

Towns fall like pins to North Vietnam

Bulletin

SAIGON (Reuters) Prime Minister Tran Thien Khiem has submitted his resignation against a background of widespread military withdrawals by South Vietnamese armed forces, reliable sources here said today.

The sources did not say if President Nguyen Van Thieu has accepted the resignation.

NHA TRANG (CP) — It is every man, woman and child for himself in South Vietnam, as the country falls, town by town, to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces.

Indescribable panic gripped the coastal town of Nha Trang on Tuesday. Terror-stricken inhabitants, fleeing in scenes of general confusion reminiscent of those which accompanied the fall of Da Nang two days ago.

Some have sought refuge on Bamboo Island, an uncultivated, unpopulated strip of land about two miles offshore. They cannot survive there, but at least they say they "will be out of the way of the rockets."

Others are fleeing along the road to Cam Ranh, 40 miles to the south.

It is easy to see why they are scared. Soldiers, who have quit the abandoned central highlands, and others recently arrived from Da Nang, roam the streets, armed and hard-faced. They plunder and loot shamelessly.

The French are leaving the town in private aircraft provided by their embassy.

The prison gates have been opened and convicts scatter as they hear shooting behind them.

Riots have broken out around the U.S. consulate, where hundreds of people try to climb over or push past the grilles in the hope of getting aboard one of the helicopters taking off from the courtyard.

The helicopters are the last means available of getting to the airport. All other routes have been closed by the Vietnamese army, which lets no one through. My press card, authorized by the Saigon authorities, was of no avail when I waved it, trying to get through the barricades and aboard a plane.

I was brutally pushed back, slugged with a pistol butt and a young helmeted soldier fired his rifle a few feet from my ear to emphasize that the warning was my last.

The helicopters at first intended to ferry all evacuees to the airport during the afternoon, but while I was waiting for the Air America C-46 to land at the airport later, the ferry stopped. The runway was no longer safe, and only one helicopter flight was expected from the consulate.

I waited, surrounded by several hundred people. When the C-46 landed, there was a mad rush to be first aboard.

As soldiers stood on the gangplank, firing unceasingly over the heads of the crowd in an attempt to control them, I was dragged aboard by a steward and found myself with a Vietnamese child in my lap. He had lost his parents.

Through the windows I could see the agonized faces of those left behind. A young Vietnamese woman, Duong Thi Thu, 28, sat near me, weeping silently because she had left 10 members of her family and her five children behind.

The U.S. consulate promised to return for them with extra helicopters and transport them to offshore landing ship transport. About 50 consulate staff will have to go to Saigon the same way.

The only foreigners left in Nha Trang were three French priests and a nun. Sister Marguerite refused to leave the 20 Vietnamese Carmelites in her care, while Rev. Marc Lefebvre and Rev. Joseph Viot would not abandon the parishioners they had led to Nha Trang along the refugee road.

The third priest, Father Beysse, was in a refugee camp six miles out of town.

Newspaper claims

Terrorists penetrate Olympic security

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says known terrorists successfully penetrated the special security screen the federal immigration department set up for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games in Montreal.

The newspaper says it has learned from senior immigration and law enforcement officers the handful of individuals, all apparently members of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), entered Canada individually and were spotted after entry.

All were kept under close surveillance once their presence was detected and none took part in any overtly suspicious activities while here, it quotes sources as saying.

However, the newspaper quotes an immigration source as saying the penetration raises disturbing questions about the efficiency of the special immigration screen, part of the overall security system set up to head off terrorist attacks at the Games.

It says details of the immigration screen, like all Olympic security precautions, are covered by a "classified" label.

USES BLACKLIST

The newspaper says the security screen has been in place for several months and is based on a "blacklist" of thousands of names of known and potential terrorists.

It says the origin of this blacklist and its effectiveness are both subjects of contention within the immigration department. The list is based on documentation prepared by Canadian visa control officers — members of the RCMP — stationed abroad.

Added to this basic list, it says for purposes of the Olympics, are names and files provided by virtually all national police forces in the world.

The problem, it quotes internal department critics as saying, is that Canada has no effective way to check out the names provided by the foreign sources.

The newspaper quotes Ron Hutton, a federal immigration department official, as saying the way in which the list was compiled is "less than satisfactory."

"But what else were we going to do? Canada doesn't maintain its own security force, its own CIA, overseas. And after all, these police forces are responsible people. If they point to someone, there is a good reason."

Pelletier 'disturbed' by health of Asbestos workers

MONTREAL (CP) — Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier said Tuesday he is sure the Quebec government will take the necessary steps to protect the health of asbestos workers.

The minister told reporters he found "disturbing" a background file on asbestos-related diseases compiled by the union representing 3,500 striking asbestos miners and millworkers in Thetford Mines, Que.

He said he was particularly troubled by a report from New York's Mount Sinai Medical School that 54 per cent of open pit miners, 72 per cent of underground miners and 65 per cent of millworkers in the asbestos industry suffer lung disorders.

One of the main demands of the strikers, who walked out March 16, is increased protection against diseases linked to asbestos.

Last weekend, Prime Minister Trudeau sent a telegram of support on behalf of himself, Mr.

Pelletier and Transport Minister Jean Marchand to the strikers.

All three government officials had actively supported asbestos workers during a five-month strike in 1949 which, experts say, marked a turning point in the history of the labor movement in Quebec.

During the 1949 asbestos strike Mr. Pelletier, then a journalist, wrote a series of articles on asbestosis, a lung disease caused by inhalation of asbestos fibres.

Moncton suspects convicted

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The defence is expected to appeal a conviction of two men sentenced Tuesday to be hanged for murdering two Moncton city policemen last December while they were investigating a kidnapping.

There is an automatic appeal procedure for persons sentenced to death.

James Hutchison, 47, and Richard Ambrose, 26, were each convicted of two counts of murder punishable by death by a Supreme Court jury and sentenced to hang June 13. The jury of eight men and four women deliberated for two hours and 40 minutes and made no recommendation regarding clemency.

The defendants showed no emotion as they heard the verdict from the jury foreman and then the sentences from Mr. Justice David M. Dickson.

At one point during the 13-day trial, defence lawyer Edward Bell asked for separate trials for the two defendants. His motion, presented during a voir dire, was denied by Mr. Justice Dickson.

BOTH CHARGED

The men were each charged with two counts of murder punishable by death in the slayings of Cpl. Aurele Bourgeois and Constable Michael O'Leary while they were investigating the kidnapping of the 14-year-old son of Moncton restaurateur

Cy Stein on the night of Dec. 12. They also are charged with kidnapping but there was no immediate indication whether they will stand trial on the charges.

The kidnap victim was released unharmed after his father paid a $15,000 ransom. Most of the money, in marked bills, was recovered from the two defendants.

After the verdict was delivered Mr. Bell asked the judge to order the men moved from the Moncton City Jail because conditions there did not meet the standards required by the Criminal Code and he did not consider it a "safe place." The judge said he would discuss the matter with the sheriff.

Canadian killed in Cyprus as ceasefire breaks down

NICOSIA (AP) — One of the most serious breaches of the Cyprus ceasefire in recent months left a Canadian officer with the United Nations peace-keeping force dead Tuesday and two Greek-Cypriot civilians wounded.

The defence department in Ottawa identified the officer as Ian Patten, 29, of Etobicoke, Ont., a Canadian Forces captain who spent several weeks in Viet Cong captivity in Indochina in 1973. It said he was killed during the three-hour exchange in Nicosia, which began shortly after midnight Monday night.

The officer was found with a single bullet hole in his forehead on the balcony of his first floor room in the Ledra Palace hotel. He was the third Canadian killed since the Turkish invasion of Cyprus last July and the ceasefire that took hold a month later.

The former luxury hotel, which is now used as a barracks for Canadian UN troops, lies along the so-called "green line" in the no man's land between the Greek and Turkish Cypriot sectors of Nicosia.

A UN spokesman said investigations indicated the first shots were fired by Greek-Cypriot national guard troops along the green line, but that the bullet that killed the officer could have come from either side.

It was generally believed the first shots were fired in the air by the Greek-Cypriots to mark the traditional way of celebrating EOKA Day—the 20th anniversary of the launching of the Greek-Cypriot EOKA underground campaign against the British.

Unlike previous years, however, when the shooting in the air was taken for granted, this time the first shots soon spread all along the green line, with both Greek and Turkish-Cypriots joining in.

Gerin dies

COATICOOK, Que. (CP) — Denis Gerin, a former member of the Quebec national assembly, died Tuesday. He was 80.

Mr. Gerin represented Stanstead riding as a Union Nationale member between 1948 and 1960.

Mediator named

No talks on port strike today

MONTREAL (CP) — No discussions are scheduled today between representatives of the Maritime Employers Association (MEA) and 2,200 striking longshoremen following a breakdown in mediation talks Tuesday.

Both sides are maintaining the stances which led to the launching of the strike Monday at the ports of Montreal, Quebec City, and Trois-Rivieres, mediator Charles Poirier said Tuesday.

"Both parties are still adamant in maintaining their respective positions," he said.

"We're still far apart," said Normand Quigley, spokesman for the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), after Tuesday's talks.

The strike began when employers failed to meet the union's demands to reopen contract negotiations on the issue of job security.

MEA president Arnold Masters said the employers organization has no intention of "giving in to a holdup."

REPORT REJECTED

The dispute flared last Thursday when ILA members rejected a conciliation report by Chief Judge Alan B. Gold of Quebec provincial court.

The report recommended 1,600 work hours in 40 weeks for Montreal longshoremen, 1,400 hours in 35 weeks for those in Quebec City and 1,200 hours in 30 weeks for Trois-Rivieres dock workers.

The union's goal is a year-round 40-hour work week while "our position is the unqualified acceptance of the Gold report in its entirety," Mr. Masters said.

The longshoremen, whose contract expired Dec. 31, earn a base rate of $5.10 hourly for a 40-hour week in 37 weeks a year. They rejected a conciliation report which would have raised the wages to $8 an hour by the end of a three-year contract.

Harbor activity in Montreal and Quebec City has been moderate, port officials said. Three ships were left in Montreal without cargo Tuesday, while one was left unattended in Quebec City.

Three tankers and two other ships were unloaded by handlers who are not members of the striking ILA Local 375.

A National Harbors Board spokesman said ships bound for the three strike-bound ports have been rerouted to other Atlantic-coast ports.

Witnesses won't talk

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Key witnesses at an inquest into the deaths of 32 men killed in a plane crash last October have refused to testify.

A six-man jury was told Tuesday that David Hutton and Gary Weyman have decided not to testify before Coroner Walter England.

Mr. Hutton was co-pilot of the Panarctic Oils Ltd.-owned Lockheed Electra which crashed Oct. 30 while carrying drilling crews to Rae Point, N.W.T., 1,600 miles north of Edmonton, and Mr. Weyman was the flight engineer. They cannot be compelled to testify because they live outside the jurisdiction of the territorial coroner.

Nor did Roderick Brooks, radio operator at Rae Point on the night of the crash, or two other Panarctic employees appear at the inquest when witnesses were called.

Quebec to separate?

TORONTO (CP) — Rene Levesque, Parti Quebecois leader, said Tuesday that separatism for Quebec soon will "look and sound much less academic than it does now" to many English-speaking Canadians.

He told about 300 persons at the Men's Wear Canada—L'Homme et La Mode show that it is "quite possible for the first time" that his party will form the Quebec government in the next provincial election.

If that happens, the Separatist leader said, Quebecers would vote on the issue of separation in a plebiscite. A negative vote would mean the party would "keep on plugging and... try again."

The Parti Quebecois leader said his prediction is based in part on the rapid growth of the party—"from nowhere to official opposition" in seven years, and in part on disenchantment among Quebecers with their present Liberal government.

B.C. suspects charged

PORT COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP) — Two men were charged Tuesday following an attempted bank robbery, a shooting spree and a police chase Monday.

Leonard Methot, 23, of St. Michelle, Que., and Real Cardinal, 32, of Vancouver, were to appear in court today.

