Crowds march as minister fired

TEHRAN (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of demonstrators marched in Tehran today in response to a call by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini for anti-U.S. protests, but the demonstrators stayed away from the U.S. embassy and the 49 Americans held hostage there.

They then marched to the towering Shahyad monument near the airport, in the opposite direction from the embassy, about 15 kilometres away. Some in the throng wore white shrouds emblazoned in red letters with the words: "Yankees, we will cut off your hands," and "We are ready to die for Islam."

In Mexico City, Iranian Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's public relations office said Wednesday the deposed monarch will leave a New York hospital bed and fly back to his luxurious retreat in Cuernavaca within 10 days.

WOMAN ATTACKS KENNEDY

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Senator Edward Kennedy's aides say he has no plans to ask for extra protection despite the fact that a knife-wielding woman tried to force her way into his office on Wednesday.

The aides said the Massachusetts senator, challenging President Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, is satisfied that Secret Service agents who overpowered the woman handled the incident properly.

They said the senator, two of whose brothers were assassinated, believes his protection is adequate. One of the agents was cut on the hand disarming the woman, a former mental patient, after she drew a hunting knife in the reception room of Kennedy's Senate office.

Senator Kennedy was in an inner office at the time, unaware of what was happening.

Carter ordered a Secret Service guard on Senator Kennedy when he became an active presidential candidate last month.

Senator Kennedy went about his normal routine after the knife incident, attending a meeting of the Senate judiciary committee and taking part in several votes on the Senate floor.

Charged with assault in the knife-wielding incident is Suzanne Osgood, a former resident of Boston.

...and Pope gets threat

ANKARA (AP) — Pope John Paul shrugged off a death threat and press criticism as he started a three-day visit to Turkey on Wednesday, saying "love is stronger than danger."

He was given a state welcome but there were no teeming crowds in this Moslem country.

The purpose of the Pope's trip is to hold reunification talks in Istanbul with leaders of the Eastern Orthodox Church.

After planting his traditional kiss on the ground and pronouncing his only public words for the day — "merhaba, asker" ("greetings, soldiers") — the white-robed pontiff was escorted into a helicopter for short trip to the centre of Ankara, where he placed a wreath at the tomb of Kemal Ataturk, Turkey's greatest hero and the founder of the secular republic 56 years ago.

Reacting to the death threat received by an Ankara newspaper, the Turkish army threw a tight security net around the pontiff's arrival.

"Who is this Peter Lougheed you keep quoting?"

Goalie's dream comes true

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — One by one, Bill Smith was deprived of the thrills that usually come with making sports history.

He didn't get the puck that became the first goal ever credited a goaltender in 62 seasons of National Hockey League history. He didn't call his wife back in New York.

"It's too late," he said. "To phone now wouldn't be fair."

It would have been well after midnight at the Smith residence, hours after Chad (4) and Corey (3) had gone to bed — unaware of what their father was about to achieve.

"It's exciting and everything," he explained, "but you know what kids are like: If you wake them up, they're up for the rest of the night, and I wouldn't put my wife through that."

There was no place to go but his hotel room.

So all Bill Smith has is the stick, which he says he will not relinquish to the Hall of Fame, and the memory of the wacky goal that put him in the record books.

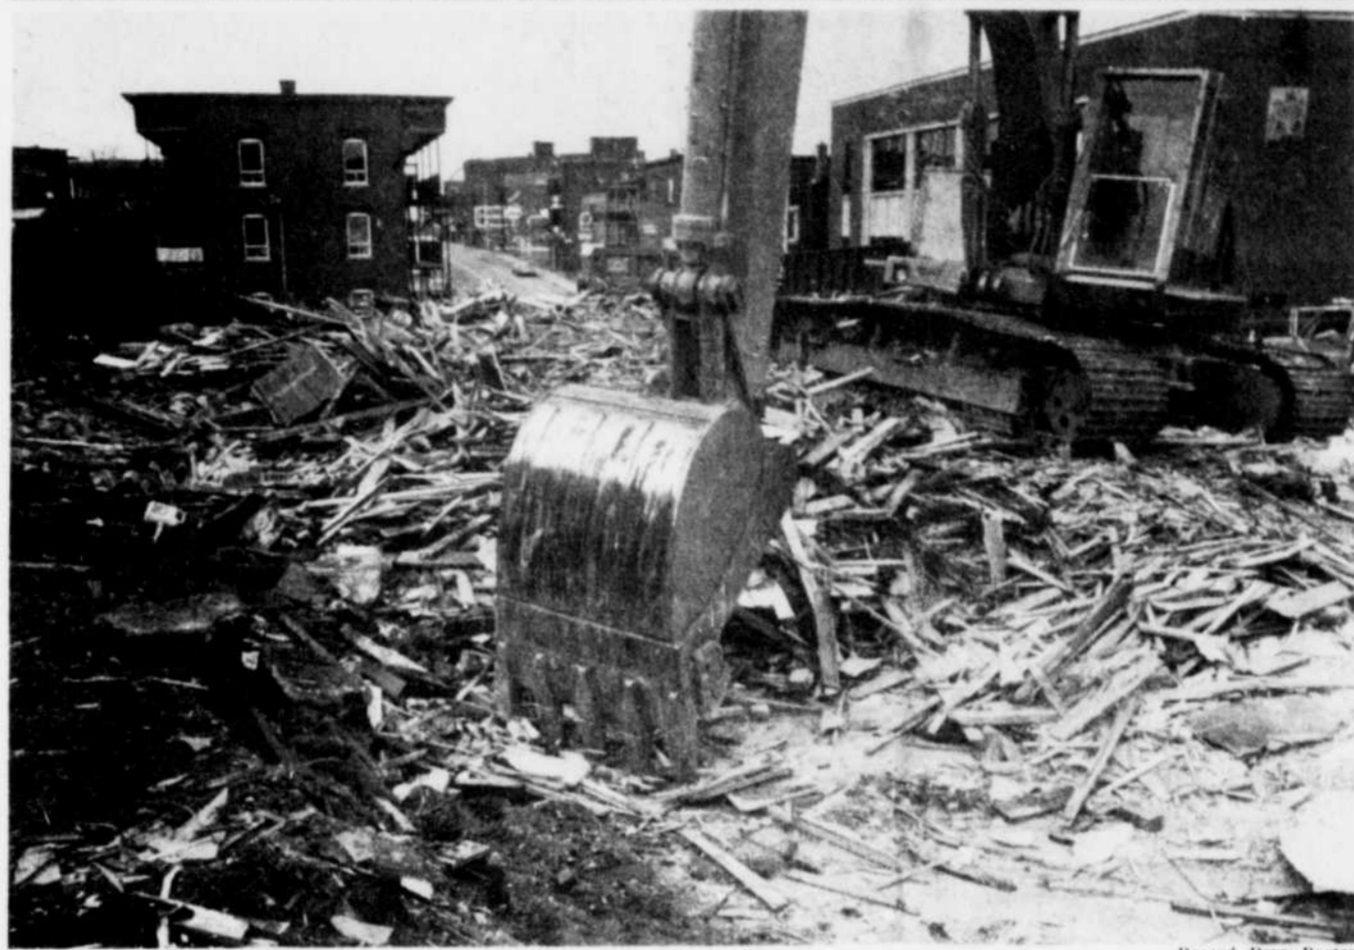

It was early in the third period, and a delayed penalty was about to be called on the Islanders' Mike Kaszycki. Since play would not be stopped until New York gained possession of the puck, Rockies coach Don Cherry replaced goalie Bill McKenzie with an extra skater.

Smith made a chest save on a Colorado shot, then the puck bounced into the corner to the left of the goaltender.

Rockies rookie defenceman Rob Ramage charged after the puck and sent it blindly back to the blue line, but no one was there. The puck skimmed more than 190 feet — directly into the vacant Colorado goal.

"It was so ridiculous, I had to laugh," said Cherry. "I was looking right into (Rockies right winger) Wilf Paiement's eyes, and I said, 'What next, Wilf? What next?' He was depressed and I was depressed. And then I just started to laugh like a maniac."

Alexander St. renaissance

The rebirth of Alexander Street, one of the most exciting developments of the Sherbrooke business life in quite some time, was spontaneous. One can partly explain it in its being one of the main routes from Wellington Street South to King Street West with the resultant high visibility, as the demolition work at the south end of the street proved recently.

There is a feeling of anticipation in the air with many new shops just opened, a few preparing to open and many more in the latter stages of planning.

There is a newness to this short and aging street in the heart of old Sherbrooke that invites an inquisitive stroll, the rewards for which can be very high. In tomorrow's Record, Photographer Perry Beaton takes us on that stroll.

Carter stands firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he cannot set a deadline for the release of 49 U.S. hostages by Iran and he's asking the American people to be determined but patient.

"Excessive threats" of military action might cause the death of the hostages, Carter said in a broadcast news conference Wednesday night.

The president's position won nearly unanimous congressional backing, despite some sentiment in favor of setting a deadline in the event peaceful means are exhausted.

"It would not be possible or even advisable for me to set a deadline about when or if I would take certain action," Carter said. "I never forget for one moment that I'm awake about the hostages whose lives and safety depend on me."

Carter refused to discuss the military options he is considering. "I'm determined to do the best I can, through diplomatic means and through peaceful means, to ensure the safety of our hostages and their release."

"Other actions which I might decide to take would come in the future, after those peaceful means have been exhausted," he said, refusing to elaborate.

HOPES FOR CHANGE
Carter said he hopes international pressure still might change the minds of Iran's leaders.

He pledged that the United States will "not submit to blackmail," and lent no encouragement to suggestions that Iran might be appeased by some kind of international tribunal to investigate alleged crimes committed by the ousted shah during his regime.

"I don't know of any international forum within which charges have ever been brought against a deposed leader who has left his country," Carter said.

He said the issue "can be pursued," but "it should be pursued under international law."

The immediate domestic reaction to Carter's news conference was positive, both from Congress and from rival presidential candidates.

CEQ rejects latest offer

Teachers say no

By NELSON WYATT
Teachers in elementary and secondary schools across the Townships joined their confreres in the rest of the province yesterday by voting en masse against the latest contract offers proposed by the provincial government.

Record that the BAT voted by over 90 per cent in opposition to the proposals following a two-hour meeting at Massey Vanier Regional High School in Cowansville yesterday afternoon. Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers Executive Assistant John Vanderkaay gave a detailed explanation of the offers prior to the vote and then departed so that the membership could register their feelings.

Complaints were also registered here as well as at an earlier ETAT meeting, that no complete copies of the proposed offers had been provided for the teachers to examine and that no English translations were available. A BAT See STRIKE, Page 2

Montreal cops protest inquiry

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal police have launched an attack on a Quebec inquiry over the touchy issue of identifying police anti-terrorist informants during the early 1970s.

Superior Court today, will pit the city's strongly independent police department against inquiry commissioner Jean Keable and Quebec Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard.

The final judgment may determine whether Keable can continue his probe of police infiltration of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec during the 1970 October Crisis and in 1971.

Montreal police say the inquiry has mounted "a disguised, unauthorized investigation of the 1970 October Crisis."

The immediate issue is whether the inquiry has the legal power to question a single officer, Det. Sgt. Emile Bisailon, about his relations with an alleged police informant, Francois Seguin, whom the commission claims was an FLQ activist.

Keable needs Bisailon's testimony, as well as police files on Seguin and some tape recordings of private conversations with him, as evidence for his unqualified charge Tuesday that the man is a longtime police informer.

Today's hearing before Chief Justice Jules Deschenes will bear only on a preliminary request for a 10-day ban on any testimony by Bisailon.

Bisailon is asking the court to rule the Quebec cabinet had no legal authority to give Keable a mandate to investigate recruitment of police informants by illegal means and drafting of fake FLQ communiques.

