. It is one of the biggest questions that we have had to settle for a long while, and I believe the day of reckoning will come sooner than expected."

CANADIAN ISSUE OF CAN. NORTHERN

Toronto, June 18.—The Canadian investor now has his first chance to secure capital stock of the Canadian Northern. Of a total issue of $15,000,000 of five per cent. income charge convertible debenture stock, which has been eagerly taken up by London houses, there is issued in Canada $5,000,000, which has been taken up by leading houses here and has already been largely taken up by Toronto firms.

The stock is redeemable at par during three years, beginning January 1, 1916. It is convertible at the holder's option into the common stock of equal par value of the Canadian Northern. The interest is payable half-yearly after, and is a charge upon the assets of the railway (except land and money subsidies) after the fixed charges and operating expenses have been met.

The Canadian Northern has each year earned surpluses over traffic earnings. The accumulated surplus, exclusive of land surplus, on June 30, 1909, amounted to $3,948,517. The published returns of the earnings for ten months of the current fiscal year ending April 30, show the folowing: Gross earnings.. .. ..$10,367,700
Expenses.. 7,402,200

The net earnings of $2,965,500 are $585,500 greater than for the corresponding period of 1908-9.

INDICTMENT OF BULL COTTON POOL

New York, June 18—The government came out in the open yesterday in its attempt to prove manipulation of the cotton market. Jas. A. Patten, of Chicago, and seven lesser figures in the speculative fields have been indicted, charged with conspiracy in restraint of trade under the Sherman anti-trust law. The indictment was returned by a special federal grand jury. Five of those indicted—Patten, Eugene B. Scales, Frank B. Hayne, Wm. P. Brown and M. H. Rothschild, gave bail of $5,000. For the other three, who were neither present in court or represented by lawyers, bench warrants were issued. They are Sydney J. Herman, Robert M. Thompson and Chas. A. Kittle.

Immediately the indictment was announced there was an excited break on the New York Cotton Exchange, July and August deliveries declining about $1.50 a bale. The bull leaders, however, appeared to be in no manner disturbed by the Government action, and by their buying orders helped to rally prices during the last few minutes, July closing at 14.93 and August at 14.49 bid, or about 11 to 14 points up from the low level of the day.

Canada will be largely represented in the international hunting exhibition to be held this year in Vienna.

Muscat is famed as the hotbed of smugglers in the Persian Gulf, the nearby desert tribes being regularly supplied with arms despite the efforts of the British patrol.

SIR EDWARD CLOUSTON QUOTED IN NEW ZEALAND.

Canadian Associated Press.

London, June 18.—At the annual meeting of the Bank of New Zealand, the chairman stated that though the financial situation was infinitely better than a year ago, there was a feeling of want of confidence prevalent in the community. Money was not flowing into the channels of industrial and other enterprises. He hinted that injudicious legislation might be the cause, and quoted the warning of the chairman of the Bank of Montreal on December 6, 1908, against injudicious legislation or doubtful enterprises that would stop the inflow of capital.

Diabetes Cured Seventeen Years

The Case of Mrs. Thos. Donohue illustrates the marvellous curative qualities of

Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure

As she states in her own letter, Mrs. Thos. Donohue, of Red Lodge, Mont., suffered from diabetes and was told by her physicians that she could not live over three months. This was seventeen years ago.

Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure made a permanent cure, and Mrs. Donohue says she is stronger now than she was for ten years prior to taking this great medicine. Her gratitude extolling the virtues of Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure is given in her own words:

"Seventeen years ago I was suffering form diabetes, which had troubled me for over ten years, and was given up by my doctors, who said I could not live over three months. I started to take Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure and to-day I am a stronger and healthier woman than I was for ten years before I took the medicine."

There is no disease more dreaded than diabetes, for the reason that the supposition is that it cannot be cured, and it is most remarkable the letters received from men and women who say they had diabetes in its worst form and were completely cured and restored to health by Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure, which is one of the Warner Safe Remedies, among them Warner's Safe Cure for the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood, which has done so much good the past thirty years and Warner's Safe Pills for constipation and biliousness. These remedies are sold by druggists everywhere.