They are charged jointly with eight counts of attempted murder, one charge of armed robbery, three charges of possession of restricted weapons, and one charge of forcible seizure.

Police are still hunting for two other men. Two RCMP constables were wounded while they waited at a roadblock after being alerted to the abortive bank robbery.

Researcher appointed

MONTREAL (CP) — James Grandy, recently-retired federal deputy minister of industry, was named Tuesday as a senior research fellow with the Institute for Research on Public Policy.

Leroy Stone, a senior advisor to Statistics Canada, is to direct projects investigating Canadian population characteristics.

Claude Marceau, a manpower and immigration department consultant, and Rejean Lachapelle, a professor of medicine at the University of Sherbrooke, will assist Dr. Stone in research projects.

Appointees Trygve Ringereide, seconded from the planning department of Bell Canada, and Michel Chevalier, a professor at both York University and the University of Montreal, were assigned to new projects.

The Institute was established last July to conduct research to improve decision-making on public policy issues.

Q. I am employed as a garage mechanic and have to provide my own tools. These cost me $500. When completing my income tax return, can I claim this expense as a deduction?

A. No. The cost of tools is not deductible from salary or wages; nor may you claim capital cost allowance on them. You may, however, claim an employment expense deduction of 3 per cent of your employment income, up to $150 a year.

Q. I am a transport employee and I do have certain travelling and away-from-home expenses. What records are necessary to prove my claim for these expenses when filing my income tax return?

A. If you are an employee of an airline, railway, bus or other transport company carrying goods or passengers and you are required to travel regularly away from the municipality or metropolitan area where you report for work, you may claim actual expenses for meals and lodging while away, minus any amount reimbursed by your employer. Information from your detailed records should be shown on form T12 and filed with your return. There is an Information Circular 73-21 available on this subject.

Q. What is the Registered Home Ownership Savings Plan?

A. RHOSP was introduced in 1974 to help taxpayers save money to buy a home. It allows a taxpayer to deduct from income all amounts, up to $1,000 per year contributed to a Registered Home Ownership Savings Plan (RHOSP). A person's maximum life-time contribution is $10,000. Investment income of the RHOSP is accumulated tax-free and when the taxpayer wishes to withdraw all his funds to purchase a home, or home furnishings such as essential major appliances and furniture, the funds are received tax-free to the extent they are used for these purposes.

Q. Who may benefit under the Registered Home Ownership Savings Plan?

A. Taxpayers resident in Canada, 18 years of age or over, who were never previously beneficiaries under an RHOSP and who are not presently homeowners may contribute to an RHOSP.

Q. Can I claim dental expenses incurred at a dentist's establishment as medical expenses?

A. Yes. The stipulations are that the dentist must be licensed, and the expenses aren't paid for by dental insurance plan.

What about my Provincial return?

H & R Block's remarkably low fee includes the preparation of your Provincial return, as well as your Federal.

Algoma Steel Corp. shares

A Toronto investment firm says Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. stands to gain the most among leading domestic steel producers from high steel demand.

Midland Doherty Ltd. says in a recent analysis that Algoma should increase its share of the Canadian market to about 25 per cent from 18 per cent within the next few years.

In recommending Algoma's shares for above average capital appreciation during the long term, the firm notes several favorable operating factors:

—Additional capacity now on stream at Algoma should help the company recapture its shares of "lost market";

—The company's improved product mix has reduced its reliance on the auto and consumer durables sectors;

—Algoma's specialization in steel plate and structural products gives it protection against imports;

—The company has the operating flexibility to modify its procedure for production of items currently in demand;

—Algoma's 43-per-cent interest in Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. adds substantially to the value of the company's shares.

Midland Doherty emphasizes Algoma's expansion program. Since 1969 the company has made capital outlays of about $350 million for expanding its steel division and on iron ore and coal properties.

CAPACITY ADDED

"The expansion program has just about been completed and while further additions will be made in the years ahead, the expanded facilities will enable Algoma to raise its steelmaking production to approximately four million tons annually by 1977 from the present (annual) production of around 2.7 million tons."

The investment firm believes it is significant that Algoma is the only major Canadian steel producer to have added production capacity to the extent it has.

The Nanticoke, Lake Erie, project of the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. is scheduled to come into production some time in 1977, "but plans may be delayed if environmentalists and other activist groups are successful installing tactics."

Midland Doherty says Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd. also has a location near Lake Erie, but plans for a major expansion are not yet available.

"It is generally considered that demand for steel will remain at high levels over the next five years, although some short-term softening may be experienced in the latter half of 1975."

The investment firm says that any downturn in domestic steel demand may only be temporary, with the strong demand patterns of the past two years expected to resume.

"If such predictions prevail, Algoma stands to benefit substantially, having gained a lead time of three to five years over its major competitors."

Midland Doherty estimates Algoma's profit this year will rise to $55.8 million or $4.80 a share from $53.8 million or $4.61 a share in 1974.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mixed in light trading Tuesday on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the Dow Jones in New York recorded its lightest trading activity this year, with investors behaving cautiously in market prospects. It appeared the market yielded to concern about the situation in Vietnam and Cambodia.

Volume was 441,000 shares compared with 342,900 Monday.

Banks fell 1.36 to 245.79, the composite 0.35 to 179.73 and industrials 0.32 to 182.07, while papers rose 0.27 to 103.70 and utilities 0.01 to 136.26.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Base metals and golds put in strong performances despite a general decline on the Toronto stock market in light trading Tuesday.

Base metals rose 0.65 to 68.95, their highest level since Nov. 8, 1974, when the index touched 69.96. Some analysts suggest a strengthening of copper prices on the commodity markets has helped the mining sector.

Golds also came through strongly closing up 6.58 at 431.83. Dome Mines, which has a considerable effect on the index was among the most active, closing up 1 1/2 to $55 1/2.

Western oils fell 1.54 to 152.81, as Elf Oil Exploration and Production Ltd. of Calgary said Monday that after more than 10 years of frontier oil and gas exploration, it is reassessing further involvement in Canadian frontier prospects. The announcement is thought to have had some impact on the depressed western oil stocks.

The industrial index, widely-based indicator of market trend, closed down 0.35 to 179.94, after being narrowly lower throughout the day.

Banks, trust and loan and construction and material sectors were among declining subgroups in the industrial index, while communication, steel and merchandising sectors had the highest gains.

At New York, the market stayed generally lower as investors worried over anticipated first quarter reports, expected to show poor results for many companies. The continuing deteriorating situation in southeast Asia is also harassing the market.

Among the largest price changes in the industrial sector, Crown Life fell 1 to $54, IAC 3/4 to $18 1/2, Molson B 3/4 to $16 1/4, Canadian Cellulose 1/2 to $5 and Consumers Distributing 1/2 to $6 1/4.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern over the situation in Southeast Asia and prospects for first-quarter earnings kept the stock market on the defensive Tuesday, pushing prices broadly lower in the quietest trading in more than nine weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 2.11 Monday, dropped another 6.57 to 761.58.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index gave up 72 to 82.64, and the New York Stock Exchange composite lost 37 to 43.84.

NYSE volume reached only 14.48 million shares—the lightest total since a 13.45 million share day Jan. 20, a week before the explosive surge in activity of late January and February began.

Analysts noted that a strong prop for the market in recent days—buying by institutions preparing their portfolios for first-quarter reports—had been removed with the end of the quarter at Monday's close.

What remained was a caution, dominated by expectation of poor first-quarter earnings showings by many companies in the weeks ahead, along with some possible dividend cuts.

The continuing grim picture presented by the situation in Cambodia and South Vietnam also seemed to be weighing on the market.

Borden, the day's most active issue, slid 1 1/4 to $22 1/4 in trading marked by a 164,200-share block at $22 shortly after the opening.

Walt Disney Productions was also active, climbing 1 1/2 to $47.

Waste Watcher

This column will look at painless ways of cutting down your fuel and electricity bills at home. Have any suggestions? Send them along to the Energy Waste Watcher at Information, EMR, 588 Booth Street, Ottawa K1A 0E4.

The insidious thing is that you can see wasted food but you can't see wasted energy. Kilowatt hours are frittered away quietly and invisibly leaving behind only a few dollar figures on your electric bill that could be lower.

Take the refrigerator and freezer, for example. Both operate 12 to 14 hours a day, constantly drawing electrical energy. Given proper care and use, however, they can be major energy savers.

First of all, buy carefully and choose the size that suits your needs. A refrigerator or freezer will operate more economically when filled to capacity but not crammed with food.

When having the refrigerator installed, keep in mind that it will use less energy if located away from heating equipment and direct sunlight. Also, allow enough space for air to circulate around the unit.

It's a good idea to make sure the appliance is not set to run colder than necessary. The manufacturer's manual will recommend the proper setting.

When buying a used refrigerator (or checking the efficiency of the one you have now), test the rubber seal around the fridge and freezer door by closing the door on a sheet of paper. There should be a considerable drag when you yank the paper out. If not, the seal is worn or badly fitting and should be replaced. Check with the manufacturer for a spare. A badly sealed refrigerator can allow air leaks that make the appliance work harder to keep a uniformly cold temperature. And that means higher operating costs in terms of kilowatt consumption.

Let hot foods cool down before storing in the fridge. Placing the hot pan or pot in cold water will reduce the temperature quickly.

When the frost in your freezer is about one-quarter-inch thick, it's time to defrost. Frost wastes watts of cooling power by acting as an insulator.

By the way, frost-free refrigerators are great savers of your energy, but not of electricity. A standard 14-cubic-foot refrigerator-freezer uses about 950 kilowatt hours (kWh) of electricity a year. A frost-free model of the same size uses about 1,500 kWh. That's about 50 per cent more energy per year for this feature. A frost-free refrigerator does require attention to make sure it's not draining power unnecessarily. A blocked condensate drain, for example, will cause build-up of ice on the coils and cut down on the cooling power. You might check the manufacturer's manual to find out exactly where the drain is located (it varies with various models), and make sure the drain is unclogged.

The condenser coils should also be wiped or vacuumed from time to time. In most models they're found at the back of the unit, although in some newer refrigerators they're found below, protected by a grill. Remove the front grill for cleaning.

Cable television industry hit with good and bad news

New federal policies proposed for the cable television industry have caused several analysts to recommend that shares of cable companies be avoided.

The analysts say they are having a difficult time recovering from a sudden succession of good and bad news for the industry.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) recently approved subscriber rate increases of up to 33 per cent for cable TV systems in the Toronto area. All four cable companies whose shares are traded operate systems in this area.

But shortly after the approval, the commission published a series of proposed new policies for the industry, requiring companies to spend 10 per cent, rather than the current average of three to four per cent, of gross revenues on local programming and suggesting that their role in future pay TV ventures be severely limited.

"It is up and down. You don't know where you stand," one analyst said.

The analysts said the actual effect of the new policies on company profits may not be that bad, but they said investors are upset by what they see as a fundamentally negative attitude toward cable TV held by the CRTC.

POTENTIAL HURT

"The long-run potential of the industry is hurt by the CRTC's continuing attitude that cable is a threat to the broadcasting industry," one analyst said. "They are taking away any opportunity for glamor and growth and using cable as a source of funds for programming."

Peter Legault, an analyst with MacDougall, MacDougall and MacTier Ltd. of Toronto, has calculated that the rate increases granted would add 16 cents a share to profit of Maclean-Hunter Cable TV Ltd. of Toronto and the requirement to spend 10 per cent of gross revenue on programming would reduce profit by 27 cents.

Mr. Legault said the net effect on Premier Cablevision Ltd. of Vancouver would be a decline of about 20 cents a share, since the rate increase applied only to a small part of the company's cable systems.

Canadian Cablesystems of Toronto comes out about even, he said but emphasized that the rate increases will become effective in March or April, but the programming spending requirement may not become effective until late this year.

The commission will hold hearings on this and other policy proposals starting April 8. After the hearings, there is usually a delay of several weeks before it announces decisions. In this instance, some analysts hope the policy proposals will be altered.

