Chateauguay Valley Jersey Cattle Club Urged to Become Interested in Cow Testing

Field-day Held at Mr. D. M. Rowat's, N. P., Honored With Presence of R. G. Davidson, M.P., President of Quebec Jersey Cattle Club — P. N. April, District Agronomist Encourages Experimental Work on All Pastures Using Chemical Fertilizers

Six months ago a number of our farmers throughout the Chateauguay Valley, interested in the breeding of Jersey cattle were brought together, largely through the influence of Mr D. M. Rowat, N.P., and organized themselves into the Chateauguay Valley Jersey Cattle Club. The six months' interval has found this small association increase its interest in the breed. To further augment interest in the breed and to improve their knowledge of Jersey cattle a field-day was held at the summer home and farm of the Club president, Mr. D. M. Rowat, N.P., Dewittville. This field-day was held on Thursday and was attended by approximately 100 people.

In the morning a judging contest was held and an opportunity was given to men, ladies and boys to participate. Following this judging demonstration Mr. Elmo Ashton of Foster, Que. gave a talk on type of Jersey cattle. Mr. Ashton, recognized as the outstanding Jersey authority in our province gave a very informative address which was much appreciated by his fellow breeders. Professor Alex. Ness gave the placings of the animals as well as constructive criticism as to why he made such placings. At all such barn demonstrations when Professor Ness is present the audience always has much to learn from his fruitful messages, Thursday's meeting was no exception to this rule.

At the noon hour a basket picnic was held beneath the beautiful shade trees on the spacious lawns about Mr. Rowat's summer residence. Through the courtesy of Mr. Armitage of the Guaranteed Pure Milk Co. a quantity of ice cream was donated to the Club, which in turn was sold so that money might be provided for the Club expenses and prizes in connection with the field-day. Thanks to W. F. Martin, who has long been interested in the breeding of Jersey cattle, he supplied a quantity of fruit, which was greatly enjoyed by young and old alike. Following the luncheon Mr. R. J. M. Reid, who is largely responsible for the organization of the field-day, presided over a short program of addresses.

Mr. R. G. Davidson, M.P. (Stanstead, Que.) former president of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club and at the present time president of the Quebec Jersey Cattle Club, was a distinguished guest for this field-day. The Club were highly delighted to have Mr. Davidson with them and to hear from him such encouraging remarks pertaining to the increased interest and development of Jersey cattle throughout Canada and more especially in the Province of Quebec. Mr. Davidson stated that in 1936 the Jersey Cattle Club membership numbered 1,590, whilst in 1934 it was 1,259. This, Mr. Davidson thought, was a very remarkable growth for that particular period of time. The Jersey cattle breeders have been playing a very important role in regards to record of performance work. In 1936, 1,722 R. O. P.'s were recorded.

The Quebec Province Jersey Cattle Club has been found quite active. Jerseys have greatly increased and to a large extent Mr. Davidson gave credit to the provincial fieldman, Mr. L. V. Parent. Mr. Parent, we might also state, is a secretary of the Quebec Jersey Cattle Club. The Jersey breeders in the province of Quebec have nearly doubled the number of R. O. P. tests in 1936 over that of 1934.

As a director to your parent association I have urged that the annual meeting be held in Montreal in order to make it a little more convenient for our provincial breeders to attend. This change of meeting place has not yet been approved, but I feel that the greatly increased interest in Jersey cattle and the great number of new members becoming identified with the association will mean that in a very short time our parent association will want to hold a meeting in this province. To further prove what I have said in regards to the possibility of this breed in Quebec province, I might say that only a few years ago I attended the St. Hyacinthe Exhibition and at that time only two herds of Jerseys were present. This year 10 Jersey herds representing 150 head of cattle were exhibited at St. Hyacinthe.

Mr. Davidson, being a member of parliament at Ottawa, is also a desk mate of our representative, Mr. D. E. Black, M.P. Mr. Davidson brought attention to the fact that domestic shortening is going to eventually prove itself to be a real competitor to the butter market if legislation is not enacted to protect our dairy farmers. Vegetable oils are a serious matter for the dairymen to oppose, and it is unfair competition when one considers the profits that are being made from vegetable oils at the expense of the dairymen. My contention is that these products might well be taxed for processing, for such a tax is applied in the United States. If a similar tax were placed on these commodities in Canada it would net our government $9,000,000 a year and this amount might very advantageously be spent on agricultural work, should the government not have a better use for same.

Professor Alex. R. Ness of Macdonald College stated that it was not logical or advisable to make comparison between breeds of cattle, for if cattle were like people, no two

Ormstown Man Holds Lucky Ticket

Lawrence Beaudin, the Lucky Winner Will Continue Working With His Esteemed Father

Mr. Lawrence Beaudin, Ormstown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Beaudin, received a grand surprise a few days ago when he received a check for $10,000, the value of the main prize for the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association Membership. Another prize of $200 was received by a local man in Ormstown for the selling of this prize membership. Lawrence Beaudin is a very fine young man and is but 22 years of age. This membership ticket was the first such ticket he has ever purchased. In talking to Lawrence, he informed us that he was going to continue with his work in company with his father and not take any chances in losing any portion of his money. The Beaudin family have long been noted for their business acumen, therefore if this $10,000 came easily to Lawrence, we can all feel quite safe to say it will be well and profitably taken care of. We offer our congratulations to Lawrence and hope he will profit much by this stroke of "good luck."

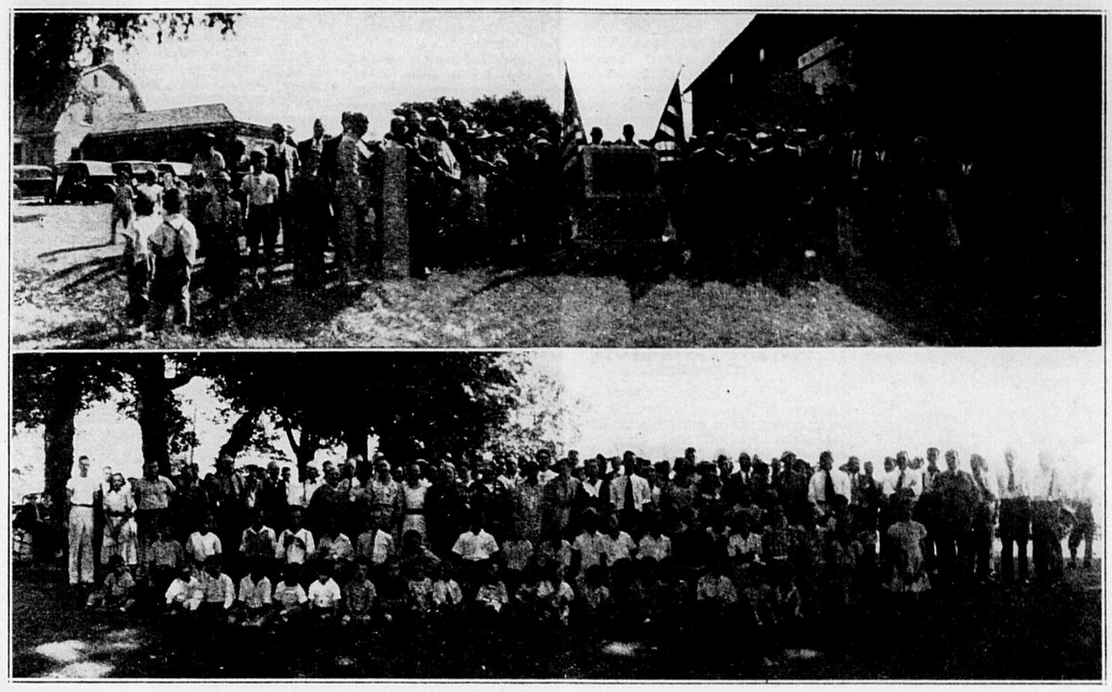

Bicycle-Truck Night Crash on Dundee Road

Truck Being Driven Without Lights Unnoticed by Two Young Cyclists

A collision between a bicycle and a light delivery truck nearly resulted in a serious accident on the Dundee Centre Road, about ½ mile west of Zion Church corner on Thursday night. Ditro Desjardins and Jas. Henderson, both of Dundee, were cycling east along the road just as darkness had well settled in when they met a car driven by Rev. Father Boissonault of St. Agnes, going west. They passed this safely, however, but did not see another vehicle which came towards them without lights, taking them completely by surprise. The driver of the unlighted vehicle, a small Chevrolet truck, Mr. Ligouri Lortie of Dundee attempted to miss the cyclists but was unable to do so. The truck struck Desjardins' bicycle head on completely demolishing it. The rider was catapulted on to the front fender into the ditch where he landed head first.

Henderson, who was following Desjardins, managed to jump from his bicycle and clear the truck as it passed. The driver stopped and gave assistance to Desjardins who received a severe shaking up. Fortunately no bones were broken. His bicycle was a total wreck. The truck was not badly damaged except for a broken head-lamp where the bicycle struck it.

Abe Ogilvie Again Captures Honors at Gladioli Exhibition

At the annual Gladioli Exhibition held at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel on Wednesday and Thursday our old friend Albert B. Ogilvie of North Georgetown won the honor of "grand sweepstake for the largest number of points in open class", as well as "the special sweepstake for the exhibitor with the greatest number of points in the three spike classes.

It will be recalled that Abe Ogilvie became so successful in his initial attempt at growing flowers he has become one of Montreal's recognized professional showmen of this variety of beautiful flowers.

Fall Hunting Season Is Declared Open Today

Hunting of birch partridge, spruce partridge and sharp-tailed grouse is prohibited throughout the Province of Quebec until further notice.

Hunting of beaver is prohibited, in accordance with changes made in fishing and hunting legislation by the special parliamentary fish and game committee at the last session of the Legislature.

Dates for game bird hunting are from September 1 to October 31 for duck, geese, coots and rails, in the section of the province situated east of the counties of Frontenac, Megantic, Lotbiniere, Portneuf, Laviolette and north of the 48th parallel to the western boundary of Quebec. In the section of the province west of the above eastern division the season extends from September 1 to November 14. The season for Wilson's or jack-snipe, woodcock is from September 1 to November 14.

Bag limits are set at: duck, of all species, 12 a day, 150 a season; geese, other than brant, five a day, 50 a season; coots, 25 a day, Wilson's snipe, 25 a day, woodcocks, eight a day, or all 125 a season.

There is no open season for wild swan, plovers, curlew, sandpiper, auks, auklets, bitterns, loons, fulmars, crebes, guillemots, gulls, herons and terns.

The season for hunting big game, deer and moose is later, extending from about mid-September to around the end of November. Four zones exist for this type of hunting: Eastern Townships, Gaspe, Saguenay and Montreal.

The Eastern Townships zone comprises the western portion of the province situated to the south of St. Lawrence River, starting from the electoral district of Kamouraska, the season being from October 1 to November 30.

The Montreal section consists of the portion of the province situated to the north of the St. Lawrence River and bounded on the east by the St. Maurice River as far as its intersection with the 48th parallel and on the north by the 48th parallel to the western boundary of Quebec, the season being from September 25 to November 24.

Trade Figures Prove Canada's Prosperity Returning — World Demand For Canada's Products Commanding — Trade Agreements Responsible for 90% External Trade

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Canada's trade with other nations is rising to levels that compare with the best years in her history. It has always been observed that when Canada's external trade is active, domestic prosperity is most apparent. Hence it is a most encouraging sign to see the figures rise, month by month, promising at an early date, if all goes well, to set some new records in Canadian trade history. The figures just released show that we have recovered all the ground lost since the depression began, have now risen again to 1930 levels, and need only another ten per cent or so of further gain to top the best figures ever before recorded (say in 1921 and 1928-9).

The figures needed to describe Canada's external trade are of the astronomical order, and do not mean much to the layman. But for purposes of the record it may be said here that for the 12 months ended July 31st, the value of Canadian produce exported to other countries amounted to $1,128,507,860. For the previous 12 months exports had been $918,751,327. If you go back to the depth of the depression, say the fiscal year ended March 31st, 1933, you have domestic exports of about $475,000,000. Thus our sales abroad are running about 2½ times the value of four years ago.

Imports Rising Also

Imports are, of course, keeping pace pretty well with exports. In the early days of recovery, there was a tendency of imports to lag behind exports, adding to the 'favorable balance' but from now on the opposite can be expected for a while.

Also for the record, it may be mentioned that export trade in July 1937 was over $100,000,000 as compared with $85,000,000 in the same month of 1936; that trade with the United States for the first half of the year stood at $475,000,000 as compared with $349,500,000; and with the United Kingdom at $246,000,000 as compared with $216,000,000—the former figure being the best since 1929.

If you examine the reasons for this remarkable upturn in Canadian external trade—the most remarkable in history, if you except the abnormal early war years, when prices sky-rocketed, and raw materials were in desperate demand by Europe—you find that there are four main reasons for it:

1. The revival of prosperity among Canada's best customers, and consequently an improvement in demand for Canadian exports.

2. The improvement in prices which has resulted from this improved demand.

3. The beneficial effect of a series of recent trade agreements and negotiations conducted by the Dominion Government.

4. The re-armament of a number of leading nations, and the consequent demand for raw materials and foods.

It is not easy to arrange these four causes in their order of importance; they have all contributed largely. The first three give promise of continuing; the fourth is not so easily appraised. When re-armament programs are complete (if that day ever comes) there may be a sharp slump in trade, unless some other development has taken its place.

Nor is it easy to estimate how much of the improvement is due to the commercial policy of the present government. From the first it has encouraged external trade, and has conducted negotiations with a large number of countries. It signed the United States trade agreement, and renewed the Ottawa agreements. It has reduced the duties right across the board on a considerable number of items. It ended the trade dispute with Japan. Negotiations have been conducted with Germany, Poland, France, Australia, New Zealand, and several Latin American countries. Indeed, the trade relations with countries representing over 90 per cent of Canada's external trade have either been re-written or re-discussed in the past two years. Just how much of the improvement in trade would have occurred any way, it is not easy to say.

The rapid rise in Canadian exports has been accomplished in the face of a serious check in what is normally Canada's major export, namely, wheat. Once the surpluses of earlier years had been disposed of, the flow of wheat to other countries fell sharply, and cannot now rise to high levels again for another year or 18 months. In the current crop year, one month of which has gone, it is improbable that Canada will export more than 75 million bushels of wheat. She has shipped over 350 million in a year.

Hookers Win Swine Honors at Central Canada Exhibition

At the Central Canada Exhibition the prize honors for the swine exhibition came largely to the Hooker family of Ormstown. In the Yorkshire classes Hooker Bros. won the Senior and Junior championships throughout, as well as 10 firsts, 1 second, 4 thirds and 4 fourths.

Mr. George Hooker exhibited Tamworths and we note he won the Junior and Senior championships as well as the reserves, 12 first prizes, 6 seconds, 1 third and 1 fourth.

Competitors included: A. Dynes, D. M. Stewart and Cecil Acres.

Mr. George Hooker,

Ormstown, whose Tamworth swine exhibited at Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa, won all honors possible.

Ormstown Ladies Win Moore Silver Tray at Huntingdon

Thursday afternoon the lady bowlers of Ormstown and Valleyfield met in Huntingdon for the purpose of playing in the Moore Trophy Bonspiel. The afternoon was hot, but for all of that the three rinks from Valleyfield, two from Ormstown and three from Huntingdon had one grand afternoon of sport. At the tea hour the refreshments took the form of a "picnic lunch". The bowling games were well contested as the schedule below indicates.

The strong team skipped by Mrs. McIntyre of Ormstown won the honors of the day, and so the Moore Tray took a trip to Ormstown. The individual prizes took the form of a pair of linen towels to the winners, whilst the runners up, a Huntingdon team skipped by Mrs. MacDonald, each received a porch chair. Consolation games were played by the rinks eliminated early in the bonspiel. These teams had a fine time of it and in the final stages a very close game was played between Miss Mary Johnston's team of Valleyfield against Mrs. H. B. Patton's of Ormstown. Mrs. Johnston was the victor by a 2 point margin, the score being 15 to 13. In these consolation games the winners received mirrors as individual prizes whilst the runners up received packets of toilet preparations.

Valley Paving Co. Covered Forty Miles Highway in South Western Quebec to Date

Provincial Road Program Provides For Surfacing And Building of 1600 Miles During Five Year Period — Upwards 35,000 Presently Employed on Road Work

Road work in this section of the province is being pushed ahead according to schedule and the stretches that are not finished this year will be complete next in accordance with the Quebec Government five-year plan for province-wide highway improvement.

The eight miles on the Hemmingford-Huntingdon highway that is not yet covered with a bituminous coat will be finished next spring. Other roads in this vicinity that have been slated to receive the same treatment will be done then too. The Hemmingford road, (route 52) will be done next year as far as Waterloo.

Mr. Achille Picard of Huntingdon has been appointed to look after all roads' signs in the three counties and it will be his job to see that they are kept in good condition.

Local patrol men have been appointed to look after bad spots, do the scraping and in general keep a watchful eye on the roads to see that they do not get into too bad a state. These men are as follows: for Hinchinbrook, where much good work has been done this year, Sam Herdman; Godmanchester, William Arthur; Elgin, Howard King; Dundee, Dan Cameron; St. Anicet, A. Leblanc; Ste. Barbe.

The Valley Paving Company with head offices in Valleyfield have done considerable work in this district this summer and are now working in adjoining counties.

They put a carpet coat on the 10-mile stretch from Beauharnois to St. Isidore and did the same on the piece from St. Louis to St. Etienne de Beauharnois, a distance of 3 miles.

They did considerable asphalt work on the roads around St. Remi, St. Michel and Sherrington in the county of Napierville, covering them with what is known as a sealed coat. At St. Marguerite, St. Faustin, Piedmont and on other roads in Terrebonne county they placed a carpet coat. More work is scheduled for St. Hyacinthe for the middle of this month. The company has covered a distance of approximately 40 miles in all. At present there are 1,600 miles of road either under construction or being repaired throughout the province, the work employing between 30,000 and 35,000 men and 90 trained engineers. The most important link being worked on now, is the Montreal Quebec highway, which is under repair for a total distance of 80 miles, the completion of which would leave but 25 miles of road between the two cities that was not in first-class condition.

The Quebec Government has mapped out a programme of road projects for the next five years. Details were not of course completed, but the officials had come to the conclusion that the entire problem of road transport must be met on a broader basis than formerly. Localism is an ailment that the Government has to meet in their road building project; complaints were regularly made that men should not be employed except in their own parish; that main highways should pass directly through the centre of every small town, and so on.

"Our general aim," according to Mr. Leduc, Quebec Road Minister, "is to provide roads that will be adequate for all types of Quebec industry and travel, in every section of the province, and to balance and harmonize the activities of the population. We use hand labor wherever it is economically practicable."

The construction programme, the minister said, was divided into three categories: Firstly, the building of truck highways between the larger cities; secondly the creation of more direct connections between many of the smaller towns; and, thirdly, the forging of missing links in the general highway network. The Government would form schools at Montreal and Quebec, he added, for the teaching of road construction technique, and arrange regular meetings for the discussion of highway problems.

Fractured Leg Suffered By Chas. Douglas

Car Driven by Ernest Ames Hits Ditch in Order to Avoid Crashing Horse Drawn Vehicle

One man suffered a broken leg and two others received slight cuts and bruises in a car accident which occurred on the Gore road near N. J. Fennel's farm, about ten o'clock Wednesday night.

