Dyeing and Finishing Rayon And Synthetic Fabrics

Huntingdon Rotary Club Hears Talk by L. E. Moody of Valleyfield

Two new members were enrolled in the Huntingdon Rotary Club on Monday, viz Mayor Leo Cappiello and Mr. Norbert Bourgon.

The speaker at the Rotary meeting was Mr. Leon E. Moody, manager of the Duplan Dyeing Co. Limited, Valleyfield. Mr. Moody's talk dealt with the dyeing and finishing of rayon and other synthetic fabrics which to some extent at least are relieving the heavy demand on cottons and woollens in some lines of business.

Mr. Moody is an American citizen and in the course of his five years lapse in Canada will become a Canadian citizen. His opening remarks make pleasing reading for we Canadians and further indicate to us that Canada can well afford to do a much better selling job on Canada to our American cousins.

Mr. Moody's address, which we commend to our readers follows:

August 27, 1951.

OBSERVATIONS OF AN AMERICAN LANDED IMMIGRANT

Mr. President:

Before telling you something of Rayon Dyeing and Finishing, I would like to give you a few observations of a "Landed Immigrant" which is my official status here in Canada.

Many average Americans think of Canada as a foreign country with methods and standards of business and living as quite different than theirs. I must confess I had some misgivings myself as to how well I would be received and fit into what to me was a different country and a different language.

I want to tell you I have been very pleasantly surprised and delighted with the cordiality, hospitality and friendliness of the Canadian people. Many times in the last year people have gone out of their way to be friendly and helpful to me. Several times this last winter I have been stuck with my car on the ice or in a snow bank, only to have other cars stop or people come over to help me out. This helpfulness is missing in the larger cities in the U.S. You Canadians are much more courteous to us Americans than we are to you in the U.S. We notice and appreciate the way you display the U.S. flag at public gatherings. I like your system of Government, particularly your Federal Government, your financial and foreign policies. Sure you have your rascals in government, but believe me we have much bigger ones in the States. I like the way you do not tolerate any "Red" interference.

Obviously I must have been sold on the future of Canada or I wouldn't have uprooted my family to come here. I feel that Canada is good for my children, I want them to learn what it is to be a part of a minority. Everything comes much too easy for most kids in the States. If they don't have television, they feel left out. When they go to High School they want a car the same as their neighbour. Children don't appreciate the value of a dollar and the dignity of work in the States. I feel that in Canada they will get a much better consideration of these values. You are more serious, work harder and have much less recreation. Your family life is much more stable than the Americans and your divorce rate is much, much lower.

Can't say I enjoy your higher taxes, the price of cars, gasoline, cigarettes, etc., but perhaps the answer to your higher taxes is that you pay as you go and in the States we continue to increase the National debt for our great grand children to pay.

Enough of what I think of Canada. I presume I was asked to speak because some of you were interested in knowing something of Duplan Dyeing Co. Ltd., and the synthetic fiber dyeing and finishing business.

Duplan Dyeing Co., Ltd., is a part of Duplan of Canada Co. Ltd., which is a wholly owned subsidiary of Duplan Corporation in the States. In the States we have 10 mills doing weaving and throwing of synthetic rayon and mixed fabrics. In Canada we have our own weaving mill of some 800 looms at Montmagny; our executive and Sales Offices at Mayor Street in Montreal, and we do most of the dyeing and finishing of the rayon and synthetic fiber fabrics at Valleyfield.

We are a small (150 employees), typical plain rayon dyeing and finishing plant. When Duplan took over last year, the plant had been allowed to run down and we have now embarked on a 3 year streamlining and enlarging program, involving additional equipment, installation of new methods and systems, as well as practically a new staff to make a complete new line of quality controlled synthetic rayon fabrics.

A few typical fabrics that are dyed and finished at Duplan at present include:

Sports Wear
Slacks and Shirtings
Suitings
Outer Wear
Rainwear
Lingerie
Robe Material
Sail Cloths
Draperies
Government fabrics
Dress fabrics

We have here on display a few typical fabrics and also a combination top and raincoat I have been wearing. This coat is made from all synthetic fibers and finished with resin water repellent finish. For the benefit of those who do not know the operations of a dyeing and finishing plant I will enumerate them briefly.

