Bill may be harmful

QUEBEC (CP)—A brief to the Quebec government's education committee by the Quebec branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association says the proposed language-rights bill may "adversely affect this province in attracting" the required human and financial resources.

Public hearings on the legislation, introduced in late 1968 to ensure English-language education in public schools, begin today.

The bill was sent to the education committee for study under pressure from nationalist elements in the province and within the ruling Union Nationale party.

The CMA brief says the problem of attracting resources into the province could be affected by "the implication in the bill that children of persons settling in this province may arbitrarily be channeled into the French-language school system."

"The degree to which Quebec industry will be able to absorb future graduates will depend on government policies which foster a climate of confidence to investors."

The interests of all Quebec re-

Grit warns capital loss would aid separatists

NEW YORK (CP) — Withdrawal of capital from Quebec would give separatist leaders a strong argument for independence, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier said today.

He said the separatist movement has no power and lacks popular support. However, it remained a potential force that had to be taken into consideration "if, for example, the economic situation were to deteriorate seriously."

Pelletier was speaking to members of the Compressed Gas Association here.

Text of his address was residents can only be served by guaranteeing.

"That in those areas where there is a sufficient student population to justify French and English language school systems, the right of all to choose, for themselves or for their children, between the two.

"The establishment of standards of instruction which will ensure that all graduating students have a working knowledge of both languages.

The association strongly supports the part of the bill "which is designed to provide a greater degree of bilingualism to students educated in English.

"Without similar provisions for mastery of the English language, however, it must be concluded that there is no recognition of the need for guaranteeing students educated in French a comparable proficiency in their second language."

This was a "serious oversight, particularly in the business world where mobility is so important."

The CMA brief is one of at least 66 from English- and French-language associations and industrials expected to be heard by the committee.

Pierre prepares for talks

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau skipped the morning session of the Commonwealth conference today and stayed in his hotel suite working on domestic affairs.

Aides said he was dealing with a pile of government papers from Ottawa and also preparing for his Rome talks Thursday with the Pope and Italian political leaders.

It was the second time Trudeau had missed a conference session—the first was last Wednesday afternoon when he retired to bed with a touch of flu. It was apparently caused by fatigue after late-night telephone dealings with Ottawa over the question of Quebec representation at the Kinshasa, Congo, educational conference of French-speaking countries.

This morning's Commonwealth session concluded the debate on world economic affairs, on which Trudeau spoke Monday. He was expected to attend the afternoon session which will move on to the future of Commonwealth co-operation.

The nine-day conference winds up Wednesday.

LUNCHES WITH GORTON

Trudeau addressed Canada's European ambassadors at Canada House at noon before lunching with Australian Prime Minister John Gorton.

The 22 ambassadors are winding up a two-day review of foreign policy headed by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

British commentators have become increasingly critical in their appraisals of Trudeau, who arrived in London billed by enthusiasts as the potentially key man of the Commonwealth talks.

"Has the spellbinder lost his spell?" asks Daily Mail writer John Dickie in an article published today.

Expressing an opinion shared by Pakistani reporters at the conference, Dickie says Trudeau "has lost a lot of his glitter around the conference corridors" after first taking "most people by storm" in the British capital.

But the Mail's writer wonders whether it is fair to expect an impact from "this unusual man in such a short time."

Although ascribing significance to policy reviews launched by Trudeau in Canada, Dickie goes on to predict that "allies and friends in scores of capitals will soon begin to wonder whether lack of decisions from Trudeau are a less-than-subtle camouflage for indecision."

Nuclear weapons India acts to thwart British unity call

LONDON (AP) — India acted today to thwart a British call for Commonwealth backing of the pact aimed at stopping the spread of nuclear weapons.

The issue arose behind the scenes in exchanges on a communiqué being prepared for the 28-nation summit conference of leaders representing more than 700,000,000 people on five continents. It is due for discussion again today.

Political warfare resumes again

OTTAWA (CP)—Under a new set of ground rules, political warfare will resume in Parliament today, but unless something unexpected crops up there aren't likely to be any pitched battles for the first few days.

Easing back from the Christmas holidays with a series of relatively routine farm-related bills, the resumed session of Parliament likely will be in sharp contrast to the stormy rules debate that closed out the pre-holiday session.

But any immediate tranquility could suddenly change.

The opposition parties have warned of a fighting stance if the government tries to bring back a proposed debate-limiting rule, withdrawn when other changes were made last month.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said that the government still intends to press for some method of establishing debate-limiting time.

Should this come before the Commons early in the resumed session there is bound to be fireworks. "We won't agree to advance government programming," says Stanley Knowles, House leader of the New Democratic Party.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said that neither his party nor the country would accept such a rule.

A wide-ranging series of rules changes were adopted before Christmas after the government agreed to withdraw the prickly proposal on a debate time limit.

At that time it appeared the Commons was rising in a mood of contented compromise. But a few days later Mr. Trudeau suggested the opposition may have walked into a trap by concentrating its fire on one rule while the rest slipped through.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, has said that the prime minister's "silly statement" could have an adverse effect on the mood of the House. Prior to this, Mr. Baldwin thought the resumed session would have "more harmony and goodwill than we've had for years."

If the rules controversy is allowed to settle for a time, the only contentious pieces of legislation facing the Commons are the government's tax changes and the omnibus bill on Criminal Code amendments. The Conservatives have promised a strong fight against changes to the Estate Tax Act—which they say would cause unnecessary difficulties to small farms and businesses—and against the two-per-cent social development tax, already in force.

The Criminal Code amendments, which cover such diversified subjects as abortion, gambling and firearm controls, are expected to touch off emotion-charged debates, but the views of individual MPs are not likely to follow party lines.

ALL OR NOTHING

However, the government can expect to face a concerted attack for its refusal to break up the omnibus bill so MPs can vote on separate subjects. So far the government says it must be an all-or-nothing package.

After the farm bills are dealt with, the Commons will go on to other non-controversial bills. One is to establish a marketing board for freshwater fish and another relates to international currency stabilization. Later there will be legislation to reduce drug prices, along with a string of bills, some of which have been carried over from previous sessions.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberals 155, Conservatives 72, NDP 21, Creditistes 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

Second Russian spaceship may link with first

MOSCOW (CP) — Russia today launched a 41-year-old cosmonaut into earth orbit and unofficial reports suggested another manned spaceship would be sent up to join him.

Moscow radio broke its scheduled programs to announce that Lt. Col. Vladimir Shatalov, the second Russian in space in three months, went into orbit in his Soyuz 4 spaceship at 10:39 a.m. (2:39 a.m. EST).

The official Soviet news agency Tass quoted Shatalov, a father of two, as "feeling fine."

The unofficial reports, emanating from Soviet sources, indicated that Soyuz 5 craft with another cosmonaut aboard would be sent up to perform joint manoeuvres and possibly to attempt a joint docking with Shatalov.

The last Soviet spaceman, Maj. Gen. Georgy Beregovoy, and his Soyuz 3 craft performed joint manoeuvres with an unmanned craft named Soyuz 2 during a four-day flight in October, 1968, but he did not attempt a docking, already carried out twice earlier in the year by unmanned Soviet craft.

Ground controllers are keeping in touch with the rookie cosmonaut by radio and television, Tass added.

Rumors in Moscow during the last several days have indicated the Soyuz mission would be earth-orbited only, and would not attempt to match America's Apollo 8 trip around the moon.

Today's launching was the third major Soviet space effort this year. Two unmanned craft, Venus V and Venus VI, were launched on a 4½-month trip to Venus last week.

The Soyuz 4 was the 11th manned Russian space flight. Yuri Gagarin piloted the first in April, 1961, to become the first man in space.

The spacecraft was put into orbit by a powerful carrier rocket, Tass said, and reliable two-way radio contact had been established with the spaceship.

Shatalov had begun to implement his flight program, it said. It was the first manned flight for Shatalov, who has been in cosmonaut training program for six years.

The initial announcement said the craft was orbiting the earth once every 88.5 minutes at a maximum distance from the earth of about 141 miles and a minimum distance of about 108 miles.

"Goodbye, dear friends—we'll meet again soon on mother earth," Moscow radio quoted Shatalov as saying just before the launching.

"I will exert all my force to carry out the tasks assigned to me."

The radio broadcast also said Shatalov was the backup man for the Beregovoy flight aboard Soyuz 3.

Moscow television had a videotaped report from the Baikonur Cosmodrome less than 1½ hours after the launching—the fastest coverage ever of a Soviet space shot.

The launching pad was shown closeup, partly obscured by vapors from the rocket.

Beregovoy was at the launching site today and was interviewed by a Moscow television reporter.

Dressed in a heavy overcoat and fur hat, Beregovoy described his fellow-cosmonaut as "purposeful."

Four die as plane hits ocean

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The Sverre Viking, a huge Scandinavian Airlines DC-8 jetliner flying the polar route, came down in the rainswept sea Monday night as it was heading for a landing at International Airport—and floated. Coast guard officials called it a "miracle."

Of the 45 passengers and crew aboard, four were dead, 12 missing and 29 were saved. The four-engined plane, on a polar flight from Copenhagen via Seattle, Wash., splashed amid two-foot swells eight miles off shore with passengers said, no warning.

In a scene of pandemonium, those aboard scrambled into rubber boats or atop wings and fuselage. Some fell into the sea.

There were 36 passengers and nine crew members aboard the airliner.

An armada of small boats—coast guard cutters, life guard craft and a host of private yachts from the big Marina Del Rey harbor near the airport conducted a search-and-rescue operation that lasted for hours.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE — Some men not only drink with impunity but they'll drink with anyone!

Committee is swamped with witnesses

QUEBEC (CP) — The national assembly's education committee is swamped with witnesses as public hearings open today on the government's disputed language-rights bill.

At least 66 French- and English-language associations and individuals have given the 21-man committee notice of intention to appear, raising the possibility of a long battle over the inflammatory issue.

The legislation would ensure English-language education in public schools of the predominantly French-speaking province.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand introduced the bill Dec. 9, said he hoped it would be adopted before the end of the session, and announced a royal commission to make a year-long study into the status of the French language in Quebec province.

With Mr. Bertrand out of action because of heart troubles, the government bowed to nationalist pressure within and outside the ruling Union Nationale party and withdrew the bill prior to second reading, approval in principle.

Lemieux says his group backs case of a fired security guard

MONTREAL (CP) — Raymond Lemieux, head of the Mouvement pour l'integration scolaire, said Monday his group is supporting a security guard in Matagami, Que., who was fired last week for adherence to the group's policies.

Mr. Lemieux told a news conference a fund has been set up to keep Maurice Loyer in Matagami where he can continue "to fight English imperialism."

Matagami is a small mining town 600 miles north of Montreal.

George Seaton, who confesses to having once been "a white-knuckle air passenger," has taken charge as pilot of the biggest flight movie in recent Hollywood years, Airport.

Universal is going all-out with the Arthur Haley best-selling novel and the film may well cost $10,000,000 before it makes a landing.

Producer Ross Hunter has assembled a cast that to date includes Burt Lancaster, Dean Martin, Jean Seberg, Helen Hayes, Van Heflin. Filming begins in Minneapolis late this month.

Film veteran Seaton—Miracle on 34th Street, Country Girl—wrote the script for Airport and will be directing it. He admitted he has not always been a fan of air travel.

"Years ago I was in a crackup of a plane as we were taking off at Columbus, Ohio," he recalled. "Fortunately we were only 10 feet off the ground, so there was little damage."

"But that was enough to make me a white-knuckle passenger after that. Until I made a picture about the Berlin airlift, The Big Lift, with Montgomery Clift and Paul Douglas, 1950."

"Then I rode in the cockpit with the pilots and I decided, 'These people know what they're doing. I've been a pretty good passenger since then.'"

OFFICIAL BACKING

Seaton recently travelled in the flight deck of a transcontinental jetliner and was impressed anew with the competence of today's flyers. The flight was made with the permission of the Federal Aviation Administration, which is co-operating with Airport, apparently in hopes that the picture will carry the message of such competence.

The plot concerns the bombing of a passenger jet.

Seaton made two changes from the novel which should please the airlines. He eliminated the character of the airport manager's brother in flight control "because anyone that emotionally unstable would never be permitted in the tower." And, for condensation reasons, Seaton removed the mill-in of local residents protesting jet noise.

"We have received permission to shoot at Minneapolis Airport and will construct added counters inside the terminal to house those airlines that don't fly out of Minneapolis," said Seaton.

One production problem hasn't been solved. The company needs a Boeing 707 to use for six weeks.

