THE British Empire is rich in memories of heroic deeds. There is not a corner of the world in which some son or daughter of that Empire on which the sun never sets has not shed his or her life's blood in the supreme sacrifice of duty well done.

There are names carved on Britain's deathless roll of honor which have power to stir the feelings. And now it is the turn of Canada to offer homage to her sons.

To-day on the lips of countless thousands of British subjects the now familiar names of heroic Canadians have become household words together with the deathless heroes of the Isles themselves.

of Montreal,

ever inspire greater honor or reverence in the hearts of all true Britons than will McCuaig of Montreal—the man with the three revolvers, who, wounded and crippled, knowing that he would be but a hindrance to his fellows asked for two more to be added to his own and then told...

The thought of that young Canadian officer, with his men going back and the enemy coming forward, lying in the trench with his three revolvers—grim, resolute and determined to sell his life as dearly as possible against the enemies of his country, is one that will linger in the minds of his countrymen as long as the Empire stands and its men and women remain true to their ideals—W.M.S.

Farquhar, McCuaig, Norsworthy, Papineau and many others, are as well known through the manner of their lives and daring, and alas, in many cases, through the manner of their death, as are the heroes who are so intimate to the people of England and Scotland and Ireland.

It is but a few days ago since, in the schools of Britain, the men and women of to-morrow had read to them, by their teachers, the immortal story of the manner in which Major D. R. McCuaig, of Montreal, went forth to his heroic death. No Piper Findlater, hero of Dargai; no Captain Oakes, who went to his Polar death with a rare courage; no Grace Darling, with her rescue of the men of the Forfarshire; will

"Three Cheers for the King?" The Enthusiastic Scene That Took Place on Fletcher's Field, Montreal, the C

CANADA'S ROYAL GOVERNOR-GENERAL INSPECTS THE IRISH RANGERS AND HOME GUARD.—The above picture perpetuates the scene on Fletcher's Field, Montreal, that followed the inspection of these units by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught. After His Royal Highness had passed through the lines of khaki-clad troops he returned to the saluting base and called for three cheers for the King. The above picture shows the magnificent response the men made to the call. In the ranks of the Home Guard are millionaires, University professors, merchant princes, financiers, professional men, railway officials, artisans, clerks, mechanics—all banded together to defend their city in case it should be attacked by the enemy. In the illustration the Irish Rangers are on the left and the Mounted and Infantry Companies of the Home Guard are on the right.

HOME GUARD PARADE IN MONTREAL

THE recent parade of the Montreal Home Guards before the Duke of Connaught (illustrated on this page) was a parade unique and unprecedented in the history of the commercial metropolis of Canada. No such regiment had ever tramped the city's streets before, no such regiment had ever been seen of the people.

In its ranks were millionaires, leaders in the business world of the city, bankers, railway officials and clerks, citizens, civil engineers, merchant princes, doctors, professional men, and men who earn their living by the brawny muscles of their arms.

All were in khaki and all appeared eager for service in the home field. The uniforms were of their own buying; so, too, were their rifles. Their training had cost the Government nothing, all expenses incidental to it having been defrayed out of their own pockets.

The unit paraded 1,500 strong—a remarkable showing by the way. It was under the command of Col. George Starke, but the honorary colonel, J. N. Green-

