Moon dust glass; rocks just rocks

HOUSTON (Reuters) — Scientists who disclosed that every sample of moon rock they have seen so far could have been found on earth will expose samples of lunar dust today to various forms of earth life.

The dust brought back by the Apollo 11 astronauts was discovered to contain an abundance of "wonderfully lustrous, remarkably smooth, minute spheres of glass."

The scientists today continue their analysis by bringing the samples into contact with earth life, including 354 mice especially bred in a sterilized environment to make them more susceptible to infection.

The purpose is to see if moon soil, which preliminary study has shown to be "like a very, very poor earth soil," contains any organisms hostile to earth life.

Scientists at the lunar receiving laboratory here consider this extremely unlikely. A first look at the organic content of the material indicated that "it would be very difficult for lunar soil to bear life," one scientist said.

Many of the scientists also are convinced that the craters of the moon, lined with globules of shiny glass, were formed by volcanic action.

LOOK THROUGH PORTS

A panel of research scientists agreed at a news briefing Monday night that the samples could have been found on earth. Until now, their examinations have been confined to looking through viewing ports in the vacuum chamber where the rocks are kept pending biological clearance.

Describing what they had seen through binocular microscopes, Don Morrison, a space agency petrologist, said the most common type of rock appeared to be "crystalline, possibly igneous (formed by fire) in nature."

Prof. Eugene Shoemaker said he is convinced the evidence so far is "overwhelming that the mare (seas) were built up by lava flows."

His colleagues were more cautious, but most agreed that the tiny glass spheres, ranging in color from brown to yellow to opaque, were formed by the lunar surface being bombarded by fragments from space (meteoroids).

Mineralogists Cliff Fronde noted that similar melting of material caused by the great heat of impact could be found on earth at the scene of meteorite impacts, only in the form of droplets of iron.

Nixon explains his policy today

BANGKOK (Reuters) — United States President Richard Nixon today faced the delicate task of explaining his new Asian policy of "no more Vietnams" to anxious Thai leaders and the head of the ailing Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Later in the day Nixon will outline his views of the new U.S. posture toward Asia to American ambassadors and heads of mission from the entire region, including Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker from Saigon.

After the hoopla of a friendly royal welcome Monday from Thailand's king and queen, Nixon—now on the third stage of a five-nation Asian swing—got down to brass tacks in a morning meeting with SEATO Secretary-General Jesus Vargas, who refused to talk to reporters afterward.

The president probably was not able to offer much comfort to the hawkish regional alliance—now virtually abandoned by

Offense worries Reds says HHH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey says Soviet leaders indicated to him much more concern about American development of offensive missiles than deployment of the Safeguard anti-missile system.

The 1968 Democratic presidential nominee said in an interview after a 13-day visit to the Soviet Union that the Russians "are less concerned about the ABM than about our offensive weapons, the MIRVs (multiple targetable re-entry vehicles)."

The former vice-president said he favors continued research on the Safeguard ABM but opposes deployment.

Senate opponents have contended ABM deployment might cause the Russians to shun arms limitation talks.

"The ABM is only symbolic," he said. "If we step up our defenses, they feel they have to step up their offensive weapons. But it is our offensive missiles that worry them most."

Pakistan and France—which American diplomacy prodded into being in 1964 in an effort to contain further Communist expansion.

WILL HONOR TREATY

Nixon went out of his way Monday to assure Thai leaders, faced by internal guerrilla insurgency and Communist military success in neighboring Laos, that the U.S. will honor its treaty obligations to Thailand.

But it was thought also that he explained to Vargas his plans for reduced direct U.S. military involvement in Asian problems. He also probably reiterated his counsel to the Thais Monday that "too much dependence on a protector" can erode a nation's dignity.

In turn, sources said Vargas echoed Thai views that, despite a possible phaseout of U.S. troops on the Asian mainland, the problem of Communist aggression is more real than ever.

After Nixon's meeting with Vargas, the president will meet Thai Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn for a discussion expected to include a reduction of the 48,000 American troops now in Thailand. The Thais have some 12,000 combat troops in Vietnam.

The U.S. has six big air bases here to support the war effort in Vietnam. One base, Ubon, was raided early Monday by Communist guerrillas but Thai military sources dismissed the attack as a propaganda move.

A parallel cut in U.S. forces here is anticipated to match the pullout from Vietnam.

During the talks, or perhaps at a working luncheon, Kittikachorn or Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman is almost bound to raise the question of American aid reduction to Thailand.

Shuffle foreseen soon

Cabinet brainstorms on wheat, taxes, cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet Monday began an intensive series of meetings designed to reach some major decisions on government policies before ministers depart for August vacations.

The full cabinet or cabinet committees will be meeting all this week. Some 8 a.m. and evening meetings have been called, fairly rare except during crises.

Decisions facing the cabinet include tax reform, wheat prices and further expenditure cuts. Decisions have to be made at this time on the contents of a government white paper on tax reform to be presented this fall.

For instance: Will the government introduce a capital gains tax?

Prime Minister Trudeau presided at cabinet and at some cabinet committees of which he is chairman. He plans to be in the capital until his speaking engagement at St. Georges de Beauce, Que., Friday evening and a Saturday visit to the Lac St. Jean area.

During August, informants say, Mr. Trudeau is likely to make some extensive cabinet changes, possibly retiring some ministers and bringing in new men as well as shuffling portfolios among present ministers.

BIG SHIFT SEEN

As many as seven to nine ministers are expected to be affected.

Mr. Trudeau is said to want to make the change in time to give shifted minister an opportunity to become acquainted with their new portfolios before Parliament reconvenes Oct. 22.

Speculation on cabinet changes centres at the moment on the future of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

It is considered likely that Mr. Sharp will be shifted to another ministry, if he does not leave the government altogether. A possible successor is Trade Minister Jean Luc Pepin.

MACDONALD IS ONE

Privy Council President Donald Macdonald is expected to be relieved of his duty as government House leader, especially after the acrimonious wind-up in the Commons last week, including government imposition of closure to end a rules debate.

Hooper blames loss of sales on politicians

MONTREAL — Up to $150,000,000 worth of sales of Canadian produced machinery and as many as 7,500 skilled jobs have been lost or are seriously jeopardized because of the failure of Federal and Provincial politicians at the international bargaining table, says S.

W. Hooper, President of S. W. Hooper and Company of Sherbrooke, manufacturers of pulp and paper equipment. The bargaining is over vast tracts of Canadian timberlands, primarily in the Maritimes and British Columbia.

Mr. Hooper blames the Federal and Provincial governments for failing to preserve for the Canadian pulp and paper equipment manufacturing industry the opportunity to compete for machinery installed in the Canadian mills of foreign-owned producers.

Foreign pulp and paper producers with inadequate domestic timber resources, he explains, are getting Canadian forest rights — and largely on their own terms. The foreign mill owners are bringing pulp and paper equipment into Canada from their own countries. Canadian manufacturers are not permitted to bid on machinery contracts under rules imposed by the foreign governments concerned, who often control the pulp and paper companies of finance their expansion programs at low interest rates.