Said Seaton: "No airline could afford to let us have one for more than three days. We could rent a 707 for $17,000 a day, but even on our budget we can't afford it."

About television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) —

Amid all the carefully-arranged ceremonies surrounding the Apollo 8 astronauts in the White House Thursday, there came a delightful interruption that charmed the daytime television audience.

Patrick Lyndon Nugent, 18 months old, suddenly broke away and started to run toward his grandfather, President Johnson.

After a moment of complete paralysis, his mother hurried forward, scooped him up and departed, looking a little grim.

The episode detracted not one whit from the honor being paid to the intrepid moon travellers, and it gave the proceedings a pleasant, informal warmth.

The three astronauts were the daytime stars of Thursday television. The three networks assiduously covered first the ceremonies with the president in the White House, then the astronauts' speeches before Congress followed by their news conference. The men handled the long day in the public eye with easy poise, wit and humor.

Tom Jones, an attractive young Welshman with a big voice and a wiggle reminiscent of early Elvis Presley, had his hour early in the evening on ABC—A London-taped special that is alleged to have persuaded the network to sign him to fill out the remainder of this season with a weekly show.

Jones is a strong and sure performer but his special seemed less a television show than a taped version of a night-club act. Jones constantly seemed to be projecting to the back rows instead of the camera or microphone.

The hour was loaded with music, with the star belting out his songs on a big, busy stage.

Frontier Legion and Auxiliary install new officers jointly STANSTEAD — Gordon Labaree and Mrs. Geneva Lyons were installed as presidents of Stanstead Frontier Branch No. 5 and Auxiliary along with the other officers elected at a joint installation service last month at the Legion Memorial Home.

With President Jack Heald in the chair, the meeting was officially opened. Mr. Heald welcomed the Auxiliary members to the meeting and said, "We hope there can be more of these get-togethers."

Mr. Heald said that with the Legion Branch a Christmas Basket fund had been organized with sums of money contributed by the Legion Branch, the Stanstead Chapter IODE, Boundary Rotary Club, Catholic Women's League, Daughters of Isabella, Centenary Church Allevio Unit. A meeting of representatives of the above had met.

Mrs. Adelaide Labaree and Mrs. E. J. (Ada) Curtis agreed to do the purchasing. They are both members of the Legion Auxiliary. The baskets were packed and delivered December 23.

Mr. Heald was the installation officer and Clyde Curtis was presenting officer. Mr. Curtis was presented by Douglas Putney to be installed as Sgt.-at-arms along with Mrs. Cyril (Pearl) Crawford of the Auxiliary.

Others installed were Mr. Labaree and Mrs. Lyons, presidents; Stanley Emslie and Mrs. Grace Dezan; Keith Armstrong and Mrs. Bernice Middleton, first and second vice-presidents; Arthur Langevin and Mrs. Aileen Arbery, secretaries; William Pope and Mrs. Bertha Corbett, treasurers; Mrs. Mabel Crawford, Auxiliary chaplain; Bruce Trevail, William Black, Kenneth Inglis, Richard Wallace and Bernard Labaree, as the senior branch executive.

Mr. Heald, the retiring president, presented the gavel to both Mr. Labaree and Mrs. Lyons. Mrs. Geneva Leslie, the retiring Auxiliary president was presented with gifts of jewelry by Mrs. Lyons, who on behalf of the Auxiliary members thanked Mrs. Leslie for her excellent work as president the past two years.

Mr. Labaree, in his remarks, said he "hopes to fulfill the Legion obligations and with his good executive there should be another successful year ahead".

Douglas Putney, retiring first vice-president, on behalf of the Legion Branch presented Mr. Heald with a tie clasp and cuff links having the Legion ensignia. Mr. Putney noted the excellent work done by Mr. Heald over a period of 22 years in Legion activities and the past several in Stanstead Branch.

Both Mr. Heald and Mrs. Leslie responded with words of appreciation to the support of the members during their terms of office.

A social evening followed and lunch was served.

In the annual report of the Stanstead Legion Branch, Mr. Heald notes there has been considerable work done to make improvements in the Memorial Home and grounds and the Legion Park in Rock Island. The "Better Ole" was opened as an additional room and dedicated to Veterans of World War I. A Plaque placed outside the Legion Home entrance, an outside crest completed and erected, the flowering beds on the grounds and the Rock Island park were in glorious color from early spring until late fall and represented a great deal of work on the part of Legionnaires.

The entertainment committee has put a lot of work into all events which were all a success.

The 1968 poppy campaign was under the chairmanship of Arthur Langevin and over $600 was contributed by the public.

Obituaries

CHARLES S. CLARK, OF ROCK ISLAND.

ROCK ISLAND — The death of Charles Stephen Clark, occurred suddenly on Saturday, Dec. 21, after suffering a heart attack. His death took place in the Rock Island Post Office.

Mr. Clark was born at Massawippi on Sept. 7, 1896, an only son of Frank Clark and Mittie Lord Clark. With the outbreak of war Mr. Clark was one of the first to enlist with the 117th Battalion and later was transferred to the 35th Regiment. Overseas he was stationed with the medical corp and served in the army hospitals.

After receiving his discharge he returned to his parents' home in Tomfobia, where his father was manager of a creamery. On Nov. 15, 1920, Lillian Campy of Eastbourne, Sussex, England, arrived in Montreal, where she and Mr. Clark were married.

For two years Mr. and Mrs. Clark resided in New Bedford, Mass., where they were employed in an army hospital. Later, they returned to Tomfobia where their only daughter, Iris, was born.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark operated a small grocery store at Tomfobia. After it was sold, Mr. Clark entered the employ of the Butterfield Division, Union Twist Drill Company, Rock Island. Shortly after they moved to Rock Island where they since resided. At the time of his retirement in 1961 he was foreman of the Canadian plant inspection department.

Mr. Clark was a member of Golden Rule No. 5, Masonic Lodge, having transferred from Prince of Wales Lodge, North Hatley. He was a member of the Royal Arch Masons; Starstead Chapter and had served as First Principal; of the Golden Star Chapter, No. 48, Stanstead, Order of the Eastern Star, and had served in some of the offices. He was a member of the Butterfield Quarter Century Club; active in Red Cross Work, having served as campaign chairman for two years. He had also done considerable work in the promotion of the Border Community Center.

He enjoyed six months of the year at the family cottage, Beachy Head, Lake Massawippi. He was a life member of Stanstead Frontier Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, and a member of the Great War Veterans Association later to become the Legion.

Mr. Clark is survived by his wife, their daughter, Iris, Mrs. W. E. Wilson, Lennoxville, a sister, Mrs. Albertine Comstock, at the Youville Hospital in Sherbrooke, and other relatives.

Attending the funeral was Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilson, Lennoxville, Mr. Irving Lord, Massawippi, a large number of friends and groups of World War One and World War Two Veterans.

The funeral was held from Cass Funeral Home in Stanstead to Stanstead South Church, Rock Island, for service on Tuesday, Dec. 24.

Rev. G. Joycey, pastor of the church, was assisted by Masonic Chaplain, Golden Rule Lodge, Rev. Ralph Rogers, Mrs. Clifford McHarg played the organ music.

The bearers were Earle Farley, George Hatch, Alfred Adrich, Gordon Johnston, William Embury, and Gerald Colt.

Entombment took place in Crystal Lake Cemetery to await spring burial in the family lot.

Monday evening, Dec. 23, the last rites of the Masonic Fraternity took place at the Funeral Home, and following the service Legion Comrades carried out final rites, around the casket, covered with the Union Jack flag. In addition to floral pieces several contributions were made to the Canadian Heart Fund.

ARTHUR RYCHARD OF PIGEON HILL

PIGEON HILL — The funeral of Arthur Rychard who died on Dec. 11 at the Brome-Missisquoi-Perkins Hospital, was held on Dec. 14 at the Dion Funeral Parlors, Bedford.

Rev. W. L. Lake, pastor of the Bedford Wesley Church, officiated at the funeral service.

Bearers were Neil Baker, Gordon Guthrie, Homer Sornerberger, Royce Chamberlain, Mitchell Erno and Kent Robinson.

Interment was in the Pigeon Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Rychard had been in ill-health for some time. He was born in Pigeon Hill where he spent all of his long life.

He was 83 years of age and had engaged in farming until his retirement some years ago when he and Mrs. Rychard purchased a home in the Rosenberg district. Mrs. Rychard predeceased him two years ago.

The surviving members of his family include three sons, Edwin and Maitland, Pigeon Hill, and Fred, of Cowansville; two daughters, Olive, Mrs. Homer Sargent, Cowansville, and Evelyn, Mrs. Charles Domingue, of Massachusetts; 14 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren; also a sister, Gertrude, Mrs. Arthur Martin, Pigeon Hill. Another sister, Belle, Mrs. William Bockus, predeceased him.

CANON F. L. WHITLEY, OF MONTREAL, Formerly of Bedford.

MONTREAL — A former rector of St. James Anglican Church, Bedford, the Rev. Canon Frederick Lewis Whitley died on Dec. 13, after a long illness, at the Montreal General Hospital.

Mr. Whitley, born in Montreal, was in his 92nd year. He was educated at the Montreal Collegiate Institute, Bishop's University and the Montreal Diocesan College. In 1902 he was ordained to the priesthood and spent all of his long ministerial career in the Diocese of Montreal. In 1902 he also received his M.A. degree from Bishop's University. He served as curate under the late Archdeacon Kerr in Grace Church, Point St. Charles, after which he became rector of St. Clement's Church, Verdun, and later was appointed rector of St. James Church, Bedford, where both he and his wife endeared themselves to the members of the congregation.

Possessed of a genial, kindly disposition and ready at all times to assist those in distress, he was especially fitted for the position of chaplain at the Montreal General Hospital, a position which he filled on his retirement in 1950 from St. George's Church, Ste. Anne de Bellevue. Canon Whitley was also chaplain at Ste. Anne's Military Hospital, and of Branch 91, Royal Canadian Legion, in Ste. Anne de Bellevue and of the Legion of Frontiersmen of the Montreal District. He was also a life governor of the Montreal General Hospital.

Until two years ago he held the position of honorary assistant priest at Trinity Memorial Church, Montreal, and was also a member of the governing body of Bishop's University.

In 1932 Canon Whitley was appointed honorary canon of Christ Church Cathedral and was also a governor of the Montreal Diocesan Theological College from 1939 to 1967.

Canon Whitley was predeceased several years ago by his wife, the former Mary Kerr, only daughter of Archdeacon and Mrs. Kerr. He was also predeceased by two younger brothers. He is survived by his daughter, Ruth, and his only sister, Mrs. C. S. Bann.

Since his retirement Canon Whitley has made his home in Montreal West, where he was a member of St. Phillip's Church and where the funeral was held on Dec. 16 at two o'clock, with interment in Mount Royal Cemetery.

EVERETT E. THOMPSON, OF DANVILLE

DANVILLE — The death of Everett Edward Thompson (Wet) occurred on Dec. 17, 1968, at the Sherbrooke Hospital, where he had been a patient for nearly two months.

Born in Danville on Dec. 30, 1912, the youngest of four children, the son of the late Charles E. Thompson and his wife, the late Flora Mary Jarvis, his whole life was spent in Danville except for four years he served in the RCAF from 1942-1946.

On Oct. 19, 1946, he married Dorothy Mary Emerson, and of this union two children were born, Robert George and Deborah Ann. He also leaves to mourn his death a sister, Mrs. Donald Quintin, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and a brother, Robert Henry of Danville. A sister, Glenrose Webb, predeceased him in 1961.

He was employed by the Shawinigan Water and Power Co., which later became part of the Hydro-Quebec, for over 22 years.

The remains rested at the S. L. Lockwood Funeral Parlors, where the service was conducted by Rev. D. G. Westman, assisted by Rev. L. G. Westman.

Bearers were Harold Prior, Dorval, Walter Arno, Richmond, George Chaddock, Bill Brown, Barrington Lodge and Gerald Anthony, all of Danville.

Interment will take place in the Danville Cemetery in the spring.

Thursday night shopping to be topic of merchants' meeting called by city Council will meet with the merchants of the entire city Thursday, January 23, at 7:30 p.m. to discuss allowing city merchants to keep their stores open until 10 p.m. every Thursday night.

The provincial government will be giving a bill on this subject the third reading February 23.

The meeting was inspired by a delegation representing the 14 merchants at the Plaza Belvedere Shopping Centre which met council last night to discuss the left turn from Belvedere Street to the plaza's parking lot on Belvedere Street.

