commission's suggested boundaries for Westmount created some difficult problems which his proposal attempted to resolve.

Chief among these was the "artificial association" of part of the St. Henri ward bounded by Decarie boulevard, the Lachine canal and Atwater avenue to the City of Westmount. These two communities, claimed Lord Shaughnessy, provide sharp contrasts in the kind of demands they make upon their member, thereby making his job of representing and responding

Engaging consultants is endorsed very difficult. Lord Shaughnessy proposed that this area be placed within the St. Henri riding.

He also recommended that the downtown community between Atwater and Peel street to the south of Sherbrooke be taken away from the St. Henri riding (as per the commission's proposal) for identical reasons of incompatibility, and placed inside Westmount riding as far east as Bleury street and as far south as St. Antoine street. He similarly objected to the commission's proposal that the downtown area north of Sherbrooke street be added to Outremont riding, and recommended instead that it be retained in Westmount as far as Park avenue.

Keep west boundary

He agreed with the commission that the City of Westmount should remain entirely inside the federal riding of Westmount. To the west, Lord Shaughnessy noted that the preservation of the N.D.G. riding required Westmount's riding boundary to be moved to the east of what the commission had proposed (Montreal West's east border). He suggested that the western limit of Melrose avenue be maintained.

Present and in support of this proposal was a former Progressive Conservative member of parliament for the area, Egan Chambers.

Hon. C.M. Drury, MP for Westmount, was unable to be there because of the debate on the throne speech, but he expressed his support for Lord Shaughnessy's proposal in a letter which was tabled before the commission.

Mr. Drury recently sought comments from his constituents in a newsletter circulated throughout the riding.

Played out

A record player was removed from the back seat of a car parked at the rear of 4250 St. Catherine street Tuesday. Thieves gained entry by breaking a window.

Late report

Westmount Police were told Friday that a typewriter had been stolen from Dawson College more than two weeks earlier. The machine was last seen on Dec. 20 and was found missing on Dec. 21.

In response to a criticism of the city hiring outside consultants—specifically the $20,000 cost of the study for the closing of de Maisonneuve boulevard—the finance committee of the Westmount Municipal Association Tuesday night endorsed the practice.

It was felt to be a "wise policy" and less expensive than building up a fulltime staff of city employees to do similar work as the need may arise.

The committee currently is analysing the city's 1973 budget, described as a complex document. Also being studied are Westmount's per capita costs in a selected number of spending areas in comparison with other municipalities. The difficulty cited here was the fact that often seemingly same things cannot be fairly compared.

The 1973 assessments for tax purposes have only slight changes and appear to be fair, the committee reported.

Mrs. Bates has the unique distinction of having sold more than $2,000,000. worth of real estate in a 12 months period, both directly and in co-operation with fellow brokers.

Mr. Norman noted that Mrs. Bates has assisted her clients in Southern Europe, Florida and the offshore islands.

Stolen cars are recovered in Montreal

Two cars were stolen from Westmount and later recovered in Montreal on Monday and Tuesday in separate incidents.

A 1968 Chevrolet was reported stolen from a parking lot at the Reddy Memorial Hospital on Monday. It was later recovered in the east end of Montreal, with nothing missing.

On Tuesday, Westmount Police notified the owner of a 1972 Mercury that his car had been taken from behind 4166 St. Catherine street west and found on Ontario street east in Montreal.

Montreal Police had found the car abandoned, and a check of the vehicle found that its owner, who worked in Westmount, had left the keys in the ignition.

Chased car in snowbank

Westmount Police aided Montreal patrolmen in chasing a car allegedly involved in two hit-and-run accidents in Montreal Sunday.

Mr. Aimers was born in Dublin, Ireland, and came to Canada in 1952. He was educated at Selwyn House School, Lower Canada College and Sir George Williams University. His duties will include constituency liaison, speech-writing and office organization. He is past president of the Westmount Young Progressive Conservative Association, and a member of the advisory council of the Westmount Municipal Association. He also is a member of the national executive of the Progressive Conservative Youth Federation, the executive of the Old Boys' Association of Lower Canada College and secretary of the Montreal Branch, Council for the Faith.