"We are not asking for preferential treatment or the creation of tariff barriers. We are simply asking for the opportunity for Canadian firms to compete openly and fairly for business in Canada. This is an opportunity we are presently denied," Hooper said.

What is at stake in these cases, he claims, are the jobs of thousands of Canadians who make the highly sophisticated equipment and machinery. Pulp and paper equipment manufacturing is an industry in which Canadians excel. The industry employs skilled people, contains a high degree of engineering content, and has achieved a high level of manufacturing efficiency. Canadian manufacturers successfully market their products on an international basis, including the most competitive US market.

US said in dangerous domestic arms race

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — A presidential commission investigating violence in the United States says that a domestic arms race has turned many U.S. homes into arsenals and created a situation so dangerous that its elimination must be national policy.

In a message Monday that reported that 24,000,000 pistols now are in private hands in the U.S., the anti-violence commission called for the near-total removal of the concealable handgun from American life.

The commission said gunfire accounted for 63 per cent of the 12,100 homicides reported in 1968.

President Nixon was urged to ask Congress for laws enabling states to license all owners of pistols, restricting their possession only to those who can prove they need them. Stiff penalties would be provided for illegal possession.

Under the plan, the federal government would move to licence handgun owners if a state failed to act within four years after passage of the federal law. Licenses would be limited to police officers, security guards, small businesses in high crime areas and others with a special need for self-protection.

BUY TURNED-IN GUNS

The federal government should earmark $500,000,000—about $20 a gun—to pay owners for the pistols turned in under the proposed law, the commission said.

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, chairman of the national commission on the causes and prevention of violence, urged at a news conference the quick start of a federal program to develop an efficient non-lethal weapon to replace the pistol.

In its statement, the commission supported the essential findings of a staff report which said the quadrupling of handgun sales has moved the U.S. closer to mass violence.

groups, leaving this country with a dangerous legacy: the highly explosive combination of fear and firearms," the staff report said.

The study report said most right-wing para-military groups have turned their attention from the fear of external Communist invasion to the fear of internal black marauders. This has led to the proliferation of neighborhood protective associations, it said.

POTENTIAL THREAT

"The urban arms buildup

threatens not only to escalate future civil disorders, but also to bring with it greater misuse of firearms in crimes and accidents," the commission said in its separate statement.

The commission also noted 66,000,000 rifles and shotguns are in private U.S. hands.

Four of the 13 commission members, two of them members of Congress, dissented from the majority view and said they believe states should be free to act—or not to act—as they choose in the gun-control field.

Visitor tells of nursing in England today

RICHMOND—Recent visitors of Miss Edith McCourt were Mrs. W. J. Collins, Hampstead and her guests, Mrs. W. Matthews, Jacksonville, Fla., and their cousin, John Michael Andrews, principal of the school of nursing, Clayburg Hospital, Woodford Green, Essex, England. He is a member of the General Nursing Council for England and Wales, chairman of the Psychiatric Committee of the Royal College of Nursing.

London. Mr. Andrews was elected by Psychiatric Committee to attend the 14th Quadrennial Congress of the International Council of Nurses held recently at the Place Bonaventure, Montreal, which was attended by approximately 10,000 nurses from 84 countries. The 1965 Congress was held in Frankfurt, Germany, and the 1973 Congress is to be held in Mexico. The last Congress held in Montreal was in 1929.

Considerable interest was given to the role of men in nursing in various countries and Mr. Andrews stated that in England men and women nurses have equal legal recognition in all grades and types of nursing which is not the case in many other countries. The number of men in the nursing profession is on the increase and in England they hold some of the most important nursing appointments in the hospitals.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

as possible before getting around to doing some ruffing.

Furthermore, he wanted to ruff in dummy first. He started by cashing dummy's second high diamond. Then he played three rounds of spades in order to discard dummy's four of diamonds. So far everything was going fine. His next step was to cash his ace and queen of hearts. He had to get them home sometime and he didn't want to take the chance that West might get a heart discard on the third diamond.

Then he led the third diamond. West still had to follow suit but that didn't really matter. By this time South was in full command. He ruffed with dummy's six of trumps and led a heart. It didn't matter which heart he led since he ruffed it with his king of trumps. West was down to trumps by this time and had to undertruff.

Then South led his last spade. West ruffed with the 10 and South was in the pleasant position of being able to make his contract by either overruffing or discarding dummy's last heart. Actually he overruled, led that last heart, ruffed with his nine of clubs and made his 12th trick with dummy's eight after West took his jack.

There are 13 tricks at clubs if the suit breaks 3-2 so it was just as well for North and South that they only reached six.

It was also just as well that South knew how to make 12 tricks against West's five trumps.

He played dummy's queen of trumps at trick two and stopped to plan the entire play of the hand. He had to cash as many side suit cards

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Choose Sunglasses With Great Caution

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Every year, over $100 million is spent in this country on sunglasses of various kinds. Some are worn just for show, some to reduce glare and some to hide corneal scars or other blemishes. The normal eye does very well in the sunlight without sunglasses but, if you are one of those in whom bright daylight causes watering of the eyes or squinting, sunglasses may help you.

In selecting a pair, it is important to get a type that does not reduce your vision or your ability to distinguish colors, especially if you use them for driving. They should never be worn for night driving or for reading indoors, with or without artificial light.

The belief that the world looks better through rose-colored glasses is more fanciful than factual. Neutral gray or smoke-colored glasses that filter out 70 to 80 per cent of the intensity of the light are best, with green a close second. The constant use of sunglasses may cause you to develop too great a dependence on them and reduce your natural ability to tolerate bright light.

There are three types of sunglasses—light-absorbing, polarizing and coated. Absorptive lenses are made by adding certain chemicals to the lenses to remove ultraviolet and infrared rays. Polarizing lenses are especially valuable in reducing glare, which is not the same as intensity. This is a boon to motorists who must drive facing the sun and to fishermen who want to see beneath the water's surface but can't because of the reflected glare. Coated or reflectorized sunglasses have a thin metallic film over the front or back surface. They are a boon to persons who must wear glasses all the time and prefer to have their sunglasses incorporate their prescription instead of wearing clip-ons.

So choose the type best suited to your individual needs but avoid cheap sunglasses. In the long run, they are no bargain. No matter what type you wind up with, never use them to look directly at the sun. The danger of permanent damage to your eyes is less when the sun is near the horizon but, even then, it is still present.

Study matter further

Council wary on parking, cash return is not seen

Council is still not sure whether it will build a parking lot on King Street West, near Murray street.

In a letter to the city, engineer Charles Langlois warned about the venture, saying it would not pay for itself.

East ward alderman Romeo Quintal raised one point yesterday, when he reminded council of the difficulties the owners of the land next to the old Raby et Freres store on King Street West were having with car owners who left their vehicles in the private parking lot and kept store customers from an easy access to the same lot.