Oil shortage benefits
other energy industries

Harry Katz of Wills, Bickle and Co. Ltd. says in a recent newsletter that many major Canadian companies are reaping substantial benefits from a renewed interest in coal and uranium.

Among these, McIntyre Mines Ltd. and Kaiser Resources Ltd. are involved in coal production while Denison Mines Ltd. and Rio Algom Mines Ltd. are at the centre of the uranium revival.

Other companies, such as Shell Canada Ltd., have huge coal reserves in the pre-production stage.

Petroleum shortages have created a new interest in these energy resources.

Mr. Katz says that attention should also be directed at companies benefiting from other aspects of the coal and uranium boom. For example, Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. and Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd. are working at full capacity to produce rail cars used in transporting coal.

Production from the Kaiser Resources mine at Sparwood, B.C., became profitable in 1973, as a result of higher coal prices and the solving of major technical problems.

The stock's exceptional strength was first evident in 1973, when it steadily resisted the general market decline.

"The company's warrants are attractive investment vehicles, having an exercise price of $2.85 until Dec. 31, 1976," Mr. Katz said.

McIntyre Mines profits have greatly increased as a result of higher coal prices. Production in 1975 is expected to be two million long tons from the mine near Smoky River, Alta.

McIntyre's total reserves probably exceed one billion tons of mostly high-quality coal.

Denison Mines' uranium orebody at Elliot Lake, Ont., is considered to be one of the largest in the world with reserves estimated at 300 million pounds of uranium oxide. Denison also has large coal reserves in Babcock, B.C., where it is conducting feasibility studies.

Rio Algom's Elliot Lake mine produced an estimated five million pounds of uranium oxide in 1973, with further production increases planned for the late 1970s.

The company is an important specialty steel producer through its Atlas Steels division.

Finally, Shell Canada is included because of its little-known but huge coal reserves in the Fox River area of northwestern Alberta. Reserves are estimated at more than three billion tons.

Feasibility studies are currently in progress with a view to using some of the coal in Alberta's oil sands project. In addition, the coal may be transported east via a slurry pipeline.

Around Town

Now that April's here, and the weather will hopefully be turning warmer, more Sherbrooke and vicinity residents will want to get out and take part in the cultural activities offered here. Here's a sampling of what's upcoming on the cultural scene this week.

Wednesday, April 2 — The U de S will be showing the play, Dis Moi Qu'y Fait Beau Meo, at the university's cultural centre, written by Jacqueline Barrette. This is the fifth revue Ms. Barrette has written. Curtain opens at 8:30 p.m. The Front Page, with Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau will be showing at Carrefour de l'Estrie.

Thursday, April 3 — The Cinémaféus Theatre at the U de S will present the movie, Serpico, an American film about corruption among policemen. More theatre at Bishop's University is scheduled for Thursday as well. The Midnight Matinee Company, an experimental student theatre group, will be presenting The Zoo Story by Edward Albee. Although the play itself begins at 12 midnight, a reception, starting at 11:30 p.m. will be held beforehand.

Friday, April 4 — Serpico continues at Cinémaféus and The Zoo Story continues at Bishop's University. Both will be held at the same time that they were on Thursday. Meanwhile, on Friday night, at St. Edward's School in Knowlton, a mini-cultural festival is scheduled, starting at 8 p.m. Friday and continuing throughout the weekend. Arts, crafts, theatre and music will be featured. At Bishop's, The Zoo Story continues. At the Carrefour de l'Estrie, the program changes to Harry and Tonto, and 99 and 44-100 Per Cent Dead.

Saturday, April 5 — As part of its Great Explorers program, Christian Zuber is scheduled to appear at the Maurice O'Bready Room at the U de S to discuss his film on Tahiti. The movie and lecture begin at 8:30 p.m. For the children, a theatre production entitled Winter Thing is on tap at Bishop's University. The program begins at 2 p.m. and will also be shown on Sunday at the same time.

ANYONE HAVE AN OLD TONG? — An agricultural museum, opening near Drummondville is looking for antique farm equipment. Meanwhile, Gerard Lalancette, above, is working on an old harness which will be on display in the museum.

Anvils and bellows

Agricultural museum will open in June

By JOYCE HIBBERT
DRUMMONDVILLE — Do you happen to know where there are any old blacksmith's tools lying around in disuse? If so, there is a place anxious to receive and preserve heritage items such as tongs, hammers, anvils, bellows or anything else that was once used in a forge.

This June, a unique agricultural museum will open on the outskirts of Drummondville. The focal point will be the picturesque fieldstone house belonging to the Trent Farm. Built in 1836 and extended in 1860, it will be furnished in nineteenth century style, much as it was in its early days.

And before long the aarm-house will be surrounded by replicas of the buildings formerly found on its grounds. Claude Verrier, a native of St. Cyrille near Drummondville, has been the moving force behind the undertaking. By profession he is a university co-ordinator of human sciences. His spare time of recent years has been spent in research and preparation of the imaginative and ambitious museum project. He showed drawings of structures to be erected. Planned are a carriage house, well, sugar cabin, blacksmith's shop, bakery, barns and authentic fencing. The buildings will contain appropriate artifacts.

Animals will add to the farm atmosphere and Claude Verrier expects to have local handicrafts, arts and products on display.

People of Drummond County have been generous and all exhibits have been donated. However, there is still that lack of blacksmith's tools. "We are also looking for old-fashioned keys, kettles and a big cauldron, made of copper if possible," stated the organizer.

In 1963 the Trent Farm was purchased by the Quebec government and in 1965 the old farmhouse was declared an Historic Monument. The property is now incorporated into the scenic and popular Parc des Voltigeurs. The provincial park borders on the St. Francis river and extends on either side of the Montreal to Quebec highway. Campers and tourists, as well as local residents, will find the agricultural museum an intriguing attraction.

The Drummond County Chamber of Commerce is the organization responsible for the venture. Claude Verrier is Project Manager. He went about the job of collecting the farming antiques with the help of a key volunteer in each parish. "I've also had the co-operation of mayors and councils throughout the county," he explained.

A $32,000 Local Initiatives Program grant is enabling nine men to repair and restore hundreds of farm tools and machines. $30,000 of the amount is used to pay their wages. Eight of the men are ex-farmers and the ninth is a painter. They have been at work since December and will be employed until June. It is hoped that the grant will be renewed so that the work may continue.

Ancient broken-down farm vehicles may be seen behind their workshop. Out front, the newly-repaired and painted jobs draw stares from passers-by. Inside the men are busy with a variety of things in various stages of repair. So far, close to 400 items have been completed. One particular machine for stooking or baling had taken 82 hours just to clean. It still required an estimated 10 hours of paint work.

Restoration supervisor, Jean de Grandpre, pointed out a sturdy but primitive wooden washing machine, dated 1925. He recalled having seen, as a boy, a similar one made of metal. An 1890 Pelletier threshing machine stood nearby. It still wore its original coat of yellow and red paint and was declared to be in good working order. Jean de Grandpre puzzled over the type of wood used in the construction of an 1876 Wheeler and Wilson treadle sewing machine. The machine looked surprisingly modern and possessed interesting woodwork features. An ice saw used in the 1860-1890 period had a new handle and looked new. It is obvious by results that the men employed have a lot of pride in their work.

One corner of the building had the appearance of a harness-maker's shop. Gerard Lalancette was busy

NO TIN CUP — Jean-Paul Turgeon, a local physio-therapist pictured with his wife and two children here, says the tin cup stereotype that most people have of the blind is unjustified. He acquired his profession through the help of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Blind physio-therapist grateful to CNIB

SHERBROOKE (GS) — Perhaps the most encouraging aspect about Jean-Paul Turgeon's work as a physio-therapist is that his patients "will never look at blind people the same way."

Mr. Turgeon has been blind since his early childhood but with some assistance from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind he continued his education past high school and attended the Royal National Institute for the Blind School of Physiotherapy in London, England where he spent "three very full years."

After working as a physio-therapist for two years at the Montreal Rehabilitation Center he came to Sherbrooke and started working at the Hotel Dieu. His personal success leaves sighted people, so long accustomed to the usual stereotype of the man with the white cane and tin cup, bewildered. Mr. Turgeon was quick to point out that his case is not unique and that opportunities for blind people are increasing all the time.

Mr. Turgeon married during the middle of his training in London and he and his wife now have two children, aged five and three. His wife, who is also blind, expressed dismay that people they meet always asks the same two questions: "Who cleans your house?" and "Are your children normal?" Mr. Turgeon explained that to him blindness is "no big deal" and that he has long grown accustomed to the misunderstandings of others.

Mr. Turgeon was grateful to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind not only for making his education in England possible but for providing a continuing service to all blind people. The Institute counsels people in education and employment opportunities, trains newly-blind people in how to cope with their handicap and offers a library of talking-books free of charge.

Robert Shea, District Liaison Officer for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, said that unless the Institute can raise funds it will cease to exist in the Sherbrooke area. A campaign for funds will begin April 8 and will continue until April 26. The objective for Sherbrooke is $20,000 and $15,000 for the rest of the Townships. Mr. Shea said that the Institute is in grave financial danger and may have to cease its operations in this area altogether.

The Institute is trying to help blind people reach professional status in the way Mr. Turgeon was able to. Not only does its work require substantial funds but it relies on the general cooperation of the public as well as the determination of the blind individuals involved. Mr. Turgeon's escape from the usual stereotype of the blind person and his ability to perform a useful and necessary role in society is only one example of the benefits that the Institute performs.

Waterloo Council

WATERLOO — A letter from Jean-Paul Pelletier, representing the Police Fraternity, stated that unless the town increased its last offer of $500 to help defray the court costs of Jacques Lapierre and Colin Bockus, two of the town's policemen, they were ready to go to an arbitrator. The Council resolved unanimously to make a final offer of $783.83 to the two policemen.

In other council news a civic reception will be held for the Provincial Atom Tournament on Saturday, April 5, at the Waterloo arena.

Denis Dumas of Granby, was hired to make estimates on the installation of a sewer and aqueduct in the Industrial Park.

The Merchant Association of Waterloo was given permission by the Town Council to paint the shingle of the Association on the sidewalk in front of member stores. The sign will be approximately one foot in area. The Association also requested that it be given the responsibility to put up posters on the table in Centennial Park.

Following a complaint received at the Town Hall, the Council decided to ask the Police to apply the regulation concerning the collection of garbage, particularly at the IGA Menard store on Foster St.

Two citizens, who operate a commercial enterprise in their private home and subsequently don't want to pay garbage tax for their business as well as for their home, were asked to pay the town a supplementary tax for the business. The Council unanimously decided to apply the garbage tax to these two businesses as well as on commercial enterprises in general.

SHERBROOKE — For the first time this year and for the third time since the introduction of Bill 65, there will be an election for administrative councils of hospitals and other public establishments in the area of Social Affairs, (Welcome Centers, Social Service Centers, Local Communication Services Centers).

The amendments to Bill 65 have been carried out so that all the members of administrative councils will be elected for a mandate of two years. This year all the mandates will be renewed

Children's play at B.U.

LENNOXVILLE (GS) — "A children's theatre production that doesn't underestimate children" will be presented by Champlain Regional College on Saturday and Sunday of this week at the Bishop's University Centennial Theatre.

Winterthing, written by Joan Aiken and directed by Stanley Lunan, was well received by pupils of elementary schools in Sherbrooke, North Hatley, Stanstead and Magog. Mr. Lunan described the play as "children's theater for adults."

Champlain College has provided all the funds for the production and the performance at Bishop's will be the first time that an admission fee — $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for those under 16 — will be charged.

At every school where they performed they were asked to return and Mr. Lunan was very encouraged by the favorable reaction to the youngsters but rather dismayed by the attitude of the adults. "I don't think the children are given credit for their intelligence by the adults," he commented. He went on to say that the play is an attempt to give the children a "theatre experience on a level that they can understand but with the sophistication of adult theatre." He hoped to introduce to children the concept of theatre as a "viable alternative to television."