We receive the goods from our weaving plant at Montmagny in the so-called greige state. The length of the pieces are from 80-100 yards and width 42" to 60". The weave is open, the feel undesirable, it is uncolored, often fuzzy and full of undesirable starch or sizing necessary for weaving.

We assemble the pieces in proper units of 8 to 50 pieces per shade, sew the pieces together and wind them on a roll.

Next we desize and scour as necessary to remove dirt and starches and weaving assistants, so that we have a clean absorbent piece of goods for dyeing. During this scouring operation the fabric shrinks in width and length, the weave closes up and it begins to take on the characteristics of the finished piece. This scouring is often done at the boil and with soap, alkali and detergents and may take from a few minutes to several hours at a time.

The dyeing may be done in the rope form or the open width. Proper selection of dyestuffs and methods of application is a very important part of our business. Dyeing is generally carried out at temperature of 160°F to the boil from 4 to 12 hours continuous running.

Today the finisher has come into his own, with the use of new synthetic resin and water repellent finishes he can alter the final appearance and feel of the fabric as much as the dyer. Application of resin finishes, while not difficult, does require proper equipment and lots of technical control over application. We work with both emulsions, dispersions and solutions of a very large family of synthetic resins. We have to carefully control pH and curing or setting temperature, sometimes they are as high as 450°F.

Next comes final inspection, testing and shipping.

An important part of our operation is our laboratory which not only tests all dyestuffs and finishes we buy, but also tests the finished fabrics for water repellency, shrinkage control, wash fastness, sunlight fastness, fastness to perspiration, urine, rubbing, spotting, gas fading and other special tests for fabrics with special end uses.

Here are some of the reasons why we believe in the future of synthetic fibers and fabrics here in Canada.

For many centuries man depended on cotton, wool and silk to weave

Huntingdon Town Tax Rate Now 15 Mills

The town council of Huntingdon held a special meeting on Monday evening, at the County Building for the purpose of setting a rate of tax for the ensuing year. Considerable discussion took place regarding the financial position of the town and the extra cost to provide the various services now demanded. It was pointed out that all employees in the various depts. had been given increases in wages and salaries and the cost of the material which the town has to buy has also increased. In consideration of this fact it was impossible to carry on at same tax rate as has been in force over the past number of years.

For some years now the tax rate has remained the same despite the increasing costs. In the past however, this has been offset somewhat on account of the large amount of new building that has been done. This boom in the building has dwindled considerably in the past year and practically no new property has come into being that could be looked upon as helping to increase the revenue. The town therefore finds itself this year in the position of just about covering its expenses for the year to date and the loans it has had to make and there being no surplus with which to carry on. This is on the basis of the tax rate that has been set in past years.

It was therefore decided quite reluctantly, that the tax rate this year would have to be increased by 3 mills, bringing the rate to 15 mills instead of 12 mills as in the past. This means a rate of $1.50 in every hundred dollars valuation or $15.00 per thousand of valuation. The above rate was struck and the Bye-law read and passed making it law.

Come to Huntingdon Fair

Friday and Saturday Of This Week

Patrons of the Huntingdon Fair are going to witness many changes in the arrangements and plans of the fair this year. For instance the first thing that will be noticed is that the buildings have all been painted white and this presents a much improved appearance. Many of the buildings have also undergone a certain amount of repair.

A first class program of entertainment has been arranged for the evenings of Friday, August 31st and Saturday, September 1st, and Mr. John G. Rennie, M.L.A. will open the Fair on Friday evening, while Mayor Leo Cappiello will give an address of welcome at the evening performance on Saturday. Featured on Friday evening will be a parade along Chateauguay Street to the Fair Grounds and boys and girls are asked to dress up in clown costumes for this occasion and prizes will be awarded to the best of them. The band will lead the parade and there will be several attractions at the fair included to call attention to the fair. A grand cattle parade will be held at the Fair Grounds on Saturday afternoon at 1.30 and of course there will be the horse races during that afternoon.

Arrangements have been made with CKSF, Cornwall, for a broadcast on Saturday afternoon from the grounds, if the use of a line can be obtained.