The car, driven by Ernest Ames, was travelling towards Huntingdon and took the ditch when it attempted to pass a horse-drawn vehicle on the road. The car, a Buick coupe, was badly damaged but the horse and driver of the buggy escaped uninjured.

Dr. McCrimmon of Huntingdon was called and set Chas. Douglas' leg at the home of Mr. Fennel, and the injured man was later taken to the home of Milford Oliver where he is employed.

The car was towed to C. Kyle's garage, in Huntingdon.

Dundee Tournament Proves To Be Grand Sporting Event

The Girls' Softball Tournament and Field-day held under the auspices of the United Church Y. P. S. at the Ball Grounds, Dundee Centre, Que., turned out to be a successful event. The weatherman provided an ideal day for the first venture of its kind to be attempted in Dundee, but judging by the interest shown by the large and enthusiastic crowd which gathered shortly after the noon hour to witness the events of the afternoon, various estimates placing the number present at well over 300, the affair was a huge success. There were not as many teams entered in the Tournament as was hoped for, only representatives of Riverfield and Brysonville being on hand for the contest in the girls' division. The Dundee girls had not intended entering as contestants but decided at the last minute to play the winners after they had staged an exhibition game with a team of Indian girls from Hogansburgh, N. Y.

A team composed of boys from Kensington, also staged a 7 inning game with the local boys which helped liven things up a bit.

Running races for boys and girls and a friendly game between Brysons and Hogansburgh rounded out a good afternoon's pastime.

The initial set-up was between Brysons and Riverfield with the following girls on the line-up:

Riverfield—Melva Campbell, 3rd; Margaret MacFarlane, c.; Doris Goundrey, r.f.; Bernice MacCartney, 2nd.; Ruth Reddick, s.s.; Norma Steele, c.; Hazel Allen, l.f.; Edna Reddick, 1st.; Phyllis Anderson, c.f.; Elizabeth Anderson, sub.

Brysons—Kathleen Boyd, c.; Beatrice Nussey, p.; Mildred MacCormick, 1st; Margaret Burrows, 2nd.; Olga Nussey, s.s.; Emma Hope, 3rd; Vernice Graham, c.f.; Edith Nussey, l.f.; Rita Smith, r.f.; Janet MacCormick, sub.

This game ended in favour of Riverfield who won handily by the score of 21-14.

The second game was an exhibition match between the Indian girls of Hogansburgh and the local aggregation. The line-up was as follows:

Hogansburg—Rosa Boca, p.; Josephine Herne, c.; Gladys Herne, 1st; Josie Chubb, 2nd; Marion Laughing, 3rd; Viola Bova, s.s.; Evelyn Tarbell, r.f.; Margaret Jacobs, l.f.; Emma White.

Dundee—Phyllis Platt, s.s.; Merle McCartney, 3rd; Rae Hannah, r.f.; Ruth McCartney, 1st; Thelma MacMillan, l.f.; Janet Fraser, p.; Dorothy McGibbon, c.; Allison Fleming, c.f.; Victoria Mayville 2nd.

The locals took the Indian girls in their stride and won the game to the tune of 30-6.

The next feature on the programme was the Kensington and Dundee boys' team.

Kensington—C. Duncan, 3rd; D. Elder, c.; J. M. Hunter, 2nd; John Lefebvre, s.s.; Eric Salter, c.f.; S. Gavin, 1st; G. Salter, l.f.; C. Stark, r.f.; N. Stark, p.

Dundee—L. MacKay, 1st; A. Kazulak, c.; Earl McNicol, r.f.; K. Fraser, c.f.; G. Kazulak, p.; W. Monique, 3rd; R. McNicol, l.f.; C. McNicol, s.s.; A. Furey, 2nd.

Preparations For Gleaner's 75th Year

HAVING one's picture and name on the front page of a large city daily newspaper is a thrilling experience that everyone likes, whether they admit it or not; that is, of course, assuming that the picture and article are of a pleasing nature. Time need not be wasted trying to figure out why such is the case, because whatever the reasons are, the fact still remains that the average person is vain enough to be flattered or pleased with front page publicity. Some individuals have even gone so far as to commit crime or have done some ridiculous or foolish thing to attract publicity, even though it be of a distasteful nature to the reader who hurriedly scans the newspaper and exclaims that individual must be insane to commit such an act. At the same moment an unspoken thought races through the reader's mind and if put in words would be like this: I wish I could get my name, picture and an article about me on the front page, providing it made me appear as somebody really important, as I am.

What is true about the daily paper is equally true about the weekly newspaper, such as the Gleaner, although the satisfaction of "making the front page" is not quite so great in the smaller paper, but is compensated for to a certain extent because of the greater reader interest the weekly newspaper has and because nearly everyone who reads the paper will know the person mentioned. It is only logical to conclude that this same feeling experienced when one's name or picture appears on page one will be felt even when mention is made on page six or any other page. If favourable mention is made of an individual, no matter whether it be in a big or small paper, the individual will be pleased.

The person who has seen his name and picture in a paper on several occasions gets used to the publicity, and it just doesn't seem to give him any satisfaction in seeing it printed, yet if it is discontinued he becomes dissatisfied because it has ceased.

This newspaper, published since September 1863 is about to enter its 75th year of publication. During this particular anniversary year we intend to make the Gleaner a still better paper than ever before. The Gleaner has been well supported by subscribers yet perfection can never be obtained, but aimed at. Pictures of local interest appeal to readers and in order that we may be able to supply this desire an engraving plant will shortly be installed in the Gleaner plant in Huntingdon. With this facility at our command it will mean we can take a photograph one day and produce it the next, or even faster if necessity demands it. We honestly feel that we will be rewarded through an increased number of subscribers who will desire this local picture service we will be able to provide our readers.

Not only will the Gleaner be open to solicit all the district news of public interest but henceforth we will be on the lookout for first class pictures that will be of interest to our readers.

It might be interesting for our readers to learn that the Huntingdon Gleaner will be the fourth weekly newspaper publisher in all Canada to possess such an engraving plant.

Our Worthy Fall Fairs

WITH our fall fairs falling due within a few days time we are beginning to look forward to these pleasant days when we will see the fruits of labor for the year generously displayed. The Ness auction sale has materially enhanced the value, and interest in purebred cattle, therefore we might all rightfully expect a keener interest being manifest about the cattle rings.

When it comes to being an exhibitor, many farmers will perhaps feel they have been held back with their work and that the exhibiting of their cattle will be too great a task. We hope this will not be the spirit exemplified, but on the contrary they will say to themselves we cannot afford to miss this opportunity to show what we have for we hope to make further improvements in our herd. When we achieve this goal we also will be able to have a McMillan or Ness dispersion sale of cattle which will give us a handsome financial return for our efforts. To the farmer who has a family of sons he will find that exhibition work will command the interest of the boys, and they in turn will exemplify a greater interest in becoming better farmers. No matter what avenue of making a livelihood any young man may follow he will only succeed in accordance with what genuine effort he puts forth into improving his vocation. The percentage of farmers who till the soil as honest farmers do not become immensely wealthy, but their average who make a successful life is very high. No son should ever be discouraged from becoming a good farmer, but be encouraged to progress.

The fall fairs at Huntingdon and Havelock are not large shows, but they are a stepping stone towards the goal of success in farming that should not be overlooked. It is not necessary to feel you should expect the financial returns from fall showing to be profit making. The prize money should merely be regarded as a contribution towards the financial outlay in exhibiting. The publicity and training one gets in showing cattle is worth far more than the prize money that might be obtained at any fall fair such as we will hold in Huntingdon on September 9th and 10th and at Havelock on September 14th.

The cattlemen are all interested in horses, and the horse market has materially improved of late years. It was unfortunate that we should see farmers with trucks using them in the fields at seeding time when horses could be used to better advantage. A truck is not made for field work, therefore it is unquestionably a wasteful way of spending money. Perhaps the farmers that used trucks in the fields had not good horses, had they horses which they were proud to own they would feel more favourably disposed to owning and using them as they ought to be. The fall fairs will encourage young and old farmers alike in the avenue of owning better horses. Good cattle and good horses will go a long way towards providing contentment on the farm. With good animals the financial returns on the farm will be forthcoming.

A fine feature of these two fall fairs is that they cater to all members of the household. The ladies' departments are always keenly contested and we feel quite certain the ladies will not relinquish supporting the fairs in 1937.

Children are interested in attending fairs and to further substantiate their interest in the fair they ought to be encouraged to make a few exhibits themselves. It might be that the young fellow would like to show a rooster, cockerel or pullet. The parents would be doing a kindness by the young fellow by suggesting that he make such an entry. Should he win a prize he will feel all the more encouraged and in the future he would exemplify greater interest than heretofore in the farm flock.

Our two fall fairs might rightfully expect good attendances in 1937. The improved highway between Hemmingford and Huntingdon ought to prove a real artery to the fair and an inducement to people to travel to and from the exhibition grounds.

Labor Day on Monday

LABOR Day, Monday, Sept. 6th, will be a welcomed holiday to many, but will the thousands of laborers who have been out on strike feel they really want or should observe the holiday. The textile strikers desire a collective labor agreement; where such agreements are in force, Labor Day is a compulsory holiday. We venture to say the 2800 people in Valleyfield that have been on strike for 27 days would relish employment on Labor Day so that they might have a few more dollars in their pay envelope on pay day.

There is no doubt about it every employer wants to do what is fair by his employees, grant holidays when he can, but when labor regulations demand one thing and another and capital has no say on the matter, it is not conducive to successful commerce.

It is gratifying to labor and capital alike to know that the textile strike has come to a conclusion. The open shop being maintained indicates that the labor unions are beginning to realize that capital is worthy of consideration, for it is that hand that feeds the employee.

The appeal of Cardinal Villeneuve that the strike be brought to a conclusion through the two parties coming together under the presidency of Premier Maurice Duplessis proved to be the proper solution. Premier Duplessis performed a duty that stands in his honor the same as did the combatting by Premier Mitchell Hepburn with the C.I.O. in Ontario at the time of the General Motors' strike in Oshawa.

Fruits of Dundee Consolidation

WITH the bringing about of the Dundee Consolidated school a few years ago, marked changes are now noted within the municipality that were not originally anticipated or even thought of. The change has been one for the better, but perhaps many of the people in Dundee do not credit or realize that the foundation for the marked change in the realm of sport, found its beginning in the formation of the Dundee Consolidated school.

On Saturday the first softball tournament was held at Zion Church. It turned out to be a real community event, supported by nearly every farmer and his family in the community. Prior to School Consolidation one, seldom if ever, heard of Dundee having a baseball team of any description. As a result of this consolidation the boys and girls have been brought together in such numbers that they now have a real delightful sporting life and social time together. The Dundee girls' softball team is regarded as the champion team of the Chateauguay Valley, which means they are having a good time themselves and giving their Township the honor of being regarded as a township where clean sport is played efficiently.

With the Consolidated School in Dundee the older people of the community quite well realize what an asset their young people are to Dundee. The Protestant clergy of Dundee are young men, and they intermingle with the Dundee youth, and that is as it should be. The result is that the boys and girls are growing up with their spiritual advisers in a manner that is most befitting to all concerned.

Race and creed are not proving any barrier amongst the population of Dundee. All appear to be happy and prosperous and that is all that is desired in the way of living a good and useful life.

A Call - - For Back to Church

WITH the month of September at hand, our thoughts just seem to turn to the idea that the summer holiday season is over. Schools are about to resume and we must again settle down to the regular routine of life. During the months of July and August many of our Protestant Church congregations have been more or less on holidays. Sometimes it would be the congregation who took the holiday and left the minister to preach to scantily occupied pews, or perhaps it might be that the minister was away on a prolonged holiday. At any rate the church attendance during summer months is much below par, but with September the increased attendance and attention to divine worship is the order of the day. Make it a point to attend your respective church on Sunday next; go prepared to hear your own minister and voice your approval of his discourse. If you feel it is much more enlightening and beneficial than some you have heard from the "summer supply," best tell him; it will prove encouraging to the minister and he will in turn try even harder next Sunday to give you an even better discourse. A large congregation is a real inspiration to any minister, therefore let us turn out in large numbers on Sunday, September 5, and get off to a good start in regards to giving more attention to our religious duties than we have perhaps been doing in the summer months.

Chronicled News Bits

Specially Written For The Huntingdon Gleaner

USEFUL GHOST

Most useful ghost is reported to be wandering about at Karimmagar, near Hyderbad, India. It is the ghost of a money lender known during his life as the 'Shylock of Karimmagar' who had difficulty in collecting his debts when he lived, but whose ghost is having none now. The debtors, who owed several thousand rupees at the time of the money lender's death, are reported to be rushing to pay their debts before the ghost pays them a visit. It appears that the debtors settled down after the money lender's death with that "come and collect it" expression for his heirs. Then one of them was visited by a ghost one night; and then another, and another, so the story goes. The heirs, who in a less credulous district might be credited with having something to do with the "ghost" are sitting back and collecting both capital and interest as fast as they can.

VENTRILOQUISTS BESIDE THEMSELVES

New York ventriloquists were mad. A story in a recent issue of a daily paper told about ventriloquist Edgar Bergen's proposal that his dummy, Charlie McCarthy, would be an ideal Tammany candidate for Mayor. With the story were printed pictures of Frankie, the dummy of Walter Walters, a rival of Mr. Bergen. Mr. Bergen was mad because the paper used the pictures of Mr. Walter's dummy instead of Charlie's and Mr. Walters was mad because the paper used pictures of Frankie and wrote a story about somebody else. Half a dozen other ventriloquists were made because the paper didn't write anything about them.

EMPLOYMENT UP

Britain's employment figures for June were the highest ever recorded. Also the number of workless was the lowest since 1929. Speaking at a National Government rally, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said it was "far from the truth" to say that all this was due to the temporary effect of armament expenditure. Sir John said the greatest advance was in public works contracting. Wages in the building trades had continued to rise, farming was being given an improved place in the national economy and general restoration of confidence had taken place—all as a result of the Government's policy, whether the Welsh Liberals were going "to stand aloof, offering pinch criticism one day and scrap patronage the next as futile and fussy spectators at a national effort or were they going to partake of the National Government partnership?"

GUN—FIRES CAR

A four-year-old boy of South Oxone Park, New York, decided to use matches instead of B-B shot in his air rifle, and he selected the heavy laden clothesline of a next-door neighbour for his target. The boy fired on the clothesline from a window of his house while his mother was out shopping. The matches struck the laundry belonging to another family, and set it afire. Before the fire department could arrive the flames had spread to an automobile, though they were extinguished before the car was greatly damaged. Police are trying to find out who sold the air rifle. The entire contents of the clothesline went up in flames.

HINT TO ROBBERS

At Grand Forks, N.D., Harry Gershman's store has been broken into five times in as many months. Besides the goods lost in these robberies Gershman has had to replace broken windows, doors, and pried-off locks after each visit of the burglars. After his fifth experience, he had the following advertisement placed in a local newspaper:

Burglars Attention!

When robbing our store this month please use front door. We are tired of replacing windows. Regards.—Harry's Grocery.

BUOY TRAVELS 8000 MILES

Circum-Atlantic voyaging of a drifting buoy are described by Tass, on the basis of calculations of Russian oceanographers. A wooden buoy was picked up recently in the Bay of Biscay. It was identified as one set adrift in the Laptev Sea, in the Artic, five years ago. To reach the Bay of Biscay it had to drift on currents that carried it first north of Franz-Josef Land, then past the southern end of Greenfield and on the Labrador current to a point off Newfoundland. Thence it was carried across by the North Atlantic current to the Bay of Biscay. The total voyage is calculated at 8,060 miles.

DOG MASTERS HORSE ..

An Alsatian dog an Indian given a Vancouver resident three years ago came in for much praise recently. The dog, Silver, saved James Cook, former Calgary resident, from possible death under an 1,800 pound Clydesdale horse which slipped and fell on him as he was clearing property in West Vancouver. Silver nipped the horse on the flanks and nose when it failed to answer frantic shouts to stand up. The bites turned the trick. The owner said the dog previously had located a lost person, and once stood guard over an injured child until help came.

BLOOD TEST HOAX

Monarchists seeking a return to power in Austria, hope to place Archduke Otto, Hapsburg heir, on the throne when the proper time comes. This party leans toward Germany not only because Austrians and Germans are closely related racially but for purposes of protection in time of war. Among the arguments presented in favor of Otto is one that he is "rich in German blood." It is even claimed a blood test has been made upon the archduke by scientists who have found his hereditary blood count showed a proportion of 470 drops of German blood in his veins to 226 drops non-German blood. If any Austrians are being fooled by this hoax, they are a gullible lot.

LOW PAY FOR DICTATORS

Salaries paid to European dictators by their governments are not as high as might be supposed, but adding their regular wages to "out side incomes" all are well taken care of financially. Adolf Hitler of Germany gets no salary at all, but his income from his book, "Mein Kampf," of which two and a half million copies have been sold, has made him independently wealthy. Mussolini of Italy draws $5,250 a year, but the official newspaper, "Popolo d'Italia," of which he is published, is a gold mine for him. In Turkey, Mustafa Kemal is not known to draw any stated salary. In fact, he turned over his fortune, said to total millions of dollars, to his country early in his rule. However, he has had access to the public treasury ever since coming into power. Stalin of Russia receives $3,000 a year, Schuschnigg of Austria $5,700, and Poland's premier Smigly-Rydz gets $11,400. By comparison, the premier of France receives only $7,000 yearly. The British premier gets $25,000 and President of the United States $75,000.

MILLION FOR ORPHAN

Fourteen years ago, Mrs. Laura M. Boyer, Detroit, adopted a baby boy from an orphanage, pretending it was her own in order to hold the love of her husband. She named the boy Joseph Boyer II for her father-in-law, a millionaire, who also unaware of the hoax, set up a $3,500,000 trust fund for the benefit of his bogus grandson of whom he was very fond. Ten years ago, Mrs. Boyer confessed her deception and in the court case that followed, the boy was declared ineligible to receive benefits from the trust fund. After Joseph Boyer died in 1930 his will was found to contain no provision for his daughter-in-law or her adopted son. She went into court and has been awarded $1,000,000 for herself and son from the $21,000,000 Boyer fortune.

NO LIQUOR TO MINORS

A rule giving bartenders the right to obtain affidavits from persons seeking to buy drinks that they are over 21 years old, has been asked to be put into effect at Sacramento, California. Robert Martland of the "hard liquor" industry organization, in asking the board to make such a ruling said his sponsors are prepared to furnish blank forms for this purpose to all cocktail resorts. The board did not act on the request immediately.

CAT SCATTING

There are two ways to run a telephone cable through a subterranean pipe. One is the hard way and the other is the way the United States' Navy did it recently. Instead of ripping up the linoleum, wood and cement floor of the Naval Air Reserve base at Floyd Bennet Field, Chief Radio Man Harold A. Williams and Ralph Cabanillas, Jr., recruited a cat. To the cat they attached a gauze harness, hooked the harness to a line, put the cat at the mouth of the tunnel and said:—"Scat!" The cat didn't scat. So, a police dog was called, and the cat went scat.

94-YEAR OLD TWINS

Twin sisters who have just celebrated their 94th birthday, Mrs. Martha Flint, of East Lodge, Slandcross Park, and Mrs. Betsy Etherton, of Horsham-road, Slandcross, are believed to be England's oldest twins. Daughters of a Horsham gardener, they are both widows. They can knit, crochet beautifully, and sew without the aid of glasses. Mrs. Etherton still does her own shopping, and attends a Baptist chapel regularly. Mrs. Flint, whose chief interests are her dog and her garden, says she has not felt better for years.