Alderman Quintal demonstrated his eagerness by telling council he was ready to accept any mode of cost and profit sharing as long as the lot became a public parking lot.

Alderman Marc Bureau, in a move against his colleague's proposal, told council they should not venture into such a project, by all practical means, since, he said, the owners of the next building, clients of these store owners, needed all the available parking space on that piece of land.

In another proposition, Ald. Gaston Roy suggested the city lease the land for a number of years.

Finally, on a recommendation from East Ward alderman Gerard Deziel, council agreed it would wait for a report establishing the exact parking needs of the building, the number of parking meters available and soon.

Council will take up the matter next week, providing they have the available information.

Forces veteran's unit hit by crooks

Quebec Provincial Police are investigating a break-in at the Army Navy and Airforce Veterans Unit 318 in Lennoxville that gave thieves about $800 in goods.

The theft was discovered early yesterday morning by a maintenance man.

It was reported that 50 bottles of liquor, 40 cartons of cigarettes and $60 in cash were taken from the Lennoxville Unit.

The intruders broke in by using a window at the rear of the private club.

A number of cabinets containing supplies were forced open and emptied.

Police said the intruders used a door at the rear of the Unit to make their escape.

It is the third time Unit 318 in Lennoxville has been broken into and goods taken.

US students like new contacts

QUEBEC (CP) — Louisiana students studying French culture at Laval University here this summer believe the social benefits of their visit almost outweigh what they get from their studies.

Living with Quebec families during the two-month course has enabled them to establish human contacts, an opportunity which delights them, said Prof. Bernard Quinn, their counsellor, in an interview Monday.

The course, designed for perfecting the use of French and preserving French culture in Louisiana, got under way here in 1967, when about 20 students from Louisiana enrolled. The following year, 25 took the course.

This year there are 28-24 girls and four young men. Already, two have indicated they want to live in Quebec, one so that she may marry a French Canadian and one who plans to continue at Laval this winter.

Prof. Quinn and Dr. Philip Grant of the University of Louisiana said they expect others will want to return also.

Generally two students are housed in each home. In the mornings, they attend a two-hour lecture in literature and French grammar, followed by an hour of conversational French. Laval's credits are accepted by the University of Louisiana towards a diploma.

Prof. Quinn said students who take the course usually end up teaching French or working for companies who require a second language.

The students, who arrived June 10, are planning to leave for home Aug. 5.

Magog to rig speed traps, to control not make money

MAGOG — (Special) — The City of Magog has acquired the latest in radar equipment for its police department, in an effort to control speeding within this community.

Eight of the 22-man force have been taking special instruction under the direction of Sgt. T. F. Beatty, of the Provincial Police Highways patrol department, learning how to use the new equipment.

Initially, those caught violating the speed limit in Magog, through use of the radar equipment will get warnings, but the day is near at hand when fines will be handed out without mercy.

Director of Police in Magog, Telesphore Lavoie has stated his confidence in the new equipment, saying that its use will help control the disregard for traffic rules in the community.

The new equipment will be able to track vehicles between 100 and 3,000 feet, and provide a graphic chart to indicate speed levels at any interval within the check made. Mr. Lavoie said the mechanism is not intended as a means to gaining income for Magog by fines, but strictly a measure of control, and a deterrent to speeders.

Sgt. Beatty said the radar equipment is of latest design and most effective.

Parking spot to tenant 1-1

City Hall yesterday granted an East Ward building owner permission to transform a vacant lot on Lafontaine Street into a parking lot for nearby apartment house residents.

The problem as explained in a legal letter to city hall, is that when the owner, Philip Markus erected the apartment building known as Versailles Apartments in 1964, existing regulations called for one parking lot to every three residents, whereas today, the ruling calls for one parking lot to every resident.

Representing his client before council, Sherbrooke Attorney Dewey Zaor pointed out the new change in regulations might cause his client serious problems by threatening the occupancy of his building.

Attorney Zaor told council his client had foreseen a future need for additional parking space when building and had arranged for two parking spaces to every three tenants.

Supporting the measure, East ward alderman Romeo Quintal told council the owner should be congratulated for his gesture and allowed the right to build additional parking facilities for his tenants.

The move will help unclog the parking situation on Lafontaine Street, council agreed.

Perce hippies evicted again, police make arrests

PERCE, Que. (CP) — Town police used fire hoses Monday night to evict about 50 vacationing motorcyclists and hippies from a barn they have been using as a dormitory in this Gaspere resort and fishing town.

A provincial police spokesman said about two or three youths were arrested but no one was injured in the half-hour melee which climaxed a week-long exchange of bitter accusations between the young people and town residents.

A week ago, police and firemen used hoses on 104 youngsters who refused to leave the barn when ordered.

The spokesman said Monday most of the young people left town after the police attack.

Perce is a picturesque village 375 miles east of Quebec City near the famous Perce Rock.

Monday, the visitors were ordered to leave La Maison du Pecheur, their dormitory barn by 5 p.m. by order of the town council.

The council had met in emergency session Saturday night following complaints from local businessmen that the hippiewere ruining the tourist trade, corrupting the town's youth with drugs, and endangering the citizens.

The tourist trade contributes about 80 per cent of the annual income of the village.

The barn, in the heart of the village's tourist district, was rented to 10 Montreal students who had planned to turn it into a coffee house with live entertainment.

But after the town council refused a commercial licence, young visitors turned it into a makeshift dormitory.

Parliamentary session closes on sour note

When the parliamentary session closed on Friday, it left behind it memories of exchanges of personalities and insults such as have seldom been heard in the Canadian House of Commons.

These were not intermittent outbreaks featuring backbenchers but steady and sustained barrages with the heaviest shells being supplied by no less a personage than the Prime Minister of Canada himself.

If the personal attacks of the Prime Minister on Opposition party leaders had been confined to the closing hours of the session they might have been explained away by citing the indignation over the delay in the House adjournment and the mid-summer Ottawa heat.

But, unfortunately, the Prime Minister has shown nothing but contempt for those who disagreed with him during the entire session. By word and deed he has left the impression that once he, and perhaps a few of his specially chosen ministers, have decided upon a course of action it is the responsibility and duty of the Commons to accept the dictates without question.

And the conditions have been aggravated by the frequency of the Prime Minister's statements in the House.

Even on the most contentious piece of legislation — the languages bill being a case in point — he has left the problem of explaining it to one of his colleagues, his only comments being interjections tending to embarrass an Opposition speaker.

From the reaction of the various Opposition party chiefs during the final days of the sitting, Prime Minister Trudeau may succeed in doing what has been generally regarded as politically impossible — bringing some kind of a common front among the widely-separated parties to the left of the Speaker.

With his overwhelming majority in the Commons, this might not embarrass Mr. Trudeau at the present time but he might remember that it was this sort of unofficial and unlikely alliance that paved the way for the Diefenbaker landslide in 1958.

They call'em "pop" tunes because they're enough to make you blow your mind.