The Ted's Broadway Shows midway is already on the grounds with some of its equipment and the balance will be here by Thursday night and in time for Friday's opening. There will be rides and shows and fun for all both during the day and at night. The price of admission this year includes a seat on the grandstand or at the race track. The evening shows will take place in front of the grandstand and under the lights and there will be a change for each evening. The Huntingdon Citizens' Band will give a concert each evening and on Saturday afternoon. Friday night's show will conclude with a monster dance. There will be knife throwing acts, juggling, and acrobats during the evening shows. The pony races should provide plenty of excitement also and prizes are being given each evening to the winners. The tug-o-war should be another event that everyone will want to see and a cup goes to the winning team.

It certainly looks as if this year's fair is really going to be something different and it will be well for everyone to reserve this weekend for a stay in Huntingdon. You will still have lots of time to enjoy the Labour Day holiday into the bargain.

There are plenty of entries for the fair and the exhibits should be well worth seeing. Don't forget this year the Holstein Breeders are holding a "Black and White" Day. This is in addition to the many other cattle exhibits that will be on hand to be judged.

The Huntingdon Women's Institute are serving meals both days of Huntingdon Fair and would greatly appreciate any outside help in baking or serving in the dining hall. Proceeds to go to the Barrie Memorial Hospital.

HONORED RESIDENT

RUSSELL, Man., (CP)—Russell's oldest resident, Mrs. Margaret Robb, has just celebrated her 91st birthday. Native of Scotland, she was married at Bowsman, Man., in 1911. Her husband, a carpenter, died in 1947.

HERE'S A FISHERMAN WHO GETS WHAT HE WANTS

Dr. Stanton Smaill of Montreal, who is holidaying with his wife at his summer cottage at Port Lewis, is apparently a fisherman of no mean ability. After being away during the day on Sunday, he returned in the evening and said to his wife that he was going out to catch a muskie. Out he went, first he caught a pike and a few minutes later landed the muskie seen above. It weighed 16 lbs. We do not know if his dog Sultan, is asking how he did it, or begging for a morsel for his supper, but he certainly has something on his mind. There are some other fishermen who would like to learn Stanton's technique of prediction and realization as muskie fishing has been very poor this season.

Premier Duplessis Names New Valleyfield Bridge After Bishop Langlois

Special Ceremony Held in Valleyfield on Saturday

When the bridge across the St. Lawrence River from Valleyfield to Coteau Landing is completed, it will be known as the Bishop Langlois Bridge.

Premier Maurice L. Duplessis named the project at a meeting where His Excellency, Bishop J. A. Langlois of the diocese of Valleyfield thanked the government for its work.

On Saturday, the city of Salaberry-de-Valleyfield had the honor of a visit from Prime Minister Maurice Duplessis. On his arrival in Valleyfield, Mr. Duplessis was warmly welcomed at the Town Hall by His Honour Mayor O. E. Caza, accompanied by religious and lay personalities.

After the reception the group set out for the site where the work for the Valleyfield-Coteau bridge has been started. Thousands of persons gathered there to see and hear the Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec.

The ceremony opened with the benediction and prayer for the good work in connection with the bridge, by His Exc. Mgr. Joseph Alfred Langlois, bishop of the diocese of Valleyfield. The Hon. Mr. Duplessis gave the bridge the name of "Bishop Langlois." "We could not mark in a better way," he said, "the devotedness of the bishop towards his flock during 50 years of sacrificial life, 25 years of which had been as bishop."

His Exc. Mgr. Langlois said the bridge that will have his name "is a work of love, charity and benevolence. It is a symbol of the union that should reign among all those who live together. We are grateful to Mr. Duplessis and his government who have brought about this important enterprise. We see in this bridge a source of progress and prosperity." Mgr. Langlois recalled that this bridge was the realization of a dream which the population of Valleyfield has had for the past 50 years. He hoped the Prime Minister would understand his actual sentiments for the benefit this bridge will be to this area.

There was cause for congratulation that the same premier who had graced Valleyfield with its fine park had made possible the new bridge which would unite the people on both banks of the river, Bishop Langlois said.