Bellemare: I'll be back

QUEBEC (CP) — Maurice Bellemare, veteran Union Nationale member of the national assembly, says he will resign Dec. 20 but adds he may be back in politics before long.

Bellemare, 67, told reporters Wednesday that he will quit his seat in the assembly in three weeks time, prior to the Christmas recess.

But he said he could be back in politics to defend the Union Nationale, which he says is threatened by extinction under leader Rodrigue Biron.

The party approved a resolution at a special convention last weekend to form a new party uniting all right-wing and conservative forces in the province.

Bellemare has opposed the measure, accusing Biron of selling out to the federal Conservatives.

Four Valcourt senior citizens died and a fifth was critically injured in a collision between their car and an out-of-control gravel truck on Highway 222 early yesterday. The occupants of the car all were on their way to the Hotel-Dieu Hospital, where the driver had an early-morning appointment.

INFANT SURVIVED FATAL CRASH

By CAROLE TREISER

SHERBROOKE — An 18-month-old baby in the car in which four senior citizens died yesterday morning was thrown clear by the crash and later carried to hospital by a passerby, it was confirmed this morning.

Hospital and Fleury ambulance spokesmen said the baby, belonging to a relative of one of the car's occupants, was unharmed when it was found crying by the side of Highway 222 and carried to a nearby house. The child's sex or identity was not released by the hospital.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Orea Ferland, 70, is still in critical condition at the CHU following the fatal collision between a gravel truck and a car near St. Denis de Brompton.

Killed in the tragic crash were Celestin Ferland, 63, his wife, Aldrea, 66, Orea Ferland's husband Armand, 69 and Mrs. Rose Archambault, 68, all of Valcourt.

They were killed when the car they were driving in collided with a semi-trailer truck that police said lost control on the highway.

According to Corporal Denis Marciel of the Sherbrooke detachment of the Quebec Police Force, another driver had stopped his car along the highway at about 6:40 a.m. to pick up a friend whom he was driving to work. The trucker, Rejean Verpaelt, didn't see the parked car until he was too close, then tried to swerve away from it, losing control. The truck crossed the road, its back end swinging out to cover the oncoming lane. At that instant, Celestin Ferland rammed into it. Verpaelt and the passengers in the parked car were not injured.

Police say the back lights on the parked car may not have been working. QPF Agents John Osborne and Claude Harbour of the Sherbrooke QPF are investigating.

Antarctic: Pilot error sent 257 to death?

CHRISTCHURCH (AP) — A New Zealand airliner that carried 257 persons to their deaths in the Antarctic was on the wrong side of the volcano it hit, and the pilot apparently was to blame, the director of the recovery operation said today.

"It would seem there has been a substantial error in navigation by the pilot," said Roy Thomson, chief of the Antarctic division of New Zealand's department of scientific and industrial research.

"The plane was basically on the wrong side of the mountain. It crashed on the northeast side of Mount Erebus. It should have been passing the mountain on the northwest side."

The DC-10 was on a sightseeing trip along the Antarctic Coast when it crashed Wednesday, killing all aboard, including three Canadians. Thomson said he could almost certainly rule out the possibility of structural or mechanical failure.

"In my opinion the plane was certainly in the wrong place to come down so low," Thomson, one of the country's foremost authorities on the Antarctic, told reporters in Auckland before leaving to head operations to try to recover the bodies.

It was the third fatal DC-10 crash this year and the fourth largest death toll in aviation history.

RECOVERY HAMPERED

Treacherous winds, snow and low temperatures were delaying the recovery of bodies from the crash site. Thirty-knot winds whipped snow and updrafts around the volcano, and the wind chill factor was 38 below Celsius.

The Canadians among the plane's 237 passengers were identified as Eija Parkkari, 25, of Toronto; Earl Beaumont of North Vancouver; and Robert Mason Sr., originally of Vancouver but had been residing in Los Angeles.

Miss Parkkari's mother, Kyllikki Parkkari of Thunder Bay, Ont., said her daughter was on a working trip with a travel agency.

Other foreign passengers on the sightseeing flight included 20 Americans, 24 Japanese, seven Australians and two Britons, a list of victims released by the airline today shows. The rest were New Zealanders.

Coalition of federalists to plan strategy

MONTREAL (CP) — A loose coalition of about 15 federalist groups will meet Dec. 8-9 to discuss strategy for the months leading up to the Quebec referendum campaign next spring.

Chairman Bernard Finestone said Wednesday the meeting is to keep each group aware of what the other is doing as the campaign "moves into high gear."

The group is looking particularly at the next four months, after which it figures the official referendum campaign will have started.

By law, federalist forces will then have to form an umbrella committee under the leadership of the Quebec Liberals, as pro-independence forces will have to unite under Parti Quebecois leadership.

The new pre-referendum committee, taking the name Liaison, has been operating quietly since Finestone, then president of the Montreal Board of Trade, founded it in March, 1977.

The group has been meeting every two weeks. Finestone, an insurance broker and unsuccessful candidate for the Progressive Conservatives in the last federal election, described it as "successful ad hocery."

Liaison itself does nothing, Finestone said it has no dues and takes no binding votes. "It's a catalyst for them (the participants) to organize their own thinking."

He said about 15 groups attend the meetings, some of them as members, some as observers.

They include the Positive Action Committee, which says it has 50,000 members, the Quebec Canada Committee, 115,000 members, Decision Canada, 1,700, and Impact Quebec, a small group.

The Montreal Board of Trade also is a member. Finestone declined to list others.

The Liberals, the largest federalist force in the province, are not members as a party. But there are many Liberals in member groups.

The Pro-Canada Foundation, so far the big spender in the battle with a reported $2-million advertising campaign, doesn't attend Liaison's meetings either. But Finestone is on the foundation's board.

The coalition operates out of an office it shares with Decision Canada, one of its members.

Nobody will discuss where the money comes from. Asked if the office space is a gift from somebody, Finestone said: "I don't think that's terribly relevant."

He estimated that Liaison's annual budget is $4,000.

Finestone rejected any comparison to the ill-fated Pro-Canada Committee, an alliance of federalist groups which fell apart earlier this year when Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan tried to assert control.

TORIES CLEAR WAY FOR INFO DEBATE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government overcame the Commons logjam created by debate on its mortgage interest and property tax credit bill Wednesday, clearing the way for MPs to deal with freedom-of-information legislation tonight.

Privy Council President Walter Baker reached agreement with the opposition parties to have the tax credit bill put to a vote on second reading — approval in principle — Tuesday night.

Debate on the legislation designed to make information on government activities more accessible to the public will continue next week.

All sides have been under pressure to get the debate started. A civil rights group protested the lack of progress in a statement earlier Wednesday.

Both the bill to allow deduction of mortgage interest and property taxes from personal federal income tax and the freedom-of-information legislation were major Conservative promises in the May 22 election campaign.

The government wants the tax credit bill passed by both the Commons and Senate and second reading of the freedom-of-information bill in the Commons before Christmas recess starts Dec. 21.

BREAK FOR HOMEOWNERS

The tax credit bill would give homeowners a tax break of up to $375 on their 1979 federal income tax and larger benefits in succeeding years. The information bill would make it more difficult for governments to operate in secrecy and would provide ways for the public to force unwilling officials to divulge information.

Commons debate on the tax credits had gone on eight days with no immediate end in sight until late Wednesday, when Liberals said they were ready for an immediate vote on second reading.

News in brief

Quebec won't change sign laws

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government has no immediate plans to change its language law banning non-French signs, Premier Rene Levesque said Wednesday.

He was responding to Liberal Leader Claude Ryan, who noted that when the language law — known as Bill 101 — was passed a little more than two years ago, Levesque said changes would be made.

Woman's trial set

MONTREAL (CP) — Barbara Homer, 28, a resident of the nearby Caughnawaga Indian reserve, was ordered Wednesday to stand trial for the murder of a Montreal taxi driver. Fernand Giroux was found lying in a ditch on the reserve last month, his eyes blooded and his skull fractured. He died a few days later in hospital.

Marcotte anthology wins award

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec editor and author Gilles Marcotte has won an annual literary award given by the Montreal daily La Presse for 1979. The award was given to Marcotte and his editorial board for the Anthologie de la Littérature Québécoise, a collection of four works detailing four periods of Quebec literary history.

Domtar to revamp Donnacona

QUEBEC (CP) — Domtar Inc. plans to spend $7 million to refit its pulp and paper plant in nearby Donnacona. Plant manager Ken MacIntosh said in a statement Wednesday that the investment is contingent on obtaining supplies of wood for the plant, as well as a provincial government grant.

Busjacker jailed

MONTREAL (CP) — A former heroin addict who hijacked a city bus to New York state last year in a desperate bid to get medical help to cure his drug problem was sentenced to three months in jail Wednesday. Claude Sasseville, 27, commandeered the bus with a knife in July, 1978, and ordered its driver to cross the Canada-U.S. border without stopping at customs. He has been receiving treatment since then.

Venezuela announces oil cutbacks

ABU DHABI (Reuters) — Venezuela, a major oil exporter, will reduce its oil production by 150,000 barrels a day as of January, Mines and Energy Minister Humberto Calderon Berti of Venezuela said today.

In an interview with the official Emirates news agency, Berti said at the end of his visit to the United Arab Emirates that the reduction is purely for economic reasons and has nothing to do with politics.

Bordeaux riot subdued

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec provincial police rounded up 115 prisoners at Bordeaux jail and returned them to their cells late Wednesday night after a four-hour disturbance during which the men barricaded themselves inside a wing and went on a rampage.

Pierre Moisan, acting director of the institute, told reporters authorities are still investigating the disturbance, which began shortly after the supper hour.

Louisbourg draws new mayor

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP) — Harvey Lewis is the mayor of Louisbourg — by the luck of the draw.

The 48-year-old general store operator's name was drawn out of a hat by town solicitor Hugh MacLeod before a filled town hall Wednesday.

Giguere decision reserved

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario Supreme Court reserved decision Wednesday after 19 days of Ontario Supreme Court testimony in the influence-peddling trial of Liberal Senator Louis Giguere.

Mr. Justice Jean-Marc Labrosse said he would deliver his decision in December or January.

spokesman said that there had been summaries of the offers published in the newspapers on Tuesday but added, "We don't conduct our negotiations through the newspapers."

Members of the ETAT also recorded an 84 per cent objection to the offers when their 350-member union voted yesterday in the 24 staff rooms under the jurisdiction of the association. The night previous to the vote, members of the union present at an information session on the offers put forth a recommendation that the offers be rejected. Summing up the voting, ETAT President Don Jondreville said, "Let's hope that these votes will convey a message to the government."

Earlier in the week, teachers at Champlain College in Lennoxville voted by a large margin against the offers. Members of the professionals union at the College also voted to reject the proposals.

South African envoy abducted

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — A group of about 10 guerrillas, some armed with sub-machineguns and pistols, kidnaped South African ambassador Archibald Gardner on Wednesday, police said. Witnesses said the group of men and women grabbed the 60-year-old ambassador as he left his embassy and forced him into a waiting car. Police said no group had claimed responsibility for the kidnapping and they had no further details.

Sidbec gets another shot

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government is putting another $150 million into its money-losing steelmaker, Sidbec, but has decided to delay a long-term development plan.

Industry Minister Yves Duhaime introduced legislation in the national assembly Wednesday which would also permit the government-owned company to enter joint steel-making ventures with other firms.

Montreal transit out — again

MONTREAL (CP) — Montrealers woke today to face their third public transit strike this month, coupled with the first snowflurries in November.

A spokesman for the Montreal Urban Transit Commission said the first buses were scheduled to roll at 4 a.m., but the drivers failed to show up as planned.

The 3,700 bus drivers and subway operators staged what they called a 24-hour study session, but it could continue for days. Union leaders said they would decide "day by day" on the length of the walkout.

