Rotary Club Hears Salvation Army Speaker

Huntingdon Rotary Club met as usual at The Chateau, Huntingdon, on Monday, with a very good attendance.

Reports were heard of the Car being offered and of the Bingo which is being held tonight at Notre Dame School. While The tickets have been selling better, the campaign is still not a full success. The committee hopes that by this evening there will be a much better response and thus they will be able to chalk up SUCCESS. According to reports, there should be a very good attendance from Valleyfield and nearby points and free bus transportation is being offered people of that area. This is for the purpose of attending the Bingo Party.

The committee in charge, reported that all is in readiness for the big event and all helpers are willing and ready to be on the job this evening.

It was further reported that an executive meeting of the Club directors had been held and it had been decided after communication with President Cecil Brown to make a change in the Presidency of the Club. Due to Rotarian Brown being absent from Huntingdon in connection with his duties and there is no indication when he may return, he was asked if he would be willing to change his period of office. He was readily willing, thus Rotarian L. Sanderson takes his turn in the Presidency of the Club for the balance of the term. No doubt Rotarian Brown will resume his presidential office next year.

Rotarian George Dixon was called to introduce the guest speaker and in turn called upon Brigadier N.B. Bell of the Salavation Army to make the introduction.

Brigadier Bell introduced Colonel George Bramwell Smith, who is on special service for the General of the Salvation Army, from the London office of the Salvation Army. He was born at Malvern, Worcester, England and has served with the Salvation Army for 43 years. He was also in the 1914-1918 war. During World War II he was a chaplain and service officer. He is with the public relations dept. of the Salvation Army and is a journalist of merit.

Col. Smith in opening his remarks said he was a member of the Rotary Club in London, England, and a public relations officer of international scope. He said it was a pleasure to come to Huntingdon, Quebec, for he was well associated with Huntingdon and Godmanchester in England. He had a few jokes to tell the audience which brought some very hearty laughter.

The Salvation Army will soon be observing its centenary, actually next year, 1965 and then a special celebration will be held throughout the world. The Salvation Army was started by William Booth in 1865, in London, England. It was started through social services at first, that is getting people to work, providing them with food and so forth and was brought about by industrial conditions of that time. It was intended to get people to go to the churches of the day, those who did not attend such places that is. The reason they did not attend was due to their cultural standing. However, these people persuaded William Booth to form a society to which they could belong and this he did.

It has been so successful that it now embraces the world. The Salvation Army has not been accepted in every country, especially those behind the iron curtain, or in communistic countries. In such countries the Army had been working, but the authorities viewed their work with fear that it might influence against Communism and they were asked to leave. In China the work is still being carried on by people the Army trained, but under Government supervision. A similar arrangement exists in Cuba, but with some Army personnel staying there.

Canada is looked upon with great respect by the Army and it is expected that a large number from Canada will be in attendance in London, in 1965, for the centennial and already a very large number of rooms have been booked for the visitors.

He told how through a series of hardships and narrow escapes he had ceded his life to the service of God in a little chapel in France as he was returning from war service. Since that time he has devoted his time to that service and had talked to many types of men and succeeded in helping them to mend their ways. He cited several examples of this for the audience.

Col. Smith's address was listened to with rapt attention and at the conculsion he was roundly applauded and thanked. On behalf of the members Rotarian Jon Proudfoot thanked the speaker and repeated the words of the speaker that The Salvation Army was an army of peace and need never be disarmed.

Guest Speaker at Ormstown Legion Banquet, Col. James

(by Bernice Cullen

The highlight of the Ormstown Legion annual banquet was the presence of two veterans of the Boer War in the persons of the guest speaker Col. James and Mr. Harry Pinfold. Mr. Pinfold saw service in World War I, also and Col. James is a veteran of three wars.

During the dinner hour Com. Austin Henry called on Com. Wm. Horobin to present the Past President's Medal to Com. Wm. Frost and the Past Treasurer's medal to Com. Wesley Cairns. These medals were pinned on by Com. Dave Watson.

A toast to the Vets of the Boer War and both World Wars was given by Cam. Wm. Frost and replied to by Dr. M. R. Stalker.

Dr. Stalker spoke of the intense emotion of the boys of World War One, when they learned that the war was over.

Col. James, guest speaker, said he remembered the ½ cup of flour per day which was the Boer War ration for a time. He mentioned the battle of Ypres and of April 22 when the Canadians survived a barrage of clorine gas, and the Germans remarked that dead men rose to fight. He said that in spite of frost, mud and filth Canadians never faltered and are known as the "Fightingest Men in the World." He spoke of the 6000 men who went to Dieppe and the 2500 who came back. Col. James said it is a well-known fact that in spite of the tremendous losses at Dieppe the Canadians learned much information which was invaluable to them at the time of the Normandy invasion. He gave the Canadian casuality list for World War 2 as 37,317 from the allied losses of 541,760.

Rotary Club Bingo At Notre Dame School Tonight

Going to the Bingo tonight for there's going to be a hot time in the old town tonight? There'll be plenty of fun and prizes too and who knows, you may be the lucky winner of the beautiful little car the Rotary Club is offering to some person. There is another prize also for the person who can guess the mileage question on the ticket stub.

We are told that a large number from Valleyfield and other points from that area will be in attendance. The more the merrier, the Huntingdon Rotarians are saying. They need all the money they can raise and they are hoping that the people of this community will get out and help them raise it. The Club does much local work for this community and is willing to do more. The Nurses' Training Fund is one of the most important and as such it needs a larger share of the finances. The money raised does not go into funds for the Rotary Club, it goes to help young girls who would like to take a Nurse Training Course and they are helped through this course at practically no cost to themselves or their parents. Could anything be fairer than that. The only stipulation is that the girl when her three year course is completed, will agree to be in the employ of the Huntingdon County Hospital for a year or so . She will receive the full rate of pay for her services and not be asked to pay anything back.

When you attend the Bingo tonight, or buy a subscription for the car, you are helping this worthy project, beside having the enjoyment of a wonderful evening. Plan now to attend.

Hinchinbrooke Volunteer Fire Brigade Purchases Truck

The Hinchinbrooke Volunteer Fire Brigade decided that in the best interests of the Municipality, and in view of the fact that it may be some time before anything is done by the Provincial Government that they purchase some equipment. This they have done in the form of a truck with a 2,000 gallon tank on same. The truck is in good condition, and will be used in conjunction with the other equipment when same becomes available.

In the meantime it is necessary that they purchase a pump, they know where there is one, and if the price is right, they will buy it. It will then be necessary to purchase hose and nozzle. With same they will be in a position to give at least a part of the protection the Municipality expected when this organization was formed.

This is a step in the right direction, and although it will not entirely dispense with the old bucket line, there will be less use of same and it too will eventually disappear.

The bingo in the Town Hall, Herdman, last Saturday evening was well patronized. The firemen are grateful. The winner of the door prize was Dalton Ross.

Should you require the Fire Brigade, Call, 4-5533, 4-2282, 4-3505, or 4-2019. Keep these numbers where they will be easily available.

Huntingdon Man Dies In Toronto

The people of Huntingdon received sad news the past week when it was learned that James Ross, 62, had been found dead in his room at the Ford Hotel in Toronto.

The deceased is the son of a well known Huntingdon family that of John A. and Mrs. Ross. John was well known as a blacksmith and owned a shop on Chateauguay Street, which was pulled down some years ago and where presently a new building is being erected.

James was born in September, 1902 and went to school at the Huntingdon Academy. After school he was employed at The Huntingdon Gleaner and learned the printing business at the old shop at the Brown Building. He specialized as a linotype operator and this has been his trade ever since. He was employed at The Gleaner about the years 1920 or 1921. He left The Gleaner to go to Montreal and from there he went to St. Johns. Later he went to Toronto, where he worked at his trade and was still employed at the time of his death. He never married.

The actual date of death is not truly known, but it is believed to be Monday, November 9th. James died of a heart attack and was not found for a few days after he died.

The deceased was very interested in sports and played Baseball, Hockey and Curling. Through this he was well and favourably known.

He leaves to mourn his loss the following, three sisters, Mrs. Lily McCracken, Montreal; Mrs. Stewart Hingston, Massena; Mrs. Alex Hay, Huntingdon; brothers David A. Ross, Montreal; Donald G. Ross, Saranac Lake; John A. Ross, St. Johns; Finlayson W. Ross, Baltimore.

The body was brought to Huntingdon and the funeral was held in the Chapel of Kelly's Funeral parlor, on Saturday, November 14th. Pallbearers were: Harold Daniel, James O'Hare, David McCoy, Charles Faille, Merril Smith and Irvin McWhinnie.

Interment was in the Huntingdon Protestant Cemetery.

St. Andrew's Concert Well Received At Howick

By Mrs. Jas. Crawford.

Howick High School Auditorium was crowded on Saturday evening, Nov. 14, when Georgetown and Riverfield Choir presented the 10th. St. Andrew's Concert directed by the Rev. W. M. Brown. The accompanist was Mrs. W. Logan. Piper Neil Gray played the opening selection and again later on.

The choir was in good form and sang six numbers, which were well received. Eight young girls ably assisted the senior choir and and also provided a pleasing variation when they sang three numbers by themselves. The girls were: Eileen Dixon, Ann Silliman, Judy and Debbie Champ, Linda Scoble, Dorothy Bustard, Iona Robertson and Cathy McFarlane.

The pure, sweet, soprano voice of Miss Anne MacNab from Dumfries, Scotland delighted everyone. She sang four selections, accompanied by her Scottish friend, Miss Whiteman. These young ladies have spent the past year teaching in Canada and are continuing this year.

Miss K. Magnussen, who has come to live in this district, pleased the crowd with her performance of the Sword Dance. Something went wrong with the recorded music for Shaen Frews, so we hope Miss Magnussen has an opportunity at a later date to appear in this dance.

An amusing one act play, "Let Tullochgorum Flourish", featured Mrs. John Anderson, Mrs. Lorne Simms, Mrs. John McArthur, and Mrs. Jim Scoble. We hope they continue to use these little plays as part of the St. Andrew's Concert. There are few opportunities nowadays for young people to act in plays, and they can be so much fun. (We understand the Rev. Mr. Brown laid in a supply of short plays when he visited Scotland two or three years ago). One of the highlights of the concert was the performance of the Scottish Country Dancers. They looked so gay and alive as they tripped about. Some of the local people, which includes the eight-girl choir, have expressed a desire to learn this art. Mr. Maurice Whitley was the commentator.

Everyone was disappointed when they learned of Mr. A. C. Brown's accident (see Howick News) which also prevented Mr. T. S. Milne from taking part. These gentlemen are wonderful entertainers and we shall look forward to seeing them next year. The Rev. W. M. Brown replaced his brother in two solo numbers, which as usual gave much pleasure.

The finale, a sing-a-long gave everyone a chance to sing old favourites before the choir closed with Crimond.

The C.G.I.T. girls sold candy during intermission. It was a most enjoyable and successful concert.

ALBERT ANTOINE

Gleaner and "Ab" synonymous
For over forty years.
And O the good anonymous
He's done 'mid smiles and tears.

The blustery boss the back shop know
His needle eyes they fear;
No matter how the assets grow
Our "Ab" can current steer.

And now he's reached his three score ten
It seems there's three score still,
We doubt The Gleaner'll see again
A man your job can fill.

So with that trickle from the Gov.
Buy lots and lots of gas
And tour this country that you love —
No need each car to pass!

A Happy Birthday "Ab" from we
Who've griped but loved you too,
We do appreciate the fee
You've paid to see us through!

Valleyfield Ladies' Curling Club Hold Opening Night

by Mrs. Pearl Stewart

On Wednesday, Nov. 11th, the Valleyfield Ladies' Curling Club, evening section, held their annual opening night at the Moco Club. This was well patronized by the members.

At the hour of 6:30 p.m. instructions in curling were given to the new curlers. This was followed by a four end game of curling among the other members, which was decided a plentiful amount of ends to allow the curlers the feel of the stone once again, that wrist action in the sweeping process, and quarantee of a sufficient amount of aches and pains to be endured for the next few days. As I am a curler myself, I cannot resist adding, if the husbands of the ladies asked their wives to sweep the floors at home as they do on the ice, for sure, they would sue their "hubbies" on the grounds of "brutality!"

At 8.30 p.m., the opening general meeting commenced, with the Chairman, Miss N. Ross presiding. Miss Ross welcomed all members back to another season of curling and introduced the new members. The chairman introduced Mrs. Brown, invited representative for the V.L.C.C., day section. The general discussion of business concentrated around the organizing of the curling for the season, the annual invitation bonspiel, deadline for collection of fees, re-nominations for a new secretary, etc. The chairman then called on Mrs. Brown to speak a few words. Mrs. Brown stressed appreciation at being present, and stated further business of interest to the evening curlers.

This was then followed by another four-end game of curling among the members who had not participated in the first round. At the completion of this game, the members enjoyed a social gathering over delicious refreshments. This was an enjoyable, and successful evening. Appreciation is extended to Miss N. Ross, Chairman, Mrs. R. Lacroix, Match Chairman; Mrs. H. Baker, Social; Mrs. M. Laroche, Miss W. Carson, instructions, and other members who assisted in any way to make this evening such a success.

The Evening Section of the curling commence their annual season's activities on Wednesday, Nov. 18th., with the opening draw.

The Executive of the Valleyfield Ladies Curling Club, Evening Section, for the year 1964-1965, are as follows: — Chairman, N. Ross; Secretary, P. Stewart; Treasurer, P. Anderson; Match Chairman, R. Lacroix; Social Convener, H. Baker; additional member of executive, N. Poirier, B. Scherf assisted by W. Carson are in charge of the Saturday Evening Curling.

The Valleyfield Men's Curling Club commenced their season's activities on Monday, Nov. 9th., with the playing of a challenge in the President's Bonspiel.

Accident At Larocque Rd. Bridge

An accident which occurred on the Larocque Road lift bridge near Valleyfield, on Monday morning, sent a young lady to hospital for attention to injuries.

Particulars of who was actually involved are not to hand. From a report received, it would seem that the cause of the accident was the slippery condition of the roads on Monday morning. A truck was crossing the bridge in one direction, while a Volkswagen car was proceeding in the other, the latter driven by a lady. At a point clear of the actual lift portion of the bridge and on the Valleyfield side, the truck started to skid and swung into the approaching car. The collision smashed the car and caused a hold-up at the bridge for almost one hour.

The man in charge of the bridge immediately closed off the bridge to prevent traffic becoming stalled in the lift part of same.

Messrs. Lesage, Gerin-Lajoie To Address Quebec Liberal Federation Benefit Dinner

Fifth of the series of benefit dinners being held twice yearly to enable the democratic financing of the Quebec Liberal Party will be held at the Quebec Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, the evening of Sunday, November 22.

The party leader, Hon. Jean Lesage, Premier of the province, will be the main speaker as on former occasions and he will be introduced by the Minister of Education, Hon. Paul Gérin-Lajoie.

On similar occasions in the past, Mr. Lesage has made important pronouncements and party members are expecting that he will use the occasion again to make an important statement concerned with policies for the advancement of Quebec and its people.

The $50 plate dinner is being organized by the Finance Commission of the Quebec Liberal Federation whose chairman is Jean Morin, and conforms with the policy established at the eighth annual convention of the QLF, that benefit dinner be held twice each year, in Montreal and Quebec City, to assure the democratic financing of the party.

Since the policy was established, four dinners have been held beginning with the one held at Montreal in the fall of 1962. Spring and fall dinners for 1963 were held at Quebec and Montreal respectively and the fourth was held at Quebec last spring.

The dinners offer pleasant occasions for businessmen and others, who are sympathetic towards the Quebec Liberal Party and its program and who are unable to work actively for the party, to make a financial contribution towards the party's upkeep. The sale of tickets is not limited to members of the party but is extended to all who are in favor of the party's program and who are satisfied with the gigantic achievements of the Liberal Government since taking office in 1960.

The Premier, members of his Cabinet and Members of the Legislative Assembly will be among the guests and the dinner presents an opportunity for the general public to meet them informally. This is especially the case at the reception which precedes the dinner. The reception will start at 6:30 p.m. and the dinner at 7:30.

The Quebec Liberal Federation is the first political organization in Canada to establish such a democratic means of meeting party leaders and financing the party on the same occasion.

All units assembled at the High School and at 2.30 p.m. the parade, led by the Boys' Band from St. Leonard de Port Maurice, marched to the Cenotaph. Immediately following the Band was the Colour Party of the Hemmingford Branch, then came members of the Champlain Branch of the American Legion under Comrade John Lefebvre, members of the Hemmingford Branch, the Hemmingford Scouts under Scoutmaster J. J. Laberge and the Cubs under their leaders, Mrs. Bruce Wallace, Mrs. G. Ouimet, Mrs. R. Holmes and Mrs. Bob Laurin. At the Cenotaph prayers were led by Canon L. Corriveau and the Reverend G. Ficko, the Veterans prayer was given by Branch President Comrade W. Kirnan. After the two minutes silence members of the American Legion fired the Salute and Buglers of the band sounded the Last Post. The first wreath was laid by District Commander D. Watson on behalf of the Hemmingford Branch, he was escorted by Comrade Kirnan, Comrade Mrs. F. Pelletier, escorted by Comrade Kirnan laid the wreath from the Ladies Auxiliary. Mr. Rufus Fisher laid a wreath in memory of his brother Edmund, he was escorted by Comrade Watson. Mrs. George Harfield laid a wreath in memory of her husband, she was escorted by Comrade C. Hamilton, and Mrs. Halton Kennedy, laying a wreath in memory of her two brothers was escorted by Comrade Bouchard. In the Parade also were Comrade and Mrs. Harry Stacey of the Caughnawaga Branch, Comrade Stacey provided a very colourful note, being in full Indian dress. Corporal G. Morey of the R.C.M.P., also in full dress uniform, was at the Cenotaph and the town dignitaries present included Mayor Leo Fortin, Mayor Alister Somerville and President of the Hemmingford Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Walter Keddy. Members of the Hemmingford fire brigade did their usual efficient job directing the traffic and controlling the route of the march. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the members of the Band were entertained with coffee and sandwiches in the private dining room at the Frontier Inn.

Remembrance Service at St. Luke's Church

Several members of the Hemmingford Legion Branch assisted at the morning service at St. Luke's Anglican Church. Comrade A. Keeton read the Psalms and Comrades M. English and D.B. Wooley read the lessons. Cde F. Cleaver read 'In Flanders Fields' and Cde Claire Pelletier gave the Veteran's Prayer. The wreath in the Edmund Fisher Memorial window was placed there by the Fisher family and the flowers on the Altar were placed by Mr. G. Bychowski in memory of his father. The Reverend Ross Prendergast spoke on 'Remembrance Day' and at the end of the service the congregation joined in the singing of 'God Save the Queen'. Immediately after the service the members of the congregation, members of the Legion Branch and a number of residents in the village, paraded to the Hemmingford Cemetery led by the band of H.M.C.S. Donnacona, who numbered 27 men and two women. Owing to a slight misunderstanding this morning ceremony had not been widely publicised which was a pity. The men of the navy provided a very stirring sight in their blue uniforms with spotless white webbing bearing the gold 'E.R.' insignia. Their music and marching was outstanding. At the cemetery the Legion Prayer was given by Comrade Kirnan who also laid a wreath on behalf of the Hemmingford Branch. Mrs. Ethel Barr, escorted by Comrade Kirnan, laid a wreath on her brother's, Edmund Fisher's, grave. The last Post and Reveille were sounded by six Buglers of the Band and the Reverend Prendergast gave the closing prayer. The members of the Band were later entertained to dinner by the Hemmingford Legion.

A number of senior scouts, who were holding a conference in Hemmingford this past weekend, were present at the morning service at St. Andrew's United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Sylvestre, residents of Moyie, 20 miles west of Cranbrook, for over half a century, celebrated 60 years of married life last week.

St. Peter's Church, Moyie, was filled to capacity October 20 to mark the Diamond Jubilee anniversary of the couple.

Rev. A. V. Maglio was celebrant of high mass while Rev. Father O'Connor, pastor of St. Peter's Church, preached the sermon and officiated at the renewal of the marriage vows by Mr. and Mrs. Sylvestre. Father Buckley and Father La Plante assisted.

On behalf of the family, Mr. Sylvestre's nephew, R. B. Bayne of Pincher Creek replied to the tributes and short speeches were given by district friends, including former resident, Nelson Smith, now of Cranbrook. At the climax of the ceremonies, Mr. Sylvestre thanked one and all for a day long to be remembered.

Warning — Overnight Parking

In view of the fact that snow has been promised for several days past now, the attention of the motoring public is called to leaving their cars on the streets overnight. The police are therefore asking all motorists to see that their cars are off the streets at nights especially. In the case of a sudden snowstorm, the streets will need to be clear for the operation of the snowplow and the snow removal. Cars left on the streets and in the way of operations will likely be towed away and the expense charged to the owner before the cars are released. Save yourself the inconvenience and expense of this by keeping your car off the streets over night.

News from Howick

Taking First Aid Course

HOWICK — Twenty-two boys and girls of Howick High School have started a new and interesting course which in eight two-hour sessions, held once weekly, will give the basic principles of first aid.

The teacher, Mr. Horace Gardner, is vice principal of Howick High School, coming here from Ste. Eustache. Mr. Gardner was born at Deer Island, N.B. and attended school at Black's Harbour, N.B. and Teachers' College in Fredericton, N.B.

Three years ago he became interested in the work of St. John Ambulance and took courses at Laval West. He passed three examinations then came before a Medical board for questioning and a two-hour written examination. This qualified him as a Senior Instructor of St. John Ambulance which gives free first aid service whenever there is need for such.

The present class should profit from this first course, and other groups in the Chateauguay Valley might be interested in taking up the work of St. John Ambulance.

Red Deer was another stop, as was Edmonton, where he saw the other cousins in the McIntosh family. Another time when he visited Edmonton it was to judge cattle at the Exhibition.

After visiting a hospital and having the right leg bound and the left leg put in a cast, a police ambulance took him home. This same system will return him to the hospital for an examination this week. We hope he makes a good recovery.

Meet The New Teachers

Miss Judie Poulin, B.A.

Miss Poulin was born in England twenty-one years ago. At the age of three, she and her parents came to Canada and in the intervening years the family has lived in different parts of Canada and the United States. Her father, a colonel in the Van Doos Regiment, is presently stationed in Montreal.

Miss Poulin graduated from the University of Ottawa this past spring with a Bachelor of Arts degree. This is her first year of teaching and her duties at Huntingdon High School include the teaching of several subjects to Grades 7 and 8.

Miss Poulin likes to travel and spent the past summer in Europe. She is also fond of skiing. Her ambition is to be a medical doctor and she hopes to begin her studies to this end next year.