Education, newest game

What kinds of plowshares will the sword makers turn to when, if ever, world conditions permit defence spending to be reduced to a happy level comparable with, say, the annual expenditures on parliamentary and congressional stationery?

One example is an unlikely product assembled by a leading aerospace firm in California which is producing a course in drug education aimed at children in grades six through nine.

Described as a complete educational package, the product consists of a three-hour color movie, a 300-page student workbook, a film-slide-tape presentation for teachers and parents, a five-hour teacher course and follow-up materials.

The program, which relies heavily on gaming and stimulation techniques, grew out of the firm's previous experience in teaching basic skills to disadvantaged children. In one, "the Spanish land grant game," 30 failing Mexican-American eighth graders were moved completely away from the school environment for two days.

The youngsters were told to buy a piece of property and draw up a plot. This gave them intense exposure to eighth-grade mathematics. Then they had to apply to the Spanish government for a land grant. To find out how to do this, they had to do research in library use. Finally, composing the application gave them essay-writing experience.

The students, who previously had an attention span of about two hours, enthusiastically worked 16 hours a day on the game. Disciplinary problems almost disappeared.

The drug course, being test-marketed in Maryland at $4 a pupil, likewise avoids the preaching kind of teaching. Instead, students are cast in roles of community decision-makers on questions pertaining to drugs.

The company has developed more than 200 games to stimulate interest in basic learning skills and expects to be in the education business on a large scale in the 1970's.

Now, that's a plowshare.

In restaurants where service is slow, the best waiters are the customers.

US capital punishment

Consider abolishment after abstinence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Since 8:20 p.m. June 2, 1967, when asthmatic Luis Monge coughed in the cyanide gas that killed him, no criminal has been executed in the United States, a development that is stemming the tide to outlaw capital punishment.

Those who would wipe execution from the lawbooks say the unofficial moratorium, now in its third year, has softened interest in the subject for all but the more than 500 convicts held at last count in the barren cell blocks where death is the way of life.

The American Civil Liberties Union spent $6,000 in salaries last year for a staff member to lobby against capital punishment but those that area to economize to zero this year when budgets got tight.

Congressman Robert W. Kastenmeier, Dem. Wis., chairman of the House subcommittee considering his own and other abolition bills, made the point this way:

"Jokingly, but with some bitter truth, I told the ACLU that if they could arrange to have an innocent man hung, I think we could get the bill passed."

Unknown to Kastenmeier that nightmare of the law, execution of an innocent, was apparently averted a couple of months ago at Clearwater, Fla., when two men who had been on death row at Raiford nearly six years for double murder were declared innocent after another man confessed to the crimes.

MAKE VITAL RULINGS
The U.S. Supreme Court has made two important recent rulings on death penalty cases and a third case is scheduled for argument in the next term.

Earlier this year the court knocked out death penalty provisions of the federal Lindbergh kidnap law because a defendant faced death only if he chose jury trial. In another case, the court said jurors may not be excluded from capital cases merely because they have objections to the death penalty, until then a common procedure in many states.

But men, women and even a few who might be called children are waiting to die now.

Many of those in death row cells have been there as long as 10 years. One who has been under death sentence even longer than the 11 years and 10 months undergone by California's Caryl Chessman, executed May 2, 1960, is Edgar Smith, sentenced June 6, 1957, to die in New Jersey's electric chair for the murder of pretty teen-aged Victoria Zielinski.

Another long-timer is Dennis Whitney, now 26. In 1960 Whitney killed seven people in a transcontinental binge of gunfire. He recently wrote his lawyer from the Florida death row that he had become so accustomed to being locked in his cell, a room the size of a family bathroom, that he now is more comfortable inside than out.

A CELL IS ALL
"Try to imagine that," Whitney wrote. "You have now reached a point where you want to be in a cell! A cell is natural. A cell represents security. A cell — is your whole world! Outside of that cell is unnatural."

But Whitney is fighting for his life, urging the lawyer to file any motion that can keep him from the electric chair down the hall.

One man fighting to die is Robert L. Massie, 28, awaiting the gas chamber at San Quentin for murdering a housewife in a 1965 robbery. In a self-typed petition to the courts, he said the delay of his execution is a cruel and unusual punishment.

"I do not want a stay of execution," Massie said, but the U.S. Supreme Court gave him one anyway.

Some of the newer arrivals on death rows are young, a 16-year-old boy at the Ohio Penitentiary, 17-year-old Marie Hill for murder in North Carolina — the youngest woman awaiting death.

Not all those awaiting death are murderers. Alvin Anderson, 17, was sentenced May 21 at Ocala, Fla., for rape. Edward Boykin awaits death in Alabama for robbery.

DEATH FOR DUELING

But most states reserve the death penalty for murderers and kidnapers. Other crimes which 10 or more states punish with death include dueling, treason, perjury in a capital trial, and train wrecking.

Georgia allows death as punishment for desecrating a grave or causing death by mishandling a poisonous reptile. Arkansas makes it a capital offence to force a woman to marry. In the federal law it is a death penalty offence to sell heroin to anyone under 17.

Numberous bills in Congress would abolish death as a penalty in the federal law.

There was one execution in 1966, in Oklahoma, two in 1967 and none in 1968, the first year in which no person was legally executed in the United States since such records have been kept.

Eight states — Alaska, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Oregon, West Virginia, and Wisconsin — have abolished the death penalty, three of them since 1963.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — (TNS) — When does a debate in the House of Commons become a filibuster? After it has gone for a few hours, a week, 10 days, a month?

There is no standard yardstick for fixing the cutoff stage in terms of time. It all depends on the complexity and importance of the subject matter under discussion. A simple, non-contentious matter may be disposed of in a jiffy. A complicated and controversial measure may need a lengthy discussion merely for clarification of all its implications.

In every debate, however, there comes a point where everything pertinent has been stated and arguments become repetitive. In parliamentary discussion that is the point when debate changes into filibuster. From then on, the purpose of the Opposition is no longer scrutiny but blockage of the measure with the hope that delay through repetition of previously stated objections and arguments will alert the electorate to the issue at stake and generate public pressure on the Government to abandon or modify its position. This happened last December when the Government dropped the dictatorial rule 16-A.

When the public reaction anticipated by the Opposition does not materialize, the protracted debate either collapses (as was the case with the Creditists' filibuster of the "omnibus" Bill amending the Criminal Code) or the Government breaks the verbal by invoking closure (e.g., in the flag debate). Even in such cases, however, the seemingly futile and time-wasting filibuster serves the useful purpose of providing a safety valve for strong emotions which, if bottled up, could cause trouble.

For this reason, a wise government in a genuine representative democracy will put up with the inconvenience of an occasional parliamentary filibuster, because it knows that muzzling strongly-held views would leave a residue of bitterness that could be dangerous to the political system over which it presides.

The Government's first line of defence against an artificially protracted debate in the Commons is to make the charge of filibuster. But it is asking for trouble if it makes the charge prematurely.

Such a premature charge was laid last week by Prime Minister Trudeau when he accused the opposition parties of conducting a "stupid filibuster" after only three days of debate of the proposed new time allocation rules.