Gaston Gagnon acted as spokesman for the five-man delegation and just before the men left council chambers, he mentioned the prospect of Thursday night commerce.

Mayor Nadeau immediately showed an interest and started discussing the idea.

There are three merchant associations in the city and one is opposed to Thursday evening shopping.

Mayor Nadeau told Mr. Gagnon to assure that each association is represented at next Thursday's meeting.

He said that the associations and council would meet and make a decision that night.

The merchants owning stores in the centre of Sherbrooke are against opening up for Thursday night business.

Mr. Gagnon explained that most Sherbrookers are paid Thursdays and because no city stores are open Thursday night, they do their shopping at the Rock Forest shopping centre.

Mr. Gagnon said it would benefit Sherbrooke to keep this commerce inside city limits.

The merchants from the Belvedere Plaza started last night to ask that the city allow a left turn from Belvedere Street to the plaza parking lot.

Mr. Gagnon said there are 500 parking spaces in the lot and they are not being fully used because of the left turn ban.

He asked in the name of the 14 merchants to have the ban lifted. The merchants will meet with Gerard Deziel, chairman of the Traffic committee, and the committee to discuss the situation.

Mr. Deziel explained at last night's meeting that the left turns at that point were forbidden because there had been 26 accidents at that parking lot entrance in three years.

Mayor Nadeau told the merchants' delegation that he had studied the situation before council banned the left turns.

He said he was in favor of the left turn ban but he admitted the 500 parking should be used.

Alderman Antonio Pinard has been a strong advocate for months for the idea of lifting the ban to make it easier for shoppers to get to the centre.

Mr. Gagnon also pointed out that many shoppers, upon learning they cannot enter the parking lot on Belvedere Street, turn onto Galt Street West and head for the King West shopping centre.

The problem has been discussed many times and suggestions of posting a policeman to direct traffic and installing traffic circulation lights have been discussed.

Mr. Gagnon said the 14 Belvedere Plaza merchants employ 500 people.

HEATHER THOMSON

She joins teens across Canada in discussion of unity needs seminars at the Bonaventure Hotel.

The students will be able to voice their ideas on the unity issue in areas including law and constitution, politics, culture, and sports, she said.

Miss Thomson said that she mentioned in her essay on the subject that one of the most important points to press is the promotion on a Canadian spirit. She said that she thought everyone living in Quebec should be able to speak French, although she doesn't think it is a necessity in the rest of the country. Miss Thomson, a grade 11 student, who enjoys and excels in English said that work will be combined with pleasure during her Montreal stay. The guests will be treated to a banquet and a moonlight dip in the Hotel Bonaventure's rooftop heated pool. They will visit Quebec City and tour Montreal and will see a McGill variety show, the Red and White Revue. The students will also visit the three Montreal universities during their stay, she said.

Injunction case continues

Hearings into alleged injunction breaches continued in Superior Court yesterday before Justice William Mitchell with witnesses testifying for the Domtar Pulp and Paper company's case recounting their difficulties with the strikers during September in the Windsor area.

Domtar claims that men employed by them as well as some union employees violated the terms of an injunction obtained by the company shortly after the men went on strike in July, 1968.

Among the witnesses who testified in the Domtar presentation were two Pinkerton guards who said they were hit and pushed around by strikers who came to the Windsor plant in September.

Rene Gaza testified that unknown persons dumped a bucket of paint on his car.

Other witnesses for the case against the union testified of alleged wrong doings to them and their property because of the strike. At one point when cross-examining a Pinkerton guard, Laurent Dube, representing the unions, managed to establish that guards had done some types of work in the plant at Windsor.

Hearings continue in the case today.

Windsor hospital report release urged

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Jacques Trahan has urged the Quebec health department to release a report on administration and medical practices of St. Louis Hospital in Windsor, Que. Judge Trahan, presiding over another inquiry at Sir Charles Lemoyne Hospital in suburban Greenfield Park, made the plea to a health department observer at the Charles Lemoyne inquiry. He asked that the report be released "before everyone gets to know unofficially the content ... and spreads false information on it."

Sherbrooke La Tribune has already published portions of the report. "I don't know how they got it," Judge Trahan said. "But what bugs me even more is that not all they said was true." The reports in La Tribune indicated that the judge criticized "the poor quality of medical services" in the hospital and called for retraining of doctors employed there.

Adjourns

QUEBEC (CP) — A three-man police inquiry decided Monday to adjourn until Wednesday its hearing into the conduct of police in suburban Vanier where a large shipment of liquor was found in a warehouse last November.

Reason for the adjournment was to allow for consideration of a legal technicality involving four possible witnesses.

To strip streets of parked cars at night

Council last night issued a notice of a new bylaw which forbids all parking on all Sherbrooke streets every morning from 2 a.m. until 9 a.m. from November 15 until March 31 to facilitate snow removal operations.

The bylaw will be passed at next Monday's council meeting and will be in effect in 15 days, January 27.

Traffic Committee Chairman Alderman Gerard Deziel said that if any citizen wishes to complain, he should write the Director of Circulation, Jean-Paul Lajoie, addressed to City Hall.

Council decided that 2 a.m. was the best time to prohibit parking because most city restaurants close their doors around this time, as do hotels. Anyone whose car is parked on a street after this time will be fined.

Council did not specify last night how much the fine would be, but this will probably be determined by next week when the bylaw is adopted.

No alderman contested the decision.

Every winter, parking on city streets at night has hampered snow removal operations and council never could seriously cope with the situation.

Usually, the members would make a decision and revoke it shortly after.

All the aldermen and Mayor

Nadeau seemed determined last night to put this bylaw to work.

The move to prohibit parking was not discussed at length last night.

Mr. Deziel produced a report, which was not on last night's agenda, which was complied by Mr. Lajoie and city engineer R. Charland.

The two men had visited Jacques Barriere, engineer, and traffic director in Montreal, to study the methods Montreal is using to combat the parking during winter problem.

They learned that Montreal abandoned the old alternation plan, in which cars parked on one side of a street certain nights and on the other side of the street the remaining nights of the week.

The plan proved to be too inconvenient for Montreal drivers. The plan was modified so that the alternation system is still the base of the plan, but now the alternation is at certain hours of the day and night instead of parking every night on a different side of a street.

On some streets in Montreal, parking is prohibited during the day and allowed at night, by virtue of the modified alternation plan.

Residential and commercial streets have different alternation plans, based on the most convenient and practical system.

Altogether, there are four different modifications to the alternation system, according to need.

Mr. Lajoie and Mr. Charland reported that this alternation system would cost the city $40,000 for special signs and $15,000 for a change in some plows.

They suggested that the city prohibit parking every night throughout the city and this solution was readily accepted.

City's '68 snow costs soar

Snow removal cost Sherbrooke $550,436.27 in 1968, a Public Works report released at council last night disclosed.

This is a sharp increase, about $125,000 more than the 1967 cost of $425,922.46.

The report showed that the public works committee, Alderman Tony Pinard chairman, was working with a revised budget last year of $443,000.

The original budget was set at $303,000 but it had to be revised because of the extremely severe winter last year.

Actual snow removal from the streets cost the city $167,289.32 in 1968. The budget for this removal was $135,000.

In 1967, this operation cost $115,371.62.

Plowing the snow off city streets last year cost $65,369.60, an increase of $15,369.50 over the 1968 budget of $50,000.

This plowing cost $49,425.41 in 1967.

The most expensive operation was salting the streets which cost $234,499.60 in 1968, or $69,804.18 more than the operation cost in 1967.

The budget in 1968 for this battle against winter was $185,000.

This winter struck early and hard, as the report indicates.

Snow removal operations for the week ending December 14, 1968, cost $9,209.89; for the week ending December 21 - $67,345.02; the week ending December 28 - $39,124.40; and the period from December 29 to December 31 cost $35,552.52.

These costs total a snow removal expense of $148,231.83 just for December.

This total is included in the 1968 fiscal period.

However, this winter to date has matched last winter's severity and it looks like another costly season for the public works department. The snow removal budget for 1969 is $359,100.

Unions deny irresponsibility charges

Member unions of the Confederation of National Trade Unions have rejected a charge by two Quebec cabinet ministers of union irresponsibility in the protracted strike of 1,200 Domtar Ltd. employees in Windsor and East Angus.

In a resolution adopted at a weekend meeting, the Sherbrooke regional council of the CNTU contended that Dom-tar is seeking to establish a precedent by refusing to drop charges against the union and several of its members.

This precedent would encourage the hiring of strikebreakers during a walkout, and thus was a potential threat to the entire labor movement.

The charges referred to involve the National Federation of Pulp and Paper Workers, a CNTU affiliate which represents the Domtar employees, and 39 of its members.

The union and 34 men have been charged with violating injunctions, while the union and five men have been charged with theft and threats of violence during the strike for higher pay which started last July 18.

Agreement has been reached on a new 30-month contract to end the walkout, but the union has refused to return to work until Domtar drops the charges.

The cabinet ministers—Claude Gosselin, lands and forests minister, and Remi Paul, acting labor minister—said in a joint statement Friday they deplored "the irresponsibility of union leaders who are ready to sacrifice the livelihood of 1,200 mill workers ... to save some individuals who have committed blunders and must face justice."

They said the government cannot ask Domtar to "re-nounce its right to obtain redress against workers who considered themselves outside the law."

Terms of the conditional 30-month contract settling the wage issue have not been made public.

The workers, whose average hourly rate was $2.96 when the strike started, had been holding out for a 35-cent hourly increase over two years. They have rejected four wage offers, the last of which would have given them the 35-cent increase spread over a three-year term.

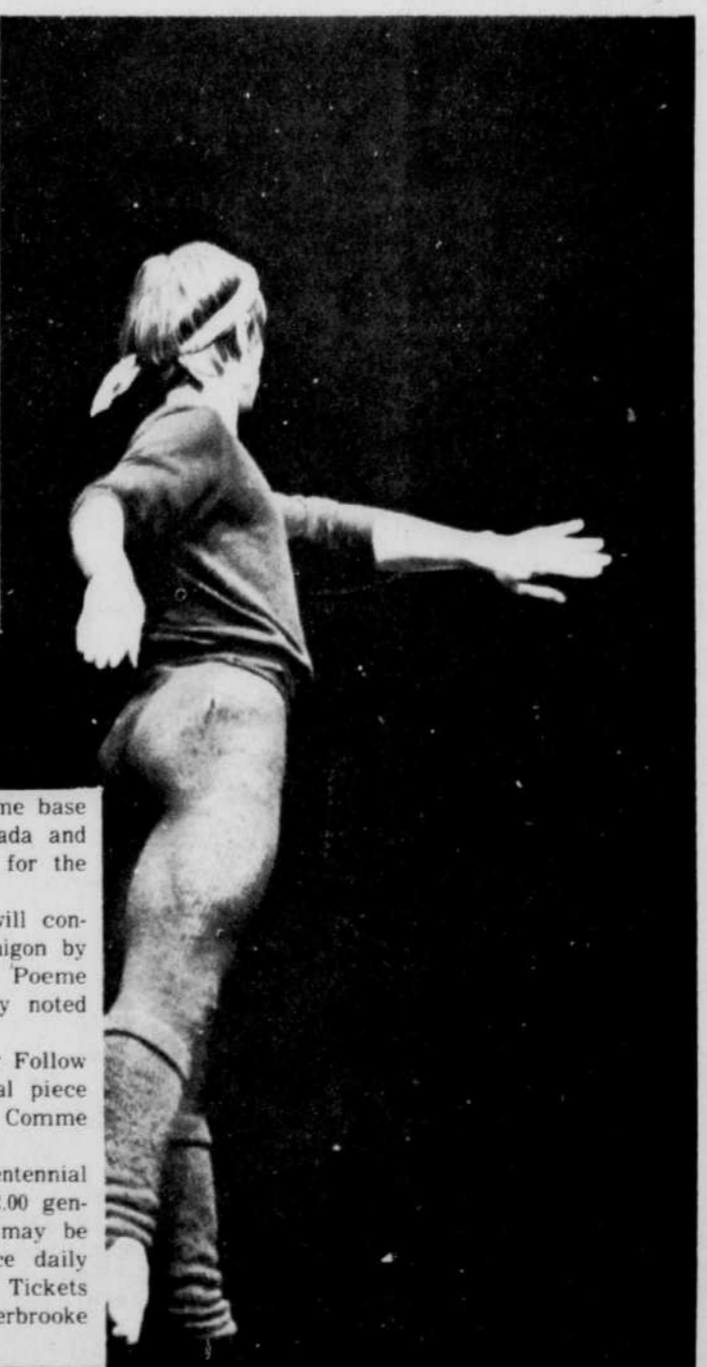

Classical ballet in modern form Friday

Classical ballet in modern form will be featured at the Bishop's University Centennial Theatre this Friday as the widely acclaimed Groupe de la Place Royale will give a performance on the Bishop's stage.