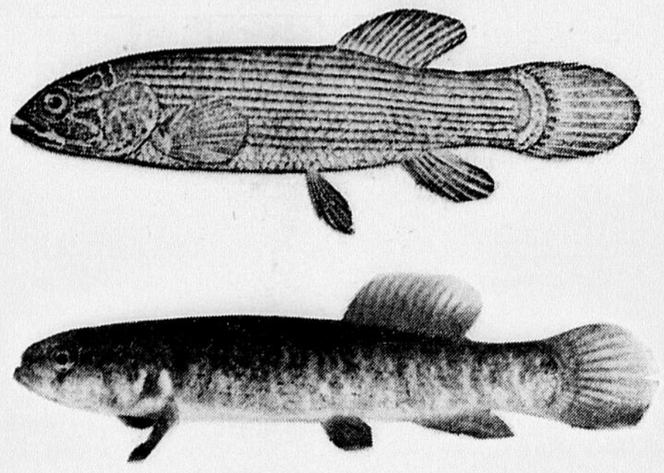
The Species "Our Fish" Is Supposed To Be



On another page in this issue, will be found a long account as to what species the fish is that The Gleaner found coming out of the earth. We suggest you read this for it will give one lots of information. For purposes of comparison, we have made a picture of the mud minnow, which is the upper fish above and "Our Fish" which is the lower one brought down to similar size. Quite readily a difference in shape will be noted, even though there is quite a smilarity in some of the other details — as tail and fins. The upper fin however appears slightly different. However, if it is a mud minnow, then that is what it is and we presume we shall have to settle for that.

HENNY ROZEMA

HUNTINGDON HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Wild Bill Osterman is coming to Huntingdon High! Who is he? Come and find out for yourself on November 27.

The basketball season has begun again. Huntingdon was triumphant in its first games starting off the season very well. The boys beat the Hemmingford team 36 - 23 and the girls won 34 - 29.

Another game was played Friday, November 13 and traditional bad luck fell upon the Huntingdon teams. Howick defeated the boys 48-35 and the girls 29-9.

November 15-22 is National Book Week. All students are encouraged to read during their spare time as books provide an enjoyable pastime and a valuable experience.

Huntingdon High is planning an amateur show and all those who wish to participate may contact Mr. Rawling.

The Christmas Dance is to be held December 23. Further information will be revealed at a future date.

Examinations are imminent. Students will begin to write them November 30 and are advised to begin studying in the very near future. Knowledge cannot all be crammed the night before the exam.

In the House System the Red House leads wth 616 points, Black follows with 590 and Gold trails closely with 584.

On Saturday the Grade 8 French class and some other students went on a field trip to Montreal under the supervision of Miss Poulin and Mr. Rawling. They visited McGill University and a museum. Later they had dinner at a French restaurant at which all pupils spoke only in French. More about this field trip next week.

Ste. Agnes

Congregational Supper Planned

STE. AGNES — A baked ham supper will be held in the Church Hall of Zion United on Saturday evening, Nov. 21st at 8.15 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Session and the Board of Managers who feel that it is good for congregational morale for church members to gather socially for the occasional evening.

An attractve menu is planned and ladies are asked to bring scalloped potatoes, salad or jello, rolls and either apple or pumpkn pie. The ham, generously donated by interested friends and the coffee, will be supplied.

The event, which is absolutely free of charge, is under the co-chairmanship of Clerk of the Session, Mr. Fred Armstrong and Senior Session member, Mr. Wesley Thomson.

Entertainment will be provided by a Martintown Quintet, who will present a concert of sacred music.

The entire congregation is urged to attend, enjoy a good supper and a visit with old friends, as well as the musical entertainment which will round out what promises to be an altogether enjoyable evening.

On Sunday morning, Nov. 15th, during the regular worship service, Mr. Martin, assisted by the Sunday School Superintendent, Mr. Wm. C. McPherson presented certificates of promotion to Mary Jean Cameron, Linda Fraser, Dale Ferguson and Bill Fraser.

Congratulations

Last week, George Sutton and his brother Ernie were both fortunate in getting a deer. They had been camping on Covey Hill for the past week and had followed several leads which finally lead to success. George's deer was a ten-pointer, and dressed at 215 pounds.

Remembrance Day Service

A special Remembrance Day Service was held in Zion Church on Sunday morning, November 8th.

"O Canada" was sung, followed by a minute's silence, followed by "The Queen."

Mr. Martin's address was in memoriam of sons, brothers, husbands and fathers who have given their lives in two world wars. He stressed the folly and stupidity of war, and likened the sacrifice of the many to that of Jesus Christ who gave His life for the salvation of the whole world.

The Cross of Poppies was in place on the Communion Table and the Choir chose as their anthem, "O Valiant Hearts."

VALLEYFIELD

Get well wishes are extended to Mrs. M. Kirby who has just returned home from the Huntingdon County Hospital. She is staying with her son, Mr. Leslie Kirby, at his restaurant in Port Lewis. Mrs. Kirby would welcome visits from her many friends.

Get well wishes are extended to Mr. Clarence Shaw who is convalescing in the Rosemount Convalescent Hospital, 5995 Rosemount, 11th. Ave. visits from friends would be very much appreciated.

Rockburn

Sorry to learn that Mr. George Lindsay who has been staying with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Mack Helm, Huntingdon, is again a patient in the Huntingdon County Hospital. His many friends hope for an improvement in his health.

The many friends of Mrs. George Lindsay will be glad to know she is well enough to be moved to the Bourassa Home in Ormstown where it may be more convenient for friends and relatives to visit her. All hope she will be much improved in the near future.

We are pleased to know Miss Gloria Arthur, who was a patient in the Barrie Memorial Hospital, is home and attending school again after her recent accident.

Mr. Jeffrey Cook, Burke, N.Y. is spending a few days with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Maither.

Miss Margaret Parent of Montreal was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Arthur. Other visitors at the same home were Mr. L. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Morgan and son David and Mr. George Prosser, all of Montreal.

Ormstown High School Notes

(By Nancylyn Cullen)

Last Monday, Miss Lorraine How of the Junior Red Cross talked to the students on the importance of the work in schools such as ours, she especially praised grade four for its successful wheeler dealer campaign.

The staff was entertained on Tuesday afternoon by the girls of Grade ten. It was a trying day for the girls but we have reason to believe that the teachers were not aware of our nervous state.

Wednesday was Remembrance Day, with the Student Council in charge of the Assembly. We were inspired by Rev. Mr. Loree's address, "For I am come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly."

The year book committee is in a dither, an organized one though. The advertising manager is busy writing receipts and straightening out his data.

On Friday the basketball teams competed with Hemmingford. The Senior girls came through with flying colors once more, score 38 - 15, with Rita Barrington, Judy Aldridge, Diane McCartney, Skirley Anderson, Susan Bennet and Barara Viscussi scoring. The boys are still lagging but with a closer gap, they lost their game 33 - 25.

This is Young Canada's Book Week, would that we had more time to read all the books we would like to.

The following are the Honour Lists for the First Term Examinations, (Grades 3-6, 85% and over; Grades 7-11, 80% and over).

Grade Three: Wendy Kelen 92.5; Karen Smith 91.8; Louise Bourassa 90.5; Debbie McCaig 90; Barbara Story 89.8; Robert Loree 89.6; Sharon McWhnnie 89.0; Stephen Barrington 88.8; Cathy Coulombe 88.8; Aubrey MacDougall 88.5;

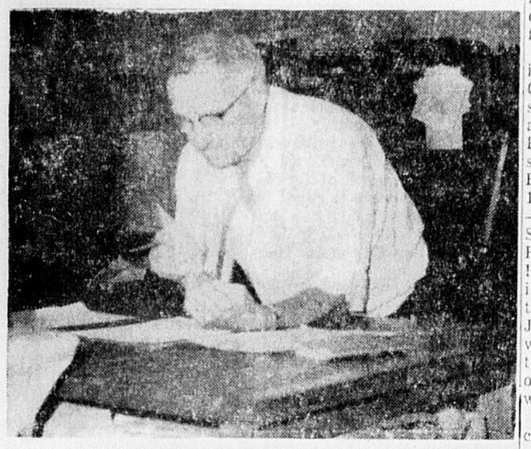
HERVE TESSIER,
Secretary-Treasurer

THIS and THAT in TOWN ...

Elsewhere in this issue our stano, Ethel White, pays tribute in her inimitable type of verse to our plant foreman, Albert A. Antoine, who today (Wednesday) celebrates his seventieth birthday.

'Ab' as he is known to salesmen to the printing trade and a wide number of printers and publishers, has been with The Gleaner forty-three years. When Robert Sellar, founder of The Gleaner, died in 1919 the reins of responsibility passed to his oldest son, Leslie. Les hired Ab to work for him in 1921. Previous to that, Ab worked at Art Hunter's (The Family Store), at Charlie Lamb's newsstand (where one could buy any and all types of newspapers and magazines as well as a soft drink, candy, sporting goods, fresh fruit and vegetables, children's toys, etc.) and at Arthur A. Lunan's garage which is now The Masonic Temple.



Leslie Sellar's premature death caused by illness contracted in the trenches during the First World War saw The Gleaner (with Ab) come under the ownership of Watson Sellar, the founder's second son. Adam Sellar was then working for the McLean's Publishing Company in Toronto. The latter returned to The Gleaner to help Watson, and the two brothers got along admirably with the fiery young printer's devil hired by Leslie.

A couple of years before Watson (now Dr. Watson Sellar of Ottawa) left The Gleaner to become secretary to the late parliamentarian Robb, Watson and Adam decided to groom Ab Antoine for the position of plant foreman at The Gleaner. Shortly after Watson left the printing and publishing business in 1925, Albert Antoine became The Gleaner foreman. To this day, he has maintained that position.

Ab is indispensable in The Gleaner printery. The old saying that anyone can be replaced would have its severest test if Ab ever left The Gleaner family. He can put his hands on things in emergencies that nobody else knows exists talk with authority about size, weight and quality of paper stock that a young salesman is trying to sell, the latter only knowing what he has been told to say to a customer while Ab has been using and handling the stock since before the salesman ever saw the light of day; repair any machine in the plant; size up a prospective employee; set type, run presses, cut paper, make up advts., compose an article ... anything, in short, that is required.

Some people reading this will remember another side of the man. Employees, and there were some during the 40 years Ab has been foreman, who weren't quite loyal, or who were underhanded in any way, might get off with a stiff lecture from Adam Sellar, but Ab made sure they didn't forget ... he'd tongue-lash and ride the employee until the luckless fellow would leave and Ab would hire replacement. Ab still maintains the dubious honor of being able to cuss longer, louder than anyone else in town if he deems the occasion called for it.

Ab possesses a deep sense of loyalty to The Gleaner, probably because he is more a part of it than any of the rest of us. He is truly one person who believes the customer is always right: 'Follow the customer's copy, even it is goes out the window', Ab tells apprentices. There's no crash printing at The Gleaner simply because Ab won't stand for it. He treats each job as an individual order and demands that it be done as well as it can be. Doesn't he ever make mistakes, one might ask ... Yes, who doesn't, but he'll rectify them, not hide them.

Ab lost a close personal friend when Adam Sellar passed away. "It'll be three years next week since 'the boss' died", Ab remarked on Monday. After working four decades together, they were alike in many ways. Another close friend is Art Hampson, head compositor here at The Gleaner. Art joined the staff a couple of years before Ab and it's really something to reminisce about 'the days in the old shop' (in January 1940 The Gleaner moved into its present home, previously it was housed in the former Walter Brown block on Chateauguay St.)

"I started at twenty cents an hour," Ab mused recently. Well, times have changed and if he's getting a dozen times that now, there's nobody we'd rather see getting it.

The Royal Winter Fair started Friday ... many Chateauguay Valley farmers will be attending as usual.

The Huntingdon Curling Club opens this Saturday evening. Pres. Thos. Brooks tells us the ice looks good and the lines are being painted in today. The execs hope all members will turn out for the opening and bring along some prospective members ... everybody welcome.

From curling, back to golf: In Hemmingford, we understand work on the course has terminated for the season. All tees, fairways and greens have been completed ready for play as soon as spring rolls around ... and they're in beautiful condition. A committtee is to be organized within the next few days relative to deciding on a plan for the clubhouse to commence early in the spring, too. Applications for membership are being accepted and news pertaining to this will be published in your Gleaner soon.

Remembrance Day services were held in Ormstown on Sunday ... a good turnout and an impressive series of events.

Steel girders were placed in the new building going up on the south side of Chateauguay St. in Huntingdon this week. Particulars are hard to come by, but judging from the amount of steel, it will be more than a two-storey building.

Canadian Hydronics Council states that miniaturization and compactness is scoring an immediate impact in Canadian homes. Large, bulky refrigerators have given way to smaller units with more capacity than their predecessors ... the stuffiness is being removed from the living room by slimmer and sleeker furniture styles ... and, radios and television sets have become so small they can actually become lost in the house! So be it, but unfortunately we don't all have the newest in homes or appliances.

And in Ormstown we see the boards are up for at least a couple of outdoor skating rinks. At Cazaville and Howick, too.

Those speedy and noisy motorized bob-sleds, call them by whatever trade name you prefer, are making quite a few people stop and think. We predict they'll be as popular and common as outboards and lawnmowers in a couple of years.

DON'T FORGET THE ROTARY BINGO TONIGHT (WEDNESDAY) ... YOU MAY WIN THAT CAR. Better be at Notre Dame School at 8 p.m.

Noticeable amount of snow Tuesday a.m., but it didn't last long. The week-end rain was needed ... more is, if the shortage of water isn't to become acute. If we can believe Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa, the approaching winter won't be bad.

Archie (Texaco) Brunette and some friends are hunting in the Manawaki district this week ... we'll wait to see what luck they have before giving all the names. Good luck, fellows.

See the order blank for Pope of the Chateauguay and Sellar History elsewhere. Ideal Christmas gifts as well as good reading for your own library.

Now here's something: yesterday a.m. one of our compositors came to work with his head wrapped in layers of white bandage. At first we thought he was playing swami or had joined some white capped secret cult. But no, just something simple ... he and his wife were arguing and she lost her head and hit him with a well aimed dinner plate. Nothing spectacular, just 14 stitches at the County Hospital.

And there's' an agitation for railway passenger cars on the NYC line as far as Valleyfield (from Montreal). Shouldn't they come as far as Huntingdon?

Not that there's ever been friction, but if ever there's been a desire for unity among Roman Catholics and Protestants in Huntingdon, there is now. After reading Monseigneur David's views about either a common school for both, or at least sharing some facilities for separate schools, people are loud in their words of support and approval. If it isn't too late, can't somethng concrete be done? None of us want exhorbitant taxation ... just the best for both for the least. Don't forget, either, that with French and English children being together from the first day of school until graduation, they would realize there is no difference among us ...

Something about "The Luck of the Irish" — Allister Kelly was leaving Tuesday morning for Belleville, Ont., where he has been transferred by the Bell Telephone Company, decided he'd take the wife and friends to play Bingo the last night he was here. He came home $120. richer.

U.C.W. MEETING

Unit 1, Mrs. D. A. Fraser, Press Correspondent

Unit 1 of the Huntingdon United Church Women held their November meeting in the Church Parlour on Wednesday afternoon, November 11th, with 18 members in attendance.

Mrs. G. McHardy, Leader, opened the meeting fittingly on Remembrance Day by reading a poem entitled "In Flanders Fields" by Col. John MacRae, Canadian Medical Officer and a cousin of the late Mrs Howard Clouston of Huntingdon. Prayer by Mrs. McHardy followed.

Minutes of the October meeting were read by Mrs. J. McCoy and accepted. The treasurer's report by Mrs. C. Reid and correspondence by Miss E. Elder were given. Representatives to attend a church Board Meeting on November 17th were appointed, namely: — Mrs. C. Reid and Mrs. R. Stephens. On November 18th, Rev. and Mrs. Cecil Royle of Hudson Heights will give an illustrated talk, about a recent trip to the Holy Land, in St. John's Anglican Church, to which an invitation was extended. Unit 1 being in charge of the Tea at the bazaar plans were made concerning same.

Mrs. G. W. Thompson, in conducting the Study Period, read a portion from the Bible in the 16th chapter of Acts, followed by a reading from the Study Book, entitled 'God and His Purpose', after which questions were given to four different groups for study and discussion. Findings were reported on reassembling.

The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn and prayer. Mrs. John Rennie and Mrs. Wallace Rennie served refreshments during the social hour. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Beal in acceptance of her kind invitation.

Hemmingford

By Mrs. J. L'Esperance

Mrs. Arthur Peacock has just returned from a pleasant week's holiday at Springfield, Mass. Her nephew, Mr. George Peacock, motored up and persuaded her to return and then drove her back on her return.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ross McNaughton on the arrival of a baby daughter Saturday, November 7th Mother and baby are both well.

A little correction. When the members of the Cercle de Fermieres in Hemmingford learned that Dale McNaughton was able to return home, that a hospital bed was needed and that the W.I. bed was still in use by Mrs. Sherrington, they immediately offered their bed and Mr. and Mrs. McNaughton were pleased to accept their offer and it is this bed which Dale is now using, fitted up with over-head pulleys to make moving around a little easier. So the little misunderstanding is cleared up and the record is straight. These two hospital beds which Mr. Somerville gave, one to each Branch, some years ago, have seen quite some use in our community. What a blessing it is to have such specialized articles on hand immediately they are needed.

By Mrs. W. J. McKay

Congratulations to Mrs. Wm. Marlin, who celebrated her 89th birthday on Saturday, Nov. 7th at the Lacasse Nursing Home in Huntingdon. Mrs. Marlin we are pleased to say, is enjoying good health, and was visited by all the members of her immediate family and many friends on this glad occasion.

Mr. Sam McVey of Montreal made a business trip to Hemmingford on the week-end and called on old friends.

The Annual Christmas Bazaar of St. Luke's Anglican Church took place on Saturday, Nov. 14th., with many ladies as usual, enjoying the refreshments and afternoon tea as well as patronizing the different booths which all offered great variety.

Financially, it was successful. We might add that the hall looked attractive. A new paint job was recently completed.

ORDO

EGLISE ST-JOSEPH — HUNTINGDON

22 NOVEMBRE — 1964 — NOVEMBER 29

Liturgie — Le ciel et la terre passeront mais mes paroles ne passeront pas. Chaque messe porte en elle un message d'éternité. A la messe, nous affirmons la certitude de la victoire finale, malgré nos défaites individuelles, nos fautes, nos lâchetés. Jésus n'est pas mort pour un seul; il est mort pour l'ensemble des hommes, et s'il a fondé l'Eglise, c'est afin que l'Eglise fasse connaitre au monde la Bonne Nouvelle du salut et l'exprime dans sa liturgie. Lorsque nous participons à la liturgie d'une manière active et consciente, comprenant mieux la Bible et l'Evangile, nous voulons répondre à la parole de Dieu et l'introduire dans nos vies, évitant cette coupure entre le religion et l'existence.

Liturgy — Teen-Ager — Neither child nor adult — No longer a child, but not yet an adult — so we may describe someone who is in his or her teens. The process of becoming an adult is a long and slow one — one in which the teen-ager walks along the street, and inches his way from one side to the other, from childhood to adulthood, all the while walking along the road of life. Not having adjusted to this new way of life, the teen-ager is often bewildered and confused. This is why so many people have a distorted picture about to-day's teen-ager.

A Rudderless Ship of State

By R. T. Reiter

CANADIANS are increasingly becoming aware of the shortcomings of our traditional political parties The fractionization of the two major political parties into the present 5-party parliament indicates the growing political maturity of Canadians who seem to be no longer satisfied with empty and meaningless election slogans.

What, then, caused this transition from a two-party system to our present multi-party parliament?

As early as 1899, at the outset of the Boer War, relationships within the two traditional parties had become strained. The consciption crisis of 1917 will forever remind the Liberal Party of the perils of political unity.

But it was the period following the 1921 elections which spelled the end of an era. From that year on until 1945, 1705 seats were contested in federal elections. Of these the Conservatives won 542 with a popular vote of 32% — the Liberals won 906 with 53% of the popular support, while 257 seats were won by third parties.

We also find that within this period, third-party support fluctuated, from a high of 68 votes in 1921 to a low of 18 seats in 1940. The two old parties seem to have received the best support during time of prosperity and tranquility, when the general electorate is reasonably placid and the least support in times of crisis, when voters are more discriminating.

In 1963 over 25% of the popular vote went to third parties — more than 1 in every 4 Canadians clearly expressed his dissasisfaction with the existing policies of the two old parties.

Politicians of the two traditional parties would do well to review the findings of the Rowell-Sirois Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations. While the Commission's findings were based on a study of socio-economic conditions following World War 1, they are at the same time discerningly prophetic. "A society which prides itself on equality of opportunity found itself being divided into classes ... The denial that the national policies of the two old parties furthered common national interests was a new political doctrine."

These conclusions are as valid today as they were in the 1930's only more acutely so.

Equal opportunities are today being demanded by those Canadians who, in the past, had been overlooked by the controllers of Bay and St. James Street.

I am not only referring to certain ethnic minorities in Quebec, but, to an even greater extent, to Western Canadians, who, in the words of the eminent Prof. F. Underhill, "form in effect Her Majesty's Loyal Canadian Opposition." He referred of course, to the Socred governments Alberta and B.C. as well as to the late N.D.P. government of Saskatchewan.

Up until 1920 both old parties had been engaged in the pursuit of national expansionist policies, which served the needs of the times. The completion of the C.P.R. and the ensuing settlement program, followed by the economic exploitation of the West, enabled the old parties to focus national attention on these achievements.

However, as stated in the Rowell-Sirois Report, "by the 1920's these historic national policies had been accomplished. The balance at which Mr. King aimed was purely a static one."

Neither party has been able to cope successfully wth the changing social, economic and political conditions. The Conservative Party is gradually passing out of existence and the Liberal Party has not yet discovered its new course.

It is this uncertainty which provides the cause for our concern. Is our parliament a floundering, rudderless ship? Recent Hansard records seem to indicate this.

Is the recent critical by-election at Waterloo an indication of a further move toward third parties? The answer lies in our next general election. I think it does.

Your Support For Nurses' Fund Urged

THE Huntingdon Rotary Club is asking for everyone to support its Nurses' Training Fund and for which this appeal is a last call. Tonight, there will be a bingo held at the Notre Dame School Hall and also the drawing for the car which has been on display at many points around Huntingdon for the past few months. Everyone must have seen it and knows what it is for. A number have purchased tickets in connection with it, but still the fund is short and in need of more support.

For the past number of years, The Huntingdon Rotary Club has sponsored this Nurse Training Fund and it has been quite successful over the years. However, this year, for some reason it has been going much slower and the drawing for the car had to be postponed in order for sales to be extended. It is hoped that tonight, many more people will subscribe to the cause and so once more the Club will be able to write success to the undertaking.

It takes at least one thousand dollars for each girl to start off on her nursing course and it is necessary for this much at least to be raised each year. If more than one girl is eligible to take the course, then double the amount is needed. It is thus easy to be seen that considerable funds must be on hand to meet the demand that may be made. While perhaps this call may be a little belated, it is hoped that it will have a last minute effect on the people of the community to subscribe a few more dollars for the fund.

Each girl that is successful in taking the course, means that our local hospital will be assured of nursing staff on the completion of the course three years hence.