ONE ON RUSSIA

When the first trio of Russian fliers landed near Vancouver, Wash., General Marshall, commandant of the nearby military post, took them to his home and invited them to have a bath. One of the airmen protested the day was rather cool and he did not like cold water baths. The general, showing them his bathroom, pointed to the hot and cold faucets and to prove they could have their choice of water temperatures, turned them on. The amazed Russians said this was the first time they had ever seen a bath tub provided with hot and cold running water.

Ormstown

(Intended for last week)

A special meeting of the Ormstown Curling Club was held on Monday evening, August 16th, when a large attendance of members were present with enthusiastic ideas for the coming sports event.

Plans were discussed for the Softball Tournament to be held under their auspices on the exhibition grounds on Labor Day, Sept. 6th. A much more extensive program was planned as a revival of the Sports Day, as held some years ago. The programme embraces such events as tug-of-war, quoiting, and horseshoe pitching, races for the children, and high jump stunts. The junior members of the Curling Club will sponsor a dance in the Industrial Building for the evening's entertainment.

The late Julius C. Henderson

Julius C. Henderson quietly and peacefully passed to his Eternal Home, on August 9th in his 84th year, at his home, Scottsburg, Virginia. All of his long and useful life was spent in farming in this community.

Two years ago he and Mrs. Henderson celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage. For years he had been a leader in the Baptist Church. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Jennie Bustard of Huntingdon County, one daughter, Mrs. Will Reese of Scottsburg, one son, Donald S. Henderson of South Hill Brigims and four grandchildren of Richmond, Virginia.

Why Use A "Sissy" Laxative?

Chronic constipation has to do with the colon or large intestine. Unless the large bowel is thoroughly emptied from time to time you become a victim of chronic constipation and poisoning of the system which results in colitis or other serious diseases.

Mild or "sissy" laxatives merely cause a movement of the bowels without effecting a thorough cleaning out of the colon or large bowel. For this reason you are misled into thinking that you are doing all you can to overcome a constipated and poisoned condition of the system.

Those who know Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills appreciate the value of a real medicine which not only effects a thorough cleansing of the colon or large bowel but also arouses the liver and kidneys to activity in filtering poisons from the blood.

Once you have proven the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will never return to the use of "sissy" laxatives. Used regularly once a week this medicine ensures pure blood and freedom from constipation and the pains, aches and serious diseases which accompany it.

WHAT A WRECK CONSTIPATION MAKES

Constipation can dull your whole life. Headaches, poor complexions—tired, lifeless days are often the results. Also, many serious diseases.

Get rid of common constipation now with a ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

ALL-BRAN brings you the two things your system needs to act naturally: "bulk" and vitamin B to help tone the intestines.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs more than twice its weight in water—forms a soft mass, and gently clears the intestines of wastes. It acts naturally.

Pills and drugs seldom cure constipation. You just keep on increasing the dose and switching from one laxative to another.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day, three times daily if needed. Serve as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in recipes. Sold by all grocers—made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

The popularity of "Bingo", as a pastime was again exemplified on Saturday evening. At the "Old Home Week" stand a large gathering were found all Saturday evening, whilst others of the family were doing their usual Saturday evening shopping. The "Bingo" stand is not proving detrimental to store trade, according to one of the nearby merchants, but on the contrary he stated that on Saturday evening he had his largest turnover for any summer week-end. The "Bingo" prizes are to be replenished largely through orders on goods to be procured from local stores. The "Old Home Week" financial deficit is decreasing, but it is essential to operate a few more bingo parties in order to liquidate the debt. On Saturday evening the receipts amounted to $72.40.

For a number of weeks the Shawinigan Water & Power Co. have been shutting off the electric power for a few hours early each Sunday morning. These shut downs were made for the purpose of permitting repairs to the transmission lines. The repair work is now completed and a continuous power service has been restored. The Shawinigan Company wish to extend their thanks to their subscribers for their indulgence during these short intervals of interruption of power service.

Mr. Ronald MacPherson, member of the Gleaner staff, is enjoying two weeks holidays at his home in Port William, Ont.

Mr. Leo Grenon left on Sunday for Richmond where he has secured employment.

Miss Virginia McCracken is now in Havelock where she has accepted the position of teacher in the Covey Hill School.

The Misses Ceil B. Popeck of Elmira, N. Y., and Alice Watts, R.N. of New York City, spent a few days last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Popeck.

Miss Madeline Murphy and Miss Margaret McCallum left last week for Montreal where they entered the noviciate of the Congregation de Notre Dame.

Miss Helen Oliver, Miss Estelle Lefebvre and Mr. W. S. Harvey of Montreal were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Lefebvre.

Mr. Forbes McGill of Cantic, Que., spent a day last week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McGill.

Miss Isobel Fraser of Valleyfield spent the week-end the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brown.

On Tuesday evening a surprise linen shower was tendered in the K. of C. halls to Miss Grace Warden, whose marriage to Mr. Leo Cappiello takes place in the near future. The Misses Margaret Ross and Virginia McCracken were joint hostesses, and about forty friends welcomed the bride-elect, who was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. The improvements made about the old cemetery at St. John's Episcopal Church are very pronounced. In talking to the Rev. W. S. Hatcher we learn that the cost so far entailed represents $150. Towards this cemetery improvement fund he has had $193 subscribed to date. Further contributions are looked for, as he hopes to have an endowment fund established. When the fund is duly set up, the Synod will be its custodian and see to it that the money is expended each year in its rightful manner. In looking about the old cemetery we note there are 48 monuments erected. Many of the lots unmarked by monuments are the sacred resting place of many of our District Pioneers. Mr. Hatcher informs us that for 1938 a caretaker has already been engaged to look after the church and cemetery grounds.

Mrs. Laramie, superintendent of the Presbyterian School Home informs us that this year the home will be taxed to capacity. 11 girls are to be cared for and possibly 14 boys. A number of girls made application for admittance but due to lack of accommodation their requests had to be declined.

During the cold winter months of 1937 the people living on Lorne Avenue found themselves without water on several occasions. A year ago repairs were made to the water main which crosses the bed of the Chateauguay River. The water main was broken, and a surface water line had to be installed in order to insure water service and provide fire protection. The water main in the River was repaired this week. The water lowered in order to facilitate making the repairs. Slip sleeves were placed about the seven joints of the water line crossing the Chateauguay. Taking this precaution now, it is hoped it will mean a stronger and long lasting water line for the people along Lorne Avenue. With the leading all completed, all that remains to be done is the lowering of the pipe well down into the river bed, in order to provide it ample protection from ice.

While fishing at Lake St. Francis last week, Mrs. J. A. McCracken caught a Maskinonge weighing 14½ pounds. Mrs. McCracken's daughter, Mrs. K. W. Hogle was a little more fortunate as she was successful in landing a Maskinonge which weighed 17½ pounds.

Mrs. Parsons and Miss H. Jones of Montreal are spending a few weeks at the home of Mrs. Ward Kelly.

Messrs. Muir and Woodlands of the W. L. Hogg Corporation were in Huntingdon yesterday. In the course of their visit they informed us that the farmers using their chemicals are receiving very beneficial results. The W. L. Hogg Corporation is planning a still more extensive trade amongst the stockmen of the Chateauguay Valley.

A good deal of comment was made in town yesterday about a dog being shot during the early hours of Tuesday morning. Whether the town police was justified in destroying a dog at that hour or not is open to consideration. An unlicensed dog might be caught at night and destroyed in the daytime, should it not have a lawful owner who would pay the dog license. Shooting at night is bound to give people a start, and especially people who are not in good health. If our town police is out to shoot stray dogs at night, pedestrians who are accustomed to making short cuts across lots had better be very careful for fear they get hit with a stray shot. Police protection may prove advisable for Huntingdon, but forcing protection and enforcing laws through the use of firearms may unintentionally lead the town into expensive procedures.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dawe and son Warren, the Misses Helen and Alice Brown and Mr. Ernest Hutchison spent the week-end at the home of Mr. W. H. Brown. Miss Helen Brown remained at home for ten days vacation.

Mr. Ronald Bruce is to teach in the Athelstan School which commences to-day. Mr. Bruce is to teach Grades 6, 7, 8 and 9. In these grades at the Athelstan School the attendance aggregates around 35 pupils.

Mr. Nelson White has joined the staff of the Huntingdon Gleaner and will devote the major portion of his time to designing creative printing, photography and photo engraving. This week Mr. White will enter the E. J. Blandford Commercial Photographic Studio, Keefer Bldg., Montreal, where he will get some special training on newspaper photography.

Miss Eva G. White was in Sutton, Que., on Saturday, attending the Fulcher-Morrison wedding.

M. and Mrs. Wm. P. Jordan and daughter, Beverley returned to Montreal on Friday after spending two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Clark.

Audrey Clark and Elsie McNicol were week-end visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McNichol's, Dundee.

Mr. Vaillancourt of Sutton, Que., replaces Mr. Lamontagne in the local branch of the Bank of Commerce. Mr. Lamontagne was replacing Miss Warden who resigned a few weeks ago.

O'Connor's Theatre have been very fortunate in securing the Tommy Farr-Joe Louis fight pictures for an early release. The picture of this great battle will be shown in Huntingdon on Monday and Tuesday, September 13th and 14th. It is a known fact that Tommy Farr, the idol of the British Empire, who was rated the underdog before the fight, surprised everybody but himself by the stubborn resistance he put up. The decision of the referee and the judges gave Joe Louis the fight but according to the radio announcer, Tommy Farr was the best man. However, the moving pictures of this battle will tell you the story, so plan to see them at the O'Connor Theatre, Huntingdon on Monday and Tuesday, September 13th and 14th.—(Advt.)

Obituary

The late Mrs. Peter Reid

An active member of the western division of the W.C.T.U., Mrs. Peter Reid, died Sunday at the home of her son, J. Harold Reid, 4329 Walkley Ave., Montreal, after a brief illness. Her husband predeceased her one year ago.

Formerly Isabella (Bella) Loynachan, Mrs. Reid was born in Lachute, Que., but lived most of her life in Ormstown, Que., going to Montreal about fifteen years ago. She was interested in the Women's Missionary Society and Women's Association of Calvary United Church, of which she was a member.

Besides her son she is survived by a stepdaughter, Mrs. Lexie Clcevich of Racine, Wis., three sisters, Mrs. J. B. Taylor of St. Andrews East, Mrs. J. A. Ferguson of Montreal and Miss Margaret Loynachan, also of Montreal, one brother, John Loynachan of Los Angeles, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. R. M. Cairns of Ormstown.

The funeral service was held on Tuesday afternoon from D. A. Collins' Chapel, 5610 Sherbrooke St. West, and the body was taken to Ormstown for burial in the family plot.

The late James D. Gilker

On Saturday, August 14th, 1937, the death of James D. Gilker came suddenly. Although in failing health for some time he was able to be about.

The deceased leaves to mourn his sudden passing, his wife, the former Lavina Maw, one daughter and one son, both of Montreal. The funeral which was held at his late residence was largely attended. In the absence of his pastor, Rev. W. T. Payne, the service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Hatcher of Huntingdon, assisted by Rev. W. Ross and burial took place in the Gore cemetery. The casket was laden with many beautiful flowers.

The pallbearers were: Mr. Jas. Barrington, Mr. David Barrington, Mr. F. S. Rugar, Mr. Jas. McLean, Mr. D. McIntyre and Mr. A. Richards.

Those of the "Old Guards" of the Canada Paint Co. of Montreal of which the deceased was a member who attended the funeral were, Mr. Newton, Mr. Eric Crawford, Mr. Frank Bell, Mr. Ned Coleman and Mr. Geo. Browne.

ONE-THIRD OF SHANGHAI REPORTED TO BE IN RUINS

This new and excellent view of Shanghai's busy shopping area gives a graphic description of the type of modern buildings which comprise this great city. It is estimated that one-third of the city is in ruins as a result of the undeclared war between the Chinese and Japanese, and the situation from an international point of view becomes more serious each day.

Ormstown Locals

A popular bride-elect of this month, Miss Isabel Hay was the guest of honor on Tuesday evening at a charmingly arranged shower for which Mrs. Mervyn Forrester was hostess. Mrs. Forrester's home was attractively decorated for the occasion with yellow and white, and gladioli and the evening was pleasantly spent in cards and games. When Miss Hay arrived she was escorted to a gaily decorated chair by little Misses Shirley and Thelma Milne, dressed as a bride and groom and was presented by them with a miscellaneous shower of lovely gifts from her assembled friends. Mrs. Forrester served dainty refreshments and was assisted by her aunt, Mrs. A. A. Clayland of Hemmingford.

Mercier Tray Again Held by Ormstown

The Ormstown lady bowlers were again successful in keeping the Mercier Tray in their game with the Chateauguay ladies on Tuesday afternoon last. Both the local teams had a safe margin and the play was in their favor throughout the game, ending with a 35 to 16 total score.

The Valleyfield Club is next in line for play and with that game the Challenge contest is over for this season.

The players in Tuesday's game were:

Ormstown		Chateauguay

Mr. and Mrs. George Bridge of California, Miss Annie Ferguson and Miss Tina Sangster of Dundee, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. McEwen, daughter Evelyn and son R. D., of Kingston, Ont., also Mr. Lyman Simpson of Montreal were Saturday guests of Mrs. James Sangster, Academy Street.

Howick

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Ness, sons, Buddy and Billy and Miss Margaret Laud of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Ness, Buddy returning home after spending the holidays at Burnside.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hope, sons Raymond and Harold spent the week-end visiting with relatives at Bury, Que.

Miss Norma Rorison is spending a few days at Norton Creek, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rorison.

Valleyfield

The Schola Cantorum and the Valleyfield Harmony were heard through Station CKAC last evening on the Provincial Hour Programme. The Valleyfield Harmony was under the direction of Signor Guiseppe Agostini, who executed his latest musical creation, 1937 Festival. Delpha Sauvé, M.P.P., for Beauharnois and Mayor P. Billette of Valleyfield were the guest speakers on the occasion.

"What's your son doing now, Mrs. Jones?"

"Why, he's a coin box collector."

"Well, it's nice he has a hobby. My Jimmy collects stamps."

Riverfield

The Misses Agnes and Elizabeth Stewart of Montreal are spending a few weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Craig.

The Saturday night concert was in charge of the W.M.S. and a splendid programme of songs, and song pictures and recitations by Miss Esdon of Montreal which were greatly appreciated by the audience. Miss Esdon and her friend, Miss Cootes were entertained over the week-end at the home of Miss Esther Craig.

Miss Ivy Terry returned home with Mr. and Mrs. Bennie to Ottawa for a week or so.

Mrs. Grace and her son, Douglas are spending their holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gruer.

The Cowboy—Say, they had to shoot a couple of fellows to start a cemetery.

PRIVATE HERD

Record Book

Good cows are a result of good breeding, if the cows come from good ancestry they will be good producers if well cared for. It therefore follows that good breeding is essential on every dairy farm. A proper record of the breeding should be kept of every animal. A milk record of every cow is valuable information for every farmer.

Have this information at your disposal by maintaining a "PRIVATE HERD RECORD BOOK," such as has been approved by the various cattle breed associations in Canada, and published by the Huntingdon Gleaner.

A book sufficiently large to list the pedigree and milk records of 50 animals, for a period of 12 years can be secured for 50 cents.

- Softball Notes -

Although defeated last evening by the Huntingdon Girls, Leach team intend to take their revenge Thursday evening when these two teams will meet in their second semi-final contest at the Fair Grounds. The third game, if necessary, will be played on Friday evening. These games will start between 5.30 and 5.45 p.m.

Huntingdon has two Boys' teams and one Girls' team entered for the Fifth Annual Softball Tournament at Ormstown on Monday next.

Eleanor Miller's return on the Huntingdon line-up seems to have given her team-mates more confidence and pep. They fielded and batted very well last evening, in spite of being prevented from practising in their last three attempts.

E. Marshall, C. Cappiello and K. Cahill are certainly the most dependable players on the Leach line-up as they can pole out a hit nearly any time they come to bat.

R. Arthur's leg injury seems to be improving and it is highly probable that she will play the full seven innings Thursday. She played three innings Tuesday and acquitted herself very satisfactorily.

The final games for the championship in the District Girls' Softball League will be played over the week-end or early next week.

Pete Peterson's "Old Timers" defeated Rufus Kelly's team 24-16 at the Fair Grounds on Sunday afternoon.

The Softball Tournament at Dundee on Saturday was a decided success. More than 300 attended the games and witnessed the many attractions that afternoon.

Leach may enter their team at Ormstown Monday if all their players are here.

Bertha Taylor's catch in the seventh inning, with two runners out, saved the game for Huntingdon Girls as three Leach runners were then on bases.

Dundee

There was a large attendance at the Mission service in the United Church on Sunday evening last. The ladies of the local W.M.S. were in charge with Mrs. J. H. Lynn, the Society's president, leading the service, assisted by Mrs. W. D. Fraser. As guest speaker for the occasion the Society secured the services of Mrs. John MacDonald of Valleyfield, wife of Dr. John McDonald, who with her husband, done pioneer Missionary work in South China for many years. Mrs. Lynn introduced Mrs. McDonald to her hearers, who gave a very interesting talk on Missionary endeavours in different parts of China, both in years past and at the present time as well. The offering which was for the benefit of the local W.M.S. amounted to $5.00.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Cameron and daughter Marilyn, called on friends in Elgin on Sunday afternoon.

Harvesting operations are nearly finished in this locality with only some late grain and buckwheat remaining to be cut. Quite a number also have finished threshing and reports are to the effect that generally speaking the oat crop is a dismal failure except in a few cases. Mixed grain turned out somewhat better, however, but both the quality and quantity are far from being up to last year's standards. Yields as low as 10 bushels to the acre being reported with very poor quality. Other farmers report from 20 to 30 bus. per acre, which is fair for this year. Grain feeds will in all probability be high in price this coming winter.

TAXI OVERTAKES ENGINE

Speeding down the track in a taxi an engineer caught his runaway engine near Gray, France. The locomotive, which had been left standing on the track, started moving for some unknown reason and was soon running down the track at about 25 miles an hour. The engineer commandeered the taxi and started in pursuit. After travelling several miles the engine slowed down while climbing a grade, and the engineer, by swinging from the taxi to the locomotive, was able to reach his cab and stop the runaway.

Guests returning to the city from the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Gordon are: Mr. and Mrs. Bert Campbell, sons Allan, Norman and Bert, Bronx Park, Ville Lasalle, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bessegner, Jackie, Billy and Miss Mary Bessegner, Mr. and Mrs. Griffin, Reta, Dorothy, Patricia, Margaret and Beatrice, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Walters and son Donald, Mrs. Robertson and daughter Elsie.

Miss Kathleen Donnelly visited recently at her sister's, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Blynn, Lake Placid. On her return home she was accompanied by her niece, Mary Ann Blynn.

Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lavery, and little daughter Esther, motored to Burlington, Vt., and spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Wood. Mrs. Gordon remained for a weeks visit.

Hearing someone prowling about downstairs, the timid husband bravely seized a candle and proceeded to investigate, whilst his even more timid wife buried her head under the bed clothes.

Suddenly her husband came upon a burglar, who covered him with a revolver.

"Oh, don't take any notice of me," protested the timid husband. "I'm only walking in my sleep."