Work-safety bill to pass

QUEBEC (CP) — Parti Quebecois house leader Claude Charbon told the Quebec national assembly Wednesday that the government intends to pass its controversial work health and safety bill by Christmas.

Reports earlier this week had suggested the government was planning to drop the legislation, perhaps indefinitely, because of criticism from both unions and employer groups.

Bell, workers reach accord

MONTREAL (CP) — Bell Canada said Wednesday it has reached an agreement in principle with its 16,600 clerical and communications sales workers in Ontario and Quebec.

The workers, who will vote on the agreement between now and mid-December, are members of the Canadian Telephone Employees' Association, an independent group not affiliated with the union representing the company's 23,000 technicians, operators and cafeteria operators.

LNG technology coming fast

MONTREAL (CP) — Some of the countries hardest hit by the high cost of imported oil could soon be exporting natural gas if cost and safety problems can be solved, a United Nations conference on long-term energy resources has been told.

UN scientist V. A. Ovcharenko told the conference Wednesday the development of facilities to liquefy and transport natural gas at ultra-cold temperatures could help many countries benefit from natural gas resources they have no way of distributing.

Millionaire's killers got $30Gs

MONTREAL (CP) — Two gunmen who killed millionaire businessman Vincent Millius Tuesday night got away with $30,000 in loot, police say.

Millius, whose private fortune was valued at about $2 million, was preparing to celebrate his wedding anniversary when two masked bandits, one armed with a heavy calibre pistol, forced their way into his home in suburban Laval.

Police say the businessman, in his 60's, opened his front door after the doorbell rang and was attacked on his doorstep. One of the bandits hit him on the head, probably with the revolver.

Nov. 11 expires on Saturday, raising the spectre of a strike that could shut down all Quebec primary and secondary schools, as well as most junior colleges outside Montreal.

But the teachers say they are unlikely to strike this close to the Christmas holidays, preferring to wait until January when their action would have more weight.

The Centrale is a key element in the common front of more than 200,000 public sector employees, but its hard-line attitude is not shared by all its partners.

Pierre-Louis Guertin, president of the CEQ-affiliated junior college teachers, Wednesday condemned the CNTU group for reaching a "premature agreement" and disregarding union solidarity.

Agreements in principle were reached in intensive negotiations last week between the government and several other unions.

Soviet economic outlook bleak

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union issued one of its bleakest annual economic reports since the Second World War on Wednesday and scaled down its plans for growth in 1980.

Figures presented at a session of the Supreme Soviet showed that basic production targets for the five-year plan ending next year will not be met.

The session was attended by President Leonid Brezhnev, who on Tuesday sharply criticized the performance of the economy in a speech to the policymaking central committee of the Communist party.

Brezhnev, 72, disclosed a slump in the Soviet grain harvest to 179 million tons from a record 237 million last year.

Defence spending was cut $155 million to $26.5 billion, or six per cent of government spending. The cut was seen as a mainly symbolic gesture underlining the Kremlin's peaceful intentions.

Nikolai Baibakov, chairman of the state planning committee, did not say what growth in industrial production was expected to be.

He said the rate for the 1976 to 1979 would be 20.3 per cent, however, indicating that the 1979 figure would be in the region of 3.6 per cent.

TARGET NOT MET

A target of 5.7 per cent was set last year, but that goal has been out of reach ever since cold weather in January brought production in several areas of the country to a halt.

Baibakov said the target for industrial growth in 1980 would be a relatively modest 4.5 per cent for heavy and light industry.

He disclosed that the 1980 targets for all fuels except natural gas would be scaled down from the original goals set in 1976.

Instead of 640 million tons of oil originally planned for 1980, the Soviet Union will produce 606 million tons, an increase of 3.6 per cent over this year's figure of 585 million tons.

Baibakov said coal production will be 745 million tons next year instead of the 805 million tons originally targeted.

Electricity production will also be below the five year plan target, as will steel, chemicals and other industries. Natural gas production was expected to reach the target of 435 billion cubic metres.

No mono epidemic, but it's definitely around

By CAROLE TREISER
SHERBROOKE — Area doctors report a rise in the incidence of mononucleosis in the Townships in the past few years, but they're at a loss to explain why.

Ten cases have been reported at the Sherbrooke Hospital in the past two days.
"It may be that we're detecting more cases because these days, we've begun to administer the test in Sherbrooke as a matter of routine," Dr. Lee Clark of the Sherbrooke Hospital said.

But he added that colleagues in Ontario report an increase there as well. Mononucleosis is a virus and like all viruses, there's no antidote. It exhausts the body and patients may be bedridden from two weeks to three months.

Symptoms of mononucleosis are a sore throat, extreme fatigue and swollen glands. In North America, it normally strikes teenagers and young adults. But Dr. Clark says that in the third world, 90 per cent of the population has had it by the age of three.

The disease is thought to be transmitted by mouth. Often called the "kissing disease", mono can be caught by drinking from an infected glass, or by being breathed on by an infected person.

"It spreads much like the common cold," Dr. Clark concluded.

LAPLANTE 'SURPRISED' AT DEATH

By JOHN McCAGHEY
SWEETSBURG WARD — Accused killer Fernand Laplante acted surprised when he heard of the June 20, 1978 death of Carole Fecteau, a defence witness testified yesterday.

Daniel Buissieres, a self-admitted car thief and Sherbrooke underworld figure, told the trial being conducted by Judge Jean-Louis Pelouquin he first heard Fecteau was dead from the brother of a witness whose identity has been ordered withheld by Judge Pelouquin.
"He... told me that she was dead while we were playing a game of snooker. We left the poolroom and moved about 500 feet to the Moulin Rouge. I saw Fernand Laplante sitting at the bar and my companion and I went to... sit at a table near the stage," Buissieres said in reply to questioning by defence lawyer Jean-Pierre Rancourt.

According to the witness, Laplante joined the table a few minutes later and said police seized his firearms that day when Buissieres' companion asked him if he'd heard about Carole Fecteau.
"Laplante said no and the man replied she's well off and she'll be frozen there this winter."

Buissieres said, "I asked what happened as I had seen her with Raymond 'Ti Loup' Grimard the night prior and his answer was 'Wait and see; you'll find out.'"
Buissieres said he saw Grimard and Fecteau in Grimard's blue Cadillac Eldorado proceeding south on Wellington Street North at about 8:30 the night before the conversation concerning her death.

He said he met the brother of the anonymous witness several days later and was told to shut up.
"I did, because you can get into trouble with the mob if you talk," Buissieres said. He then confirmed he had seen the brother of the anonymous witness show him a 7.65 mm (.32 calibre) Mauser pistol when they were sharing an apartment on Wellington Street South which was later destroyed by a fire on June 4, 1978.

In reply to a question by Crown Attorney Claude Melancon, he said he only told the QPF what he wanted to in a declaration made on August 4, 1978. He said he had not told the truth when he told them the last time he had seen Carole Fecteau was the day after he and three others, including the two anonymous brothers, stole her roommate's car.
"The last time I saw her alive was when she was with 'Ti Loup' Grimard on June 20, 1978," he said.

In reply to another question by the Crown, he repeated the mob rule on silence in circles which might implicate others. He said the man who first told him Carole Fecteau was dead suggested she had been slain by the Grimard gang as a result of a foul-up in a drug deal.

"He told me she had a 'good go' before she was killed and I presume she was raped," Buissieres said. He then admitted his juvenile and adult record to the Crown and said he had been active in a number of car thefts.

Under re-direct by Rancourt he said he once stole a car and delivered it to the brother of the anonymous witness.
Normand Lambert, a detective with the Sherbrooke municipal force said he and his co-worker Jean Plante, accompanied by two local constables and two members of the Sherbrooke RCMP detachment, raided Laplante's apartment on Belvedere Street at about 10:45 a.m. on June 21, 1978 with a search warrant.

He said the result of the search of the one-and-a-half-room apartment and Laplante's car resulted in the seizure of a 22-calibre M-16-type rifle and a 12-gauge shotgun, both legal arms. He then said under questioning by the Crown they found 45 rounds of .32 ammunition but no spent cartridges. They were deposited in evidence by the Crown.

Under cross-examination by Rancourt, he said they also located 74 .22 calibre as well as three 12 gauge shells loaded with rock salt. They were placed in evidence at the request of the defence. He also said Laplante entered the apartment midway through their search and told the court the Sherbrooke QPF were told of the results of the raid.

Sgt. Det. Jean Pierre Roy, of the Montreal Urban Community Police said he and others intercepted a car driven by Laplante, who was accompanied by his wife Claire Dussault and Guy Godin on August 3, 1978, seizing a 7.65 mm handgun which was in Godin's possession. He further stated a ballistics test performed at the Medical-Legal Institute in Montreal revealed the arm had never been implicated in a crime.

In reply to a question from Rancourt, he said the arm had been turned over to Noel Bolduc of the Sherbrooke QPF (Criminal Investigation Bureau). He was not cross-examined by the Crown.
The trial adjourned at 3:06 p.m. yesterday, with Judge Pelouquin saying due to special circumstances, the case would be continued to Monday, December 3, at 9:30 a.m.

"There is a possibility it might resume earlier and thus I will ask you, the jury, to leave your home and business telephone numbers with the recording clerk in order that he may inform you if the case can resume on Friday. I sincerely hope it will, as do both the defence and the crown."

Manpower funds 132 projects

SHERBROOKE (CAT) — Canada Manpower has announced today that the government has allocated $2,245,503 to fund 132 Canada Work projects in the Maurice-Bois-Francis/Estrie Region.

Manpower District Director J.A. Giroux said that minister of Employment and Immigration Ron Atkey presented nearly half of the $100 million Canada Works budget to projects in Quebec. "This year, projects have been funded only in areas where there is nine per cent unemployment or more," Giroux said.

Seven more projects in the region still have to be approved by Atkey. Though this is the last year of the Canada Works project, Giroux said a similar scheme will be drawn up by the Tory government and will be included in the December 13 federal budget.

Present projects are community-oriented, providing social, cultural and recreational services. They are non-profit and employ a minimum of three people. Grants range between $10,000 and $60,000 a year depending on the kind and size of project.

RENOVATIONS

Renovations are at work, and if the piles of garbage bags outside this Sherbrooke dwelling are any indication, it's a major job.

For immersion program

ETRSB seeking French families

SHERBROOKE (JC) — The Eastern Townships school board is looking for francophone families willing to board an English-speaking student five nights a week, for five months starting in January of next year. The project was designed to help anglophone students to learn French.

Michel Beauchamp, an educational consultant with the school board, said the project will be much more beneficial than immersion courses, mainly because within a family the student would learn the everyday use of the French language rather than a scholastic version which may as well be confused by his classmates' errors. More than a dozen students in their early teens have so far expressed their wish to participate in the project.

The school board is offering $500 to families willing to welcome a student into their home for the evening meal and overnight. The student would attend Alexander Galt throughout the day, and be with the family members from evening to early the next morning.

Beauchamp added the board will prefer families where no English is spoken so that the students would learn more quickly to communicate in French. The project is not an exchange between English and French families, Beauchamp noted, but simply an opportunity for the English students to learn French. He said the board may organize something for French students next year, however.

Families interested in taking on a young boarder are invited to contact Beauchamp so that the board may build up a bank of available families. The ideal francophone family, said Beauchamp, would have one member in an age bracket close to that of the family's young guest, to facilitate the latter's integration into the new milieu.

HYDRO BLACKOUTS FEW DESPITE SERVICES HASSLE

SHERBROOKE (JC) — Only three blackouts were reported in the area yesterday after a general strike by 11,600 Hydro-Quebec workers left some parts of the province with the threat of major power failures.

Blackouts or any urgent problems reported in the morning should be fixed that same day, according to Hydro spokesman for the Richelieu region. The spokesman said the union is keeping enough workers available to maintain essential services, plus a special emergency task force in case of a serious breakdown.