The Honorable Mr. Duplessis underlined that Valleyfield had everything to succeed, it has a healthy and ingenious population and is only two steps from one of the largest waterways in the world. "There was an inconvenience," he said, "the same St. Lawrence that gives you the riches, did not let you profit by it. That is the reason why we are building the bridge that will unite you in progress and prosperity. The human charity, the help of one for another are the great pillars of all real prosperity."

The Prime Minister declared that the work will be done well and with speed. He emphasized the collaboration given by the federal minister of Public Works, the Hon. Mr. Fournier, who at the request of Mr. Duplessis, obtained the necessary legislation to enable the Province of Quebec to erect a bridge over a navigable river.

Other speakers heard from were the M.L.A.'s from Beauharnois and Vaudreuil-Soulanges, Mr. Edgar Hebert and Notary J. E. Jeannotte, Mr. J. G. Rennie of Huntingdon, Mr. Arthur Laberge of Chateauguay, the Mayor of Valleyfield, Dr. O. E. Caza. Mr. Horace Viau acted as master of ceremonies.

Mr. Rennie said that with the bridge it would mean that a man would now be able to drive to Ontario without having to go through the United States or via Montreal. He spoke of the work of the government in agriculture, education, health and rural electrification.

Huntingdon Has "Indian" Tree Near Fair Ground

Visitors to Huntingdon Fair will notice this tree near the Dining Hall and the bridge on Fairview Road, as they proceed on their way to the entrance to the Fair Grounds. As stated in another story in this issue, the peculiar shape of one of the limbs is attributed to Indian Signs. Indian history relates that the Red Men used to tie a branch of a young tree groundward so that it would point toward water, usually at the junction of streams. The creek at this point is one that later joins up with the Chateauguay River. The story referred to relates to a similar tree in the Malone, N.Y., area. Thus Huntingdon can lay claim to having such a tree.

Ormstown Band Sponsoring Labor Day Sports Program

If you are looking for something to do on Labour Day, next Monday, remember that the Ormstown Band is sponsoring the 19th Annual Softball Tournament at Ormstown Fair Grounds on that day. This has always provided a great source of entertainment for a large number of people and those attending in past years have reported having had a very good day's fun.

It is especially significant this year on account of the fact that this year the Ormstown Band is sponsoring the event and are anxious to please in order that the financial returns will be such as to assist them in their work of providing music at various public engagements. They are using this means to raise funds. The members of this organization therefore hope that the public will get out and support them on this occasion. In return they will try to give them a full day of fun and entertainment for the Labour Day Holiday.

In the Yorkshire classes Hooker Brothers won honors for the Junior Champion boar, Senior Champion boar and Grand Champion boar, Senior Champion sow, Grand Champion sow, and first for senior herd and second for Junior herd. Hooker Bros. won firsts for three export bacon hogs shown alive also in the dressed classes, as well as eight firsts and several other placings.

Valleyfield Fair Proves Successful

Rain Marred First Two Days — Finally Cleared

The Valleyfield Fair Sponsored by the Rotary Club of Valleyfield, was not well favoured by the weather during the first days. It was unfortunate because the exhibits in the arena and on the grounds were very well displayed and much pains had been taken.

The Rotarians worked hard to make the fair a success and their efforts did not go unrewarded. Because of the rain many activities, such as races, had to be carried over until Saturday and Sunday. The last two days really brought a big crowd to the fair grounds, the people fully appreciated the wonderful exhibits, the fine races and the very interesting show of the Hamid Review.

The midway had many new shows as did the Hamid Review from New York.

The exhibits were much more numerous and interesting than in past years. The farm exhibits were in great number for the 1951 Valleyfield Fair and prizes to a total of $2,000 were awarded to the winning exhibitors.

Large numbers of people from surrounding districts attended and all report a most excellent Fair and splendid entertainment.

The Valleyfield Rotarians are to be congratulated both on the success of the Fair and for the tremendous effort they put forth to give the people such a fine outing.

Plant No. 2 Beauharnois Turned Over to Hydro Commissioners

Premier Duplessis Inaugurates Second Section to Double H.P. Output

It was a proud moment for Beauharnois on Saturday, when Premier Maurice Duplessis and Hon. John S. Bourque, Minister of Hydraulic Resources, officially turned over a new huge electric power plant to Quebec Hydro Commissioners.