The dance group, formed in Montreal two years ago, will feature dances performed to the music of prominent Canadian composers such as Serge Garant, Guy Lachapelle, Gilles Tremblay and Bruce Mather. Jeanne Renaud, choreographer and the driving force behind the company composed of nine dancers, explains that the purpose behind the group is "to renew the beauty of classical ballet in the most pure form of the present."

The company thus far has lived up to its lofty purpose.

Next month the group will move from its home base at the Theatre du Port Royale to a tour of Canada and in November the company crosses over to Paris for the Festival of Arts scheduled to be held there.

The performance at the Centennial Theatre will consist of four contemporary works including Chigomigon by Turkish composer Ilahn Mimaroglu and Sur un Poeme de St. Denis Garreau, which features music by noted composer Serge Garant.

Also on the program is a number called They Follow One Another Inside of Tomorrow and a financial piece by John Hawthors called La Terre est Bleue Comme Une Orange.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Friday at the Centennial Theatre. Admission is $2.50 for reserved seats, $2.00 general and $1.50 for high school students. Tickets may be obtained from the Centennial Theatre box office daily from 1 to 2 p.m. and prior to the performance. Tickets will be on sale at Skinner and Nadeau in Sherbrooke from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday.

Refugee influx hints Cuba no modern Eden

Cyrus Eaton, Canadian-born American industrialist, gentleman farmer and unofficial U.S. ambassador of goodwill to the Communist world, has returned from a visit to Cuba full of praise for the island's maximum leader.

"Cuba never had a real chance since Columbus discovered it until now," says Eaton. "Castro is dedicated to the country and the people. You can condemn him for other things, but not for that."

The same could never have been said about Fulgenio Batista, Cuba's previous dictator, who was dedicated to nothing but his own self-aggrandizement.

Stangely, though, in the days of Batista, bad as they were, one never heard of people risking their lives in small boats just to escape from the island.

There was no such thing as a refugee air lift to Miami, with a waiting list of tens of thousands of Cubans hoping to get on it and willing to pay the price of leaving behind everything they own but the clothes on their backs.

It must mean something when 81 men, women and children — and a hundred or so more who didn't make it — travel 600 miles by truck and then brave bullets and dogs to make a dash into the United States naval base at Guantanamo.

And once they reached safety there they were afraid to give their names lest reprisals be taken against their relatives still under the thumb of Dr. Castro.

Evidently they do not understand what the dedicated Castro is trying to do for his country and his people.

Perhaps Cyrus Eaton can explain to them.

Our star salesman says he wants to retire, but that the front office won't O.K. his expense account for four new shoes.

Those "lunacy" tests

The London Observer reports what it calls, with apparent good reason, a "new and ludicrous phase of student lunacy" — a demand by a group of students in India that they be allowed to cheat on tests.

Some of these far-out students reportedly have beaten up lecturers who called them down for using crib notes. Others have simply walked out of examinations, complaining that the questions were too difficult.

Almost as often, observes the Observer, administrators have given in and a new set of easier papers has been prepared and the examinations held again.

At first glance, anyway, this appears a logical development of modern student thinking.

If students ought to have the right to dictate how their courses are taught and to grade their teachers, as some of the students on this continent are demanding, it is only fair that these same students be allowed to decide what questions they will be asked.

And, just as logically, the professors might be expected to provide their charges with prepared answers to the questions or to simplify matters with examination papers containing both the questions and answers.

The loudest praises of winter have been sung indoors, beside a roaring fireplace.

After eight years The Republicans are planning biggest, most expensive, shindig

WASHINGTON (CP) — Eight years is a long time between parties and the Republicans are planning the biggest, most expensive shindig Washington has ever seen for the Jan. 20 inauguration of Richard M. Nixon.

The invitation lists are said to be almost five miles long. The cost is estimated at a minimum $2,300,000. But the inauguration committee expects to show a profit as party faithful go on a three-day spending spree to celebrate the "coronation" of the first Republican president of the United States since Dwight D. Eisenhower moved out of the White House in 1961.

The only clouds on the horizon are the possibility of wicked winter weather, of the kind that marred John F. Kennedy's inauguration, or street violence. Stringent security measures, routine now in the assassination-conscious nation, will prevail.

Following the April race riots here, the insurance companies who traditionally insure against financial loss through cancellation or postponement shied away from a riot clause. However, G. Dewey Arnold, chairman of the insurance committee, says this is not a great concern—the events will take place even in the face of riot threats.

And so far the only announced demonstrations are of the non-disruptive type.

INVITE 300,000
The 300,000 general invitations going out to Republicans across the land and a handful of prominent Democrats actually aren't worth the paper they're printed on, except as souvenirs. More important are the specific invitations to the inaugural ball, the concerts, galas and receptions planned for the three-day clam bake.

In addition to wangling an invitation, the guest also must pay from $5 for the cheapest concert seat to $1,000 for a box at the ball. The inauguration committee also is picking up a tidy sum through sale of official Nixon portraits, red, white and blue inaugural auto licence plates at $10 a set, programs at $2 each and a medalion struck with the Nixon likeness on one side and the presidential seal on the other.

Seats for the parade range from $5 to $25.

The bill for the party is about $700,000 more than for President Johnson's inauguration in 1965. But the committee has substantial historical reason for being optimistic—in years when the new president comes from the out-of-power party there is almost always enough interest to promote a financially successful inauguration.

SOME LOSE MONEY
Years in which incumbents are re-inaugurated are notable red-ink affairs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's inaugurations in 1937 and 1941 were money-losers and Eisenhower's second inauguration in 1957 finished a record $160,000 in the hole.

Actually there will be six inaugural balls in downtown hotels and the Smithsonian Institution with 25 or so bands, including Guy Lombardo, Sammy Kaye and Duke Ellington, providing the music.

And whatever the outside climate, President Johnson is bound to provide a friendly atmosphere on the limousine ride to the inaugural ceremony. Outgoing Republican President Herbert Hoover and incoming Democratic President Dwight D. Eisenhower are said to have travelled in silence to the affair and disgruntled Harry S. Truman had precious little to say to his successor, Eisenhower.

But the Johnsons have already had the Nixons around for a White House luncheon and tour and they are on pretty friendly terms.

As for street demonstrations, a spokesman for the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam says their protest will be "a political, not a physical confrontation." The group, a loose coalition of about 100 anti-war, pacifist and civil rights groups, plans an orderly "witness" at the inaugural parade and a march on Capitol Hill the day before. The radical Students for a Democratic Society recently voted against staging a demonstration.

YIPPIES INSTALL PIG
There also will be an "inhog-eration" staged by the Yippies who will symbolically install Pigasus, the pig they entered in the Nov. 5 presidential election.

Invitations are in such demand that one New Yorker offered $10,000 for two tickets to the oath-taking and a box at the ball. He was turned down. And an 86-year-old Southern lady wrote that she spent $300 on dancing lessons so she could enjoy the event.

But for all the spirit of Republican celebration the intention is to keep the inaugural itself solemn and dignified. There'll be no repetition of the 1829 inauguration of Andrew Jackson who made the mistake of opening the doors of the executive mansion to his supporters.

After too much punch, women fainted, china crashed to the floor and furniture crumbled. Jackson escaped to the safety of a nearby inn. Finally tubes of lurch placed on the lawn lured the throng outside.

Derricks

The first Derrick was the most notorious hangman of 17th-century London. He devised a kind of gallows that bore a remote resemblance to the industrial derricks of today, hence the term derrick for a hoisting device.

Ironwork Examples

The earliest known examples of the use of smelted ironwork were dagger blades found in bronze hilts dating back to the 28th century B.C., in Mesopotamia.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The ordinary 100-pound flour sack had a life cycle going from bag to rag in the economy of our frontier forebears, the World Almanac notes. The sack was bleached and made into work shirts with the collars worn out on both sides before being trimmed into dishcloths. Eventually, the material became household cleaning rags and, finally, outdoor work rags on which the men wiped their greasy hands.

OTTAWA — (TNS) — What will the New Year bring? The hazardous task of crystal-gazing seems more difficult this time than ever before.

With a presumably colorless new administration in Washington taking over the leadership of the free world and the ascendancy of neo-Stalinist hard-liners in the Kremlin, who can dare to venture even a wild guess?

Being no clairvoyant, all I have to go on is my analysis of past events as the roots from which future events are likely to grow.

In normal times most happenings initiated by human intelligence and emotions follow the roughly predictable path of the cause and effect law.

These, however, are not normal times. Many of the normal events in the world today do not seem to fit any discernible pattern of logic. With nihilistic riots plaguing even the most developed countries, reason appears to be receding as a motivating force of collective human behavior, and impulses of primitive destructiveness, erupting under the guise of ideological crusades, play havoc with all predictions.

Obviously, the most important question people ask when peering through the smoke of irrational turmoil into the impenetrable future is: Will there be war?

A year ago I would have answered that question with a firm conviction that mankind was not going to commit suicide. Today I am not so certain.

Cold reasoning decrees that a nuclear war is unthinkable and that those in control of the weapons of mass destruction cannot fail to realize that a nuclear holocaust would be suicidal.

But who can say whether cold reasoning is likely to prevail in all the conceivable confrontations the two nuclear-armed power blocs may slide into?

As actual events of the past year have shown, reason no longer is a reliable guide in predicting what may or may not happen.

It was not reason but mad imperialist compulsion that sent Soviet tanks to Prague last August. Nor was it reason but aggressive scheming that rearmend the Arabs for another attempt at wiping out Israel.

With such examples of negation of reason in 1968, what is there that cannot happen on the volatile world scene in 1969?

So, taking into account that, with the possible exception of the conflict in Vietnam, the new year is inheriting in undiminished gravity all the international ferment of its predecessor, all I can say about the unfathomable future is: let's brace ourselves for the worst and be pleasantly relieved 12 months from now if the worst does not hit us.

This does not mean that nothing can be done about minimizing the risks of a major war. On the contrary. Awareness of the danger, the existence of which was brutally demonstrated by the invasion of Czechoslovakia, should be translated into willingness to strengthen the collective security arrangements of the free world.

Knowing from experience that in all the past East-West confrontations the Kremlin invariably pulled back from the brink when confronted with a superior force, it can be assumed that avoidance of a disaster depends primarily on the strength and state of readiness of the collective deterrent of aggression.

Irrational though the men in the Kremlin may be, they are not likely to challenge the West directly as long as they have to reckon with a devastating retaliation.

Any weakening of the military strength and political cohesion of the Atlantic Alliance therefore increases the risk of war.

People who, like Eric Kierans, advocate our withdrawal from NATO, should ponder Winston Churchill's words spoken 30 years ago when appeasement of another totalitarian menace was celebrated as peace-saving statesmanship.

"Has any benefit or progress even been achieved by the human race," Churchill asked, "by submission to organized and calculated violence?"

His answer was that peace, goodwill and confidence cannot be built upon submission to wrong-doing backed by force.

He went on to say: "The light of civilized progress with its tolerances and co-operation, with its dignities and joys, has often in the past been blotted out," because people grown soft on false premises of security failed to see and counter the challenge of barbarism in time to avert disaster.

To his critics who were denouncing his calls for strong defence measures as warmongering, Churchill said:

"Does anyone pretend that preparation for resistance to aggression is unleashing war? I declare it to be the sole guarantee of peace. We need the swift gathering of forces to confront not only military but moral aggression . . ."

Had Churchill's recipe for maintenance of peace been followed 30 years ago, World War II could have been avoided. Instead, the seductive delusions of the appeasement policy won public support and the inevitable carnage and destruction followed.

The democracies have once again the choice between the comparatively minor sacrifices the preventive strengthening of Western collective defences demand, and another world war.

The option, in which Canada's voice is not without importance, may not stay open for long.

Resident laments loss of old home

Dear Sir:

To be awakened by the sounds of a late December blizzard is quite enough to send chills up and down one's spine but add to this the smell of smoke and the sound of fire and we can realize in a small way the terrible shock experienced by Mr. Raymond Grandmont and his bride of scarcely six months, living on R. R. No. 2 of Danville in the municipality of Sipton.