Picket lines in the area were without incident yesterday but a company spokesman said before the strike the fact that the union seemed to be the ultimate judge of what essential services are to be maintained.
Meanwhile, Labor Minister Pierre Marc Johnson has adopted a hard line, refusing to meet union representatives until they "demonstrate themselves capable of negotiating."

Johnson told the Quebec national assembly the utility was ready to negotiate with the technicians, maintenance and office workers but their union, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, had not responded to Hydro offers.

The strike, which began early Wednesday, has not resulted in extended power failures in the province, Hydro officials said. The union says essential services will be maintained, including provisions for emergency repairs.

"It's not strikes that create blackouts," spokesman Doris Demers said. "They happen routinely and there's been no problems so far."

Union negotiator Claude Morrisseau reiterated the union's complaints that the utility's most recent offers were unacceptable. He noted Hydro-Quebec returned to the table for the first time in two months only after the workers threatened strike action.

The offer includes a wage increase of about 2 1/2 per cent over three years for office workers, the middle category between maintenance workers and technicians. But Morrisseau said the offer does not include guarantees against loss of employee purchasing power.

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Pierre Gibeau renounced his rights to appeal during the strike of official court stenographers when he made representations on behalf of William Elston. "He was given his provisional freedom pending his trial and disobeyed an order which restricted him to his domicile for a fixed time period," Gibeau said.

Crown attorney Claude Noisieux objected. "A concurrent term would only make a mockery of justice as persons will think they can snub their noses at judges' conditions of conditional release."

Judge Bernard Legare upheld the defence and sentenced Elston to one week, concurrent to all terms he is presently serving.

Michael Horne and Steve Kisel, both of Bondville, changed their options and pleaded guilty to a count of breaking and entering. The crown made no demand for preventative detention and their sentences were continued to Dec. 21.

University Women meet

SHERBROOKE (JC) — The Sherbrooke and District University Women's Club will hold a dinner meeting at the St. George's Club, 325 Lufferin, Sherbrooke, at 6:30 p.m. on December 3th.

Ms. Patricia Burns, a home money management consultant with the Bank of Montreal and author of 'It's Your Money' will give a discussion entitled, 'What Every Woman Should Know'.

Thetford arson gag denounced

MONTREAL (CP) — A gag order issued earlier this year by a Superior Court judge has been denounced as a violation of freedom of speech by the Quebec Civil Liberties Union and provincial law unions in three other provinces.

The order was issued June 4 at Thetford Mines, Que., by Mr. Justice Rene W. Dionne in the case of 51-year-old Gervais Lessard, a union leader charged in 1977 with conspiracy and arson.

At the request of the Crown, the judge ordered that "information campaigns, public comments and the circulation of expressions of opinion concerning the case of Her Majesty the Queen versus Gervais Lessard hereby cease, under all penalty of law."

But civil liberties union president Jean Dore, a lawyer, says the court order has no basis in law, is not needed to ensure a fair trial because provisions for contempt of court in Canada are clear enough and is "dangerous" because it establishes a precedent that could be used to silence the press, citizens' groups and the public.

SENTENCED LAST YEAR
Lessard, former president of a United Steelworkers of America local at Lynn McLeod metallurgy foundry in Thetford Mines, 160 kilometres east of Montreal, was sentenced in March, 1978, to three years in prison for arson and one year for conspiracy in connection with a fire the previous summer at a dairy belonging to the foundry owner.

In February, 1978, the Quebec Court of Appeal ordered a new trial for Lessard because of what it termed irregularities during the first trial.
The Crown later asked for, and was granted, a change of venue because emotions about the case were running high in Thetford.

Lessard's new trial is scheduled to begin next February at St. Joseph-de-Beauce, south of Quebec City.

Brompton man charged in assault

By NELSON WYATT
RICHMOND — A 25-year-old St. Denis de Brompton man has been charged in the sexual assault of a Greenlay woman Tuesday night.

Laurent Corriveau was taken into custody at a roadblock in Windsor at 2:15 a.m. on the night of the assault. A Quebec Police Force spokesman told The Record that an assailant forced his way into the home of the recently married 18-year-old woman at about 12:30 a.m. and took her by force to a nearby cottage where he raped her.

Quebec Police Force agents at the Richmond detachment were alerted to the attack by witnesses who saw the woman being taken away and set up Operation 100, a county-wide system of roadblocks that sealed off the area.

Police say that Corriveau was charged with rape Tuesday morning and pleaded not guilty. Investigator Jacques Gosselin of the Richmond detachment is investigating the case, assisted by Corporal Marcel Laprade of the QPF Estrie Division Criminal Investigation Bureau.

Northeastern N.B. anglos threatened, clergyman warns

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — An English-speaking clergyman who has lived here for 35 years says there will be nothing left of the large English-speaking minority in northeastern New Brunswick in 20 years.

Rev. T. H. Drillon, an Anglican minister and secretary of the Northern Regional Development Association, said in an association newsletter that the exodus of English-speaking young people started as early as 1950.

Growing nationalism from French-speaking Acadians, who make up three-quarters of the population, has speeded the flow from a trickle to a torrent, he said. Drillon said in an interview Tuesday that an association survey of 100 English-speaking families shows that only 28 per cent of the young people who finished their education in the last five years are still in the area. The figure for those who graduated between 1970 and 1975 was 41 per cent.

"The young people will continue to go... without much regret because they no longer feel at home here. The old people will stay, but they'll die and their homes will be sold to Francophones."

He said he had no data on what percentage of Acadian graduates were staying in the region, but he believed it was much higher, partly because French-speaking graduates had few other places to go.

ATTEMPTS FAIL

Attempts at bilingualism have been tried and have failed, he said.

"Bilingual education doesn't work. It's our own fault — we assimilate the Francophones... You just can't have Anglophones in this area if the Francophones are going to keep their culture."

He said he did not expect any violent pressure on English-speaking people to force them out. But the decreasing minority would be hit more and more by economic pressure.

In an area where unemployment was already high there were ever fewer positions open to English-speaking people.

He also said he believes that the formation of a separate Acadian province is inevitable. A separate province is the main plank of the Parti Acadien, a small party that has never elected a member to the New Brunswick legislature.

"The question is not how soon will it be formed, but how far will it extend?"

READS FRENCH

Drillon, who reads French but speaks little, said he sees little chance of English-speaking people remaining in the area even if they learn French well enough to work and socialize with Acadians.

He said that, since publishing his view in the association newsletter, which first circulated here last week, he has heard several English-speaking people agree with him.

"I want to make it clear that I'm not complaining — I'm just stating facts as I see them.

"I don't blame francophones for wanting to save their language and culture. Why should they be pushed around by a minority?"

Drillon, 59, has two children, both living in English-speaking centres in the Maritimes.

The Northern Regional Development Association is a provincially funded, English-speaking group that is active in the northeastern quarter of the province.

Letters Anti-sexist campaign should be in English too

Editor:
Following is a copy of a letter to:

Madame Claire Bonenfant
Présidente, Conseil du statut de la femme:

Madame Présidente,

Recently, the Conseil du statut de la femme was granted by the government a sum of $500,000 to be used in a publicity campaign to combat sexist advertising in the media. Unfortunately, that campaign is being limited to the French media, apparently due to a lack of sufficient funds for translation.

For over a year, I have been working on sexist images of women in the media. Most of that time has been devoted to an analysis of pornography which is distributed in Quebec in the English language disproportionately to the ratio of the English population. A study of pornography tunes the senses to offensive advertising and sexist images in all phases of the media. The English media in Quebec has been compared unfavorably to the French media. Images of women in radio, television and in English publications are not only stereotypical, they are destructive. The same is true in English textbooks.

Recently, I have been greatly disturbed by a textbook which is being used in a course for immigrants by the Department of Immigration in Sherbrooke.

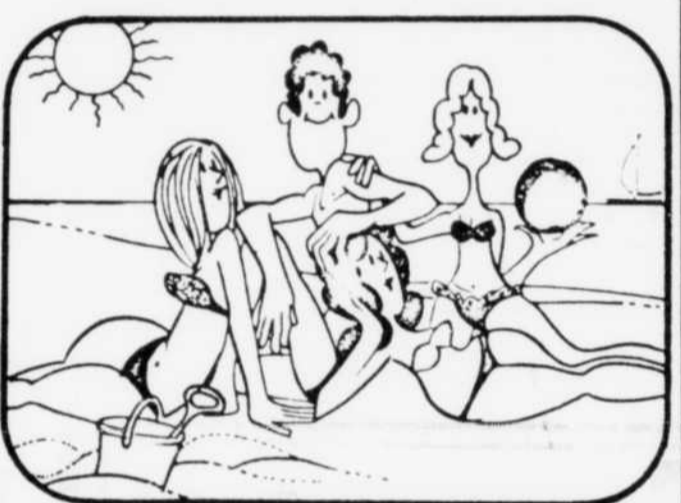

I have sent a letter to the department which details the offensive material. The textbook uses cartoons which portray all people in a negative manner: Blacks, the aged, men, but particularly women. The sexist image of women in the book is alarming. There are many students in the course who have just recently arrived in Canada, people from diverse countries such as Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, the Middle East and the countries of Latin America. Many of these people have never or have rarely been exposed to the European and North American concept of woman as sex object. Thus, the teacher must explain the concepts in the cartoons to the students. For example, a woman who is portrayed as "sexy" is shown walking into a restaurant, and all of the men in the restaurant are ogling her. Is there not something bizarre, even sick, when a teacher must explain the meaning of such an image to a person who has never before been exposed to such a concept of women?

More shocking, one of the images depicts a man eating a large meal at table and a woman sitting bound and gagged next to him. The caption reads, "Which one is eating the most?" Images such as these encourage a tolerant attitude towards violence against women.

This problem, as the Council is well aware, goes beyond advertising in the media. May I thus urge the Council, as campaigns are planned in the future for the media in general and for educational institutions, to include the English and the immigrant communities, especially the English media, the English educational institutions and courses for immigrants.

More immediately, I urge the Council to petition the government for funds for the translation of the current series of commercials being broadcast on the French networks. It is urgent that the English community become aware of the problem simultaneously with the French community. Thank you.

Brutal

Traffic accidents are so brutal. They have no respect for human foibles, property or how much we paid for our cars. Every day we drive, we play the numbers game. Every day we survive without being involved in an accident, the greater the odds we'll have one.

Those of us who live through our crazy driving days of our youth have learned certain ways of staying alive, like wearing seat belts, staying sober and driving defensively. But seat belts and defensive driving aren't enough to save us when we confront a 10-ton truck heading straight at us.

Since construction work began on the Trans-Quebec Highway, the roads and highways around Bromptonville have become drag strips for truckers who are paid by the trip, rather than by the hour. As far as we're concerned, the Quebec Ministry of Roads is ultimately guilty for any accidents on these highways involving dump truckers, since they had the ability to force contractors to pay truckers by the hour.

It would be easy to blame the Quebec Police Force and the Voirie highway inspectors for not being on the scene all the time, but why should individuals be made to pay for a system that's at fault?

There will be a coroner's inquest into yesterday's multiple-fatality accident in St. Denis de Brompton, and from what we can gather, the police have already decided who was in the wrong. No doubt they'll make an example of the driver. But with all due respect, the coroner who conducts this probe will not have completed his job unless he pries into the economic realities which pay Quebecers to drive like fools.

Embittered Khomeini has brought situation to boil

WASHINGTON — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, part in hot embitterment, part in cold calculation, has taken the world into a new and worse era. He has brought the Middle East to a boil, which could have scalding consequences.

Even now, a U.S. naval task force, operating under wartime conditions, is steaming within air-strike distance of Iran. Soon two nuclear carriers will be ready to launch fighter-bomber attacks against Iranian targets.