The people of this city have been watching the progress being made in the harnessing of the waters of the St. Lawrence River so that a huge supply of electrical energy would be available. The waters of the St. Lawrence are those between Lake St. Francis and Lake St. Louis. Plant No. 1 was inaugurated several years ago, the new one is Plant No. 2 and immediate work is to be started on Plant No. 3 which will complete the entire project.

The ceremony on Saturday marked the two-third culmination of a dream and a plan started by men of vision in the middle 20's. There has been little deviation of the plans drafted 25 years ago and few corrections had to be made on the original estimates. Completion of the plan is now in the hands of the Government through the Quebec Hydro Commission.

Church dignitaries who brought the Province's blessings on the man-conceived and man-built colossal undertaking were present, as well as prominent business and industry representatives, when Premier Duplessis officially turned over the plant to the Hydro Commissioners. Plant No. 2 built at a cost nearing $75,000,000, will almost double the capacity of Plant No. 1 by raising the present total output to 1,400,000 h.p.

In an address the premier stressed the position of Quebec in the field of hydro-electric power.

On a per capita basis, the premier declared—quoting figures—Quebec's mark of 1,580 h.p. per 1,000 of population was twice that of Canada and ten times that of the United States. And, he added, while distribution of power in Quebec is wider, its cost is also much less.

Speaking of the ingenuity of man, the premier called for a greater heritage to be handed down than that which the people of this generation have themselves inherited.

"I am not a socialist," he said, "far from it — as I consider socialism the ante-chamber of Communism—"

He concluded with a plea for horse sense, as well as horsepower.

Hon. J. S. Bourque, Minister of Lands, Forests and Hydro Resources, pointed out that during the war people feared too much power was being produced, wondering how it would be absorbed when the conflict ceased—yet even since the war it has been found necessary to increase production to greater extent.

Renewed Interest

O' renewed interest today is the 15-mile long canal dug in clay and solid rock from Lake St. Francis to Lake St. Louis which is intended to be part of the projected St. Lawrence seaway project. The Beauharnois Canal is already navigable to ocean-going vessels on a width of 600 feet throughout its entire length. The canal is 3,300 feet wide. Only a lock system at the Beauharnois entrance is necessary to give access to Lake St. Francis to ocean-type vessels. At present the Soulanges Canal on the north shore of the St. Lawrence assures navigation to lakeboats.

Huge Excavations Made

Approximately 150,000,000 cubic yards of solid rock, marine and boulder clay was moved, mostly by hydraulic dredges, to make way for the canal.

An additional 230,000,000 cubic yards would have to be moved to make the canal navigable in its entire width with a depth of 27 feet.

Complete transformation of a whole area, hundreds of square miles, was the result of the digging of the Beauharnois canal. An island was hewn by man; railroads and highway systems disappeared to be replaced by new ones and the courses of a giant river and a stream diverted.

Montreal and big industries adjacent to the plant receive power from Beauharnois' 43 generators while Ontario also benefits from a considerable amount of its output.

Despite Weather Conditions Malone Fair One of Best

International Day Draws Many Canadians in Attendance

Inclement weather interrupted the race programme at the 101st Annual Franklin County Fair for the first time in the past six annual fairs. Clearing skies and a forecast of dry weather brought a rush of youngsters to the fair grounds on Monday when the Franklin County Agricultural Society opened the gates. Several hundred children were on the grounds in observance of Children's Day.

On Tuesday, despite the rain, the farmers from Franklin, St. Lawrence and Clinton Counties completed the judging and showing of Ayrshire and Guernsey cattle. The 4-H Clubs exhibited their wares on the same day. In the vegetable hall entrance the Club's main show was exhibited in one of the most complete and attractive displays on the grounds. Crafts and hobbies featuring woodwork filled another department with choice food stuffs. The bakery department has several items of blue ribbon class and in the clothing department over 25 entries were on display. The designers and makers of articles, modeled their own handiwork.

On Tuesday night a huge wind made some of the vaudeville acts hazardous but the show went on in spite of the handicap.