Obituary

The late George F. W. Brazier

The many friends of the late George F. W. Brazier were shocked to learn of the sudden death that overcame him on Saturday night. Mr. Brazier was spending his summer holidays at St. Adolphe de Howard, when he was suddenly seized and death quickly followed.

The deceased was a stalwart of the Chateauguay Heights Bowling Club, an untiring worker and equally enthusiastic about the welfare of the Club and game. The bowling fraternity of this section of the Province have lost a personality which is all too rare; and one whom we can always remember with fondness and respect.

The late Mr. Brazier was the traffic manager for Drummond McCall & Co. Ltd., having been employed by that firm for the past 20 years. He was a past master of the St. Lawrence Masonic Lodge and honorary president of the Masonic Club.

Mr. Brazier was 53 years of age.

Surviving him are his widow, formerly Margaret Jennie Dean; five sons, Albert, James, Lawrence, Gordon and Ashton; seven girls, Jean, Dorothy, Isabelle, Muriel, Margaret, Myrtle and Marion.

AGED MULE FINDS HOME

When one of the oldest workers for the city of Petersburg, South Africa, could no longer do the accustomed tasks the question arose, what to do? The municipal employe was Mose, a 38-year-old mule. And when Mayor E. R. Holland ordered the animal sold at public auction there was a storm of protest, many fearing that the faithful mule would be worked to death. But now everybody is satisfied, for the buyer, A. McKechnie, says that every effort will be made to give Mose a pleasant old age.

Hemmingford Calf Club Field Day August 28th.

The weather was ideal for the picnic and show which was a marked success and most of the animals by their condition and training showed that the members had benefited by one year's experience in the club.

The members were fortunate in having Mr. Douglas Ness present as judge and lecturer. Mr. Ness judged all the classes and demonstrated to the girls and boys some of the fine points in showmanship. This work was especially instructive as it gave the members first hand information from an expert in this type of work.

All classes were well filled and the competition so keen that the winners had to be outstanding to be placed first. For example in the yearling class only five points separated the first five entries.

R. R. Ness and Sons donated a purebred Ayrshire bull calf, from a cow with a record, to be awarded to the girl or boy who showed the most progress during the year. This special was won by Edwin Brown, one of the junior members of the club who ably moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Ness for his help and instruction as well as for the calf.

Mr. J. P. Fleury, who was in charge of the field-day and competition spoke very encouragingly with regard to the progress and work of the club. He told of how the team from Hemmingford did so well at the district of Montreal meet, which was held at Oka Agricultural College, he encouraged them to greater efforts, and wished them first place next year with a trip to Sherbrooke and the Royal at Toronto.

The president then called on Mr. N. April, the Regional Agronome, who congratulated the club and told of the real value of such a club and how it could influence the community as well as the Live Stock industry in the future.

Mr. Fleury was assisted by Mr. L. Pelletiere, Agronome, and R. J. M. Reid, acting club leader.

Prize winners were as follows:—

Judging Competition—1, Beattie Barr; 2, Peggy Hawkins; 3, Helena Barr; 4, Jessie Hawkins; 5, Willis Hadley; 6, Chas. Edwards; 7, Tom Cleland; 8, Brand Edwards; 9, Edwin Brown; 10, Mac Hawkins; 11, Chas. Petch; 12, Howard Sutton; 13, Lloyd Hadley.

Showmanship—1, Jessie Hawkins; 2, Chas. Edwards; 3, Brand Edwards; 4, Beattie Barr; 5, Edwin Brown; 6, Tom Cleland; 7, Helena Barr; 8, Peggy Hawkins; 9, Lloyd Hadley.

Junior Calf Class—1, B. Barr; 2, T. Cleland; 3, E. Brown; 4, H. Sutton.

Senior Calf Class—1, Jennie Barr; 2, Chas. Edwards; 3, Mac Hawkins; 4, Helena Barr; 5, Jessie Hawkins; 6, Brand Edwards; 7, Peggy Hawkins; 8, Lloyd Hadley; 9, Willis Hadley.

Yearling Class—1, Jennie Barr; 2, Beattie Barr; 3, Helena Barr; 4, Brand Edwards; 5, Tom Cleland; 6, Peggy Hawkins; 7, Willis Hadley; 8, Edwin Brown; 9, Lloyd Hadley; 10, Jessie Hawkins.

Huntingdon R.R. 2

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tannahill, Miss Eunice Tannahill, and Mr. Watson Tannahill spent Saturday in Sutton, Que., attending the Fulcher-Morrison wedding.

Mr. J. A. Carr is proceeding with all possible speed to rebuild his barn recently destroyed by fire. Foundations are being prepared for a somewhat larger structure of steel and metal.

Threshing in this vicinity is pretty well finished and some are preparing to fill silos. Only a light grain crop has been harvested.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Carr, Florence and Alison motored to Hudson on Sunday and visited with Mrs. McCrae. They called also at Mount Victoria Farms to see Dawn Victoria, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mort Butcher. Little Dawn accompanied her parents to Ayer's Cliff Fair on Friday, where Mr. Butcher judged Holsteins. Although she wasn't apparently much impressed, it is a new record, as Dawn Victoria won't be a month old until September 2nd. But what is still more interesting, Mr. and Mrs. Butcher and daughter are expected to attend Huntingdon Fair to make the Holstein placings.

Miss Lucile Thornton has returned home from a holiday at Ogdensburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fleice motored from Strathroy, Ont., and have spent a holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alcide Allen, and other friends in this district.

Brackenglade Holsteins represented the District of Beauharnois at the Franklin County Fair, carrying away twenty-four ribbons, including four firsts, nine seconds, senior and grand champion sire, second premium for dairy herd, and others. The herd was in charge of Stewart McCrae of Hudson and Joe Bill Carr. On Tuesday, the day of showing, W. L. Carr had to attend a meeting of the Quebec Dairy Commission in Montreal.

At the Valleyfield Exhibition the week before this herd of Holsteins was awarded fourteen first prizes, five seconds and three thirds. Mr. Carr is judging Holsteins at the Sherbrooke Fair today.

The Huntingdon Women's Institute will meet on Tuesday, September 7th, at 3 p.m. at the home of Miss Mary Bruce. Programme by Dundee Institute.

INDIAN RAIDS STILL

Half a century ago news that Geronimo and his Apaches were on the warpath struck terror in the heart of every settler in the southwest states of the United States.

Another Geronimo, son of the old chief, is doing the same thing today, but he is careful not to come north of the Mexican border with his mounted warriors. At least he has not crossed the line so far although isolated American communities are not feeling any too secure with these marauding Indians just over an imaginary line. They might want to visit the old haunts of their ancestors.

When old Chief Geronimo was captured and imprisoned by federal troops in the '80s after many raids of pillage and murder in Arizona and New Mexico, some of his tribesmen escaped into Old Mexico. These found refuge in the fastness of the Sierra Madre mountains, where they could not be followed. Mexico has never been able to tame them and they remain the same bloodthirsty Apaches their fathers were 50 years and more ago.

One of the fugitives who escaped into Mexico at the time the Apaches were routed by United States troopers was Geronimo's son, also named Geronimo, then in his 'teens. This son is now chief of the Apaches in Mexico and is leading them in their raids on Mexican towns and communities. In their latest attack on a Sonora mining town, Nacori Chico, a warning found the town prepared and the Indians were repulsed with 15 of their number dead.

News of a Geronimo leading an attack of Apaches brings back a cold shiver even today to old timers who can remember back 50 years or more.

HELP PRESERVATION OF FARM FENCE POSTS

Results of experiments for the preservative treatment of fence posts at the Dominion Forest Nursery Station at Indian Head, Sask., indicate so far that merely painting the butts in the preservative material does not have much effect in prolonging the life of the post. Creosote is probably the most efficient preservative but to be effective the butts of the posts should remain immersed in the oil from 20 minutes to an hour, during which time the temperature of the creosote must be maintained at from 180 to 225 degrees F.

Round cedar posts of good quality will last for many years on average upland prairie soils, but their initial cost is rather high.

Experiments were started on the Indian Head Nursery Station in 1917 by using Russian poplar posts grown in the nursery and treated with creosote. Thirty-five posts were used in this initial test. Twenty-two of the posts were given an open tank treatment with creosote at a cost of around 17 cents per post. Thirteen posts were untreated, to be used as checks. The posts were all of small size, ranging from 1½ to 2½ inches in diameter at the top. In four years the untreated posts were all rotted off at the ground line. The treated posts which are still standing after 20 years remain in excellent condition, showing no signs of decay at the ground line. This demonstrates that the Russian poplar, when untreated, has practically no value as a fence post, states The Forest Nursery Station Report, but may be expected after a comparatively cheap treatment to stand up from twenty to twenty-five years.

In 1906 over 400 posts were set out one-half treated with creosote; the other half with zinc chloride. The posts were of native aspen poplar and nine other varieties grown in the nursery. In 1928 about 400 more posts, mostly aspen poplar, tamarac and cedar, were set out. Half were treated with a preparation known as creosol, the remainder were untreated. With the exception of the cedar posts, practically all the other untreated posts set out in 1926 and 1928 have already rotted off. It will be some years before final results on the life of the treated posts is available.

ROUNDABOUT ALARM

Mayor Angelo Rossi, of San Francisco, was summoned to the telephone and informed it was a long distance call from the Daily Mirror in London, England. The London reporter on that paper wanted the mayor to tell him all about the big fire on San Francisco's waterfront. "I don't know anything about a fire," the mayor said, "but I'll check up on it." He soon discovered there was a fire and several city fire fighting units were working on it even then. But the alarm came to the mayor's office by way of London, Eng. The blaze caused $200,000 damages.

The Gore

Mrs. Archie Beaton and little daughter, Marjorie of Ottawa were guests on Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Anderson.

Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Whaley were, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Crook and family of Valleyfield, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McCracken and daughter Isabel of Potsdam, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Robson, Mr. A. Robson and two daughters of Valleyfield and Mrs. Russell Anderson, the Gore.

Master Nelson Beattie spent the past two weeks at the home of his uncle, Mr. Clarence Henderson.

Miss Audrey Henderson spent a few days of the past week visiting at the home of Miss Beryl Oliver, Rockburn.

Mrs. Sarah Anderson and daughter, Violet are spending two weeks in Long Island, N.J.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Anderson attended Ottawa Exhibition on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Pollock of Springfield, Mass., Mr. A. Pollock of Rockburn and Mrs. Henry Lawson of Montreal spent Saturday evening at the home of Mr. Robert Henderson.

Athelstan

A very enjoyable day was spent on Saturday at Fraser's Point by members of the Athelstan and Powerscourt congregations. The day was ideal for a picnic, and boating and bathing were thoroughly enjoyed. Over forty attended.

School re-opened here Wednesday with Mr. Ronald Bruce and Miss Margaret McGerrigle, both of Huntingdon, as teachers.

Miss Helen Elder, St. Lambert, is spending her vacation at the home of her parents.

Mrs. Horner of Verdun, was the recent guest of her sister, Mrs. W. Chapman.

Guests at the home of Mr. Wendall Waldie, Ridge Road, are Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Waldie, Hartford, Conn. and Miss Elizabeth Waldie, Montreal.

Mrs. Walter Morrison and daughter Ramona of Youngstown, Ohio, are guests at the home of her uncle, Mr. Robert Thompson.

Miss Mary Clausson of Cornwall, Ont., is spending her vacation at her home here.

PRAY FOR HANDOUTS

In Kendallville, Ind., Lawson Brickley, operating a lunch car, had many requests for a free lunch from down-and-outers and others temporarily embarrassed financially. Five Years ago, he conceived the idea of requiring all such applicants to repeat the Lord's Prayer before receiving a handout. In these five years 8,000 recipients of Brickley's generosity have said this prayer in various foreign languages as well as English, entitling them to a free meal.

Judge: "Please, Mr.——; pleasure has long been out of the question, but you may proceed."

Lawyer (stopping after tedious half hour): "Is it the pleasure of the court that I should proceed?"

"See that notice over there? 'Tourist trips over a mountain?'"

"Well, all I can say is he should have looked where he was going."

Professor John H. Casey,

Professor of Journalism of the University of Oklahoma, who provided the Canadian Weekly Newspaper publishers with a wealth of ideas for the betterment of local papers.

Hemmingford

On Saturday afternoon, Aug. 28, Miss Elleda Stewart, popular bride-efitted by one year's experience in Gladys Pelletier and Miss Ina Bell at a crystal shower held at the home of Mrs. F. Pelletier. About 30 guests awaited Miss Stewart's arrival and greeted her royally to the strains of the wedding chorus played by Mrs. T. E. Cleland. Miss Stewart thanked her friends very kindly for the lovely gifts. The color scheme was yellow and white, while the collection of crystal was tastefully arranged on a table over which hung a white wedding bell with yellow and white streamers to the table. Large bouquets of cut flowers were very decorative in the rooms. At tea-time the guests were seated at daintily laid tables where the color scheme was also yellow and white. Mrs. Pelletier, Miss Pelletier and Miss Bell were assisted in serving by Miss Ann Petch, Miss Dorothy Pelletier, Miss Gertrude Orr and Miss Clarice Giroux. After wishing Miss Stewart much happiness all returned to their homes having thoroughly enjoyed themselves at Mrs. Pelletier's home.

There were seventy-three people present at the pantry shower held in Hallerton Hall Wednesday afternoon, August 24th in honour of Mrs. Lynwood Cookman and given by Mrs. Archie Brownlee, assisted by Mrs. R. T. Brownlee, Mrs. Ernest Brownlee and Mrs. Graydon. The decorations were carried out in mauve and yellow with a great variety of cut flowers supplied by Mrs. Reid, Miss Bennett, Miss McCleland and Miss Stewart. The bride entered the hall to the strains of the Bridal Chorus played by Miss May Bennett.

The extent to which the decorated box of groceries overflowed was a tribute to the popularity of the bride in the community. She was also the recipient of a large decorated hamper of vegetables, which was presented by Messrs. Alfred Cookman and Howard McCleland.

After the contents of the box had been admired, the bride thanked everyone for their gifts. A picnic lunch provided by the ladies present was enjoyed by all.

Jones: "Your office sent me a cook last week."

Employment Office Manager: "Yes that's right."

Jones: "Well, it will give me the greatest pleasure if you will dine with me tonight."

Mr. Preston Hooker,

Ormstown, member of the firm of Hooker Bros., whose entries proved to be the outstanding winners of prizes in the Yorkshire swine classes at Central Canada Exhibition.

An icy shock
Is just the thing
For he who sets
His alarm to ring
At six o'clock,
Then calmly lets
It wake the others—
Mother, father, sisters, brothers—
And, after their hope of rest is gone,
Turns over and sleeps serenely on.

BLACK HORIZON

BY JOSEPH LEWIS CHADWICK

Chapter VIII

Every movement Rand Kirby made in his struggle against the raging sea was torture. It was a handicapped struggle at best, he with an injured arm. Panic had come to him since the schooner's lifeboat had capsized and Sonya and he and the others had been flung overboard into the maelstrom.

The night hours had been filled with horror, since the moment Rand and Balu had clapped Maya Jack Canaghan in chains. The typhoon would have been horror enough. Maya Jack's escape from the schooner's hold had come as a nightmarish, unreal spisode. But Rand's concern now, as he was flung about in the water, was not raised by Maya Jack's escape; his panic was because of Sonya's danger.

Sonya had been lying on the bottom of the boat when a mountainous wave had struck and overturned it. Rand's fear was that Sonya might have been thrown into the sea in a state of unconsciousness.

He no longer called her name. Shouting was useless. So too were his struggles. The seething sea with its crests, and dropped him again as they broke.

Rand was dazed by the lashing of the water when the sea finally let him down, hard and with jolting finality. It was done with him. He felt loose sand under him as he lay in shallow foam. He dragged himself high on the beach and lay, panting for water-free breath.

He got unsteadily to his feet after a time, his entire being aching as if it had been beaten. Torrents of rain beat down, thunderously. Rand stumbled along the beach. He saw a figure crawling out of the surf.

It was Pete Barker. The little man was near collapse. His body trembled as if with the ague. Rand grasped Pete by the shoulders and hauled him across the sand.

"The girl?" Rand demanded. "What happened to Sonya Duraud?"

Pete lay, a limp shuddering heap. "I don't—know," he choked. "I was in the water alone——"

Rand left him and stumbled on through the rain. He followed the beach for perhaps a half mile and then his way was blocked by a pile of coral rock. He retraced his steps, and saw another figure then—this time one of the seamen.

It seemed to Rand as he stumbled farther, ever searching for her—the woman he loved above all others—that no man could lose so much in so short a time and still not be partly mad. He little cared now that he had lost Maglaya, and all that it had meant to him, his hopes and dreams of years. Nor did the loss of his schooner mean a great deal. Nor the money Duraud had paid him for his buildings on Maglaya. All that mattered, all that could ever matter, was that he had lost—her.

He did not know how long he made his torturous way along that storm, himself. He could only think that the sea had taken Sonya, and a terrible hatred for the sea, which until now he had loved, possessed him. He hated the pounding of the surf; hated the tangy smell of the salt water, the swirling foam that lapped at his feet.

He nearly collided with a figure that appeared through the lashing rain. It was Maya Jack Cannaghan.

All Rand's hatred for the sea found a target in this man who was behind all that had happened. They stood facing each other, these two; Maya Jack looked as far from sane as Rand. His face was utterly tragic.

"Sonya—where is she?" Rand demanded.

"I've searched the shore—" Maya Jack said, tonelessly.

"You alone killed her!" Rand cried. He lunged forward, hating the man and wanting to reach him.

His blow, aimed at Maya Jack's face, was right-handed. He had forgotten how stiff and sore his arm was. The blow never culd have landed. As it was, Maya Jack pushed him aside and stumbled on along the beach, searching. Rand followed the man, searching, too. . . .

Morning came. And Rand found how hypocritically calm the sea could be. The raging mountains of water had vanished. The sea lay in choppy waves and low swells.

There were not even any white caps to ruffle the even emerald water. The sun broke through the high clouds and everything seemed calm and peaceful. The beach lay white now, drying, strewn with shells. Only those on the shore on the palms behind them looked bedraggled. But there was the Ventura still, high on the reef and leaning to starboard, not more than fifty yards from shore.

Maya Jack Cannaghan was still searching the beach. The others were there, too; Balu, the other seaman—all except one, and Kelly Burk, who lay on his face in a stupor, and Jacques LaBlanc strange and forbidding, red-bearded and savage. Pete Barker came to Rand; he was hollow-eyed.

"All here but the girl and one of the natives," Pete said, mournfully. "And look—"

Rand's gaze followed the man's extended arm. Pete pointed out to sea. Rand looked and shuddered. He saw those triangular sail fins cleaving the water in furious speed that meant nothing but sharks.

Then they heard Maya Jack's booming voice. Rand sprang to his feet. Maya Jack was gesturing with his arms far up the shore. Rand, hope tearing at his heart, and fear, too, began running toward him.

It was Sonya. Maya Jack stood over her, his face like graven bronze. She lay on her back, her arms outstretched. Her face was pale, her eyes closed. Her bosom rose and fell deeply.

"Sonya—" The sound burst from Rand's lips like a grateful prayer. He knelt beside her and lifted her to hold her against him.

"Rand. Is it you, Rand?" Sonya asked, her voice a hoarse whisper.

"Yes, Sonya," was all he could say. Something not physical choked her further utterance.