We cannot stress too strongly that your support of the very worth-while project is really needed at this time. We therefore urge everyone to make a point of attending the bingo tonight. In this way they will have an evening's pleasure, have a chance of winning a very nice car and helping the Club to meet its aim to keep up the Nurse Training plan. This in turn helps the Huntingdon County Hospital and the entire community.

The Huntingdon Rotary Club is made up of local men trying to give service to the community and the Club has a very long record of service that it has rendered in many different ways. It will continue to give this service, but it does need your help — How About It?

Recent Rainfall Should Help

A very bleak picture was painted in a recent feature article published in a Montreal Daily Newspaper as to the drought being experienced in Huntingdon by farmers of the community.

Last summer was very dry and in consequence wells have run dry on a number of farms and also small streams and ponds have dried up. This is serious for this area, being in the dairy farming business, for water is quite necessary to keep the animals healthy, keep pastures rich and producing and to keep up a good hay crop. The rain which came over the week-end, while perhaps a bit late, may have a beneficial effect however. If we could have more of it before the weather gets too cold, it could be a help in replenishing the dry wells. Once the ground becomes really frozen, there will not be much help until spring and a thaw. Then we shall need a good many spring rains to help the parched earth and a whole lot of snow during the winter months as well.

Meantime the cattle will have to be watered and the farm home will also need a supply of water. It could mean a lot of water hauling this winter for a number of farmers in the area. Fortunately this can be done, although it means more work for those who have a shortage of water, or none at all. It may mean that there will be a lot of ice cutting done this winter and using this to keep up the water supply.

It should be a lesson in water conservation however and something should be done to see that more water is available for the future.

Speak French And Be Slapped

Do you think those separatists in Quebec might shut up about the whole thing if all the rest of us learned to speak French fluently enough to give them a good cussing out in their native tongue?

If this is a solution, let's get cracking. But I don't think it can be accomplished under our present system of learning the language. We are getting a great many teachers of French these days who can actually speak the language. But the system prevents them from passing it along to others.

As a prominent educator said the other day, "We take kids from immigrant families who speak poor English. We teach them French badly, encourage them to forget their native tongue, whatever it is, and wind up with youngsters who are illiterate in three languages."

I know from experience. My mother had to go to a French-speaking school as a child. She learned the language with ease all children have in grasping a tongue. All her life she could rattle it off like a habitant.

On the other hand, I studied French for five years in high school and four years in University. Nine years. Enough time, you'd think, to learn to speak French backwards. And that is exactly how I speak it.

Perhaps the worst feature of the teaching of French in this country is the false confidence it engenders after exposure to a few years of it. You can spiel off a couple of sentences without stumbling, and you begin to think you're a regular Maurice Chevalier.

I remember one time in Brussells. My young brother was with me. The only French he knew was crude, useless stuff like, "Bebe, je t'aime" and "Voulez-vous de bully-beef ou des nylons?"

In contrast, I had a solid grounding of high school French, and had been living on the continent for a couple of months, speaking the real thing.

So we met this young lady and her friend. She was belle, but her pal was beaucoup. This was my chance. In my impeccable Grade 12 French, I stepped up to the doll and informed her of her ravishing beauty, her ineffable form, and her distinguished intelligence. She listened courteously, turned to her friend, and shrugged hugely. My brother said, "Come on, bebe", and away they marched arm in arm. I was left to follow with the fat one.

A similar experience caused me to forswear French for life. It occurred in Lille, France, soon after the city had been liberated from the Germans.

It happened in a night club. The locals were very happy about liberation and the troops were very happy about the locals. Everyone was dancing with the French girls, even their French boy friends were beaming.

I spotted a lulu, dark, charming, intelligent enough to appreciate the fact that I, almost alone among the invaders, spoke fluent French. As I approached the table, she smiled a welcome, and her escort, a handsome French lad, jumped up, grinned, and shook hands.

So, in my flawless French, I asked her for a dance. At least I'll swear that's what I asked her. She turned white and clamped my face. Her boy friend simultaneously turned red and tried to kick me in the groin.

I still don't know what I said to her, but I've never taken a chance since. On the rare occasions, nowadays, when I have enough money to eat in a place where the menu is in French, I study it carefully for ten minutes or so, then inform the waiter, in pure Canadian English, that I'll have the roast beef. There's always Rosbif.

The only solution is to teach our kids French when they're learning to speak English. That way, little boys will avoid having their faces slapped for no earthly reason. And little girls will learn to say "Non" and "Oui" and "Peut-être" in two languages.

"COUNTRY NOTEBOOK"

BY WALKER RILEY

"Country Notebook" by Mr. Walker Riley, Agricultural Extension Specialist with Macdonald College, appears in The Gleaner with this edition. The column will be a weekly feature which we trust will be of interest to all in the Chateauguay Valley.

This past week, I was lucky to be on an agricultural tour of the World's Fair Site popping up in the middle of the St. Lawrence River. I came away with two strong impressions: first it is a tremendously ambitious project, and, second, there will be a lot of wet paint around when Expo '67 opens its doors 28 months from now.

The building of the two islands in the river, and the new pier on the Montreal waterfront is just about complete. Now they are working on the new bridge and the subway which will connect to the city and to the south shore.

In between the two islands, the water has been dammed back and the river pumped dry. As our bus wallowed between mountains of fill, we were able to look 50 feet down into the subway trench cut into the bed rock of the river bottom.

Gabriel Renaud, the agricultural co-ordinator, and his assistant, Mrs. Richards, brought us up to date on plans to present Canadian agriculture to the world. This industry will now occupy a nine-acre site on Mackay Pier, and not, as first planned, have a place on the islands. The new location does offer the advantage of more room and railroad access for bringing in livestock exhibits.

A national advisory committee has been recently formed with 18 members from all branches of the agricultural industry. For instance, there is Jim Bentley, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture; Mr. MacLeod, a prominent beef farmer in New Brunswick; Dr. Steppler, president of the Agricultural Institute of Canada; Bill Watson, general-manager of the Royal Winter Fair.

The next step is to create an organization which will take the site, the plans, and the ideas and put them all together for a real show-piece of Canadian agriculture.

Mr. Renaud, just back from Europe, reports that the agricultural pavilions at Brussels and at Lucerne, Switzerland, were the crowd-stoppers at those exhibitions. In both cases, they were centred around living models of farms, research stations and processing plants. Breed organizations took turns in supplying their best for the displays. Children would stand an hour at a time watching baby chicks hatch in the incubators. Apples would blossom, grow and ripen in the demonstration orchard. The exhibits changed from day to day and season to season.

Systemic insecticides for warble grubs in the backs of cattle have been receiving a lot of publicity lately. I was asking Dr. Harold Gibbs about them.

Dr. Gibbs thinks that, for dairy herds, the old stand-by which we have used for years, Rotenone, is still the most practical and the safest. This is the brown powder which you mix with water and scrub into the back of the animal in March or April when the lumps have developed under the skin. This treatment may not help the animal much this year, but it will prevent an outbreak next summer of the miserable little fly which can stampede a herd with their tails over their back.

The new systemics are very effective, but they must be used with great caution. Because they may appear in the meat or milk, they are subject to strict regulation. And they could under some conditions, sicken the animal.

A systemic insecticide is either poured on or sprayed on the animal to be absorbed through the skin or mixed with the food to be absorbed internally. It kills the larvae before they have had a chance to migrate to the back of the animal. Treatment is made between the end of the fly season and the last of November.

The use of systemic insecticides is practically limited, therefore, to beef cattle not being finished for market and to yearling dairy animals. These materials also control lice. Co-Ral, Ronnel and Ruelene are three which have been registered for use in Canada.

Dance Halls Banned

All dance halls and grills within the limits of the City of Salaberry of Valleyfield will not be permitted to operate in the future, following a By-law which was read for the first time at the regular session of the Valleyfield Council on Wednesday evening.

Trout River Physician

Dr. Carter J. Crippen of Trout River who was 87 years old on May 24 is probably the only physician who actually lives in two countries under one roof. The line runs diagonally through the Crippen home, entering the house in a corner of the kitchen and leaving it at the northeastern corner of the parlour. One of the porches of the house is on the south side and is in the United States. Another porch on the east side, is in Canada. When Dr. Crippen leaves his garage where his car is parked in New York State, and drives to the main highway down the driveway he must enter a wee bit of Canada before he can cross the border back into the United States.

For 65 years Dr. Crippen has been a resident of Trout River and has been practising medicine until about two years ago.

Peanuts Grown

Mr. Ross Goldie, Franklin Centre, planted two short rows of peanuts this past spring. It turned out to be a great success as from a few plants he had about ten quarts of peanuts this fall.

New Telephones Installed

The new telephones of the dynamo type have been installed in the homes of the subscribers of the Bell Telephone Co. in St. Louis de Gonzague. The numbers have all been changed on the rural lines. There are only four parties on each side of the line, and listening in is an impossibility. We are hoping for more and efficient service now.

Letter To The Editor

Editor Gleaner,

Here is a word about what I think of the mixed regional schools which are a main topic these days. I think it is an excellent idea. To live in harmony, we must be united, and we should start doing this at school.

Provincial Capital Report

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Legislature Committee on the Constitution has a few days off this week to mull over the results of its first public hearings since its formation in the spring of 1963.

A grab-bag lot of proposals was put before the committee last week, none of them really new.

Some students said the only answer is separation, the Montreal St. Jean Baptiste Society reiterated its "Associated states" concern, and a couple of teachers' groups were heard. So was the Communist Party.

The students, from Ste. Marie Seminary, Shawinigan, said they believed in Quebec's separation "for cultural reasons".

The leader of the group, Jacques Pepin, conceded that if it could be shown that Quebec would suffer economically in any separation from Canada he might change his mind.

He was replying to a question from Education Minister Paul Gerin Lajoie and admitted economics had not been considered by the student association in its brief.

The Montreal St. Jean Baptiste Society presented a brief it made public last spring calling for creation of two associated states, one representing Quebec and the other the rest of Canada.

Francois-Albert Angers, a Montreal economist, said there would be nothing to fear as far as a drop in Quebec's standard of living is concerned should Quebec separate.

He said, in reply to questions from Resources Minister Rene Levesque, Canada benefits more from Quebec than Quebec does from Canada.

Paul Dozois, Union Nationale member for Montreal St. James, suggested the Montreal St. Jean Baptiste members "are really Separatists but wish to avoid the evil of a separation by recommending formation of associate states."

Not so, replied Paul-Emile Robert, society president. The group sees separatism as "something negative" and is seeking "positive solutions."

A measure of support for the society's position came from a teacher group.

The Canadian Federal System should be turned into a confederal one, grouping two or more "quasi-sovereign" states, said the professional Association of Lay Classical College Teachers of the Province of Quebec.

A Protestant teachers' group said there must be a strong control government and called for a federal office that would co-ordinate some aspects of the provincial education programs.

Mr. Dozois suggested this would create more problems than it would solve.

The Communist Party turned up before the committee and said Quebec should have the right to self-determination, which would include the legal right to separate from Canada.

Samuel Walsh, president of the Quebec committee of the party, said the associate state idea would be close to what the communist Party would consider best for Canadians.

A Montreal newspaper man was rebuked by Mr. Gerin-Lajoie for saying he "lifted his hat" to the young men of the FLQ and the ALQ. Paul Rochon, of Montreal-Matin, said that if the government moves too slowly, there could be violence.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie called him to order and said:

"This committee is not sitting to hear from far or near approval of acts of violence. We are here to work peacefully and to envisage a reshaping of the constitution".

The committee's job is to find out what Quebec wants in any constitutional changes made in Canada. It is non-partisan, composed of both Government and Opposition members, including one English-speaking member of the Assembly, Glen Brown, Liberal from Brome.

It is assisted by co-secretaries from the Government and from the Opposition Leader's staff and has recruited a number of experts to make specialized studies, mainly economical and political, for it.

Report From Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The House of Commons worked only four days last week, but may be the day off for Remembrance Day provided an incentive for action.

Whatever the reason, it was an active week, starting right off Monday night when the Liberal Government introduced a complex, 125-section third version of the Canada Pension Plan.

The same night, New Democratic party leader Tommy Douglas gained a pleasant surprise when NDP candidate Max Saltsman won the traditionally Conservative Waterloo South riding in Ontario, in one of two federal by-elections.

The Liberals, who ran third in the three-way race, had some consolation with their victory in New Brunswick's Westmorland riding where Margaret Rideout became the first woman ever elected to Parliament in that Province. She won the seat vacated by the death of her husband.

Things kept moving along Tuesday, with the government announcing increases in three classes of veterans pensions. The House had Wednesday off for Remembrance Day, but was hard at work again Thursday with heartening progress on the redistribution question.

The pension plan bill got first reading Monday, and will go to a joint Commons-Senate committee for detailed study after second reading when the principle of the plan is considered.

If the bill does get through both the Commons and Senate, it will take effect in 1966 and apply everywhere but Quebec, where a similar provincial plan will be in effect, or any other province that adopts similar provincial legislation.

The federal plan will be compulsory for an estimated 5,000,000 Canadians over 18 earning more than $600 a year. Full benefits will not start until 1976, although some reduced benefits will be available in the first 10 years.

Bill Approved in Principle

With a second reading, the House approved in principle the new redistribution of parliamentary seats bill.

The last touchy question to be settled was the tolerance to be allowed between the size of urban and rural constituencies. The government had suggested 20 per cent but ended up accepting an amendment sponsored by Eldon Woollams (PC—Bow River) making 25 per cent the maximum difference in population that one riding can have over another.

The biggest fight came earlier over the makeup of the 10 commissions — one for each province which will do the constituency-by-constituency carving up that will mean the loss of some existing rural riding in favor of multiplying the number of seats in areas of dense urban population.

But the parties couldn't get together and agree on who should appoint members to the four-man commissions.

The original proposal that the prime minister and leader of the opposition would each name one member to each commission, with a chairman named by the chief justice of each province has been rejected by the three minor parties. Representation Commissioner Nelson Castonguay would be the fourth member of all commissions.

Transport Minister Pickersgill suggested that the Speaker of the Commons name two members, with the chief justice providing a chairman. This was supported by the Conservatives, but Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) refused to accept the plan.

Mr. Knowles also objected to Mr. Pickersgill's proposal that the minor parties appoint witnesses to attend meetings of the provincial commissions, and suggested that all three commissioners be appointed by the chief justices. But this raised objections from the Conservatives.

Mr. Pickersgill's amendment that the Speaker name two commissioners was finally passed by a standing vote of 92 to 11, despite opposition from the NDP.

The two by-election results caused considerable confusion in Ottawa between the Liberal and Conservative parties. Liberal officials said after the result was announced that they had not expected to finish higher than second in Waterloo South, and pointed to their New Brunswick triumph where Mrs. Rideout increased her late husband's plurality.

Conservatives blamed their loss of the Waterloo South riding to a swing by Liberals voters, although they conceded also the Conservatives had lost supporters to the NDP.

Despite the joy in NDP circles, their win is not interpreted as a general trend. The party put on one of its most intensive campaigns in the riding and fought the election mainly on local issues.

By contrast, their candidate finished a poor third in Westmorland, attracting only 2,596 voters compared with Mrs. Rideout's 20,310 and 14,017 for the Conservative candidate.

The pension increases to veterans, expected to cost the government another $33,750,000 a year, will be retroactive to Sept. 1, 1964, and cover veterans receiving benefits under the Pension Act, The War Veterans Allowance Act, and The Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act.

War Disability pensions will be increased by about 10 per cent, as will war veterans allowances. Allowances for chronically ill veterans will also rise, with a new maximum of $3,000 a year, up from $1,800. This is designed to permit these veterans to pay for such services as nursing attendants.

Pensions' Regular Review

Veterans Minister Teillet said there will be similar increases to persons receiving civilian war pensions and allowances, but gave no specific details in his Commons announcement.

Prime Minister Pearson announced Thursday that pensions would be reviewed every two years in the future. He gave this information to the Commons after a Remembrance Day meeting with officials of the Royal Canadian Legion in Ottawa.

The Unanswered Question — Flag?

But throughout the week, there was one question still unanswered: What happens to the flag debate now?

There have been suggestions that Mr. Pearson would postpone debate if he was assured of getting other legislation through, although he may still insist that a time limit be set for further flag debate before taking any decision.

He still would like to keep his promise of "a flag by Christmas," and if recent signs of disagreement in Conservative ranks are any indication, he would probably meet stiff, but reduced opposition from English-speaking Conservatives, although some of this group have shown signs of drifting away from Mr. Diefenbaker's insistence on keeping the Red Ensign.

Notre Dame High News Roundup

By Douglas McKenna

Parents sometimes discuss difficulties encountered by today's youngsters and frequently point out that our boys and girls seem to lack incentive and genuine interest in all those activities labelled "SCHOOL".

This writer had an interesting theory that said parents had never seen the children in school doing a thorough job of 'prepping' for term exams or helping to prepare for an approaching dance or other social fiesta.

This writer traditionally eyed the approaching season with anticipation and hope. Until last Friday evening, that is. Then the parents' notion that today's youngsters are undependable struck home forcibly.

When, last week, this writer informed hockey prospects that a movie entitled: "How to Play Hockey", was to be shown on Friday — a large turnout was expected since the said film had been so much in demand in the larger cities throughout Canada. Instead, two propective school team members showed up, plus a handful of interested parents.

The echoes of "we have no sports activities in school", are fresh in my memory. The local school board has made a rink available, hockey sticks are furnished by the team, sweaters have been purchased and the boys have nothing more to ask. Their apathy has induced the notion that some how they do not want a hockey team, this year. This may be due to home influence, that is, the parents may be unwilling to see their boys participate in a body-contact sport for fear of injuries, or, for fear that said activities will deter the boys from studying.

These last fears may be easily dispelled since all hockey practice sessions are to be held during the noon hour, recess period, and games take place after school hours and mostly on Saturday.

Parents are invited to write in their opinion as to whether or not they favor a school hockey team, this year. This alone will be deciding factor as to whether the school will be represented.

In volleyball, 4th high girls overwhelmed 3rd high while the male teachers' team emerged victorious in a close contest with 3rd high boys (French school). The latter team tied 4th high (English) on Friday.

Annual Graduation Exercises At Howick High School

By Mrs. Crawford.

HOWICK — The graduates of Howick High School, eight young ladies, were the centre of attraction at the graduation exercises and dance one Friday evening Nov. 6. Dressed in white, with corsages of red roses, they looked charming but we know they worked hard to graduate and have other and more lasting qualities than a pretty face. Carol Carson as Valedictorian spoke modestly but with rare understanding for one so young, of what life means. In closing she said, "The world is always advancing and so must we always advance with it. Only in this way can we be of true service to this great country of ours, and only in this way can we determine whether our High School years have been an unqualified success."

Immediately following the Graduation Exercises a reception was held in the cafeteria, when everyone had an opportunity to speak to the graduates as they stood in the reception line.

The cafeteria wore a festive air, tables with flowers and gleaming silver tea and coffee services, young ladies passing trays of tempting and delicious sandwiches and squares.

Those who poured were: Mrs. Ed Elliot, Mrs. Wallace Gruer, Mrs. Murray Templeton, Mrs. Floyd Gruer, Mrs. Allister Rorison and Mrs. Mitchell Ness.

Mrs. Harold Robertson was in charge of the reception. Ann Reddick convened the committee in charge of refreshments. Doreen Reddick convened the social committee.

About 100 attended the reception. The late lunch attended by more than 200 was in charge of Mrs. Robertson and she was assisted by Mrs. E. Elliot, Mrs. F. Gruer, Mrs. W. Gruer, and Mrs. M. Templeton.

The graduates proceeded from the reception to the auditorium where a crowd of well over 200 guests gathered to enjoy a dance, with melodious music provided by The Buddies.

The auditorium was gaily decorated. On the rear stage wall, Enchanted Kingdom, was pictured. On the walls of the auditorium were Bo Peep and her Sheep, Pussy in the Well, Three Little Pigs, Jack Be Nimble, Miss Muffet, Humpty-Dumpty, Lolly Pop Trees and the graduates pictures with satin bows and certificates. A drop ceiling in blue and white with stars and balloons added to the enchantment.

Pam Miller and her committee assisted by Mr. Boyle are to be congratulated on the setting provided for the dance.

The Student Council presided over by Miss Diane McArthur, and the staff who assisted, provided a wonderful evening for the graduates and all who attended the Graduation Exercises and Dance.

Interested parents and friends were at the Graduation Exercises on Friday evening, which preceded the Dance: The Principal, Mr. John Murray invited the Rev. W. M. Brown to give the opening prayer. Mr. Murray's address followed in which he greeted the graduates, special guests, and the large numbers of adults and pupils in attendance. He paid special tribute to the pupils of the decorating committee for the attractive appearance of the auditorium, reviewed the academic year in the high school grades, and expressed his sincere appreciation to the staff, the school board, and the various organizations which had contributed so generously to the life of the school during 1963-64.

The following is an extract from Mr. Murray's comments directed especially to the members of the graduating class, but also to the large number of pupils participating in the programme.

"What a thrilling time to live in Quebec! How lucky you may be to be young and part of this evolution! You will notice that I said, "How lucky you May Be", and this brings me to my main point. Where will you fit into this development? I believe there are two factors to influence your involvement — the preparation you have received through your school years, the training you are taking or are prepared to take to fit you with a skill; and your personal philosophy with regard to your French brothers."

Mr. Robert E. Ness, Chairman of the school board gave a report. The tax sheet may be expected to arrive about the Christmas season. This remark may have been a warning to leave something in the sock, after Christmas shopping, to cover that inevitable bill!

Milton Reddick, Past-Pres. of the student council reported on the sport, social activities and finances for 1963-64.

Miss Diane McArthur Pres. of the student council presented Milton Reddick with a pin.

During the evening a delightful interlude was provided when a choir of senior girls sang two numbers under the direction of Mrs. J. Johnstone, with Mr. J. Johnstone at the piano. The first was a beautiful Bach number, Eternity; the second was the lively, "Come to the Fair".

Following the presentation of prizes the closing prayer was given by Mr. Wm. Hudson.

In answering the Roll Call the members gave suggestions for boosting the morale of patients, and these were varied. There was considerable discussion on the legacy from the Laura Rose Stephen Scholarship Fund, which will be $200.00 per annum for a Home Ec. student. A committee was appointed to handle this matter; Mrs. Gladys Reid, Miss F. Turner and Mrs. E. M. Wood in addition to the Pres. and Convener of Education.

Two letters were received from pupils who had received W.I. prizes for Public Speaking. Mrs. Chas. Reid had received a cheque for Salada symbols which had been turned in. Home Ec; A kitchen that is owned by 300,000 dairy producers. This modern test kitchen maintained by Canada's dairy farmers in Toronto is staffed by three graduate Home Economists, who make all sorts of tests on dairy products and make their findings available to the public.

Health & Welfare; Fire prevention in the home. It has been reported that 9 out of 10 home fires could be prevented if; smokers exercised greater care, matches were kept away from children, electrical appliances, fuses and cords were properly handled, heating equipment properly installed, fire resistant materials used and flamable liquids never used in the home.

