

40 FIREMEN TO VISIT H'DON TOMORROW

Fire Drills And Demonstrations on Fire Fighting to be Made on Town Streets in Afternoon.

Banquet in Evening.

Montreal Island Members of Fire And Police Club Will Stage the Demonstrations.

Tomorrow is Thursday, May 22nd, a day that should be recorded as a day of importance in the future life of the Town of Huntingdon. The citizens should have their flags hoisted early in the morning and have everything so arranged as to give Huntingdon a spick and span appearance. Huntingdon is to be visited tomorrow by upwards of forty experienced firemen of the Montreal, Outremont and Westmount city units. Other firemen from volunteer brigades in other towns are also expected to meet in Huntingdon that same afternoon.

The visitors are coming here through an invitation of the local Volunteer Fire Brigade. Mr. Robert Harrington, favourably known by many here, has been largely instrumental in arranging this outing for the Montreal members of the Police and Fire Club. In the afternoon Director R. Gauthier of the Montreal Fire Department is giving a demonstration on the streets in Huntingdon, relating to fire fighting. Major A. M. Berry will put on a demonstration of the fire hazard in the handling of gasoline in garages. It is possible they will bring a fire-fighting outfit with them for the purpose of the demonstration, but this is not definitely certain. For the demonstration the town water pressure will likely be boosted, so it would be well for our citizens to take notice, and have the water pressure shut off from their respective homes for fear of bursting the water boilers.

The firemen are not only going to make the day demonstration, for in the evening a banquet and smoker is being held in the Chateau. At this smoker the Westmount representatives are to give a demonstration on "Resuscitation." For the evening entertainment, the entertainers will be found amongst the visitors, who have informed the local organization that they would bring the necessary entertainers in their company.

Door prizes are being given in connection with this smoker. The prizes are donated by Messrs. Mayor D. J. O'Connor, M.P., C. H. Lamb and D. M. Walker, Huntingdon; W. J. Bryant and Harry Cohen, Montreal; and J. C. Brown, Valleyfield, Baumberg Co. Ltd., Huntingdon.

The fire-fighting demonstration in the afternoon will be of particular interest to farmers, for we understand it will treat with combating fires that may be started from gasoline engines, etc. Everybody is invited to see this demonstration. The banquet tickets are presently on sale, the price being $1.00. The tickets carry stubs, which will be used for the drawing of the door prize.

One never knows when he might be at the mercy of the ravages of fire and will be forced upon to call for assistance from the fire brigade. The brigade invite the townsmen to the only fire school, but educational. The net proceeds will be added to the Fire Brigade treasury. A dollar and a half contributed in this manner may prove to be very cheap fire insurance for you, as well as any one else.

PAUL'S LETTER TO BOWLERS

Activity Evident in All Local Bowling Clubs For New League.—Two Trophies Offered.

Paul Carter, perhaps the greatest moving spirit in the interests of bowling in the District of Beauharnois, has written the press a letter giving forth the following information.

Throughout the District the green-keepers of the respective clubs are now rolling and cutting the lawns so that they will be in readiness for early playing.

Huntingdon has no old bowlers, but according to Paul he says, "The old timers are beginning to feel an itch in the palm of the hand, and will not be happy until they get out on the draws, and getting a crack at the jack."

Semi-annual meetings have been held in Huntingdon and Valleyfield, whilst Chateaugay meets this week and Ormstown on the 23rd.

The Bowling League for this district has been already honored with trophies. Mrs. J. A. Robb has offered a trophy to be known as "The Robb Memorial Shield." Mayor D. J. O'Connor, M.P., has also offered a trophy which will be known as the "O'Connor Challenge Cup" or "O'Connor Trophy."

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Spence and family, of Montreal, were week-end visitors of Miss Bella McNaughton. Miss Ethel McNaughton, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Angus McNaughton Sr.

HONORARY PRESIDENT.

SHAWINIGAN'S WEEKLY PAPER A REALITY

C. E. LaBranche of St. Maurice Valley Chronicle Sponsors Publication.

The latest edition of the Weekly Newspaper field in the Province of Quebec is the "SHAWINIGAN STANDARD." The new publication is very attractively gotten up and again reflects credit upon the energetic publishers of Three Rivers. "The Standard" is the new baby of the St. Maurice Valley Chronicle, published at Three Rivers, by C. E. LaBranche. Much will be heard from the Standard, it follows the footsteps of its parent publication. The Chronicle knows no fear, it is a community builder and is unquestionably the leading weekly paper published in cities in Canada such as is Three Rivers.

The publication for Shawinigan carries a large volume of advertising, which is an indication that the people are behind Mr. LaBranche in the promotion of the journal. Shawinigan with its English population of about 2,000 are indeed greatly indebted to the publishers for venturing upon the field with such a limited number of people to draw from. Shawinigan people must certainly be boosters and anxious to see the town grow, for the Standard will be their mouthpiece that will beckon industries to locate in that area.

The Gleaner has long been an admirer of the successes achieved by Mr. LaBranche, and we here extend to him our congratulations and the publishing of such an attractive, and what will prove to be a worthy and useful publication. The paper will not only be a financial benefit to the publisher, but will be an added asset to Shawinigan and the Province in general.

There was the usual banquet following the meeting.

Ness and O'Connor are in hopes of receiving a similar response from the Quebec Department of Agriculture.

ORMSTOWN EX. ATTRACTIONS ANNOUNCED

Wirth And Hamid Inc. Entertainers Are Co-operating to Make Exhibition Best on Record.

A SELF EXPLANATORY LETTER. Wirth and Hamid, Inc. New York City, May 1930.

Mr. W. G. McGerrigle, Ormstown Exhibition, Ormstown, Que. Dear Mr. McGerrigle:— Many thanks for your kind letter and we are enclosing herewith the suggested program which, in our opinion, exceeds anything which you have had previously at your fair. Each one of these numbers are outstanding. However, we take the liberty of suggesting one thing and that is that Great Curran is such a wonderful program which, in our opinion, to move his pole once it is erected. The height of this pole is approximately 75 ft. high. It is an act which we had for two consecutive years at the New York State Fair. Therefore, this act would only be able to erect on the outside, but it is such a real thriller that I believe it would be very beneficial to you.

The Hollywood Horse is, without a doubt, one of the greatest comedy burlesques there is today. We booked this act for the New York showing of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus and they were such a big hit that the Ringling Circus took them to Boston, and we have booked them on the Class A Circuit of Western Canadian Fairs and have put them into your program enroute to the Class A Circuit of Western Canadian Fairs.

I am enclosing herewith program and would like to have an expression from you as to how it appears to you on paper. We know from experience that it is a splendid one. Re: the platform. I guess it will be necessary to work the horse act on the track. The platform is a little small for the other type of acts. Could you widen the stage to about 30 ft.? It would look much better if you could do so. If there is anything outlined in this program which does not appeal to you, don't hesitate to advise me. We only have one purpose and that is to give you real entertainment, and we trust to have an expression from you accordingly.

With best wishes, we remain, Yours sincerely, WIRTH AND HAMID INC., Entertainers.

Mrs. John J. Casey, of Trout River, was hostess to 28 ladies at a delightful bridge shower Thursday evening given in honor of Miss Marguerite Wilson, who is to be the bride of Mr. Walter R. Y. Walsh, of Victoriaville, on June 2.

The guests were assembled in the living room, and when the prospective bride entered, she was greeted by "Congratulations," sung by Mrs. Frances Miller, of Malone, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Herman J. Keefe, of Trout River.