The charge, apart from its offensive language, was premature because, dealing with the complex and important issue, the Opposition had barely outlined its arguments against what it considers to be an attempt to muzzle Parliament. Even under the proposed new rule 75-C which is the bone of contention, the minimum time allocated for debate unilaterally by the Government would be three to four sitting days. The PM's intemperate charge was, therefore, unsupported, even within the framework of the "muzzling rule." The Opposition took it, not without reason, as an illustration of the Government's disregard for and arrogant treatment of Parliament.

I cite a few samples of the arguments against Rule 75-C. I'll continue to quote excerpts from Hansard to give the reader a chance to judge for himself whether or not the Opposition is guilty of "a stupid filibuster" in the rules debate.

Tory House leader G. W. Baldwin: "... If, by exercising their responsibility, they (the opposition parties) become convinced that what the Government is proposing is wrong and must not be passed, they have a duty, using this House as a forum and using the public media to report our deliberations, to make a case to the public to enable them to be aroused..."

Stanstead Historical Society

STANSTEAD — The annual meeting of the Stanstead Historical Society will take place on Saturday, August 2 at the Stanstead Museum at two o'clock. However, the executive invite members and persons interested in early history to come early and browse through the museum. There are several additions added since the last annual and the April meetings. Glen Brown, MNA from Brome County, president of the Brome Historical Society will be the guest speaker. His topic will be the importance of the Eastern Townships in the past and the future.

The third volume of the society journal has been printed and will be on sale at the meeting. This is one which no one will want to miss out on for there are several early pictures of the area as well as stories of our past. Volume one is completely sold but there are a few of volume two left for sale. Eventually these will become collectors items.

The meeting will include hearing the reports, the plans for the October 11 pilgrimage in the Magog area and election of officers.

After the meeting all have been invited to the lovely historic home of Mrs. Austin Foster in Derby Line for tea. All travelling over the border into Vermont will be given a special ticket which will speed passing through Customs and without doubt will be kept as a souvenir of a happy day spent at the Border.

Following the tea the Society Farm Museum in Rock Island on the Banting Farm will be opened to visitors.

Islanders live high, tax free

LONDON (AP) — One of the world's smallest tax havens, a two-square-mile granite island with a population of 16, has a new owner who does not bother about taxes in any case.

Dozens of wealthy bidders had been trying to buy Lundy Island for a tax-free home, but they lost out to Britain's National Trust, a non-profit foundation that protects historic lands and buildings.

To purchase Lundy the trust paid $360,000 it obtained as a gift from a wealthy Briton who now lives in the Bahamas — also a favorite tax haven.

The purchase means that Lundy, in the Bristol Channel between southwest England and Wales, will remain open to tourists. A trust official says it also means Lundy's 16 residents — five married couples and six lighthouse keepers — can continue to live in the tax haven without fear of eviction.

No figures are made public on how many Britons leave England for sunnier tax climates, but the number is growing.

"A lot of people have been thinking about it since the capital gains tax went into effect in 1965," says one London account.

The Englishman who wants to cut his tax bill does not have to go far from home. Surrounding Britain are dozens of small islands and two large ones, the Channel Islands of Jersey and Guernsey, that have special relationships to the crown allowing them to legislate their own internal affairs. And taxes are definitely internal, they insist.

PAY 20 PER CENT

Jersey, near France, boasts lots of sunshine, fine beaches, beautiful homes — and no sales tax, no capital gains tax, no estate tax. Its income tax is a flat 20 per cent, compared to Britain's top rate of 91 per cent.

Islanders need not sever their ties with London completely. Britain generally allows them to visit as often as they like, just so the time does not total more than three months a year.

The Channel Islands became a part of Britain in 1066, when William the Conqueror took over England and combined it with Normandy. France later recaptured Normandy, but not the nearby islands.

While the islands have their own legislatures, Queen Elizabeth is still the ultimate power. Britain also provides some services, such as postal deliveries and telephones. Thus Britain could legally impose taxes on the islands, but centuries of tradition and even financial reasons dictate non-interference.

ISRAEL'S NAVY FROGMEN are keeping on their toes in the event of another Mideast flare-up. Here, they practice underwater maneuvers and beach assaults. The Israelis, like their Arab neighbors, are preparing for war should no peaceful settlement of their differences be reached.

Common remedies can have fatal effects

EDMONTON (CP) — Common remedies for aches and pains have poisonous, even fatal, effects if taken in heavy doses for long periods.

This conclusion was reached by two Queen's University pharmacologists from experiments with guinea pigs.

Dr. E. M. Boyd and Mrs. Giovanna Carro-Ciampi gave a report on their study to the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Biological Societies.

They said that large daily doses of acid and phenacetin, two prevalent ingredients in common remedy tablets, produce toxic effects in guinea pigs if given to the animals over one-tenth of their three-year life span.

The drugs affected the brain, lungs, liver, kidney and sex organs as well as causing death.

Dr. Boyd estimated the dosages given the animals would correspond to about 25 to 100 a day taken by a human adult.

He said that such doses taken over "five or 10 years" could produce the same toxic effect in humans.

Dr. Boyd said there would be no harmful effects if such drugs are taken according to the government-approved labels.

Some people, however, took large doses constantly to relieve rheumatic pains, for example, only to become worse after a while.

The pharmacologist said he does not think it practical to demand such drugs be sold only by prescription.

"It's a tradition of law that people have an inherent right to attempt to cure themselves, except for things like contagious diseases."

STITCHIN' TIME

Knitters—Now Suit Yourself

If the weight of the morning's mail bag is any indication, knitters pick up their needles a rest. Many are asking for specific styles to knit, and recent letters show a preference for a good, basic suit — simple and smart.

The answer for most of you will be the three-piece hand knit I'm featuring today. It has a sleek and easy skirt with a classic cardigan jacket. The suit is a modified version of the ever-popular Chanel styling with its clean lines and narrow border trim. As an added attraction, the suit includes a sleeveless, square neck shell knitted in a three-color stripe. You'll want to wear it with other knitted or fabric skirts, too.

Knit the costume in Bucilla Paradise Yarn in colors to suit your favorite season. Instructions are available for sizes 10 to 18.

For your copy of an instruction leaflet for the three-piece suit, send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, c/o your local newspaper, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet S172 and be sure to include your name, address and zip code.

Knit Knacks

Dear Judy Love: In a recent column you answered a question concerning cardigans that "ride up" in the back. You advised using short rows. My question is, how to solve the problem of riding up when making straight neck yarn-over raglan cardigans?—H. B.

Dear H. B.: When yarn-over raglan cardigans ride up in back, the real problem usually is in the front shaping. These cardigans often are somewhat less than roomy at the bustline, causing the back to pull up.

To solve the problem, you can work short rows, but do them in the front of your work. Start about one inch below the armhole at the point where a dart would be placed in sewn work. This should give you a little more fullness in front, allowing the shoulder line to fall in proper place. The back of your garment will then stay smoothly in place.

Wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Saffin

DANVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Saffin of the Pinnacle were guests of honor at a surprise party at Mar-Lodge, the occasion being their 40th wedding anniversary. On leaving home, they were supposedly going out for an evening with the immediate family. On arrival at Mar-Lodge, accompanied by the Rev. Roy and Mrs. LeGrow, sister of Mrs. Saffin; they were surprised to find many of their friends and relatives assembled and waiting for their arrival.

Following the reading, Mr. Monahan presented the couple with a purse of money from the friends assembled, along with many other gaily wrapped gifts.

The table was centered with the traditional wedding cake, made and decorated by Mrs. John Beard, along with bouquets of pink and white peonies. A buffet lunch was served to about 125 guests at the close of the ceremony.

Joseph Edward Saffin and Evelyn Mary Stevens were married at St. Paul's Church, Trout Brook on June 26, 1929, followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. They have always resided on the old homestead of the Saffin family.

On arriving at Mar-Lodge the guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Saffin and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stevens, while Miss Marlene Goodenough was in charge of the guest book. Among those attending from a distance were: Mrs. Lindsay Shaw, Mrs. Leslie Shaw, Miss Ida Stevens, all of Concord, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Worden and Mr. Ernest Saffin of Burlington, Vt.; Rev. and Mrs. Roy LeGrow of Sunbury, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kidd, Montreal; Mr. Russell Saffin, Ottawa; Mrs. Gladys George, Dorval, as well as friends and relatives from Richmond, Kingsbury, Island Brook and the local area.

A corsage was presented to Mrs. Saffin by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ronald Stevens, and a boutonniere to Mr. Saffin by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frances Saffin. Present for the occasion were the bridesmaid Miss Ida Stevens, sister of the bride, and Mr. Ernest Saffin, brother of the groom, now residing in Concord, N.H., and Burlington, Vt., respectively. They also received a corsage and boutonniere.

After receiving the congratulations and best wishes from those present, dancing was enjoyed to the music of Haseltine's Orchestra.

Mr. Roy Monahan, mayor of Shipton, on behalf of those present, made a few remarks and invited Mrs. Roy LeGrow to read a composition by Mrs. Andrew Horan prepared especially for this occasion.

Maternity leave... practices under study

OTTAWA... Maternity leave and its acceptance by the employer is the subject of a survey conducted by the Economics and Research Branch for the Women's Bureau of the Canada Department of Labour.

This is the first time such a comprehensive survey has been made on this subject in Canada. Formal leave policies in a sample representative of 5,177 reporting units were examined, comprising 103,182 office workers and 199,842 non-office workers.

The number of women who work in establishments that grant maternity leave on an informal basis would add considerably to these totals.

Maternity leave is a relatively new addition to the list of employee benefits; it is the subject of legislation in two provinces — British Columbia and New Brunswick.

There is a wide dispersion in the proportion of employees under the various time periods for total length of maternity leave, but the distribution clusters between 12 and 26 weeks for both office and non-office employees.

The survey indicates that most employers, whether bound by collective agreements or not, desire notification from the employee in advance of the date when she wishes to return to work after maternity leave. Some employees are required to provide a medical certificate stating that they are able to resume their duties, but this applies more to non-office employees than office workers, particularly in manufacturing.

Reinstatement in the job she left is the predominant practice for both categories of employee.

With few exceptions, employers do not continue wages during any part of maternity leave. A small percentage of employees are covered by wage loss insurance plans which provide partial pay during maternity leave.

The report of the survey is now available on request from the Director, Women's Bureau, Canada Department of Labour, 340 Laurier Avenue West, Ottawa, Ont.

Soda, safe and sound

Troubadours seldom sang a lady's praises without some reference to her pearly white teeth. How did she manage to keep them that way without benefit of toothbrush or paste? By rubbing them with ground marble, ground baked clay or pumice... with an assist from a quill by gentlefolk, a knife by lowborns. Such treatment may have contributed to the appearance of teeth but certainly not to their lasting power.

Today we know that the appearance and longevity of teeth go hand-in-hand. Treat them right with regular dental check-ups and conscientious brushing; and they'll last and last and last...

There's one aspect of good home care that you seldom think of, and that's cost. Totaled over a period of years and with our teeth outwearing those of our forebears, we can spend a considerable amount, especially with such lavish paste users as children around.

Well, here's a suggestion that any dentist will go along with. Use baking soda for both dentifrice and mouthwash. If you'd like to prove to yourself how much you can stand to save in a single year on mouth-care, keep a piggy bank in the bathroom. Each time you buy a box of soda, bank the difference between what you paid for the soda and what you would normally have spent on a tube of paste and a bottle of mouthwash. You'll be surprised at the size of your end-of-the-year dividend.

Should you have qualms about saving on your teeth, don't. Being an antacid, baking soda counteracts the decay-causing acids in your mouth. And using a teaspoon of soda in a glass of water as a mouthwash between brushings extends this protection. You'll also be refreshing your mouth and breath. Don't forget, it's good old baking soda that's used to sweeten the refrigerator and anything else around the house that's plagued by unwanted odors.

Diamonds still a girl's best friend, her's...

NEW YORK (AP) — Anita Loos races around her spacious West Side apartment with the bounce of a frisky puppy, the stride of a leggy model.

Maybe no one told her she is 76 years old and barely four feet 11 inches high. Her tiny body, crammed with non-stop energy and humor, is still bubbling with the same verve that created zany Lorelei Lee in the book Gentlemen Prefer Blondes 44 years ago.

Lorelei, you'll recall, was the not-so-dumb blonde from Little Rock who uttered that classic gem: "Kissing your hand can make a girl feel very good, but a diamond bracelet lasts forever."

Still true? "Oh, yes," insists Miss Loos, "diamonds are still a girl's best friend. But..."

The bubble bursts. "But she has to buy them herself these days!"

"European men are more generous than American men," she volunteers sympathetically. "American men have a reputation for being givers, but they can't touch the English, French and Italians."

"And there's a terrible inferiority on the part of American men. They think that if they give a present, it makes suckers of them. They want to be loved for themselves."

AMERICANS UNHAPPY

Her voice quickened as she propelled herself back and forth in a child-like rocking chair. On the trips forward, her toes just touched the ground.

And therefore...

"The European woman is happy. The American woman is frustrated, unhappy and bitchy. Because it's in the nature of women to give, and American women have always gone against their natures. They're takers."

During the country's flirtation with flaming youth, Anita Loos might have been among the first famous females to "bob" her hair into the gamine-like style of the flappers. Today, a few dark blonde wisps in front still frame her face — but the back is long, neatly twisted into a knot.

The over-all effect is still overwhelmingly flapper. She recreates her own Roaring '20s image by wearing a brown sailor dress that swings a good two inches above the knees.

Comparisons with the 1920s are apt. She sees the rebellion of those wild years as being similar to that of today's youth, and likes to quote a title she wrote for the 1913 silent film, A Cure for Suffragettes — "We will stop at nothing to get something."