Citizenship and Publicity each had articles on W.I. activities in northern regions. There are now eleven Indian and Eskimo W.I.s in the Northwest Territories with 200 memberrs and the Institute sees the region as a fertile territory for expansion.

Citizenship Convener took orders for UNICEF Christmas Cards. A money card for "Loaf a Day" was passed around and quickly filled by members.

Mrs. Chas. Reid read an interesting story "The Christmas Seal" which "Seal" is a ship which sails around the coast of Newfoundland carrying medical services to the sick people in coastal areas. This service is supported by funds realized from the Christmas Seal Campaign. The members learned a lot about this work by hearing the story. Meeting was closed by the members repeating the Mizpah. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

NOYAN NEWS

By Mrs. Rodney Derick

NOYAN — On Saturday afternoon, Oct. 31st, the new building of the Bell Telephone was opened in Clarenceville which gave us a change to the dial system. The former chief operator, Mrs. Doreen Sirois will continue with the company and will have a position at St. Johns. Mrs. Deline has accepted a position in St. Lambert and Miss T. Fredette in Montreal, both for the Bell Company. Mrs. Robina Moss has retired after many years service and Mrs. Rolland Vezina has resigned.

Clarenceville Grange sponsored a Card Party in Townsend Hall recently. Although the weather was not too favorable, several turned out for the evening. Bridge and "500" wre played. 1st. Bridge — Mrs. L. Potts and Low Mrs. J. Cadham. "500" Ladies 1st. Mrs. Alice Vosburg and Low Mrs. V. Mathews. Men — 1st. Rodney Derick and Low, Gerald Beerwort. Everyone enjoyed the evening.

Miss Ruby Draffin came out of hospital recently. She spent a few days in Alburg with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Draffin before returning to her home here.

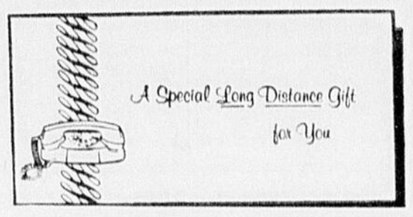
BELL LINES

by Marcel Boileau, your telephone manager



Would you be surprised to open your Christmas mail next month and find a card like this? I'll bet you would be, and very pleasantly, too. And you'd soon find that a gift of Long Distance service has a pleasant "rebound" effect: making your calls, for example, will not only please you, but those you call.

And it's all so simple! To give a gift of Long Distance service, Huntingdon customers need only call our Business Office at Zenith 60000 to give us the name, address, and telephone number of the recipient, and state the amount ($2.00 minimum) to be credited to his or her account for Long Distance calling. We look after it from there, and will even send out the card ourselves, if you wish! There's no fuss, no bother, and . . . no extra charge!

Got Your Number

Have you ever wondered why telephone repairmen and service representatives always ask for your telephone number, even after you've given your name and address? Here's the reason: Since names or addresses are often duplicated, but telephone numbers are always unique, telephone people file records according to telephone numbers. This method guarantees accuracy and insures faster service.

Super Sleuths

Not all detectives visit the scene of the crime. Nero Wolfe solves murders from his penthouse conservatory. Hercule Poirot retires to exercise "the little grey cells" and telephone men track down reports of trouble from their testboards in the central office. If a telephone man reports that your line has been "fixed" without a house visit, telephone detectives have painstakenly followed clues and located the difficulty, not in your instrument, but in miles of telephone cable or in the complicated switching equipment. And, of course, there's no extra charge . . . prompt, efficient repair work is part of our commitment to provide each customer with good telephone service.

Scientists Wives Visit Kilreen Farms

The arts and sciences of husbandy and agriculture were studied recently by the wives of 40 National Research Council scientists when they visited the Kilreen Farms owned by Frank Ryan, CFRA radio station President at Ottawa.

Thoughout the Ottawa — St. Lawrence Valley area Mr. Ryan's voice is heard from week to week in the presentation of "Farmers' Note Book" and "Valley Note Book" in which he airs the views and activities of the Valley folk.

The visitors were particularly interested in Mr. Ryan's fine championship stable of Hackney show ponies and horses. The Kilreen horses have been shown at major Canadian and United States horse shows and have been exhibited, at the Bermuda Royal Agricultural Exhibition.

The visitors were delighted, too, with the Kilreen Farms prize-winning Aberdeen Angus herd, the Suffolk and North Country Cheviot Sheep — and were impressed by the ultra-modern equipment at the two Kilreen farms, one near Manotick, Ontario and the other at the south-west limits of Ottawa.

Among the visitors was a lone male, Dr. Y. Nakal, a Japanese biologist, doing post-doctorate work at the National Research Council. He took voluminous notes which he will use on his return to Japan to illustrate Canadian farm and husbandry methods to Japanese agronomists.

Following the visit the ladies were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Ryan at a tea. Mr. Ryan is currently campaigning for election as Mayor of Ottawa.

Fish In Water Hole Identified As Umbrids Or Mud Minnows

Mr. Albert Courtemanche, director, Wildlife Service, District of Montreal, Department of Tourism, Fish and Game of the Province of Quebec visited Dr. Albert Chartrand's farm on the Back Ridge on Sat. Oct. 31 and has sent us the following information in the fish found there.

He describes the fish as a mud minnow. He saw the hole where the fish were caught and although he did not see any fish he did see many cracks between the rocks where they could have been hidden, Mr. Courtemanche states. In the bottom of the hole there is a spring, which, according to the farmer, Mr. Thomas Duheme, flows abundantly during the spring. There is a dry creek bed from the hole to the ditch along a nearby road, in which evidently a good amount of water flows once in a while. The ditch joins a creek which flows through a marsh about half a mile further towards the Laguerre River. The presence of the mud minnows in the hole on Dr. Chartrand's farm is not a mystery: they come up from the creek when the water is flowing".

Mr. Courtemanche further states that the mud minnow is found in the province mainly in the lowlands of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Valleys and in the Eastern Townships. Eastward some specimens have been collected from as far away as Riviere Verte near Riviere du Loup. A few years ago a few specimens were found in a lake east of Ste. Agathe, however, the extent of the northern region is not yet known.

The following excerpts from the Smithsonian Miscellaneous Collections, Vol. 45, published in 1904 and written by Theodore Gill give interesting information on the mud minnow or Umbra. Scientists then didn't know that the mud minnow was so widely scattered throughout eastern North America.

The Umbrids or mud minnows are a feeble family represented by a single genus whose species are distributed in a notable manner. A single one (Umbra or Krameri) occurs in central and southeastern Europe, Hungary and the neighboring countries, and two others are inhabitants of the easthern slope of the American continent and the Mississippi valley, while all the intervening countries are deprived of them. They are scarcely distinct from the pikes and, as in them, the maxillaries form the lateral margins of the mouth, but the jaws are not produced and the teeth are all small and "villiform". In appearance, indeed, they are much more like Cyprinodonts (killiefishes) than pikes. The species chiefly frequent still waters and are most at home in muddy and reedy ponds or in clear ponds with a muddy bottom; they are also prone to resort to sequestered pools or caverns. They hide on or rather in the bottom, and where not one may be seen at first, numbers may be secured by drawing a net over the bottom and stirring up the mud. They are very tenacious of life and individuals have been kept by the writer for many months without change of water in moderate sized jars with water plants. Their behavior and carriage are characteristic and have been especially described by a number of naturalists, especially by Heckel and Kner (1858), C.C. Abbott (1884), and L. Kathariner (1899).

From accounts of authors and from personal observations a tolerable biography may be obtained and the tale is of considerable interest.

In a clear pool some may be seen, if quietly approached in mid-water, perfectly motionless, with the pectoral fins closed and stretched out and downward, at right angles to the trunk, and with the tips curved slightly forward, while all the other fins (including the ventral) are widely expanded; so they may remain for minutes at a time or with a slight movement of dorsal rays; then one pectoral may be expanded and its surface displayed forward and backward while the other fin may be appressed to the side. Another attitude often assumed is one of balancing in midwater, when sometimes a vertical position is taken, or even the back is inclined downward; the pectorals are then the principal fins used and are constantly moving in an undulatory manner, the fully expanded ones being for a moment outspread and horizontal to the length.

Still another frequently assumed attitude is a "statue-like" one which has been also designated by Abbotts as the "salamandrine position", and which is often maintained for several minutes at a time. "The body is frequently curved when at rest, and remains so, the head being turned to the right or left, and the tail in the opposite direction. No one can fail to see the salamandrine appearance of this fish when it assumes such a position." The use of the pectoral and ventrals in such a state of rest has been also likened by Kathariner so that manifested by the "salamandroid" or "sirenoidean" lungfish of Australia named Neoceratodus. The pectorals, he declared, are completely turned downward and perpendicular, and their ends, resting on the bottom, in consequence of the weight of the body are twisted outward and backward; the ventrals are also extended downward and touch the bottom quite lightly. The body rests nearly parallel with the ground, and the caudal is somewhat upraised from the bottom, and the pectorals and ventrals can be used as props for the body. Heckel and Kner have remarked of the European species, that even when the fish remains still or floats, the last three or four rays of the very erect dorsal are alone in a constantly oscillating motion. And, strange to say, they add, the fishes remain thus at rest often for hours at a time, now in a horizontal, now in a vertical position, with the head turned either upward or downward. Then suddenly they all dart from the bottom to the surface with a quick movement of the tail, gasp for air, emit it again in diving as large bubbles through the gill-opening, and for some time afterward breathe very slowly. Heckel and Kner also remarked on their peculiar movements when swimming. The pectorals and ventrals are moved alternately, like the feet of a dog running, and the dorsal makes a quick wavy motion with all its rays, the like of which is seen in seahorses and pipefishes (Hippocampus and Syngnathus), which is effected by a peculiar disposition of individual muscles for the various rays of the fin.

But most of their life is spent at the bottom, and when a clear pool reveals no evidence of their existence, a little stirring up of the bottom may bring many to view. "On disturbing them, occasionally, instead of swimming, especially if the water is very shallow, they make a forward movement, by giving these fins a leg-like motion, indicated by leaving faint traces upon the sand." But it is also often a voluntary movement on their part", and, in fact, "if suddenly disturbed, they generally dart off by swimming only, and bury themselves, tail-foremost, in the mud." They are perfectly at home there and Abbott claims that they "can pass through the soft mud with as much ease as other fishes do through clear waters." They are mostly carnivorous and do not appear to manifest any special preference for anything that is of the flesh, but their capacity is limited by their own size and that of their mouth. In a state of nature, they feed largely upon the aquatic larvae of insects as well as crustaceans, and the eggs of fishes as well as young and small fishes. They also make excursions from the water in search of insects. "Unlike any other of our fishes," Abbott asserted, "the mud-minnow will leap twice and thrice its length above the surface of the water to seize a fly or beetle that happens to rest upon some overhanging blade of grass or twig". But, although mostly carnivorous, they are not entirely so, as has been asserted. Forbes (1883), indeed, found that in the "mud minnow" (Umbra limi) of Illinois, "vegetable food amounted to forty percent, chiefly Wolffia", (an aquatic lemnaceous plant), and "a considerable quantity of unicellular algae was also taken by one; mollusks, eaten by two, were reckoned at five percent, all Physa; insects drop to fourteen percent, chiefly undetermined larvae. No terrestrial forms were recognized. Corresponding to the greater development of the gill-rakers, we find the Entomostraca assuming greater importance in the food. These were reckoned at ten percent; three percent additional consisting of Crangonyx gracilis," a small ampnipod crustacean. Five specimens of the Umbra limi obtained from a pond, "covered in September with a film of Wolffia and other vegetation." yielded to the dissector stomach contents consisting of sixty percent of the Wolffia of the remainder "about one-fourth consisting of Entomostraca" and the rest of "unrecognized insects".

In captivity they will readily take small shreds of meat as well as their natural food. "When kept in aquaria they will devour any reasonable number of flies offered them, and undertake without hesitation to swallow earthworms as large as themselves. Once they take hold of a worm, they never let go, but at least secure that portion of the animal between their jaws. Not only do they allow themselves to be fed, but they will leap above the water to seize any tempting morsel held above them." Long ago (1842) Zadock Thompson was struck by their power of accommodating themselves to different conditions and declared that they can "live longer than most fishes without water. During droughts, as the waters subside and recede from the caves, they have the power, by a springing motion, of transporting themselves from one little puddle to another. They also have the power of partially burying themselves and living in the mud and among the moist grass-roots, after the other small fishes associated with them are all dead for the want of water. In these situations vast numbers of them are devoured by birds, muskrats, and foxes."

This power of adaptation enable them to find a winter-home with the least waste of energy and loss of life, and to hibernate in the mud. The mud was found by Abbott in midwinter to be of "the consistence of cheese, though, of course, it was less firm when the fish entered it, weeks before." As far as he was "able to determine the fish had burrowed tail-foremost to a depth of from four to nine inches." In every instance "the tail was deeper in the mud than the head, the position varying from nearly horizontal to almost or quite perpendicular".

Abbott thought that when they "had gone into winter-quarters" in water from "three to five feet deep, the hibernating slumber was not as profound; and when they were placed in clear water, at a temperature of 40° Fahr., they almost immediately swam about, slowly at first, but with steadily increasing activity, and in from three to five minutes they were in full possession of all their locomotive powers and assumed the statue-like position common to them in summer."

Soon after the returning warmth of spring has liberated the fishes from their long confinement, or even before spring itself has arrived, they manifest renewed vigor and sexual excitement. They had previously segregated themselves, in large part at least, according to sex—males in one lot, females in another. Abbott found in the middle of one February that, "the weather being mild and spring-like and frogs singing at midday," they were in muddy ditches; a week later there were few of the fishes in the ditches, "but a vast number of female, heavy with masses of ova," had invaded "the swift clear waters of the hill-side brooks," and they continued to ascend in spite of succeeding storms and cold—especially a heavy snow-storm. "Of the specimens taken from the rivulets at this time, none were males". Certainly the females precede the male fish to the spawning-grounds." Abbott was convinced that "while these fish at the commencement of winter seek shelter from the cold by burrowing deeply in the mud, at the approach of spring they revive synchronously with the maturing of the ova of the female and the milt of the male, and, having thus recovered their wonted activity (during February and March) no severity of the weather appears to deter them from seeking out exceptionally cold waters for their spawning-grounds. This was shown by the snow-storm referred to, after which the female minnows were still found passing up the brooks, forcing their way up miniature cascades with all the agility of salmon, leaping from eddy to eddy, seeking out the most distant points from their muddy summer haunts; and here, where but little water flowed, and with the long grass and twigs projecting from it thickly coated with crystal ice and glistening frost," Abbott "found the plainly colored mud-minnows lying half-hidden among the pebbles and sandy ridges of the brook's bed."

But if Umbras ascend running streams as far as they can go to spawn, it is not because they cannot do otherwise. The fact that they abound in numberless ponds shut off from all running water is sufficient evidence that they can reproduce in still water. They are said to have also spawned in confinement, as has been claimed by Seeley in case of the European species.

In like localities the eggs of the Umbra were found by Ryder (1886), "laid singly upon aquatic plants to which they adhere for a time by means of a thin coating of adhesive matter which invests them." The eggs are about a millimeter and a half (1.6 mm.) in diameter. A peculiarity of the fertilized egg is that, at the time of the formation of the blastodisk, "the vitellus displays a most active amoeboid activity of its substance," and Ryder remarked that he knew "of no teleostean egg" in which "such amoeboid movements of the vitellus are so pronounced and rapid." On or about "the sixth day" after oviposition, "the young mud-minnow leaves the egg," and "three days after hatching the air-bladder becomes apparent as a fusiform vesicle behind the pectorals and above the foregut, when the young fish is viewed as a transparent object." Then "pigment is rapidly developed upon the upper and lateral aspects of the body, and by the sixteenth day the larvae have become pretty dark in color, when observed from above."

The mud-minnow is an excellent fish for aquaria, as it will live under conditions which other fishes cannot stand. Some kept in a small jar lived for months without change of water save for that supplied only sufficiently to compensate for what was lost by evaporation. The only plants for keeping the water clear were some Oscillariaceous confervae. The fishes would ascend from time to time to the surface and reject bubbles of air (carbonic acid gas) and take in with a gulping action fresh air. Some were kept for about a year by the present writer in a large glass jar; during an unusually cold period the water froze solid and the jar was broken. The lump of ice was allowed to melt gradually and all the fishes revived and swam about as lively as ever in the new receptacle furnished them. A sudden transfer of frozen fish to "temperate" or summer water was found to be injurious or even fatal.

The European Umbra could not be induced by Heckel and Kner to spawn in captivity, and a female which was kept for a year in a small garden basin perished because, although filled to distension with eggs as large as millet seeds, it could not relieve itself of them. When one of a company dies, the rest soon follow it.

The Umbras have no economic value and are even considered by many to be poisonous. For a time at least in bygone years they were frequently to be seen in the markets of Vienna generally mixed up with a loach (Misgurnus fossilis), but not sold independently. Of course they were not sought for or caught intentionally, but simply scooped up with other contents of the net. Fishermen indeed, it is said, have a superstitious belief that it brings bad luck to catch Umbras.

Three species of the genus and family are known, distributed and distinguished as follows:

Umbra umbra (Umbra krameri): the European Umbra. —South-west Europe, especially Hungary.

The body is light brownish and has lighter longitudinal lines on the rows of scales including and below the lateral line as well as more or less irregular darker spots scattered over the surface. There is no precaudal bar but a trace of one on the caudal fin near its base. An indistinct darker area exists on the scapular arch behind the branchial chamber. The head has a suborbital spot sometimes developed as a transverse bar. The fins are immaculate.

Umbra Limi: the Western Umbra or Mud Minnow.—Basins of the Great Lakes and Ohio and Illinois rivers, in weedy streams, ditches, and pools.

The body is very dark brown relieved by about twelve to fifteen vertical narrow lighter bands, some of which often coalesce; the last is bounded by a blackish precaudal bar and there is a lighter bar on the caudal fin near its base. A silvery bar is on the scapular region behind the branchial chamber. The head has a frenal band extending from snout on to operculum, but skipping eyes. The fins are immaculate.

Umbra pygmea: the Eastern Umbra or Mud Minnow.—Atlantic slope from Connecticut southward to South Carolina in lowland streams, ponds, and pools.

The body is light brown and has about as many longitudinal light lines as rows of scales, that along the lateral line being most vivid. There is a very distinct blackish precaudal bar or vertical spot and a fainter bar at the base of the fin. A silvery band is developed behind the branchial chamber. The head has a bridle-like band extending from the snout on to the operculum, skipping the eye. The fins are immaculate.

There are slight structural differences in proportions of body, head, and fins between the several species, but they are so unimportant that they need not be specified here. The U.S. National Museum has numerous specimens of all the species. To Dr. Hugh M. Smith, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries, the writer is also indebted for the opportunity to observe living individuals of the Eastern Umbra which were obtained by digging or dipping deep into the mud at the bottom of a run near the city of Washington.

It is really remarkable that, with such adaptability and such power of endurance as they possess, the range of the genus should now be so restricted. Restricted it undoubtedly is, for the European and American species must be the relics of a once widely dispersed group.

Here have been given the essentials of what is known respecting the habits and economy of the Umbrids. Several of the statements, however, require verification, especially such as refer to the segregation of the males from the females and the ascent of both upstream. The entire nature of the oviposition, also, should be especially investigated; and there are the history of the development of the young, the growth from season to season, and the age at which maturity is attained to be inquired into. The present sketch is, therefore, only a preliminary from which to start.

Report Given Rotary Club on Visits of Students to Huntington, N.Y., and Huntingdon, Que.

On November 2nd Mr. A. M. Brockman, Principal of Huntingdon High School, addressed his fellow Rotarians. As the local group had sponsored six students, Anthony Anderson, Raymond Lefebvre, Noel Quesnel, Jean Clarkin, Linda Edwards and Gary Blake, accompanied by Mr. Brockman, on a trip to Huntington, N.Y., his address was of special interest.

Rotarian Brockman displayed a copy of "The Devil's Mirror", newspaper printed for Huntington High School, Huntington, N.Y. It prominently displayed a picture of the six students from our local schools, who enjoyed the Rotary sponsored trip. Mr. Brockman reported that the complete venture cost the local Rotary Club $250. The exchange of students originated from a suggestion by Rotarian Bob Cushman, Principal of Huntington High School, as previously reported.

The group left Huntingdon on October 4th and arrived at their destination some eight hours later the same day. They were met by Mr. Cushman and the six students from Huntington, who had visited here the previous week. From Monday to Wednesday our students attended regular classes while Mr. Brockman visited the entire school. All were impressed with the American school, which is very large. Close to 1800 pupils attend the Grades 9 to 12 classes daily and the staff comprises 108 teachers. The school is integrated but there was no apparent problem. One class that Mr. Brockman took great interest in was a class for educable retarded children where the children are taught to care for themselves and to make a variety of products. On the particular day that he attended the students were producing quality candles.

Another division that impressed our local principal was the practical nursing course. Mr. Brockman explained that this is a two-year course. During the first year the students have academic studies, health, anatomy, diet, nursing care and other subjects; in the second year there is considerable practical work done at local hospitals. Mr. Brockman felt that this should be of prime interest not only in Huntingdon High School but in all of Canada.

If and when Chateauguay Valley students attend a Regional School, they will see facilities for automobile mechanics, machine shop procedures and other subjects offered at such a school. Nevertheless both Mr. Brockman and the local students were impressed with the facilities they saw. One of our students estimated that at least $100,000 worth of machinery was housed in the machine shop alone.

Rotarian Brockman made enquiries and learned that the cost of educating a youngster at the U.S.A. schools was about $1,000 per year, of which about $750 — $800 is paid out of local sources. This compares to a little over $400 for a child in Huntingdon. The difference in cost is directly related to additional vocational facilities. He mentioned that teachers' salaries are higher but so is the cost of living.

On Thursday the group attended New York World's Fair. Mr. Brockman said that he was certainly surprised at the exhibits because he had read some poor press reports about the New York World's Fair. The group saw Ford, General Motors, General Electric and the Vatican display, all of which were spectacular and were free. They found the main disappointment was that the cost of food was extremely high and service left much to be desired.

On Thursday they visited Fort Ticonderoga and on Friday attended classes there until 10.20 A.M. when they went sightseeing.

The following is an excerpt from "The Devil's Mirror", which will undoubtedly be of interest to Gleaner readers:

Huntingdons chuckle at amusing note read by Anthony Anderson, Raymond Lefebvre, Noel Quesnel, Jean Clarkin, Linda Edwards, and Gary Blake.

Six H.H.S. students participated in the Domestic Exchange Program with Huntingdon, Quebec. Mr. R. Cushman and Mr. A. Brockman, principals of the Huntington and Huntingdon schools, worked with the Rotary Clubs of their towns to provide the exchange students with the experience of living in a foreign country.