When Wednesday's rain let up a large crowd attended the night fair and witnessed the George A. Hamid Revue and several acts of vaudeville. Those who saw the show heartily praised its high entertainment value. During the show Micky Sullivan and his band provided the music for the vaudeville, besides giving a concert before the show.

Horses taken to the Malone Fair by Raymond Hamilton, Athelstan, took quite a number of first and second prizes in the various classes.

Thursday's International Day was the biggest day of the fair week. The weather was bright but cool and the double-header race program combined to attract a crowd estimated at well over 10,000 people into the grounds during the day.

The grandstand was a complete sell-out for both the afternoon and evening programme and well before

New Telephone Directory Contains 5,000 New And Changed Listings

Indicative of the continuing growth of Huntingdon and other communities in this area is the large increase in the number of telephone directories being mailed to subscribers this week.

Approximately 17,283 new directories will be required for homes and business establishments, according to M. R. Gregoire, Bell Telephone manager, as compared with 15,178 when the last directory was issued. The new book has 90 alphabetical pages, 28 more than last year's directory.

Containing more than 5,000 new and changed listings, the August, 1951, directory is easily distinguishable from last year's green-covered book by its buff cover. A sufficient quantity of the directories has been printed for all present telephone subscribers and for the estimated number of new customers during the next 12 months.

In addition to Huntingdon, the directory also contains listings for subscribers in Valleyfield, Beauharnois, Chateauguay, Franklin Centre, Howick, Ormstown, St. Chrysostome, Ste. Martine, and several other nearby centres.

Because of the many new and changed listings, Mr. Gregoire urged subscribers to check any personal lists of telephone numbers against the numbers listed in the new book and to make any changes that are necessary.

"Looking up the desired number before calling," the manager said, "helps to avoid the possibility of getting wrong numbers and saves time for both the calling and the called parties. 'Information' should be called only when the number you are seeking is not listed in the directory," he added.

One of 50 telephone directories now being published each year by The Bell Telephone Company of Canada for hundreds of centres, both large and small, in its Ontario-Quebec territory, the new book for subscribers here contains helpful information as to the use of the telephone and long distance rates to many out-of-town points. Space is also provided on page one for the listing of emergency numbers.

ROUND BYRE AND RING

By Frank Napier

Not much by way of district Round Byre and Ring news this week. Guess most people were anxiously trying to make the most of the few recent harvesting days we have had. The writer has been too busy with Canada-West Indies Magazine to go out and forage for news. And so all we do know about current local livestock happenings is that Gilbert McMillan spent the last three days with one of the McGee Brothers of South Carolina and that he was leaving either today or yesterday (Tuesday) for Fredericton, N.B., to judge Ayrshires at the joint breeds show.

Jerseys Stole Show

The Jersey cattle men "stole the show" last week at Central Canada (Ottawa) Exhibition. They had forward a total of 173 head from 17 herds. However, two of the largest exhibitors were from outside what might be called the Ottawa district. Why the large entry of Jerseys, when men of other breeds, of Ayrshires especially, were claiming that the help and weather situation prevented them from bringing out their herds? The answer to that query would seem to us to be in two parts. First the enthusiastic spirit of Jersey people which has reached a very high level these days. Secondly the fact that this year's President of Ottawa Exhibition, Dr. W. A. Armstrong, is himself an ardent Jersey breeder. Nice way to honour him, as they did, by making a record Jersey showing this year.

The Champions

The senior and grand champion male was Knoll Farm Nobly Born Blond, owned by Godfrey S. Pettit, Forks of Credit, Ont., the furthest away exhibitor. The senior and grand champion female was Frasea Matilda Sultanna for W. R. Aylesworth, M.P., Kingston, Ont.

Other Breeds

We were not able to stay over to see the Holstein exhibits but judging from what we saw of them in their stalls they made a very impressive appearance in the ring.

With only 35 head out, the Ayrshire exhibit trailed away behind their Jersey and Holstein rivals. However, between them, S. Wyman MacKechnie & Sons, Wyman, Que., John Bompas & Sons and Miss Ellen Bompas of Bells Corners, Ont., Sorley Bros., Ottawa, put up a nice show.