There were many beautiful gifts of kitchen ware presented to Miss Wilson, after which bridge was played for the evening and a sumptuous dainty luncheon was served at 11 o'clock by the hostess.

COL HON. J. L. RALSTON MAKES FLYING VISIT

Though unknown to the majority of townsmen, Col. the Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, made a flying visit to Huntingdon on Saturday morning.

Early that forenoon an airplane hovered low over town, proceeding south, seemingly as far as Malone, returned and then headed in the direction of Montreal. It was a tri-motored Ford monoplane, and since then, we have been informed it was occupied by Col. J. L. and Mrs. Ralston, J. A. Wilson, controller of Civil Aviation, Capt. K. C. Burness, Squadron Leader George Walsh, and Flight-Lieut. Ogilvie Forbes.

Telling the World Facts

The first of a series of institutional advertisements to be published by the Shawinigan Water & Power Co. of which the Beauharnois Electric Co. Limited is a subsidiary, appears in this issue of the Gleaner. This parent company has attributed much to the development of our Province and we advise our readers to each week read the message that will be portrayed by the company in their advertisements.

The series of advertisements will tell, in graphic form, something of the story of Shawinigan's remarkable growth and progress. This week's advertisement reminds us that Shawinigan Water & Power Company is the fourth largest hydro-electric organization in the world, while over $4,000,000 is distributed annually in wages and salaries in the Province of Quebec. This total is in addition to the large amounts paid by way of dividends to shareholders.

Institutional publicity of this kind not only reminds us of the importance and utility of such companies as Shawinigan Water & Power but it also "tells the world" that the Province of Quebec takes second place to none in the magnitude of its enterprises, the fertility of its resources or the possibilities of its future development.

Within a few weeks time the Beauharnois Power Corporation is to open up a campaign of institutional advertising. When the campaign begins it will be in the American papers only. The advertisements will portray the benefits to be derived through locating industries in the Beauharnois area. The advertisements do not recommend any one center more than another, but they do throw light on the District of Beauharnois.

The Huntingdon townsmen would like to see an industry or two locate in Huntingdon; but what are we doing to bring that about? In the Eastern Townships the Southern Canada Power Co. has carried on institutional advertising, but it was due to the initiative put forth by the separate communities that induced companies to single out certain towns as appropriate for their respective industries. Huntingdon town council and Board of Trade would be well advised to come together and make a survey, and start some appropriate propaganda in circulation. The time is now ripe for the propaganda, as the Shawinigan Water & Power Co. is promoting their end of the game now, and "Beauharnois" will not be far behind. Let's tie up with them and induce a company to locate in Huntingdon, the banner town of Beauharnois District.

FLOWER BOXES NOW BEING PLANTED

Baumert Co. Limited Set Out 14 Boxes—Town Beautifying Needs Further Progress.

The Board of Trade who have been advocating window box gardening for the beautification of Huntingdon are meeting with a favourable response. It is indeed gratifying to see how the Baumert Co. Limited have seized the idea and are putting it into effect. 14 flower boxes have been set out about their building. In the mid-summer season they will certainly add much to the beauty of the plant.

A year ago the C. N. R. had a plot near the station created into an attractive little square, the N. Y. C. kept their grounds in a trim fashion but neglect in this respect is evident. It is out of order for the local railway employees to do a little work in the matter of beautification about the railway stations. Come along railway men, trim up the station property in appreciation of your respective railway companies that pay you good money at regular intervals.

If you do the work, you will reap the benefit, as well as your townspeople. Of course, the railway stations are the most neglected in this respect. Look at our litter plant, built several years ago, and yet the grounds are not cleaned up. Look at the first station, not too trim to say the least.

The fire station might well take a pattern from a handford across the street, R. E. Cogland, and slick the place up a bit. If the Park Committee can't see a way of beautifying these places, might we suggest they enlist some assistance. It is more townspeople would willingly contribute a vine root or so for the benefit of the fire station beautification.

J. D. Bicknell started a job at his corner and at Mayor O'Connor's residence by painting the hydrants. Did Jim forget to finish his job of painting all the hydrants in town, or the hydrants by the application of a coat of paint. It wouldn't cost much to paint a hydrant, but a hydrant costs a lot of money.

Coming back to the flower boxes might say that Mrs. D. J. O'Connor has set out eight boxes, Bank of Montreal, four, Bank of Commerce will have around half dozen and likewise Mrs. J. C. Moore. Mr. James Hampson has set six boxes at his home, "Maple Villa" on Wellington St. And so the good work continues, and it is to be hoped that by next Wednesday a large number of entries will be filed with Carl L. B. Wheeler, in competition for the monthly prizes so generously donated by Lord Atholstan.

Serious Accident Occurs To Young Girl

A peculiar accident befell Miss Marjorie Blow, of Chateaugay Lake, on Wednesday evening. Miss Blow in company with friends were driving on the Malone-Huntingdon highway north east of Malone village.

The door of the car suddenly opened and she fell out and was dragged a considerable distance. Her companion grabbed her by the ankle and the car was brought to a stop.

After being taken to the Alice Hyde hospital it was found that she has suffered a bad fracture of the skull, lacerations about the head and face and horrible bruises about the body.

SWEETWATER TRAIL NETS NEARLY $340.

Local Talent Play Considered by Attendance as Best Play Ever Staged in Huntingdon.

Home people like to see their home folks take part in dramas. As long as home talent plays have been staged in Huntingdon by local people, they have commanded appreciative audiences. Only plays grown to be better than others, and the cast for one play, are not always suited for another, so much depends upon the director whether a play is going to be a success or not. Mr. T. S. Miller and Mrs. Miller have directed or sponsored a number of home talent plays, and they have all been staged for benevolent purposes and with marked success. To stage a show in Huntingdon for two nights is a feat that reflects great credit to the performers.

The romance "Sweetwater Trail" was staged on Wednesday and Friday evenings. The attendance was so completely taken with the play that a great many returned on Friday evening to see the play for the second time.

A local dramatic critic in the person of Mr. Will Thropic has the following to say for the cast which all will heartily endorse:

It would be difficult indeed to do full justice to each and every individual taking part in this cleverly conceived and romantic Western play for the acting was consistently good throughout.

Mr. Mederic Primeau as Colonel Randolph, although somewhat tolerant with his subordinates, handled his part in an able manner and his deportment and diction bespoke confidence in the role he undertook to fill—his rendition of the Ode to Life was particularly good. His part as the Secret Service man was also good and he looked the part, his previous military training being a decided asset.

Chas. Reid as Lieut. Benson deserves credit for the rather difficult and dangerous part he had to represent, but was hardly convincing enough as an officer of the Mounties, in whom discipline and respect are a by-word.

Donald Houghton as a flea-bitten horse wrangler was a scream and he was ably assisted and abetted by Will Wheeler who cooked the comedy supplied by these two characters was along with the price of admission.

Gilles Rennie as ranch proprietor was splendid, his clear cut enunciation and perfect poise under all conditions, even when charged with murder, gave evidence of true dramatic talent.

Constable Dave Ross although having a somewhat minor part filled it in an efficient manner, seemingly having a grasp of the situation as well as of his prisoners. (Full marks.)

And now for the ladies, who by right of precedent, should have been mentioned before but who appear somewhat later in the play than do the male characters.

Mrs. Sheldon (Mrs. T. S. Miller) was exceptionally good, as she always is, and pleased the audience with her calm demeanour and graceful acting.

Miss M. Malloy made her debut as an actress in a charming manner and gave evidence of remarkable talent in her part as Vera Randolph, the Colonel's daughter.