Transportation fares were paid by the Rotary Clubs, while the student governments to provide the guests with of each school donated funds social entertainment. Of course, each host supplied his guests with food and lodging as well as companionship. Chosen to make the memorable trip from Huntington were Joanne Thatcher, Donna Cushing, Debby Hall, Lee Merrill, Doug Smith, and Craig Harding.

Sightseeing

During their visits, the students received an interesting picture of their hosts' country. When they were not attending classes our Long Islanders viewed the impressive locks of the St. Lawrence Seaway, attended a Rotary Club luncheon meeting, and visited the future site of the 1967 World's Exposition in Montreal. This fair, differing from ours by avoiding commercialism, will feature moving sidewalks and travel by boats. As Mr. Ohanesians, who drove with the six young Huntingtonians across the New York State border into Quebec, remarked, "The Exposition will be the Venice of the North". For our guests the special treat was seeing New York City and the World's Fair, which to them was "just great".

Canadian Life

American students found the lovely Canadian village, in which they stayed, very similar to the attractive, small French towns. The beautiful countryside and relaxed way of life provided a refreshing change from shopping centres and the constant rush of New York. They attended French Canadian history, physics, and chemistry classes in the schools of Notre Dame and St. Joseph. One of the greatest surprises was the division of Catholic and Protestant schools where, not only pupils, but also teachers are separated by law. The number of subjects taken by the Canadian students, usually nine or eleven, made them appreciative of our system. Friendliness greeted them everywhere. The slow, calm school days, especially the long lunch period, were very appealing.

After an intervening week, the six chosen Canadian students from the two French Catholic high schools and Huntingdon Public High School and Mr. Brockman, principal of Huntingdon High School, arrived to receive a sampling of the American school system. The visiting Canadians thought our tight schedules, although rather difficult to adjust to, quite invigorating and exciting. They especially admired our building, its modern equipment, and our physical education program. They did not, however, envy our driver's education course since they felt that if Canadian teenagers could receive licenses at an earlier age than eighteen, they would drive "even worse than they do now!" It seems unbelievable, but despite the fewer courses required here, several of our guests felt that our school is the more difficult. Quebec, here we come!

On October 10, our guests were whisked back home. Students of both nationalities had established lasting friendships and memories. hey all had the satisfaction of knowing that they had contributed to a better understanding between the two countries.

Also, on November 13th, our Student Council president, Linda McCaig, and our Vice-President, Walter Letham, went to Beaconsfield for the Annual Student Council Conference, leaving Valleyfield on Friday morning. After discussions and varied entertainment, they returned late Saturday afternoon.

On November 6th, the first basketball game of the season was played against Ormstown. Although the girls lost with a 35-15 victory to Ormstown, they made a strong effort to check their Ormstown opponents.

The boys' game, however, was a complete reversal, as our boys defeated the Ormstown team 43-22. Tho boy's top scorer was again Stephen Smith, who received a total of 22 points.

Letter To The Editor

Verdun, Quebec

Dear Sir,

Although, I wrote to your very interesting paper regarding Hallowe'en vandalism one year ago, it is with extreme regret that I note once again, that residents of Howick, Huntingdon and Ormstown, have once again been victimized by the so called pranksters. I cannot imagine what anyone can see that is at all amusing or commemorative, of Hallowed Saints, in being destructive, but it seems to me, that once committed these deeds are at once forgotten and no effort is put forward to find those people responsible. These acts have gone on for years, and I am certainly not the only person aware of this, road signs torn up, windows smashed, homes and property damaged and now the dear old landmarks, the bridges. I had one year ago notified Provincial Police Ormstown Council, and Attorney General of Province of Quebec, suddenly this happened again, and no one seems to know or understand, anything about who did what, or why, it was done. My repeated observation is that no one is interested enough to find out about this, but one voice in the wilderness, can become a vast echo, if we all, try to find those responsible, before it happens again, as I said it would, I note in your paper a statement of all the damage, and then elsewhere another statement in your paper, (Hallowe'en was a very quiet night in our district,) shocking! if this was a quiet night, what happened on a noisy night, it is only, Providence that there has not been a serious accident through this stupidity. I hope this will indeed make everyone aware, of his fellowmen, and a little bit more thoughtful of the future peace of the vicinity we all have to share.

Sincerely,
A Reader.

HOWICK High School HIGHLIGHTS

(Jo Anne Rorison)

The success of Friday night, November 6th., — if the enthusiasm of the public is any indication of success — proved that all the hours of planning and hard work were worth while. The busy and exciting evening started when the graduates, looking attractive in their white dresses with red corsages, took their places on the stage. Mr. Murray opened the programme with his annual report to the public; then, addressing the graduates he spoke about the progress of La Belle Province and encouraged them to be part of this movement forward. Carol Carson in her valedictory address spoke of the graduates' place in Canada and encouraged them to appreciate their beautiful country. Milton Reddick, past president of the Student Council, then gave his report thanking his associates for their support. Dianne McArthur presented him with a Student Council pin in appreciation of his services. The Chairman of the School Board, Mr. Ness, in his report mentioned the benefit to be derived from regional high schools. As a change of pace the Senior Girls Choir led by Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone sang two selections. Prizes won by successful high school students were presented by members of the School Board and representatives of different organizations. The climax of the Graduation Exercises was the presentation of the coveted Grade XI certificates. Then friends and relatives of the students were invited to a reception in honour of the graduates in the beautifully decorated cafeteria. After the refreshments everyone went to the gym to dance to music by the Buddies.

Pam Miller and her committee deserve great praise for their original decorations which transformed the gym into an Enchanted Kingdom. The refreshments committee under Ann Reddick and social convener Doreen Reddick, are to be commended for the arrangements in the cafeteria.

Perhaps this was too much for our volleyball teams because apparently they were too tired to win many games at Chateauguay.

November brings chilly winds — and exams November 25!

The Howick Senior Basketball Teams were off to a very good start Friday night with both teams winning their first game against Huntingdon. The Howick girls really built up a good score of 29-7 against Huntingdon girls, the high scorers being Pam Miller with 19 pts., Sharon Tillotson with 3 pts., and Ann Reddick with 3 pts.

The boys, not to be outdone by their weaker colleagues, defeated Huntingdon boys 46-35. Tommy Cole led the scoring with 19 pts., followed by Roy Younie with 9 pts., and Bobby Cole with 8 pts.

Wednesday night the teams got an advance reward for their good playing when they went to see the Harlem Globetrotters at the Forum.

Our representatives to the Student Council Conference in Beaconsfield, Dianne McArthur and John Gillies, have returned home full of new ideas which we shall all hear about soon. They enjoyed meeting representatives from other schools and exchanging views with them.

The Intermural games are still in full swing; Delos is leading with 73 points, Delphi is second with 65 and Dodona with 62.

Chateauguay Lions Hosts To District Governor

By Fergus Horsburgh

The guest of honour at last week's bi-monthly Lions meeting at Chateau Gai Motel was District Governor Donald L. Gamble. A good turnout of local and out-of-town Lions gave Governor Don an uproarious welcome and set the tone of the evening by the imposition of a stiff fine for being late, over-ruling the plea for clemency that this was the first offence in a twelve-year Lions career.

Following disposition of routine local Lions affairs, Governor Gamble in addressing the meeting spoke of the phenominal growth of Lionism both in number of Clubs and Lions. As of June 30th 1964, 723,010 Lions were members in 18,445 clubs in 125 countries, compared to 420,000 Lions in 9,150 clubs in 33 countries just twelve years ago. "The year 1963-64 shattered all previous records," said Governor Gamble, "and Lions International continues to be the largest, strongest, fastest-growing service club organization the world has ever known" President Gamble reported that for the first time Japan has supplanted Canada as the 2nd largest country in Lion membership, after the United States, and that one-third of total membership now lives outside the boundaries of the United States.

Mr. Gamble spoke of the International Youth Exchange Programme in which 30 countries participated. 200 youths from many parts of the world were vacation guests of sponsoring clubs in other countries. Mr. Gamble suggested that a Canadian variation of the exchange programme would be for the interchange of youths between the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario. This suggestion was warmly applauded.

Mr. Gamble closed his remarks by wishing the Chateauguay Lions success in their annual sale of Christmas cakes and in their share in the Lions Mammoth TV Auction: "I note that you are active in Little League Baseball", concluded Mr. Gamble, "and the Boy Scouts, Poor Children's Christmas Party, general welfare, including food and milk and Christmas Baskets for the needy. Keep up the good work, keep your sights high, and the best of luck".

Well-Known Author Guest Speaker At Maple Home And School Meeting

By Mrs. Edith Bate

At the last general meeting of Maple Home and School Association, Nov. 10th, it was a great privilege to welcome as guest speaker, H. Gordon Green, Magazine Editor of the Family Herald. Mr. Green has had work published in practically all the Canadian magazines, and frequently U.S. publications as Reader's Digest and Farm Journal.

Besides his numerous short stories, Mr. Green has published a biography of the Hon. J.A.D. McCurdy entitled "The Silver Dart", which was the name of the airplane in which McCurdy made the first powered flight in the British Empire; two novels, "The Praying Mantis" and "A Time To Pass Over"; in Collaboration with Frank J. Selke of the Montreal Canadiens, a book on hockey called "Behind The Cheering"; an edition of Canadian short stories from the Family Herald titled "Stories to Read Again". His next book, "A Countryman's Christmas" is due to appear shortly.

Mr. Green is heard on radio, and has also had television programs on C.B.C., several of which have been filmed on his own 332 acre farm at Ormstown.

Widely travelled, Mr. Green's most recent trip has been to Communist China, and before that a tour of Russia.

Mr. Green's talk dealt with youth in the last named two countries, and their avid eagerness for education. Comparing Canadian youth with those in other countries, Mr. Green stated that we here, seem to have a peculiar adoration of immaturity; a tendency to regard education as a means to get more money or a status symbol. He feels that the children of today lack interest and wonder of all things round about them. Their natural curiosity seems to be stifled.

While in China, Mr. Green visited a number of schools, talked with the teachers; and in Hanchow had quite a long discussion with the Principal of the High School there. Mr. Green had a number of pu-

CRIBBAGE IN CHATEAUGUAY

In the above picture a trophy is being presented to Ray Leduc by Mr. Ron Hastie of Chateauguay Little League.

(Photo by Pat Wilkins)

Once again Seigniory Park Country Club hosted an enthusiastic group of Cribbage players Friday evening, October 30th.

This was the second of a series of tournaments planned for this season which will all be held in the Country Club in its Club house.

Mr. Ray Leduc of Chateauguay this time scored a perfect game of 968 points, which was even better than last month's high score of 961 by Jim Vokey. Other high scores this time were made by Mrs. Vokey with 960 points; Joe Murray with 948 and Mrs. A. Savoie with 945 points. Phil Holvor came up with the low score of 807.

Attractive prizes were awarded to the high scores and the low score. Mrs. H. Reid won the evening's draw.

This tournament was well attended and Seigniory Park Country Club looks forward to an even larger crowd for this month's tournament on November 20th at 8 p.m. All are welcome. Even non-players will find the pleasant surroundings and facilities in the Clubhouse well worth spending some time there during these evenings.

All proceeds from the Cribbage Tournament will be turned over to the Chateauguay Little League Baseball in order to realize a very active season planned again for 1965.

Stagemasters --- Still "The Stagemasters"

Mr. Fergus Horsburgh, Editor, The Chateauguay Gleaner.

First of all, I would like to thank you for your interest in amateur dramatics as evidenced by your article in The Gleaner of Nov. 11th. For those of us who devote so much time to this field, any public support is appreciated.

However, this particular article, as well as one or two others recently appearing in The Gleaner, completely misrepresent the situation as concerns THE STAGEMASTERS. In fairness to those who have worked so hard to build The STAGEMASTERS into the competent group it now is, I feel the record should be publicly corrected.

The STAGEMASTERS was formed as a dramatic group about three years ago. They were grateful for the support of the Heights Recreation Club and have returned a fair profit on the Club's investment. A good deal of credit for our success must go to Wyn and Lorrie Tester for their untiring efforts but it is the combined effort of all members of the group which has kept THE STAGEMASTERS alive and active. There are always problems in this type of venture but there have never been any which could bring about the collapse of the group. Nor has there been any need or wish for a "merger" with any other local dramatic group. This misunderstanding probably arose when several members of the defunct Chateauguay Players were asked or volunteered to join THE STAGEMASTERS. We are grateful for their experience and certainly welcome their support but it would be unfair to infer that this constituted a merger. Our Director, Russ Faughnan, did not belong to either local group and was invited to work on this year's production only when last year's director, Peter Dann, decided to display his acting talents for a change. Finally, there is no one individual running the STAGEMASTERS. Players, production staff and stage crew participate in all decisions. In this manner, we do not depend on one or two persons for our continued success. We hope that anyone interested in any facet of amateur theatrics will watch for our next production and volunteer their services.

Active in this year's production of "A Murder Has Been Arranged", were: CAST: Phyllis Hale, Russ Faughnan, Sheila Havnes, Alfred Soar, Mary Blondal, Irene Thatcher, John Hale, Peter Dann and Penny Dann. PRODUCTION: Sylvia Patterson and Lynne Houldsworth. STAGING: John L'Ecuyer. SOUND: Bob Newton. LIGHTING: Kai Holmsborg, Peter Pedersen and Tolin Keleher. PROPERTIES: Josie Holmsborg. Thanks also to Linda Wilkinson, Day Pratten, Olive Condy, Julie Keleher, Edna Way, Shari Newton, Margaret Soar, Connie Newton, and all others who contributed in any way. A special thanks to the members of the cast who created their own costumes.

Signed:

An Important Letter To The Editor

The Editor
Chateauguay Gleaner

As founding members of The Stagemasters, we feel compelled to comment on the amature dramatics article in the November 11th issue of The Gleaner. Possibly a little more effort in obtaining the true facts would have rendered this comment unnecessary.

First and foremost, the merger between the Stagemasters and The Chateauguay Players was in no way prompted by a collapse of either group. As far as The Stagemasters were concerned, at all events, the group always has been, and still is, a happy, closely-knit unit who were in full rehearsal and quite prepared to put on "A Murder Has Been Arranged" without any assistance from anyone. The departure of Mrs. Tester and myself came rather more suddenly than had been anticipated and consequently necessitated some re-casting and re-organization, as we were both taking parts and also acting as joint producers. So Mrs. Patterson was invited to act as producer. This she readily agreed to do, in a spirit of friendly co-operation, and Mrs. Irene Thatcher was invited to take over the part of Mrs. Arthur.

This is the extent to which any thought of a definite merger had developed as far as our knowledge goes.

Regarding the rest of the reference to the production we feel that the director, Russ Faughnan, being the king-pin of the production; should certainly have been mentioned and we consider this a serious omission.

We drove down from Toronto to see the Saturday performance, and consider the resulting pleasure well worth the effort.

Wyn and Laurie Tester

ED. NOTE: — The article in question was written to aid The Stagemasters in publicizing their production. Unfortunately it has brewed a small storm in a teacup, reflecting less harmony behind the scenes than was shown on stage. F. H

"A Very Good Murder Was Staged"

(By Jane Horsburgh)

Russ Faughnan, director of The Stagemasters dramatic group, guided an excellent performance of Emlyn Williams' "A Murder Has Been Arranged' 'on to the stage of the St. Andrew's United Church Hall, last Friday and Saturday nights. A large audience on both nights watched a gripping play whose performance achieved a degree of tension seldom found among amateur actors.

Emlyn Williams' play is a spine-chilling ghost thrilled, taut, yet witty and free running dialogue, and the cast made the most of this mastery of the language. Nervousness caused some forgotten lines, but the thread of the play and its pace were never lost, and this is the essential thing.

The standard of acting was high throughout, but especial mention should be made of Alfred Soar, playing James North, although I suspect that in the original his part was more of a romantic young lead. Phyllis Hale as Miss Groze the Secretary, was particularly good in her two scenes with "James North" trying to pass himself off as a newspaperman, and Maurice Mullins when it is revealed that she is his assistant in crime and ex-mistress, Mary Blondal as Lady Beatrice Jasper warmed up after a somewhat slow start and was a real tour de force in the final scene. Unquestionably the star of the show was Peter Dann, as the evil Maurice Mullins, the man who loves evil for its own sake. His entrance, the finale of the first act, was a masterpiece of timing, direction and execution.

The lighting was effective, particularly in the scene when Sir Charles Jasper's ghost appeared on the stage. It is a pity though that the stage is both shallow and lacking in facilities for proper backdrops. The ladies who made the costumes for "the ghosts of History "scene, are to be congratulated on an expert job.

Joint Council Meeting

(By Fergus Horsburgh)

A closed meeting of the Councils of the Towns of Chateauguay and Chateauguay Centre was held in the Town of Chateauguay Town Hall last Wednesday evening. Mayor Richard Sutterlin and Aldermen of the Centre attended as guests of Mayor Joseph Laberge and Aldermen of the Town.

It is understood that the purpose of the meeting was to receive a report on proposed amalgamation legislation from Mr. Armand Poupart, who has been hired by both Councils as consultant. While details of the closed meeting have not been made public, I understand that Mr. Poupart's report made it clear that in instances where the two Councils' preference differed from provisions in the Cities and Towns Act, that the terms of the new City of Chateauguay's charter would take precedence. For example, if the Cities and Towns Act prescribed an equity qualification of $2000 for a certain population centre whose Aldermen wished to establish a minimum equity of $3,000, then the latter qualification would be embodied in the charter. It is understood that the joint meeting voted in favour of a $3000 equity, but that the Ministry of Municipal Affairs favours the lower figure. The question of the number and division of future wards in the new City was referred for further study by the Centre Council, who were due to meet last (Tuesday) night. Following the Centre's decision, another joint Council meeting would be arranged at short notice.

It is apparent that December 31st, 1964, is a significant date in current amalgamation developments, since failure to submit the private bill for amalgamation by that date would effectively postpone amalgamation by one year. Following eventual passage of the Bill, a minimum period of 60 days would elapse before the election of the new Council. During the 60 days intervening period the existing councils would legally sit as Joint Councils.

Discussion on the disposition of existing bye-law debt is believed to have led to agreement that bye-laws now charged on a frontage basis would remain chargeable to the same locations. Various Public Works Bye-laws, including those for Police and Fire Stations, the water tower, the Ranneywell Plant, the reservoir, the pumphouse, and parks would become debt at large, the service of which would be chargeable to the whole City of Chateauguay.

Officials of both Councils are optimistic that the December 31st 1964 deadline for submission of the private bill can and will be met.

CATHOLIC CHURCH TO PRESENT PARTY

In an unusual step to promote parish interest, the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help is holding a Parish Party on Friday, November 20th, 1964. Billed as a "Let's get together" party, Church authorities hope to have members come to see the new parish hall and to appreciate the facilities which are available for Parish Activities.

The party will be held at the Parish Hall on McLeod Avenue, and will have as background an orchestra, dancing and refreshments.

Hallowe'en Vandalism In The Heights

The unpleasant aftermath of Halloween was discussed at last Tuesday's Heights Council Meeting. The cost of repairing broken traffic signs and other acts of vandalism on Halloween Night amounted to approximately $200. The meeting was adjourned to last (Tuesday) evening, to consider the latest developments in the soil investigation phase of Heights plans for water and sewage plants.

Impressive Remembrance Day Ceremonies Held At Cenotaph In Chateauguay On Sunday

By G. H. Robinson

The Chateauguay Branch 108 of the Royal Canadian Legion held their Cenotaph Service on Sunday, Nov. 15th. The various contingents lined up for the parade under parade marshal George Oliver with the police force of Chateauguay leading. Then followed in turn the colour party in charge of Cde. Harry Davies which included representatives from Legion Branches in Chateauguay, Caughnawaga and Huntingdon, and the Ladies Auxiliaries of the three branches.

Next came the Donnacona Navy Band, by kind permission of Colonel Stapley, followed by the smart police platoon of Chateauguay Centre, under the command of Police Chief René Spenard.

The contingent of Legionnaires were next in line, made up of the various branches in District 13. They were followed by the Mohawk St. Andrew's Sea Scouts and the S.R.S. Yukon Rangers, also the first, second and fourth Chateauguay Companies of Girl Guides.

The ceremony at the Cenotaph began promptly at 3 p.m. with the playing of O Canada. Rev. Father Belanger of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church led in prayer and the choir of St. Andrew's United Church led in the singing of one verse of the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee". Rev. H. C. The wreaths were dedicated by Lt. Col. H.S. Cocks, M.C.E.D. The choir led in the singing of the hymn, "Abide With Me", (two verses). Bugler Sgt. McIntosh of the Black Watch sounded the Last Post. Two minutes of silence were observed followed by Reveille and God Save the Queen.

The units then assembled for the March Past, Brigadier A. T. L. James, D.S.O., taking the salute. Other dignitaries present were W. Smith, Honorary Branch President; George Kennedy, M.P.P.; R. Sutterlin, Mayor of Chateauguay Centre; Jean M. Laberge, Mayor of Chateauguay Heights; Jos. Laberge, Mayor of the Town of Chateauguay; Rev. Father Belanger, Rev H. C. Fraser, Rev. H.C. Cocks, M.C.E.D.

After the official ceremonies a reception was held at Branch 108. A splendid dinner was served by members of the Ladies Auxiliary, and entertainment by the George Hudson Concert Party was very well received.

President elect Norm Palmer was chairman and convener of the day's activities and results proved he did a fine job.

Brigadier A. James with other South African veterans and the concert party left for Montreal at 8 p.m.

St. George's Christmas Fair An Outstanding Success

by Mrs. Edith Bate.

This year the Christmas Fair held on Nov. 14th. at St. George's was the usual lively affair, with something for each member of the family. Most popular with the very little children was the Fish-Pond, with a steady stream of boys and girls waiting to make the "Big Catch". The girls, both big and small had a fabulous choice of doll clothes to choose from. Home baking, hand knitted articles, bargain groceries, hardware, a large assortment of plants at the Green Thumb stall, the Sniffle Tree, white elephant, Parcel Post surprise packages, paper stall, and a new

Children Are Dangerous on The Roads

(By Fergus Horsburgh

It may not be inopportune here to comment on the conduct, in general, of children on bicycles. It is appalling. Parents are too prone to blame the motorist, but no motorist is a mind-reader, and children around Chateauguay swerve all over the road, ride without lights at night, ride on the wrong side of the road, go against traffic lights, ride straight across the road in front of oncoming cars and generally behave as if they had the exclusive use of the road. The roads are not built exclusively for children on bicycles; they are for motorists also, as well as truck drivers and others who are not PERSONALLY connected or involved with the safety of children in our area. The sooner a good many of the children and incidentally, their parents, also, realize that they, as well as motorists, have a responsibility to maintain order on the roads, the better it will be for all concerned. Technically a motorist is nearly always held responsible if a child on a bicycle is hit, but it is not always the motorist's fault, and besides, I should have thought that that would be rather small comfort to a parent whose child had just been killed, or even injured. Just think, if it was YOUR child?

"HERE LIES THE BODY OF WILLIAM JAY,
WHO DIED DEFENDING HIS RIGHT OF WAY,
HE WAS RIGHT, DEAD RIGHT, AS HE BOWLED ALONG,
BUT HE'S JUST AS DEAD AS IF HE'D BEEN WRONG."