He is 21, and was Canadian delegate to the EURNAC conference in Rome in 1969, founder and chairman of the Monarchist League of Canada, and is active in the Anglican Church and camping.

Mutual aid takes fireman away twice

Two mutual aid calls in the past week were answered by the Westmount Fire Brigade, who went to Outremont and St. Laurent to help out with fires in those cities. In both cases, however, Westmount's fire fighters were not actually engaged in fighting the blazes.

Last Wednesday, Jan. 3, firemen were called to 1045 St. Viateur street in Outremont at 2 pm, but found the fire under control when they arrived.

Yesterday morning's blaze at Dagwood's Restaurant on Laurentian boulevard in St. Laurent resulted in a call to Westmount for assistance at 5:47 am. The local fire brigade was required to cover for St. Laurent firemen at that city's station while the fire was being fought. The trucks returned to Westmount about 8:45 am.

The cities of Westmount, Outremont, St. Laurent and the Town of Mount Royal have a mutual aid pact.

We Say

Public housing spectre

THE spectre of public housing, laid low for a year, raises itself over Westmount once again.

From a word here, a hint there, city hall may be about to dust off those tenders received late in 1971 for the construction of Hillside Place.

Last year at this time, the Quebec Housing Corporation appeared to have put the squelch on this boondoggle by demanding that the city construct a very expensive barrier wall along the new Trans-Canada Highway to shield the project from sight and sound of traffic.

That requirement apparently has been softened by the discovery that the new expressway really does not present a nuisance of great consequence to existing homes in the area and, therefore, should not be a problem for Hillside Place. Virtually no such protection now is expected to be required.

Also putting a glint in the eyes of proponents of the scheme is a new formula which would reduce the city's share of the operating deficits from the 25 percent previously charged to local government to an enticing 10 percent. If this be so, a big temptation is presented to the city fathers to get on with it.

To which we say: folly!

READERS of this newspaper are well aware that we consistently have opposed public housing in principle, particularly for Westmount, and specifically because of the hollow excuses advanced for it in this particular case.

Westmount is a city of owners or of dwellers in houses or apartments each of which pays—as equitably as any system of purchasing, renting, valuating and taxing can devise—its fair share of cost, upkeep and service.

If Hillside Place, or any other proposal for publicly-subsidized housing, materializes then Westmount abandons a fundamental principle, and does so in virtual perpetuity.

Westmount would create a new, separate and, alas, truly second class of citizen for whom dwellings are specially built out of the public purse and for whom, except in most unlikely cases, a large portion of the true rental value always would likewise be underwritten by the public purse.

It matters not that 90 percent of such underwriting would come from federal (mostly) and provincial funds. Together with the 10 percent to be borne by Westmount's municipal coffers, it all would come from the taxpayer—all the rest of us.

THE city administration must not be permitted to feel that it has a mandate simply to take up where it left off a year ago and go on with this project.

Many sound objections still have not been overcome.

And there are new arguments against it.

We maintain that this very expensive undertaking has been based on an insidiously developed notion that somehow this community must build new homes in Westmount for some of the people expropriated—and, remember, already compensated—by the provincial government for the building of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Alleged "promises" to the old Selby street people are at best tenuous and arguable.

If indeed the City of Westmount ever had an obligation arising out of actions of the provincial government, unproven is the argument that Hillside Place is the form in which it must be discharged.

Also to be convinced that they are not to be discriminated against by the placing of Hillside Place are the home-owners and residents of the neighborhood immediately adjacent. In the area are many persons who worked hard and long to acquire and maintain what they now possess. Down through the years they have shouldered their full share of cost, through taxes, of the services provided to them. Collectively, these people have the right to ask why this favored project. And, if it must be, why should it not be built in a corner of King George Park or even in Summit Park? One could hear the howls from the nearby cliff-dwellers at the very mention of the thought!