Stanley Lunan is directing the play as part of an independent studies program at Champlain and the rest of the cast is involved out of their own interest in theatre.

The story revolves around Auntie, played by Deanne Dougherty, a loveable nut, who is taken to an island where her habits, such as kleptomania, won't bother anyone. The four children who are responsible for the welfare of Auntie are played by: Ian Johnstone, Robert Kline, Sandi Simpson and Pamela Smith. The only person the children could find to ferry them to the haunted island is Mrs. MacRoy, played by Laurie Walker, and the Stranger is played by Victor Peters.

If not the first children's play to be held in the Centennial Theatre, it is certainly the first Champlain College production to go on tour. The appreciation of their audience is exemplified by this letter from Tommy, of the Sherbrooke Elementary School:

Dear Cast:

I really enjoyed the play because it was a good idea, also it was well acted.

I can't name anyone I liked the best because you were all very good actors and you had clear voices and you all knew your parts. I really thought you had good costumes and make-up.

Yours truly
Tommy
P.S. Please come back. Winterthing will be shown at 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in the Bishop's University Theatre and according to Eleanor Brown, of Sherbrooke Elementary School, it will be "very well acted."

Election of health reps soon

SHERBROOKE — For the first time this year and for the third time since the introduction of Bill 65, there will be an election for administrative councils of hospitals and other public establishments in the area of Social Affairs, (Welcome Centers, Social Service Centers, Local Communication Services Centers).

The amendments to Bill 65 have been carried out so that all the members of administrative councils will be elected for a mandate of two years. This year all the mandates will be renewed except for the representatives of consumers and corporations whose mandate has been prolonged until 1976.

All social-economic and popular groups of the region can use their right to present candidates for nominations by the Lieutenant-Governor in consultation with the administrative councils of each health and social services establishment.

The CRSSS (Conseil Regional de la Sante et des Services Sociaux) has asked that all social-economic groups within the Townships that are interested in the administration of Social Affairs establishments present their candidates for nomination.

The social-economic groups can present two candidates for each place and should bring their list to the CRSSS before May 10, 1975, at 185 Frontenac St., Sherbrooke.

Genocide in Iraq

These are the tragic days of fleeing refugees, men, women and children abandoning their homes to avoid invading armies, in Vietnam, Cambodia, on Cyprus and now in Kurdistan. Thousands upon thousands of Kurds are escaping from their ancestral homes in Iraq to refugee camps in Iran, after their uprising against the quasi-Communist, Soviet-armed Iraqi regime has collapsed.

The Shah of Iran has warned that the border will be closed at the end of March and refugees from the outlying villages will thus be unable to cross the border in time. The Armenian tragedy that took place in this very region in 1915, when the Turks deported some two million Armenians to what today is Iraq, a measure during which 600,000 Armenians — men, women and children — perished, is now being replayed with, as its protagonists, yet another ancient people first mentioned in recorded history 4,000 years ago. Insofar as their tribal names are concerned, the Kurds constitute the world's oldest aristocracy, and throughout their long history they have never submitted to any empires or conquerors for long. Today only about five million are left, with one million living in Iraq, one million in Iran where they were transplanted in the 16th century, and two million in Turkey, where their 1925 rebellion was ruthlessly suppressed by the Turks.

Mosul, with its profitable Iraqi oilfields, was wholly Kurdish, and the Kurds had been repeatedly promised by Iraq autonomy if not self-determination. They had fought the Iraqis for decades, and at first the Soviet Union gave strong support to the Kurdish rebellion. Indeed, the Kurdish leader, Mullah Barzani, holds the rank of a Soviet general. However, in recent years the Soviet Union has secured a firm foothold in Iraq, where the Ba'athist regime is Soviet-oriented, and Moscow quickly dropped the Kurdish cause, switching to the Communist Baghdad generals. The Iraqi troops were equipped and commanded by the Russians, who had no compunction in attacking their former Kurdish allies. Poison gas supplied by the Soviet Union was used by the Iraqis against the Kurdish mountain strongholds, but even so the Kurds would have held out had they not been abandoned by every nation, including Iran. When the Shah embraced Iraqi Vice-President Hussein Takriti in Algiers early this month, that indeed was the kiss of death for the Kurdish nation.

"We are alone with no friends," a Kurdish leader told Reuters' correspondent. "The Americans have not proved of any help or protection. I think dark times are coming."

So far about one quarter of a million refugees have crossed the Iranian border. The Kurdish soldiers, out of ammunition denied them by the Iraqis following their new friendship pact with Baghdad, have abandoned their arms. Meanwhile, Algerian officers, acting as trustees of the Iraq-Iran pact, vet each refugee entering Iran to ensure no "subversive" elements cross the border. The definition of this term according to the Algerian canon would be of more than passing interest.

The Kurds had hoped to find refuge in the United States, but a state department spokesman said that "only humanitarian considerations concerned the United States." The Red Cross and Save the Children Fund are making a valiant effort to provide help and comfort where needed, but otherwise the tragedy has passed largely unnoticed. Iraq at last has "solved" the Kurdish problem. The Mosul oilfields are safe for the Iraqi Arabs, and what the small print in the Iraq-Iran agreement says about the Gulf oil states has remained carefully concealed. We do not know as yet whether the agreement means a Communist subversion in the oil shielded (Iranian troops have been assisting the Sultan of Oman to put down a Communist revolt); or whether there has been a tacit division of the oil-rich Gulf region between Iraq and Iran. How the murder of King Faisal fits into it is yet another puzzle that in due course might find its solution. Meanwhile, however, genocide is being committed and the world, including the usually so vocal Third World, remains silent.

Angolan problem key to Portuguese election uncertainty

LISBON (CP) — The Portuguese political scene promises to be busy this week, with the campaign for election of a constituent assembly scheduled to open Wednesday in a climate of tension and uncertainty.

Many have singled out the Angolan problem as a key item of uncertainty and, potentially, a serious threat to the future of Portugal and its current regime.

But Information Minister Jorge Correia Jesuino reassured reporters Monday that Portugal wants "good neighbor relations" with all.

The country "hopes to remain" in the Atlantic alliance, he said, but also is interested in developing relations with the so-called "third world" countries, to which Portugal is "closer on the economic level than to Western Europe."

He also suggested that Portugal and China might establish diplomatic relations once decolonization of Macao is complete.

Decolonization of Angola seemed more critical to observers here, however, who noted that the Portuguese agreement with three Angolan liberation movements already has been sorely tried.

SITUATION DIFFICULT
Portugal is in a difficult situation, unable to back a specific liberation movement and accused at the same time of being too passive in its attitude.

Supporters of the People's Movement for the Liberation of Angola, who are among the chief accusers, demonstrated in Lisbon last Saturday night against the rival Angolan National Liberation Front's "genocide" which, they alleged, is a front for international imperialism.

Portugal's 25,000-man army in Angola is to be withdrawn by February, 1976.

A deterioration of the situation there might lead to an exodus of the estimated 600,000 Portuguese still living in Angola—a potential economic catastrophe for a Portuguese economy incapable of absorbing that many people.

Failure of the decolonization program might have serious political consequences in Portugal, if the country were led to shed its neutrality under pressure of events.

On the domestic scene, the Revolutionary Council was expected to present a joint platform to political parties either today or Wednesday outlining the future constitution based on revolutionary positions of the Armed Forces Movement.

URGES CO-OPERATION
There is no reason to believe, however, that the political parties—even those in the government coalition—will end their quarrels despite President Francisco de Costa Gomes's urging that they put national interests above partisan concerns.

On the contrary, the election campaign can be expected to stimulate party conflicts.

Even the Roman Catholic

Church spoke out during the Easter weekend to denounce the ever-increasing influence of ideologies contrary to Christian doctrine—a move which might have an effect around the country, especially in the north.

The continuing conflict among government coalition parties, in spite of the recent government reshuffle, is especially significant in that experience has shown partisan differences to be the reflection of struggles among various tendencies in the armed forces and the Armed Forces Movement itself.

Canadian movies recognized by U.S.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At long last, the Hollywood film community has acknowledged the contributions of Canada.

United States films since their earliest years have been enriched by Canadian talents—Mary Pickford, Mack Sennett, Norma Shearer among the pioneers. Even Louis Mayer came from Misk, Byelorussia, via Nova Scotia.

Other film figures from Canada include Walter Pidgeon, Yvonne DeCarlo, Lorne Greene, Norman Jewison, Michael Sarrazin, William Shattner, Raymond Burr, Leslie Nielsen, Genevieve Bujold, Arthur Hillier, Charles Jarrott.

Last week the Los Angeles International Film Exposition, the local version of the Cannes Film Festival, offered an "Homage to the National Film Board of Canada." Twenty-seven films produced by the board were shown to an admiring audience.

The chairman of the National Film Board and the Canadian government film commissioner, Sydney Newman, came here to accept the honors, and he explained in operation, which seems unique in the film world.

GIVEN FREE REIN
"We're a government agency founded by an act of Parliament, yet we can make films with utterly no political interference," said Newman.

"We're never stigmatized as a state propaganda agency. Our job is to interpret Canada and Canadians to themselves and to the outside world. The wars are not concealed, and as a result we sometimes come under attack."

"But there is never any pressure from the government to avoid controversial films."

The film board has produced movies about poverty, labor and French-English relationships that have aroused anger—but no censorship. The board's films have brought praise as well as controversy. A French-language feature, Mon Oncle Antoine, won an Oscar nomination.

Two animated films from Canada are in Oscar contention this year.

"Our budget for the past year has been $22 million," said Newman. "In addition, we receive revenues when the films are placed in distribution. Last year they earned $4.5 million."

"Unlike the United States where film departments within the government operate independently, no department in Canada can spend money on film without going through the board. All film procurement has been centralized. So our budget really amounts to $30 million to $32 million."

CITES ADVANTAGES
The film board has another advantage over the U.S. Movies by the U.S. information service cannot be shown in the U.S. (An exception was made for the agency's account of the assassination of President John Kennedy).

The Canadian Film Board shows its movies in theatres and schools throughout Canada and on prime-time television about 18 times a year, both on English and French-language channels.

One of the board's features, Cry of the Wild, even found its way to U.S. theatres, earning more than $5 million.

Canadian film-making has been spotlighted lately because of the success of The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz, which was partially financed by the Canadian Film Development Corp.

Record Yester Years

20 YEARS AGO TODAY

OTTAWA — A vague inference that there is a left-wing influence in some talks and plays carried on the CBC was made Friday by a Social Credit MP. of the Commons Broadcasting Committee.

Rev. E.G. Hansell, said after a series of questions about Reuben Ship, Montreal writer who has sold two plays to the CBC:

"Some of us are very, very much concerned about the talks and plays that go over the air waves of Canada."

Mr. Ship, a Canadian citizen who was deported in 1953 by the United States on charges of having been a member of the Communist party, is the writer of the controversial satire "The Investigator."

The play, regarded as a take-off on the Communists-in-government investigations of U.S. Senator Joseph McCarthy, originally was produced in Canada last year. Since then, a "bootleg" copy of the radio production has been sold widely in the U.S.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

QUEBEC — Statements regarding alleged bootlegging activities out of the Commission stores in Sherbrooke and Coaticook enlivened the sitting of the Public Accounts Committee, investigating the Quebec Liquor Commission's affairs last night.

L.B. Cordeau, president of the Commission, was also heard, and told the Committee that shipments from Montreal to other provinces or countries entitled to handle liquor, were perfectly legal in light of expert legal opinions in Montreal. Since his presidency, however, only the regular bottle by bottle sales had been made from the stores. There had not even been any wholesale dealing from headquarters of the Commission. He had not, however, been president of the Commission when the shipment of 2,000 gallons of "Old Charter" referred to in evidence, had been made from Montreal to St. Pierre.

Maurice Lacharite, of Sherbrooke, said that he had been an employee of the Quebec Liquor Commission at its store at 37 King Street, in that city. He was questioned as to what he knew about case sales from that particular point, and stated that the question was a difficult one to answer as he "hadn't seen the loading."