Miss Rucie O'Hare, also a newcomer to the stage, cannot be too highly complimented for the manner in which she handled the part of the pseudo-Indian maid.

And Pomona (Miss Vine) although not a new star in the theatrical firmament is nevertheless a real one, her depiction of the somewhat awkward maid was absolutely perfect in every detail.

The Misses Margaret Ross, Grace Warden, Enid Steward, Ruth Warden and Ruth Miller, were charmingly attired as bridesmaids and flower girl and their appearance on the stage was a delight to the eye.

The cast most certainly devoted much of their time to the preparation of the comedy, and the Bowlers for whom they staged the performance are indeed greatly indebted.

After the play on Friday evening a dance was held in the hall. It was attended by seventy-five couples. As a result of the benefit social activities the Bowling Club will net around $340; thanks to the cast and to the general public for their attendance.

Opening of the Huntingdon-Chateaugay Counties Amateur Baseball League
Huntingdon-Chateaugay Counties Amateur Baseball League will open on Empire Day, Saturday, May 24th, with games in Elgin and Ormstown. Huntingdon will play at Elgin and Ormstown at Chateaugay. The league is comprised of four teams, namely: Huntingdon, Beavers (Elgin), Hinchinbrooke and Ormstown. A double schedule of 24 games will be played allowing each team 6 home games. All the clubs have been practicing for some weeks past and are well organized under competent management. The President of the League, Mr. Ross Bryson, assisted by an able executive committee, is sparing no effort to give the public a high order of amateur baseball handled by experienced and competent umpires. It is hoped that the public will show its appreciation by turning out to the games and giving their support to this excellent pastime. Let's have everybody out to cheer for the home team. We are all ready. Let's go.

FAIR DATES WERE SET
September 10th., 11th. And 12th. For Huntingdon Fair.

DR. MACLEAN AT W. I. MEETING

Thoughtful And Interesting Address on "Two Ideals of Education."

Dr. J. B. Maclean delivered a very thoughtful and interesting address entitled, "Two Ideals of Education," at a meeting of the Huntingdon Women's Institute held on Wednesday last at Mrs. T. S. Gardner's. The subject was followed with the keenest attention by the audience and at the close many participated in an appreciative and spirited discussion.

"All that a man may become," in the later stages of his development, is latent in that man as a newborn child," stated Dr. Maclean. This view was later questioned but the speaker held firmly to the essential inheritance requirements. "Environment may do much, and opportunity may be necessary as these may be for his full development, the fundamental condition is that the powers of the matured man, mental as well as physical, should be there in the child, in germ from beginning." In supporting this view Dr. Maclean quoted from the poem "Paracelsus" by Robert Browning:

"Truth is within ourselves; it take no rise From outward things, whate'er you may believe. There is an inmost centre in us all, Where truth abides in fullness; and around it all the grosser flesh hems in."

This perfect clear perception—which is truth. A baffling and perverting carnal mesh Binds it, and makes all error; and to mean it in that man as a newborn child," stated Dr. Maclean. This view was later questioned but the speaker held firmly to the essential inheritance requirements. "Environment may do much, and opportunity may be necessary as these may be for his full development, the fundamental condition is that the powers of the matured man, mental as well as physical, should be there in the child, in germ from beginning." In supporting this view Dr. Maclean quoted from the poem "Paracelsus" by Robert Browning:

"Truth is within ourselves; it take no rise From outward things, whate'er you may believe. There is an inmost centre in us all, Where truth abides in fullness; and around it all the grosser flesh hems in."

"According to a distinguished American scholar, James Trowlow Adams, "We educate people to DO and not to BE." The popular idea is that the best sort of training is one that confines itself as closely as possible to the particular line of work that is to be followed. The modern tendency in education is to the contrary." (Continued on page 5.)

BOARD OF TRADE HEARS THOMSON AND SWEZEY

Rielle Thomson Speaks on St. Lawrence Deep Waterways.

Beauharnois Costs Cut. Mr. R. O. Sweezy Speaks Amazing Statements Re-Beauharnois Works.

Tuesday evening Mr. Rielle Thomson, the publically representative of the Beauharnois Power Corporation was introduced by Adam L. Sellar, President, as the chief speaker for the Huntingdon Board of Trade banquet. Mr. R. O. Sweezy, President of the same company, and the movement a reality also favoured the banquet with his presence.

Mr. Thomson gave an illustrated address on the "St. Lawrence proposed deep waterways." His address was so fascinating and interesting that the audience's attention was held to perfect silence. It was unfortunate that just as he was entering upon the subject dealing with the "Beauharnois stages" that the electric lights went out, and the continuance of the illustration pictures had to be discontinued. Mr. Thomson continued his address on the "Deep Waterways," and as his address was so interesting, and we have the address in detail, we will publish it in an early issue of the Gleaner, as for today, time and space will not permit our so doing.

Mr. R. O. Sweezy, the President, is a quiet unassuming individual. Young in years, but a realist in estimates of the future. His talk related to the "Deep Waterways," and following same he made some glaring statements in connection with "Beauharnois." In brief, he stated that the cost of the Beauharnois project estimated the excavating work would cost 24c per cubic yard. Today, after operating to some considerable extent, they find that they are cutting the costs to a third, and in some cases down to below five cents per cubic yard. Cutting the cost of development from $65,000,000 to one third of this amount is ample proof that R. O. Sweezy is a wizard in more ways than one.

Mr. Sweezy, for the benefit of the Huntingdonians explained the financing procedure that occurred after Mr. Jones relinquished from the company. How it was that Montreal Power entered into the Beauharnois picture. He assured the people present that although that occurred, it was not for the detriment of "Beauharnois" but was a profitable picture. The amount of stock so transferred represented around 15%.

In concluding his all too short remarks, Mr. Sweezy, in behalf of his company extended an invitation to the Huntingdonians to visit the works at Beauharnois. After the meeting he told the Board of Trade officers and how it is that the people here would like to form a party and visit the works that such might easily be arranged. He asked that the proposed party advise Mr. Thomson or himself early in the morning below five cents per cubic yard to visit Beauharnois. The party would be luncheoned at the Beauharnois camps and in the afternoon would be duly escorted over the entire development. The trip would require at least half a day's time.

Dr. H. R. Clouston, in behalf of the Board of Trade extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Thomson and to Mr. Sweezy for their visiting Huntingdon and parting with the knowledge for the benefit of the ladies and gentlemen in attendance. Dr. Clouston made a few comparisons between the gigantic works and the town of Huntingdon. For instance the Power Canal will be equal to a thousand rivers the size of the Chateaugay. The "Beauharnois" will be the "O'Connor Building" to the United Church in length. The depth of the water in the canal at Beauharnois would be sufficient to submerge the highest edifices in Huntingdon, whilst at the head of the canal the roof of a few of Huntingdon's largest houses would appear on the water surface. The vote of thanks was heartily endorsed by a loud applause.

Mr. W. K. Philips moved that Mr. R. O. Sweezy be duly elected Honorary President of the Board of Trade, the motion was seconded by Mr. W. S. Brown, the vice-president of the Board.

The lights not having come on at this stage of the programme, Mr. Thomson had it announced that his pictures of "Beauharnois" would be portrayed through the columns of the Gleaner in the near future, and that the story relating to same would also be duly inscribed.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the interesting evening to a close.

ON PICKING JUDGES.