THE intervening year since city council opened tenders and passed enabling by-laws has seen some important developments.

One was a federal general election which even the government now recognizes was a means of ordinary citizens telling them something. One of those things was a backlash against the ease with which some members of the population can live off the rest of us, in the federal instance through abuses of unemployment insurance.

We say there is a parallel and equally valid question in asking why some members of the population should live off the rest of us through subsidized housing.

Another event has been the outrage expressed over mounting local taxation, particularly on this island through the Montreal Urban Community's spending madness. This month Westmount taxpayers are going to receive 1973 tax bills averaging 17 percent increases over last

The speech from the throne

As a parliament travels the course of its life, the passage of time from the day the people expressed its will stretches farther and farther. During this period, one sees new attitudinal changes in the people, new circumstances which reshape national and regional problems, new external forces which cause fundamental decisions to be recast.

Pressures of this kind tend to push a responsible government in any democratic society to depart from some of the policies and objectives which the public had preferred at the time of the last election to devise new and different priorities and methods of achieving them.

When the life of a parliament draws to a close, that government is made accountable for the manner and the degree by which it departed from the mandate of the people, and it is either given or refused a new mandate to govern. The cycle then recommences with the speech from the throne opening the first session of a new parliament, reflecting more accurately than any subsequent throne speech the mandate given to the government of the day.

Satisfying the people

This surely is the principal mechanism through which our parliamentary system ensures that a government continue in office only as long as it satisfies the people.

Clearly, not everything that the government of the last four years did or set out to do was to the satisfaction of the Canadian people. In some cases, our explanation or justification of certain policies was probably inadequate. But in either event, it is a natural and direct consequence of an election that a government adopt new policies and priorities in accordance with the consensus. To resist would be cynical and presumptuous, and tantamount to saying that the government knows better than the people what is right for the country. To accept the will of the people and assume the new mandate is the only responsible thing to do.

Judging by the favorable reactions across the country to the many new proposals put forward in the throne speech, it seems clear that the government has correctly identified the broad lines of the new mandate. It has assigned the highest priority to seeking new ways to reduce unemployment, contain inflation and strengthen the economy generally. It will give an equally high priority to bringing about a re-organization of existing social security programs in consultation with the provinces.

Two broad policy goals

These are the two very broad policy goals which hopefully will characterize the orientation and depth of commitment of the present government toward resolving certain deep-rooted national problems. A whole range of year's. Some noble attempts were made locally to control those expenditures in the budget which could be controlled, which perforce are increasingly fewer as irresponsible forces outside our municipality are given ever greater powers to tax us without consulting us. We say that an adventure in public housing, however few more mills it may mean in the local tax rate, would be unconscionable and irresponsible of this civic administration—at the very least until such time as control is re-legislative initiatives will be introduced shortly to parliament which will present workable answers not only to these policies but to many others as well. These include increased participation in the economy, measures to get people receiving social aid back to work, improvements in the field of housing and urban development, and changes in pensions for senior citizens. This will be a busy parliament indeed.

The school to which the parcels were was in the slum area area of Manchester, England."

Birks and McEntyre automatically assumed the seats when no other qualified candidate filed nomination papers with the City Clerk before the nomination deadline of two o'clock Monday afternoon. Mr. Birks will fill the seat left vacant by the retirement of Ald. F. W. Gross while Mr. McEntyre is entering his third term of service."

An Allegory of 'Hilltop'

Waffle, Deputy for Hilltop to the Assembly of Primates at Frontenac, was pondering the past and contemplating the future. The beginning of a new year is the obvious time for such activity and while such mental exertion seldom leads to concrete results, it usually does no harm.

A large segment of his constituency consisted of citizens of the town which gave the riding its name. While his non-Hilltopper electors were every bit as important as the Hilltoppers, it was of the town itself, and its citizens, that he was thinking.