Answering Alfred Duranceau, witness stated that he understood that bootleggers came to Sherbrooke and stayed at the Queen's Hotel and the American Hotel, both handy to the Quebec Liquor Commission store and that a gang of twelve men came to the store headed by a German, Wagner.

"It's the latest model — great for your department — feed in internal and external economic trends, turn a dial to the latest unemployment figures, flip this lever to the inflation rate, and BINGO! A revised budget every hour!"

Phuong and the press

WASHINGTON — While South Vietnamese forces are in retreat all along the northern front, President Nguyen Van Thieu is still taking time to silence his press critics.

In Vietnam, the problem can be handled easily with a dose of "law and order." Two months ago, for example, Thieu simply closed down five newspapers and arrested 18 journalists who had the temerity to criticize him.

Holding down Thieu's critics in the United States, however, is a far more delicate matter. The South Vietnam embassy in Washington regularly monitors the American press and dispatches reports to Saigon.

Ambassador Tran Kim Phuong also keeps his eye peeled for potential trouble and recommends remedial action to his home office.

Following Thieu's crackdown on the press, for example, a prominent South Vietnamese legislator mailed letters of protest to several U.S. congressmen.

His criticism was written on the letterhead of the "Council on Foreign Relations," an allegedly private Vietnamese public relations group which sponsors foreign junkets to Saigon.

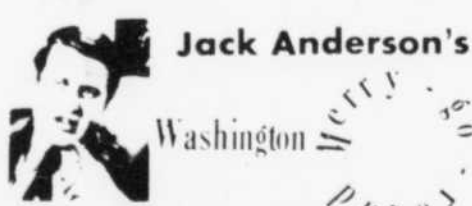

Alerted by some of his Capitol Hill "friends," Ambassador Phuong fired off a confidential cable to Saigon urging that the situation be "clarified."

"Our friends on the Hill are deeply disturbed by a letter signed by Deputy Nguyen Huu Chung protesting against the arrest of journalists and the closing of newspapers in Saigon," Phuong telegrammed.

"Acting in his capacity as Chairman of the Press Liaison Committee of the Council on Foreign Relations and using the Council letterhead, Mr. Chung's position carries special weight and lends the impression that the Council itself is against the alleged 'repressive measures.'"

"Since many of our friends have been guests of the Council during their visit to Vietnam, a clarification from the Council seems to be most appropriate."

Ambassador Phuong's staff also cables a daily "press profile" of American news reports to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Saigon. A copy of the profile is automatically forwarded to President Thieu's press secretary, Ms. Cao Thi Lieu.

"The Congressional trip, the Cambodian crisis, and the aid issue continue to capture press attention," begins the press profile for March 5. It continues with an objective summary of articles and editorials which appeared in the Christian Science Monitor, Washington Post, Washington Star, New York Times, and Baltimore Sun.

Footnote: A spokesman for the South Vietnamese embassy maintained that Ambassador Phuong's telegram merely suggested that the Council on Foreign Relations should make it clear that Nguyen Huu Chung was not speaking for them. The spokesman refused to identify the Ambassador's Capitol Hill "friends."

Jack Anderson's judgment: Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who is out in front in the Democratic presidential race, did some blunt talking the other day behind closed doors.

Meeting with Democratic congressmen, he excoriated President Ford, dismissed George Wallace as "overestimated" and "declining," and assessed his own chances as the "best of anyone who is now in the field." He even complained about being branded a "fascist pig."

The President, declared Jackson, "has been getting away with murder, going after Congress when in fact we are working on legislation he has vetoed."

"The people think we are sitting on our duff and aren't doing anything. Don't think Ford can get away with it. He is really sliding. In the end, the President is accountable."

Alabama Gov. George Wallace's strength, said Jackson, "is with the blue collar and lower-middle-income group (which is) tied off on everyone and everything. I think his strength is overestimated and is declining. This time, the economy is the issue, and I don't think he can pre-empt that."

"There is nothing affirmative in his program. In the polls, he has the highest negative factor ... I have the lowest negative factor."

The usually cautious Jackson rated his own prospects as better than those of any other Democrat. "Our strategy is sound -- to raise the capital, get a large direct-mail going," he said.

"We are ahead of the pack and have surpassed Wallace in fund-raising ... We are planning to raise $7 million with $3 million matching (by the federal government)."

Jackson also had these opinions: — On his own weaknesses: "People pay no attention to your voting record and they get a picture of you and believe that instead of the written record. I was called a Communist when I voted against Joe McCarthy, but now they call me a fascist pig."

— On McGovern supporters: "People who were active in the McGovern campaign are staying. Most of these people are intellectually honest, and are not so ideologically hidebound they can't understand different points of view. In the last campaign, I campaigned for the whole ticket — (Allard) Lowenstein, (Father John) Drinan, Gary Hart. I can't be more flexible than that."

— On party problems: "The terms liberal, moderate, conservative have all been debated. They don't mean anything anymore. The test has become where you stand on foreign policy. It used to be (where you stood) domestically. All our Democratic Presidents took a hard approach to foreign policy."

— On the issues: "The economy is the overriding issue, and the overriding issue within the economy is energy."

HATLEY — A happy event took place on March 21 at noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Miller when her uncle, Mr. Charles Johnson of the Grace Christian Home in Huntingville was the guest of honour at an oyster stew dinner.

Invitation Curling Day

DANVILLE — Last Wednesday saw one of the most successful Ladies' Invitation Curling Days ever held in the Danville Curling Club.

In all, eight teams participated in this event, with Ruby Hallam, and her rink from Lennoxville as a.m. winners and Joan Pye and her rink from the Danville Business Girls' Section emerging as the afternoon winners.

As the various teams arrived they were served hot coffee and doughnuts by Patsy LeRoux and Sue Coburn, which is always welcome before going out on the ice.

There was a short social period prior to the lunch, when sherry was served by Pauline Champagne and Kay Brown, after which all did justice to the delicious luncheon served by Lillian Heath, assisted by Helen Heath and Mary MacDonald. At this time Jeanne Gregoire, Club president, welcomed all the guests and expressed her appreciation to all members who had helped in any way to make this such a success.

Following the luncheon a "clean up crew," consisting of Kay Brown, Minnie Currie and Marion MacAllister, soon had the kitchen restored to good order.

Later in the afternoon Marion Williams, assisted by Diana Chaddock prepared tea for all. Presiding over the lace covered table, on which was a lovely floral centerpiece, Jeanne Gregoire and Clara Cleveland poured, using the lovely silver tea service.

During the course of the sherry hour Sue Coburn had several small contests, complete with prizes, which caused much merriment.

Easter Service & Dedication held

WAY'S MILLS — The Easter Eucharistic Service, in the Church of the Epiphany at Way's Mills, was conducted by Canon Harold Church whose sermon was based on the "Seven Last Sayings" of Jesus.

In speaking of "Father Forgive Them for they know not what they do," he said we are all included in that.

Commenting on "I Thirst," Canon Church said everyone in this life yearns for righteousness and, with reference to "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit," he stated that each and all of us may find perfect joy and peace in God today, if we will but give ourselves to Him.

At a service of Dedication twenty of the new hymn books for Anglican and United Churches were dedicated to the Glory of God and in memory of the late Doris Davidson Smith given by her cousin, Marion

THE AWARE SHOPPER TIPS ON CHEESE

When you're planning your food budget, remember to put cheese on your list. It can be the start of many delicious but inexpensive meals. The delicious natural flavour of cheese is best maintained when the cheese is kept refrigerated and wrapped, either in the original polyfilm covering or in a plastic wrap. Should portions dry out, they can be refrozen, but when thawed will often be mealy and therefore more suitable in cooking recipes. Always remove cheese from refrigeration about one-half hour before serving to full enjoy the delightful flavour, aroma and texture.

Home canning is no bargain if it's fatal

By Gaynor Maddox

Frightening jumps in the cost of food this summer made many people decide to home can vegetables, fruits and some meats for the first time. These inexperienced people thought they might save on their grocery bills.

But now comes a warning from the American Medical Association and the U.S. Department of Agriculture: a threat to your family's health might lie in your home-canned food.

It is the threat of botulism. That is a serious form of food poisoning that produces critical illness. It is fatal in one-fourth of all cases. You should stop canning immediately to recheck your methods.

Dr. Philip L. White, director of the AMA Department of Foods and Nutrition, pointed out in Today's Health Magazine that botulism bacteria grow only in airless places such as the vacuum-sealed containers used in home canning.

Low acid foods such as meat, string beans and corn must be processed in a pressure cooker which reaches temperatures above 249 degrees for 15 minutes.

"Canned foods that are in any way suspect," he warns, "must not be sampled until they have been thoroughly cooked. There is no easily recognizable, characteristic odor. Cans do not necessarily bulge as they do in other kinds of spoilage."

He adds with emphasis, "The best procedure with suspect food is: when in doubt, throw it out."

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta reports that in the past four years, there were 30 outbreaks of food-borne botulism involving 91 cases and 21 deaths. This points up the pressing need to educate home canners on how to prevent botulism.

The USDA warns home canners of fruits and vegetables against careless canning methods which might produce botulism.

Dr. Francis J. Mulhern, administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), calls attention to recent reports of botulism in home-canned tomatoes, apparently caused by improper canning methods. He also cited home-canned low acid vegetables such as corn, peas and green beans as common botulism sources.

Jars and lids made specifically for canning have been difficult to find this year.

"Nevertheless, if you used lids and cracked or chipped odd-sized or -shaped jars or cracked or chipped jars this summer, check your canned foods carefully. Throw them out if you have any doubts. Botulism is a terrifying thing."

The USDA states that home canning provides safe, inexpensive products only if properly canned. Here are some of the department's guidelines to guard against botulism:

DON'T take shortcuts or experiment. Use only tested methods.

USE only jars, cans and lids made especially for home canning.

DO not reuse sealing lids.

FOLLOW exactly the time and temperature specifications listed in recipes.

TEST the seal according to instructions.

If you feel certain you followed all these instructions when canning, relax. If not, that in the past four years, there were 30 outbreaks of food-borne botulism involving 91 cases and 21 deaths. Better destroy — and be safe. Botulism, remember, can be fatal.

RELISHES

Take advantage of fresh vegetables available at summer's end and put up a variety of relishes to go with franks, hamburgers, chicken or fish during the coming months. Favorite vegetables for relishes are corn, cucumbers, green and red peppers, tomatoes, zucchini, onions and eggplant. These make good family eating and also are thoughtful gifts.

METRIC CONVERSION FROM THE AGROLOGIST'S VIEWPOINT

BY Gail MacDonald

Mr. Barry Hall, of the Canada Grains Council reports that in 1972 the Council was requested by the Metric Commission to spearhead conversion in the grains industry.

The grains industry responded enthusiastically to the challenge and is one of the first sectors in the economy to complete an in-depth investigation and formulate plans and target schedules for conversion.

Target date for completion of the implementation phase is February 1, 1977. (Data from the beginning of the crop year, August 1976, will be converted so that records for the full crop year are in metric.)

Although staged implementation offered some advantage in allowing scale manufacturers to deal with the physical conversion gradually, single date implementation was selected. This decision will avoid the confusion possible if different measurements are in use at various points within the system. Paper conversion is still permitted in those instances where physical conversion has not been accomplished.

The basic unit decided upon is the tonne (1000 kilograms) to two decimal places. Scales are not precise enough to weigh to the third decimal place.

A metric coordinator for the grains industry will be appointed on a full-time basis to ensure orderly conversion.

Other sectors within the food industry that are well along the way are the sugar refineries, the edible oil industry, tea and coffee manufacturers and the dairy products area. In all cases, draft plans are in the preparation stages. Such plans, of course, are subject to change as new data becomes available to the sectors and steering committee.

Most sectors are now in the planning phase, and while individual sector plans, on a commodity basis, are beginning to surface, there still exists a great need for what the Commission calls 'cross-impact analysis' — that is, information in a plan must be bounced around among related sectors before it is firmly established as the way to go.