"I'm so glad. I—I thought all through the night that you—" Sonya broke off, shuddering. "But you are here—oh, Rand!"

Her face was buried against her chest. Rand looked up at Maya Jack. The expression on the big blond man's face was that of a man who has lost far more than life. It was an expression Rand never wanted to see again—on any man's face.

The light of Maya Jack's eyes was but a flicker now; there was no blaze there. Maya Jack turned abruptly and, like a man in a trance, walked slowly away.

The sea might breed terror at night, but it gave strength on the morrow. The morning hours brought vitality, erased memories of the night's horrors. Sonya slept peacefully throughout the morning.

When she awakened, Rand brought her cocoanuts from the palms that grew in abundance on the island. Balu brought edible shellfish, but uncooked they were unpalatable to Sonya.

That afternoon Rand and Sonya began a survey of the island. They followed the beach, it extended north and south about a mile and a half in all. It was a scant half mile in width, and covered by a dense growth of jungle brush. They found the decaying structure of a nipa hut, long abandoneo. That was the only sign of man upon the island.

Sonya voiced a question that had been troubling Rand throughout the day. "What island is this?" she asked, and: "Do ships ever come here?"

"I don't know the name of the isle," Rand confessed. "It's only an unmarked speck on the charts. I'm afraid ships never put in here. There are no inhabitants, and the water supply is poor. Ships would have no call to put in here."

Sonya's eyes were frightened. "Then we may be here—indefinitely!" she exclaimed. "Here with those—men."

Rand nodded, gloomily. Then: "But there's no use worrying. We'll have to make the best of it. At any rate, you are still escaping that boredom you told me about the first day out of Maglaya."

Sonya smiled faintly. "That's true. I haven't been bored since I was taken aboard the Ventura. After what has happened, civilization will seem pretty dull."

Rand looked at her amused. "You once said you never met men like Maya Jack Cannaghan and me back home. I suppose we don't stack up very well in your estimation."

She was silent for a long interval, not looking at him but staring out to sea. Her face was very thoughtful.

"You must know what I think of you, Rand," she said at long last. "Much more than I've ever thought of any other man. Very much more . . . "

"Sonya!" Rand cried. He stepped close to her, swept her into his arms. Suddenly, somehow, it did not matter that she belonged to Henri Duraud. It seemed that she could belong to no other than him. She was impassive in his embrace, her head thrown back, her face uplifted to his, her lips slightly parted, her eyes glowing behind veils of long lashes. Rand found himself kissing her, once, then again, greedily as if she were his alone. He knew that this time there would be no inane apology.

"You are mine, Sonya," he said, hollowly, his lips seeking her eyes, her forehead, her soft cheeks. "Out here men are accustomed to taking what they want. And I want you, Sonya. You!"

"And I want you, Rand," Sonya whispered, almost inaudibly.

Then she was pushing him from her. He saw her staring over his shoulder. He turned, frowningly, and saw Maya Jack Cannaghan.

Maya Jack's face was hard, his eyes narrowed to mere slits. He stood, fists on sides, his long legs wide spread. Rand went cold looking at the man, and he knew then that though he had never feared any man, he feared Maya Jack Cannaghan. More, he saw that Maya Jack was armed. There was a revolver thrust through his belt. Rand was conscious of his own helplessness. His right arm was useless, and he was unarmed. He had lost his own gun in the storm.

But Maya Jack meant no trouble. He said, merely, "Stole a march on me, didn't you, Kirby?" Then, without awaiting an answer: "Your native, Balu, needs you. He was prowling in the brush and a snake bit him."

Rand nodded. He turned to Sonya, took her hand in his. Together they hurried along the shore.

Balu was lying on his back, in the shade of a bush near the beach. His face was slate-colored, blotched. His eyes were wide and staring, and he groaned and writhed in agony.

He looked at Rand pleadingly. Perspiration beaded his face, steamed down his neck and chest. He was bleeding slightly at the nose. Rand hurriedly knelt beside him and looked at his left leg. The ankle was swelling. It looked bad.

The others, Maya Jack, Sonya, Pete Barker, looked frightened, the other natives, even Jacques LaBlanc and Kelly Burk, crowded about.

"This will have to be cut," Rand said. "It's bad."

"Take his knife," Maya Jack said.

Rand took Balu's knife from his sarong. It was a big, clumsy thing, an unwieldly thing for a white man. And Rand had to use his left hand.

"It's too clumsy," he said.

"You'll have to use it," Maya Jack said, with a shrug.

Sonya stepped forward. She took from a pocket of her slacks the knife Rand had given her on the schooner. "Here is your knife, Rand," she said.

Maya Jack looked at her, his face suddenly glowing dully. He knew why she had possessed the knife. Rand took the knife, and opened it. He hesitated, scowling at the swollen ankle. It was becoming huge, and was discolored. The twin fang marks stood out, ghastly and venemous. Balu groaned, and Rand looked at the native's face. Balu's eyes were too bright; they still pleaded.

Rand gritted his teeth hard. It wasn't easy. Then, steeling himself, he cut a long, deep gash directly through the fang marks. The knife was but a makeshift scalpel, but it did the trick. He continued to cut, not sparing Balu pain.

Balu's entire body was taut like a sail in a high wind. The cuts began bleeding slowly at first, then freely. Rand worked the flesh with his fingers, kneading it. After a time, he took Balu's turban and a bamboo stick and applied a tourniquet above the knee.

He rose, finally, grim-faced "There is still venom in his system," he said. "There is anti-venin aboard his life. Will somebody swim out—" He looked at the ring of faces about the schooner. Possibly that will save him.

He saw there no offer to help, no compassion except on the face of Sonya Duraud.

Valleyfield Council

A regular session of the Valleyfield Council was held on Wednesday evening, Mayor P. Billette presiding.

At the opening of the meeting Ald. Touchette denied the rumor that that the City had borrowed one million dollars to repair the sewer and for the construction of a power plant in Valleyfield.

This article printed in "Le Progres de Valleyfield" was criticized by all members of the Council and it was moved by Ald. Touchette seconded by Ald. Miron that the newspaper in question be ordered to make a public denial.

The report presented by the City Engineer estimates at $1,550.00 the cost of a new system for the distribution of chloride. Ald. Cholette stated that this new system should be put in operation in Valleyfield as it would be an improvement to the water system.

Moved by Ald. Larin seconded by Ald. Miron that the City of Valleyfield purchase this new Chloride machine.

A letter was received from the Montreal Cottons requesting police protection against strikers, should the laborers decide to return to work. The city clerk was ordered to write Lt. Col. W. G. E. Aird, general manager, Montreal Cottons Co. Limited, stating that order would be maintained and the property preserved as in the past.

Ald. Touchette requested information concerning the construction of the bridge on Dufferin street, $40,000 was granted by the Provincial Government for this work. After discussing the matter for sometime it was dropped.

The Valleyfield Proprietors' League sent a petition to the Council signed by more than 200 proprietors in opposition to the transport of the Masson bridge to face the Larocque Road. The petition was tabled

Following a complaint, Ald. Touchette moved that Eugénie street be repaired.

The City Clerk was ordered to reduce the milkman's license from $50 to $22.50 for country milkman, and to $15 for Valleyfield residents.

A protest from the Valleyfield Proprietors' League concerning the valuation roll was tabled.

MOTHER OF FIVE WHO WAS ALWAYS TIRED

Now Awakes as Fresh as a Daisy

A mother of five has a lot to do. Especially a country mother. And this one was "always tired." But Kruschen ended all that—now she gets up, feeling fresh, at five o'clock in the morning! She writes:

"I find Kruschen Salts the best thing money can buy for my health. I am the mother of five children, and before taking Kruschen, I was always feeling tired and run down. Now, I am glad to say that I get up feeling fresh—and I get up at five o'clock in the morning. I do my housework, look after my children, and leave the house at 6:30 to start my daily work."—(Mrs.) B.

Tiredness and that run-down feeling can be traced to one root cause. That cause is internal sluggishness; failure to keep the inside free from poisonous, waste matter.

Kruschen Salts is an excellent recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The numerous salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your inside is thus kept clear of those impurities which, when allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.

Dundee

During the night of Friday, Aug. 27th, the farm buildings on the McMillan farm, 1½ miles east of Frasers' Point were entered and two 30 x 3½ tires and tubes removed from a two wheel trailer stored in the basement of the barn. When Mr. John McMillan went out in the morning to do the milking he noticed the loss. The thieves made a clean getaway as no clues were left in or around the barn. Suspicious characters were known to have been in the vicinity the evening previous but no action has been taken to apprehend anyone for the theft. Mr. McMillan values the tires and tubes which were almost new, at $12.00.

Mrs. Martha Barrington of Huntingdon was a recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Smellie for a few days. Matrimonial

Fulcher-Morrison

The marriage of Miss Jessie Margaret Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Morrison, of Sutton, Que., to Mr. John Gordon Fulcher, B.Com., of Montreal, son of Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Fulcher, of Waterville, Que., was solemnized Saturday evening, August 28th, at eight o'clock in the United Church, Sutton. The church was arranged to form a garden scene, with a large white arch at the altar; the guest pews, marked off with white gates, decorated with flowers and ivy, and tied with satin ribbons. Masses of gladioli and delphiniums were arranged in the church with tall white candles at the altar. Rev. J. G. Fulcher, father of the groom, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. B. Mallalieu. Mr. Walter Clapperton, of the McGill Conservatorium of Music, presided at the organ, and played throughout the ceremony. Prior to the arrival of the bridal procession, Mr. Donald Boyd, of Granby, sang "Open the Gates of the Temple," and during the signing of the register, "Love's Coronation" was sung by Miss Gertrude Gingras.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a gown of heavy white satin, fashioned in redingote style over Chantilly lace, with a Queen Anne collar, and buttoned down the front, falling away in a long train. The long sleeves were puffed slightly at the shoulders, with points of lace over the hands. Her veil of tulle illusion was held in place with a cluster of white satin calla lilies, and reached to the end of her train. She wore white satin sandals and carried a bouquet of calla lilies.

She was attended by Miss Eunice M. Tannahill, of Huntingdon, as maid of honor, and the Misses Helen and Barbara Miller, Ola Dyer and Ruth Bresee as bridesmaids. Miss Tannahill was gowned in corn flower blue georgette over taffeta, made with a drop shoulder line and short puff sleeves, the bouffant skirt reaching to the floor. She wore rose crepe sandals, a cluster of rose flowers in her hair and carried a rose nosegay. The bridesmaids wore similar frocks of bridal rose georgette over taffeta, with blue crepe sandals, blue flowers in their hair and they carried nosegays of blue cornflowers. Little Miss Joyce Darrah, as flower girl, was daintily attired in cornflower blue georgette, a replica of the dress worn by the maid of honor. She carried a basket of rose petals. Master Richard Aldrich, wearing a white satin page boy suit, acted as ring bearer. Mr. Gibson E. Craig, of Montreal, was the groom's best man and the ushers were Mr. John Rowat, Mr. Jack Nixon, Mr. Desmond Charters and Mr. Edward Broome.

Mrs. Morrison, mother of the bride, wore a model gown of Madelon blue georgette, with black velvet turban and veil. She carried Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. Fulcher, the bridegroom's mother, was gowned in wine colored velvet with matching hat and shoes, and wore a corsage bouquet of Talisman roses. Mrs. Margaret Hancock, grandmother of the bride, wore navy blue with accessories to match and a corsage bouquet of pansies.

Following the service a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where garden flowers were used as decorations throughout the house. Later Mr. and Mrs. Fulcher left for Cape Cod, the bride travelling in a tailored model of Vienna gold crepe, a top coat of brown, trimmed in fitch, with hat, shoes and gloves to match. She carried an English bag of brown tooled leather and wore a corsage bouquet of gardenias. After October 15th they will be at home at 2 Ellerdale Road, Hampstead.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Jessie Spooner, of Sheldon, Vt.; Mr. George Hickey, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tannahill, Mr. Watson Tannahill, and Miss Eva G. White, of Huntingdon; Miss E. C. Tannahill, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Rowat, Miss Jean Mackinnon, the Misses Mary and Jean Safford, Mr. James Safford, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clapperton, Miss Betty Hurry, and Mr. Stanley Scott, all of Montreal.

H'don Girls Lead In Semi-finals

Take First Semi-final Game From Leach 10-7; Best Game Play d This Season at Fair Grounds

Huntingdon Girls took a one game lead in the first semi-final game played at the local Fair Grounds on Tuesday evening when they defeated Leach 10-7 in seven complete innings of play.

Taking a six point lead in the very first inning the winners tallied twice in the second and scored the ninth and tenth run in the fifth, but the Leach aggregation, although able to score only once in the first six innings, came from behind to stage one of their great rallies in the first half of the seventh to cross the plate at six different intervals. It looked for a while as if they might tie the score but this splurge was checked when Bertha Taylor caught F. Leahy's line drive at second base to retire the side and end the game.

Both teams played very cautiously throughout the whole game and only the early lead taken by Huntingdon Girls saved the game for them.

Some very nice catches were made by both sides while the errors were less numerous than on any previous occasion, giving the fans present one of the best exhibitions staged this year at the Fair Grounds.

Ellen Marshall made a spectacular catch of E. Hunter's line drive in the last half of the fourth inning with two runners on, to retire the side. The usual perfect plays made by Bertha and Jessie Taylor were again featured last evening, especially the latter who caught everything coming in her direction.

Eleanor Miller and Germaine Lalonde were the most potential factors at bat for the winners, the former gathering a triple, a double and a single in four times at bat.

Both pitchers, Kathleen Cahill and Alice Rolfe were standouts on the mound while their fielding was perfect. Carmen Ruddock who replaced L. Popeck in right field in the fourth inning made a beautiful catch of T. Anderson's fly. C. Cappiello was also a great factor on the Leach team, catching everything batted in her direction.

Line-up was as follows:

Leach—M. Rennie, 2nd; F. Leahy, 1st; E. Anderson, 3rd; E. Marshall, s.s.; K. Cahill, p.; T. Anderson, r.f.; R. Arthur, c.f.; C. Cappiello, l.f.; C. Tittle, c. and L. Leslie, r.f.

Huntingdon—A. Rolfe, p.; J. Taylor, s.s.; G. Lalonde, c.; E. Miller, 1st; B. Taylor, 2nd; E. Hunter, 3rd; P. Lalonde, c.f.; L. Popeck, r.f. H. McDermid, l.f.; and C. Ruddock, r.f.

Score by innings:—

Leach	010 010 5— 7
Huntingdon	620 020 x—10

Umpires: L. Cappiello and P. Ross.

Lachine And Valleyfield Win Sunday

Notre Dame and Beauharnois Lose First Semi-final Contest 9-7 And 4-1

Lachine and Valleyfield each won their first playoff games for the championship of the Quebec-New York league on Sunday afternoon when they defeated Beauharnois and Notre-Dame respectively. The Lachine-Notre Dame contest ended 9-7 while Beauharnois who was playing in Valleyfield was the victim by the score of 4-1.

These victories placed both winning teams one game ahead in their best out of three series for the championship of this league.

The game at Valleyfield was the best contested one ever played in that City this season. The fans were always kept on the alert until the last ball was thrown in the ninth inning when Valleyfield was credited with the voctory. The home team scored 3 runs in the first six innings while Beauharnois scored its lone tally in the eighth. Thomas and Sanche were the best hitters for the home team while Coutu and Marchand were credited with two hits apiece for Beauharnois.

Following is the score by innings:

Beauharnois	000 000 010—1
Valleyfield	011 001 01x—4

Batteries: H. Westman and E. Marchand; R. Tennyson and H. Parker.

CHATEAUGUAY BOWLERS DEFEAT HUNTINGDON

The men of the Huntingdon Bowling Club played their last game of the season in the Beauharnois District Lawn Bowling Association league. This game took place on Thursday evening on the local greens with Chateauguay. The visitors won the honors for the night by a three point margin. W. E. S. McNair defeated his namesake Jack McNair of Chateauguay by a score of 18 to 14. On the other green Lorne Hay of Chateauguay outclassed G. C. Stark's aggregation by 7 points. The final standing of the league will be announced at an early date.

Tourney At Ormstown Labor Day

Fifth Annual Softball Tournament to be Held Under the Auspices of Ormstown Curling Club

More than one thousand are expected to attend the fifth annual softball tournament which will be held in Ormstown on Monday next, Labor Day. Boys and girls teams from the surrounding towns and villages will be well represented at this annual tournament. Games will begin early in the morning and will continue until the championship title for the District of Beauharnois has been won for another year.

The directors are contemplating a bigger success than on previous years as entries are more numerous. Girls and boys teams will be represented either in softball games or in races, Horse-Shoe Pitching, etc.

In the past, this tournament was held to help the local softball team defray its yearly expenses, but this year it is sponsored by the Ormstown Curling Club and the directors are concentrating all their efforts to make this tournament a decided success to its beneficiaries.

Huntingdon has to date entered two boys teams and one girls team so that this town will be well repre-sentend on the occasion. Last year's champions, Bellevue, will again be present and they promise to put up very tough opposition to every team they are scheduled to meet. The winners of the W. L. Osmond's trophy, the Beauharnois Girls, have also entered their team and according to reports intend to repeat their exploit. However, they might encounter stronger opposition this year, Maple-Grove, winners of Dr. Quintin's cup and runners-up last year will also have an entry in this tournament.

Tug-of-War, running races, quoiting, horse-shoe pitching will be an added attraction at the Exhibition Grounds that same day. This part of the programme will serve to divert those who are not keenly interested in softball games.

Entries for softball games are received by Fred. Soucy while J. D. Bryson of Brysonville is in charge of the running races, tug-of-war, horse-shoe pitching, etc.

The dance held in the Industrial Building last year drew a large attendance from all over the district and this year a much larger audience is expected to attend this dance which will begin early in the evening.

A sound system will also be installed for the games and other events so as to keep the spectators posted on the latest results. The same system will be in operation for the dance.

The directors are prepared to make of this day a huge success even in case of uncertain weather. The games and other events which will be held on the Grounds if weather permits, will be held in the Arena in the event of rain. The sound system will also be installed in this building if necessary.

Several games will be played at one time as diamonds are made so that the day's programme may be over at a convenient hour.

"There's a bit just like them on a nail in our fowl house."

Rhoda Arthur Injured At Softball Game

Dundee Girls Head League — Two Huntingdon Teams Playing Off Semi-finals

Leach Textile assured themselves of a playoff birth when they defeated Ormstown Girls at the Huntingdon Fair Grounds on Thursday evening by the score of 8-7 but missed their chance of reaching the finals when they were defeated, the following evening by the powerful Dundee aggregation, 7-2.

Rhoda Arthur won the game for Leach against Ormstown when both teams were tied at the end of the fifth inning 7-7, and poled out a long hit in center field and came home to make the count read 8-7. While coming over third, Rhoda had the misfortune to tear ligaments in her right foot, which will keep her out of the game for some time.

Friday evening's game proved a very interesting one as both teams played very cautiously throughout the whole five innings when the game was called on account of darkness.

Dundee scored in every inning but the fourth, while their opponents tallied in the second and third inning. The latter greatly missed R. Arthur's fielding in center field as many balls were batted in this direction.

Some nice catches were featured by both sides and Ellen Marshall combined with Kathleen Cahill and C. Cappiello turned out nice performances. M. McCartney was the most potential factor on the Dundee team as she gathered four hits out of five times to bat, of which one was a double in center field. Janet Fraser's mound performance handicapped Leach's hitting to a considerable extent, especially in the first innings of the contest.