Hilltop was a pleasant place to live and although entirely surrounded by Metropolis it had a spirit all of its own, and Hilltoppers usually referred to themselves as such and almost never as Metropolitanians.

While wealthier than most towns, this wealth was not evenly distributed. Geographically speaking those who lived on the Flats were not as well off as those on the Slope who were striving someday to afford the Summit which was largely inhabited by board chairmen, a scattering of presidents and vice-presidents, plus inherited wealth.

There were a great many issues which were sure to arise during the year ahead which would affect Hilltoppers. For example, a report on the French language was sure to excite comment in this essentially anglophone dominated community as was the degree of autonomy to be retained by Hilltop in running its affairs with relation to urban community government. Needless to say, education, as always, was considered a vital issue.

Among his interlocutors in the year ahead would be:

1. Mayor Council - representative of the mainstream of municipal thought of the community and responsible for its administration. Hilltop was universally recognized as having a most efficient and effective administration;

2. Felicity Uptight - third generation Hilltop, lived on the Summit, brought a sizeable piece of the family fortune to her marriage; this fortune was based on banks, railways, and the like. Very worthy, many charities. Three kids in French immersion, didn't speak a word herself, and felt that at her age it would be difficult to learn another language.

She believed in the Hilltop and Centralia Government but never really understood Frontenac. Waffle heard from her frequently. Her husband, Frank Uptight, was a "great guy" who had achieved his partnership at Squash & Parsley (more recently changed to Squash, Parsley & Navet) through providing it with his wife's account;

3. Jack Harrison - hard working young businessman, acutely aware of today's political problems with a knack for posing tough relevant questions. Waffle admired him greatly, but had trouble answering adequately some of his questions;

4. Ron Recent - young rebel who strongly questioned traditional values. While he didn't have the solutions to all of the points he brought up, he pointed out logically that the present adult generation hadn't created utopia—far from it!

5. Pat Roneu - party hanger-on. Waffle suspected that his reasons for being a party member weren't completely altruistic;

6. Hy Dudgeon - Editor of the Hilltop Groan, the town weekly directed to the English speaking residents and which could be philosophically described as Hilltop Separatist.

Mildly distressed by this, Waffle was, however, wildly enthusiastic about one regular feature: Real Estate Transfers—Fantastic! Every month the Groan listed all the Hilltop house sales—with prices! Waffle found this to be a valuable document with both economic and sociological significance. From it one could guess who was being divorced, which companies were moving their head offices to Toronto (room at the summit), who was on the way up (sale of a house on the Flats for 48 thousand, and purchase of one on the Slope for 73). The permutations and combinations were almost infinite and Waffle passed many happy question periods at the Assembly of Primates conjuring up reasons for some of these transfers and keeping in touch with what was supposedly happening to friends and acquaintances both past and present.

Waffle looked forward to spirited exchanges with these and others in the columns ahead.

actual names, should be brought fully up to date and made known.

We should know, for instance, how many families now are actually committed to move into Hillside Place—no "maybes," but actually committed to leases. We should know the size of each family, ages of all members, nature of their employment, annual income of each family, present whereabouts and present housing and, perhaps most important, length of residence on Selby street prior to eviction and full disclosure of compensation already received from both the provincial authorities and in assistance since from the city.

This is not to pry. If the city insists it must proceed, fullest disclosure of the basis for it doing so should be made without reserve, that the public which must pay the shot will know just what they are paying for. Anything less would be unacceptable.