Railway workers start a strike of their own

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP) — About 1,000 employees of the Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway, off work since mid-May because of a strike of iron ore workers, started a walkout of their own Monday.

The railway workers, members of the International Association of Machinists, vote 95 per cent in favor of strike at a meeting Sunday in this St. Lawrence River port.

A spokesman said their main grievances involve wages, fringe benefits and Sunday work.

Local chairman Fernand Dumont said the vote could also be interpreted as support for striking members of the United Steelworkers of America in three northern communities served by the railway.

However, he said the railway workers did not mean to exert pressure on negotiations between the steelworkers union and management, which got under way Thursday in Quebec City.

Mr. Dumont said the railway workers have decided to keep a supply train running to the mining towns of northern Quebec.

When the steelworkers went on strike, the railway workers agreed not to cross picket lines to haul ore from the mines. However, they did agree to run weekly supply trains, bringing food and fuel to the northern towns.

The railway, which runs 320 miles north, is the only land link for the Quebec and Labrador communities.

Last Thursday a five-man delegation left Labrador City for Ottawa to protest the government's seeming indifference to the railway operation.

Tom Burgess, independent member of the Newfoundland legislature for Labrador West, said his people have come to the end of their patience.

The Canadian Transport Commission ordered the railway to ship gasoline and fuel oil into the area but only after a determined group of citizens sent hundreds of collect phone calls to Ottawa last week. Mr. Burgess said.

After meeting Transport Minister Don Jamieson in Ottawa Saturday, a delegation spokesman said the group had received assurances that federal ministers will do all in their power to keep the rail line open.

Alouettes' streak broken, lose 6-2 to Royals

By BRIAN HANNA

The front running Drummondville Royals capitalized on several Sherbrooke miscues last night and captured a scheduled Quebec Baseball League game 6-2 from the host Alouettes.

The Al's starting pitcher was left-hander Andy Occhionero while the visiting Royals countered with righty Larry Moore. The Alouettes were only too aware that a win would place them within three and a half games of the league leaders. But this thought entertained their minds only and never had a chance to materialize.

The game started peacefully enough, with both hurlers mowing down the first three hitters of each team. In the top of the second Drummondville came up with two runs on a single to right field by Magnuson followed by Bob Gear's triple and a fielding error upon which he crossed the plate for the second run. The Sherbrooke squad seemed to be stymied and were retired in order for the first three innings and did not, in fact, connect for a hit until the fourth inning.

Occhionero pitched himself out of a tight jam in the top of the fifth when he fanned Leroy Gregory with the bases loaded. The Alouettes threatened in the bottom of the fifth, but, as happened all game long, their men were left stranded on base.

In their half of the sixth, however, they were not to be denied. Hustling Willie Maddison singled to right to start things going and promptly stole second. Juan Joa was issued a base on balls, putting men on first and second. Juan Tejada sacrificed to the pitcher, advancing the runners to second and third.

Haley Young, the next hitter up, was given a second chance and did not waste any time exploiting the opportunity. Young had hit a foul pop-up to the catcher but it was dropped. Young then singled solidly to left, scoring Maddison, while Joa scampered to third. Felipe was robbed of a base hit by the slick fielding of the Royal's second baseman but Young was still able to get around to second and Joa scored.

Drummondville came up with two more runs in the top of the seventh and, in the process, starter Occhionero was replaced by reliefer Gayeski. In the midst of the action Maddison performed a brilliantly executed running catch in left field.

Drummondville added the insurance tallies in the eighth inning when Chuck Hughes belted a two-run homer to make the score 6-2 which turned out to be the final result.

Long draught ends for Tommy Aaron beats Sam Snead in playoff round

MONTREAL (CP) — Tommy Aaron has joined golf's establishment.

He's finally shed the stigma of the perennial also-ran by winning a tournament.

The tall, 32-year-old from Callaway Gardens, Ga., made it to the winner's circle Monday after a nine-year wait, winning the Canadian open championship and the Seagram Gold Cup by two strokes in an 18-hole playoff round with veteran Sam Snead, 25 years his senior.

"I guess you won't talk about the fact I've never won one now," Aaron gently chided newsmen. "You'll probably quit writing about me because there's nothing unique about me now. I've become one of the guys. I've won one."

Aaron shot a two-under-par 70 over the Pinegrove Golf Club layout while Snead had to settle for a par-72.

His victory was a big one financially as well as psychologically. He won $25,000 to Snead's $14,300 and added $4,500 as his share of the gate.

Snead also picked up $4,500 additional money from gate receipts of $18,000 from the estimated 3,000-strong gallery. Fifty per cent of playoff gates are assigned to the golfers involved, with the Royal Canadian Golf Association and the host club equally splitting the other 50 per cent.

SETS COURSE RECORD

The pair had finished the regulation 72-hole route Sunday with identical 13-under-par 275 scores, with Aaron setting a course record with an eight-under 64 in the fourth round to catch Snead.

The veteran had held a six-stroke lead over Aaron entering Sunday's round.

Aaron had registered eight second-place finishes since turning pro in 1960, but had never been able to better those performances.

However, he did his first victory up in style. Leading by one stroke going into the 18th, Aaron guided in a 25-foot putt for an eagle three, while Snead had his eagle attempt from 40 feet miss by less than an inch and slide four feet beyond the cup. He birdied the hole, but only after the excitement caused by Aaron's effort had died down.

Aaron said he considered himself lucky to beat the wily Snead. They played together in the first and second rounds.

"In the first and second rounds I didn't feel I was playing good," Aaron said. "And until yesterday (Sunday) I didn't think I'd played well throughout."

He said luck was with him on the fifth hole where "I made a real long putt (75 feet) and really used the putter like a driver from the very front of the green."

Senators and Indians take the wins in Little League action

By TED ANDERSON

League play resumed last night after a trying period in the Regional Play-offs.

The Sher-Lenn Little League had two games on tap. Senators took a 9-4 win over the Twins and Indians stretched their lead with an 18-4 win over the Tigers.

Tonight Red Sox and White Sox tangle and Yankees visit Orioles. Both games at the Parade Grounds.

The Senators had Michel Murray pitching the first three innings. Hits from Kenny Raban and Michel Bernier coupled with an error in the top of the first inning, got them away to a 2-0 lead. Murray with two strikeouts and an infield out put the Twins down in order in their part of the first.

Each team went hitless in the second inning. Peter Bishop, the Twins' hurler, put away the Senator batters down one, two, three in the top of the third.

Michel Murray came up with his sixth strikeout in the bottom of the third.

Six hits in the top of the fourth which produced five runs made it a 7-0 ball game in Senators' favor. Kenny Raban with his second hit started the uprising.

Other hitters in the inning were Bernard Boutin, Rejean Dostie, Claude Charpentier, Marcel Morin and Roch Watier.

Twins in the fourth got two of these runs back as Claude Charpentier who had taken over from Murray walked three men. These walks with a hit from Jacques Gendron, sent in two runs. Kenny Raban, coming up with his third hit of the game and singles for two strikeouts and an infield out put the Twins down in order in their part of the first.