Mrs. Ernest Rennie was taken to the General Hospital Sunday for treatment. Miss Edith and Mr. Bruce Rennie remained in the city with their mother.

Miss Bernice Rennie has returned from a week's visit with Mrs. Chas. Poole in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Phiander, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. and Miss Galup and Mrs. Lawson were week-end guests of Mrs. Pollock.

Mrs. Prevost, Mr. and Mrs. W. Douglas and children and Mr. Donald Douglas motored to Vermont to spend a few days with Mrs. Picard and family this week.

The Rockburn Girls' softball team won from the Gore girls Saturday on the grounds of the latter by a score of 23-8, after which they trimmed a team of men in a three-inning bout 8 to 4.

British Tommies Enjoy Extensive Manoeuvres

AIR CHIEF MEETS TRANS-ATLANTIC PILOT

Captain A. S. Wilcockson, pilot of the Caledonia, the big Imperial Airways flying boat which made the initial trans-Atlantic survey flight, tells Philip G. Johnson, Vice-President in Charge of Operations, Trans-Canada Air Lines, how to fly the Atlantic. The famous pilot and the operating head of Canada's new air transport organization met recently at the Boucherville base, Montreal, on the occasion of the Caledonia's second test flight. Former President of United Air Lines, and one of the leaders in the development of aviation on the North American continent, Mr. Johnson was keenly interested in the mechanical details of the big flying boat. He went through the Caledonia under the guidance of its Captain.

Letters To The Editor

August 23rd, 1937

To the Huntingdon Gleaner

I wish to state that Miss Gladys D. Herdman is leaving this State for the Shawinigan Falls High School, there to take up her studies or duties as school teacher.

She has been on a visit here with her cousin, Mrs. Elma Hodges, for the past five weeks and been pretty much on the go.

Having covered most of the large city of Los Angeles and its surrounding cities, San Diego and Old Mexico.

It was our pleasure to take her to the World famous Yosemite Valley, Maripass big trees, through the Tioga Pass at an elevation of 9941 feet.

She saw the 'Ah La Fiesta' at Santa Barbara of early California history and many other sights, such at Mount Whitney, the highest mountain in the United States and was near Death Valley, 284 feet below sea level.

We will surely miss her and her quaint ways of the old Canadian customs.

To her many friends up yonder we give her back with thanks of having enjoyed the pleasure of her company and of learning much of Canada not written in books.

Truly the school teachers are well grounded with the history of your country and the world has much to learn through their visits and would like to see more of them.

Miss Herdman will visit Detroit on her return trip via bus and reach her school in time to find living quarters before the winter term opens.

I don't suppose she'd like this, my writing to you all but she has been such a darn good sport, so willing to do anything, go any place, we feel she should have all the praise coming to her and wish her "God Speed and happy landings.

My wife, formerly Miss Elma Henderson came from your neck of the woods and enjoyed reading your paper, which friends sent to Gladys.

Adios!

L. F. HODGES.

MALONE FAIR RECEIPTS SOAR TO NEW HIGH

The grand total of receipts from the gate and grandstand at Malone Fair, including both day and night receipts, was $14,724.67. The statement showed the day and night gate receipts were $8,885.67; the grandstand day and night receipts, $5,105.20; and the percentage of receipts from Saturday's program by Lucky Teter and his Hell Drivers, $733.80.

The 1937 total from these sources is $3,016.22 above the 1936 fair receipts from the same sources which was $11,708.25.

Additional receipts from concession rentals, estimated at about $5,000 will bring the total receipts close to $20,000 and there are also to be added to this figure the entry fees in the various premium departments.

Messrs. Boyd & Co. got one of their new threshing mills into running order on Monday for the first time, and it worked satisfactorily. These machines are of novel design, among other changes, dispensing with fanners, the wind being supplied by the cylinder. Boyd & Co. intend exhibiting them at Sherbrooke and Quebec.

Eggs should be gathered at last twice a day, and three times daily is better during hot weather. The time of one gathering should be just before dark or as near to it as practicable. This last gathering may not produce a great number of eggs, but since broody hens will commonly search out the nest containing eggs after the day's laying has ceased, failure to gather late in the day is a common source of distinct deterioration.

Each gathering should be placed in the coolest part of the cellar if no other cool spot is available, as soon as gathered. Eggs should not be put into cartons or cases immediately if this can be avoided. The ideal container for cooling eggs is a wire tray. A wire basket is the next best, and perhaps the most practical. These baskets are ordinarily offered for sale as waste paper containers.

W. L. CARR LONE CANADIAN EXHIBITOR

At the Franklin County Fair, Malone, N. Y., we usually find a few Canadian exhibitors showing livestock. This year W. L. Carr appears to be our lone exhibitor of dairy cattle. The prize list indicates that Mr. Carr's "Brackenglade Herd" made a very enviable reputation for itself. In the fifteen classes for Holstein cattle Mr. Carr's entries won 5 firsts, 9 seconds and 2 thirds. The chief competitor for Mr. Carr was at the hands of Mr. Clarence Collins of Malone. The judging was done by Dr. Campbell of the University of Vermont.

Judging will start sharp at 10.30 a.m. on the first day in all departments, so please arrange to have your exhibits in place on time. The building will be ready for you on Sept. 8th at 10 a.m. and it is our wish that your entries will be larger in number than any previous years. Judging of Syndicate Classes and Black Horse Colts will take place on Second Day, September 10th.

HORSES

In horses the classes will be full and the quality will be equal to the Class A. Shows.

A most interesting class will be the Black Horse special of $200.00—$100. for yearlings and $100. for young colts. See prize list. Please get after these prizes.

A number of the Black Horses will be present at the Exhibition as well as a fine showing of registered stallions of other breeds.

CATTLE

In cattle the four breeds will be well represented. Even now five new exhibitors have asked for about fifty stalls.

SHEEP AND SWINE

As usual these two classes will be full. The Canada Packers are offering a fine special for boys and boys only.

FLOWERS

In flowers we excel over any Show in the district, so let us try and win over last year. Ladies, we have a compliment for you from a prominent flower man, who was at Ottawa last week. He stated "Our Flower Exhibit excels the large shows." As the weather conditions have been favorable we are looking for you to surpass the 1936 display.

Softball and Baseball Features

THURSDAY, SEPT. 9th—A competition for a silver trophy. Open to girls teams of District. Dundee and Huntingdon teams to open. Other entries to be received.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 10th—The "Black Panthers," professional baseball team will again visit Huntingdon and play with a strongly augmented team to represent our town.

DINNER

The Directorate is very fortunate in having secured the Elgin Presbyterian Church to furnish the dinner at the Fair. You can be assured of a very fine meal. You know conditions have changed somewhat within the last number of years. At one time the dinner was a financial success to those undertaking it. We think the reason being, the auto rapid transportation allowing people to dine at home, and be on the grounds in a short while, in time for the attractions. We ask you to take your dinner at the Dining Hall, thereby helping to swell the receipts of those who so willingly came to the resue of the Fair Board in supplying the dinner.

Dinner—Adults 50c. Children under 12 yrs. 25c. Supper 30c.

OFFICE

The office for entries will be at the rear of the Secretary's house. Entrance to same, between Laberge Bros. Tinshop and Senecal's Barber Shop and will be open on Thursday, Sept. 2nd.

Halifax Public Gardens Delightful Beauty Spot

By the Editor

In our last edition of the Gleaner much space was devoted to my visit to the Maritime Provinces, but the report was not wholly complete. No story about Halifax would be complete without mention being made of the wonderful Public Gardens that face the "Lord Nelson" hotel on Spring Garden Road.

This park covers an area of ten acres every inch of which is a beauty spot. The city of Halifax may not be one of beauty from an architectural view point but from its growth of trees and flowers it can only be compared with Victoria and Vancouver.

The Public Gardens were first started in 1749 therefor they have an historical background which no other park in Canada enjoys. The Gardens have always been featured in Halifax as their prize show place, after which the Citadel takes second place. The city of Halifax employs fourteen gardeners to look after their public parks. These men are all long experienced and take much pride in maintaining the Gardens in a state of perfection that such a park proves to be a real asset and tourist attraction for the province.

In the "Public Gardens" is found a large pond on which will be seen miniature steamships, sailing craft and many ducks. The ducks have become so tame that they feed out of the hands of anyone who has a peanut to offer them. In speaking to one of the gardners he informed me that one of these tame ducks that was brought to the pond this spring was shot down last fall. This wounded wild duck was nursed along so that it overcame its inflictions and now it is one of the Garden pets. Pigeons are to be found in almost countless numbers, they will perch on the shoulders, arms or your feet and be fed at any time of the day. With the feathered creatures so tame the public just flock to the Gardens to be amused by their actions.

The flower beds are a mass of bloom and strange as it may seem the flowers are never molested in the least. This year, they capitalized on the Coronation, so beds have been laid out depicting the "Crown", etc. As the novice wanders about he will run across gardeners who are ever willing to impart some information to you about the flowers or trees being grown. They are not permitted to sell seeds or shrubs from the Gardens, but each fall when they are making preparations for the winter they ship great quantities of seeds and shrubs to people who made requests for same. In performing this act the Halifax Public Gardens are greatly encouraging people to beautify their home surroundings.

Our Visit to Sugar Refinery

A week ago I made reference to meeting a Mr. L. R. Woods of Tampa, Fla. Mr. Woods informed me that the Fertilizer Company of which he is president had sold $80,000 worth of fertilizer to a sugar company in Florida. He had never been to a sugar refinery, so now wished to see what they were like.

The Lord Nelson Hotel manager, Mr. Forbes Thrasher, felt he also would like to see the Atlantic Sugar Refinery, so off we three went on the inspection tour. It was a hot sultry day, and when we entered the refinery we quickly decided we picked the wrong date to make the visit.

The store shed for the raw sugar had a stock of 80,000 bags, each bag weighing 350 lbs. To see these big bags stored at such height was, to say the least, most arresting. The piling up of these heavy bags of raw sugar is all done by machinery.

The processing of the raw sugar to the granulated product we serve on the table, is an extensive bit of refining, boiling, straining and bleaching, all of which is done in the midst of terrific heat.

The Atlantic Sugar Refinery officials informed us that their market remained approximately the same year in and year out. Their annual output being 180,000,000 pounds.

After leaving the Sugar Refinery we drove along the Atlantic coast to Silver Sands and Cow Bay. The variation in temperature between the Sugar Refinery and 10 miles distant on the sea shore must have been around 30 degrees or more. Though the temperature was over 90 in Halifax at Silver Sands it was around 55 degrees.

On the Dartmouth side of the Halifax Harbor scenic drives are found in all directions, and the drive we had past McNab Island and Devils Isle, on to Silver Sands and back across country was indeed glorious. Wending our way in and out along the coast one could not help but notice the different type of farming that was being carried on compared with that of the Chateauguay Valley. The home would have a comfortable appearance but the livestock was as poor as poor could be. It struck me that these farmers must pay more attention to sea fishing than to agricultural activities.

The highways throughout the Province of Nova Scotia are now very good. True some of the roads are too narrow, but it is better to have a good narrow road than no road at all.

BEWARE OF NAILS AND FEED TAGS

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," so runs the old adage. This holds just as true in caring for livestock as in throttling the locomotive. One of the preventions that farmers often overlook is getting rid of all wires from the feed tags, or keeping nails where they will not injure farm animals. The nails may cause damage or losses by being exposed after being driven in boards, etc., but are sometimes dropped into the feed and swallowed. However, the probability of injury from the nails is not as great as it is to drop a feed tag wire where the cows may get it with their feed.

WHY SIRES FAIL IN IMPROVING HERD

The one who expects even the outstanding sire to correct all the defects in his herd is doomed to disappointment, because of the influence of the dams. There are many cows which have good or bad characters so firmly fixed in their germinal make-up that these characters are transmitted from generation to generation in spite of the influence of the sires. There are prepotent cows as well as sires and prepotency may exist for low production as well as for high production.

CATTLE BLOATING WHEN ON PASTURE

Keep Them Off Entirely When Grazing is Wet.

When cattle are put on the second crop of alfalfa or clover there is danger of bloating. The trouble may result from an animal eating any feed that causes indigestion. Usually, however, the feed is alfalfa, clover or other juicy grazing which is eaten too greedily, or when wet with dew or rain. Stock should be accustomed to these gradually, letting the animals graze only a little while at a time at first, and keeping them off entirely when the grazing is wet.

In severe cases of bloating, swelling of the left flank is very noticeable, sometimes rising above the level of the backbone. When struck with the tips of the fingers the flank emits a drumlike sound. The animal is plainly distressed and moves uneasily. Finally it may reel and fall if not relieved.

In mild cases when the animal can walk, driving it for a quarter or half an hour is sometimes effective. Another treatment that is often successful is to coat a rope or twisted straw band with wagon grease or pine tar and place this in the cow's mouth as a bit, tyng it behind the horns. This results in movements of the tongue, jaws and throat and stimulates the secreation of saliva, all of which aids in the escape of gas.

In urgent cases where the gas must be allowed to escape without delay, the use of a trocar and cannula is effective. The operation should be performed by a veterinarian. A trocar is used in extreme or urgent cases when the animal probably would otherwise die. With this instrument there is the least danger of infection, since the hole closes completely when distension of the skin ceases.

It is usually advisable to give affected cattle a dose of purgative medicine after bloating has subsided. This may be Epsom salts, a pound dissolved in plenty of water for a cow.

CANADIAN FIDDLER WINS CONTEST AT SCHINE'S, MALONE

The popularity of a "fiddlers' contest" holds sway at all times. No matter what the popular trend of music may be in the air, the fiddler still holds his popular place. At Schine's, Malone, a contest was held on Friday. James Mannagh of Franklin Centre was the top notcher. The other Canadian contestants were Wilmer Mannagh, Franklin Centre, Ernest Girard, St. Agnes de Dundee and John Macfarlane of Glenelm.

Powerscourt

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hale and daughter, Phyllis from Worcester, Mass., and Mrs. T. G. McClatchie from Hemmingford called on relatives here one day last week.

Mr. Alex. Wallace of Toronto is spending a few weeks with his parents. He and his father, Mr. Jas. Wallace attended Toronto Exhibition, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wood and friends of Ormstown motored to Lyon Mountain on Saturday.

Miss Violet White is spending a few days with friends in Malone, N.Y., before leaving on Tuesday to teach at Cascades.

Mrs. Hardie and Mr. Bonyun of Montreal were callers on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Wood.

Miss Maureen and Master David Hardie and Miss Estelle Samuels, who have spent the past two months at the Wood home, returned to Montreal on Saturday.

Miss Eva White is spending a few days in Montreal.

Miss Nora Wood returned home Monday evening after spending nearly three weeks with friends in Toronto and Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Perret of Montreal are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Henry White.

Mrs. E. Haire and daughter, Ruth and Mrs. Welsh of Tilton, N.H. are spending a few days with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Dowd of Montreal called at Mr. L. McClatchie's on Sunday. Mr. Reginald Dowd returned home with his parents after spending the past two months at the McClatchie home.

Miss Anna Rosevear entertained at her home Friday afternoon at a miscellaneous shower for her cousin, Miss Margaret Wood, in honour of her approaching mariage. The guests received the bride-to-be on the lawn, where she was seated in a pink and white decorated chair amid a shower of blossoms which was used as confetti. The gifts were beautiful and useful for which Miss Wood very kindly thanked her many friends. A delicious lunch was served to about 50 ladies. Each one wished the future bride every happiness.

Through the courtesy of the Athelstan Sunday School, the congregation of Powerscourt United Church were invited to spend a day in the form of a basket picnic with them at that historic spot known as Frasers' Point. The day was ideal for just such an outing, although few availed themselves of the pleasure of being present. All greatly appreciated the thoughtfulness and good spirit of this sister congregation that prompted the invitation.

What a comely picture we made all squatting on the green in groups nearby the lunch board on which the contents of the baskets were placed in a sort of pool and all were welcome to partake of what they wished. Sandwiches, salads, cookies, pies and cakes, with many other dainty titbits to whet the appetite. Table etiquette was left at home, for all were in a genial mood, smiling and joking yet eating away at the good things as though we mortals lived to eat.

Lunch over, boats were in waiting to take those who wished for a cruise among the rippling waves, while others donned their bathing suits and took a dip in the lake, while the older set basked in the shade of the beautiful trees and exchanged friendly greetings, one with the other. The time passed all too soon, when the rally's call went forth for home. The last, but not the least item was a treat. The good people of Athelstan had brought a liberal quantity of ice-cream which was dished out with a generous hand, in fact some of us ate more than was good for us, for the sake of economizing that none might be wasted.

Our starting point was Athelstan out to Cazaville, thence to the Lake Shore, our destination. On our homeward bound trip, up to St. Agnes, then along the first concession of Elgin. The roads in the entire route were good. The crops a long way short in straw and somewhat coloured, while the sheaves were far between. Corn looked fairly good, fields of buckwheat just in blossom. Potatoes in some fields showed blight, pastures green, cattle looked contented and in good condition. Judging from the numerous stacks of hay that could be seen it seems that hay was the banner crop.

Pacing the deck of the Queen Mary, a friend of ours overheard one brisk Englishwoman remarking to another, in a very knowing way, "I hear that the place to eat when one is in the States is at the chemist's."

A Literary Curiosity

The following remarkable composition evinces an ingenuity of arrangement peculiarly its own. Explanation: The initial capitals spell "My boast is in the glorious cross of Christ." The words in bold-face type, when read from top to bottom and bottom to top, form the Lord's Prayer complete:

Make known the Gospel Truths, our Father king,
Yield up Thy grace, dear Father from above,
Bless us with hearts which feelingly can sing,
"Our life Thou art for-ever, God of love."
Assuage our grief in love for Christ, we pray,
Since the bright Prince of Heaven and glory died,
Took all our sins and hallowed the display,
Infant be-ing, first a man, and then was crucified.
Stupendous God! Thy grace and power make known;
In Jesus' name let all the world rejoice.
Now labor in Thy Heavenly kingdom own—
That blessed kingdom for Thy saints the choice.
How vile to come to Thee is all our cry,
Enemies of Thy-self and all that's Thine;
Graceless our will we live for vanity,
Loathing Thy be-ing, evil in design,
O God, Thy will be done, from earth to Heaven;
Reclining on the Gospel let us live,
In earth from sin deliver-ed and forgiven,
Oh! as Thyself but teach us to forgive.
Unless it's power temptation doth destroy,
Sure is our fall into the depths of woe.
Carnal in mind, we've not a glimpse of joy;
Raised against Heaven, in us no hope can flow.
Oh, give us grace and lead us in Thy way;
Shine on us with Thy love and give us peace;
Self and this sin that rise against us slay.
Oh, grant each day our trespass-es may cease;
Forgive our evil deeds that oft we do.
Convince us daily of them to our shame;
Help us with Heavenly bread, forgive us, too,
Recurrent lusts and we-'ll adore Thy name.
In thy forgive-ness we as saints can die.
Since for us and our trespasses so high,
Thy Son, our Savior, bled on Calvary.

CONTINUATION OF N. Y. MILK STRIKE VOTED

Franklin County members of the Dairy Farmers Union voted to continue their strike against the Sheffield Condensed Milk Company until the union is recognized and set $1.85 a hundred for 3 per cent milk as their September price demand at a meeting at the court house in Malone, Saturday night.