The senior and grand champion male was Bonnieshade Count Royal, first prize 2 year old, which is jointly owned by S. Wyman MacKechnie & Sons and Mrs. W. H. Coverdale, Le Moines Point Farm, Kingston, Ont. The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was the first prize aged bull, Cherry Bank Royal John, for John Bompas & Sons. This bull, by Cherry Bank Winter Royal, was bred by P. D. MacArthur & Son, Howick, Que. The recently imported Laigh Tarbeg Raider was junior champion male for S. Wyman MacKechnie & Sons. The senior and grand champion female was Bonnieshade Connie for S. Wyman MacKechnie & Sons. This cow is a paternal sister to the grand champion male.

Ormstown Swine Winners

Hooker Bros., of Ormstown, Que., were considerable winners in the Yorkshire Swine classes at Central Canada Exhibition. They won first on boars, 2 years and over, 6 and under 12 months, the junior, senior and grand championships for males. Letter To The Editor

Dewittville, Que.
August 26, 1951

To the Editor,
Dear Sir—

We are approaching another term of school, when all parents are interested in preparing their 6 year olds, especially, to enter Grade 1. In this Province, the parents of children whose birthdays fall due in the last half of the year, meet up with a non understandable disappointment and a Rule enforced by the Department of Education. The children who become 6 in the Fall of the year, are forced to be held over until they are practically 7. By not placing all 6 year olds on an equal footing, whether born in January or December of the same year, the Department has created a bad situation. The 7 year olds held over, hinder or crowd out a new group of the next Fall 6 year olds, who could, and should be entering Grade 1. This rule causes the country children to lose a term of school, of their basic coaching, also the 7 year olds are larger and taller than the 6 year olds. Is such a rule as this promoting education? Some of the excuses that have been reported to me, Quote—

A-For the country children only. What does the Department think it is putting over on the country people?

B-Space. Can space not be made as of yore for all pupils concerned? Yes.

C-The modern teacher finds from 30-35 pupils the limit. Why deprive children when an extra teacher can be hired?

D-That the children born in the last half of a year are harder to teach. I feel sure, there will be found as many foggy brained children born in the first 6 months of a year as the last 6. A capable, practical teacher can penetrate the fog of any child by perseverance, demonstration, regardless of time of year born. It has been done before and can be done again.

Is this the only province in this vast Dominion that is operating and executing such a scheme over minors, in the education field of basic training? Why inflict such on 6 year old innocent children born in the Fall, because some sort of a bug determined the Department to do so? Should it not be up to all Departments of Education to see that the country children and students be educated on an equal footing with the city children? Justice, please.

Very truly,
Mrs. Pearl McCartney.

Dyeing and Finishing

the necessary fabrics of clothing and apparel. During the last thirty years man made synthetic fibers have supplemented and displaced the older fibers which are dependent on soil and other climatic conditions. This is particularly true in the last ten years when Nylon and other rayon fibers have made silk practically non-existent.

Last year Canadians consumed over 200 million lbs. of Cotton, all of which must be imported as none is raised in Canada. 80 million lbs. of wool was also consumed. There is currently a world shortage of wool and this will probably continue for many years. Last year 62 million lbs. of rayon was manufactured in Canada. This represents a 20% increase over the previous year. When you consider that cotton sells for around .45c per lb. and wool near $1.60! You can see that rayon at .40-.50c and Nylon at $1.75 can easily compete on price basis even with cotton. As man-made fibers increase and present plant expansions are paid for they will become even cheaper.

Rayon The Record Breaker

In 1940, rayon supplied 9.9% of the nation's textile requirements; cotton supplied 80.9%; wool, 8.4%; silk, .8%.

In 1950, ten years later the percentages read, rayon, 19.7%; cotton 68.7%; wool, 4.3%; other man-made fibers, 1%.

Per capita consumption of all textile fibers rose in the same ten years from 37 pounds to 45.5 pounds. Consumption of rayon increased 154%, while all other textile fibers increased by only 11%.

All synthetic fiber plants are in process of substantial expansion. For the first time last year imports of synthetics took a decided drop of about 20% in spite of 20% increase in consumption. So you can see Canada is fast becoming self sufficient in the synthetic rayon field.