Editorial Notes

We are beginning to hear all kinds of stories from irate taxpayers which indicated that the work-to-rule slowdown of post office employees—indications are it is essentially the sorters at Montreal main downtown post office—has been of truly gigantic proportions. Among items received in The Examiner office this week were the Montreal Board of Trade circular of Dec. 27 (bearing the news that the post offices would be operating Jan. 2!); the Quebec government weekly mailing of routine press releases of Dec. 15 which included Premier Bourassa's holiday greetings; Montreal Catholic School Commission releases of Dec. 12, including a piece about the MCSC's Christmas cards hand-crafted by pupils; and the pre-Christmas issue of Progres-Echo, our contemporary published in Westmount's twin city of Rimouski. But a member of our staff topped all of that dismal record. Last Friday she found in her mail, directed accurately enough to her return address on the envelope, a letter which she had sent to a friend in St. Eustache Hospital which she had posted in Montreal on July 14, 1971. The St. Eustache postmark indicated that it was sent back on July 20, 1971. One wonders if postal workers believe disruption of the mails will encourage the public, the taxpayers who in effect pay them, to sympathize with even the respectable increases and conditions recommended by the conciliation board.

ONE of our most popular features, Westmount's real estate transfers, (see Our MPQ Says this week) has been bogged down once more by a move in the MUC valuation department, upon which we depend for some of the data. We await word, for publication, of November's transfers.

Westmount

Dear Mrs. Rothman:

At the meeting of the Advisory Council of the Westmount Municipal Association held last night, (Jan. 9) the Health and Welfare Committee reported its inability to obtain any information regarding the outcome of various social action groups who have submitted briefs to the City Council or who have made requests for funds.

Deepest concern was expressed over the lack of action of the City regarding the future of the Office for Community and Social Development resulting in its disappearance with its wealth of information and expertise. Since the City was funding this through the YMCA and have known since October that the 'Y' intended to drop this project, they had ample time to consider the alternate proposals put forward by the Office, the 'Y', the Family Service Association, the group of social workers and the WMA. It seems desperately irresponsible to have taken no action and allow this service to go out of existence.

While it is perhaps too late to rectify this situation, we felt it imperative that the Senior Citizens' Project does not meet a similar fate. When Westmount has one of the greatest concentration of Senior Citizens anywhere in Canada, (approx. 17 percent, and when they can get no information from City Hall other than a "summons" to the chairman of the board to appear before your committee to "justify" their request for assistance, and their appeal to us is met with an equal lack of information, how can such a group continue to function smoothly. Mr. Nixon informed the WMA that they are presently being given funds, but they were unaware of this. A similar withholding of information is being experienced by Way Ahead, which is a Head Start program and desperately requires assistance not just on a monetary basis.

Many groups have presented briefs (last October and November) which they hope are being considered. Why hope? Why do they not know? Apart from a distinct lack of courtesy, it is grossly unfair to expect citizens to put in that kind of work without any acknowledgement.

In particular, our own brief was a result of a long "in-depth" study. We requested a meeting to elaborate and clarify the issues we could only touch on the surface. This request has been ignored. Fads and reasons and diverging opinions lay behind much of the seven-page submission and it seems redundant to require another board to re-do much of the pre-requisite background work. Surely, we could have been of assistance or alternatively, the work of this committee was held in very low esteem and, as such, the viability of the WMA is seriously undermined.

At this point, I request an immediate hearing for our committee as a whole, in order that we be apprised of the facts by your five-man board and that we, in turn, may present to you the various aspects and evaluations that we have made in the field of Social Services.

(Mrs. Phillip) Eve Aspinall

A GREAT deal of effort by city staff and council has been expended on this scheme. But if it were to come to naught, it might truly be said that by stopping now first cost would be the smallest. Underwriting public housing, because of the unpredictable factors, can be like issuing post-dated, blank cheques now to be met over many years to come.

Furthermore, too little information has been vouchsafed by the city to its citizens. Everything about the prospective public tenants, short of

'Coping' Douglas series

Sermons on coping with life in the light of Christian faith and experience begin this Sunday in Dominion-Douglas United Church. The first will be "Facing Fear." Other problems of modern life to be dealt with by Dr. Douglas Smith will be "Caught in the 'rat-race'," "Handling Guilt," "Computer - Master or Servant" and "Coping with Restlessness."

The congregation has been given suggested scripture passages and questions to help in preparing for these sermons.

The Dominion-Douglas Literary Society hold their yearly Musicales on Wednesday, Jan. 17, with Carol Millar, Winston Purdy and Doris Killam.