From time to time public attention centres on the problem of selecting the proper men for the judiciary. In Canada the judges are selected by the Dominion government, and although the political persuasions of the lawyers may frequently be taken into consideration, the system has worked out fairly well. More recently the bar associations have suggested that they be consulted and, in some spots, the recommendation is made that the judges themselves make the selections. In the United States many of the judges are picked by the general ballot, while in higher court divisions the selecting is done by the President, but the nominee must secure the approval of the Senate before he can take his seat. A few weeks ago a gentleman, who was nominated for the Supreme Court, was rejected by the Senate because he had taken the side of certain people in cases which were divergent from the opinion of labour unions, etc., and the whole legal history of the alternative nominee is being scrutinized to see if he has argued something in the past which is not satisfying to factions.

It is essential that the Canadian judiciary be kept at a high level, and as the growing needs of business for skilled legal advisors has made the bench unattractive to many who have the talent to weigh the scales of justice, it is not a problem which should be ignored. Excellent men are going on the Bench, but the growing number of quasi judicial commissions, the added work of a routine character being imposed on the minor courts, and the increase in the volume of detail work which the high court judges have to handle, it would be helpful if some improvements were put into operation.

In some of the older countries in the world they are adopting a plan, which has long been in service in Asia, of training the right type of young men for the Bench. While these men are taught the rules of law, the emphasis is placed on the study of the fundamentals of justice to all and, when they are sufficiently trained, they are placed in minor court positions as judges and gradually move forward as they prove that they have the qualifications of a judge. Respect of law is essential, and that respect can only come when justice is speedy, sure and impartial. The determining factor is the judge and if the legal profession cannot supply enough high type candidates for judicial positions, then an alternative mode of selection should be developed, and it should be done before the machinery begins to creak.

THE PARLIAMENTARY SESSION.

The House of Commons is running its course and should soon be done with its work. The debates, since the announcement of an election, have not been of high standard. This getting on Hansard's record a speech for use during a campaign does not improve the prestige of Parliament, nor will it be of practical value in the constituencies. The country, if this district offers an example, is not interested in the small talk of Parliament. An election having been announced, the forum of debate on party policies is, therefore, the hustings. We are not concerned as to what was the Conservative policy of 1880, nor are we concerned with what the Liberal chart of 1919 contained. Our interest is simply what is going to be done in the future and what men will do it. The world moves too quickly to be bothered with ancient dogmas. Mr. Dunning has brought down a budget which he says will be to the practical benefit of Canadians. Mr. Bennett says there should be an election. Mr. King declares there will be an election just as soon as the business now before the House of Commons is completed. With both leaders of the same opinion, why should time be wasted by members? Yet thirty-nine made speeches a week after it was decided an election should be held at the earliest possible moment.

There is to be an imperial conference in September, which means that the Canadian delegation must leave Canada by the middle of September, yet an election cannot be held much before the 1st. of August and perhaps not before the 11th. of that month. If the King government wins, its plans can be carried out in an orderly manner and the delegates properly prepared for the part they have to play in London, but if the Conservative party is called upon to form a government, it will be practically impossible for its representatives to be fully informed of Canadian desires before the Conference opens. Politicians may say that the Conservative opposition's tactic, in blocking the passage of parliamentary business, is an admission that it has no hope for success at the polls, but with that we have no concern. The interest of Canadians is that at this all-important conference the Canadian delegation shall play a part which will be worthy of Canada, and that they so act that Canadian business may grow throughout the British Empire. Consequently, Canadians are resentful of delays while petty matters are argued.

LIVESTOCK VALUES AND ORMSTOWN EXHIBITION.

Three weeks yesterday evening and the Ormstown Exhibition will be duly opened for the 21st. annual livestock exhibition. This exhibition is something every citizen in the District of Beauharnois has just reason to be proud of. We all have an interest in this exhibition for it means much to every one of us. It is more than merely a place to seek pleasure, it is a place that develops wealth for the District of Beauharnois. One might reasonably question this statement but do our readers consider the estimated value of our farms in comparison with the farms of the Province. In Quebec Province the average farm value is $7,969.73; but in this community the value per farm is computed to be $8,870.76. If a farm in this area is worth $919.03 more than elsewhere in the province, what contributes more to its worth than the livestock that are bred and reared on it? How are livestock improved upon in quality if it isn't through breeding and careful selecting? If a man is to know how to select stock he must make a study of the herds owned by successful herdmen. The greatest educational institution for this work in Eastern Canada is the Ormstown Exhibition. The exhibition is at your door, it beckons to you to attend it daily, as well as to entertain you at its superb evening performances.

The livestock value per farm in Quebec province is $895.68 and in this area $1163.73, a difference of $268.05. If Ormstown Exhibition means an increased value in livestock to every farmer of $268.05, surely that is sufficient invitation for every farmer to accept and attend Ormstown Exhibition. Farmers can make a study of the methods adopted by the more advanced stockmen, who have so materially increased the value of the livestock herds in Beauharnois District. Because statistics show the herds in this District are worth on an average $1163.73, do not think every herd is worth that amount, for it is the prize herds of the big stock breeders that have inflated the average herd value. Make it a resolution now, that you are going to improve your herd of livestock on the farm, and that you are going to attend Ormstown Exhibition on several occasions during June 10-11-12 and 13.

BENEVOLENCE.

Worldly possessions of a tangible nature are not bestowed upon every individual, therefore we are not all able to give money in substantial sums to all good causes. This town is certainly greatly indebted to many pioneers for the firm foundation upon which the town was founded. Forethought was used in the laying out of the town, though if it were done today, it could be further improved upon. Let us take Huntingdon as it is and improve it by degrees. The Board of Trade started a clean-up movement last year, it achieved its purpose, and the work has so continued. This year the Bowling Green has been greatly improved through the Board of Trade sponsored movement of reforestry. The Bowling Club green site was a vacant field, today it is a place of beauty. To achieve this goal much money was spent and to help defray this debt a home talent play was staged last week for the benefit of this work. The townspeople as well as the Bowling Club members are certainly much indebted to the cast who staged "Sweetwater Trail" and to Mr. T. S. Miller, who sponsored and directed the play, as well as all other individuals who lent assistance.

In this day of continuous entertainment it is fitting that such entertainments be for the benefit of community building movements, as well as for sporting activities.

Specially Written for The Huntingdon Gleaner.

A 200 Years' Job.

A task which is not expected to be finished for 200 years has been started behind a canvas screen covering a small recess in Westminster Cathedral. Skilled workmen are engaged in this recess putting mosaic work on the bare walls of the cathedral. The mosaic will illustrate, on a background of gold, incidents in the life of the Blessed Virgin, and will probably cost $5,000,000 to complete. This great task was authorized some months ago by Cardinal Bourne, and an annual allowance was made for the work. If more money is forthcoming the work could be completed in about 30 to 40 years. The work will be handed down from artist to artist as it progresses.

Bumped, By Gum!

An interesting little item which appeared in the Echo from Amherstburg, Ont. is specially worthy of reproduction: "The attention of the Echo was attracted the other day, to a man on the corner of Dalhousie and Richmond streets, who seemed to be too dazed to cross this traffic-infested intersection. The look of consternation on his face was amazing. Said he: 'I've braved the terrors of Chicago gunmen; I've driven down the streets of New York during the busiest time of the day, but it remained for me to come to Amherstburg and while hurrying across the street corner to avoid the motor traffic, to be bumped sharply in the rear by a baby carriage. By gum, I'm going back to the city.'"

Advocates Neck-wringing.