There has been speculation in the press about the possible targets. But the secret contingency plans call for a precision strike upon the Iranian island of Kharg in the Persian Gulf. This is Iran's great oil port, which pumps precious petroleum into world commerce. The task force has the firepower to knock it out for six months or for six years.

As a precaution, the planes probably would also hit Iran's air bases to prevent retaliation against the carriers. But Iran hasn't enough trained pilots nor spare parts to seriously challenge the naval force.

The order to launch the attacks must come from Jimmy Carter, a patient man, who suddenly has been caught in a series of crises and threats reverberating throughout the Middle East oil region. The president is not disposed to use military force unless his patience is strained beyond endurance.

The bombing of Kharg would bottle up Iran's oil, which is critically needed by the industrial West. Britain imports 23 per cent of its oil from Iran, the average for all Western Europe is 16 per cent.

But the strangling of Iranian oil exports would hurt Iran more than the West. Analysts estimate that Ayatollah Khomeini must ship out between 2.5 and 3.5 million barrels of crude a day to avert an economic collapse.

Without the cash flow from oil exports, he couldn't hope to solve the social and economic problems that now plague his country. Close to 3 million people — about a third of the workforce — are already jobless.

During the first year of the ayatollah's reign, his government has been in such a state of paralysis that it has been unable to appropriate public funds or spend public money. Indeed, the ayatollah may have approved the takeover of the U.S. embassy, deliberately precipitating the present crisis, to distract his people from their problems.

It will be up to the ayatollah whether to bring American bombs down upon his oil works. If he goes ahead with his announced threat to put American diplomats on trial, President Carter may interpret this as an act of war.

In fact, the capture of the embassy and the seizure of American hostages already gives him all the justification he needs for military intervention. But the president rightly is exercising restraint as long as there is a chance to save the lives of the hostages.

At first, the National Security Council recommended against a military response even if the hostages were killed. The council concluded that the ayatollah is an implacable fanatic who might even welcome a U.S. attack and the martyrdom it could bring him.

But the failure to strike back, the council now fears, could encourage militants around the world to join in the fun. The council cited the oil port as the most appropriate target not only to plug up the ayatollah's oil revenue but to dramatize that the United States will not submit to oil blackmail. The bombing of Kharg island should impress upon the oil powers that the U.S. is prepared to destroy vital oil facilities if it is sufficiently provoked.

Some military advisers, in fact, wanted to take over Iran's oil fields by force, thus depriving the ayatollah of the source of Iran's wealth and power. The bases that Israel is abandoning in the Sinai are available as a staging area. This would put our paratroopers within easy striking distance of Iran.

The 82nd Airborne Division has been trained to take over oil fields. The Air Force has also perfected a "bare-base" operation, complete with airlifted fuel and water tanks, repair shops and communications facilities. After the 1973 Arab oil boycott, the Marine Corps also began preparations for seaborne landings in the Middle East.

Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Middle East subcommittee, has urged the Pentagon to utilize the three Israeli bases as a loud and clear warning that the United States intends to defend its overseas oil source.

The Pentagon quietly sounded out Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia about the idea. Only Egypt raised any objections, which might now be withdrawn after the Iranian crisis.

The next move belongs to Ayatollah Khomeini. Then it will be Jimmy Carter's move.

No bilingual tickets in Beaconsfield

Editor:
The following is a letter to Beaconsfield Mayor E.M. Briggs:

Dear Sir:
I am very disappointed indeed that the Council of Beaconsfield has chosen not to make a resolution supporting the issuance of bilingual tickets by the M.U.C. police in the City of Beaconsfield. This supportive resolution is of particular importance in the City of Beaconsfield as the case challenging the constitutionality of the unilingual ticket will take place in the Municipal Court of that municipality on January 22nd, 1980.

To suggest that this is being done in compliance with Bill 101 is an obvious cop-out. I enclose a copy of a bilingual parking ticket issued to me by the M.U.C. Police on November 17th, 1979 in the City of Kirkland. All citizens of Beaconsfield should have the right to be served with bilingual tickets, as will be proven at our court hearing.

This is an example of the kind of capitulation by certain members of the English speaking community that has led to our being treated as second-class citizens. Our rights in the courts and the legislature are guaranteed under section 133 of the British North America Act, but if our elected officials stand by while these constitutional rights are abrogated they are guilty of complicity in these illegal acts of discrimination.

I am heartened by the reactions of the French-speaking mayors such as Lucien Caron of Verdun, Sarto Desnoyers of Dorval and Gerald Raymond of LaSalle. I am pleased too to see resolutions passed by the councils of Pointe-Claire, Cote St-Luc and many others.

The bilingual ticket is a symbol of our just rights as citizens of the M.U.C. and of Quebec. It is an issue that should be supported by all Quebecers. When, however, the English-speaking mayor and his majority anglophone councillors of one of Quebec's most important municipalities withhold this fundamental support, it is an act of irresponsibility and I seriously wonder whether it is being done in response to the wishes of the citizens of Beaconsfield.

We will continue this challenge with or without the support of the Beaconsfield Town Council. One can only feel that those of us who are trying to restore a sense of justice to replace that of resignation are feeling more burdened by some members of our own community than we are by the Parti Quebecois.

Wages for housewives don't increase income

Commentary

BY MERRITT CLIFTON

P.T. Barnum was right. "Close to 500 women and a smattering of men" applauded proposals a few nights ago that would cut all Quebec family incomes by approximately 20 per cent, establish a new, intrusive governmental bureaucracy, extend taxation into heretofore exempt areas, increase inflation and welfare corruption, contravene the rights of privacy and free association, and even replace motherhood with institutionalized prostitution.

The devil himself couldn't write a comparable prescription for tyranny. In the name of elevating the status of women, Lise Payette declares, "Housewives will soon be remunerated for the work they do at the same rate we pay social workers." Because everyone likes to be paid well and recognized, women cheer. Well-meaning men agree it is high time housewives received better compensation. None of them think Payette's scheme through sufficiently to realize it actually elevates only Big Brother's status. Some women may gain relative to their husbands, but only because their husbands will lose.

While paying housewives sounds fine in principle, we first must ask where the money will come from. It can come to housewives from either of two sources: directly from husbands, or from the government — who would in turn, take the money from husbands through taxation. If husbands are obliged to pay housewives directly, then no man can afford a housewife, unless he himself earns somewhat more than social workers. Many, if not most Quebec women will thus be compelled to work outside the home, regardless of their own preference, leaving their children to the second phase of Payette's proposal, government-run day-care centres. Raising one's own children according to one's own beliefs shall become not a right, but a privilege reserved for the rich. Government shall be able to indoctrinate children even before they reach school-age. Women whose husbands do not make a great deal of money shall lose the option of staying home, choosing nurturing over material possessions; the quest for material goods shall now be governmentally mandated.

If housewives are paid by government, on the other hand, government must establish a whole new bureaucracy to supervise the task. Administrative costs of governmental programs seldom run under 20 per cent of total budget, so that out of every dollar husbands pay in taxes, their wives shall receive only 80 cents. Moreover, as more people administer relative to the number actually producing useful goods, goods shall grow scarcer, accelerating the inflationary cycle. But inflation is the least of the likely consequences. Where government funds, government regulates — and if housewives are to be paid as civil servants, logically they must be supervised as civil servants too. Just as male workers must meet quotas and face inspections, so housewives will soon have to, as a matter of accounting, of making sure each does her job and has no other income. From here to 'quality control' is but another short step: mandating standards for house care, frequency of sex, etcetra. Moreover, if housewives are paid, they will also be taxed, giving government that much more ability to monitor personal conduct.

And once housewives are receiving their share of household income in their own names, where shall they spend it? For the most part, they'll have to spend it on food, clothing, and shelter just as they do today, when the husband merely cashes his paycheck, takes a few bucks out for pocket-money, and gives his wife the rest. But the housewife's own wage will buy a lot less than the husband's, because after administrative costs and taxes, a whole lot less will reach her than presently does.

Somewhere in all her concern with status, Payette has obscured both the nature of money and the essential nature of familial relationships. Money is an instrument evolved from lack of trust. In any form, money is a cheat for past services rendered and goods provided, redeemable as a promissory note for future goods and services. It is the most simplified, standardized type of written contract: a fishing tribe perhaps invented it by giving empty seashells to a farming tribe in exchange for corn, with the understanding that during the spawning season, the shells could be returned for fish. If the two tribes trusted one another, the shells would be meaningless symbols; they would co-operate anyway, as a logical means of ensuring mutual survival. Money today still serves much the same purpose. It is useful in making complex exchanges with strangers. It is not necessary. Traditional marriage involves an economic transaction based on trust, where labor is exchanged directly for labor, without money as an intervening medium. A man trusts a woman to look after their possessions and to prepare his food; a woman trusts a man to bring home food and to physically protect her. Within the context of the marital relationship, neither is paid in money. If a woman isn't paid for being a housewife, neither is a man paid for being a husband. He is paid only for work he performs outside a trusting relationship.

Before the Industrial Revolution, few men received wages. Most worked on exactly the same basis as women, producing either for personal consumption or to share with others in an extended family or village. Working for wages came about with the factory system, when first men and then women were often forcibly removed from the land and direct production, put to work not at making their own food, shelter, and clothing, but rather at making goods for strangers — distant strangers at that, who of necessity paid in money. When men no longer herded and hunted, with women no longer tending gardens, money became necessary for survival. Yet money was and remains an unnatural institution, symptomatic of an unhealthy, unnatural way of life. Today women are dependent upon men for survival not because husbands earn money and housewives don't, but rather because neither husbands nor wives can produce their own means of sustenance.

Where economic conditions dictate that men must provide most access to sustenance, the result is inevitably a male-dominated society. In this respect our industrial culture differs little from the Inuit culture, where agriculture is impossible, men fetch the meat and fish, and women are little more than chattel. By separating workers from their families, wage-labor breaks down the more egalitarian partnership found in agrarian societies, where men and women can share child-rearing and food preparation chores because both are always either at home or in adjoining fields and workshops.

Taking a husband's wages and giving a major share to his wife cannot change what is wrong with familial relationships today. It can only reduce housewives to the status of wage-slaves, perhaps marginally increasing economic security for a few, but not even accomplishing this much for most: as inflation rises, wages buy less and less, and as goods, including food, become scarcer and scarcer, the pauper with a garden-plot becomes better off than even the best-paid landless civil servant. Ultimately, the only way to raise the real status of housewives is to increase our awareness that marriage is a partnership, not an employer/employee contract where the husband is boss. If husband pays wife as if she were a prostitute and char-girl, husband is entrenched as boss; if government pays, both husband and wife become mere servants of the state, and 1984 is here.

Payette could best enhance the status of everyone by forgetting about wages, promising instead that old standby, 40 acres and a mule to every household. Wage-slavery became established before anyone delivered it, and therein lies the crux of our present dilemma — economic, ecological, social, and sexual as well.

Rev. and Mrs. Wayne Lucas

Ruth Perkins marries Rev. Wayne Lucas

The Advent Christian Church, Danville, Quebec, was the scene of a lovely wedding on August 25, 1979, when Ruth Evelyn Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester R. Perkins of Danville, and Rev. M. Wayne Lucas of Hartsville, South Carolina, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Milton Lucas of Godwin, North Carolina, were united in marriage. Rev. Gene Peters of Clifton Forge, Virginia, officiated at the double-ring ceremony, assisted by Rev. Doug Lucas of Dover, Florida, brother of the groom, and Rev. James A. Johnson, Pastor Emeritus of the Danville Advent Christian Church, who read a poem he had written especially for the couple.