Small groups meeting in homes are in process of formation to discuss "What it Means to Be Human." A number have indicated interest in the project.

Ven. J.N. Doidge talks to Rotary of clergy's role

The role of the priest is to be a channel, not a bottleneck, for the people to God.

So said Ven. Archdeacon J.N. Doidge, rector of St. Matthias Church, in a long-delayed classification talk yesterday entitled "A Representative Ministry" to his fellow members of The Rotary Club of Westmount.

It no longer is possible to look at the ministry so simply as in times past, he added. "For one thing, the laity are no longer docile or even always willing to listen. More important, the role of the priest in a secular society has become problematic, with the traditional openings in which he operated fast being filled by the welfare state and service groups such as Rotary."

"Furthermore," the cleric said, "the recovery of a true understanding of the ministry as belonging to all the people of God rather than to a clerical club makes many question the distinctive role of the clergy."

The ordained man's role was seen as a representative of the people of God given formal authority to preach, absolve and administer sacraments; to be an "open channel of incarnation, of suffering and of glory, to be the representative man" on behalf of God and his people.

He was thanked by Tom Fisher.

Bert Love reported on his Christmas holiday in London and a visit to St. Paul's Cathedral, toward the reconstruction fund of which the club members recently made a substantial donation.

There were four visiting Rotarians and the one guest of the club was Paul Levine, Westmount High School student council president.

Cyril Dendy presided.

In 1886, the Canadian Pacific Railway was completed. On June 28, a train left Montreal with a railway mail car and arrived in Port Moody, B.C., on July 4.

Thursday afternoons commencing at 4:00 p.m.

DAILY WORSHIP
Monday thru Thursday at 5:45 p.m. in the Temple Chapel.

Temple schedule is busy

Sabbath services at Temple Emanu-El take place tomorrow at 8:15 pm. Rabbi Bernard Bloomstone will speak on "One More Plague." An Oneg Shabbat and Kiddush reception follows in the community house under the auspices of the Temple Sisterhood.

Saturday at 11:30 am the Junior Congregation holds services and at 9:30 am regular classes for all students in the Temple Religious School, including the Confirmation class. At 10 am, Dr. H. J. Stern continues with his lectures on "The Now Prophets" in the School for Adults. Breakfast precedes the class session at 9:45 am.

Monday at 8:15 pm the temple board of trustees holds a meeting.

Wednesday at 10 am the Book Lovers' Forum holds a meeting of the general committee. Dr. Wanda Rubenstein will lead the discussion on "The Terminal Man" by Michael Crichton, the book scheduled for review by Rabbi Bloomstone on Wednesday, Jan. 24, at 2 pm in the Temple Sanctuary. At 8 pm Wednesday, the midweek class of the School for Adults commences its second semester when Rabbi Bloomstone continues the lectures on "The Authentic Source."

St. Andrew's Guild talk is on glass

"Early Canadian Glass" will be the subject of an illustrated talk by W. N. Coburn of 4351 Montrose avenue, well-known local collector and appraiser, when the Guild of St. Andrew's Church hosts a public meeting next Thursday, Jan. 18, at 7 pm. Dessert and coffee will be served. Tickets are available at the church office.

The beginning of new year will be marked by the celebration of Holy Communion at St. Andrew's Church this Sunday at 11 am. A group of new members will be received.

The first meeting of a young adult group will take place Sunday at 8 pm under the con-venorship of Tom Esmon, student assistant. At 8:30 pm, the latest in a continuing series of organ recitals will have Paul Vigeant as guest recitalist. Works to be performed include compositions by Bach, Hindemith, and Sweelinck. The public is invited.

Final returns indicate that more than $1,800 has been contributed by members of the congregation to the Christmas appeal for needy families. This represents an increase of $800 over the amount announced last week. A further appeal for kitchenware was made last Sunday on behalf of the Ugandan Asian family adopted recently by the St. Andrew's congregation.