Children and Motorists

Chief Roma Gervais of the Town of Chateauguay Police has announced that stern measures will be taken against any offenders caught passing a stopped school bus. The flashing lights on school buses are put there for a purpose; to show, even from a considerable distance, that children are getting on and off a bus. In an imperfect world, it is too much to expect a child always to remember the rules of the road, and a child seeing a friend on the other side of the road may very very good reason, "motorists going in each direction must stop in front of and to the rear, respectively, of a stopped school bus,"and anyone found disobeying this law will be brought to court and may be heavily fined.

The Town of Chateauguay Police Chief also wishes to emphasize that all persons riding bicycles at night must be equipped with a white light on the front of the bike and a red light at the rear. This is obligatory by law, and offenders will be fined.

Bicyclists are subject to the same rules of the road as motorists, and must obey stop signs, traffic lights and other highway instructions.

NITRO NEWS

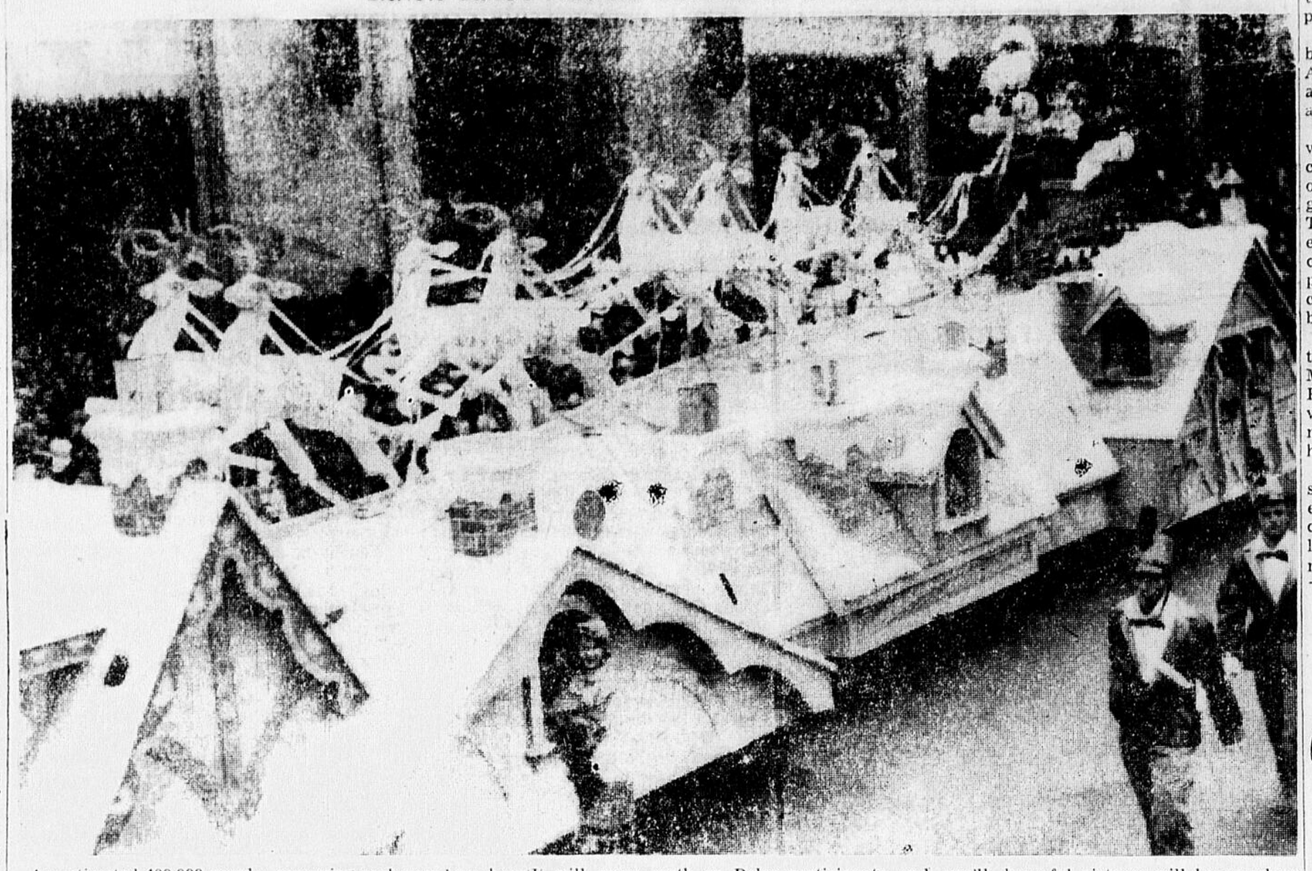
(Mrs. E. St. Onge)

Our little community was deeply saddened last week to learn of the sudden serious illness of Mrs. Gerry Thompson, who was rushed by ambulance to Barrie Memorial Hospital, on Thursday morning, and passed away early the following evening. Our deepest sympathy is extended to Gerry and his four young daughters and to other relatives. I shall miss Mrs. Thompson, as she was one of my few customers who always talked to me in French and anything I didn't understand, she would tell me in English, then continue in French.

Sunday morning a Remembrance Day Service was held in the Protestant Church with Mr. Nelson of the Presbyterian Church in charge. A Union Jack was placed on the altar table and each member of the choir wore a red poppy on their white surplices.

Word has been received from the Yates family. Sorry to know both Kathryn and Gerry were very sea-sick, so didn't enjoy the trip by boat as much as they had hoped.

SANTA CLAUS PARADE SATURDAY IN MONTREAL



An estimated 400,000 people lined the Montreal Santa Claus Parade route last year and if color is everyone's fancy, even more should turn out this year.

Color is a special project in this year's Saturday, November 21st parade, and it's also a new parade. About 80 percent of the floats are new and regular Christmas floats appearing each year have been given a different treatment.

Santa and his parade with all its Yuletide pagentry delights the young and is a wonderful picture-taking occasion. Take your camera and plenty of color film on this family outing.

The parade starts Saturday morning at 8:50 from Mount Royal and Delorimier Avenue. It will move south on Delorimier to Sherbrooke (arrives at Sherbrooke at 9:13) then west on Sherbrooke to Union Avenue where it turns south and proceeds down Union to Eaton's store. The parade will start arriving at Eaton's about 10 a.m. where it ends.

This year there will be more than 20 floats and some 1,500 participants and you'll have lots of time for picture-taking since the parade will take 35 minutes to pass any point on route.

One new float you'll want to put in your viewfinder will be Peter Panda a 13-foot high panda bear walking on all fours.

A good place to see this year's parade and get wonderful pictures will be anywhere along Sherbrooke. Many of the buildings on this wide avenue have high steps which you can stand on to get unobstructed pictures. You can also get close-up pictures since picture-takers are allowed on the street.

There are many good spots along the entire route for seeing and taking pictures of the parade. Major intersections usually provide good picture-taking opportunities.

While moving along Sherbrooke, the parade passes the Amherst intersection at 9:27 a.m., St. Denis 9:37 and Union at 9:55.

While taking your pictures, whether with a movie or still camera, try and vary angles of your shots to alter backgrounds of your pictures. Those using adjustable cameras should remember to increase the exposure if the parade enters shadow areas cast on the street from tall buildings.

Snapshooters will be able to take pictures of floats such as Mother Goose, Three Little Pigs and the Spaceland float which are only a few of the new presentations the parade has to offer.

Decide where you plan to see the parade and get there early so the children and your camera can get a good close look at Montreal's 40th annual Santa Claus Parade.

That Collecting Bug

When people get bitten by the collecting bug there's no holding them. They scoop up all kinds of relics from another age and find ways of adapting them to modern living — but this to me is the living end. A lady we heard of recently has purchased a Victorian Bath at an Auction Sale and has put it to ingenious use. She thought that the bath had possibilities and picked it up for a song. Now painted gold and filled with soft multi-coloured cushions it has taken on a new life as a luxuriant lounging chair. But she gets little chance to use it. Her husband has discovered how comfortable it is — and she is now looking around for another! For me, I like my tub, no matter how ancient, filled with hot water and nice bath oil —but then—to each his own.

Another lady I know of, recently taken ill, thought she had been sent for. She confessed to her husband that the small spare room (always closed) was stacked with her hobby — that of bag and string collecting. Well the irate hubby to release pent up anxiety (which later proved needless) spent a whole weekend muttering, grumbling and sometimes swearing, clearing the room which also had a priceless collection of jam and pickle bottles saved for years. The dear lady almost had a heart attack as she gazed in to the rear lane at boxes and boxes of her prized collection.

What am I collecting? Well I'll tell you. I love old china and I have decided that I am going to collect small, quaint, good old cream pitchers. I have just purchased a shelf for my future collection and have this past week been gifted with a charming old creamer. My husband is grateful that I cannot drive a car because I would be attending every auction sale for miles around.

St. Andrew's Notes

Two ferns and stands have been placed in the Sanctuary by friends in loving memory of the late Mrs. Irven A. Watt, who was a faithful member of St. Andrew's. She served as president of the W.M.S. and later of the W.A. and was the first president of the U.C.W. following its inauguration in January, 1962.

The speaker at Sunday's Vesper Service was Elder Ted Longley. Worship in the Sanctuary at 7.30 p.m. with young people taking part was augmented by the newly formed Junior Choir. A tape especially prepared for youth was played at the fireside hour following the Service.

Stewardship and Loyalty Sunday

A letter will be going out from the Committee of Stewards this week with the Budget proposed by the Official Board of St. Andrew's for 1965. Please read this communication carefully and after prayer, plan the extent to which you will support the work in which Christ is calling every Christian to share in these decisive days. Then let next Sunday, November 22nd, be an expression of your loyalty to Him.

On Wednesday evening, November 25th, a unique program is to be presented in the Memorial Hall by the Caughnawaga United Church Women. Plan to attend and become better acquainted with our Indian neighbours.

Persons wishing to transfer their church membership to St. Andrew's may be received at the Pre-Communion Service on Sunday evening, November 29th.

Cooks' Corner

By Mary Fabio

I must apologize madam homemaker for a slight misprint in last week's recipe for "Krustiki." The number of egg yolks called for was 2 and this should have read 4. Hope this error didn't inconvenience any of our readers.

The Christmas Season is fast approaching and with it naturally the traditional preparation of Christmas Cake. Some of you may have already baked yours, for those who haven't below are some very worth-while hints from the folks at Standard Brands:

Preparing frut: Small dried and blanched fruits are usually left whole; large fruits and nuts such as candied cherries, pineapple should be chopped or cut up to allow for even distribution of fruit and to ease the cutting of the finished cake. Dip your scissors in flour or hot water to cut candied and dried fruits easily. To prevent prepared fruits from sticking together or falling to bottom of Christmas cake or pudding, combine them and dredge them lightly with flour.

Preparations of pans — Fruit cake is high in sugar content and burns easily. Pans should be lined smoothly with heavy paper, which insulates the pans and prevents the cake from scorching. Use two or three layers of plain brown or heavy white paper, greasing thoroughly the top layer of paper which will be next to the batter.

Storing fruit cakes — Fruit cakes and puddings should be baked well in advance of the holiday season. They improve in flavor and texture if allowed to "ripen" in storage in a cool place for several weeks. The natural moisture of the cake must be sealed in well. Wrap cakes securely in aluminum foil, and place in metal container with lid. Cakes may also be wrapped in moisture proof film, the ends sealed air-tight. If prepared, fruit cake may be wrapped first in cheesecloth dipped in wine, brandy or cider, then wrapped in aluminum.

No doubt most homemakers have their own favourite Christmas cake recipe they use each year, but this year I came across this recipe for Cherry Cake and it sounds delicious so I am going to give it a try. This recipe comes to us from the Consumer Section of the Canada Department of Agriculture.

CHERRY CAKE

1½ cups butter
2 cups fruit or fine granulated sugar
6 eggs
1 teaspoon almont extract
1 pound candied cherries (2 cups halved)
3½ cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt.

Method

Cream the butter, add sugar gradually and cream well together. Add the unbeaten eggs one at a time and beat well. Add almond extract. Dredge the cherries with part of the flour. Sift remaining dry ingredients together and add to creamed mixture. Stir in cherries. Mix well and bake in large round or square pan lined with paper in a slow oven (300 degrees) until skewer inserted in center comes out clean, about 2 hours.

Note:—

To the above recipe you may add 1 cup blanched slivered almonds. And from a delightful little book called "Gifts from your Kitchen" a recipe for "Christmas Cheer" by Clementine Paddleford, Food Editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

Take a bushel of tinsel, sprinkle well throughout the house. Add two dozen stars and one Christmas tree. Take a generous spray of mistletoe, an armload of holly and a full measure of snow laid in curved hills along the window sills. Toss in a Christmas carol, and season well with good will and friendly laughter. Light the candles, "one for adoration, two for celebration." Let the first burn brightly, and may those you love be near. The yield: One Happy Christmas.

Handy hints for fellow homemakers — If the small fry wants to help with decorating. Mothers you can let them do so. Just buy a bag of coloured pop corn and a large darning needle with some thread and the children can make popcorn garlands. Also if you are having company for Christmas dinner, let the children help out by making the place cards. Use empty ice cream cones turned up side down. Mix a bit of icing sugar with water until it is nice and thick and can be easily spread, tint with green food colouring. Spread the icing all over the cone, then put on some coloured popcorn here and there to represent balls and presto you have a Christmas tree for each guest and you can cut out a little cardboard star for the top and let the children write in the names for you — Do you save your attractive Christmas cards from year to year? They are a valuable aid in wrapping gfts and the children can have so much fun cutting them up.

And in closing remember the lesson our mothers and theirs before them taught: The gift you make is a gift from the heart.

Mrs. Pat Bedard has announced that the Activities Committee of the Home Owners Association has again organized transportation to the Santa Claus Parade in Montreal next Saturday. Last year's excursion was a great success for parents and children alike, and Mrs. Rita Fletcher, 691-0614, who is organizing this year's expedition, expects another good turnout.

One does not often hear of anyone flying over to London, England, on a Friday evening, going to the Palladium on Saturday evening and flying back home on Sunday. Mr. Gerry Flynn, Home Owners President, Gleaner correspondent, photographer, etc. etc., did just that, but still managed to send in his usual quota of copy for this issue.

Seigniory Park was well represented at last Friday's presentation of "A Murder Has Been Arranged" by the Stagemasters in St. Andrew's United Church Hall. We saw the Hofstaters, Ernie Schenkelberge, the Kelchers and the Raines at the show, in which Julie Keleher was responsible for part of the cast's make-up. Most of us went on to the after-show sherry party at the Heights Recreation Association's Clubhouse, and were unanimous in praising the excellent performance of the combined ghost-story — thriller — comedy — drama.

I wonder if the origin of the phrase "at the eleventh hour" has any connection with the very first Armistice Day, when hostilities ceased at the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month.

Alderman Phil Bonneau tells me that two ice-rinks will be set up adjacent to St. Willibrord School this winter, in place of the hockey rink last year. One rink will be reserved for skating, and the other for hockey.

I hear that plans are being made for a repeat performance by the Seigniory Park Carol Singers sometime before Christmas. It may not be possible to have as many rehearsals as last year, but I'm sure that that would not detract one whit from the singer's enjoyment.

Mac McConnell, President of Seigniory Park Sports Association, tells me that the Association hopes to hold its annual meeting and election of officers this week. It is expected that a Town work force will put up the boards for the ice-rink in the very near future, and that the town can be prevailed upon to provide a temporary shack for the convenience of the skaters. The Seigniory Park Country Club's basement is of course not available as a changing room, following its conversion into a social club-room.

Recruiting for the Teenage Bowling League has progressed well, but Mr. and Mrs. Wells, 691-1884, say there are still a few vacancies for interested youngsters.

- O -

Mrs. Rhoda Rowntree tells me that the Big 12 Bowling League is still retaining the Big 12 name, even though only 10 teams are now competing, because all registrations are under the Big 12 name. It seems that so many people would now like to bowl that 12 teams could now be playing. However, it is not possible to rearrange schedules at this late stage in the season. Indications are that next year the Big 12 will be back, in name and in fact. In play last week Pat Meenagh set a new High Single Mark with 243, beating Bob Foster's previous high of 223. Pat also took over the lead in the High Triple to Date with 539.

It seems the old 'flu bug' is working overtime around Imperial Gardens and Chateau Estates. Bruce Frost was feeling kind of miserable on Saturday and Mr. Frost was ill on Monday and had to stay home from work. Mrs. Mary Fabio had her hands full over the week-end too, Rickey and Michael both had it and Mary said the baby wasn't feeling too well either, so I guess she was coming down with it also. Mary's mother has gone back home after a nice, but rather short, visit with them. I guess you sort of wish she had been there over the week-end to give you a hand Mary. Young Ross Spenard was in bed on Monday with the bug. I sure hope that all of you are feeling much better by the time you read this column.

There is a family in Chateau Estates who have a little five year old retarded child. This child could go to a school for retarded children in Beaconsfield, but has no way of getting there. There is a bus she could get in Lachine to take her to the school, but she needs transportation to Lachine. Is there anybody around here who could help this family in this way? If so, please call 692-6550 for further information, it would be greatly appreciated.

Belated birthday greetings to Mrs. Susan Cunningham of St. Maurice St., and John Buhmann of St. Jude St., who both celebrated their birthdays on Tuesday, November 17th.

There was a Gendron baby stroller left in a vacant lot on St. Maurice St. By the look of it, it must have been taken by some children who abused it then left it in the vacant lot. It is now at the police station and anybody who is missing such a stroller can claim it there.

Debbie Moody of Ethier St. had her bike stolen from the side or back of her house and the police found it in the cemetery with one of the tires slashed. This is the second bicycle that has been taken from otuside their house, fortunately both were recovered. Let this be a warning to you folks, don't for goodness sake, leave bicycles or any other removable objects outside your house overnight, you might find them gone in the morning.

9th Chateauguay Brownies Pack —Last Wednesday afternoon at a special ceremony, Mrs. Mary Fabio became a full fledged Tawny and Mrs. P. P. Dubuc a full fledged Snow Owl and were presented with their pins and warrants, while Brenda Ritchie and Carole Spenard were presented with their golden hands. There are other Brownies almost ready for their golden hands and a number ready for their golden bars and these will be presented at the Christmas ceremony. Right now the Brownies are all very busy learning semaphore.

Mrs. Helen Frost, her son Bruce and his boy friend and Helen's mother, Mrs. Perry went to Hemmingford on Sunday for the Armistice Service was able to visit a few of her old friends and spent a very pleasant afternoon.

Bran Wilson or Lalemant St. had an unfortunate accident a little over a week ago, when he crushed his thumb at the new cenotaph, then visited Helen's father's grave. Helen's father, the late Mr. Perry was a very active member of the Legion when he was alive. Mrs. Perry, who used to live in Hemmingford while at work and had to go to the hospital for treatment. He has been off work as a result of this, and will no doubt lose his nail. It must also have been very painful.

Well my telephone was quite busy last week, for which I am thankful. I hope it rings as much this week with more news. Bye for now.

It's nice to see Ron Attwood of Langlois St., up and about again following his recent emergency surgery. Pretty thin Ron, but the old spirit is here and that's what counts.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Heherington and their daughters spent Sunday at Moose Creek, Ontario, visiting Theresa's mother, Mrs. Helen Beauchamp, who will be 92 years old on Thursday, Nov. 19th. Mrs. Beauchamp who broke her leg during the Summer and was in the hospital for many weeks, is now in only fair health Warmest congratulations and every good wish for a happy day, Mrs. Beauchamp.

The icy conditions on Monday morning brought woe to Mrs. Harry Davies (Ida) of St. John Blvd., the Station, who slipped on her back steps. Suffering severe pain, in the rib area, she was driven to the Medical Centre by her friend Marika Vanderwoude, where Doctor Boyer recommended X-rays at the LaSalle General Hospital. Apparently there were no ribs broken, but ligaments must have been torn which is sometimes more painful than a break. Hope it won't be too long before you are feeling better Ida.

Dianne Langdale celebrated her 10th birthday with a party. Present were Coleen Hillock, Debbie Sproston, Debbie Cosenza, Philip Sproston, Norman Roy, Reinard Padduck and cousin Donald Langdale. The children enjoyed a lovely supper and birthday cake. They played games and danced. Everyone won a prize and all had a good time.

Belated anniversary wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Golden who celebrated last week.

If you are not happy with past performances get out and set up a new slate of directors.

If you think too little is being achieved by the P.L.C.C. come and say so, but make sure you participate . . . . they can't look after your interests if you stay home and keep them secret. So folks keep that date in mind as well as November 23rd.

Santa Claus Parade

The P.L.C.C., are sponsoring several buses for transportation to and from the Eaton's Santa Claus Parade, to be held this year on November 21st.

The buses will leave the corner of Parkview and St. Joseph Blvds., at 8.00 p.m. All members will be contacted by phone or a personal visit from one of the executives at which time you obtain your tickets.

If there should be any vacancies on the bus non-members will be able to participate at the same cost . . . . "First come, first serve" basis . . . . . this should be a thrilling day for the youngsters. Our thanks to the P.L.C.C. for making this

Hello Everyone! From the notes I have on hand it appears that many of you will be having a busy week . . .

Monday, November 23rd., the Mary Gardner Home and School Association will be having an open house, all parents are invited to attend. There is a most interesting programme arranged for this night. The class rooms will be open and the children's work will be on display, there will also be a gymnastic demonstration under the direction of Larry Eldridge (Gym Instructor). Guest speaker for this evening will be Mr. Booth, who will speak on School Insurance. — There will be a short business meeting after which all are invited to attend and enjoy refreshments which will be served in the cafeteria. The membership Committee will be on hand, so why not make a point of obtaining your membership. The cost of the membership is very little considering the great work it does for the school and for your children . . . . while I am on the topic of Home and School may I mention the importance of the Class Attendance Records for this night or any other Home and School meeting. Each parent is asked to report and give the name of the class his or her child is in, the class which has the most number of parents attending a Home and School Meeting will be awarded the plaque. Please moms and dads, how about it? Will YOUR child's class win the award this month?

The Stagemasters put on a wonderful performance of "A Murder Has Been Arranged" Friday, November 13th and Saturday November 14th., at the St. Andew's United Church Hall. The acting was superb. All who attended spoke very highly of the cast and how very much they enjoyed it . . . Congratulations to ALL OF YOU!

The Proprietors League of Chateauguay Centre will be having their General Meeting at 111-Hillsdale Drive on November 23rd. The purpose of this meeting is to receive nominations for 1965 directors, to be elected in mid-December by the membership at large.

The following have been declared 1965 directors, without election, per items 1A and 1B of Article 11 of the Constitution of the P.L.C.C.: — Mr. F. Berry, Mr. W. MacDonald, Mr. J. Green, Mr. E. Koenig, Mr. N. Veary.