Early Sunday morning Dec. 15, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grandmont was burned to the ground. Fortunately they both escaped uninjured but with just the clothes they could grab on their way out.

A factor which did help to keep the loss to a minimum was that a strong wind was blowing from the northwest sending the sparks away onto the snow-covered fields and away from the barn and machine sheds. In the barn were 80 head of dairy cows and beef cattle and the winter feed.

Due to the blizzard which had been blowing for over 12 hours, the bad condition of the roads presented the neighbors and the Danville Fire Brigade from arriving in time to control the blaze.

Mr. Grandmont said that the loss was partially covered by insurance.

To the older citizens of Sipton the loss of the "Philbrick Brick House" is another broken link in the ever disappearing chain joining the pioneer days with the present.

It was during the summer of 1783 that John A. Philbrick left Deerfield, N.H., and came north to Canada and settled on what has been the Philbrick farm.

During that summer he built a log cabin and started clearing the land. This cabin served as the family home until 1862 when a grandson of the original Mr. Philbrick and father of the late Charles O. Philbrick built the "Brick house". The new house was built just 300 paces south of the original log cabin.

The late Mr. Charles Philbrick was three years old at the time the new house was being built.

In 1947 the farm was sold to Mr. Henry Grandmont who later sold it to his son.

The home has always been kept in good repair and was considered a beautiful old structure.

To the people living in and near Sipton who were familiar with this grand old landmark, the passing of the "Philbrick Brick House" is a loss that can only be replaced by fond memories.

Former MP plays down role of a new housing department

By HEWARD GRAFFTEY

The general symptoms are that Ottawa is about to give birth to yet another department of government — a housing department.

Those purporting to have inside information on what Paul Hellyer's housing task force is about to recommend say this is so, and as one who heard almost every second group which appeared before the task force advocate this particular solution, I cannot be surprised.

But I do hope Mr. Hellyer, as minister responsible for housing, does not consider the recommendation that a Housing and Urban Development Department be created — if in fact this recommendation is made — as one of the more weighty proposals.

For there are reasons to suggest that a new federal department is not what we really need to improve the Canadian housing situation at this particular time. Maybe later, but not now.

First, it is indeed notable that groups which did not recommend such a department to the task force were those dealings on a practical level, day to day, with housing problems — the municipal housing authorities, the provincial housing corporations, the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

These people are quite aware that there are probably too many government structures in the way already.

Supporting this position is much of the testimony given before the task force as it travelled across Canada which suggests there is already "too much government red tape". Like a maze, government agencies and regulations slow down construction and thus boost costs. In Toronto, as an illustration, one public official revealed 52 different public agencies must give their approval before a public housing project gets underway. This takes, at minimum, two years.

So why, in the face of this, add another layer of bureaucracy by creating an additional department, especially when you are ostensibly trying to improve the housing situation? It's a question Mr. Hellyer will want to think about.

If the idea of a housing department is accepted, what reaction can we expect from the various political parties?

In recent years most parties have suggested something along the lines of a housing department — although with some significant variations.

The New Democrats, in the first plank of their eight-point housing policy, call for establishment of a federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, "which will actively assist other levels of government to undertake, and if necessary will undertake itself, the planning and construction of a wide range of rural and urban housing accommodation, town and community planning, urban redevelopment and the preservation and extension of green belts, parks and recreation centres." The NDP can be expected to applaud the creation of a department of housing.

The Progressive Conservative platform also calls for a Department of Housing and Urban Development, "with a minister who will co-ordinate all federal activity in the urban planning area."

However, this was part of a much larger plan the Tories have for the "consolidation of the other departments". That fact should be coupled with statements by Opposition Leader Stanfield to the effect that his party, if they were setting up a department which involves a close working relationship with other levels of government, would want to proceed after consultation and in cooperation with the provinces. Together, support a new housing department brought in under the present circumstances.

For a clue to Liberal thinking on this subject, one has to examine what they have, in practical terms of government organization, been doing for the past few years.

Under both the Pearson and Trudeau administrations, a cabinet minister has been made "responsible for housing", thereby taking under his wing the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and any other federal interests in housing.

This method has had fluctuating success. John Nicholson, as Labor Minister, was charged with housing duties, until he staged a federal-provincial conference on housing in December 1967. Then Edgar Benson was quickly given the "special responsibility for housing". Busy with other duties much of the time, Benson's major effort was an attempt to lower the size of down payments, until housing was finally handed over to the only minister who really seemed to crave it, Paul Hellyer.

So he put together a task force on housing which has been travelling and gathering facts across Canada since last September, and which is now putting final touches on its report. From the task force recommendations, Hellyer will mould some policy measures that we can expect quite soon.

All of which brings us back to the housing department.

The Minister himself has no doubt been unimpressed by the achievements of his predecessors — which in part must have been due to the weight of their other duties — under the system which consigned to a busy cabinet minister the important area of housing almost as an afterthought.

Nevertheless, this may not be adequate reason for him to embrace the idea of a new housing department as an alternative. After all, he has shown that a minister — even though busy as acting PM and running the onerous Department of Transport — can find time to attend countless housing hearings from coast to coast, once he decides to give housing top priority.

Moreover, would Hellyer wish to split his current responsibilities to share them with another minister, thereby reducing his stature and power? While he puzzles that one out, there are several other considerations — not so tied up with a man's political career — which suggest a new department for housing is not our greatest need right now.

The fundamental fact that jurisdiction for housing is split between federal, provincial, municipal and in some cases even regional governments cannot be overlooked. For years this has caused many national organizations — such as the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities — to express concern over the absence of a strategy involving the three levels of government. It is here, too, that we can expect to see the greatest differences between the Liberals and the Conservatives.

The PCs, whose proposal for a housing department was prefaced with the need to consult with the provinces first, had a similar line of thought running through their proposal for a task force on housing. The one — yet significant — difference between the task force created by Hellyer and the one the PCs called for last June, was the Conservatives' idea that it include provincial representatives. The one that actually was created did not.

These differences arise from sincere efforts by the various parties to come to grips with the issues of Canadian housing in the midst of muddled jurisdictions. However, those who call for constitutional reform seem to be on the right track when they quickly point out that new structures such as housing departments should only come after jurisdictions are clarified. Throwing one more element of bureaucracy into the already murky waters, they argue, is bound to increase confusion, rather than provide the "coordinating overview" which pro-department advocates claim.

Another problem all parties will have to think about is the role of the housing corporations. The federal government has CMHC, and eight of the 10 provincial governments have housing corporations, or have recently put the necessary legislation on the books to create them. These bodies exist here and now. They are working away to create new public and private housing and rehabilitate the existing stock of homes. What appreciable improvements could a federal housing department add to that effort?

The final dilemma faced by those who want a federal housing department is perhaps the most profound. It is one the PCs tried to come to grips with in their proposals that government departments be consolidated. The way our government departments in Ottawa are organized right now, housing problems are just too complex to be captured by one single department.

If someone really wants to do something about housing he must get action not only from the minister specifically responsible, but also from the ministers of finance, of health and welfare, of Indian affairs, of regional development, and so on.

There is much we can do to provide better, less-expensive housing for Canadians. Creating a federal department for it is not among the most urgent of such measures.

Sutton will host sled dog race Jan. 18

SUTTON — More than 20 American and Canadian teams are expected to compete in the sixth International Sled Dog Race at Sutton, Jan. 18, 19, 1969. Starting time each day is 2 p.m.

The race starts and finishes on Academy Road and Pleasant Streets, adjacent to the Canadian Legion sports field and the team with the best elapsed time over the rugged 14 mile-course on consecutive days is declared the winner.

The International Sled Dog Race is sponsored by La Jeune Chambre de Sutton Inc., and Mr. Gaston Lassonde is the President of the Committee formed for this purpose. The $1,000-prize money for the race is raised by Sutton businessmen and associations," said Mr. Lassonde.

"Staging this race is a real community effort, everyone helps in marking out the course blocking off the necessary streets, crowd control, officiating in many ways and helping out in entertaining the visiting dog team owners, drivers and dog handlers."

The winning team will receive $300, second $225 and third $125. The sum of $350 will be divided among the next twelve teams, Mr. Lassonde announced.

The following officials are in charge: Race Marshal, Don McFaul; Chief Timer, Wally Holden; Chief Judge, Robert Boulanger; and Trail Marshal Roger Cusson.

Diane Bonneau, president of the Jeune Chambre de Sutton, said that the various dog teams prior to the start of races at 2 p.m. daily are harnessed to their sleds at the Legion sports field and it is interesting to watch the drivers get their teams ready for the race. As long as the public is reasonable and does not interfere with the drivers as they prepare for the race they are welcome to watch the drivers and handlers at work.

Mrs. Romaine Jones, a resident of Sutton who raises Samoyeds and is a professional handler of show dogs, states that the International Sled Dog Race at Sutton is considered by American and Canadian sled dog racers as a strictly professional prestige event.

Residents rush to aid of new immigrants

SOUTH BOLTON — (Special) — The widespread New Year's storm caught many people unaware including ski enthusiasts, Mr. and Mrs. Freud and child, whose camp is on the River Road, North Potton, where Bobby Cole walks by every day to tend his horses further on.

Bobby kept in contact with them and they were able to walk out to a hotel a mile away when they ran out of food. Not so lucky, were five young adults, snowed in for five days on the same road in the Schoolcraft farmhouse which they rented for the ski season.

Mrs. Maria Bray kept in touch with them by phone to give them progress of the snow removal crew. Mrs. Ernest Bradley sent nephews, Don, Barry and Peter on snowshoes with food and Bobby Cole hauled snow mobile drivers and got one of the young men to the store for provisions.

The people are teachers of Latin, French, English and religion for the Montreal Catholic School Commission, having come from France only four months ago. They are Mr. and Mrs. P. Blond, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Joly and Mr. P. Rieux. A bulldozer had to be used to open up the road.

Both the municipal and provincial snow removal crews are to be commended for their round-the-clock efforts during the height of the storm.

Historical Society holds mid-holiday whist party

WEST BROME — On Dec. 30 the Brome County Historical Society provided an enjoyable evening for local residents when they held a Military Whist in the West Brome Anglican Church Hall. In spite of the cold weather and heavy roads the whist players from Brome, Knowlton and Cowansville turned ed out with cards played at 10 tables. It was pleasant to have the younger set of West Brome Village playing the game with interest and enjoyment.

Many who could not come were kind enough to send in donations of money and food, which the sponsors wish to acknowledge with grateful thanks.

Those receiving prizes at the winning tables were: Mrs. Owens, Miss Norma Owens, Mrs. Hilda Luce and Mr. Gordon Marsh, all of Brome. Receivers of prizes at the losing table were: Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ball, all of Cowansville; Miss Elizabeth Fuller, West Brome and Mrs. Wesley Leavitt, Knowlton, also received lucky prizes.

Mrs. Mary McCutcheon ran a successful Penny Fair which helped to furnish entertainment and prizes for the lucky persons whose numbers were drawn.

The society wishes to thank Mrs. Harry Shufelt, Miss Cecile Darbe, Miss Edith Shufelt, Miss Elizabeth Collins, Mr. Lyle Longway, Mrs. Mary McCutcheon, Mr. Sidney Cromack and Mrs. Sarah Rundle for giving or making articles for prizes both for the Whist and Penny Fair.

Refreshments were served by the West Brome lady members of the Historical Society. The proceeds from the evening's event will go towards maintaining and heating the Centennial Archives Building, which now belongs to the Society.

Evaluation is theme of Stanbridge East W. I.

STANBRIDGE EAST — The Women's Institute held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. C. Rhicard. Due to the severe weather and the prevalence of colds only six members were present.

Coming at the end of one year and at the beginning of a new one, the meeting was under the heading, Evaluation. The roll call was. One thing I'd like to do better this year, and for the program, written questions, complaints, and suggestions were submitted anonymously by each member and discussed at the meeting. As enough members were present for a quorum, some suggestions were left over for the February meeting.

Correspondence included thank you letters from those remembered at Christmas and a letter from the Provincial President, Mrs. McGibbon, asking that any suggestions or matters the branch would like discussed at the board meeting, be sent to the County President before February. A suggestion is to be sent from the branch by the corresponding secretary, Miss I. Corey.