Bill Daman of the Horticultural Council points out that there will be added costs during the changeover to metric for prepackaged crops such as carrots and beets. New package sizes will mean new dies and related expenses. Ultimately, however, a cost benefit should accrue since there will be fewer package sizes on the market.

FOOD INDUSTRY

Within the food industry, in most cases, it is readily apparent that conversion to the metric system will be beneficial and will save money. In fact, in the experience of the Australian food industry each year of delay caused them an additional 7 per cent added on to their costs.

While planning for metric conversion, companies are also trying as far as possible to make all the recent changes brought about by the Consumer Packaging and Labelling Act and the introduction of the Universal Product Code.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture has been active in studying and planning for metric conversion. CFA's William Hamilton, as Chairman of the Agriculture Sector Committee, notes that "Agriculture as an industrial sector is going through the same process as other industrial groups, although the nature of our industry is such that conversion to the metric system means different things to different groups, so the process is being considered by commodity groups.

"To the producer, metric conversion means that all items bought for farm operation will come either described by different terms or in different sizes; and all of the products which leave the farm will be sold on terms relating to the different weights and measures. Moreover, measurements around the farm land area, granary or silo capacity will have to be converted to the new system.

"Obviously, the implications of conversion to a producer will vary depending upon his involvement in the whole chain. For example, a producer selling a beef animal need only know the new weight measurements. If he were producing, grading, packaging and retailing vegetables, however, he would have to also consider weights, measures, type of conversion (hard or soft) involved for package sizes, new pricing terms, and the implications of these changes on his overall operation.

IN CONCLUSION

"It's early yet to draw any firm conclusions," cautions Barclay Craig, Sector Plan Manager for Steering Committee 6, "but if appearances are any indication, many of the agricultural sectors have been very active in grappling with the task. We are now starting to see the results of their work.

"This investigative phase is probably the toughest part of the job. Once the need for change has been identified, planned, and scheduled for, then the implementation phase should follow smoothly."

Gail MacDonald is the editor of the Agrologist. The above article is adapted from the Nov-Dec issue.

OTTAWA — Agriculture Canada Minister, Eugene Whelan, and Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet recommended to the meat industry recently the adoption of a simple, standard nomenclature for beef cuts consisting of eight primary and 16 secondary cuts.

A survey begun two years ago revealed that over 300 different names of beef cuts were in use on the retail market. Recommendations by a committee of representatives from the departments of Agriculture, Industry, Trade and Commerce, National Defence and Consumer and Corporate Affairs, with the assistance of the industry and the Consumers Association of Canada, resulted in the development of this new, simplified system.

The suggested nomenclature, to be implemented on a voluntary basis, will enable consumers to have a better understanding of the nature of meat for sale. It is intended that the new descriptions should be used on all retail beef cuts. The appropriate suggested terms may appear in conjunction with any other useful information, or descriptive and/or coined names for beef cuts.

The nomenclature does not cover such products as sausages, meat loaves, meat patties, minced beef or meat by-products such as heart and liver.

A revised chart, for both consumers and the meat industry will be sold by Information Canada after May 15th. The cost will be 50 cents for the small chart and $1.50 for the large chart.

A list of the new nomenclature is attached, identifying the eight primary cuts and the sixteen secondary cuts, in accordance with the standards set by the Canadian Government Specifications Board.

Directors' meeting held

The Quebec Beef Cattle Association held a directors' meeting at the ETAA office on Friday evening March 21. The purpose of this meeting was to prepare for the Second Beef Seminar to be held at LeBaron Motel on April 25 and the 25th Spring Show and Sale which takes place at the arena on Saturday, April 26. Mr. John Nichol from Nichol's Inc., Lennoxville and Mr. Lagueux of the UPA also assisted at the meeting and voiced strong opposition to the acceptance of Bill 31, the closing down of all small abattoir owners. These gentlemen explained that the provincial government's acceptance of this bill would be disastrous for all concerned because this would cause:

a) A reduction of the number of actual beef cattle buyers at the commission sales by 400-500 which would have a deflationary effect on the prices at said commission sale.

b) This would increase the cost for the consumer and increase the profits of the large abattoir operator but would not increase the farmer's profit nor that of the beef producer.

c) It would increase the farmer's transportation and slaughtering costs.

d) It would tend to create a monopolistic effect to the detriment of the producer, the consumer and the small abattoir owner.

The QBCA agreed fully with the two gentlemen and with the suggestions of the UPA telegraphed recently to the Provincial government where the UPA asked that the government allow the local abattoir operators special grants that they may continue operations and meet with the government's hygiene requirements. The QBCA will send a letter to the provincial government asking that the acceptance of Bill 31 be delayed for further study and the Association protests strongly to the closing down of the small abattoirs.

Anyone interested in learning more about Bill 31 or receiving information on the Seminar or catalogues for the Spring Sale is asked to phone Eileen Morgan, sec. at 563-5651 or 562-6384.

Essays on women

TORONTO — Women at Work: Ontario, 1850-1930 is a collection of essays that examines various facets of women's work in a historical perspective. Based on extensive primary research into statistical sources, personal accounts, newspapers and institutional records, this book discusses both the working conditions and activities of nurses, teachers, domestic servants, prostitutes and industrial workers.

Women at Work represents the first collection of essays on women's work to be published in North America. While the authors have focussed on Ontario, the scope of the book extends beyond provincial boundaries. Written in a style that will appeal to a broad audience, this book utilizes illustrations, photographs and anecdotes to convey the flavor of life for the woman worker.

The nine essays center around three important themes in the history of women's work. The female labor force in this period was predominantly single since the married woman lost her economic independence during the process of industrialization. Home and workplace were separated where once they had been united. The female labor force was also "proletarianized" in this period as more women became waged workers. The failure of women to recognize this process of proletarianization stemmed from the influence of the domestic ideal on women's expectations. Women workers, however, did not totally subscribe to the domestic ideal, as these essays demonstrate.

Women at Work includes an introductory essay explaining women's history as part of the new social history that seeks to explore areas previously neglected by historians. The introduction suggests that research needs to be done on the family, leisure activities, sexuality, demographic trends and female cultural patterns in order to understand the entire working class milieu. An extensive bibliography is provided for the reader and the final essay, "How to do Research," provides helpful suggestions for investigators in this field.

Women at Work is the result of a collective effort by a group of women to learn about their past. The authors come from both academic and non-academic backgrounds. All are concerned with the problem of writing well-researched, popular history, and hope their efforts will encourage others to undertake additional research in these and other related areas of women's work.

Nudity and Newsweek

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A new city ordinance against nudity has gone into effect in Dallas and one of its first effects was to force bookstore owners to paste a white label across the cover of Newsweek magazine.

The magazine's cover showed a picture of a Vietnamese mother carrying a nude child with genitals showing.

The ordinance, which went into effect Friday, prohibits the display of "sexually explicit material."

"I think the city council's gone loony," said Leroy Fair, a customer at a downtown bookstore as he looked at the magazine cover.

A person under 17 might see them unless they are "completely or opaquely" covered up.

A spokesman for the city said the new law is not concerned with "obscenity" or "pornography." He said: "We are just trying to regulate nudity, regardless of whether it's obscene or not."

At another bookstore several customers were debating the legality of displaying a $150 book on Reubens. Some of the nudes on the cover did not have brassieres.

Lawyer Melvin Yoneck said while leafing through another book, "The people and kids today have a hell of a lot more sense than the jackasses in City Hall."

Ann Landers Rape and how to cope

Dear Ann Landers: Rape is on the increase in almost every large city in the United States. As a young woman living alone (in a not-too-good neighborhood), I would appreciate some advice on what to do if I am attacked by a rapist.

I have heard some so-called experts say the best thing to do is accept the dehumanizing experience, cooperate with the rapist and not make him angry. The reasoning behind this is that he will get what he wants and leave.

Recently a well-read friend informed me that the quiet acceptance approach is wrong. The best thing to do, she said, is to fight back, scream and kick — aiming for the groin. The would-be rapist would then flee and seek a less troublesome victim.

Will you please check with the authorities and share your findings with your readers? It would be a wonderful service. — N.Y. Daily News Reader

Dear N.Y. No matter what the subject, you are bound to find disagreement among the experts. I go along with Dr. James Selkin, Director of the Center for the Study of Violence at Denver General Hospital. Dr. Selkin advises women AGAINST being calm or trying to talk the attacker out of it. According to Dr. Selkin it is important to resist rape violently, at the beginning. Dr. Selkin claims the would-be-rapist would be inclined to run off — rather than risk being seized by the police or a Good Samaritan. Moreover, the attacker's plan for a smooth sex-fantasy trip is ruined by a shrieking, clawing woman.

If, however, a rapist enters a woman's bedroom while she is asleep, and puts a gun to her head or a knife to her throat, the best thing to do is submit.

Dr. Selkin has statistics to support his position. Less than 9 per cent of the Denver women who resisted rape by yelling and fighting back suffered anything more serious than a cut or a bruise. "Murders," he said, "are usually committed when the rapist feels safe and no one is giving him any trouble."

Dr. Selkin warned against women being too friendly and trusting to strangers. Nurses and teachers are so frequently raped, he said, because they fall into this category.

Dear Ann Landers: I found something in the wallet of my brother who passed away after an extended illness. I don't know where it came from but I wanted to share it with you. Perhaps you will print it. It helped me think — and it might do the same for others. Here it is:

Don't look. You might see. Don't listen. You might hear.

Don't think. You might learn.

Don't make a decision. You might be wrong.

Don't walk. You might stumble.

Don't run. You might fall.

Don't live. You might die.

— A Faithful Reader

Dear Faithful: Thank you for sharing. I'm flattered that your brother clipped and carried that little piece of philosophy. It appeared in my column eleven years ago. CONFIDENTIAL. To Class of '36, Central High, Sioux City: Our 40th reunion is coming up, June 24-25. Many of you are "unlocatable." Please write Mrs. E. Baker, P.O. Box 894, Sioux City, Iowa 51102.

Most promising male singer has something to sing about

TORONTO (CP) — Gino Vannelli had something to sing about Monday night after winning the Canadian recording industry's Juno award for most promising new male artist of the year.

Vannelli, 22, of Montreal came to the attention of the entertainment industry last year with the release of his album Powerful People and the single People Gotta Move on the A and M label.

Both received widespread attention in the entertainment media. His album was nominated for this year's Grammy Awards in the United States.

Vannelli said after the presentations he had not fully absorbed the impact of the Juno nomination until awards night.

"I learned of the nomination about three weeks ago," he said. "But I was so much into my new album that everything else—the Juno nomination, the Grammy nomination—lost importance."

FELT NERVOUS
"When I got on stage, I felt only nervous. I consider myself a performer... but standing there in front of everybody saying thank you while not knowing what I was saying—just wasn't my cup of tea," he added with a laugh.

Vannelli's new album is scheduled for release in May.

The Juno awards this year reaffirmed Bachman-Turner Overdrive's position as the hottest rock band on the Canadian market today. BTO took awards for best-selling album—Not Fragile—and for group of the year.

Randy Bachman, BTO's leader, also received a Juno as producer of the year for his work on two top-selling albums and three singles.

Anne Murray won the award as top female artist for the fifth successive year and received the country female artist award.

Other winners:
Male artist, Gordon Lightfoot; country male artist, Stompin' Tom Connors; country group, Carlton Show Band; folk singer, Gordon Lightfoot; new female artist, Suzanne Stevens; new group, Rush; composer, Paul Anka; best selling single, Seasons in the Sun (Terry Jacks); best selling international album in Canada, Band on the Run (Paul McCartney); best selling international single in Canada, The Night Chicago Died (Paper Lace).

Senior Citizens entertained

ROCK ISLAND — Members of the Stanstead South church Ladies Aid served, under convener'ship of Mrs. Geneva Lyons, a delicious noon luncheon in the church hall to over 40 Seniors of the Communities on Thursday, March 13.