The following have been nominated by the present board of directors to stand for election to the twelve (12) vacant directorships: — Mr. L. Doyon, Mr. Soice, Mr. R. Snowdon, Mr. H. Bissell, Mr. J. Paradis, Mr. T. Clegg, Mr. Bonnaillie, Miss D. Foss, Mr. D. Hyde.

It is hoped that more nominations will be received from the floor at the November 23rd, meeting, or through written, and duly seconded, individual member's nominations.

If you are happy with the 1964 elections of the P.L.C.C. get out and back the re-establishment of the 1964 directors!

Santa Claus Comes To "Spot" In Chateauguay

Maple Home and School Association.

President Ken Condy reports that we now have one hundred and thirteen members enrolled in the Association so far this season, and that is the greatest number since the Assoc. was formed over four years ago. In the past few months two of the executive have been transferred out of Chateauguay, and there is an urgent need for a Secretary and a representative to the School Board. Mr. Condy and some other members of the executive attended the recent meetings of the Quebec Federation at Northmount School. Also a Bulletin from the Federation was read out concerning the School Telecast over Ch. 6—CBMT. The Provincial Govt. is spending $25,000. to produce the programs, seen on Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 to 10.30 a.m.

Before introducing the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. Russell Mosher, Supervisor Principal for the Protestant schools in Chateauguay, gave a brief, but quite illuminating report on "Operation 55" of the well known Bill 60. What is Operation 55? For the implementation of Vocational and Technical education in the Province of Quebec; a combination or collection of School Board areas into larger units economically and physically feasible to include a broad high-school course. In the near future parents and other interested parties will be hear-ing much more about this subject.

Members have been asked to remember the Skate Exchange to be held on Sat., Dec. 5th, in the early afternoon, at Maple School Gym. Also the only fund raising event of the year a Turkey Whist on Dec. 8th.

A very poor turnout of members at this past meeting was quite discouraging. A "Meet the Teacher" evening at the High School was partly responsible, but parents were invited to come over to Maple after, and hear the speaker; also a good number of students from Grades 10 and 11 attended this meeting, and enjoyed looking over the publications Mr. H. Gordon Green had brought along.

The programme for January promises to be a most interesting one, but before that we hope to see you at the Skate Exchange and the Whist.

Memorandum From McLeod

Correspondent: Mrs. Edith Bate, 282 McLeod Ave. 692-9453
Route Boy: Aubrey MacLean, 246 McLeod Ave. 692-9669

Hello again! Sad news to start off with this week. I have had to give away our darling little Siamese kitten, "Buppa". Apparently she, or her fur that is, is the cause of my recent illness. Apparently I will never get well if she stays here with us, so alas! she had to be boarded out for a few weeks until we finally found someone who would love her and take good care of her. A happy note, though — she is with someone in Chateauguay, so I might see her once in a while.

Who said Friday the 13th, was an unlucky day? It was a very lucky day for Mrs. Jean Gross of McLeod Ave. She won a most beautiful hand made needle-point picture — a pastoral scene in nice soft colors — with ticket number 13. The very first time in her life that she has ever won anything at all, she tells me. Heartiest congratulations! Next time make it an Irish Sweepstake.

Very sorry to hear that Mrs. Craig, mother of Mrs. Rose Young of McLeod is in the Barrie Memorial Hospital in Ormstown. Mrs. Craig has been ill for some time now, and in considerable pain, and we do hope she will soon feel much better.

I have had a request from a mother of a small boy, (pupil of Maple School) to try to locate a pair of billy boots, black with red rim in approximately size two. The little boy took them off near the school, and walked away without them, and his mother thinks probably some other little child picked them up and took them home. If you have noticed one of your children lately with two pairs of billy-boots, would you kindly give this number a tinkle — 692-9574, and in this way you will get this boy out of the dog-house, and incidentally make his mother happy at the same time? Thank-you.

Derek Pearce of the Record Rollers has asked me to make a statement for him here in this column regarding the dances being held at St. Willibrord's School on McLeod. The dances have/ nothing whatsoever to do with the school as a Student Council Body, and are run by private organizations.

News from the Choir — As a result of the recent Every Member Visitation, five new members have been recruited into the Choir. Male voices are always in demand, and the Choir is most happy to welcome two tenors and three basses. The much discussed film "Martin Luther" will be presented in the Church Hall on November 29th at 7.30 p.m. All welcome. Plan to attend this event.

St. George's Anglican Church News

A correction from last week's edition — I made an error in the date of the annual visit of the Bishop. It should read DECEMBER FIRST, instead of the 2nd. Very sorry.

There has been a request from the Montreal Diocese W.A. for used ice-skates in good condition, sharpened, in sizes to, fit children age six and over. Also for heavy skating socks of a wool blend (wool and nylon etc). as these do not shrink when washed. These skates are for use at Anglican Indian (native) Residential Schools. If you have any to donate would you please bring them to the Church or contact either Mrs. Airlie 692-6388 or Mrs. Schofield 692-6404.

Thursday evening, November 19th, at 8.15 p.m. there will be a meeting of Church School teachers in the Walsh Memorial Room to discuss plans for a Christmas pageant and party, and a penny fair towards the Anglican World Mission Fund.

Next Sunday it is planned to make available at the back of the Church, for ordering or for purchase, some of the new Prayer and Hymn Books.

The W. G. Walsh Memorial Room has been enhanced by the addition of a new cupboard and visual aid bookcase, layout courtesy of the Men's Club, with major work performed by Art. Walker, Sr. This is a very fine piece of work.

VETVILLE NEWS

I must start off this week with an apology to Mr. and Mrs. Jalbert of Somme Bldg. They celebrated their third wedding anniversary at the end of October, and each week I have forgotten all about it until my column is well on it way to The Gleaner office. Even though it's belated, I would still like to wish them more happy years together, and hope they'll forgive my forgetfulness.

On November 11th "Armistice Day" as it is still called by a number of us, a service was held in the Community Hall, by residents and members of Branch 108 of the Legion. Comrade Norman McLeod conducted the service, and gave the address. His guest was Col. Norman Mitchell, V.C. who read the lesson, and at the end of the two-minute silence recited the Legion Creed. It was a very solemn occasion, and well attended by the Tenants and Branch 108.

Both the Senior and Auxiliary colours were placed in the Hall, and many of the Ladies Aux., were present in uniform.

Among the visitors present was Bombarier Leslie, a Chateauguay resident, who is at present home on leave from Germany. Col. Mitchell was very interested in hearing about soldiering in Germany at the present time. Two other visitors present on the platform also were Comrade Phil Ross, who was a director of the Quebec Legion Memorial Housing Corp. when Vetville was first built, and Mr. Chester Rufh, Jr., a frequent visitor to the development. It was a distinct pleasure to see Major Robert Mitchell at this service — the first time he has been present at any function since his recent illness.

In the evening of the same day, the Men's Club held their Annual Remembrance Dinner at which Comrade Norman McLeod was the guest speaker. About 75 persons attended the dinner, and again many of Branch 108 members were in attendance, including Dave Watson, Zone President for this District, and Past Pres. Harry Robinson. Matt Will was in charge of the dinner, and here thanks goes to Mrs. Winnie Will for her excellent table arrangements, and her overall supervision of the seating arrangements. Mrs. Will has been a great help to her husband in his undertakings for the Men's Club, and these have been many in the past few years. We could never do without the ladies, could we?

Guest speaker Norman McLeod's topic was "Quebec". A few of his remarks: quote: "If we look back on Quebec 25 years ago; roads were poor, and transport drivers really had it tough. To-day — so many changes for the better. Why knock our own province just because we have a few separatists? Why sell it short? Canada can't do without Quebec — and Quebec cannot do without Canada!" unquote.

The Grand March was headed by Mr. and Mrs. McLeod, and the ladies later did some of the square dances joined by a few of the men in a couple of them.

On Saturday afternoon, November 14th, the Royal Montreal Regiment Branch No. 14 of the Legion, put on a Live Show for the residents of Vetville. Those Legion Vets sure do make good looking ladies with a lot of primping, and it is sometimes hard to tell who has the Toni. The show finished off with refreshments supplied and served by their Ladies Auxiliary. This is the has entertained Vetville and they are most welcome to re-second time that this group turn at their convenience. The group is called the "Red Tam Revue".

Major Mitchell wishes to acknowledge a gift to Vetville from Mr. and Mrs. R. Thompson of 79 Theberge St. in Colonia area, Chateauguay. This is a film that Mrs. Thompson took of the ceremonies of the Official Opening of Vetville in May, 1959. Mr. Chester Rufh, who is bringing a film to show on Friday evening, November 20th, will also show this Opening Ceremony film that night.

This gift will be kept at Vetville as a souvenir of a Royal Canadian Legion achievement. Many thanks to the Thompsons.

Sorry to hear Mrs. Evans of Dunkirk is ill again. Most sincere good wishes to her. Hope you will soon feel ever so much better.

Also here I would like to thank the many residents of Vetville who sent me such nice cheery cards recently. You are all dears, and you made me feel better with the kind wishes.

To sign off, with thoughts of the sad state this world finds itself in these days; a quotation from a man I admire greatly: You must not lose faith in humanity. Humanity is an ocean; if a few drops of the ocean are dirty, the ocean does not become dirty.

Gandhi.

Chateauguay Police News

The Town of Chateauguay Police played a somewhat different role last Saturday morning, when Constable Laliberté answered a call for help from Mr. George Smith of the Heights. His wife was about to have a baby immediately, and the police car rushed them to the Lachine General Hospital. The baby, however, was born before they could get there, near the Mercier Bridge. Mother and baby are now reported to be doing fine. All police personnel in the Town of Chateauguay, take a course in First Aid from the St. John's Ambulance Association, and this was one occasion when such training richly paid off.

On Monday, 16th., in the early morning there were two accidents near the new bridge over the Chateauguay River on Route 3. Both were probably due to the slippery conditions of the road and the first dusting of snow for the season. A car driven by Miss Gariepy of Chateauguay, was going towards Montreal, and she apparently lost control of the car and skidded, hitting a light post. When the police arrived Miss Gariepy had already left for the hospital, driven by a member of her family who was a doctor. The car was a total wreck.

On nearly the same spot, a few minutes later, Paul Milo of Beauharnois, collided with a Bourcier Bakery truck, which was stopped. There were no injuries, but damage to both vehicles was fairly heavy.

Chief Roma Gervais would like to remind all persons that according to Bye Law 129, article 3, no vehicle may be left parked on a road or public square during the hours of 1.00 a.m. and 7.00 a.m. during the winter, because any such parked vehicle prevents effective snow removal. And during and immediately following a snowstorm vehicles may not park on the roads at any time, day or night, because such parking prevents effective snow removal. Offenders may be given a parking ticket, or have their cars towed away, at their own expense.

addition this year was the Handicrafts. At this new stall everything from wearing apparel to stuffed toys, fancy cushions, hats, and other articles too numerous to mention. Almost forgot to mention the aprons; all colors, types and sizes, and not a single one was left at the close of the Fair.

The Teeners of the Church — Anglican Young People's Association had hand made figurines and wooden mangers for the Christmas scene, and they were truly very well done, and beautifully painted.

The younger girls, (Girl's Auxiliary) of whom there are but five or six, served in the Tea-room. The smaller ones, Junior Auxiliary had the candy booth and did a rip-roaring business. Hot dogs and soft drinks were also served.

This year a Committee, with representatives from all the church organizations made all the preparations, and the results proved that this was indeed a much smoother running event, with more coordination in all areas.

Mr. Art Walker, Jr., Chairman of the Fair Committee thanked all the organizations of the Church — who had helped to make the Fair such an outstanding success. An approximate total so far is $1350.00. with more to add from orders taken for various articles.

This seems like a lot for one day; but — it is actually a whole years' work. So many members work "behind the scenes" so to speak, knitting, sewing, propagating little plant shoots, and dozens of other little things during the year.

A few words of thanks and appreciation to all who donated articles, those who gave their time and talent, and to everyone who came to the Fair and enjoyed themselves — thank you, again.

Clever contrast was achieved by using different periods in history, and different materials for each dress and costume. It must have been a difficult and painstaking task to make these costumes, because of course no patterns were available and they had to take drawings from books and work on those.

As Producer, Mrs. Sylvia Patterson worked very hard behind the scenes and did many of the jobs which, though unseen, are essential to an enterprise of this nature.

The sherry party afterwards was an innovation, but an innovation that ought to become an institution. Shari Newton and the others responsible for the décor at the Recreation Clubhouse are to be highly congratulated on the sprightly skeleton adorning the stage and the white footprints on the black table-tops were a masterly touch.

It seems a pity that such a successful production was apparently marred by alleged misrepresentations and petty bickerings.

ST. LOUIS HIGH DEFEATS RICHARD ACADEMY

Sunday, Nov. 15., Chateauguay's St. Louis High defeated that well known team Richard Academy by the score of 18-7.

Chateauguay opened the scoring on a pass play to Ronnie Ducross who went across for that big touchdown, making the score 6-0. In the last minutes of the first half Ronnie again brought the ball over the goal line. The third quarter brought St. Louis well ahead when Brian Foly got touchdown on a pass from Frank Meany.

Richard Academy made no score until the last quarter making it 18-6. The convert being good brought the score to 18-7. But that was as far as they got for St. Louis held them back strongly.

St. Louis High suffered a couple of injuries. John Rankin was forced to leave the game after he sprained his ankle. Richard Savaury in a most unfortunate collision broke his wrist. He was brought to hospital and the next morning underwent an operation. Good luck Rick, get well soon.

Valleyfield Legion Holds Armistice Supper and Presentation of Medals

VALLEYFIELD — The Valleyfield Branch Royal Canadian Legion held their Armistice supper on Saturday, Nov. 7th. at the Legion hall. This was a fine old reunion of approximately two hundred veterans and their wives, and the widows of veterans. It was such a wonderful sensation to enter the hall on this evening and hear your name called from many directions, and, as you turned, saw faces which you hadn't seen for many years. It certainly was a "my buddy" atmosphere throughout the whole of the evening! Cocktails were served between the hours of 5 P.M. and 7 P.M. by the wives of the legion members, under the direction of Mrs. Benoit. This proved a grand session whereupon, those present circulated and enjoyed an old chat with their many friends.

This was followed by a buffet supper served in the back hall. The caterer for this evening was Mr. Guy Lapine, chief steward at the Valleyfield Pre-Rehabilitation Centre. The menu consisted of chef salad, devilled eggs, suckling pig, loin of pork, prime rib of beef, standing rib of beef, glazed tongue, gaspe salmon, glazed ham, sea food salad, potato salad, tossed salad, beef salomi, jellied salad, olives, pickles, celery, buns, and coffee. At the end of the table, was a huge cake, decorated in icing with the emblem of the Canadian Legion. It was beautiful! Mr. Lapine is to be credited with a fine display such as was presented.

At the head table were: Cde. L. Soly, President of the Valleyfield Canadian Legion, Mrs. Soly, Mr. G. Laniel, M.P., Mrs. Laniel, Rev. and Mrs. Pelletier, Cde. L. Brown, President of the Beauharnois Canadian Legion, Mrs. Brown, Cde. and Mrs. Boisclaire, Cde. G. Birkett, Cde. and Mrs. H. Calvert, Cde. J. McAlpine, and Cde. and Mrs. Z. St. Onge. Mr. G. Butt, who is an honorary member of the legion, acted as M.C. for the evening. Mr. Butt welcomed those present, and then called upon Cde. L. Soly, to say a few words.

Cde. Soly commenced by asking for a minute's silence in remembrance of those who gave their lives. At the completion of this meditation, Cde. Soly spoke on the poppies, and what they represented. Cde. Soly expressed his utmost appreciation to Cde. G. Boisclaire and Mr. G. Butt for the magnificent organization of the cocktail party, and to Mr. R. Dandurand and Mr. Ti - Bi Benoit for their excellent mixing of the cocktails; also to Cde. H. Jourdain for his assistance in aiding with the preparations. Cde. Soly further continued by thanking and commenting on the outstanding co-operation and assistance which the legion has received from Mr. G. Butt for the past few years. He went on to explain that the enormous demand of the branch for crutches and wheelchairs could never have been supplied if it had not been for the kind generosity of Mr. Butt. The Canadian Legion has twenty-two wheelchairs out at the moment. These being loaned without charge to the people of Valleyfield and surrounding districts. Cde. Soly further exclaimed on the organizing and fine work that Mr. G. Butt attributes to the march of dimes, as chairman of this campaign. Cde. Soly expressed regret over the absence of Cde. S. Butt, Cde. D. Watson, and father Ladouceur, who were unable to be present at this time due to other activities.

Mr. G. Butt thanked Cde. Soly, and called upon Mr. G. Laniel, M. P. to say a few words.

Mr. Laniel commenced by exclaiming on the fine reunion of the veterans present, and commenced on the heart-warming sensation it was to see some of the first world war veterans at this gathering. Mr. Laniel spoke on the poppy fund; its value in regard to the aid it can bring to the disabled and distressed, and he encouraged the public to patronize this campaign in respect of what the poppy symbolizes, and the tremendous aid and relief this fund brings to those needy of the helping hand. The speaker concluded with a piece of very inviting news, in which he made the statement that there is the possibility of an increase in the veteran's pension in the very near future. His statement brought very encouraging applause.

Mr. G. Butt thanked Mr. Laniel for his most interesting talk, and called upon Rev. Pelletier.

Rev. Pelletier expressed his pleasure in being present on this evening, and his appreciation to the organizers who made this evening such a success. He continued with a very touching personal statement, by stressing the memorable and pleasant sensation it was to be "one of the boys" once again! He concluded his talk by commenting on the splendid work performed by Mr. Laniel on behalf of the people's interest and welfare, and trusted that he would receive the utmost support in his endeavours.

Cde. Brown was then called upon for a few words.

Cde. Brown expressed his gratitude to the legion, on behalf of himself and his wife, for their welcome invitation. He also praised the fine organization of this evening, and expressed his appreciation to those who made this possible.

At this time, a very important, and main highlight of the evening arrived; the presentation of the twenty-five year medals. There were very few members who remained to receive this worthy honor. Before the presentation of the medals, the biographies of these parties were read, in regard to their many years service in this legion branch. Cde. B. Campbell, Membership chairman, presented the members. Mr. Laniel presented a medal to Cde. Z. St. Onge. Cde. Z. St. Onge has been a legion member since 1933, and is one of the oldest members in Branch 62. He held the position of President in the years of 1938 - 1939. He later held the position of Sgt. Of Arms, for a term of three years. Through the many years, Cde. St. Onge was always an active member in the legion, regardless of whether he held a position or otherwise. Cde. L. Brown presented a medal to Cde. H. Calvert. Cde. Calvert has been a legion member since 1938, and also one of the oldest members in Branch 62. He has been a very active member during those years, fulfilling his obligation in the positions of, Chairman of House Committee, Poppy Campaign, Welfare Officer, and at all times has been very active in the building of this hall. Cde. Calvert was also an Executive member in the branch for a number of years. Cde. Calvert's heart was ever a part of the Legion, and he has contributed much on behalf of this organization. Rev. Pelletier presented a medal to Cde. J. McAlpine. Cde. McAlpine has been a legion member since 1933, and is also one of the oldest members in Branch 62. He held the position of Chairman of the Christmas parties for the children of this branch for twenty years. Cde. McAlpine has collected, and shipped pocket books to Ottawa for the Armed forces around the world, and up to date, he has collected exactly 9,857 books, and his aim is 10,000. Cde. McAlpine never forgot those boys overseas in world war two, and he continually sent cigarettes. He held the positions of first and second Vice-President during the years. He was also very active with the Civic Protection committee during the war years. A member such as this is never forgotten! Cde. G. Shaw presented a medal to Cde. G. Birkett. He was a gas victim in world war one, and due to this injury to his heath, Cde. Birkett was unable to live as active and full a life as he would have wished for. Cde. Birkett was a trustworthy and faithful member of Branch 62 for many years. He resided in the St. Anne's Veterans hospital for many years, and later transferred to the Senneville lodge, where he is presently residing. Cde. Birkett received a week-end pass so that he might attend this Armistice gathering.

At the completion of the presentation of the medals, the time arrived for a further presentation of a very distinquished, and honourable medal in the organization of the Canadian Legion, "The Medal Of Merit." This medal was presented by Cde. L. Soly, President of the Valleyfield Legion to Cde. Herbert Stewart, on behalf of Cde. Stewart's work, trials, and faithfulness to the Legion for the past nineteen years. Cde. Soly commented on the great honor there was connected with receiving such a medal, and the limited number of Veterans ever to be honoured with the awarding of this "medal of distinction". Cde. Soly read a biography of the work and positions of Cde. Stewart during his years in the Canadian Legion, the reading was as follows:- discharged from the Army in 1945, Cde. Stewart joined the Canadian Legion under President A. Johnson. He took active part in Legion work with the older Legionnaires for approximately two years. There was no hall at the time, and as our Veterans were arriving home, a Committee was formed under the guidance of Cde. S. Butt to organize and establish Legion quarters. After a few months of hard work, the Legion were able to acquire land, and a hut was purchased from the War Assets which was the Army Administration building during the war. This was our starting point. Now we had to raise funds and dismantle part of this building in order to move it to its present location. Cde. Stewart was nominated on the Fund Raising Committee, and the Building Committee. The project started in the lafe summer of 1946 and was completed in the fall of 1947. Realizing that we needed a lot more funds to compiete our hall, Cde. Stewart formed a Sports committee. This committee spent months of continuous efforts in making up programs, collecting advertisements, also organizing a Field Day. Through these efforts we were able to raise 1,000 dollars towards our fund. This Field Day has been organized annually since 1947. In 1948, Cde. Stewart was appointed house Chairman, — in 1950, Welfare Officer. In the Christmas of 1950, he first organized a turkey raffle and has been in charge of this annual Christmas raffle since, which raises approximately 300 dollars each year. In 1951, Cde. Stewart was elected President. After his term of office, he was appointed Chairman of Welfare, which appointment he held for two years. He was then a member of the Executive until 1958, at which time he was elected Treasurer. In 1959, he was again elected President. After this term of office, he was elected Treasurer. In 1961, he was appointed House Chairman, which post he is still holding. Cde. Stewart has held a senior officer's post, or has been on the Executive from 1947 to this date.

This concluded a very successful, and true Armistice gathering among the boys, but, it did not conclude the evening. The majority remained and enjoyed the evening's entertainment of dancing to the orchestra of Oscar Loiselle. "LEST WE FORGET" — This day proved that those who remain will never forget those who had to say "adieu." It was heart-warming to view these boys all together once again, the embracing, the reminising, and the brotherhood atmosphere among — men and men!

VALLEYFIELD NEWS

By P. Stewart

It is my pleasure to say "hello" once again. I think it might be appropriate to open my column this week by saying, "Get well wishes are extended to Pearl Stewart." Yes, I have endured a most painful "hobbling" session for the past week, therefore, not in my usual interested humor for writing. Oh, you can chalk this one up as "A careless household accident!" With embarrassement, I must say that I did not fall down the stairs, I fell up the stairs. This should teach me the lesson of taking one step at a time, rather than two steps at a time, which I always do. I do not know whether my toe hit the step, or the step hit my toe, but I certainly witnessed the results, a swollen, painfully sprained toe, and colors no artist could paint! But, as the saying goes, "live and learn" so without any sympathetic feelings for myself, I add this one up as an additional, stupid experience. I am only glad that the stairs do not have feelings, as I can assure you, I certainly called them a few "peachy" names. But enough, and on with some Valleyfield news. I know that my readers are not buying the paper to read a whole column concerning" the tragedy of Pearl's big toe!"