The 200 farmers attending, all members of the Union, voted solidly to continue the strike. They voted also that the strike would not be called off until satisfactory settlement is reached not only in Franklin, Clinton and St. Lawrence Counties, but in the counties of Lewis and Oswego where the movement was launched more recently.

The Union embodied in its price demand the stipulation that Sheffield post its monthly milk price by the 15th of the month preceding the period in which it is effective.

Wright is Speaker

Principal speaker at the meeting was Archie Wright of Ogdenburg, acting chairman of the Union, who congratulated the Franklin County Union men on their "resistance to Sheffield propaganda." He commended them on their rejection of the price of $1.90 for 3.5 per cent milk made last Wednesday by the Sheffield Condensed Milk Company which did not carry with it recognition of the Union.

"Your main objective in this fight," he told them, "is recognition of the Union. Unless that is won we will have accomplished nothing."

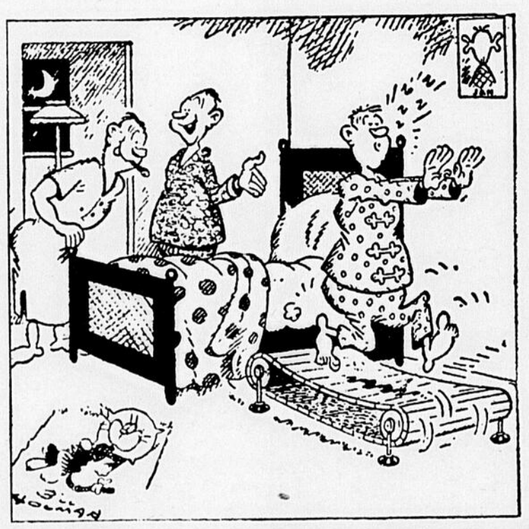

Little Dora returned from her first visit to Sunday School.

Father: "What did my little daughter learn this morning?"

Little Dora: "That I am a child of Satan."

Voice over phone: "I can't sleep, Doctor. Can you do anything for me?"

Doctor: "Hold the phone and I'll sing you a lullaby."

"You see the idea? Now we shan't have to run after Henry every time he walks in his sleep."—Amusantje, Amsterdam.

Young Camel Reaches Canada en Route to Toronto Zoo

"So this is Canada," says Jessie, the two and a half year-old camel (really a dromedary), as she was unloaded from the Canadian Pacific liner "Beaverbrae" at Montreal. Jessie, so named by members of the crew, was born in the Paris Zoo and is going to make her home at the Toronto Zoo. She was considered a good sailor and ate three good meals each day. As the picture shows, the feed box was within easy reach of her muzzle, and like any youthful camel she appreciated the many dainties that came her way.

Monday, October 11 Is Thanksgiving Day

Thanksgiving Day this year will be Monday, Oct. 11.

A proclamation published recently in the Canada Gazette has set that date "as a day of general thanksgiving to Almighty God for the bountiful crop and other blessings with which Canada has been favored this year."

Last year Thanksgiving Day was observed October 12.

Huntingdon R.R. 2

Mr. J. A. Carr informs us that he has let a contract for the erection of a steel clad barn to replace the barn recently destroyed by lightning and fire. The barn is to be erected by D. A. Barrington of Ormstown and the metal for same will be supplied by the George W. Reed Co. Limited of Montreal. Robt. Waldie is the local representative for the Reed company. The new barn is to measure 116 feet long by 36 feet in width.

Young Brown got a job in a shipyard. The first morning the foreman put a two-foot rule into his hand and told him to go and measure a large steel plate. Brown returned in 20 minutes.

"Well," inquired the foreman, "what's the size?"

The youth displayed a satisfied grin. "It's just the length of this rule," he said, "and two thumbs over, with this brick, and the breadth of my hand, and my arm from here to there, bar the finger nails."

COCKERELS KEPT FOR BREEDING

Require Special Care While They Are Growing

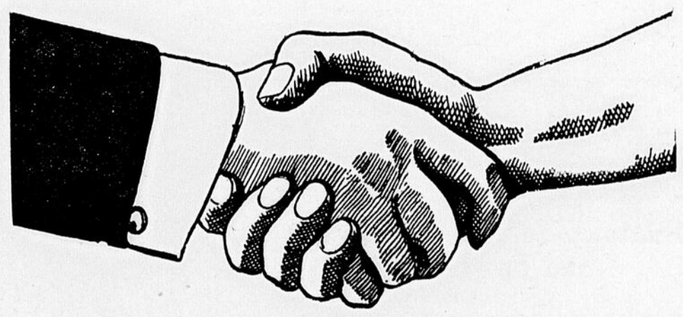

Males that are being saved for breeding purposes should not be allowed just to shift for themselves. It is best to keep these young males in a yard or on a range by themselves where they do not come in contact with the pullets and bother them. In order to reduce fighting to the minimum among these young males, it is a good plan to keep some of the older males with those that are being held over from last season's breeding pens. These old males will act more or less as policemen among these youngsters and will be a big help in preventing fighting. It is a good plan, on cockerel ranges, to have several roosts about 3 feet high as refuges for males that are chased by other males from time to time. A growing mash should be kept before these birds all the time, as it is kept before the pullets, and they should be fed regularly each day on a grain ration to help them develop sufficient body weight. Fresh water and green food are also as desirable for them as for the growing pullets.

MINERALS IN DAIRY COW'S FEED

One cannot see the mineral substance a dairy cow consumes in her feed nor the factors that are of greatest influence in helping her to convert these into body uses and milk production. He cannot see 70 lbs. of mineral substance in 10,000 lbs of milk, and yet it is there. If the ration is deficient in minerals he cannot see the cow deplete her body to make milk, and yet that is what she does. If one could see these things, he would realize more fully the need of adequate mineral supply to dairy cows.

Few garden plants have been cumber. It has been under cultivation known to man longer than the cution for about 4,000 years.

MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING
Is the understanding for Labor and Trade

Here is the handshake everybody likes to see—because it's a sign of real progress and real prosperity for all .. Management in every store wants to do the right thing by the customer, the same as the employer wishes to aid his employees. The hearty handshake spells heartfelt co-operation. Advertising in your local paper "The Gleaner" is like a handshake with your customers. It tells the public what service the merchant has to offer the public. It assists the public to do economical and beneficial shopping. The advertising tends to increase the desire for what commodities the merchant has to offer for sale.

Royal Canadian Dragoons March

The following is an account of the Three Hundred Mile March of "a" squadron, the Royal Canadian Dragoons, from St. John's, Que., to Petawawa Military Camp, July 13th to July 25th, 1937, written by Captain, C. Churchill Mann, R.C.D.

Thirty years ago, Regimental Headquarters and "B" Squadron marched from Toronto to Petawawa over a distance of two hundred and sixteen miles, but since then, no such march has been made by a Squadron of this Regiment in peace time; although RHQ and "B" Sqn march each year to Niagara Camp from Toronto, a distance of about one hundred miles.

Major G. F. Berteau, commanding "A" Squadron at St. Johns had given his officers a very interesting account of the march in 1907, only a few days before word was received that the Regiment was to concentrate at Petawawa for training in August. Consequently, when some of us proposed to Major Berteau that a splendid opportunity was at hand for our Squadron to get the benefit of his previous experience, by moving to Petawawa by route march, especially as he was one of the few remaining members of the Regiment still serving who had been on the march so many years before, he agreed—providing that the necessary sanction could be obtained from Defence Headquarters, and that it could be done without interfering with our instructional duties with the Non-Permanent Active Militia.

Many details and minor difficulties were overcome through the co-operation of the various NPAM unit commanders, and the Staff of the Military Districts which send candidates to the Royal School of Cavalry at St. Johns, where we conduct schools of Cavalry and of Cavalry Armoured Cars during the summer as well as during the other seasons. So, with the great saving of public funds which would result from a move of a squadron of Cavalry by march route instead of by rail, to lend weight to our opinion that all ranks would benefit greatly by such a march, we waited anxiously for the verdict.

With a feeling of triumph, we finally heard that our proposal had been approved, and that at last, after seven years, we were to shake the fetters of barrack life from our venturesome bones, and start on a long, long trail, which if we succeeded in terminating successfully, with men and horses fit and hard, would be an accomplishment not yet equalled by any other Cavalry Squadron in Canada for a least some years.

Our next problem was the arrangement of administrative matters pertaining to supply, the health and condition of men and horses, transport and baggage, to mention a few of the numberless things that required careful co-ordination if we were to accomplish our self set task in a creditable fashion. We received the most cordial co-operation from the authorities of the various cities, towns and villages through which we were to pass, as well as from the farmers whose property attracted our eye as potential bivouacs. Not in single refusal hindered our planning, and we were able to issue our march orders without difficulty.

Our column consisted of the Squadron horses—a few recently joined remounts travelling as led horses under saddle, and carrying riders part time only, and a rather unique little Mechanical Transport echelon. This contained an Armoured Car, a Horse Trailer, a Travelling Kitchen modified to tow behind a light lorry instead of four horses, two light lorries, two reconnaisance cars, and two private cars belonging to some of the officers.

Throughout our journey, the population of the countryside, and in the local centres, evinced the greatest interest in our Squadron, both while we were riding along the highways and byways, and when we halted to bivouac. We received many hundreds of visitors at each halt, and there were many amusing examples of the curiosity of human nature from time to time. We never finished answering questions, and many compliments were received by Major Berteau upon the courtesy shown the visitors by the personnel of the Squadron, even at the end of some long and fatiguing marches.

It is probable that many districts through which we passed had not seen marching troops for many years, and the convenience of the party line for telephonic intercommunication was clearly demonstrated. The officers were soon convinced by observations made to them by civilians en route, that the benefits of the march were not confined to the Squadron alone. But that the whole militia aspect in Canada would benefit by the closer understanding and better appreciation of the quality of the present day soldier, as a result of the thousands of persons who became acquainted, if only for a short time, with the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

The local press were everywhere enthusiastic, in their congratulations upon the condition of our horses as they arrived at each succeeding locality; it being especially gratifying to have well informed persons express such admirartion at our last halt near Pembroke, since we were within fifteen miles of our destination. This of course, was due in large measure, to the attentive services of our Veterinary Officer, Lt. Col. J. Duhault, RCAVC.

On a few occasions, we utilized our horse trailer presented to the officers by Lt. Col. E. Decary, to 'lift' a horse showing signs of distress. Four horses, all told, enjoyed brief rides in our 'horse taxi', and, with one exception, were able to resume the march the next day. It is interesting to record that avery one of our horses was re-shod at least once en route—although they all started out on fresh shoes. There was one exception to this, my own horse "Patia", aged seventeen, who came through on her original shoes, and is carrying me daily on training manoeuvres as though she were a five year old.

But, with a last word to commend the Troop Officers, NCOs and Men upon their conduct and zeal whilst on this march, I will take the readers of this narrative (If any!) upon the actual trip, as seen and recorded by various participants, whose impressions and comments (somewhat edited and censored I confess) form a running account of the day by day progress of our march, which will form one of the highlights of my own military career in retrospect.

First Day, St. Johns To Sherrington, P.Q.—22 Miles

"Reveille at five thirty found everyone alert and eager to start on our long anticipated march. The final packing was done, transport loaded, horses saddled, inspections carrried out, and at last we were off. At seven fifteen we marched out of Cavalry Barracks in high spirits on the first leg of our journey. Moving over familiar roads we reached Napierville, which marked the beginning of unfamiliar routes from now on. The horses seemed to realize that something unusual was afoot, as they soon were moving along very steadily, with ears pricking and nostrils sniffing the new territories with great interest.

Reaching Sherrington, our first day's objective, we realized the advantages of Mechanical Transport with Cavalry, finding our horse sition, and all details of bivouac lines erected, water troughs in pocompleted, including the very welcome and savoury smells coming from the Travelling Kitchen.

Some beer, presented by Lieut. Berwick, to convey the best wishes of his horses, present on the march, who had done so well at the Seignory Club Horse Show, did much toward removing the dust from our throats. Following a meal of steak and onions, we devoted the afternoon to horsemastership—it being evident to the officers that all ranks realized that a serious task lay before them to ensure that their mounts were fit to march each day for the succeeding fortnight.

The Stable Piquet, doubled in strength for the first night, had a difficult task, as the horses took the opportunity to settle many old scores with one another, kicking and biting the whole night through —fortunately without serious injury. I am sure that all ranks were relieved when dawn finally arrived— I know that I was!

Second Day—Sherrington To Aubrey. P. Q., 22 Miles

"Marching on our way again at eight o'clock, we made short work of this next lap. Everyone felt that at last they were clear of Barrack Life for a while; and songs were gaily travelling up and down the column. Filled with anticipation, we arrived uneventfully at the outskirts of Aubrey, to find Donald Black, M.P., (Chateauguay-Huntingdon) waiting us. He was quickly mounted on Major Berteau's horse 'Bob' and led us in to his own farm, heartily cheered by all twenty-three citizens of Aubrey!

After the usual clean up, nearly everyone enjoyed a swim in a nearby river—returning to find several large cases of refreshment waiting for us—labelled 'Black Horse'. This was a great treat and much appreciated. It had, what we believe to be, the desired result, as we found no difficulty in stretching the truth when asked, 'where did that splendid horse come from?' and were able to convince each questioner that the best horses in the Cavalry all came from Chateauguay-Huntingdon counties (D. Black, M.P.), including the one referred to. We were even able to identify the right horse for anyone who asked to see their 'ole mare' or "brown colt' or 'that promising Chestnut I sold the Army four years ago'. Strangely enough—horses being friendly creatures, each such person left fully convinced that he had seen his old horse, that the horse was well, and that the Dragoons had very obliging soldiers looking after the horse.

At night, the local team gave the Squadron Team quite a lesson in Baseball—but our lads retrieved their laurels later on at the outdoor dance that had been arranged for them. We hasten to apologize to them for stealing their girls—but can we help it, if 'there's something about a soldier'?"

Third Day—Aubrey to Valleyfield, P.Q.—24 Miles

"Marching at eight o'clock—amid shouted farewells, we pondered on the folly of getting to bed at three o'clock when we had to get up at five thirty! However, it soon became more interesting to notice the lovely country through which we were passing. Following a shaded stream on a good road, we pressed on, running into a rainstorm after a few hours. Such is life, and of course, we continued on our way. One man, with an injured foot, who complained of leaks in the roof of the car he was in got scant sympathy from his mounted comrades. Arriving at Valleyfield, we found ourselves quartered in a long galvanized shed, used at the local fair, which was a great help. This was soon teeming with townsfolk and it was difficult to locate anything for a while. Later on in the evening we had a surprise attack from about four thousand frogs, who apparently took great delight in sitting on our heads and endeavouring to keep tune with our snores. The Medical Orderly had begun to have quite a clientele, mostly minor cases of galls and cuts. However, first aid cleared them up, and it was not long until we all became hardened to the task."

Fourth Day—Valleyfield, P.Q., to Alexandria, Ont.—37 Miles

"This leg of our journey was the longest of all, but also was probably the most interesting. After an hour's ride we reached the St. Lawrence River—about two miles wide at this point. A ferry was waiting for us, the engine being ninety-five years old, according to the engineer. A good deal depended on this vessel, as it cut sixty miles from our journey, if we were able to embark our horses safely upon it. Little difficulty was found however, and we disembarked safely at Point Au Diable without falling behind our schedule.

The M. T. Column had the real problem, which was how to load trailers filled with impedimenta, on to the ferry with no room to manoeuvre the towing vehicle. Recourse was had, as so often occurs, to the man-handling method; and with the assistance of the engineer and his mate, and all the 'carried' personnel, all vehicles and their appendages were safely on, and off the ferry on the landing side.

The noon halt, given only as a Map co-ordinate, with instructions to the W.O. i/c M.T. Column, to find suitable watering facilities within a couple of miles, turned out to be satisfactory and was duly located by all concerned. After lunch, the remaining twelve miles soon rolled by, and we arrived at Alexandria in the midst of flag bedecked streets (in our honour as we later learned) and occupied the local Armoury as close billets. We were very fortunate, both at Valleyfield and here, as having shelter, the rain was a blessing in disguise, since it did much towards freshening up the horses. From now on, we had no rain until the night we had arrived at our final destination.

It was interesting to notice the effect of systematically laid out roads upon the men, as we entered the Province of Ontario. Many of our personnel were leaving the Province of Quebec for the first time, and the long straight roads were a matter of much comment. Several men remarked upon the simplified map reading required by the Trcop leaders, but many others noticed the discouraging effect of an interminable ribbon of road ahead—particularly noticeable after the first thirty miles in a day's march. A winding road, with changing scenery is undoubtedly a great deal easier from the point of view of the man in the ranks.

While in Alexandria we were glad to enjoy a visit from a past commanding officer, Lieut. Colonel Douglas Bowie, D.S.O., but unfortunately were unable to accept his invitation to visit his farm at Lancaster, Ont. Everyone was tired after this march of thirty-seven miles, and were glad to know that we were to have a day rest and clean up.

The Alexandria Company of the Stormont, Dundas & Glengarry Highlanders, returning from annual training, made every effort to make our stay at their Armoury a pleasant one. Their endeavours, and an issue of beer from the Squadron arrangements, resulted in a very successful and enjoyable evening. Their officers and their Honorary Colonel D. J. MacDonald were very zealous in their anxiety to look after our officers, and we feel sure that 'Co-operation with other arms' was well carried out.

Later that evening, our officers were the guests of honour at a civic dinner, which was a great compliment to the unit, and no doubt enjoyed by those present!"

Chateauguay Valley Jersey Cattle . . . .

individuals are alike or exactly the same in any respect. I would suggest that when you go home think in terms of your own cows rather than worry too much about breed. The breeding of Jerseys, here or anywhere else, you will find the surroundings very acceptable. Throughout this district you have everything in your favor for operating a dairy herd and it is up to the human element to capitalize upon these advantages.

You must be keen minded and ready to observe differences that exist between your animals. After such observance, eliminate your poor animals and propagate your best. I would urge you all to maintain Herd Record books so that you might carefully determine what animals are your most profitable producers and then propagate as you deem best.

To the boys who are going into high class cattle, they should first equip themselves with all available information pertaining to agriculture. Farming offers benefits to the man who is not afraid to work and display good judgment. I would like nothing better than to see from 50 to 100 boys come each year to Macdonald College for the two year course. If these boys would come from the Chateauguay Valley in such numbers I am satisfied we can make them better citizens and more efficient farmers. Professor Ness, in concluding his remarks expressed thanks to Mr. Rowat and the ladies of Dewittville, who so carefully provided for the visitors at the noon hour.

Mr. P. N. April, Ste. Martine, our district agronomist, spoke of the importance of R. O. P. work. Throughout our Chateauguay Valley, at the present time, we have 45 breeders taking up with this cow testing work, whereas we might well have 100 participating in R. O. P. work. It would be a matter of great satisfaction for this club to be able to say a hundred percent of their members are taking up with R. O. P. or following the provincial test system.

Approximately two thirds of the cultivated lands in the province of Quebec is in a state of pasture. Pasture is undoubtedly the best balanced ration for a dairy cow, therefore if we have better pastures all would profit accordingly. I would like to take this opportunity and suggest to you farmers that you do some experimental work with fertilizer on your pastures. All farms are not alike therefore it is essential that some expert work be done on each and every farm in order to obtain the most satisfactory results.

The final speaker was Mr. L. V. Parent, Lennoxville, who is the Jersey Cattle Club fieldman. Mr. Parent felt that the progress obtained by the Jerseys in Quebec, was not particularly due to himself, but the way Jersey breeders have taken up with R. O. P. work. These farmers have become more careful in their cattle breeding than they were perhaps in the past, consequently the Jersey cows have proved to them that they were profitable producers.