Neck-wringing as a means of exterminating interfering mothers-in-law was advocated by Magistrate Burbridge in police court at Hamilton. His comment was made during a non-support case in which the mother-in-law was blamed for marital troubles. "I wish I could wring the necks of half the mothers-in-law who are mixed up in these cases," his worship said.

Definition Common Scold.

Charles Rizzo of Pittsburg, Pa., has opened a legal fight against his conviction as a common scold in criminal court through Attorney F. J. Lagorio. Rizzo contends that he cannot be sentenced as a scold because the law defines such a person as "a glib woman with a too active tongue." Furthermore, if Rizzo is sentenced, the county commissioners must build a ducking-stool. An ancient state law provides for the punishment of common scolds by being ducked three times in an open body of water. A jury found Rizzo guilty.

Victim Paralysis Walks.

Enlivened by the sudden joy of seeing a sister he had not met for twenty years, Charles Elgie, of Hamilton, Ont., a shut-in from spinal paralysis for more than a year, arose from his chair and walked across the room to meet her. The sister is Mrs. Alice Burton, of Toronto. She had believed her brother was dead, although they were separated by less than forty miles. Scotland Yard and Toronto police were responsible for the finding of the sister. Doctors had given him up, so far as getting better was concerned.

Too Hot Tunes.

It was necessary to call firemen to extinguish flames in an electric piano that had been playing some "hot" tunes at a nickel bar in Archie Bourdeau's restaurant at Cohoes, N. Y. The origin of the blaze was listed as "Unknown."

A Lesson For Motorists.

Two automobiles collided on a Michigan highway. As usual the other man was the one in the wrong. They couldn't decide the matter with a volley of words, so they got out on the road to fight it out, to see who was to blame. While thus engaged a third car came along, struck, and killed them. There is a lesson in this for motorists.

From Wife to Mate.

An ill wind that whisked $24. from Mrs. McCallum's opened purse at Anaconda, Montana, the other day relented a few minutes later and blew $20. of the currency into the hands of her husband, who happened to be down the street. Mr. McCallum noticed the bills lodged against a street drain.

Dog Goes For Doctor.

A child of a Mrs. Dempsey, at Lovell, Wyo., was ill. Medical care was imperative. There was no telephone and the mother could not leave the child. Mrs. Dempsey called the family dog, a cross between a collie and a shepherd, attached a note to his collar and commanded him to find a doctor. The canine understood—he seemed to sense the fact that there was an emergency—dashed off and inside of an hour a physician was en route to the Dempsey home.

Husband Sues Wife's Lover.

A French banker, who agreed to divorce his middle-aged wife, in order that she could marry a handsome Russian, of whom she had become enamored, and then became angry when the young lover failed to carry out his part of the contract filed a suit in the Paris courts against his rival, claiming $10,000 damages. The woman had confessed to her husband that unless she could marry the boy her life would be ruined. The banker started divorce proceedings, and joined hilariously in the betrothal party, but the young Russian went to Stresa, and when his fiancée begged him to return to the Riviera to talk over their approaching marriage his reply was "Nitehevo," which means "Nothing doing."

Tractors With Horses' Tails.

Peasants of Eastern Turkestan have voted to cut off the tails and manes of all wild horses there and sell the locks to buy tractors. The action was taken in response to a statement from the commissariat of trade in Moscow that horsehair was a valuable article for export and would give the government foreign credit with which to buy more tractors. The peasants around Alam Ata figured that 1,800 tails and manes would yield enough for one tractor. They are out to get about twenty-five tractors, even though the countryside may look shorn as a result.

Heir Seeks Bride.

Frank Hofelich, 20, young Rensselaer concrete contractor, who will receive $20,000 at his marriage, is in the market for a bride—preferably a young, vivacious brunette. This was revealed when Hofelich announced to his friends he had broken off his acquaintance with "the only girl"—the girl that up to a few months ago he planned to give the benefit of his money. They had quarrelled, but about what, Hofelich was reluctant to say. In 1928 he had saved the life of a New York man, who was threatened with death from the bite of a rattlesnake. Last year he was notified by a New York lawyer that he had been bequeathed $20,000, which he would receive when he married.

Steals Bridal Dress.

When Miss Millie Haley, of King's Cross, London, woke on her wedding day, she found that her trousseau and the bridesmaids' dresses had been stolen. But she insisted on the ceremony taking place. A frantic search was made of the neighbourhood, and a bride's dress was found a few minutes before the time for the wedding. There was only one bridesmaid, and she wore a dance frock.

Of Advertising.

The Prince George's Enquirer-Gazette of Upper Marlboro gives a worthy dominic a friendly hand: "One lady member of St. John's church, Broad Creek, while attending church service last Sunday, wore the back of her dress in front and vice versa, and nobody noticed it except herself when evening came. That shows that the Rev. Dr. W. H. Heigham who will conduct services at St. John's on Sunday at 11 a.m. always gets the undivided attention of his flock."

26-toed Champion Feline.

Many a tender tabby's heart will strip its gear when Chubby, the alleged Michigan grand champion toe-toting cat swaggers through the alleys of Niles, Mich. in the days to come. First, it was the missing feline of R. V. Wayne of Detroit, who claimed the honors. She had 23 toes. Then up rose R. D. Lacey of Adrian and asserted that his cat had 25. The following day Chubby was declared champion by the overwhelming margin of one toe and two toe nails. Mrs. Fred Bolinger, owner of the new champion, says he has already assumed a regal mien.

Your Breakfast Shot from Guns so you don't have to cook it

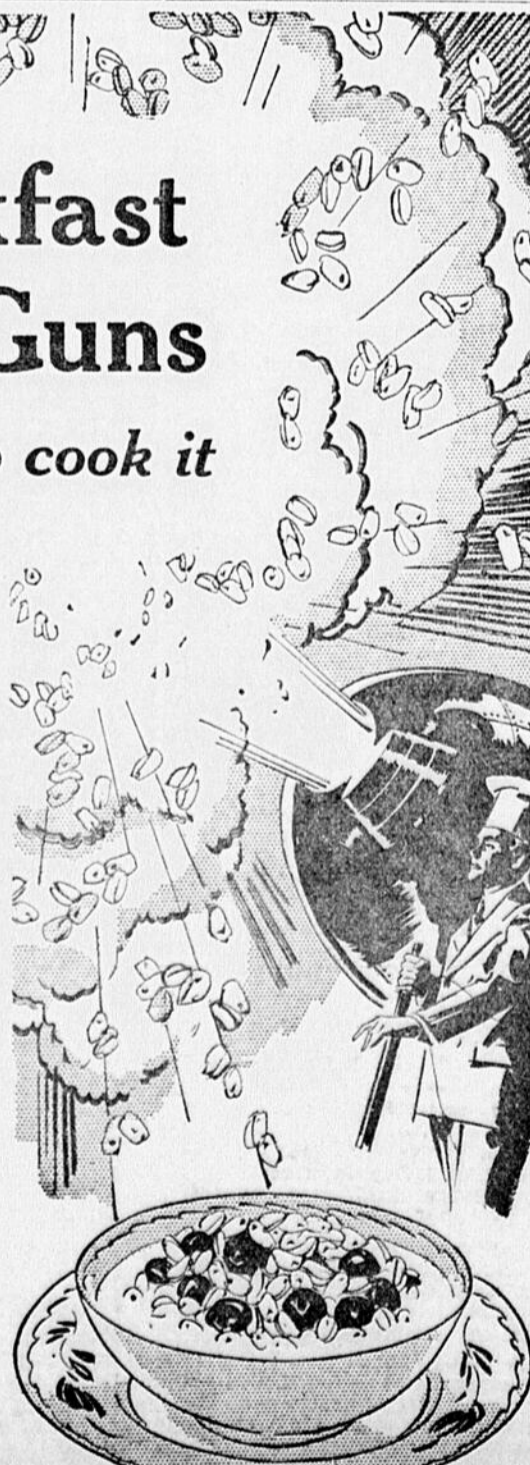

Read how this amazing invention gives Puffed Grains the virtual nourishment of hot cooked cereals.