Mrs. K. Shepherdson and Mrs. M. Tait were appointed to draw up the 1969 - 70 program for approval at the February meeting. A donation by Mrs. Eric Jones,

THE REGULAR OFFICER TRAINING PLAN

TEACHES HIGHLAND DANCING—Patricia Johnson, 14, shows Kirsten Frost, and Julie McComb, six-year-olds, the elementary steps of a highland dance. Patricia teaches highland dancing to a group of five to 11-year-olds each Saturday afternoon at St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church Hall in Lennoxville. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

Young teacher passes on her highland dancing talents

Although there may not be a drop of Scottish blood in 14-year-old Patricia Johnson, a Grade 9 student at St. Patrick High School, she shares the same love of a true Scotsman for the bag pipes and highland dancing.

So well has she mastered the art of highland dancing that she is passing on her talents to others as a hobby.

Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Johnson, 18 Academy Street, Lennoxville, has been a highland dancer since the age of five. She learned how to dance from her aunt, Mrs. Diane Quick, of Sherbrooke.

Since that time, with several others, she has performed at fairs, for groups and benefits and at the annual Gathering of the Clans.

And since the end of August, Patricia decided to pass on her knowledge to others. She started by teaching dancing to sister, Ann, 9, and a neighbor girl.

Now she has a group called the Junior Highland Dancers,

By MARGUERITE SMITH

little girls ranging in ages from five to 11 years old.

The teaching began at the Johnson home but when the group grew and expanded, the girls and teacher were forced to find more spacious quarters. Rev. Lawrence Tierney, parish priest of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church in Lennoxville heard about Patricia's group and donated the use of the church hall on Saturday afternoons.

The oldest of seven children, Patricia, looked at her students during an interview and admitted, "I love teaching them."

"I find that they learn quicker than I did. . . it took me a year to learn one dance. . . it takes them about two months."

Patricia does seven different types of highland dancing including the sword dance, reels, highland fling and Seann Truibhas. She teaches a total of two hours each Saturday.

What else does she do for than many of his friends. "I had a pony and we had a maid."

"As a teen I saw how others were deprived of their opportunities," he explained. "I was irked at business requests for a qualified Negro to fill a job. How can you be qualified if given no chance?"

His athletic ability (and sharp mind) helped him parlay his "chance" into helping others. Since college he has worked with youth divisions in L. A., Pittsburgh and Atlanta. While attending law school and playing for the Pirates, he was a detective on the Pittsburgh force.

Drawing from his JD experience, he decried problems that arise from overloaded court dockets.

"You find a kid in trouble and have him arraigned, hoping to help in some way but he is back on the streets before you leave your office."

In cities and suburbs he feels major contributing factors to many current youthful freakouts are:

- In wealthier suburbs, neglect. Too many left alone while parents are busy socially.

- In ghettos, too many people, no supervision, no money.

- Overlenient attitudes, by parents, by the Supreme Court.

"There has been too much leniency stressed in the last decade. You can't demand that a child or an adult abide by certain laws if he knows there is only minor punishment and that he will be freed right away. Through the years we could have clamped down on abortionists and drug pushers, for example. They continue to operate illegally because they know the right people and have enough money."

Unlike so many adults, Clendenon believes in stiffer punishment for law breakers.

"The contention of those against stiff punishment is that fear cannot mold our society," he explained. "It has molded our society but with it came a respect for authority and this is necessary for survival."

Although he will play with the Montreal Expos this season, he feels over-the-hill at 33 for baseball. He is proud of his personnel work, especially with the Atlanta firm and will stay with Scripto, he said.

He estimates the firm's labor force is about 85 per cent black and for years the quality of work was below par.

"Now we work on pride like on a ball team. Everyone feels underpaid in any job but the idea is to go out and give 115 per cent to show the boss and stick the company for more money next year."

His main concern remains the attitude of ghetto youth.

"I have seen that if someone takes an interest, they can become something. The majority aren't thugs. They aren't bad. But when I go through a neighborhood I have to put over my story. I'm in competition with gamblers and pimps these kids see on the street corner with money in their pockets or driving swanky cars. It's hard to tell the kids crime doesn't pay."

They don't starve in garrets

TORONTO (CP) — Not all artists starve in garrets. Many earn good livings in insurance companies, department stores, industrial plants, newspaper offices. A small but increasing number are even finding that painting can be a reliable source of income.

In any one area the number of opportunities may be small, but the opportunity to build a career on artistic ability now exists in a number of fields in Canada.

Artist Hugh Mackenzie has taught in technical schools in London, Ont., and Ottawa and now is teaching part-time at the Ontario College of Art. He has held several sellout shows at a Toronto gallery and recently painted the official portrait of former prime minister Lester Pearson.

He says a degree in art is not necessarily a factor in success—that he knows of vocational school art students doing well in an assortment of jobs.

"In the graphic arts industry, paper qualifications count for little. What you can do is what really counts. Can you turn out a job and turn it out on time? That's what employers care about."

Mr. Mackenzie says the decision to take art should be made carefully.

"For girls coming into the course it is often a choice between taking a commercial course or art; for boys a choice between drafting and printing or art."

"You can almost guarantee a reasonably intelligent kid a job in drafting. You certainly can't in art. Art is not as secure as office work, but it has the advantage of being more interesting, and—if it works—there is considerably more money."

He says he thinks most art teachers and other people in the field would take the time to advise a student on whether his talent is worth training and what sort of jobs are available that might suit his particular bent.

Painting nun enjoys her hobby

VICTORIA (CP) — Sister Mary Jean, 71, says painting as a hobby "is better than running around."

Since she retired as a teacher two years ago, Sister Mary Jean, of the Order of St. Ann, has painted 84 pictures. Her room at the Roman Catholic Mount St. Angela convent here was not large enough to hold all her paintings, so the sisters started hanging them in a back room of the building for public display to all interested visitors.

Any money from sales is donated to her "favorite charity." Sister Mary Jean taught drawing and academic subjects in the Yukon for 25 years and later taught in Victoria, Vancouver and Kamloops, B.C., before retiring.

LENNOXVILLE UCW Mrs. Arthur B. Lovelace presided at the annual meeting of the Lennoxville United Church Women held in Douglas Hall, Queen Street.

The meeting was opened with the repeating of the UCW purpose followed by a short worship service led by Mrs. William J. Lane.

The annual report was given and treasurer, Mrs. Douglas Baldwin, reported a successful year with all commitments met.

Mrs. William J. Lane presided for the election of officers. A complete list will be given following the installation service.

In the absence of Mrs. Donald McElrea, retiring president, a vote of appreciation was extended for the faithful services she had given in the past year.

A number of items of new business were taken care of, and a program of various activities was planned. Tentative dates and events are as follows: Jan. 16, Presbyterial executive meeting 10 a.m.; Jan. 26, anniversary service; Feb. 2, congregational annual meeting and supper; Feb. 4 and 5, Presbyterial meeting; March 7, World Day of Prayer at St. George's Church; April 24, rummage sale; April 28, general meeting preceded by an executive meeting.

May 1, coffee party; June 9, executive meeting; Sept. 29, general meeting; Nov. 26, Christmas bazaar; Dec. 8, executive meeting; Jan. 5, 1970, annual meeting.

ST. PAUL'S GUILD

St. Paul's Ladies Guild held the first meeting of the year in the Church Hall recently. Nine members attended.

The president, Mrs. Florence Lord, was in the chair, and the meeting opened with the guild prayer.

The roll call and minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Marian Dewing.

Mrs. Angie Staniford, treasurer, gave her financial report for the year.

The election of officers being the next order of business, Mrs. Mabel Peck took the chair.

Officers are Mrs. Beatrice Drew, president; Mrs. Delia Sangster, vice-president; Mrs. Marian Dewing, secretary; Mrs. Angie Staniford, treasurer. The retiring president, Mrs. Lord thanked all for their help, in the past three years, that she had been president.

Mrs. Lord was also presented with a gift from the members, in appreciation for her hard work in the past three years.

Several card parties are planned. Dates are Jan. 16, Jan. 30 and Feb. 2.

Anyone who can make up a table or cares to play, please phone Mrs. Myrtle Raymond at 569-1786. Prizes at each table and door prizes will be given.

As there was no further business the new president, Mrs. Drew, closed the meeting with prayer.

A hot dish supper was served to all who had helped during the year.

Czech women determined to become force for change in their society

LONDON (CP) — Czech women are determined to become a force for change in their society, says a Canadian who recently returned from a tour of the country as a Voice of Women delegate.

Meg Sears of Toronto, now resident in London, said in an interview that the Union of Czechoslovak Women, which sponsored the trip, is "very conscious that it was used as an instrument of government policy" during the era before the reforms of Alexander Dubcek.

Now, despite the Soviet intervention, it was "trying to get back to the grass roots," supporting candidates for elected office and pressing for social reforms ranging from alimony laws to equal job opportunities. The union favors returning certain state services to private hands and supports the idea of voluntary organizations in the field of social welfare.

Women outnumber men in Czechoslovakia and 82 per cent of them work, said Mrs. Sears. The editor of Rude Pravo, the influential Prague newspaper, is a woman.

Mrs. Sears, daughter of the late NDP stalwart Colin Cameron, was accompanied on the 12-day trip by Jeanne Duval of Montreal, who has already returned home, and Mrs. Joan Ostry of Calgary, who plans to spend the winter in London.

They found a quiet but forceful conviction among ordinary Czech people that the liberalization of society—in the local phrase "socialism with a human face"—somehow would be carried on, though much endurance and patience would be needed. Dubcek, the liberal leader, still is a national hero.

The Canadians were surprised how freely and strongly Czechs spoke about the Soviet invasion and occupation. They had expected to have to be "heavily tactful" in conversation, but the Czechs were eager to discuss it. Not one person they encountered believed the Soviet story of the invasion being a fraternal action to squash a "counter-revolution."

But Mrs. Sears said almost all the Czechs they met were willing to give the Russian people credit for not knowing what was being done by their government. The Canadian women were told that even the young Russian soldiers did not know where they were headed until they crossed the Czech border, and that those who killed students at Bratislava genuinely panicked when they saw the youths picking up stones. They thought the objects were grenades.

Nevertheless, there was "acute grief" in the country about the events of August, and a pervading tension about the Soviet presence.

STEINBERG'S — The company is converting its 46 Ontario supermarkets into "Miracle Food Marts" offering discount food prices. The company said the stores with reduced prices will open Wednesday morning. The stores were closed yesterday and will be closed today to permit repricing under the new discount system. A spokesman for Steinberg's said the company has no plans to introduce this type of marketing in Quebec, where the majority of the company's stores are located.

BOW VALLEY — Bullock Helicopters Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Bow Valley, has received a contract from Panarctic Oils to service seismic camps and to ferry men and materials from base to camps on several Arctic Islands. Value of the contract wasn't disclosed.