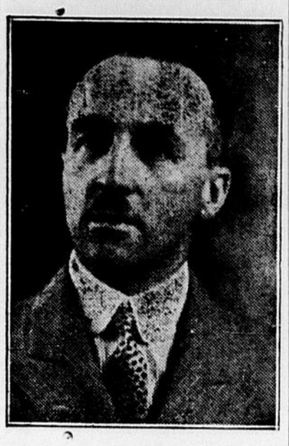

In connection with the judging competition the following awards were made: Senior Class for Men, 1st, John Howden, 85 pts.; 2nd, George Graham, 80 pts. Ladies Class, 1, Mrs. Alex. Blair, 75 pts.; 2, Mrs. Roy Blair, 73 pts. Junior Class, 1, Douglas Templeton, 95 pts.; 2, Earle Templeton, 92 pts.

A guessing competition as to the milk production of the two year old Madam Plain Mary, owned by Mr. Allan Smellie, brought forth many answers. Madam Plain Mary has already won two records. One for the 305 and the other for 365-day tests and has also won a silver medal. Her milk production was 9,651 lbs. and 491 lbs. of fat. The guessing contest was won by Ivan Knox, whose guess was 9,331 lbs. and the second prize to T. Ouimette, 9,200.

"Have you much room in your new flat?"

"Heavens, no. My kitchen and dining-room are so small that I have to live on condensed milk and shortbread."

Water For the West

R. O. Sweezey, of Montreal, financier and consulting engineer, who claims that by a perfectly feasible scheme, water which now flows into the Arctic Ocean can be diverted to restore to production millions of acres of prairie land which are now being transformed into deserts. He estimates the cost at about $400,000,000—about what would be lost to Western farmers by two bad drought years.

Dundee Tournament Proves To Be Grand Sporting Event

the locals, the final score being 16-8.

Brysons - Hogansburgh friendly game was played with the same line-up as mentioned before.

For the final the Dundee girls took on the Riverfield team who played hard and fought stubbornly all the way but yielded to the locals, the score standing 17-12 in their favour. However, although the local girls won the game, the prize money was presented to Riverfield.

By way of amusement and entertainment the local boys dressed up to represent what were supposed to be Old Maids, but in some cases looked more like grandmothers or South Sea Islanders, played an inning or so with the Dundee girls team. Their antics caused much merriment and laughter amongst the spectators who thoroughly enjoyed the novelty.

The greasy pig contest was rather a quick affair. Immediately upon its release all the boys who dared to risk the chance of getting greased up took after it. In double quick time, Mr. Pig was coralled with Cecil Arnold taking the porker in a slimy embrace to win the $1.00 offered.

The results of the running races were as follows:—

Girls, 6-8—1, Lucy Thomson; 2, Isabel Stowell.

Boys, 6-8—1, Hugh Kerr; 2, Keith McPherson.

Girls, 8-10—1, Rita Castagner; 2, Winona Leslie.

Boys, 8-10—1, Harlan Platt; 2, John Ferguson.

Girls, 10-12—1, Janie McCormick; 2, Phyllis Platt.

Boys, 10-12—1, Cameron Leslie; 2, Wilbur Leslie.

Girls 12-14—1, Janie McCormick; 2, Elizabeth Anderson.

Boys, 12-14—1, Emery Castagner; 2, Leo Quenneville.

Boys and girls under 6—1, Reyburn Fleming; 2, Rita Myre.

Umpires were: Messrs. Chas. Fraser, Arthur Fraser and Ronald Bruce.

The young people had a refreshment booth on the grounds which did a roaring business in ice cream, hot dogs and soft drinks. Over 25 cases of ice cold soft drinks being guzzled by the thirsty patrons.

Those in charge of the day's events are deeply grateful to the general public for their wholehearted support of their venture and hope that when another year rolls around they may have another event of like nature with a larger and more complete programme.

The proceeds amounted to over $100.00.

MOTHS END MEETING

Moths caused the abandonment of a meeting at Rajamundry, South India, where 2,000 people had assembled to hear Sir K. V. Reddi, chief minister of Madras, deliver an address. The air became so thick with them it was impossible to proceed with the meeting.

Chateauguay Basin

Mr. and Mrs. Hayward G. Taylor and daughter, Jean of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mr. Hamilton Hay of Quebec and vicinity were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne A. Hay, "The Gables."

Mr. D. H. Murphy, Mr. James Hobbs, Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Greenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Osmond Seath-Smith were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Seath-Smith at "Grace Dew Warren."

Miss Mabel MacDougall of Westmount was a guest on Thursday of Miss M. Etta Boulter.

Mrs. James Hamilton visited recently with Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Gebbie at Howick, Que.

Mrs. James Seath-Smith entertained "The Duplicate Bridge Club" at Grace Dew Warren on Thursday.

Mrs. Arthur McDonald of Toronto, is visiting with her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. McDonald.

Mrs. Stanley Hill entertained a party of little girls in honor of her daughter, Marion's eleventh birthday.

Mrs. A. E. Coleman was a Bridge hostess on Thursday. Proceeds in aid of her talent money towards the Julius Richardson Chapter I.O.D.E.

Mrs. Robertson and Miss Della Robertson of St. Lambert were recent guests of Mrs. Allan Fenwick.

Mrs. A. E. Esdon, Miss Rowena Esdon, Mrs. George MacMillan, Miss Ida Woods and Miss A. McRober motored to Huntingdon and Malone, N.Y., on Wednesday.

Miss Hope Jack has returned to Cornwall, Ont., having spent the summer with Mrs. J. Fraser Torrance and Mrs. Peter Reid and renewing former friendships.

Miss Mary Gardner is spending a holiday with Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Kelly, Huntingdon.

Congratulations are extended to Dr. and Mrs. I. K. Williams on the birth of a son, who received the name of John Kenneth.

Miss Rowena Esdon left on Friday for Old Orchard, Me., where she will spend her vacation.

Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Fulcher attended the Fulcher-Morrison wedding at Sutton, Que., on Saturday night.

Rev. and Mrs. McKinley Rose and family are expected this week from Old Orchard, Me., where they have spent their holidays.

Approximately seventy-five people attended the hay-cart drive sponsored by the managers of St. Andrew's United Church on Wednesday night. Messrs. George MacMillan, Ross Lang and David Reid drove the guests through the historical town of Caughnawaga and along the St. Lawrence River, returning to River View, the home of Mrs. Peter Reid, where the entrance was lighted by Chinese lanterns to the spot where the delectable corn and refreshments were served.

The annual Sunday School picnic was held last Saturday. The scholars met at the church in the morning and were transported to the Wigwam Beach in cars. They spent the morning swimming, boating and playing games. Several of the parents joined them for dinner. Early in the afternoon they left for the Basin where the local Regatta was held. The children returning home in the early evening, having spent an enjoyable day. Mr. David Reid, Supt. of the S.S., Miss Patience Reid, Miss Jean Jack and Miss Margaret Gilmour were responsible for the successful event.

A very successful Garden Party was held on the spacious lawn at "The Poplars," the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Richardson on Tuesday afternoon. The guests were received by Mrs. Richardson, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Albin Davidson, and her grand-daughters, the Misses Enid and Rhoda Davidson and the Misses Eleanor and Lois Richardson, who were quaintly dressed in 18th century costumes. The proceeds, which were very gratifying, are to be used for an outdoor wading pool at the Julius Richardson Hospital.

Ormstown

The most beautiful display of flowers held by the Garden Club this season was on Thursday evening, when the corner window at Walsh's Ltd., was massed with blooms of gorgeous colors. Tall spikes of gladioli and dahlias of immense size were among the twenty-one exhibits judged by Miss E. M. Maw and Mrs. C. J. Bryson. For exhibition only Mrs. Jas. T. Elder had three large bouquets of lillies which grew in her garden and they drew much admiration from the people who viewed the flowers. The prizes were awarded to the following:

Gladioli:

Class A, single spike—1 and 2, H. B. Patton.

Class B, spikes dissimilar—1, Miss Bazin; 2, Mr. H. B. Patton.

Class C, bouquet—1, Mr. H. Patton; 2, Miss Marion Swan.

Dahlias—

Class A, 1 bloom Cactus or decorative—1, Mr. Patton; 2, Mrs. W. S. McLaren.

Class B, 1 bloom of other variety —Miss Marion Swan.

Class C, 3 blooms dissimilar—1, Mrs. W. S. McLaren; 2, Miss M. Swan.

Class D, bouquet of Pompons— Miss M. Swan; Honorable Mention for bouquet of all varieties, Mrs. W. S. McLaren.

Reverend Sister Fernando, Superior of the Convent at Ormstown for the past six years, has been transferred to Coteau, Que., and she is being replaced here by Rev. Sister Marie Zephirine, who is a sister of Mr. Domina Beaulieu of this parish. Other changes in the teaching staff are Rev. Sister Cecile-Emilie, music teacher replacing Sister Emma-Marie, Sister Theresa, English teacher, replacing Sister Mildred, and Sisters Georgiana and Rita-Marie, replacing Sisters Berthe des-Anges and Marie-Henri.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Osmond left on Saturday for a two weeks' holiday at Saranac Lake, N.Y.

Rockburn

Mr. John Jamieson of Toronto and Mr. John Blair of Montreal were guests over the week-end of Mrs. Jamieson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Pollock and Mr. and Mrs. R. Churchill, Springfield, Mass., spent a few days recently with Mr. and Mrs. A. Pollock.

Mrs. Henry Lawson of Montreal was a Sunday guest of her parents.

The services held in St. Andrew's United Church Sunday morning terminated Rev. J. G. Fulcher's stay among us which have been enjoyed. He voiced his appreciation of being guest minister here.

Athelstan

The August meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. John Graham on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Brims gave a most interesting story on the work of Rural Deaconesses in the Province of Alberta. At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Graham and daughters, Misses Katie and Bessie Graham.

The pulpit of the Athelstan Presbyterian Church was occupied by the pastor, Rev. A. Nimmo, who has been on vacation for the past four weeks. Mr. Nimmo spoke with appreciation of the improvements done by the Ladies' Aid Society during his absence. The plain glass in the Gothic arch at the top of the high windows has been replaced by coloured cathedral glass in different shades of amber. This, combined with new window shades of soft cream colour gives a very fine effect, completely transforming the appearance of the interior of the church. This is only the beginning of the improvements planned by the indefatigable workers of the Ladies' Aid Society, but a good start for one season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Leslie Elder left on Monday for Toronto where they expect to be gone two weeks. Miss Irvine Elder, who has been their guest for the past month returned to her home with them.

DELIVER US

Deliver us from the know-it-all,
From the man who's never wrong,
He's quick to indulge in debate,
He'll argue loud and long;
There's nothing he doesn't know,
He's wiser than all the sages,
Even thou he's read not a thing
But the sports and comic pages.

TRUMPETER PLAYS REQUIEM FOR WIFE

Max Gronwald, 61, a musician unslung his trumpet in Court recently and blew a requiem in memory of the wife he confessed slaying after a quarrel.

"Have you anything to say before I sentence you?" asked the judge.

"I should like to play my trumpet for the last time," Gronwald said.

The request was granted. In a hushed courtroom he played "La Donna E Mobile," (Woman is Fickle) from Verdi's Opera Rigoletto.

The words of the song:

Woman is fickle, false altogether,
Moves like a feather borne on the breezes:
Woman with a smile will ever deceive you,
Often can grieve you, yet e'er she pleases;
Her heart's unfeeling, false altogether.
Moves like a feather born on the breezes.

Sentence was deferred.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Is hereby given by the undersigned E. C. Martin, Secretary-Treasurer of the Town of Huntingdon that the general collection roll has been completed and is deposited in my office and all persons bound to pay the sums therein mentioned must pay the same at my office within twenty days following the publication of this notice.

Given at Huntingdon, Que., this 20th day of August, 1937.
E. C. MARTIN,
Secretary-Treasurer

Covey Hill

The other day Finance Minister Dunning speaking at Charlottetown, declared that all Canada needed in order to prosper was peace and rain. As for rain, he must have meant the prairie provinces, but why doesn't he say what he means? However, we don't wish to quarrel with a man who is a peace-lover and a cabinet minister to boot, so we shall just blame the reporter. In this part of the country we have had enough rain to produce such a hay crop that farmers who never built a stack before have had to do so this season, and then we had so much more rain that they could hardly get their stacks finished before another deluge would descend.

As for peace, we have our little wars, mere tempests in teapots as a rule, but armistices are nearly as frequent. Thus we are spared that deadly dullness which is apt to irk people who are not only in the main scions of a stock inured to Hibernian feuds, but who also share the valourous spirit, as well as the many other estimable qualities, by which the inhabitants of mountainous regions have always been distinguished.

All the patients in all the hospitals always do "as well as can be expected" but the young rabbit which the twins at "Apple Hill" have been nursing and taming this summer has done better than could advertently maimed it when his mowing-machine knife invaded its birthplace. Now, minus one eye and the tip of one ear, Bunny is proving the truth of the law of compensation and is thriving apace.

Mr. and Mrs. Duckworth and baby John, and his small cousin, Elizabeth Curran, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Curran at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Waddell.

Miss Annie Waddell of Montreal has been enjoying her annual vacation at the family home here.

Mrs. R. J. Bourdon and children enjoyed a camping trip to Frasers' Point with friends.

We are glad to report Mr. E. R. Louden much improved after being confined to bed for several days with rheumatism.

Miss Florence Steele returned to Montreal South after a visit here with New York friends.

Mrs. L. A. Waddell and June have been guests of city relatives, Mrs. Waddell recovering from a tonsils operation.

Mr. Malcolm Jelley of New York and Mr. James Gilliland of Ormstown were callers at "Cornerstones" this week.

Mr. Norman Gough and family, also his sister, Mrs. Wilson, of Montreal have been recent callers on Mrs. C. Weary and Mr. and Mrs. Simpson. Other visitors at the Simpson home were Mr. Marshall Simpson of New York, the Misses Simpson of Champlain, and their neice, Miss Martha Simpson of Hemmingford.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Foy and sons, Carroll and John, also Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Foy, all of Montreal were guests at the Customs House last week, Master Raymond Bourdon returning with them for a week's visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Foy.

Master Elmer Cavers accompanied his brother, Leslie to Montreal on Saturday to spend a week at home before commencing the school term at Howick.

Thursday, August 26th, being the eighteenth birthday of Miss Beulah Louden, she was the recipient of greetings and good wishes from a party of New York friends who were guests at "Airy Knoll", at the tea-hour, which included Mrs. Kenneth Steele, her sons, Kenneth and George, and daughters, Clarissa and Marjorie Belle, Mrs. Steele's sister, Mrs. Lillian Stanton, and the latter's daughter, Mrs. Edith Lockwood.

Mr. W. A. Churchill and party enjoyed a motor-ride to Plattsburg Beach, Lake Placid, and Malone.

Recent guests at "The Lilacs" were, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cole and the latters sister, Mrs. Orrell of Liverpool, who has been visiting her sisters and brothers in Montreal, Lachine and New York, also Miss Muriel Cole and Mr. Keith Ogilvie of Ottawa, and Mr. Herman Cole and Miss Moncaster.

On Friday last, the birthday of the late Mrs. L. P. Cole, many regretfully recalled to mind their revered friend. Sunday was the 96th birthday of Miss Jane Loving when that lady received a number of affectionate messages from friends.

Mrs. Edward Dowsley of St. Lambert spent a couple of days last week at "The Lilacs."

Franklin Centre

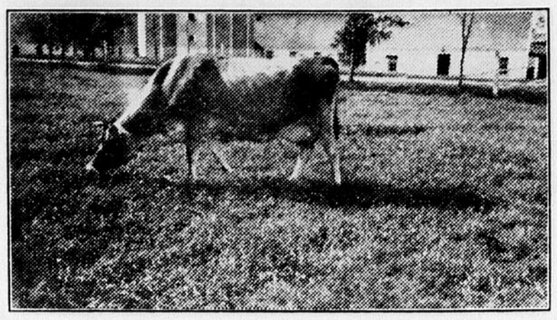

The Franklin schools will re-open on Wednesday, Sept. 1st, with the following teachers in charge: the Stone school, Miss Margaret Rice; the Centre school, Miss Florence McDonald; Hill school, Miss McCormick.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McLaren and sons, Robert and Gordon returned to their home in Buffalo, N.Y., on Thursday last.

TREASURES ON DISPLAY

Treasures from the Romanoff palaces—$15,000 jeweled Easter eggs, a "quill pen" fashioned of gold; diamonds, emeralds and 2,200 pearls, lavish dinner services and icons 400 years old—were placed on exhibit in a Fifth avenue department store. They formed a $1,000,000 collection acquired by the three Hammer brothers, Armand, Victor and Harry, during the nine years they operated various concessions under the Soviet government, including a monopoly on pencils and stationery. By selling their American automobile factory in Russia to the Soviets they won permission to take the treasures out of the country.

One of the Easter eggs, presented by Czar Nicholas II to the Czarina Alexandra in 1912, is of blue lapis in an intricate net-work of gold with a large diamond bearing her monogram in the top. Within it is a silver double-headed imperial eagle set with 2,000 diamonds framing a miniature of Czarevitch Alexis in a sailor suit showing both a front and back view. Another egg, presented by Czar Nicholas to his mother in 1895, solid gold and rose colored, contains miniatures of eight palaces and two yachts. Easter was formerly the principal Russian holiday. There are about fifty pieces of what was a 4,000-piece dinner service, a coronation gift to Czar Nicholas I from Frederick III of Prussia.

The Jersey cow, Louroy Standard Dot, has broken the World's Jersey record for fat production, announces the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club.

Dot went on test as a junior three year old and in 305 days produced 13,826 lbs. of milk, 833 lbs. of fat, testing 6.00%. She will freshen in time for Silver, Gold and Medal of Merit Certificates, and becomes the highest producing junior three year old Jersey heifer the world has ever produced.

The new champion is a bred and owned "Quebecer," and is a member of the famous Grayburn herd of S. R. Fuler, Jr., Waterville, Que.

The blood of champion producers and champion tan bark winners flows in her veins. Her sire, a champion, is also a Silver Medal son of the grand champion Gold Medalist, Standard of Oaklands. Her sire's maternal half sister was grand champion at Tennessee State Fair in 1933 and is the champion producer of Tennessee with 16,535 lbs. of milk and 905 lbs. of fat.

Dot's sire was bred by B. H. Bull & Son, Brampton, Ontario, while Dot and her dam were bred by Roy Hunting, Lennoxville, Quebec, who is now herdsman at Grayburn, and, who piloted Dot on her world's conquest.

MYSTERIES OF SLEEP

Sleep is a mystery which, so far, physiologists and psychologists have failed to unravel. The latest suggestion for its causation comes from Berlin. Professor Zondek, already well-known for his researches into certain special internal secretions or hormones, claims to have discovered and isolated a chemical substance which is intimately connected with sleep. The professor began his work apparently, by examining the blood of patients suffering from a certain type of insanity characterized by restlessness and sleeplessness. He found that the blood of these patients contained less than the usual quantity of bromine, but became normal between the attacks. He next examined certain secretions of the pituitary gland, a small gland situated at the base of the brain, and found one containing bromine. This new hormone he succeeded in isolating in soluble form, and on injection it produced a decrease of muscle power, fatigue and apathy.