WHEN Professor Anderson found the way to shoot wheat and rice grains from guns he solved an important problem. He gave these crisp, delicious, ready-to-eat cereals the virtual nourishment of hot cooked cereals.

Every grain of wheat and rice contains 125 million food cells. Every food cell must be broken before the grain can be completely digestible. It takes long hours of cooking to do this. But Professor Anderson found a better way. He seals grains of wheat and rice in bronze guns. Revolves them in fiery ovens. Then fires the guns. This causes 125 million explosions in every grain. It blasts open every tiny food cell. Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice are thus made completely digestible. Hence practically as nourishing as hot cooked cereals.

The grains become 8 times normal size. They have all the buttery crunchiness of fresh toast. They are made to taste like sweet new nut-meats. Never before was rich grain nourishment made so delectably good to eat.

You owe it to your family to give them this extra delicious grain food that tastes like nut goodies. Order Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice from your grocer today. The Quaker Oats Company.

The Week at Ottawa

The week did not bring forth anything particularly startling, nor would it appear that the members are in any undue haste to wind up the session. The government is evidently anxious to get the business done, but a number of the private members on the opposition side do not share that opinion and are taking full advantage of their rights. During the budget debates more French speakers took part than has been the rule for a number of years. Some spoke in English, others in French, but only one had to be told that his forty minutes were up. The members of the House are limited to forty minutes and the Speaker has to frequently tell English-speaking orators that their time has elapsed, but the French members do not find that time limit a difficulty, probably because there are no interruptions.

The debate on the budget ended on Thursday with two members of the Conservative party and one United Farmer voting with the government. There were no breaks in the government ranks so a larger majority than had been expected was recorded. The debate is now on the resolutions and the length of time it takes to pass these through the House will decide the length of the session. Some anticipate that it may end this week, but that is doubtful, while others are not so sanguine that it will be over by the 31st. of the month.

The Senate came back this past week and cleaned up a large number of bills. One of those to go through was the divorce bill, so next year should see a decided decrease in the number of applications, for the people of Ontario will now be able to go to their own courts. The Senate did not take long to complete the passage of the legislation granting the return of the natural resources to the prairie provinces, so when Royal Assent is given that problem of twenty-five years will be out of the way.

Monday: The House of Commons listened to-day to two leading members, both of whom have in the past been given to political phrases which have reacted against their party friends. One was Hon. Charles Stewart, and the other was Hon. J. D. Chaplin. Mr. Stewart is a candid speaker who visualizes tariffs in the eyes of the Western farmer, and Mr. Chaplin is of the high-tariff manufacturer family. Both made excellent speeches, Mr. Stewart's being broader and more directly concerned with the tariff proposals than was Mr. Chaplin's, the latter wandering off to attack his old enemy, the French treaty.

Only one effort was made to bait Mr. Stewart into an indiscretion, but it failed and he countered with a comment which is receiving much attention in Ottawa these days, for it gives an importance to the campaign arguments of the coming campaign. He was chided by Mr. Quinn, of Halifax, with "flag-flapping" and Mr. Stewart replied: "I am afraid the Hon. gentleman will not be able to wave the Union Jack this time and talk about loyalty. That had always been the recourse of a few hon. gentlemen across the floor of the House, and I think it is time it was stopped. There has never been an attempt on our part to preach sentiment, to talk about loyalty; this government on every occasion has given evidence by their works of what they believe. It makes me tired to hear gentlemen across the floor talking of wrapping the flag about themselves. I have been in politics for forty years, and that is one of the things in my experience that has frequently been resorted to by hon. gentlemen across the floor. Not only that, but they have decried the loyalty of the leader of the government and are still seeking to arouse prejudice against him. I say it is time that sort of thing came to an end. This budget, so far as this government is concerned, is a complete answer as to where we stand in this connection with respect to the British preference."

Mr. Chaplin, who followed, commented favourably on some parts of the budget proposals and criticized others, summing up his opinion of the government by remarking: "They have turned protectionist. I do not say they have stolen our policy, what I say is that they have paid us the greatest compliment by following in our footsteps and accepting our advice. If they stole anything they would not know what to do with when they got it." After that he turned to the French treaty and spelled out a few items such as, d-i-e-t-h-y-s-i-l-p-h-o-n-a-d-i-m-e-t-h-y-l-m-e-t-h-a-n-e and demanded that the Minister of Justice, who had signed the treaty, pronounce the word, let alone explain what it was.

Another opposition speaker who took the floor was Dr. McGibbon, who paid his attentions to the west-to unite and defeat the King government, and keep the Quebec movement from riding rough-shod over the heritage of our dearly loved British liberties." Mr. Bock said he quoted this because it was rumoured Mr. Bennett was financially interested in the Regina Star and while, he did not think that Mr. Bennett subscribed to any such opinion, he did think Mr. Bennett should make a statement in respect to it.

Wednesday: At the opening of today's sitting some questions were answered in respect to butter. According to statistics there was an increase in production of creamery butter in the year 1929 of 4,500,000 pounds as compared with 1928. The figures are: 1928, in pounds, 188,027,039 while in 1929 the production was 172,581,406 pounds. Mr. Tobin also wanted to know what the duty rates were and was informed that the British preferential rate was 4 cents a pound, the intermediate was six cents and the general tariff was seven cents. As the new tariff provided that "if any country imposes upon butter produced in, and imported from, Canada rates of duty higher than are enumerated in item 18 of the Canadian tariff, equivalent rates of duty shall be imposed upon butter entering Canada from such country," this means that butter from the United States will pay 12 cents a pound duty.

A table was placed on record showing the wholesale jobbing quotations at the close of each week since the 1st of January in New York, Montreal and London. For the New York price the 92 score Extras was used. For Montreal the No. 1, pasteurized, and in London the quotation was on Australian Finest. The Montreal price has always been considerably above the British market price, the smallest spread being 3 1/2 cents and the highest seven cents a pound. In comparison with New York the Montreal price was 2 1/2 cents higher one week and on four other weeks it was from a cent and a half to three-quarters of a cent above, while during nine other weeks it was below the New York price, and some weeks considerably below.

Another question brought forth the information that the mounted police received from $2 to $2.25 a day in addition to rations, etc., while sergeants get $3 a day. Where it is not convenient to supply rations in kind, a ration allowance of 60 cents per diem is allowed, while married men get $1.20.

The budget speech wandered along, nothing of note being said, but numerous words getting into the forty-five pages of the printed report which was published late last night. Mr. Cahon departed from the budget resolutions to discuss the textile industry. He made a comparison of wages paid for what he declared was similar work performed on similar machinery in the same working hours in Lancashire and Canada. The table is:

Lancashire Quebec
Slubber tender	$9.44 $21.00
Intermediate tender	9.24 20.00
Roving tender	8.32 18.00
Ring spinner	9.19 15.50
Apprentices	4.50 9.00

He declared that in the Southern United States the wages paid were about two-thirds of the minimum wage in Canada, that hundreds of cotton mills in Lancashire have been closed and that the New England mills are finding it difficult to face the competition from the mills in the southern states.