Dr. A. Werner talks on Chagall

On Saturday at 8:15 pm in the library-museum of Congregation Shaar Hashomayim, Dr. Alfred Werner of New York will give a talk on "The Magic of Chagall," illustrated with slides.

Dr. Werner is an outstanding lecturer, editor and art critic, and has published books on Chagall, Gauguin and Mondigliani.

This will be a free lecture, open to the general public. Coffee will be served at the conclusion of Dr. Werner's talk.

Heidi Borner, shines in Pointe Claire swimming

Twelve-year-old Heidi Borner, 17 Grenville avenue, came through the international swim meet held at Pointe Claire last weekend with flying colors. She held down a first-place finish, came second twice and third twice in the meet which involved 1,200 swimmers from all over the United States and Canada.

Heidi finished first in the 100-metre freestyle event with a time of 1:05.8, beating the old provincial record set by Wendy Quirk for the 11-12-year-old age group. She was also the best Quebec swimmer in the 200-metre freestyle, 200-metre individual medley and 50-metre freestyle, finishing second overall in the first two events and third in the latter. She also placed third in the 100-metre butterfly.

Among top 50

A straight-A student at Trafalgar School, Heidi has been chosen to swim for the Province of Quebec team, among the top 50 swimmers in the province, which is developing swimmers for the 1976 Olympics. The provincial team hopes to travel to different meets in Canada and the United States to compete against other Olympic hopefuls.

To raise money to finance their trips, swim clubs including the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association (MAAA) to which Heidi belongs will hold an annual swim-a-thon on Jan. 21. Swimmers are seeking pledges from individuals for swimming lengths of the pool or for the total swim.

Heidi swims almost 10 hours a week in training, before and after school on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. She says she sometimes finds the rigors of training difficult, specially "when I've got a lot of homework," but she is willing to sacrifice her other interests for the sake of her swimming career.

Heidi intends to join the other swimmers in a door-to-door solicitation of pledges for the swim-a-thon, further evidence of her devotion to the sport.

Anyone interested in helping Heidi and the provincial swim team can do so by contacting the MAAA, 2070 Peel street, 845-2233.

WHS ping-pong team shows promise

By MARK ELLWOOD

Students returned to school (having been given just enough time to recover from New Year's) so there isn't too much new this week.

However, the ping-pong team has been formed under Mr. Mahaber. He says the six-man team has a good chance of doing well although he doesn't know what other schools' teams are like. The team will start playing its games soon.

Turning to a more realistic sport, (one with violence, that is) intramural bordon ball has now started. There are four leagues of four or five teams each which can be watched battling it out each lunch hour in the boys' gym. There are normally quite a number of people watching either from the cafeteria, the balcony or the gym floor itself for bordon ball is one of the school's most popular sports.

Graduation planning

Purse hooked

A young man casually walked by a woman on Claremont avenue south of Sherbrooke street at 9:05 am last Wednesday, and walked off with her purse. The man had slipped his hand under the purse strap to take the item. The lady did not know how much money was in the purse when it was stolen.

seems that the committee had planned an important meeting for last Friday to try to make more definite plans. What did they end up doing? They ordered out for pizzas and sat around eating all afternoon.

Refuse area in apartments yields a TV

Westmount Police recovered a television set in the garbage area of 4000 de Maisonneuve boulevard west Friday. The set had been reported stolen from one of the apartments in the building.

Police are now checking to see whether other items had been stolen from the same apartment. There were no signs of forced entry.

In a possibly related incident, police were told Sunday that a color television set had been taken from an apartment at 225 Olivier avenue sometime after Friday afternoon. Police again found no signs of forced entry.

WMA nomination drill raises old tensions

THE WESTMOUNT
Examiner

12 - Thursday, January 11, 1973

WMA . . .

of citizen interest in joining the association

Legislation had nothing to report—8 seconds.

Housing and zoning betrayed concern over Quebec's proposal to take province-wide zoning into its own hands, but would report nothing until Municipal Affairs Minister Tessier's "avant projet" on his proposed bill could be studied. Seven minutes.