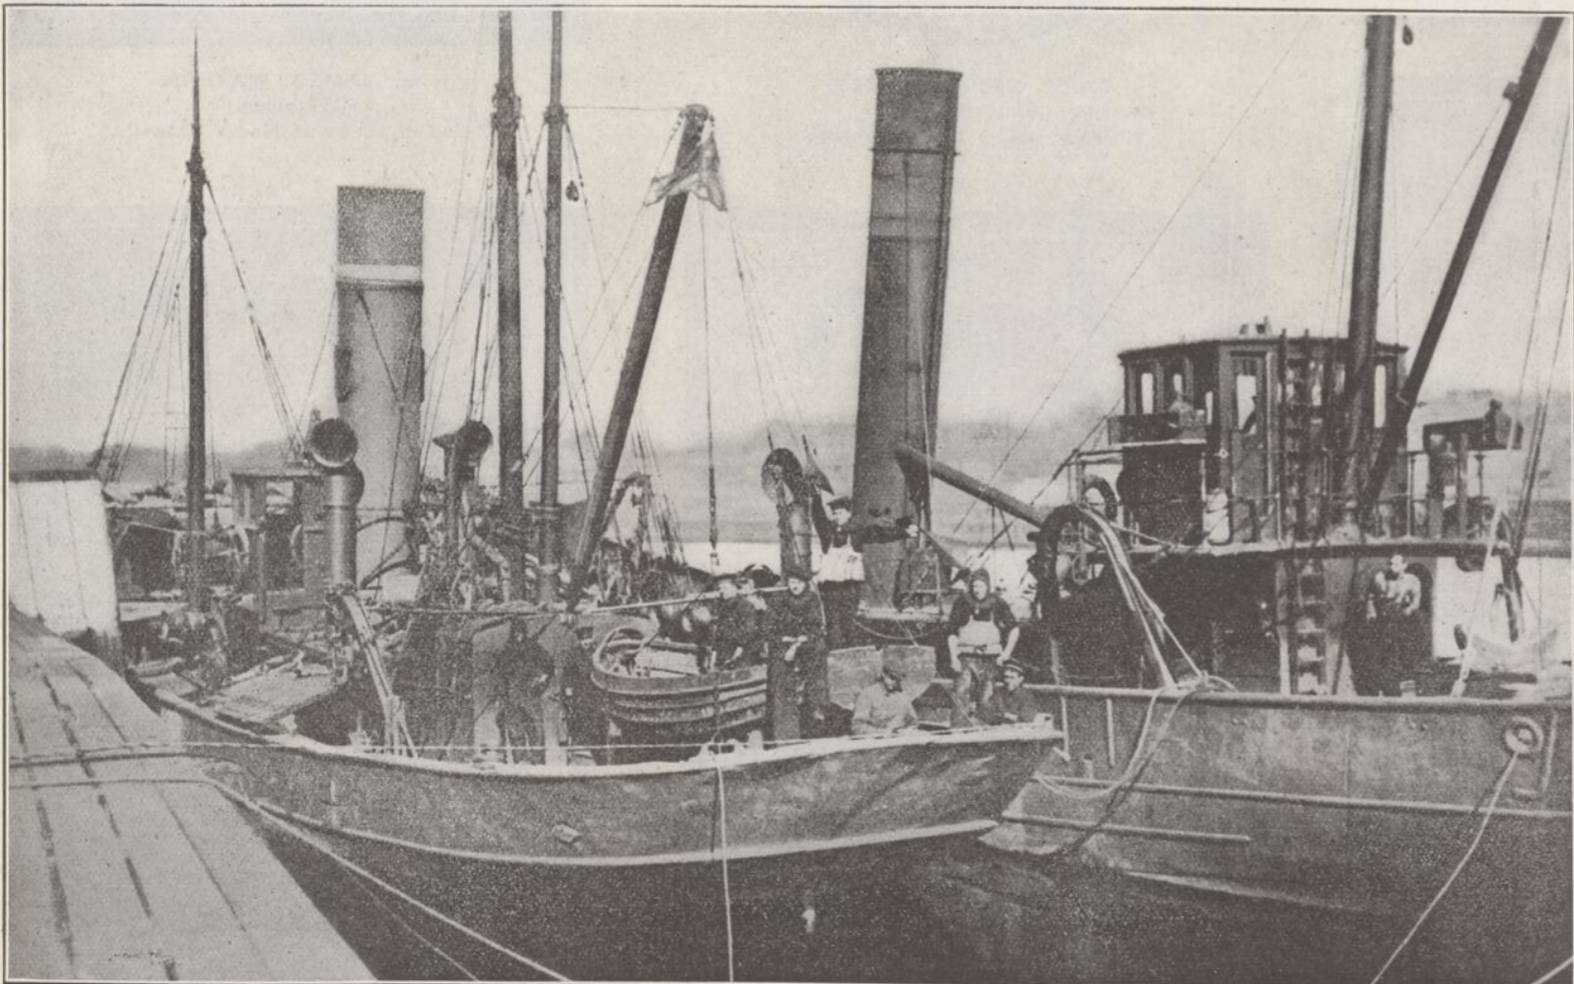

THE REVIEW OF THE HOME GUARD OF MONTREAL BY H. R. H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.—The above picture perpetuates a pleasing incident that occurred at this inspection when His Royal Highness recognized a number of his old friends in the ranks of the corps. Reading from right to left the group includes:

Major Anderson; A. W. P. Buchanan; a little further on, Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor; Mr. A. E. Holt; A. D. MacTier; F. J. Cockburn; Huntley Drummond; Duke of Connaught; Col. Starke and Mr. J. N. Greenshields.

the Conclusion of the Duke of Connaught's Inspection of the Montreal Home Guard and the Irish Rangers

LE GOUVERNEUR GENERAL DU CANADA FAISANT L'INSPECTION "THE IRISH RANGERS" ET DE LA GARDE NATIONALE (HOME GUARD DE MONTREAL).—La photographie ci-dessus perpétue une scène émouvante à la Ferme Fletcher, à Montréal, qui suivit l'inspection de cette Garde et "The Irish Rangers" par S.A.R. le Duc de Connaught. Après que Son Altesse Royale eut passé parmi les rangs le duc retourna à la plate forme érigée pour le parti Vice-Royal et demanda aux troupes de crier trois hourrah pour le Roi. La photographie ci-dessus fait voir les principaux citoyens du pays, acclamant le commandant en chef des armées canadiennes, qui les passe en revue. Parmi ceux qui acclament le Gouverneur-General on voit plusieurs millionnaires qui ont répondu à l'appel aux armes. Parmi eux on verra des professeurs d'université, des grands financiers, des marchands importants, des employés de magasins, des artisans qui tous, dans un même élan de patriotisme ont répondu à l'appel de défendre leur pays, si l'ennemi nous attaquait.

shields, was also present in uniform. The other members of the staff were Capt. Alex. Warden, adjutant; Lieut-Col. J. E. Hutcheson, second in command; Major E. N. Armstrong; Capt. C. H. Godfrey, quartermaster; Capt. D. Forbes Angus, paymaster; and Sgt., Major Ribet.

The mounted troops of the Home Guard, under Capt. Colin Campbell were also present, and had with them the Knowles band.

while the bugle and brass bands of the 3rd Victoria Rifles accompanied the main body of the Guards.

The regiment fell in at their respective headquarters and proceeded to Fletcher's Field, parading in close column formation on the stretch of ground between Duluth avenue and Rachel street, facing west. Markers reported to the Assistant Adjutant-General in charge of Administration, Lieut-Col. L. LeDuc, at half-past two, and the main body was on parade by a quarter to three. The mounted section paraded on the right of the others. Practically all the members were equipped with uniforms and rifles.

Major D. C. S. Miller commanded No. 1 Section, which paraded at the Victoria Rifles' armory and marched to the parade grounds, headed by the Victoria Rifles' bands. No. 2 Section, commanded by Col. W. I. Gear, fell in at the Grenadier Guards' armory, while No. 3 Section Westmount, under Major Ibbotson, mustered at the Arena. Half of the Bankers' Section, No. 4, under Capt. K. B. Low, paraded at the Bank of Montreal, and joined the other half at the corner of Pine avenue and Bleury street, while No. 5 Section, C.P.R. and Angus Shops, under Capt. Thornton, assembled at their own headquarters, as did also No. 6 Section, Montreal Light Heat and Power Co.

The Review by the Duke of Connaught commenced at half-past three, and after the inspection and march past, the Home Guards held a route march through the principal streets of the city, and finally dismissed on the McGill Campus.

The 55th Irish Canadian Rangers, who also took part in the review, were headed for the first time by their own brass band, which has recently been formed. Several of the officers of this corps, as well as many of the rank and file, are already doing active service duty with the composite regiment, while a large number have transferred to battalions being raised for overseas service. They were under the command of Lieut-Col. H. J. Trihey with Major P. O'Brien, second in command. The regiment fell in at Stanley street, about five hundred men, including the stretcher section and signallers being on parade.