Mr. Paul Mercier closed the day in a warm speech in support of the government and especially for the tax-kind going into the United States before he would know what he would have to pay in order to bring those animals into Canada.

Mr. Dunning: He could get that information at any Canadian customs port.

Speaking of live stock, two amendments to the criminal code are now before the House of Commons. One adds a new clause which imposes a penalty of three years imprisonment to those who sell or offer for sale cattle which have within sixty days been injected with tuberculin by any person other than a qualified veterinarian, who is in turn bound to give the information. The explanation to the bill states that the Veterinary General has every reason to believe that individuals selling cattle do at times inject them with tuberculin with a view to overcome the results of a test which may be applied soon after the sale. The other amendment provides that railways must prevent overcrowding of cars when loaded with cattle and that no mature bull shall be carried in any car with other cattle unless it is securely tied by the head. These amendments have still to be considered by the House and the Senate.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took three bottles and it carried me through that critical time. I have three children to care for and I feel well and strong. I have told two other women about your medicine."

Mrs. GUS AUBURN, 82 Albert Street, Moncton, New Brunswick.

Friday: The budget resolutions took up the whole day and some progress was made. When the first tariff item on live stock was called, Sir George Perley asked for information as to the application of the counter-vailing duties. The remarks were:

Sir George Perley: For instance, suppose someone in Canada wished to import into this country an animal from Czechoslovakia or Poland or some other country where the duties are higher than they are in Canada, would that person be able to get that information from the department immediately without any difficulty, before purchasing the animal and ordering it sent here?

Mr. Dunning: Yes.

Sir George Perley: In all the various customs offices throughout the country.

Mr. Dunning: Yes, the foreign tariff division has that information.

Sir George Perley: A man in Calgary, for instance, who wished to import an animal could get information as to the duty he would have to pay?

Mr. Dunning: Yes.

Sir George Perley: That is, if an importation in this country wished to bring in an animal from the United States first, he would have to find out the duty on the same animal going to the United States before he would know what he would have to pay here?

Mr. Dunning: The tariff changes are not frequent to cause difficulty in that connection.

Sir George Perley: Quite so, but we have known times when they have occurred quite frequently. At any rate, an importer bringing animals to this country would have to inquire as to the duty on animals of the same

The Shawinigan Water and Power Company has been a pioneer in both of these epoch-making developments. These contributions to the progress of electrical engineering built the foundation upon which the major portion of the industrial structure of the Province of Quebec has since been expanded, and opened the way for still greater expansion in the future.

Former Students' Association

Tonight is to be held a meeting of all former students of Huntingdon Academy for the purpose of forming a "Former Students' Association." The idea of this association was well expressed last Fall when a meeting was held at the High School on Thanksgiving Day. At that meeting a committee was selected to draw up a tentative constitution to be submitted to the former students. This committee is now ready to report and hopes that there will be a representative attendance at tonight's meeting.

The proposed association will doubtless be of value in linking the student body together, and it is indeed time we had some organized effort to boost the new High School. Let us give the Association our support by being present.

education is toward specialization in all branches of learning. It has been said that "the student now knows more and more about less and less."

In discussing this point the interesting view was advanced that the modern craze for sports, movies and other diversion was an indication of the craving for escape from the monotony of the Machine Age.

"In the words of the American Scholar," said Dr. Maclean, "the ideal of education today is primarily concerned with the idea of doing—we educate people to 'do'."

Several hints on gardening were given such as, sow coarse salt with the black onion seeds and sulphur with carrot seeds to discourage magots.

Red Spider, which is injurious to many plants, may be overcome by dusting with sulphur, an early application this month will serve as an excellent control.

To increase the size of garden flowers, a week or 10 days before they bloom, give them a liberal watering with Ammonia Sulphate or nitrate of Soda, dissolved at the rate of one tablespoonful to 1 gallon of water.

Annual flowers, most annual flowers may be sown this month. Try at least a few new ones that you have never grown.

I put down my youthful appearance to Kruchen Salts taken each morning. I should never think of starting the day without taking them."

"I am 55, six, in height, weight 119 pounds. I can assure you my husband is very proud of me."

Kruchen Salts is obtainable at drug and department stores in Canada at 75c a bottle. A bottle contains enough to last for 4 or 5 months—good health for half-a-year at a day's cost.

"The Shining Talent"

CHAPTER XX.

Once Molly interviewed George Durbin. And she knew him for a slight, boyish, mild-mannered man, whose simplicity belied his greatness. There was nothing about the famous producer to frighten a girl.

But now she was horribly nervous. It was one thing to interview a man, and quite another to approach him with a play. Molly felt as though she were being outrageously preposterous. He would be nice to her, she was sure of that. He was that kind of a man.

But wouldn't he think her perfectly ridiculous, daring to think she had written a play worthy of his production? George Durbin had never put on a flop. And here she was—presuming to march in on him in his own private office, big as life, with a play under her arm!

Molly dressed three times that morning. She wanted to look as old as possible. And instead, she decided. If she looked young and innocent-appearing, Mr. Durbin might be prejudiced against her from the beginning.

She discarded a youthful tulleur of beige, and wore instead a ensemble of black crepe. She covered her face and neck with sun-tan powder, and rouged her lips with geranium paste. She shaded her eyes with a blue pencil, and sprayed herself with the most sophisticated of perfumes. Then she hung large baroque pearls from her ears, bought a gardenia to match, and pulled her small black hat (it was an original Agnes) low on her forehead. She wore white buckskin gloves, and a short string of pearls, because she had noticed that the really smartest women at Palm Beach, when dressed for the street, wore either black and white or beige. And of the two, beige, she decided, was rather youthful for a serious-minded young playwright with her way to make.

Mr. Durbin received her with gentle courtesy. He had heard something of her play, he said. And he took the brief case from her, and opened it himself. "I'll glance through it, if you'd like," he offered, and took the manuscript to the antique Florentine table that served as desk.

He turned the pages rapidly, and what he read seemed to absorb him. Molly sat in a high-backed Italian chair, with her feet swinging off the floor, and felt very small. Nervously she pressed her hand to her mouth, and the geranium rouge was smeared on her smart white glove. She wondered if the hue shadows that encircled her eyes were also coming off.

Suddenly Mr. Durbin looked up and smiled. "It's good," he said. "I'll take it. There are spots that are weak, naturally. But that's all right. I'll get a play doctor at work on it. All plays are pretty well doctored before we're ready to put them in rehearsal. Then they get a lot more doctored before the public gets a look at them. Do you want to drop around tomorrow, and I'll get in touch with Hewins—he's the chap we call in for diagnosis. Say 11 o'clock. Will that be all right?"

"Oh, Mr. Durbin. That's wonderful. Perfectly wonderful!" Molly had forgotten the dignity of baroque and black crepe. "You really truly like it?" she demanded. "You think it's honestly good?"

"Well," The great man smiled kindly. "I'm perfectly sincere with you, Miss Burnham. It's a pretty good little play. That is, it has possibilities. Big possibilities, I should say. There's a vague right now for newspaper plays. Crime plots and mystery stories are going over big. So that it possesses all the virtues of being timely. It satisfies a popular demand.

"But, most important of all, there's the personal advertising you have had. I'm not trying to discount the merits of your play, Miss Burnham. You've an extraordinary plot there, and you've worked it out very well. But the dear public, as you undoubtedly know, are hero worshippers. They like, particularly, to worship a woman. Remember how they turned out for Gertrude Ederle? And Amelia Earhart?"

"Well, they haven't forgotten that little shooting affair in Boston. Ask any man on the street who Molly Burnham is. He'll tell you quickly enough.