Twins tallied twice in their part of the fifth. Terry Kerridge with a double and Jacques Gendron with his second hit. One run in the top of the sixth for Senators finished off the scoring for the night. Senators won the game on the long end of a 9-4 count.

M. Morin and K. Raban were the Senator stars each having three hits. Jacques Gendron starred for the Twins.

Coach "Moon" Mullins, perhaps the most patient coach in the league, despite his proteges, lost again last night to the Indians. Their sixteenth loss this season. His coaching has improved and his players play well in each game.

Indians heavy artillery was again in evidence as they came up with 17 hits for 18 runs in the game.

They used four pitchers while young Mario Chevalier went all the way for the Tigers.

Each team came up with single runs in the first inning. Indians got their tally on a hit by Michel Benoit and an error. Tigers got theirs on three walks and a fielder's choice.

Tigers went down in order in the top of the second. Hits from Rejean Dostie, Rejean Cabana and Jacques Williams pushed two runs across the plate for Indians in the bottom of the second. Tigers were still looking for their first hit in the top of the third. They did get two men on base by walks, but they were kept off the score sheet.

A big eight-run third inning salted the game away for the Indians. Twelve men went to bat in this frame and they connected for nine hits. Benoit started the avalanche followed by Lambert, Greigore, D. Halle, Benoit again Williams and B. Halle. Indians got five more in the fifth and finished off with two in the sixth. Tigers got their second, third and fourth run in the top of the fourth.

Feature of the game was that although Tigers got four runs they were held hitless in the game.

Foreign competition at Henley Regatta

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — About 700 oarsmen and scullers from 31 United States and Canadian rowing clubs will square off this week in the 87th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

The four-day Canadian rowing championship, which starts Thursday on the revamped Henley course, boasts one of the strongest programs in history. It will take 60 elimination heats to set the field for the regatta's 40 gold medal finals.

"The entry may not be as big as some in the past, but I would have to say it is the best balanced I can remember," said Claude Saunders of Hamilton, regatta chairman for the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

The Ecorse Boat Club of Ecorse, Mich., boasts the largest entry in this 1969 Henley. But most rowing experts look to the St. Catharines Rowing Club, regatta champions for the last eight years in succession, to repeat for the Maple Leaf Trophy, emblematic of the Henley points' championship.

St. Catharines, however, faces strong opposition in many events from the larger U.S. clubs, here to test their crews before the Aug. 16 U.S. National Rowing Championships at Philadelphia.

They have U.S. berths for the European rowing championships at Klagenfurt, Austria, in September riding on their showing in that regatta.

In addition to Ecorse, strong American contingents are already here from Buffalo West Sides, Philadelphia Undines, New York AC, Wyandotte, Mich., Rochester, N.Y., Philadelphia Vespers, Minnesota, Boston Union, Penn AC of Philadelphia and the Detroit Boat Club. All are expected to be in the thick of the fight for trophy honors.

Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Leanders are looked upon as the biggest Canadian threats to St. Catharines. But other Ontario entries from Brockville and London have solid entries this week, along with the Chomedey

Rowing Club of Montreal. A small Winnipeg contingent is making the longest Canadian trek here, but Lake Washington of Seattle and Long Beach of California are setting the distance mark. Each club has scullers entered.

The large entry list has forced the association to schedule morning heats Thursday to set the field for the afternoon's three finals. The next two days see racing running from noon until 8 p.m., with 17 senior championship events on Sunday completing a packed four days of competition.

Montreal Expos: "A love-in from the start"

MONTREAL—(N.E.A.)—For the greater part of this baseball season, the Montreal Expos have led the major leagues in number of games lost.

Well, here it was the mid-die of July and one mid-week night game there were 18,000 fans present for an alleged contest against the Pirates, 23,500 for a Friday night game against the Mets, 21,000 the next afternoon and over 27,000 (2,000 short of capacity) for a doubleheader with New York.

These folks, about 80 per cent of whom are French-Canadian, don't use Jarry Park simply as a comfortable place to daydream about Jean Beliveau. They chant, they stomp, they scream for the umpire's hide and, with the visitors ahead 9-0 in the fourth inning, give a standing ovation to a home run by local hero Rusty Staub.

"It has been," said Montreal Star sports editor Red Fisher, "a damn love-in from the start."

The Expos come off a road trip, after having extended a losing streak to 20, and are greeted in a downtown plaza by 10,000 people tumbling out of offices at lunch-time. After another road trip, Gary Waslewski takes the mound and is met with a roar, in appreciation for having won two games in the United States. He is belted out in the first inning and departs to polite applause.

Enthusiasm for the game does not, however, match the Canadians' knowledge of the game, according to some players.

One Expo player recalled a game in which Bill Stoneman of the locals had a 2-0 lead in the last inning, with one out. He was throwing hard, but got a two-ball, no-strike count on the next batter.

"The fans began shouting to take the pitcher out," said the Expo player. "But Stoneman was in no trouble. They just don't know the game that well."

So how is it that these people have taken so grandly to a game that is supposed to be dead or, at least, is to hockey what a sleep-walker is to a sprinter? One point is the all-encompassing promotional genius of the Expo organization. Ride on one of the town's subway cars and there is an advertisement entitled, "Baseball Exposé."

Baseball terms, such as pinch-hitter, Texas Leaguer and Blind Tom, are translated into English and French and defined.

"Not long ago," said another Montreal sports-writer, "the Expos management sent engraved invitations for a dinner-dance honoring of all things, the local press. Obviously it was an attempt to butter us up. Mind you, I didn't go—after all, my readers would think 'Ah, they plied him with booze and gave him an old baseball and now he writes sweet things about the Expos." But it shows to what extent the club will go for publicity.

Expo manager Gene Mauch said, "The fans want to see good entertainment. And we give it to them. We lose a lot, sure, but we lose hard. They like that. They also like to see the Mayzys and Gibbons. It's a good show. And the people like baseball. You know, when Montreal had a Triple A team here it always drew well."

Dan Rosenberg, a local baseball writer, wondered how hockey fans can go for baseball. "I was reading, he said, "where a psychologist compared scoring a goal to a sexual thrill. He also

3-Forehand Grip

I squeeze the racket handle tight enough to turn my knuckles white. I am not recommending that every one grip his racket this firmly, but the need for a firm grip for all strokes cannot be emphasized too strongly.

The most popular grip is approached with the "shake-hand," or Eastern style. A "crease" should be made between thumb and forefinger directly over the racket handle. The fingers are curved in a comfortable shake-hands position.

The racket head is elevated on a diagonal about eight inches above the butt of the racket. The face of the racket is not tilted to either the right or the left. The player should not be able to see the strings if the racket is in the proper ready position.

Adults should not have to choke up on the racket. However, it is permissible for children to choke up three to six inches to help them swing more easily. Again, the grip should be comfortable and very firm, not relaxed.