As the group were eating dessert of home made pies, 65 students arrived from the elementary school in Derby Line, grades 5 and 6, plus their music teacher, Ms. Joan Kirchoff. School principal Peter Elwood and other teachers from the school. Ms. Kirchoff played the piano and the young people sang songs with happy tilt, so much enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Fayne Hovey, on behalf of the Seniors thanked the staff and students for coming to give them such a pleasant 45 minutes of song. Prior to the serving of the buffet luncheon, Mrs. Harry Goodall, spoke the Grace.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent playing cards.

The next Senior Citizens gathering will be on April 10 with luncheon at 12:30 Canadian time and 1:30 American time. All welcome. Luncheon will be followed by a program, then cards or other games.

A black and white photograph of a ship's hull. The call letters 'YB GYOR' are prominently displayed on a dark section of the hull. Below the letters, there is a large, white, stylized graphic of an envelope, which is the logo for the YB GYOR radio station. The ship's hull is dark, and the background is a textured, light-colored surface.

Color, an electromagnetic wave phenomenon, is a sensation produced through stimulating the retina of the eye by rays of light. The colors of the spectrum may be produced by viewing a light beam refracted by passage through a prism, which breaks the light into its wave lengths. The World Almanac notes that the order of the seven primary colors of the spectrum can be remembered by a simple name phrase: Roy G. Biv — Red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, violet.

Drawing the Line
The Mason-Dixon Line traditionally dividing the North from the South was in no way connected with the Civil War. The line was drawn much earlier to tend a colonial land dispute between the Calverts of Maryland and the Penns. Plotted out in a 1750 compromise in the English Court of Chancery, the line was fixed by two surveyors, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, between 1763 and 1767.

British unemployment up

LONDON (CP) — A government-commissioned study asserts that real unemployment in Britain is far higher than commonly believed and recommends that Britain look to a Canadian experiment to help alleviate the situation.

The 101-page book, There's Work To Be Done, is the product of Santosh Mukherjee, Oxford University lecturer on labor economics. He reports glowingly on the success of the Canadian pioneering project called Local Initiatives Program (LIP), initiated in 1971 with a budget of $100 million. Because of good response, he writes, another $50 million was added and in the spring $40 million was put into the program so projects could be maintained through the summer.

Although Mukherjee describes similar plans in a number of countries, he singles out LIP for particular praise because it has as its objective "the creation of jobs for unemployed Canadians as well as the improvement of the quality of life."

He argues that while other countries, including Britain, are prepared to subsidize employment in goods-producing, private industries such as ship-building, they generally are unwilling to put tax-payers' money in support of jobs in services and municipal community activities as Canada has done.

While Britain basks in the popular belief that its unemployment is comparatively low—the "official" rate hovers around three per cent compared with about six per cent in Canada—Mukherjee argues that this is deceptive, due to different methods of calculation.

"If unemployment statistics for different countries are looked at on a comparable basis then the rate of joblessness in Britain is close to that in Canada and the United States."

If in 1975, Britain does top one million unemployed as some experts believe likely, then the rate will be even higher than Canada's, which is the highest of any advanced country, he says.

The study was commissioned by the Manpower Services Commission, which now is studying it.

One potential drawback in plans such as LIP is that while workers' pay is more than unemployment benefits it generally is lower than regular pay. This raises the "cheap labor" spectre but a commission spokesman says that so far none of the union representatives on the commission have raised objections on these grounds.

Devoting a whole chapter to the Canadian project, the author says it seems probable that between 70 and 90 per cent of the projects involved work that would not have been undertaken without LIP money. Another finding is that about 35 per cent of projects continued to operate with other resources after LIP grants had ceased.

Projects have included local community centres, parks, ski runs and beach developments as well as day care centres and clinics, all ideas put forward by the unemployed and their community.

GET USEFUL INFORMATION

The advantage is that the government-sponsored program can pinpoint employment opportunities in communities where unemployment is above the national average.

From a psychological point of view, Mukherjee argues, the participants, "drawn largely from the unemployed and the unemployable, no longer feel they are on the scrap-heap. On the contrary, they are doing a useful and needed job for the wider community."

In essence, the plan turns the problem of winter unemployment over to the unemployed themselves, reversing the usually passive role of unemployed people simply waiting for work to turn up.

Mukherjee says studies show that about 75 per cent of work done was considered to be either value for money or "a bargain." Eighty-seven per cent of those involved were satisfied with the sense of achievement given by the projects.

CASTLES IN THE AIR — Everyone dreams of them, but some old mansions like this actually exist. This one is to be found in Ireland.

Morale high in forces

OTTAWA (CP) — There may be talk of lower morale in the Canadian Armed Forces but you won't hear any of it from the official responsible for naval cadet programs.

Jack Koyl, national president of the Navy League of Canada, a civilian organization, said in an interview he is looking forward to new developments that will increase the popularity of the youth programs sponsored by the league.

There were more than 15,000 young people involved in various navy cadet programs in 1974. They included 9,682 sea cadets, boys between the ages of 13 and 18; 3,728 Navy League cadets, boys between 12 and 13, and 2,015 Wrenettes, girls between 13 and 18.

While the number of male cadets stayed about the same from 1973 to 1974, the number of Wrenettes increased 33 per cent. Mr. Koyl believes this number may increase even more dramatically when legislative changes give girls equal status with boys in the cadet program.

Since 1941, the defence department has jointly sponsored the sea cadet program with the League. It has provided uniforms, paid officers involved in cadet training and sponsored summer camps. But until now this assistance has never been available to female cadets.

WILL GAIN EQUALITY

Once the proposed legislation is passed, the president says, the girls will participate on an equal footing with boys and even drill with them.

He hopes the girls will help to attract more boys to the sea cadet program. But what is just as important, he says, is healthy competition between boys and girls in the movement.

The commitment from the defence department to League programs has remained strong despite constraints on the defence budget, Mr. Koyl said. But the cadets worked closely with other government departments as well.

"More cadets go away on coast guard vessels than on armed forces vessels," he said.

About 35 per cent of the enrolment at the Coast Guard College at Sydney, N.S., was made up of former cadets and many entered the marine section of the RCMP in addition to the armed forces.

SAIL IN SUMMER

Sea voyages are "carrots you hold in front of the kids," he said. Every year cadets sail on coast guard vessels at sea and on inland waters.

Others join the crews of weather ships and some get a chance to travel on naval ships from the East Coast to British Columbia through the Panama Canal.

Cadets attending summer camps at the B.C. bases of Quadra and Esquimalt are responsible for patrolling part of the area between Vancouver Island and the mainland in 65-foot patrol boats for the forces' air-sea rescue unit. Others follow courses in scuba diving.

Other camps are operated by the defence department at bases in Halifax and near Digby, N.S. Last summer about 40 per cent of all cadets attended these and other League camps, Mr. Koyl said.

Friendship Clubs meet

ROCK ISLAND — After a pleasant winter of semi-monthly card parties sponsored by the women of Our Lady of Mercy parish, the Friendship Club held their final party of the season in the parish hall on Wednesday afternoon, March 19.

The refreshments served included delicious home made squares and cookies with tea and coffee.

The sponsors of the Club parties voiced appreciation to the people who had attended during the months.

evening of games and chatting.

Marathon game winners were Mrs. Pauline Bennett and Mrs. Ruby Simpson.

Mrs. Middleton was assisted by her daughters, Heather and Diane to serve refreshments in the St. Patrick's theme.

Column of

Louise Desaulniers

Concerned about eating well?

Let's talk about it.

FIRST,
LET'S TALK ABOUT WOMEN!

The woman who knows how to take care of herself can also take care of a family! In my column of March 19th last, I suggested a well-balanced list of groceries for a hypothetical family of 5. So, today, let's consider women.

A balanced diet for a moderately active woman between 19 and 35 years old, 5'3" tall and about 120 lbs.

For 1 week

Bread	1 loaf	Marmalades (molasses, honey, etc.)	8 oz
Butter (or fortified margarine)	½ lb	Meat	1½ lbs
Milk (or substitutes: yoghurt, ice cream, etc.)	3 pints	Fish	8 oz
Citrus fruit & tomatoes	2 lbs	Liver, or similar (once per week)	4 oz
Potatoes	3 lbs	Other fruits	2 lbs
Whole grain cereals	8 oz	Greens (spinach, lettuce, etc.)	4 lbs
Processed cereals (flour, rice, etc.)	5 oz	Nuts, lentils, etc.	2 oz
Eggs (3 times per week)	3	Fats (polyunsaturated oils)	6 oz
		Cheese (3 times per week)	3 oz

The daily number of calories recommended by the "Standards of Nutrition in Canada" for a woman fitting our description is 2,100, but the recommended number of calories only decreases with age, e.g.

36 to 50 yrs. 1,900 calories
51 years plus 1,800 calories
66 years plus 1,500 calories

THAT the said By-Law comes into force upon publication of the present notice.

GIVEN AT COWANSVILLE, this March 26th, 1975.

GEORGES H. BERNIER Town Clerk

Mildred Riff read the financial report and a letter of thanks was read by Margaret Harriman. She also continued the meeting by collecting the ladies' recipes for our cookbook which should come out in May.

Anyone wanting to reserve a cookbook should get in touch with one of our members.

We also discussed the idea of a new organ for the church. Nothing definite was decided though, as the decision will be made through the church.

We also would like anyone to call Eileen Weare if they know of anyone being sick or in the hospital so she may get in contact with the minister, as often someone gets neglected because the minister has not been told.

Two brass collection plates were bought by Rev. Howard and the A.C.W. decided to pay for them and donate them to the church.

The new business ended at this point, the meeting was closed with prayers and lunch was served by the hostess.

NORTH HATLEY - The St. Barnabas Anglican Church Women held their meeting in the Church Hall on March 19 with seventeen members present. Mrs. R. Spriggs chaired the meeting. Devotions were taken by Mrs. N. Pike, a Bible passage was read and an article on Easter Customs in different countries.

The secretary's report was read, also two letters of thanks. A most interesting letter was received from our Prayer Partner from Great Whale River, Quebec. The treasurer's report was given.

The Social Action convener reported that cards and flowers had been sent to the ill and shut-ins.

On Mother's Day, May 11, a social hour will be held in the Church Hall, after the morning service, when the Sunday School pupils will present their mothers with a daffodil. Coffee and cookies will be served.

Mrs. V. Plow was appointed Diocesan Gazette correspondent and Miss H. Ireland as Prayer Partner secretary.

Mrs. C. Coleman and Miss H. Ireland will entertain at the Connaught Home in April.

The next meeting will be held on April 2 at the new Community Hall, when a scotch Auction will be held.

Tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. K. Perry-Gore and Mrs. E. Hartwell.

BEEBE - The March 19th meeting of the W. H. and F. M. Society of the Advent Christian Church was held in the church parlor, when a quilt was tied.

About 7:30 Mrs. E. Woodard called the meeting to order, by reading a passage of scripture and each member offered a prayer.

Mrs. Emma Batchelder was welcomed as she has been unable to attend meetings recently.

In the absence of the secretary, reports of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. E. Middleton.

Call to Prayer was read by the president and Mrs. Batchelder offered the prayer for all the requests.

One bill was voted to be paid. A member was asked to purchase quilt material such as two bats and some material for lining.

It was agreed to have the church cleaned for Easter. A person is to be contacted regarding this.

A book will be purchased and given to Rev. and Mrs. Ronnie White, who are planning a trip. This will be a record book of their trip.

Roll call for April meeting will be, "Name your favorite spring flower."

Easter cards to be sent to a member, Mrs. Ethel Wilson who is a patient in the Youville Hospital, Sherbrooke.

Following adjournment of the business session, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Ruth Ashman and Mrs. Wynn. Wilson, when a time of fellowship was enjoyed.

UCW meetings

MANSONVILLE - The Mansonville United Church Women met on Thursday, March 6 in the hall with Mrs. Bertha Nichols and Mrs. Marguerite Ommerli as hostesses, and 14 members present.