"But the public is fickle. It doesn't remember anyone very long. Men and women have starved to death, who once were favorites. That means we must grab time by the forelock when we're banking on transient popularity. Not long ago Broadway went plumb crazy over a certain hero. Today nobody would cross the street to look at him. It's always the same. Your name may mean something today. But it won't be worth a nickel in six months.

"As a matter of fact, you've been out of the papers for some time now. It might be a good idea to get a press agent, and start things up a bit."

"Red Flynn could do that," declared Molly.

"Yes, Red's good. He press agented me for one season." Mr. Durbin smiled reminiscently. "Used to want me to sit on top of flag-poles, and wave flags. Dragged me out to Central Park once, and had me risk my life pretending to teach a hippopotamus to sing his old Hip-Hip-Hurrah song. The hippopotamus opened his mouth, and a camera man faint-ed."

"Red's a great boy for stunts. He'll have you roller skating down Broadway to help Grover Whalen solve his traffic problems. Or maybe he'll think up some back-to-nature stunt for you. Once he wanted me to go into the Maine woods, and live on berries and bark."

Molly squirmed. "I couldn't do anything very exciting," she confessed, "because my parents are awfully old-fashioned, and they've had just about all they can stand already."

"Oh, we won't ask you to do anything too bad," assured Mr. Durbin. "By the way, I don't think you're a very good business woman, Miss Burnham. You haven't asked anything about royalties."

less failures. There's no telling, Miss Burnham. Maybe you'll make some money. Perhaps a lot. And then again maybe you won't."

"Well, I'm thrilled to death anyhow," she told him.

Hysterically gay, she telephoned Jack from a booth in the lobby. "Oh, Jack! Jack! Mr. Durbin's going to take my play. Isn't that wonderful!"

But Jack's enthusiasm was tempered. "That's fine," he declared. "How've you been, Molly?"

"Oh, great! I'm dying to see you. I've so much to tell you. Gee, Jack, I'm about thrilled to death. Isn't it just too wonderful to be true?"

"I told you you'd make a career for yourself," he reminded her. "I guess you're getting the breaks for both of us, honey."

"Aren't things going well with you?" "Not so hot," he told her. "Maybe my old girl will give me a job around the theater."

"Don't joke that way," she protested. "You know, Jack Wells, that you're going to design some great library, or something, and be famous like Bullfinch and Stanford White. Listen, Jack, I'm hungry. Let's have luncheon together, and I'll tell you about Mr. Durbin and Delphine Darrows."

There was a second's silence. Then, hesitatingly, Jack said, "I'm awfully sorry, Molly. I'm going out to Westchester this afternoon."

"You don't want to take me?" she cried. "I didn't say that."

"No, but you meant it. You know perfectly well you could see me if you wanted to. Why, Jack, it's been weeks and weeks!"

"I know. But we made an agreement before you went away, Molly. There's no good seeing each other, honey."

"All right. I won't ever telephone you again, Jack. I won't bother you any more."

Now, maybe it was luck. And maybe, as some critics says, she has the spark of genius. It doesn't, after all, make much difference. The important thing is the way the public has acclaimed "The Death of Delphine Darrows."

Probably you read of that spectacular first night. And you know how it's been packed them in ever since. You've read what the reviewers have to say. A good many of you have seen the play. Before the summer is over, Millions more will have thrilled to it—for they are filming it now for the talking movies. The fame of Molly has swept from coast to coast. There are five companies on the road now. And the original cast is opening in London in the fall.

Do you remember reading of the opening night, and how they called on Molly for a speech? Her mother and father were sitting down front with Jack. He had met them at the station, after Molly sent him word that she did not want to see any of them until after the final curtain. Molly was so nervous that night that Red Flynn was sure she was going to faint. She had bought a green gown, with pearls like frosted dew drops gleaming on its bodice. And she wore a cap of pearls on her red hair. They say she looked like a medieval princess, with her long, full skirt, and her little jeweled slippers, and the strands on strands of pearls she wore.

"Author!" they cried. "Author!" And Red Flynn took her hand, and dragged her across the stage—and left her standing there, with her arms full of flowers, and her pearl cap on sideways, and her face all flushed and beautiful.

Then Molly opened her mouth, and tried to speak.

CHATEAUGUAY BASIN

SPARROWGRASS' LETTER

Dear Mr. Gleaner, You remember Wordsworth's description of the man to whom— A primrose growing by the river's brink. A yellow primrose was to him, and it was nothing more. But as we dwellers of Chateauguay look around us today we agree more definitely with him when he soliloquizes:— To me the meanest flower that grows can give Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears.

And although our lot may be tiny and our garden small, we think of the "Autocrat" when he talks to his breakfast friends on flowers. "The flowers our mothers and sisters used to cherish, those which grow beneath our eaves and by our doorsteps, are the ones we always love the best. I love the damask rose the best." And we all have our preferences. I know a flower lover, whose gardens are on the slope of our hill, and whose beds are a mass of blue from the old-fashioned, scented, dwarf-iris; another whose privet hedge was the pride of her heart and who is grieving over patches of winter-killing in what was "a thing of beauty." Another friend glories in his peonies, when his wife leaves them long enough for his friends and himself to enjoy their beauty and glory. And so on Sunday, when Mrs. S. and myself attend the re-opening of old St. Andrew's Church, the lovely handiwork of man was offset by the handiwork of nature, and the two combining to make St. Andrew's one of the prettiest country churches we know of. Saturday night I dropped in to see the reason of all the illumination in the church, and partly from curiosity, and found the managers busily engaged in the last touches, which even the best of janitors cannot give to the pulpit, the pews, floors and elsewhere, while some of the willing young members of the congregation dusted fixtures or polished pew backs. At the platform Mrs. Reid and Miss Gardner heaped up lovely apple-blossoms with tulips and caragana sprays, giving a very pleasing effect to the whole front of the church. The services were inspiring. Rev. Mr. Pringle admonishing us not to forget church attendance, even if we were on our holidays, and reminding the young of their duty in upholding the traditions of their forefathers. The soloist in the musical portion of the service, was Mr. E. Tooth, whose singing of Lewis Carey's setting of "Nearer My God to Thee" was very much appreciated. The Choir's anthem was "Send Forth Thy Light," bringing to a close a very interesting and impressive service.

Our summer population has been augmented by Mr. and Mrs. Osman Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Cobb, of Montreal. Mrs. Kellie and Mrs. Fenwick were out touring with their friend Mrs. Pibrough. We are pleased that Mr. Kellie has nearly regained her former health, after her serious accident she had during the winter. The Girl Guides realized nearly fifty dollars from their bazaar. Our American friends will have no difficulty in getting rid of their thirst while visiting Chateauguay Basin, as we now have another "Base of Supplies". Our Council rightly rejected the application, but outsiders evidently know what is better for our town than do the residents. This is a little matter that should be satisfactorily explained to the electorate of Chateauguay by the members of the Liquor Commission responsible for the granting of this license.

Yours, "SPARROWGRASS."

The Prussian State is doing everything in its power to encourage the development of deep sea fishing. It has shown this interest in the case of the fishing harbor of Wesermunde by taking shares in the Fishing Harbor Co., to the value of 50,000,000 marks. Among the fishing companies themselves, the attitude of the state has caused great satisfaction, and a feeling of optimism prevails that is expressed in the untiring efforts of the companies to develop the German fishing fleets. In the last few months a large number of new trawlers have been launched and taken over by the Weser fishing steamer owners.