The church was decorated with baskets of garden flowers and vases of roses in the windows and on the organ. The wedding music was provided by Mrs. Ardice McCoy, church organist, Mr. Wesley Ross of Lenox, Massachusetts, pianist, and Miss Michelle Burt of Lee, Mass., flutist. Just before the bride entered, Mr. Ross sang "Time For Joy"; following the exchange of rings he with his wife, Suzanne, sang "With This Ring", and during the signing of the register Suzanne sang "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride entered the church with her father and was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a formal gown of white polyester terylene with matching fingertip length veil and carried a bouquet of pink and red roses and baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Miss Arlene Wiggins of Raleigh, North Carolina, college friend of the bride, who wore a floor-length gown of pastel blue polyester silk. Miss Esther Perkins, as junior maid of honour for her sister, was in a similar gown in pastel pink polyester silk. The bridesmaid was Mrs. Doug Lucas of Dover, Florida, sister-in-law of the groom, who wore a polyester silk gown of similar style in pastel green. All the attendants carried bouquets of two-tone pink and yellow miniature carnations with hanging ribbons to match their dresses. The groom wore a white tuxedo with a red rose boutonniere. Doug Lucas, the groom's brother, was best man. The ushers were the bride's brothers, Kenneth of Chase, British Columbia, and James of Danville. They all wore navy blue three-piece suits with a carnation to match the attendants' dresses.

The bride's mother chose a light pink floor length gown with a corsage of deep pink roses. The groom's mother wore a green floor length gown with a corsage of yellow roses. The bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Elton Webb, was in a print dress with a white crocheted stole and a corsage of white roses.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the United Church Hall, with the U.C.W. catering. The head table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, frosted in white, decorated with pink roses and lily of the valley, and topped with bells. The cake was made by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Denis Dubois of Danville. Ruth and Wayne passed the cake to the guests. Mrs. John Gallagher of Lenox, Mass., college friend of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Out-of-town guests were from Florida, North Carolina, Virginia, Massachusetts, Vermont, Chase, B.C., Kingston, Ont., Montreal, Lachine, Ormstown, Shawinigan, Bury, Lennoxville, Granby, Richmond and Asbestos, Quebec.

Ruth and Wayne spent their honeymoon visiting several cities in Quebec and Ontario. They also spent a couple of days in the mountains in Pennsylvania on their way to Hartsville, South Carolina, where they now reside. He is presently pastor of the Advent Christian Church in Hartsville. Both are graduates of Berkshire Christian College in Lenox, Mass.

Prior to her marriage, Ruth was the guest of honor at three showers: her friends at college surprised her with a miscellaneous shower before her graduation in May; the ladies of her home church surprised her one afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dave Keeler; two days later she was surprised again when an invitation to supper at the home of Colleen Chamberlin and her parents, Richmond, turned into a miscellaneous shower, this time by her high school friends.

On the eve of the wedding a rehearsal dinner, in the form of a cook-out, was given by the parents on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Perkins, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Ann Landers

In-law problems

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married for five years to a man who was married before. He has a child from that marriage.

My problem is with my in-laws. My husband's mother is very friendly with his ex-wife. She invites her over for dinner once a week. They take vacations together, and exchange birthday and Christmas gifts. The same goes for my brother-in-law and sister-in-law.

Two weeks ago I had my first baby. Not a single in-law came to visit me in the hospital. No one sent a gift, or even telephoned to see how I was.

I've tried very hard to get them to like me, but nothing works. When I'm out shopping and see something I think my mother-in-law might like, I buy it for her. I have yet to see the woman wear a single thing I have given her. My mother-in-law is a great fan of yours, Ann. She is always quoting you. I hope she reads this in the paper and realizes how much she has hurt my husband and me by her attitude. Any advice? — Outside Looking In Dear Outside: Yes. Give up. You neglected to mention the circumstances of the divorce — which gives me a fairly good idea of where you fit into the picture.

Obviously, your husband's first wife earned the love and respect of your in-laws, and she will continue to have it. Equally obvious is the fact that you were never accepted by your husband's family. After five years of the cold shoulder, I doubt that you ever will be. So, stop buying little gifts for your mother-in-law in the hope that it will generate some affection. Think about the reason you are "Outside Looking In," and look elsewhere for friendship.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to a stingy man for 17 years. He pays the bills and gives me a meager sum to buy a few odds and ends for the kids, but I've always had to beg for every extra dollar.

A few years ago, I went into his wallet and took out $3.00. He never missed it. From then on I've been helping myself to a few dollars every week. It's amazing how a man so tight doesn't realize what's been going on. Some weeks I've taken as much as $8.00.

My bank account is growing, along with my sense of satisfaction. After all, I am his wife and I'm entitled. I feel no pangs of conscience. Am I right or wrong? — Night-Worker

Dear N.W.: Wrong. You should have the courage to speak up and tell your husband that he owes you a decent allowance because you are a working partner in the relationship called marriage.

Your bank account is proof that the revenge is more important to you than the money. If you needed the money, you'd be spending it — Not banking it.

Dear Ann Landers: We hear a lot these days about how uncaring, selfish and cold people are these days. No longer is there a community spirit or a love of one's fellow man. I'm beginning to think people damn well deserve the shabby treatment they get.

Drivers on the city streets are like animals. No one will give you a break. Shopping is a nightmare. During a sale people act like barbarians. They push, shove and grab garments out of your hands. Yesterday I tried to help a very obese woman onto a bus, and she looked at me and said: "Get your hands off, you creep — I'm no cripple." Whoever said, "Nice guys finish last," knew what he was talking about. From now on, that's my motto. — Fed Up

Dear Fed: Forgive me for being so trite, but it takes all kinds of people to make a world. Sorry you're running into so many of the wrong kind.

Why let the behavior of a few slobbs sour you on the whole human race? I see rude and inconsiderate people around me, too, but I'll be darned if I'll let them make me one of THEM.

Sara Ann Laro weds Danny Mosher

Sara Ann Laro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thayer of Georgeville, was united in marriage to Danny Dale Mosher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Mosher of Brown's Hill, on Saturday, October 27, in Beulah United Church, Ayer's Cliff. Rev. Ronald Coughlin performed the ceremony, with Mrs. Claire Shipway at the organ.

Given in marriage by her step-father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white crimplene with matching train, and carried a bouquet of white daisies, yellow carnations and baby's breath.

The maid of honor, Miss Shirley Belknap, cousin of the bride, was in a floor-length gown of yellow crimplene. The bridesmaids Miss Wendy Laro, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Vicki Hunt, sister of the groom, wore matching gowns of pink crimplene, and they carried bouquets of daisies and carnations.

The ring bearer was Roger Belknap, cousin of the bride, best man was Sidney Keet, friend of the groom, while the ushers were Ricky Hunt, brother-in-law of the groom, and Chester Wilson, uncle of the bride.

Mrs. Thayer, mother of the bride, chose a floor-length dress of off-white, and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Mosher, the groom's mother, wore a mid-calf length dress of lilac, with knife pleats and a deep-plum velvet jacket. Her corsage was of yellow carnations.

Mrs. Claude Thayer, grandmother of the bride, was attired in a multi-colored flowered dress. Mrs. Alex Johnston, grandmother of the groom, chose a turquoise dress patterned with flowers, topped with fur stole. Mrs. Bernice Tetrault, great-grandmother of the groom, wore a pink dress with a white shawl. Their corsages were white carnations.

The reception was held at L'Escale in Kingscroft, where dinner was served to 120 relatives and friends. The wedding cake was made by the groom's mother.

Martin Kingdom of Magog, a friend of the bride's family, was master of ceremonies for the evening. Miss Leslie Mosher, sister of the groom, and Miss Rosemary Laro, sister of the bride, were in charge of the guest book. Following the dinner, dancing was enjoyed by all.

The newly married couple are now residing in Granby.

Cream cheese wins new rights for handicapped

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Winnipeg man's yen for some cream cheese to go with his bagels may make it easier for handicapped people throughout Manitoba to shop in major chain stores.

Safeway supermarket here by the same posts that are used to keep customers from removing shopping carts. He complained to the Manitoba Human Rights Commission and Safeway agreed to remove the barriers in its Winnipeg stores.

Now the Canadian Paraplegic Association is planning a campaign to get other Manitoba chain stores to follow Safeway's lead. John Lane, director of the association's Manitoba branch, said the commission's decision that the barriers discriminated against Derksen represents a precedent the commission will use in other chains in the province. Lane said the commission's decision will allow the association to approach the Manitoba operations of the large chains from the top down before the end of the year. Derksen is national co-ordinator of the Coalition of Provincial Organizations of the Handicapped. "I had just bought a dozen bagels," he said, explaining the incident that led to his complaint, "and I was going by the Safeway and wanted some cream cheese."

Lane to talk about a solution. With the association's help, the company came up with a 'P'-shaped barrier known as a pringle post which keeps shopping carts in, but doesn't keep wheelchairs out.

Mike Sweeney, public relations manager for the company's Winnipeg division, said the pringle post may be adopted by stores across Canada. Lane said the commission's decision, and Safeway's readiness to comply, has given the association a perfect opportunity to push for changes in other stores.

Other problems facing the handicapped. Meat counter buzzers and telephones are often too high to reach, he said. "We don't want to swamp them, but there's no point in half-good solutions."

Social notes

School was never so much fun

The children of Ecole St. Barthelemy in Ayer's Cliff were given a surprise last Friday to mark the Year of the Child. They were taken by hay wagon to a hall where they were served a spaghetti lunch. The event was organized by the school committee headed by Ernest Bouffard. The wagon was donated by E. Speyer and E. Rosenthal of Springmount Farms and the horses, by Francis McKelvey. Following lunch, skits and music were performed by the children.

Bridal shower

ROCK ISLAND (DB) — Miss Heather Simpson of Rock Island was pleasantly surprised on Sunday afternoon, November 25, when she arrived at the South United Church hall, to find about 50 of her relatives, friends and neighbours waiting to shower her with gifts and well wishes for her approaching marriage.

Heather was met at the door by her close friend Miss Diane Dustin who pinned a corsage of kitchen articles on her dress and escorted her to a brightly decorated chair between her mother, Mrs. Edward Simpson Sr., and her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Pearley Haskell and Beverly Haskell, sister of the prospective groom, who helped to open the many prettily wrapped parcels, revealing lovely and useful gifts for her new home.

A chaparral of the bows and ribbons was made by Mrs. Albert Parent and worn by the bride-to-be as she thanked her guests for the beautiful gifts and for coming to her shower. She also thanked the hostesses, Miss Diane Dustin, Mrs. Albert Simoneau and Miss Trudy Simoneau for arranging the party.

The guests all signed their names on an embroidered tablecloth for Heather to keep as a souvenir of the occasion.

Mrs. Ivy Hatch guessed the number of beans in a jar and the gifts from a card game were won by Mrs. V. Federico, Mrs. R. Miller, Mrs. Carboneau, Mrs. McKelvey and Tammy Simoneau.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses, including a shower cake made and decorated by the future bride's aunt, Mrs. Albert Simoneau. It was iced in white with pink and green flowers and leaves and tiny umbrellas decorated the top.

Guests attended from Montreal, Derby Line, Vt., Beebe, Baldwin's Mills, Rock Island and Stanstead.

Miss Heather Simpson and Reuben Haskell have planned their wedding for December 22.

Edith Head: Living legend by default

DETROIT (CP) — She is sitting in the basement of Hudson's Northland, sandwiched between sewing machines and Christmas toys, autographing patterns for middle-aged women with bouffant hairdos.

It's not exactly where you'd expect to find Edith Head, an internationally-acclaimed costume designer and winner of eight Academy Awards.

But there she is — smiling, listening to horror stories of patterns gone wrong, promoting the Vogue sewing patterns she has endorsed for the last four years.

Ms. Head, after 1,008 movies and twice as many interviews, is sick to death of her image.

"If one more person calls me a living legend, I'll knock his teeth out," she says. "I think after a while you get the title by default."

After years of designing for both sexes, she says she prefers working with men.

"Women are such nice little fashion sheep, following whatever gets the most publicity, showing very little sophistication. I like men better."