No acknowledgement

Police and fire complained that city hall still had not acknowledged its September report on MUC police integration—though WMA President Mel Nixon reminded that committee that all its points had been incorporated in Mayor Ouimet's recent reply to the Daigneault report. The committee asked WMA advisory council members to get behind Mme Vautelet's petition to Premier Bourassa. Eight minutes.

The recreation committee promised to prepare a position paper on the Olympics. Five minutes.

The finance group said that it was an extremely complex job to analyse both the city's budget committee said that various organizations had turned to her for information and that it was extremely embarrassing that neither they nor she had been able to obtain information from city authorities, such as Mr. Nixon had just revealed.

At the outset the chairman said that the Westmount senior citizens' centre was in crisis and may have to close because its application for a federal Local Incentives Program grant from Ottawa had not been approved; both the 4424 youth centre and the school health education committee were questioning their futures for lack of funds; Way Ahead had received a LIP grant but no city aid, and that the Office for Community and Social Development had fallen by the wayside.

'Cop-out' by city

"Deep regrets" also were expressed by another member that the Office for Community and Social Development had "withered." After Mr. Nixon explained that the office was a YMCA operation, funded by the city, and that the decision to close it had been that of the YMCA, the retort was that this was a "cop-

An old friction between the Westmount Municipal Association's education and library committee and the WMA committee for nominations to public office re-emerged at Tuesday evening's WMA advisory council meeting.

It ended half an hour later, after expressions of regret and apology from several persons, with Vice-President Leslie Darragh telling the ed-lib. group that the executive was "grateful for work well done."

The first report of the evening was on the re-election of Mrs. Muriel Kaplan and election of Mrs. Jenny Gooch to the Westmount School Board and the election of Mrs. Patricia Domville to the board of trustee of the Westmount Public Library.

All three were nominees of the association upon the suggestions of the education and library committee.

Off-handedness charged

This committee, however, expressed criticism of the nominating committee and/or officers of the association—they weren't quite clear which—for an allegedly off-hand way in which the nominations were communicated to the nominees and, more particularly, for alleged lack of assistance given the three women in getting signatures for and preparing their nomination papers.

Second Vice-President Michael Fish promptly volunteered to take responsibility for what may have gone wrong, and apologized. Mr. Darragh also said he would take some of the blame.

Whereupon Mr. Fish relieved the tension somewhat by and the charge, levelled at the November meeting, that Westmount spends more per capita in most areas than other cities. Ten minutes.

Traffic and circulation had no one present, but the president took one minute to say there was nothing new on traffic lights or on the closing of de Maisonneuve boulevard. Thirty seconds.

Under "new business" one member urged a study of the association's old business to determine what there was in the way of unfinished business. The president named him a committee of one to do the job. This brought another member's protest that this action was a sure way of discouraging others in the future from making constructive criticisms or suggestions. The matter was left in limbo. Four minutes.

Total time: 2 hours, 5 minutes, 38 seconds (or thereabouts). Starting time: 8:10 pm.

43 percent of Westmounters said living in apartments

According to the membership and finance committee of the Westmount Municipal Association, 43 percent of the population of Westmount dwell in apartment houses.

This was presented to the WMA advisory meeting in Victoria Hall Tuesday night as one possible explanation of flagging membership in the association, which was reported at 1,579 against 1,618 a year ago.

Many apartment dwellers tend, by not having roots in the community, to have relatively little interest in municipal affairs as opposed to home owners.

Doubt also was expressed about the belief that controversy tends to create interest in the association—with reference to the September-sponsored mass meeting protesting the Daigneault recommendations for MUC police integration.

However, a member of the executive pointed out that this was a controversy in which there was little or no local difference—members and citizens generally were united in their opposition to the proposals.

Tuesday night's monthly meeting itself witnessed some controversy between the president and the health and welfare committee over his role without consulting the committee in the city's social affairs committee.