Gerald Laniel, M.P. Is Now On Governmnt Business In Paris

Gerald Laniel, M.P. for Beauharnois-Salaberry, flew to Europe last week to attend a conference of the NATO Members of Parliament in Paris.

Mr. Laniel was chosen by Prime Minister L.B. Pearson to take part in the Canadian delegation composed of three senators and twelve members including two Liberal M.P.'s from Quebec.

The group left the capital city aboard a RCAF plane which was to take them directly to Germany, where they were to visit a number of military bases, and also the headquarters of the group of armies in the North, near Wildenrath. From there, they were due for a long stay in Paris for the Conference, and the trip will end in Berlin where our representatives will be the guests of the West German Government. They will return to Canada on November 24.

During the NATO Conference, Mr. Laniel will have the responsibility of coordinating the Cultural Affairs and the Information Committee for the Canadian delegation. According to the Beauharnois-Salaberry M.P., this commission makes possible exchanges of views regarding cultural relations between the fifteen country members of NATO, and means of information tending to promote the advantages of our ideological multiplicity, characteristic of the Occident's idea of liberty, contrary to Communism's uniformity in doctrine. Many people see in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization only a military alliance, when it is at the same time an economical alliance, where the political ties must be very close and permanent. The fundamental responsibility of the Cultural Affairs and Information Committee is to protect and renew the basic ideas of our civilization and to face Communism's challenge. The democracies need more dynamic and the populations themselves must assume a positive responsibility toward the upkeep of our institutions. In order to do that, there must be somebody to guide them and make them realize and appreciate our individual and political liberties. This is one of the tasks the group of Parliamentary representatives of NATO has undertaken; it implies that they have to explore the means of expression we already possess and find how they can be improved; it implies that they have to get to the young generation as much as possible, and finally, that they have to make an impact on the young countries, the countries not committed, in bringing them to our way of thinking to check the colossal offensive of socialist and communist propaganda.

When things have reached a point where we have to admit it is easier for Communism to win the young people in Western institutions than to have the sympathy of those who attend university behind the iron curtain, it is high time for the countries of NATO to go forward, in a concerted action, in the field of ideology, and to give more importance to the spiritual values.

The committee of which Mr. Laniel is the coordinator, has assigned itself to a three point program in view of the conference:

1. — Prepare an expose about CBC and the National Film Board, tending to establish how these two organizations really serve democracy and how they could become instruments of making NATO better known to Canadians and other peoples.

When NATO is mentioned, we must insist in not only considering the military alliance, but also the other purposes it serves, including the aim to develop more cooperation between the country members in the political, economical, social and cultural fields.

2. — See what is offered to foreign students who want to come and study in Canada, and enumerate the services provided by the Arts Council and the Cultural Affairs Department by means of grants.

3. — Mr. Laniel had planned to promote in some way Expo '67 by stressing the importance for the western countries to avail themselves of this unique and quite proper occasion to express our ideology and the advantages of democracy. NATO's direct participation as a group, was to be suggested, and also the participation of the NATO's Members of Parliament Association by way of a secreterial office or information center, like the one in operation in West Berlin.

As for this last point however, the Committee maybe will have to reconsider because of the international reaction such a suggestion can provoke.

Following some talk between Mr. Laniel and the Company of Expo '67, its directors have suddenly realized that there could be a great danger that Expo '67 become the site of a single ideology, if the countries were to be represented as part of any group. If NATO was accepted as participant, an invitation would have to be extended to the group of the Varsovy Alliance and to different other groups.

Everythin has been left to the Department of External Affairs for study and a decision will have been made before the departure of the delegation.

On élabore le programme des travaux d'hiver au Conseil de Huntingdon lundi dernier

Une assemblée ajournée du Conseil de la ville de Huntingdon a eu lieu lundi le 9 novembre sous la présidence du maire Paul Lefebvre et en présence de tous les membres, sauf le conseiller Brisebois.

M. René Rousselle, Capitaine de la Brigade des Incendies, fut autorisé à installer une sirène d'alarme sur son camion devant être utilisée seulement en cas d'urgence.

On discuta de quatre projets devant être réalisés comme travaux d'hiver; le mur de soutènement, la finition du garage municipal, le nettoyage de fossés et différents travaux dans les parcs.

Au sujet du mur, on discuta longuement sur différentes questions comme le hauteur, la finition et l'utilisation qui sera faite de l'enclave ainsi obtenue. Il fut décidé que le mur serait érigé jusqu'à quatre pouces au-dessus du niveau du chemin et qu'on y insérerait des poteaux à tous les dix pieds en vue d'élever une clôture. L'espace ainsi créé sera probablement utilisé comme terrain de stationnement avec du gazon et un trottoir à l'autre bout. On s'attend à ce que le coût total du mur atteigne $12,000.

Le garage municipal serait aussi fini cet hiver. On veut y aménager un bureau, y faire l'installation de l'électricité et de la plomberie. On estime que le coût total des nouvelles installations sera d'environ $8,000. On devra par ailleurs nettoyer quelques fossés, ceux des rues Lake, Bouchette et Cimetière, entre autres, totalisant une longueur de 3,000 pieds; ces travaux seront de $500. Enfin, on a besoin de nouveaux bancs dans les parcs, et le parc situé là où se trouvait l'ancienne patinoire devra être clôturé; une somme additionnelle de $1,500. est prévue pour ces travaux..

Le coût total des travaux qui seront effectués cette saison sous l'empire des travaux d'hiver s'élève donc à $22,000. On sait que les deux gouvernements subventionnent 90 pour cent du coût de la main-d'oeuvre sur ces travaux, en vertu du programme des travaux d'hiver. Une assemblée spéciale aura lieu le 16 novembre à 7 hres p.m. et l'on prendra les décisions finales à ce sujet.

On rapporta que M. J. Myers de la rue Chateauguay n'avait pas accepté la dernière offre de la ville concernant l'achat d'une bande de terrain lui appartenant près de l'endroit où l'on construit actuellement le mur de soutènement.

Le conseiller Legault fit remarquer qu'il y avait des trous dans certaines rues. On décida de les faire réparer le plus tôt possible.

Au sujet des vitres brisées le soir de l'Hallowe'en, on aurait apparemment trouvé les responsables et ils auraient été tenus de payer les dommages qu'ils ont occasionnés.

Une demande de la Laiterie Belle Vallée pour une licence d'affaires en vue de livrer du lait dans la village d'Ormstown fut approuvée par le conseil. Le conseiller D'Aoust enrégistra sa dissention.

Un groupe de citoyens du premier rang d'Ormstown s'adressèrent au conseil pour demander les services d'eau et d'égouts sur leurs propriétés. Le conseil répondit que ces services seraient disponibles si le territoire en question était annexé au village; tout autre action dans ce sens fut laissée aux soins des applicants.

Il fut proposé et secondé que le secrétaire soit avisé de commander les conduits d'eau Carlon M-75 Red Stripe 6" requis, plus les accessoires, selon le prix soumis par Building Supplies Ltd., et de demander des soumissions à trois contracteurs pour les poser à travers la rivière aux environs du pont actuel. Ce travail devant être exécuté aussitôt que les matériaux et les contracteurs seront disponibles.

Il fut aussi proposé et secondé que MM. Donald Primeau et Donald Gruer soient engagés pour l'entretien des rues du village cet hiver, et que les termes de l'entente qui prévalaient en 63-64 soient les mêmes.

Le conseiller Walter Harkness fut nommé en charge des employés du village jusqu'à la réunion de décembre.

M. Hubert White s'adressa au conseil pour demander l'installation d'une lumière de rue additionnelle sur la route 14, aux environs de l'Avenue Riendeau. Le conseil promit d'étudier la requête.

On référa à l'inspecteur rural M. John H. Dickson une demande de MM. Lloyd Sproule et Francis McCaffrey au sujet de fossés.

Le Dr. Whitehead et M. Harold McCaig, au nom des pompiers volontaires de la paroisse St-Malachie d'Ormstown, s'adressèrent au conseil pour demander qu'un appareil de chauffage soit installé au garage du camion à incendie. Le conseil approuva la demande et le conseiller John Rodger fut chargé d'acheter l'appareil en question.

Après discussion, il fut décidé que le camion à incendie de la paroisse pourrait se rendre en dehors des limites de la paroisse, seulement en cas d'urgence, et encore là, seulement à la demande du maire ou du conseiller ayant juridiction, dans la paroisse voisine, et selon la recommandation de l'un des hommes en charge des pompiers du Village d'Ormstown, soit MM. B.L. McGerrigle, Donald Lang ou Ivan Barrington. Il fut aussi proposé et secondé qu'une charge minimum de $100., plus le temps des hommes, soit imposée à toute la paroisse de l'extérieur pour l'utilisation du camion à incendie.

M. Gérald Lepage s'enquérit auprès du conseil du compte qu'il avait soumis au mois d'octobre et qui n'avait pas encore été accepté. Le conseil répondit à M. Lepage que l'on croyait que ce compte de $49.50 pour avoir coupé un arbre n'était pas du tout acceptable et offrit de régler la somme de $25.00 M. Lepage ayant refusé l'offre du conseil, le compte fut à nouveau laissé de côté.

Il fut proposé et secondé que MM. A.A. McCormick et Ernest Guilbeault soient engagés pour l'entretien des chemins cet hiver au taux de $7.00 l'heure pour l'utilisation de la charrue, et de $8.00 pour l'utilisation d'une souffleuse. Une garantie minimum de $3,000. est requise de chacun.

Le conseil autorisa M. A. A. McCormick à munir sa charrue d'un pouvoir hydraulique.

On avisa le secrétaire de demander au Département de la Voirie de la province de Québec d'enlever quelques grosses pierres en bordure des chemins de la paroisse pour faciliter l'entretien des chemins d'hiver.

On approuva un paiement final à M. George Irving pour des travaux à la section 2 du cours d'eau White.

On soumit à la Compagnie d'électricité Shawinigan une demande pour des lumières de rue additionnelles sur le côté nord du chemin de la Rivière Châteauguay.

Il fut proposé et secondé que l'assemblée mensuelle régulière du conseil ait lieu le premier mardi suivant le premier lundi de chaque mois à 1 hre p.m.

Mgr J. A. David croit réalisable un projet d'école commune pour toutes les croyances

Un sujet d'actualité, la possibilité de voir à une seule école les enfants tant catholiques que protestants, a vivement retenu l'attention des membres du Club Rotary de Huntingdon à leur réunion hebdomadaire lundi dernier. Le conférencier était Monseigneur J.A. David, curé de la paroisse St-Joseph de Huntingdon.

Monseigneur David est originaire de St-Antoine-Abbé, et environ la moitié de ses cinquante années de sacerdoce ont été passées à Ormstown, Ste-Agnès de Dundee et Huntingdon. L'auteur de ces lignes est d'avis qu'il n'y a personne de plus qualifié pour parler de l'histoire de cette partie de la Vallée de Châteauguay parce que, non seulement il y est intégré depuis si longtemps, mais encore a-t-il poursuivi d'intensives recherches sur cette région en marge du centenaire récent de la paroisse St-Joseph.

Monseigneur mentionna que l'idée de fusion en une école demandait réflexion, mais qu'il ne voyait pas pourquoi on ne pourrait surmonter les obstacles à la plus grande satisfaction de tous. Il prévint qu'il emploierait les termes "étudiants catholiques romains, et les autres", plutôt que "catholiques romains et protestants", pour la simple raison qu'il n'y aurait pas que des catholiques qui seraient concernés si le projet se matérialisait.

M. le Curé David, malgré son âge avancé, est un homme qui vit pour l'avenir, et non pour le passé. Il révéla qu'alors qu'il était curé à Ste-Agnès, le secrétaire de la commission scolaire avait l'habitude de le visiter, de discuter avec lui des nouvelles pendant une heure; puis il se levait et déclarait l'assemblée de la "commission scolaire" ajournée. Aujourd'hui nous avons des commissions scolaires et des associations actives de parents. Aujourd'hui nous prenons le temps de trouver ce qu'il y a de mieux pour l'éducation de nos enfants.

Il est présentement assuré qu'une école secondaire neuve catholique romaine sera construite à Huntingdon. Ce sera une école régionale et des étudiants de milles à la ronde y viendront en classe. Elle devrait être la meilleure qu'il soit possible d'obtenir. Un fort pourcentage du coût sera défrayé par le gouvernement. Mais les dépenses sont élevées. Par exemple, un laboratoire de chimie du genre de ceux dont ont besoin les étudiants d'aujourd'hui, peut coûter $100,000. Si l'on construit deux écoles, une pour les catholiques et une pour les autres, peut-être chacune des deux écoles recevra-t-elle $50,000. pour un tel laboratoire, et ni l'une ni l'autre ne sera équipée de ce qu'il y a de mieux.

Monseigneur fit état des nombreux changements s'effectuant au sein de l'Eglise Catholique. Dans le passé, seuls les prêtres pouvaient étudier la Bible, aujourd'hui on invite fortement tous les pratiquants à le faire. Il fit remarquer que dans les écoles catholiques, les garçons et les filles n'occupent pas les mêmes classes. Il préconise une formule qui les fasse étudier ensemble. Ils sont séparés à l'école, mais après la classe ils se réunissent pour travailler et jouer ensemble.

Le conférencier mentionna qu'il avait discuté de la possibilité d'une seule école pour tous avec l'Administrateur Apostolique du diocèse de Valleyfield, Mgr Percival Caza, et que celui-ci lui avait dit qu'il ne voyait absolument aucune raison pourquoi une seule école ne serait pas la meilleure solution. Pensez un moment qu'un autobus scolaire parcourt dix milles pour prendre des enfants et les conduire à une de nos écoles; quelques minutes plus tard, un autre autobus s'amène et prend à son bord un ou deux élèves sur le même chemin pour les mener à une autre école. Pourquoi ne serait-il pas plus logique qu'un seul autobus prenne tous les enfants?

Les terrains de jeu sont un autre exemple. Les garçons et les filles des deux écoles se réunissent pour jouer au hockey et pratiquer d'autres sports ensemble après les heures de classe. Pourquoi n'étudieraient-ils pas à la même école? De cette façon, ils pourraient apprendre à se mieux connaître les uns les autres, peut-être même à parler la langue des autres plus rapidement et éviter quelque peu les troubles que connait notre monde actuel.

Monseigneur David mentionna qu'auparavant, c'était la tâche du curé de la paroisse à voir à ce que les enfants de sa croyance soient éduqués. Ici encore, les choses ont changé. Les commissions scolaires sont là pour prendre les décisions, et les parents eux-mêmes doivent prendre de plus en plus leurs responsabilités.

Monseigneur référa brièvement au bon travail de feu le Pape Jean XXIII. Dans les premières années de son ministère à Ste-Agnès, Monseigneur David mentionna que les catholiques et les protestants vivaient côte à côte, tous et chacun faisant bon voisinage. Il mentionna qu'il aimait encourager cette fraternité. Une fois, cela vint près de sembler une trahison envers sa propre église aux yeux de quelques-uns, mais il ne devait pas tellement se tromper à ses premières années de sacerdoce, puisque le Pape Jean XXIII, des années après abondait dans le même sens, et que notre Pape aujourd'hui continue le travail de son prédécesseur.

M. le curé David termina en disant qu'il aimerait voir les enfants des deux croyances partager la même école: "Nous devons penser au bien des enfants, dit-il, et une seule école serait à l'avantage de tous". Il souligna aussi que la commission scolaire catholique et l'Eglise sont prêtes à discuter et à coopérer en vue de réaliser ce projet.

Le Rotarien Paul Lefebvre, de la part de ses confrères Rotariens, remercia Monseigneur David pour son entretien des plus instructifs, mentionnant que son seul regret était que plus de gens n'aient eu la chance de l'entendre avec les Rotariens. Après la réunion, tous les Rotariens se réunirent autour de Monseigneur David et exprimèrent personnellement leur désir de voir une telle école devenir réalité.

La commission scolaire Protestante de Huntingdon veut une commission régionale pour sa propre région

Une réunion régulière de la Commission Solaire Portestante de Huntingdon a eu lieu jeudi dernier le 5 novembre en présence de tous les membres.

Les membres de la commission firent d'abord connaître leur regret qu'aucun contribuable n'était présent à la réunion. L'invitation avait été lancée et on avait espéré que plusieurs personnes soient intéressées à en savoir plus long sur la question de l'école régionale.

Un des rapports du principal de l'école anglaise concernait la question de l'école régionale et une décision devait être prise à ce sujet avant la fin de ce mois-ci. Le rapport faisait état des différentes alternatives auxquelles faisait face la commission de Huntingdon et montrait les avantages et les désavantages de celles-ci. Après avoir entendu le rapport, les membres de la commission tinrent une longue discussion, et il fut finalement décidé qu'en autant que Huntingdon était concernée, on voulait sa propre école régionale, sans aucun lien officiel avec Châteauguay. On était d'avis que Châteauguay, qui sera éventuellement groupée en Cité, aurait sa propre commission régionale. En suggérant que Huntingdon ait sa propre régionale, les commissaires expliquèrent qu'ils entendaient Huntingdon et la région voisine. On pensa que selon toute probabilité, si on incluait Châteauguay, tous les élèves devraient se rendre là. Vu que Châteauguay est situé à une extrémité du territoire à couvrir, cela voudrait dire qu'un grand nombre d'élèves de cette région devrait voyager sur une longue distance et perdre ainsi beaucoup de temps. D'autre part, pour toutes les écoles qui sont situées dans cette région, Huntingdon pourrait devenir le centre. De cette façon en aucun point du territoire on aurait à couvrir de longues distances chaque jour. Pour tous, sauf Howick, on fut d'avis que Châteauguay serait trop éloigné.

D'autres réunions de commissions scolaires auront lieu dans la région et au moment où la commission scolaire de Huntingdon fera part de sa décision, on espère s'entendre avec les autres commissions pour en venir à une entente commune.

La commission poursuivit alors la réunion en comité et la presse fut exclue.

Lettre au Rédacteur

Ecole Régionale Commune

M. le Rédacteur,

Voici un mot pour donner mon opinion au sujet des écoles régionales combinées dont on parle beaucoup ces temps-ci. Il s'agit là, selon moi, d'une excellente idée. Pour vivre en complet accord, il faut d'abord s'unir, et cette unité devrait commencer à l'école.

Les Juifs et les non-chrétiens

Traduction, intervention du Cardinal Léger le 28 septembre 1964.

Il n'échappe à personne que la déclaration consacrée aux Juifs et aux non-chrétiens dans le schéma sur l'oecuménisme, revêt une importance particulière.

Cette déclaration apparait en effet, comme l'acte nécessaire d'une Eglise renouvelée qui veut se tourner vers le monde non-chrétien et entreprendre avec lui un dialogue fraternel. A ce propos, il a été opportun d'ajouter deux articles au texte antérieur, de telle sorte qu'il apparaisse mieux que personne n'est exclu de ce dialogue.

Cette déclaration apparait également nécessaire pour éclairer les fidèles dans leurs rapports avec les non-chrétiens. En effet, il arrive souvent que des fidèles ignorent que beaucoup de non-chrétiens recherchent Dieu d'un coeur sincère, et il n'est pas rare qu'ils entretiennent dans leurs esprits, par suite de certaines idées confuses en matière doctrinale des préjugés qui ne concordent aucunement avec la foi catholique.

Ces raisons nous invitent à parler de façon claire et complète.

J'espère que dans tout l'univers, des voix nombreuses répondront fraternellement à cette déclaration de l'Eglise. Car je crois que personne ne met en doute que la seule et unique intention du Concile en formulant cette déclaration est de promouvoir la paix et l'amour, et cela entre tous les hommes. Si toutefois il paraît nécessaire de le faire, qu'on affirme ce propos du Concile dans le texte lui-même.

Je désirerais maintenant faire quelques observations particulières.

Des origines juives de l'Eglise

Le texte rappelle à bon droit les origines juives du Christ de la Vierge Marie et des Apôtres. Cependant, pour éviter que cette mention n'évoque que l'idée d'une simple coincidence matérielle, or pourrait ajouter que tout cela a été voulu par Dieu lui même, puisque, selon les paroles mêmes du Sauveur, "le salut vient des Juifs (Jean 4, 22). et l'Evangile a été voulue "non pour abolir, mais pour accomplir" la Loi ancienne (Mathieu 5, 17).

La condamnation de la haine des Juifs

Comme il est dit dans les premiers paragraphes du schéma, le peuple juif jouit d'une dignité spéciale. Aussi devrait-on en faire état comme d'une raison particulière de condamner la haine contre les Juifs. On doit déplorer et condamner la haines et les persécutions envers les Juifs non seulement parce qu'on doit réprouver toute injustice faite aux hommes, mais aussi pas été maudit de Dieu, il faudrait rappeler, avec l'Apôtre des Gentils, que "Dieu n'a pas rejeté le peuple que d'avance il a discerné". (Romains, 11, 2).

L'accusation de déicide portée contre les Juifs

Il est regrettable qu'on ne rejette pas plus clairement l'accusation de déicide portée contre le peuple juif. Puisque les textes antérieurs contenaient le rejet de cette accusation, on pourrait trop facilement en tirer un jugement défavorable aux Juifs. Il faut sûrement, comme le dit le texte, veiller "à ce qu'on ne charge pas les Juifs d'aujourd'hui de ce qui a été commis dans la Passion du Christ". Le vrai problème, cependant, n'est pas celui des Juifs d'aujourd'hui, mais celui du peuple juif comme tel. Il faut dire explicitement qu'on ne peut lui imputer une faute dont nos crimes et les péchés de tous les hommes sont comme l'enseigne la Tradition chrétienne elle-même, les responsables.

Dialogue avec les non-chrétiens

Enfin dans la seconde partie de cette déclaration où il s'agit des religions non-chrétiennes en général, il conviendrait d'ajouter quelques mots pour exprimer notre respect des valeurs morales qu'on trouve dans ces religions. Il conviendrait de dire également, comme le faisait Paul VI dans son Encyclique "Ecclesiam Suam", que "nous voulons avec ces religions promouvoir et défendre les idéaux que nous pouvons avoir en commun dans le domaine de la liberté religieuse, de la fraternité humaine, de la saine culture, de la bienfaisance sociale et de l'ordre civil".

L'attitude des chrétiens vis-à-vis des Juifs

L'invitation à "ne dire ni faire rien d'autre qui puisse détourner des Juifs" me semble par trop générale et même équivoque. Elle gagnerait à être remplacée par la suivante: "n'entrevoir ni par la parole ni par l'action des préjugés anti-juifs". De plus, pour appuyer l'affirmation selon laquelle le peuple juif n'a