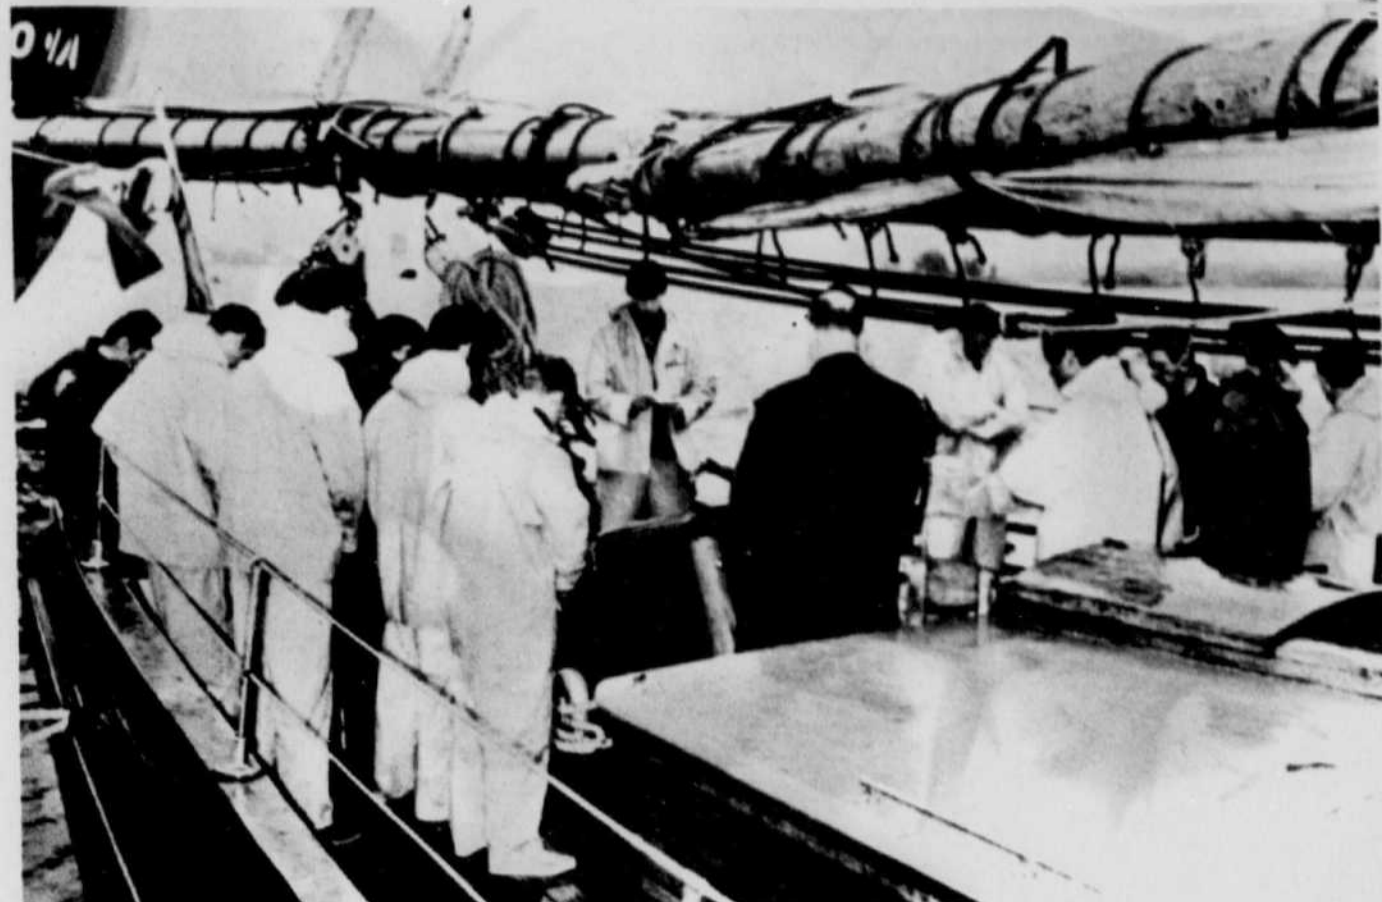

HOME OIL — The company had a profit from sale of securities in 1968 of approximately $6,350,000 compared with $261,000 profit from same source in 1967. The company didn't disclose which securities it sold in 1968 but it is understood they were Home Oil's holdings of Trans-Canada Pipe preferred stock and Union Gas of Canada common shares. Home said it purchased 331,000 common shares of Atlantic Richfield Oil for $36,500,000 (U.S.) or $110 a share. Also, Home said it purchased 73,000 shares of Sinclair Oil at a cost of $127 (U.S.) a share.

A total of 52,560 shares of Sinclair Oil were sold to Atlantic Richfield at $145 (U.S.) a share pursuant to Atlantic's public offer for Sinclair. The remaining 20,440 Sinclair shares, assuming successful completion of the merger between Sinclair and Atlantic Richfield, will be exchanged for the equivalent of an additional 24,528 shares of Atlantic Richfield.

QUEBEC SCENE

Armed bandits conduct cool heist

MONTREAL (CP) — Three bandits, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, handcuffed seven employees of a branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce Monday and escaped with a sum that may be "as high as $18,000," police said.

Police said the men entered the bank located in suburban Rosemere about 9:30 a.m. just as the employees were beginning to count the contents of the night depository banks. The bank opens to the public at 10 a.m.

"But the bandits had apparently planned the whole thing well in advance," said a police spokesman. "The bolts of the back door through which they entered had been removed earlier and the door then put back. All they had to do was push it open."

While one thief held the employees at gunpoint another proceeded to handcuff them.

Police said no alarm was sounded when the door was opened "because there is no alarm device on the door."

"It's taken off the door at night when the bank closes and is put on the vault so that only when the vault is opened is an alarm sounded."

But the alarm system on the vault had been jammed with wax, preventing employees from sounding a police warning when the three men fled. One suspect has been arrested.

A second suspect has been arrested.

Dr. Yves Morin, director of the Quebec Cardiology Institute said Monday night.

Dr. Morin, speaking to a social club in Quebec, said he has not been able to determine whether this frequency of coronary difficulties is generic, but added that it is a subject of extremely interesting research.

But Trudeau himself seems far from disenchanted with the Commonwealth as his initial conference enters its final stages.

During a plenary session debate on economic problems, which continues this morning, the Canadian leader said Monday the Commonwealth has an important function in the ordering of human affairs. On Dec. 23 in Ottawa, he termed the association an anachronism.

He played no publicly-announced part, however, in Monday's main conference fess, which involved the racially-complicated migration issue.

The controversy was sparked by the refusal of four East African countries to join in a meeting of delegation officials trying to thrash out the basis for agreement on such matters as entry of Asians into Britain from Africa.

The East Africans insisted that before they would participate in the consultations Britain must agree to admit thousands of Asians with British passports whose livelihood is threatened by plans for giving greater economic power to Africans in such countries as Kenya and Uganda.

Deaths

BOYCE, George C. — At the Huntingdon County Hospital, on Monday, Jan. 13, 1969, George C. Boyce, in his 79th year, beloved husband of Ella J. Johnston and dear father of Betty (Mrs. Glen Moore). Funeral service from the Kelly Funeral Home, Huntingdon, on Wednesday, Jan. 15th, at 2 p.m. Interment in Athelstan Protestant Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, donations to the Huntingdon County Hospital would be appreciated.

BOUCHER, Arthur E. — In Montreal, on Sunday, Jan. 12, 1969, Arthur E. Boucher, beloved husband of Isobel Haultain and brother of Marguerite (Mrs. William Steele) and Andrea (Mrs. Earle W. Goslee) of Glastonbury, Conn. Will be resting at Johnston's Funeral Chapel, 530 Prospect St., on Tuesday evening, Jan. 14th. Funeral will be held at St. Patrick's Church, on Wednesday, Jan. 15th, at 10 a.m. Please omit flowers.

THEORET — Andre and Dawn (Lowry) are proud to announce the arrival of a son, Paul, born Jan. 12, 1969, at the Val d'Or Hospital, Val d'Or, Quebec. Weight: 7 lbs. 1 1/2 oz.

STIMSON — I wish to thank my friends and relatives for numerous cards and letters, beautiful cut flowers, and potted plants. Mr. and Mrs. John Wilkins and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stimson for their many acts of kindness, all who sent food to my husband since I returned from hospital, also a wonderful sunshine basket, Rev. R. A. Cameron and Dr. Dykeman for calls, nurses and aides in intensive care and 2nd floor. Dr. J. Ross for his excellent care, all who called at hospital or since my return home. Your kindness will always be remembered. MRS. EDGAR H. STIMSON Melbourn, Que.

HIGGINS — I would like to express my sincere thanks to Dr. Paulette, Dr. Cooper and Dr. Dougan, the nurses and staff on the third floor for their kindness and wonderful care while I was a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital. Also for the beautiful flowers, cards, sent to me. Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered. MRS. WILLIAM HIGGINS Rock Island, Que.

EMMETT — We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all those who assisted in any way during the sudden death and burial of a dear husband and father, Gordon Emmett. Our special thanks to Rev. Foggo, Dr. Earl Blake, Mr. Hugh Hall, Mrs. Bruce Heath and Mrs. Harold Tucker, also to the many relatives, friends and neighbors for the beautiful flowers, cards, food and other expressions of sympathy. Your kindness will always be remembered. MARY EMMETT (wife) NORMAN EMMETT (son)

ATKINSON — We would like to thank the Legion Branch 41, the bearers, the Rev. D. J. Hawkins, the Rev. L. G. Westman, Mr. R. Fourney for many kindnesses shown us, also those who sent cards, letters or helped in any way at the time of the death of our brother, Percy K. Atkinson. SISTERS AND BROTHER

FLANDERS — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Marguerite Flanders. God took her home, it was his will. Within our hearts, she liveth still. Sadly missed by: RALPH (husband) ROBERT and DESMOND (sons) JOYCE and ARDYTH (daughters) GRANDCHILDREN

SPINNEY — In loving memory of dear May and mother who passed away January 14, 1967. Her life was unselfish, For others she lived. Not for what she could receive, But for what she could give. Loved and sadly missed by: HARRY (husband) VALERIE AND FAMILY (daughter)

PARKER, Alice May — At the Sherbrooke Hospital, Monday, Jan. 13, 1969, Alice May Worth, in her 84th year, beloved wife of the late Curtis A. Parker, and dear mother of Carlos of Sherbrooke, Sarah (Mrs. Stanley Hutchins), of Georgeville, and Mildred (Mrs. Leonard Hamilton) of Toronto. Resting at Cass Funeral Home, 39 Dufferin Road, Stanstead, where the funeral service will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 15th, at 12:15 noon. Rev. G. Joyce officiating. Interment in Marlinton Cemetery.

ROSS, Richard MacLeod (Dick) — Suddenly at Sherbrooke, on Monday, Jan. 13, 1969, Richard MacLeod (Dick) Ross, in his 57th year, beloved husband of Albertine Jondreville and dear father of Barbara (Mrs. Arnold Bell) of Lennoxville and grandfather of Heather, Andrew and Wendy. Resting at Johnston's Funeral Chapel, 530 Prospect St., where the funeral will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 15th, at 2 p.m. Rev. Dr. Graham Barr officiating. Interment in Windsor cemetery.

SALON DE L'AUTO INTERNATIONAL

SEE CANADA'S BIGGEST CAR SHOW

Place Bonaventure, Montréal, Jan. 17-26

Now... for the first time in Canada, a truly international auto show to rival those of Paris, New York and Turin!

Here in a setting of glamour and elegance, you'll find the latest imports and '69 domestics side by side. You'll be able to compare the newest from Canada with imports from Italy, France, Germany, Britain, Japan and elsewhere. You'll see cars you know... cars of today and cars of tomorrow. You'll see racing cars and drivers. You'll be able to take part in a simulated car race! There'll be lots of interesting accessories, exciting special features, the Shell Theatre of racing films and stunning fashion shows!

Come to the Salon de l'Auto International in Place Bonaventure, Montréal. See — and get the feel of over 200 great new cars from around the world.

Monday to Friday — 12 noon to 10 p.m.
Saturdays and Sundays — 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Adults — $1.50 Children — .75

The late Douglas Drury was or may not have been the best bridge player in the world but he was mighty good. Furthermore, there never was a nicer partner or opponent. His principal contribution to bridge is the Drury Convention which is used by a great many players. Jim uses it. Oswald doesn't but admits that it has considerable merit.

Today's hand shows the Drury Convention at its best. The fact that North holds clubs for his two-club call is coincidental. The two-club bid shows heart support and asks partner to rebid to two diamonds with a minimum or subminimum, to bid two hearts with a sound hand or to jump with a really good opening bid.

Hence, South's jump to three hearts. With a weaker hand North would sign off at four hearts but he has a maximum pass. True, he only holds three hearts but he has two aces and can well afford to bid four clubs to show a maximum holding with slam possibilities. That four-club bid is enough for South. He makes no effort to get to seven since it would be too much to expect to find his passed partner with the right cards for a grand slam.

There is little play to the slam contract. All lines will succeed but the best is what South adopted. He won the trump lead in dummy, played a diamond to his ace, ruffed a diamond in dummy, returned to his hand with a spade, ruffed his last diamond, got back to his hand with his other top spade and drew trumps.

Then he spread his hand announcing that he would make an overtrick in the event that West held the king and queen of clubs and queen of spades or five clubs to an honor plus that same queen of spades. This was a typical expert claim. He risked nothing by making it since he was going to run off all his trumps in any event and there was that possible squeeze against West.

Here is one of the silliest hands of 1968. The game was a match point team and at the first table North and South were playing a convention in which the double of a weak two bid showed a no-trump type of hand with a guaranteed stopper in the suit doubled. West opened a weak two spades, North doubled and South jumped to three no-trump.

North looked at his 20 high card points including three aces. He could have doubled with a lot less and North decided that his cards warranted a jump to five no-trump.

Needless to say, South passed. West opened a low heart and South ran off 10 tricks but there was no chance to gather an 11th.

North was very critical and all South could do was to apologize and hope that his bad bid (two no-trump would have been plenty if he did want to play no-trump) had not cost too much.

Strangely enough, South finished up like the man who fell in the lake and swam out with a trout in his mouth.

At the other table West opened the same weak two bid and North made the same double, but they were playing the double for take-out. South responded three diamonds. North went to three no-trump and East was on lead.