If you have any of the symptoms of diabetes send at once for a free sample bottle of the Diabetes Cure, or if you have kidney trouble ask for Warner's Safe Cure for the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood. State your case fully, mentioning having seen this liberal offer in the Montreal Daily Star, and our doctor will send you sample and full directions how to treat yourself, free. All communications treated in strict confidence. Letters from women are answered by a woman doctor. WARNER'S SAFE CURE COMPANY, Toronto, Ont.

FALSE ALARM FIEND HAS COUNTERPART IN MORGUE JOKER

Dead Waggon Called Twice Yesterday for Serious Accidents When There Was Nothing Doing.

The same brand of insanity that is popularly supposed to exist among those who turn in false alarms of fire will be found, think the police, in the crafty person who turns in calls for the morgue wagon, representing himself over the telephone to be well known police officers.

The new species of this kind of criminal alarmist was discovered early last night by Lieutenant Morin, of the Central Station. "This is Special Constable Beauchamp talking," came the story in excited French. "A man and a woman were knocked down by a street car at the corner of Amherst and St. Catherine streets and instantly killed. There is a big crowd here and they are blocking the traffic. Send for the ambulance, quick." Here the message stopped.

The desk lieutenant, in good faith, despatched a constable on the run to the morgue. When the driver of the morgue returned his horses were flecked with foam and he himself was in a state of anger and perspiration.

"This is the second time I have been fooled to-day," he began. "Look at my horses." Then he launched into a much punctuated story of how a man representing himself as Lieutenant Boisclair, of the police force, had telephoned the morgue about two o'clock in the afternoon.

He had hustled over to Victoria Square to bring back a body, threading his way with difficulty through the traffic. When he got there he discovered his errand was bootless and that he was victimized by a new species of joker.

DUKE OF FIFE AND CANADA.

Could Not Come as Governor-General Even if Offered the Post.

Canadian Asociated Press.

London, June 18.—The Duke of Fife, replying to a suggestion of a Scottish Canadian that he should succeed Earl Grey as Governor-General of Canada, says that even if offered the post it would be impossible for him to accept on account of his wife's health. He adds that he has often dreamed of a future when one or more of the King's five sons should represent the Sovereign in different parts of the Empire.

At Copenhagen the High State Court of Denmark has acquitted former Premier J. C. Christensen of complicity with former Minister of Justice Alberti in extensive frauds. Former Minister of the Interior Berg was found guilty and fined $250 and sentenced to sixty days' imprisonment.

AN END TO SKIN TROUBLES

Action of Poslam Is Rapid — Easy to Prove What It Will Do.

"To think," says Mr. L. J. Cooper, North Haven, Conn., "that I have been trying everything (to cure eczema) for fifteen years, and now poslam has done it. The first application stopped all the itching."

What a remedy is available like poslam, which in all skin troubles stops itching and accomplishes cures so rapidly and readily, there is really no reason why such affections should be allowed to go unchecked, particularly as no one is asked to purchase poslam without first obtaining and trying one of the free trial packages. This will be sent by mail to any one who will write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th street, New York City.

While primarily intended for the treatment of eczema, acne, tetter, barber's and all other forms of itch, etc., poslam promptly cures all the lesser skin affections, such as pimples, blotches, fever blisters, red noses, inflamed skin, rash, herpes, sunburn, clears the complexion and keeps the skin in a healthy condition.

A special 50-cent package of poslam is prepared for minor uses, and this, as well as the regular two-dollar jar, is for sale by all druggists particularly R. H. Bryson's and Quenneville & Guerin's.

HALIFAX TO BE C.P.R. TERMINUS

St. John, N.B., June 18.—Sir Thos. Shaughnessy said in an interview here that the C. P. R. had not yet secured absolute control of the Dominion Atlantic line, and could do nothing of importance with the new acquisition before the end of the year. He added that the C. P. R. Company was considering the question of faster Atlantic steamers, which, if built, would make Halifax their winter terminus. But freight steamers would come to St. John.