The President, Mrs. Nichols, presided and Mrs. Mary Bailey acted as secretary during the convalescence of Mrs. Maude Clark. The worship service was led by Mrs. Dina Krausser, who spoke on The Meaning of Sharing, which was followed by prayer and the offering.

A notice was read informing the members that the Quebec Sherbrooke Presbyterial UCW annual meeting will be held in the Lennoxville United Church on Sat., April 19; also the Spring Supper date was changed to May 10. Several get-well and birthday cards were signed for members and friends.

Before the social hour, over an appetizing snack served by the hostesses, the program was enjoyed on a study of The Treasure and the Pearl, taken from the 50th anniversary issue of the United Church Observer, which was led by Rev. Ron Coughlin.

MELBOURNE RIDGE - The March meeting of the Melbourne Ridge U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Neil Fowler, and opened by the president with all repeating the U.C.W. purpose.

The devotional period lead by Mrs. Roderick Morrison, who had an inspiring Easter service. After reading an article about the reasons we celebrate Easter, she lit a candle in a bowl of sand. Each member in turn lit a small candle from the large one and placed it in the sand beside the large one. As they did this they told of something they would like to see come alive again. A warm and satisfying discussion took place as each one told of things of the past in their childhood and home life they would like to see happening in the homes today. The scripture was taken from Matt. 28, verses 1-10.

The roll-call was answered by eight members.

The regular offering was taken as well as an Easter thank offering.

The minutes were read and approved.

The banner committee chairman Mrs. Thormin gave the report of the meeting they had. A banner for the 50th anniversary is being made.

Correspondence consisted of a few thank you notes.

The treasurer's report was read.

The sunshine committee reported sending a gift to a member's child and will prepare a sunshine basket for a member and her husband who have both spent some time in hospital.

There will be three children from this community, Lois Fowler, Ricky Wilkins and Dougie Morrison joining the church in June. The U.C.W. will present them with bibles.

Community friendship reported 32 hospital calls, 43 cards and 12 calls made.

The date for the fall tea was set for October 25.

The subject of appointing a representative for the manse committee in Richmond was discussed. As there were just a few members present it was decided to leave it until the next meeting.

James Bay report indicates little environmental damage

OTTAWA (CP) — An interim report giving a fairly soothing assessment of environmental concerns in Quebec's James Bay development was tabled in the Commons on Monday by Environment Minister Jeanne Sauvé.

The report, prepared by Environment Canada, indicates that little environmental damage need result from the development, although the impact will depend on proper handling of the development.

The main concern will be the flow of the rivers to be dammed in harnessing hydroelectric power, especially the largest of the rivers, La Grande.

Complete interruption of the flow of La Grande while filling the reservoir behind its largest dam, LG-2, will cause "the large-scale destruction" of existing living organisms, the report says.

"Natural re-establishment, after flow is restored, will be slow and difficult. The only adequate solution to this problem is to maintain at all times during the filling of the reservoir a minimum downstream flow of 12,000 cubic feet per second, which is equivalent to the lowest recorded natural flow."

Further downstream there is concern about changes in river flow below LG-1, the La Grande dam to be built closest to the bay itself.

"In the lower La Grande, the mean annual flow will be practically doubled although it will still be less than the natural peak flows."

"Concern stems from the consequent new patterns of erosion and siltation, saline and freshwater changes and changes in water temperature, all of which will most likely adversely affect freshwater and anadromous fish reproduction."

However, the report says these problems can be minimized by careful planning, including protective and enhancement measures.

Similar considerations about the Eastmain and Opinaca rivers dictate that their flow never drop below the level of the lowest natural winter flow, estimated at 4,300 cubic feet per second, coupled with "a comprehensive and carefully researched environmental design which would derive maximum benefit from this flow."

Beaver will suffer widespread impact and face "a sizeable reduction of their habitat."

The indirect impact on polar bears was difficult to assess because of lack of data on marine life, but the report says polar bears can be directly affected by human activities.

A small caribou population in the upper Canispauc Basin may lose key habitats as a result of reservoir construction, but no firm conclusions are yet possible.

Marine mammals are not likely to be affected, the report says.

Gilbert and Sullivan honored

LONDON (AP) — More than 1,500 Gilbert and Sullivan fans, including British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, packed London's Savoy Theatre Tuesday night to celebrate the centenary of the start of the musical partnership.

The program, which lasted almost six hours, began with a sketch written by William Douglas-Home, playwright brother of former prime minister Sir Alec Douglas Home.

Next came a performance of Trial By Jury one hundred years to the night since it was first produced at the Savoy Theatre. A performance of The Sorcerer ended the evening.

Prime Minister Wilson offered his services to the company "in the only capacity I am qualified—as promoter unpaid."

He remembered with pride how he won $64 in a quiz show in Canada by naming six Gilbert and Sullivan operas and their subtitles in 15 seconds. "You try and do that," he challenged the audience.

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Singer Frank Sinatra is planning a tour of Europe about two months from now—his first in more than 10 years, his agents announced Tuesday.

The tour is expected to include France, Germany, Austria, Belgium, Switzerland and Holland, and two concerts in London.

Sinatra's last European tour was in 1962. He appeared in England in 1970 at London's Royal Festival Hall.

NEW YORK (AP) — Claiming that Paramount Pictures "usurped" his rights as producer of the film The Great Gatsby, Broadway producer David Merrick sued the company Tuesday for $7.5-million damages.

Merrick claimed that Paramount Pictures, which made the film for him after he had obtained rights from the author's daughter, Frances Scott Fitzgerald Smith, incurred unnecessary expenses, caused delays and did not exert its best efforts in marketing the film.

Paramount has 20 days in which to answer the suit filed in State Supreme Court.

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Stanley Young, poet and playwright who headed the American National Theatre and Academy in the early 1960s, is dead at the age of 69.

Young died Saturday of cancer. He had retired from Hofstra University as professor emeritus in 1971.

Young was the author of five full-length plays, four of which were presented on Broadway.

The most recent was Mr. Pickwick in 1952, a comedy drawn from Charles Dickens' The Pickwick Papers.

Born in Greencastle, Ind., he was a literary critic for the New York Times Book Review for many years.

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Television actor James Brolin and actress Jill Clayburgh were picked Tuesday to play the roles of Clark Gable and Carole Lombard in a film about the celebrated Hollywood couple.

The two were chosen after three months of extensive testing of hundreds of actors and actresses, said Universal Studios, the film's producers.

The film, tracing the life of the pair from their clandestine love affair in the early '30s, their marriage and Miss Lombard's death in a 1942 plane crash, begins filming here in May.

Brolin, 33, played the young doctor opposite Robert Young in the television series Marcus Welby.

Miss Clayburgh had roles in The Terminal Man and The Thief Who Came To Dinner.

He ruffed that first heart, ran off all his trumps while discarding one club from dummy and then ran the diamonds. He won the last diamond in dummy to come down to a three-card ending. He held all his three clubs, dummy one club and the ace-jack of hearts.

West was also down to three cards. Two of them were the queen and three of hearts, the other the ace of clubs. West had thrown his highest hearts in order to look like a man with two clubs and one heart, but South had figured things out correctly. He threw West in with the ace of clubs and made the last two tricks with dummy's ace and jack of hearts.

What do you bid?

Answer Monday

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South saw after one look at dummy that six diamonds would have been a cinch except against a 5-0 trump break. He could ruff the first heart in his own hand, lead a trump to dummy, ruff a second heart, discard two of his clubs on dummy's long trumps, the last one on the ace of hearts and wind up making seven.

That thought was totally unimportant. South was in six spades and he was unhappy about the whole thing. Of course, if East held the ace of clubs, six would wrap up but he was sure that West held that card. Finally he figured out a way to make the contract in spite of that.

St. Patrick's tea & sale

STANSTEAD — Saturday, March 15, the Canadian Legion Memorial Home in Stanstead was the scene of two pleasant events, in the afternoon, the Auxiliary annual tea and sale, and the evening, a dance for the members and their guests. The hall was outstandingly attractive with St. Patrick's decor.

The Auxiliary president, Mrs. Doris Belanger welcomed the guests as they arrived for the tea and Mrs. Adelaide Laberee sold the tea admission tickets having a pleasant word as she invited them to select a number for the door prizes given away later in the afternoon.

The sales tables were attractive and in charge of the following: Mrs. Eileen Roy and Mrs. Vernice Middleton, the hand crafts; Miss Trudy Simoneau and Miss Heather Simpson, the sale of children's toys which had been donated by the Laberee family; Mrs. Ada Curtis and Mrs. Clara Wesselink, the home made foods, jams, jellies and pickles.

Mrs. Marjorie Davio, and Mrs. Helen Heald looked after the used books table and mystery parcels.

Mrs. Julia Bacon made a beautiful St. Patrick's cake, decorated in green on white with symbols of the Irish. Mrs. Bacon sold the tickets on it, and later the cake was claimed by Mrs. H.J. Stubbs of Beebe.

The tea tables with green edged white covers, were centered with a single daffodil. The tea table was decorative with a white linen cover accented with shamrocks and centred with a yellow potted mum, from Mrs. Belanger, later this was taken to the home of Mrs. Merilla Farman and Mrs. Elma Smith to be shared by them and upon the March 16 birthday of Mrs. Farman.

Pourers were Mrs. Violet Badger and Mrs. Enid Cooke. The dining room arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Hazel Westover and her chosen committee. The waitresses were Miss Lucie Therrien, Misses Clara and Hennie Wesselink and Miss Lana Westover.

Kitchen details were in charge of Auxiliary members.

A jar was filled with beans and everyone took a guess or two at the number. Mrs. Ruby Simpson won the prize of a beautiful green crystal vase, her guess was 589, only a few from the correct number.

To win door prizes were Mrs. Violet Badger, Mrs. Diane Rever, Mrs. Pauline Bennett, all of Rock Island, Mrs. Lyndon Warner, Beebe, Mrs. Betty Humphrey, Huntingville, Mrs. Wilma Channell, Mrs. A. Butler, Miss Lisa Roy and Mrs. Lillian Boucher, all of Stanstead.

In conclusion, Mrs. Belanger thanked everyone for supporting the Auxiliary project.

Another pleasant evening at the Memorial Home was the dance on March 15, which was largely attended and seemingly everyone was Irish for good old St. Pat's day and had a good time.

The music, a foursome of Larry, Archie, Francis and Bernard played the excellent music.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

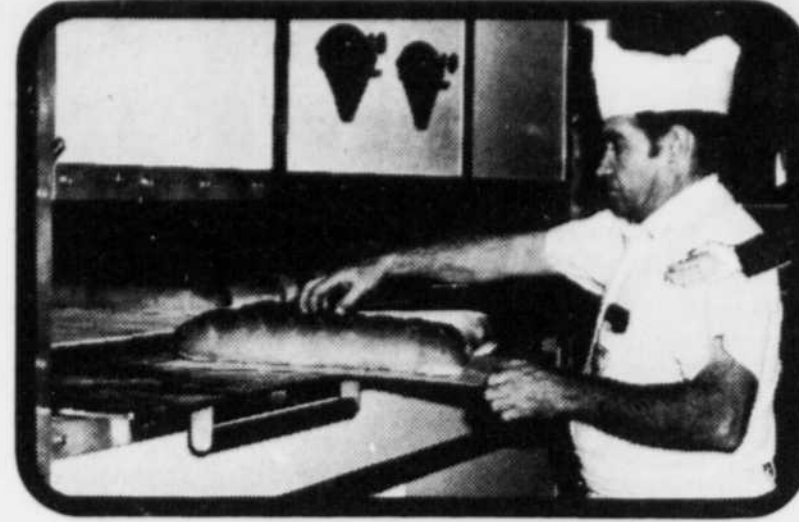

Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt, 26th and 32nd presidents of the United States respectively, were cousins. An ancestor of both men, Claes Martenszan van Rosenvelt, came to New Amsterdam from Holland about 1650. The World Almanac notes Claes' son Nicholas, a New York alderman in 1700 and 1715, had a son Johannes, from whom Theodore Roosevelt was descended, and a son Jacobus, from whom F.D.R. was descended.