Had East just opened the queen of spades North would have made at least 10 tricks, but East did not have much confidence in his partner's two-spade opening.

He pulled out the queen of spades, pushed it back, hemmed and hawed awhile and finally placed the eight of clubs on the table. West clattered up with his ace and returned the suit, whereupon three no-trump wound up down two tricks.

Oswald: "We were talking about decisiveness last week and agreed that willingness to make decisions was an essential quality of a very great bridge player."

Jim: "What are you leading up to today?"

Oswald: "There is a supplementary quality—a very great player must make his decisions at the right time. It does not pay to decide one round late."

Jim: "I see what you mean. South's jump to four spades was decisive enough. Unfortunately it was a wrong decision. He should have decided to double two hearts himself whereupon North would have undoubtedly settled for a three-diamond call."

Oswald: "North's double of two hearts was unfortunate. He probably should have contented himself with a pass or bid three diamonds."

Jim: "No one could really criticize a pass. Any bid was dangerous and North really should have had better spades for his double." Oswald: "On the other hand there was no reason for North to feel that his partner would suddenly leap to four spades with a four-card suit."

Jim: "Right! South might well have bid only three spades with a four-card suit or if he wanted to bid strongly, he could have bid three hearts and forced North to choose a suit."

Oswald: "If the three-heart bid had landed North and South in five diamonds North conceivably might have made it. It would require double dummy play plus poor defense but those things happen."

Jim: "In any event, it would be better than four spades. South went down two at this contract."

No one could accuse East of lack of decisiveness in today's bidding. When he doubled four spades he had no certainty of defeating the contract. Some players would expect that South would bring the contract home.

East did have one idea when he doubled. That was that his partner could not make five hearts. He was right about that. If he had passed and if West had gone on, five hearts would have been set at least one trick.

Unfortunately for East, South proceeded to wrap the four-spade contract around his neck.

It didn't require any tremendous playing ability. South ruffed the opening heart lead and studied the hand for some time. His problem was to decide whether to play diamonds or trumps first. He finally decided that the best line would be to play ace and another spade hoping for a 2-2 trump break or for the fall of a singleton honor. The trumps broke 2-2 and all South's worries were over.

West led a second heart after taking his king of spades. South ruffed and led a diamond to dummy's jack. East was in with the king and played a third heart which South also ruffed.

At this point South would have made five odd if diamonds had broken since he would have been able to discard three of dummy's clubs on his long diamonds. The 5-1 diamond break killed the overtrick but did not stop South from ruffing his fifth diamond and making the doubled game.

The game was team of four. At the other table the bidding proceeded the same way except that East did not double four spades. Sure enough, West went to five hearts.

North showed lack of decisiveness and passed. He didn't have much but his four hearts were sure to annoy an enemy declarer. Anyway North passed. South decided to try five spades and that was one contract that could not be made. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Inhaling Asbestos Dust May Cause Lung Cancer

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Because of the surprisingly varied uses to which asbestos has been put, there is a growing interest among doctors in the lung disease called asbestosis. This is one of a group of diseases of the lungs caused by the inhalation of various dusts. In asbestosis, the inhalation of asbestos dust over a period of years causes permanent deposits in the lungs of needlelike asbestos crystals. The irritation they produce is mechanical rather than chemical and the result is fibrosis or scarring of the lungs.

This in itself can be serious, but even more serious is the fact that the victims have a death rate from lung cancer eight times that of men who are not exposed to the dust. Their death rate from cancer of the digestive tract is also higher than the expected rate. A further study revealed that among asbestos workers, those who smoke cigarettes have a death rate from lung cancer 92 times as great as that of men who neither smoke nor work with asbestos.

In addition to asbestos weavers, those in danger include auto mechanics, brake manufacturers, carpenters, clutch manufacturers, filter makers, manufacturers of floor tiling, insulators, miners, roofers, shingle makers, shipbuilders and steam fitters. Even "side-walk engineers" who enjoy watching new skyscrapers go up are at some risk because appreciable amounts of asbestos, though not visible to the naked eye, have been shown to be present in the surrounding air at these locations. And children are not immune to the danger. Some kindergartens have been known to supply raw asbestos for tots to mix with water to make "dough."

Unlike the usual case of tuberculosis, the lesions caused by the inhalation of dust are not localized but are diffused throughout the lungs. Since there is no effective treatment for asbestosis, prevention is essential. All workers with asbestos in any form should be protected by well-constructed vents to carry the dust away or they should wear respirators. Those who smoke should quit and those who don't should never start. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Beavers battle Gauls tonight

Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League action continues this evening with the Sherbrooke Beavers travelling to St. Hyacinthe to meet the floundering Gauls while the Granby Vics host the red-hot Chicoutimi Saguenéens.

Due to the fact that St. Hyacinthe and Granby are tied in third spot, tonight's game is another four-pointer for the Beavers.

If the Beavers win tonight they will be four points out of fourth place and if the Gauls can pick up the win they will stretch their lead to eight points over the Beavers.

Sherbrooke had a chance Sunday evening to move to within four points of the Vics but were held to a 3-3 tie by Granby.

Thursday evening the Beavers travel to Victoriaville to meet the globe-trotting Tigers. Possibly after the Tigers dismal European tour, Victoriaville may not be in a position to continue dominating the Provincial League.

Friday night the Beavers return home to meet the St. Hyacinthe Gauls at 9:30 p.m. at the Sports Palace. The game, originally scheduled for Jan. 2, was postponed because of a snow storm.

Sherbrooke's present record is six wins, one tie and two losses in their last nine games and with back-to-back victories this week the Beavers could be holding a playoff position by the weekend.

Veteran Roland Leclerc, presently with the Drummondville Royals, will be in uniform for the Beavers tonight. Leclerc, who made his presence known in a number of other games he has played for Sherbrooke this year, will doubtless be of great importance to the Beavers' move for a playoff berth.

Physically the Beavers are healthy with only slight injuries hampering a few players. Bob Foster proved Sunday that his foot had healed, displaying fine hockey as well as keeping the Vics honest in the Sherbrooke zone.

Gadbois brothers place one, two at Sylvestre slalom

MAGOG (Special) — Jean-Francois Gadbois, racing for the University of Sherbrooke, won the Sylvestre slalom competition held on Orford's Oopik Sunday, in a one-run giant slalom.

His time was 45.40 seconds. Second was the winner's brother, Jacques Gadbois, also carrying the U of S colors, with a time of 46.50 seconds. Third was Michel Labee, with 46.80, skiing for Sherbrooke's Mount Bellevue.

Ninety placed in the men's section and 41 scored in the women's division. There was a total of 15 disqualifications.

Top scorer for the women was Elizabeth Crepeau of Sherbrooke, skiing for Bishop's University, with 52.90; second was Jacqueline Thibault of Victoriaville at 54.0; and third was France Martin, skiing for Orford, whose time was 55.30.

Chief officers were Roger Codere and Jean Perreault, chief of the race. Starter was Pierre Gadbois, Statistician was Fernand Carriere. The race had 30 gates, stretched from 200 feet down the Oopik, over a 4,500-foot course, ending just above the bridge in this trail.

Mrs. A. Laverdure, newly appointed president of the Mt. Orford Ski Club, was on hand to supervise presentations.

The Mt. Orford Ski Club officials have a scheduled meeting this evening at the Le Baron Hotel, when more details on the Sunday event will be released.

Bulletin

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet national hockey team has cancelled an exhibition tour of Canada that was scheduled to start in Montreal this month, the Soviet Hockey Federation said today.

The Soviet team, which was to have left for the eight-city tour Monday, decided that terms offered by the Canadians were unsatisfactory.

The sources added that the Soviets also considered the fact that the Canadian national team, which the Soviets wanted to play, was out of the country, participating in a tournament in Colorado.

Broadway Joe is still wanted

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Joe Namath, the toast of pro football, is the most wanted man on coach Wally Lemm's list.

Lemm had to run his American Football League East All-Stars through their first practice without a quarterback Monday.

Namath was apparently still celebrating his New York Jets' 16-7 victory over Baltimore Colts in the Super Bowl.

Lemm, who coaches Houston Oilers, is happy to have Namath on his side.

"Wasn't he fantastic?" Lemm said of Namath's performance against the Colts.

Coach Hank Stram of Kansas City, who had his AFL West All-Stars together for their opening practice, also talked of Namath and the Jets' upset which took the AFL out of second class status.

MOVES BACK QUICKLY

"What makes Namath different from most pro quarterbacks is his speed of retreat into the pocket before passing," Stram said. "Most pro passers go back nine yards. Namath goes 12. That's a heck of a difference."

Stram faces the problem of rushing Namath, a job that proved too much for AFL West All-Stars last year—the first time the All-Star game was played in the Gator Bowl here. Namath engineered a 25-24 East victory, throwing two touchdown passes and plunging one yard for the winning score in the last minute.

Namath feels the need for a fourth operation on his left knee to mend an inflamed tendon in the joint. Jets physician Dr. James A. Nichols feels an operation could be hazardous. He believes rest will take care of the knee, and he will take another look at it before making final decision on the requested surgery.

Kay Dalton signs three-year contract

MONTREAL (CP) — Kay Dalton, head coach of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, has agreed to a new three-year contract.

Dalton said terms of the agreement were completed Saturday.

"Both of us seemed pretty happy," Dalton said Monday following his return from a two-week trip through the United States, during which he met with club owner Joe Atwell.

"Nothing has been signed yet. We shook hands or whatever you want to call it. I think we'll sign it officially next week when Joe gets in town."

The remaining years on Dalton's current three-year contract will be replaced by the new agreement and guarantees Dalton the time he said it would take to build a solid contender.

"All I want is the opportunity to do what I came here to do and I have that chance now. It takes five or six years. I know that sounds like a lot of time to the public but that's how it has to be."

Campbell says will play Russians in series not sudden-death game

TORONTO (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Monday that if a NHL team ever plays the Russians, it won't be in a sudden-death game.

"It will probably be a four out of seven or something like that," Campbell said in an interview.

Campbell, however, did not suggest that a series of games against the Russians is imminent.

The NHL president said most demands for a game have come from Russian coaches as a propaganda device. The sports commissar, who would have to approve any game, has been silent.

Campbell said it would be to the advantage of the Russians to play an NHL team. The Russians have progressed as far as they can with their regimented brand of hockey and need to play an NHL team to acquire other skills, he said.

Campbell said he wouldn't be surprised if the Russians are in superior physical condition.

"We could adopt some of their training methods, like playing soccer in the sand for instance. I can't think of a better way to get players in shape."

The NHL president was here to attend the funeral of Bobby Hewitson, former curator of the Sports Hall of Fame.

bin and Verlin Biggs, two members of the star front line defensive corps; Dave Herman and Winston Hill, largely responsible for opening up the holes that permitted fullback Matt Snell to gain 121 yards in 31 carries; and Jim Turner, whose three field goals accounted for nine points.

Snell didn't receive a single vote for the All-Star squad. And the 220-pound Ohio State graduate was not abashed at letting one and all know about it.

Sherbrooke Junior "B" League is top calibre

The Sherbrooke Junior "B" League has reached the halfway mark of its 1968-69 and the various persons connected with the league have commented on its excellent calibre of play thus far.

This year is the league's first and the teams are comprised of several players still of mid-jet and juvenile age.

The president of the league, Jean Marechal, said he was satisfied with the results so far obtained since the opening of the season even if certain problems have arisen.

"It is imperative that the league adapts and that the various problems faced this year will be used as experiences in the years to come," he said.

He commented on the fact that the players, each and every one of them, give all they have for sixty minutes of every game. He said he only wished more people would attend the games and see for themselves the fine calibre of play on exhibition.

He said the Sherbrooke league is not yet as strong as the Eastern Townships Junior "B" circuit but that within time the local boys would be ready to play any given team in the ET league. He reiterated his point saying that within two years this would come about.

Nationals beat West Germany 7-4 last night in Berlin

BERLIN (CP) — Canada's Eastern National hockey team scored its second win in two days Monday night, defeating East Germany 7-4 before a sell-out crowd of 4,500 in East Berlin.

Richie Bayes, Derek Holmes and Tom Martin each scored two goals for the Canadians. Jim Adair got the other tally. The team beat East Germany 3-0 Sunday night in West Berlin. Canadian playing coach Jack Bownass said after the match: "The boys have given me their all once again, so I must be satisfied with this 7-4 win."

He complimented the East German "ability to rush and good ice work" but added that "it appears to me that in some positions the team has men who are not too strong physically."