Sir Thomas went over the Dominion Atlantic system yesterday, and today went to Halifax to meet Premier Murray and the members of the Board of Trade. The Halifax Board of Trade proposed taking Sir Thomas for a sail in the harbor, and then giving a luncheon and reception in his honor, but he had already mapped out his programme, and had no time for these amenities. His special arrived at Halifax at 10 o'clock this morning, and was due to leave for Montreal at 1.30.

The announcement of Sir Thomas regarding the C. P. R. passenger steamers and Halifax indicated that the company intends building a line of its own into Halifax, if arrangements cannot be made for running rights over the Intercolonial.

PROSPECTOR DIED ON NORTHERN TRAIL

Tragedy of Peace River Disclosed by Finding Body of H. M. Bickford.

Special to the Montreal Star,

Victoria, B.C., June 18.—Another tragedy of the north has come to light in the finding by the Indians of the body of H. M. Bickford, an American, who in July of last year went from Peace River Crossing into the mountains on a trapping and prospecting trip. He was accompanied on the trip by two fellow-countrymen, Dean and Willenburg, both of whom possessed bad records. When in the following October the latter two returned to Peace River Crssing and reported that owing to trouble with their teeth they had decided to come out, leaving Bickford behind, there was some suspicion that there had been trouble between the three.

The Royal Northwest Mounted Police were notified of the occurrence and instructions were issued for a search for Bickford. On May 16 last a trapper arrived at Peace River Crossing and reported that Indians had discovered the dead body of Bickford at a point on the south branch and about fifteen miles from where he had had his winter quarters on the Pine River.

When the Indians found the body it was face down on the hands and knees close to a trap, as of Bickford had died while in the act of lighting a fire. The Indians reported their find to Government Agent Campbell, who investigated, and a trapper carried his report to the police. The supposition is that Bickford was in an exhausted state, his food having consisted of flour alone during the very cold spell last winter.

Miss Agnes Deans Cameron's Home.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Victoria, B. C., June 18.—Miss Agnes Deans Cameron, author, traveller, lecturer and journalist, will make Stewart her headquarters during the coming summer and autumn, according to a well authenticated report from that new city, it being her intention to devote her time to writing a character novel of the mining camps of the Portland Canal, exploiting the present day typical western prospector, who materially differs from the Bret Hart type.

Miss Cameron is one of the principal shareholders in both the Stewart Land Co. and the Stewart Mining & Development Co., besides which she is a very heavy property owner in the new Northern city.

SCHIFF EXPEDITION TO YUKON REGION

Steamer Ramona Being Remodelled, Before Carrying High Financiers to the North.

Special to the Montreal Star,

Victoria, B.C., June 18.—The 1,061-ton teamer Ramona is now being overhauled in San Francisco at a cost of $50,000 for the use of Jacob H. Schiff, of New York, financier and philanthropist, who will head a party of eastern men of high tirance on a tour of Alaska and the Yukon this summer.

Luxury will be the keynote of the Schiff expedition. The interior arrangements of the Ramona are being completely remodelled. All cabin staterooms have been changed into commodious bedrooms arranged en suite and furnished richly. Each bedroom will be furnished with a massive brass bedstead. Forward a large living room with plate glass front and a great open grate is planned, making an ideal room for observation purposes.

From Seattle the party will go to Skagway, from there to White Horse by special train over the White Pass & Yukon Railway, thence to Dawson on a sternwheeler and down the complete length of the Yukon to the mouth at St. Michaels. There they will be picked up by the Ramona again and will tour the Aleutian Islands and return along the southwestern Alaskan coast, stopping at Valdez, Cordova and Seward.

Odd Lines and Special Purchases at Ridiculous Prices

INITIATIVE

Is getting off the beaten track in the effort to discover the new. But initiative needs to be backed by stability to make it of permanent value.

It is initiative that lifted Hamilton into the air on his brilliant trip from New York to Philadelphia. But the aeroplane lacks stability. Rea's possesses both.

Some of our merchandise chiefs have sailed for the old world in search of new things. But the capacity for discrimination, for rejection is as essential to this store's value to you, as to ability to find. But we make sure of the quality of the new as well as its novelty and then our buying capacity assures the lowest possible prices.