"Women couldn't care less how they feel as long as they look sensational. But men are governed by comfort, by feelings. Yes, give me Robert Redford or Paul Newman anytime."

GAVE HER START

Cecil B. deMille gave her a start in the business with his extravagant movie epics.

"Those were the days when we'd have 4,000 extras to dress and we dressed them all. You don't find pictures like that anymore and I miss them like mad."

"But I have a great aversion to those who spend all their time reminiscing. I guess I miss those movies because I am a costumer, not a designer. And there aren't many period pictures anymore. I also miss the beauty and culture of the past."

"In the early days of movies everybody had swimming pools. Rolls Royces, were beautiful or handsome and lived happily ever after. Now everybody's getting hurt or being sent into space."

Which is why Edith Head doesn't do many pictures anymore. A few years back she did W. C. Fields and Me and Gable and Lombard — two movies that weren't box office hits.

RESENTED MOVIES

"They were flops. Absolute disasters. And why? — because you cannot recreate human people. There was too much resentment by a generation of people who absolutely loved those stars and felt it was an invasion of their privacy."

Now she does some television, but concentrates on the Vogue patterns and promotional tours which help fill the void created when Ward Bogen, her architect husband, died last spring.

"I don't like being alone. I don't like living without a man around — and I'm not talking sex. What do you do when you're old and the man you've spent 40 years with is suddenly gone? Do you put an ad in the paper?"

"Do you know that I married a man who didn't approve of women working? I had to lead a double life. During the day I could dress Grace Kelly or Cary Grant and at night I could go home and turn it all off."

Today's fashions make her eyes flash and her nails tap. "I'm upset about reviving the '40s, that's one thing for sure."

"All this retro stuff is stupid. If you can't think up something new, get out of the business. If you have to go to the mini or all this space-age stuff, why don't you just bring back the toga and go naked except for that?"

"I'm not a freakish designer — leave it to the two or three extroverts in Paris who are getting all the press right now. I'm more interested in a person looking well-dressed than showing off."

Proper appliance care pays off

Your refrigerator uses more energy in one year than any other of your major electrical household appliances. In fact, you probably pay more to operate and maintain your refrigerator during its lifetime than you do when buying it.

Proper use and care of appliances prolongs life, ensure top performance and most important, saves energy because well-running appliances use less electricity.

Here are some suggestions we think will help you save electricity and money when using your refrigerator and freezer:

Kay's kitchen korner

BY KAY TAYLOR

"Kay's Kitchen Korner" was most pleased to receive two timely recipes this past week from Mrs. Madeline Poulin of Waterloo. She tells us in her letter that she usually makes both these recipes at Christmas Holiday time as they are a little different from the usual fruit cake and cookies. The first is for:

CHERRY BALLS
30 maraschino cherries (drained)
1/2 cup butter
1 1/2 cups icing sugar
1 1/2 cups shredded coconut

No quick answers for Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The population of Canada as of April was 23,655,800. Slightly more than half were female, slightly more than one million were between 60 and 65, and about 5.6 million were married women.

There are 135 retired public servants receiving pensions of less than $20 a month.

It costs $73.08 a household a year to provide letter carrier service in cities and $32.74 in rural areas.

And Dr. Roger Peregault, president of the Canadian Livestock Feed Board, receives a salary of between $38,300 and $52,100 a year. These are some government answers to question placed on the Commons order paper by MPs.

Almost every day at the end of the regular question period David Kilgour (Edmonton-Strathcona), parliamentary secretary to Privy Council President Walter Baker, rises to say the government is providing answers to a number of questions.

MPs think up questions faster than he can provide answers. There were about 650 questions on the order paper last week and there are 850 this week. They deal with just about everything, profits of Crown corporations, costs of Loto Canada, activities of the RCMP among a host of other government servants, spending in various constituencies.

SPENDS THOUSANDS

The government spends thousands of dollars a year to provide the answers. Kilgour said in an interview he is willing to seek a response to any question, if it does not cost an arm and a leg.

The previous Liberal government also said that but refused information on certain things, such as spending on the prime minister's residence at 24 Sussex Drive, or the cost of plane trips by ministers.

Tom Cossitt, Ontario Conservative who has conducted a vendetta against former prime minister Pierre Trudeau through questions about spending, is getting answers he was refused for years.

F-15 fighters face grounding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force says almost 100 of its most advanced fighter planes will be grounded by next summer due to persistent problems with the engine that powers them.

The F-100 engine in F-15 and F-16 fighters has been plagued for several years with problems such as stalling in flight, turbine failures and the need for more maintenance than was expected, the U.S. Air Force has disclosed.

The situation has reached the point "where it appears to have a potentially serious impact on the readiness of the air force fighter aircraft," said Senator Howard Cannon (Dem. Nev.), who presided over a Senate armed services committee hearing on the engine Tuesday.

Correction of those deficiencies will cost more than $1.1 billion, Cannon said. The Pentagon has spent $4.4 billion to develop and purchase 1,708 of the engines and eventually will spend $15 billion to buy and operate more than 3,500 F-100s in its aircraft.

Non-Quebec farm owners: Ryan misses debate

The riding of Argenteuil, which Ryan represents, "is one of the ridings most ravaged by the owning of land by outsiders, where in 1975 more than 27,000 acres belonged to non-residents," Garon complained.

Liberal member Jean-Noel Lavoie replied that Ryan was busy.

Parti Quebecois member

Guy Chevette harangued the former Liberal government for not taking action in protecting Quebec farmland. He said that 94,000 acres in the riding of Pontiac and another 17,000 in Temiscamingue, both in western Quebec, belonged to non-residents.

"How do you think we can establish in this corner of the country (province) an attractive agriculture policy when so much land doesn't belong to us, but belongs to individuals who are not even subject to the basic laws of Quebec," Chevette asked.

Non-Quebec residents who owned arable land here were foreigners "who were waiting, of course, the opportune moment to speculate all they can with this land," he charged.

Independent member Bill Shaw said anyone should be able to buy land in Quebec, and said the law would "tarnish Quebec's image as being part of the free world."

Movement thrives in Quebec

Co-ops offered loans

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's thriving co-operative movement has a new tool to help finance expansion — a joint government-co-operative venture unique in Canada.

The Societe de Developpement Co-operatif (Co-operative Development Corp.), in operation for less than a year, already has made loan offers to 32 co-ops worth a total of $2 million.

Recipients of loans so far include a co-operative garage in Quebec City, a co-op store in Beauceville, a co-operative rabbit abattoir in St. Michel-de-Bellechasse and a co-operatively-owned telephone company in Valcourt.

The idea for the development corporation goes back to the early 1970s, when representatives of Quebec's co-operative movement were on a mission to France and saw a similar organization in operation, says Pierre Laflamme, director of research and development.

The provincial government studied the issue and recommended action, but it was not until after the election of the Parti Quebecois that legislation was passed setting up the new venture.

The corporation is run by a board of 11 members, six from the co-operative movement and five named directly by the government.

The idea is to provide co-operatives, especially newly-established ones, with accessible sources of finance, says Laflamme.

The province's powerful credit union movement and its well-organized agricultural co-ops have no trouble raising money, but the same cannot be said for new co-ops and for those engaged in retailing.

In the past, these fledgling operations approached their local credit unions for loans, but these requests often caused difficulties.

"The credit unions have an obligation to compete with the banks and they weren't able to go too far when it came to risk capital," says Laflamme.

"A small credit union couldn't pay for a financial analysis or for a study by architects or engineers costing $2,000 when the loan was only for $8,000."

The corporation, on the other hand, is geared to analysing the financial situation of a co-op and giving technical advice.

Co-ops borrowing from the corporation generally pay eight per cent for their loans, several percentage points below conventional rates.

The corporation's funds come from within the co-operative movement and from the government in the form of advances. The government advances the money at an interest rate of three per cent per annum repayable over 15 years.

In its first year of operation, the corporation had $1 million of risk capital at its disposal, 60 per cent from the province and 40 per cent from the co-operative movement, including credit unions, insurance firms and trust companies.

Last June, the PQ government decided to up its contribution to $5 million a year for the next five years.

The corporation has three areas which it considers priorities: consumer co-ops, forestry co-ops and housing co-ops.

Until now, 60 per cent of the loans have gone to consumer co-ops, a move which coincides with an expansion of the Cooprix chain of supermarkets throughout the province.

Among the other ventures is $8,000 which went to La Bascule, a co-operative theatre company in Montreal which performs in schools.

"They needed to buy a truck and other equipment to provide improved service," says Laflamme.

The corporation is permitted by law to lend up to $500,000 a year to any single co-op. So far, the average loan is about $50,000.

About 10 decisions a month are made on whether to OK a loan request.

To assure commercial viability, the corporation insists on recipients going to traditional sources for mortgages before coming to the government. In addition, there must be financial participation by the co-op members.

Sore feet after trek...

MONTREAL (CP) — Sore feet, new friends and more than $800 for charity — that's what two Canadian soldiers have to show for their 560-kilometre march from Toronto.

Cpl. Yves Lessard of Montreal and machinist Brian Davy of Calgary strode into Montreal on Tuesday, feeling more like hobbling, but proud of their 10-day march which used up their vacation time.

Next to arriving, the two agree that the people they met on the road provided their fondest memories.

There also were some bad moments. Davy's legs seized up on the second day and he had to return to Toronto.

But late in the third day he was back with a truck, which they used as a support vehicle for the rest of the trip.

"One of us would take the truck and drive about five miles up the road," Lessard said. "The other had the pack and the task of catching up. We each averaged about 20 to 25 miles a day."

More opposed to metrics

MONTREAL (CP) — A Gallup poll indicates that more Canadians — 52 per cent — disagree with the conversion to the metric system than did in 1977 — 49 per cent.

Opposition comes mainly from Canadians over 50, who were 67 per cent against, compared with those 18 to 29, who were 57 per cent for.

It also notes that the higher the level of education the respondent had, the more positively he or she regards the metric system.

Spill wouldn't harm fish?

BOSTON (AP) — A biologist from the American Petroleum Institute says an oil spill on Georges Bank fishing grounds off the Massachusetts coast will not harm the fishing industry.

Keith Hay, conservation liaison for the institute, said "oil is a natural element, not foreign to the marine element."

"I think probably there is no segment of the energy field so filled with distortion of facts as the effects of oil and oil products on the fishing industry — except possibly the nuclear field."

Banks report profit

MONTREAL (CP) — Bank of Montreal reported Tuesday after-tax balance of revenue for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, was $228.7 million, an increase of $35.2 million or 18.2 per cent over the previous year.

Total assets reached $38.2 billion on Oct. 31, an increase of $6.1 billion, or 19 per cent over the same date last year, and 4.6 per cent over the end of the previous quarter.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada reported Tuesday that its profit for the year ended Oct. 31, rose 16 per cent to $270.7 million, or $7.40 a share, from $233.9 million, or $6.39 a share, last year.

Profit for the fourth quarter increased 11 per cent to $84.1 million, or $2.30 a share, from $76 million, or $2.08 a share, last year.

decided to jump to six spades and hope that something really good would result.

East came through with a double. He didn't really know what was going on, but he did hold the king of clubs in back of North's original club bid.

West was pretty sure that East had something in clubs for his double but West had never bid his beautiful diamond suit. He led the king of diamonds.

South ruffed in dummy, led one spade to his hand and led a heart to dummy's king and East's ace. East led his last diamond to force dummy to use up another trump, but night had fallen for the defense. South discarded a club on the queen of hearts, then played the ace of clubs, ruffed a club, got to dummy with a trump, ruffed another club to clear the suit, led his last trump to dummy's king and made the rest of the tricks with clubs.

Oh, yes! As East pointed out, a club lead would have beaten the slam.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In a rubber bridge game with strong players there is apt to be a lot of jockeying for position in the bidding.