In the picture published on this page the Irish Rangers are the troops on the extreme left, next to them is the Mounted division of the Home Guard, and beyond the mounted troops are the other units in the Home Guard Battalion. More than 2,500 officers and men were on parade, the majority of whom are included in the above illustration.

PATRIOTIC DAY IN ST. JOHN, N.B.

THE "Royal Standard" Chapter I.O.D.E. recently organized under the regency of Mrs. E. Atherton Smith, at St. John, N.B., adopts Practical Patriotism as its watchword. The first expression of this energetic Chapter's ideals came on Paardeberg Day, when the city, through the splendid organization, arranged and carried out under the JOHN'S PATRIOTIC DAY.—A corner of the room at the headquarters of Royal Standard Chapter, I.O.D.E., St. John, N.B., on the occasion of Patriotic Day, when, through the efforts of the recently organized chapter, nearly $7,000 was raised for various relief funds. Standing in the foreground is Commissioner Potts; and on his left is seated Mayor J. H. Frink, while to the left are the officers of the chapter, including Mrs. E. Atherton Smith, the regent. Officers of the Overseas units mobilized at St. John, including Major F. T. McKean, of No. 5 A.S.C. and Lieut. A. Rainnie, of the same corps, are also shown.

able generalship of Mrs. Smith and the members of the "Royal Standard" Chapter, was invaded by a Patriotic Army of women, numbering nearly four hundred! Each ward of the city was in charge of a captain (a member of the Chapter), with two capable lieutenants and a company of volunteer workers. Each company varied in numbers in accordance with the size or extent of the ward in which it was to labour. Besides the various companies and their splendid enthusiastic officers, there were Special Committees, whose work was very effective and far reaching. The Flag Committee, of which Mrs. George McAvity was convenor, not only arranged for the miniature "Jacks"—the little souvenir flag sold on Patriotic Day, but previous to the day, with the aid of the various captains and lieutenants, sent upwards of eight hundred dollars worth of flags for decoration of private and public buildings. The splendid spacious hall of

The Knights of Columbus was placed at the disposal of the Chapter as headquarters for the day. The results of the day totalled $5,000, and donations received since the day for one of the objects of the Chapter, has brought the amount up to nearly the $7,000 mark! The Patriotic, Red-Cross, Navy and Belgian Funds all profited very materially from the day's work, and not only were the local Red-Cross Societies substantially remembered, but $1,600 were forwarded to Lt.-Colonel A. T. Shillington, in command of No. 2 Canadian Base Hospital at La Touquet, near Boulogne, France, for the furnishing of the New Brunswick Ward. The officers of the Royal Standard Chapter are: Mrs. E. Atherton Smith, regent; Mrs. J. H. Frink, vice-regent; Mrs. George McAvity, 2nd vice-regent; Mrs. Harrison McKeown, hon. treasurer; Mrs. F. White, standard bearer; Miss Travers, hon. secretary; Miss Ethel Jarvis, literary correspondent.

THE ARMY OF THE DEAD.
I dreamed that overhead
I saw in the twilight grey
The Army of the Dead
Marching upon its way.
So still and passionless,
With faces so serene,
That scarcely could one guess
Such men in war had been.
No mark of hurt they bore,
Nor smoke, nor bloody stain;
Nor suffered any more
Famine, fatigue, or pain;
Nor any lust of hate
Now lingered in their eyes—
Who have fulfilled their fate
Have lost all enmities.
A new and greater pride
So quenched the pride of race
That foes marched side by side
Who once fought face to face.
That ghostly army's plan
Knows but one race, one rod—
All nations there are Man,
And the one King is God.
No longer on their ears
The bugle's summons falls;
Beyond these tangled spheres
The Archangel's trumpet calls;
And by that trumpet led
Far up the exalted sky
The Army of the Dead
Goes by, and still goes by—
Look upwards, standing mute;
Salute!
—Barney Pain.