West wanted to get his partner to play a heart contract at as low a level as possible. North also hoped to let South become the declarer in spades.

Then, after West had persisted to five hearts, North

Quebec down Beavers

By GUS HAIG
SHERBROOKE — Quebec Remparts defeated the Sherbrooke Beavers 6-5 last night in perhaps the dulllest game of the season thus far at the Palais des Sports. However, to live things up for the media, Beavers coach Ghislain Delage vented his frustrations in the post game interview.

"The people of Sherbrooke do not accept losers," he raged. "Our team has no heart at all, right down the line. We had 25 shots on goal so we weren't exactly skating."

The Sherbrooke coach was particularly upset that the hometown Beavers did not knock the smaller Quebec team around more often.

"After the start of the game, I sent out my biggest players in order to hit. I don't think they threw one single check," he complained.

What the Beavers and Remparts did do in the first period was score a bundle of goals (six) between them. The Quebec line of Patrice Masse, Stephane Lessard and Daniel Rioux were a pesky thorn in the Beavers side all night. They accounted for four of Quebec's six markers. Castors' Rejean Cloutier, just back from a five-game suspension, played brilliantly for Sherbrooke, almost single-handedly keeping the Beavers in the game. After one, it was tied at three.

Quebec needed just 31 seconds to untie the game in the second. At this point, goalie Corrado Micalet was lifted in favor of newcomer Jean-Francois Crompt and the ex-Laval netminder responded with some fine saves. The rest of the game came to life and the Beavers, on goals by Louis Begin and Serge Boisvert led 5-4 after two.

The third period was easily the dulllest period in recent memory. Quebec finally solved Crompt as Rioux and Guy Riel did the sniping. The befuddled and spiritless Beavers merely went through the motions and the results were predictable.

All this was merely a prelude to Delage's fireworks afterward. "The fans in this town deserve better than what the team is giving them," he said. "We had better shape up and fast or else."

BEAVERS BANTER...
Alan Haworth, who along with Cloutier returned to action last night, had a goal and an assist. His presence in the lineup robbed Normand Aubin of a great deal of playing time. Aubin was very ineffective on the rare occasions he did play. The Beavers have just acquired Sean McKenna from Montreal. McKenna was a first round choice for the Juniors two years ago. In return, Sherbrooke gave Montreal a third round draft choice next year. The Beavers will host Trois-Rivieres, complete with their fiery coach Michel Bergeron, tomorrow night.

The Draveurs took a 3-0 lead at the end of the first period and proceeded to add to their margin in the final 40 minutes as Laval, last in the LeBel Division, were an easy prey.

Christian Tanguay scored the only other goal for Trois-Rivieres, while Danny Girard replied with the only goal for Laval.

In action tonight, Verdun Maple Leafs visit Chicoutimi Saguenens and Cornwall Royals play host to Hull Olympiques.

ETHL roundup

LENNOXVILLE (ME) — There was an upset and a near-upset in Eastern Townships Hockey League action last Sunday. Though the standings remain virtually unchanged, it appears the remainder of the season will be close.

Hodge Auto rallied to eke out a 4-3 win over the Raiders as they scored two goals 16 seconds apart in the final period to record the win. Gary Doherty scored twice for Hodge, while Chris Mitchell and Dave Grey added others. Scoring for the Raiders were Mario Rodrigue (two) and Mario Thiverge. There were 12 minor penalties and four powerplay goals in the contest.

Meanwhile, the Lumber Kings recorded their second straight win, defeating Waterville 7-2. Melvin Nadeau had two goals and two assists to lead the Kings to their second win of the season. Neil Roberts added a goal and three assists. Other Kings' goals came from Brian Trussler, David Bradley, Alan Bradley and Peter Turpin. Pierre Prevost and Alain Pare replied for Waterville. The referee handed out 12 minors and one misconduct penalty.

In this Sunday's action, Hodge Auto plays Waterville and the Lumber Kings take on the Raiders.

Stanstead edges MVR in HS hockey

STANSTEAD (ME) — John Bushnell scored with just 2:07 remaining in the final period to help Stanstead Raiders win 6-4 over Massey-Vanier Regional High School yesterday. Luc Lacaille, who netted four goals, added an insurance goal in the dying moments. Barry Moss tallied the other Stanstead marker.

In high school basketball action, Massey-Vanier took two from Stanstead — the varsity team won 49-41 while the junior varsity won 79-19.

NBA: Hawks out-defense Blazers

The way Atlanta Hawks' second team is playing these days, coach Hubie Brown might consider making it his first.

"Our second unit, just like last night, brought us back with an outstanding defensive effort," Brown said Wednesday night after a 106-99 National Basketball Association victory over Portland Trail Blazers. "It's so beautiful to see Charlie Criss, that little rascal, open up the way he did. He's making the big splash for us."

Elsewhere in the NBA, Philadelphia 76ers defeated Washington Bullets 120-102. New Jersey Nets beat Detroit Pistons 98-89. Boston Celtics turned back Denver Nuggets 119-97. Milwaukee Bucks whipped Indiana Pacers 87-79. Houston Rockets edged Cleveland Cavaliers 113-111. San Diego Clippers stopped Golden State Warriors 114-108 and Seattle SuperSonics beat Phoenix Suns 127-116.

Petes to represent Canada

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League have resolved their financial problems and will represent Canada at the World Junior Hockey Championship in Helsinki, Dec. 28 to Jan. 2.

Murray Costello, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Wednesday the Memorial Cup champion Petes would be able to add seven players from other teams in the league, and will leave for Finland Dec. 23.

O.J. named NFL player-of-the-decade

NEW YORK (AP) — O. J. Simpson, who rushed for a record 2,003 yards in 1973, was named the top player of the 1970s and joined Franco Harris at running back on the National Football League Team of the Decade announced today by Pro Football Monthly.

Wilson to replace Wilkinson

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals announced Wednesday that they have relieved coach Bud Wilkinson of his duties effective immediately, to be replaced by assistant operations director Larry Wilson.

Wilkinson, who became a legend in the 1940s and 1950s at Oklahoma, had guided St. Louis for 29 games. Bidwill, in explaining his action, said, "As often mentioned, my intention has been to await the end of the season before fully evaluating and making decisions concerning the future of the team."

West Germans dominate soccer

West German clubs continued their triumphant march in the UEFA Cup Wednesday when all five took first-leg leads and stand poised to dominate the quarter-finals after the third-round reverse legs are played in two weeks.

Rockies beat Islanders

Goalies' goal not enough

New York Islanders' Billy Smith became the first goaltender in National Hockey League history to be credited with a goal but he would have much rather seen the Islanders take two points Wednesday night.

Smith's name goes into the record books but the points go to the lowly Colorado Rockies, who defeated the struggling Islanders 7-4.

Early in the third period, when the Rockies pulled goalie Bill McKenzie for a sixth attacker and the Islanders skating short-handed on a delayed penalty, Colorado's Rob Ramage sent an errant pass sailing the length of the ice into his team's vacant net.

Smith was credited with the goal because he was the last Islander to touch the puck, having blocked a shot before Ramage's pass.

"All you could do was just laugh," said Colorado coach Don Cherry. "It was great for the crowd but it's hard on the coach's old ticker."

The goal was first credited to New York defenceman

Dave Lewis but the officials gave it to Smith after they viewed the videotape of the play following the game. They ruled that Smith was the last Islanders player to touch the puck, making a save, before Ramage's errant pass.

GOAL ENDS DROUGHT
Smith's goal ended a goalless drought for goaltenders that stretched 12 wins, six ties and 60 losses that first year.

But it's been a steady progression up the league ladder since the team's struggling years. Last season, the Islanders won 51 games and finished with more points than any other team in the NHL.

This season, however, the Islanders have six wins, four ties and 10 losses after one-through some 62 years — 17,266 games including playoffs.

"This is a highlight, but it was so badly damaged by the way we played," Smith said. "It's nice for me, but we played so bad as a team I didn't even have a drink to celebrate."

Smith has been with the club since it entered the NHL for the 1972-73 season. The blue, white and orange jerseys of the Islanders do not exactly cause opponents to tremble — the record was quarter of the schedule. At this point last year, they were 13-3-3.

Ron Delorme led the Rockies Wednesday night with two goals, with Trevor Johansen, Rene Robert, Lucien DeBlois, Randy Pierce and Wilf Paiement adding one each. Denis Potvin, Lorne Henning and David Langevin also scored for the Islanders.

POTVIN EJECTED
Potvin was ejected with 10 minutes remaining in the final period for being the

Injuries plague Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP) — Injuries continue to plague Montreal Canadiens as they head into the most hectic part of the National Hockey League season.

Centre Doug Risebrough, injured on Oct. 28, continues to have pains in his left knee, and his return to the lineup is on a day-to-day basis.

Left winger Bob Gainey, who reinjured his left foot last Sunday night in Boston, is uncertain when he will return to the lineup.

"I haven't skated since I've been back in Montreal," he said. "The doctor told me there is no further damage done."

"I'm going to skate on Friday and see what the reaction is. After that, we'll decide how we're going to proceed."

Gainey, who missed several games after injuring his foot in a game against Minnesota North Stars on Nov. 1, returned to the lineup against Boston Bruins last Saturday but was unable to play in Boston on Sunday night.

Meanwhile, right winger Mark Napier, who suffered a pulled muscle in his right leg against the Bruins on Sunday, expects to return to the lineup tonight when Montreal plays host to St. Louis Blues. Right winger Mario Tremblay, whose sore right knee prevented him from playing against Detroit Red Wings last Tuesday, may also play.

Left winger Yvon Lambert, however, recovering from back problems, is a doubtful starter against the Blues, who stunned Montreal by gaining a 3-3 win at the Forum on Nov. 10.

Coach Bernie Geoffrion will likely use Richard Sevigny in goal against St. Louis. Sevigny yielded just one goal when he replaced Michel Larocque in the net with the Canadiens trailing 4-0 after the first period against Detroit.

Boxer's ring death to be investigated

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York State Athletic Commission is continuing its investigation into the death of Willie Classen, who suffered a brain injury in a fight at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum last week.

Classen died Wednesday night in Bellevue Hospital. Former world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, a member of the state boxing commission, was with the boxer until one hour before his death.

The Puerto Rican boxer was knocked out in the 10th round of his bout against unbeaten Wilfred Scypion of Houston last Friday night.

Peter Scheetman, evening administrator at Bellevue Hospital, said Classen died at 7:42 p.m. EST. The cause of death was believed to be hemorrhaging in the brain.

Jack Prenderville, commission chairman, issued a statement Wednesday night, saying:

"A part of all of us goes at a moment such as this and words are never adequate. We pray for the Classen family and we will do all we possibly can to assist them in this time of need."

"We are firmly resolved to do all in our power to prevent a tragedy such as this from ever happening again."

Classen, a 159-pounder, had taken an eight-count with 15 seconds remaining in the ninth round last Friday. When the bell sounded to start the 10th and final round the 29-year-old remained on his stool.

Classen's handlers, including manager Marco Minuto, lifted him from the seat and pushed him out of his corner, a manoeuvre that is not uncommon. Classen never raised his hands and was battered by Scypion, 156, with a left and two hard rights.

Draveurs 9, Voisins 1

Pierre Aubry scored four goals while Marc Roy and Rene Labbe added two goals apiece to pace Trois-Rivieres Draveurs to a 9-1 romp over Laval Voisins in one of two Quebec Major Junior Hockey League games Wednesday night.

ELAND

TAUROTRAGUS III 32

Elands are the largest antelopes in Africa, standing nearly 2 m. high at the shoulder, & a fully grown male may weigh over 700 kg. Both sexes have heavy, spirally twisted horns of up to 1 m. in length. Elands form large herds, often in association with zebras or giraffes, possibly in the hope of warding off lions.

Hunted extensively for their hide & flesh, and at times trained to work in harness, eland populations have been greatly reduced.