Newer synthetic fiber in addition to viscose rayon, Acetate and Nylon which are well known to you include:

Orlon —
Daycron
Chemstrand
Vicrara
Saran
Plaston
Spun Glass

The future potentials are unknown, but I venture to predict a fiber like Orlon or Daycron will become greater than Nylon in next 10 years. It is the nearest synthetic fiber to wool — great bulk, strength and crease resistant.

I trust this talk has been of some interest to you, I will be glad to answer any questions you may have after the meeting and I want to extend a cordial invitation to all of you to visit Duplan Dyeing Co. Ltd., at any time.

Editorial Notes...

Probably One of the Largest Power Projects in World

ON Saturday, Premier Duplessis officially inaugurated Plant No. 2, at the Beauharnois Power Project. This $75,000,000 plant will almost double the horse-power output of plant No. 1, raising the present total production to 1,400,000 h.p. Plans call for the almost immediate start on the work for Plant No. 3, which will exhaust the total potentiality of the canalized waters of the river set at 2,000,000 h.p. It has been said that this project, when completed, will be the largest power project in the world.

We doubt very much if the people in this Beauharnois District truly appreciate the significance of this huge power project. The worth of the great St. Lawrence to the industrial expansion that can be brought about by harnessing the waters of this river so that electrical energy can be applied, is also probably overlooked. Nevertheless, this does belong to Quebec and incidentally to our District of Beauharnois. At one time traffic could pass by the No. 1 Plant and it was possible to hear the throbbing of the powerful motors as they generated the electric power that keeps thousands of persons employed in the numerous plants throughout this part of Quebec and a great portion of Ontario. The crossing is now made at a distance farther from the plant and the canal is crossed by a new suspension bridge which is all part of the new project.

Who knows but what this particular district is not on the threshold of gigantic expansion as a result of the increased power that will be driven forth to supply the electrical energy outlets. Already Beauharnois and Valleyfield have made great strides towards expansion. New manufacturing plants have been established and enlarged, new housing accommodation has come about as a result. This in turn has meant greater business for the towns themselves and thus more new businesses have opened up to supply the people. This may be said to be one phase of expansion, but we do not believe that the extent of the expansion is limited to just this alone. The power that will be supplied by this great Beauharnois project, is not just for Beauharnois alone. It will be sent out in its volume over the power lines to numerous points in this part of Quebec and over thousands of miles as well as to Ontario. Not only has it potentialities within the immediate area, but as the great power lines carry this energy over the miles, it will be possible to create new manufacturing concerns and new outlets for farms and homes and businesses. As this goes on many small areas at present may become the great towns and cities of the future. We have seen vast cities build up in the country of our neighbour to the south, we might well witness this same growth within our own province and Canada. With the opening up and discovery of new resources in this province, there is greater need for electrical energy to develop these resources. This power plant will do much toward providing that energy. Truly we are still in the infancy of the possibilities of development that may be the outcome of this huge power project that is being built through the forces of nature and with the help of men's brains and ingenuity.

Interfering in Things Which Do Not Concern

FOR some time now there have been reports from various districts in Quebec of where certain religious bodies have been persecuted because their beliefs did not coincide with those of another belief. In some cases they have been arrested, in others they have been jostled around or interfered with, in some others they have been told to get out of town and stay out.

Under the present state of democracy in Canada all persons are supposed to be able to enjoy the freedom of religion. That is to say they can pursue the course of religion which they have chosen to believe in without interference. In some cases a religous group has held a meeting at a street corner and the leader and some of the followers have been arrested on a charge of blocking traffic. In some cases the members of the body have distributed literature to houses and persons and have been arrested on a charge in this connection. In most cases the interference has come from members of the Roman Catholic Faith or those influenced by that faith.

Last week it was announced that the postmaster at Ste. Germaine Boule, Que., and a priest, Father Alfred Roy, would have charges laid against them of delaying the mail. Wilfrid Begin, the former postmaster, has been relieved of his post and admitted turning over the mail to Father Roy because he had told him it contained sermons written by Pastor Barnhart which would give people wrong ideas. The Priest had burned the mail. Pastor Barnhart, who is a Baptist minister, complained that letters he had addressed to persons at Ste. Germaine had not been delivered. The Post Office Dept. investigated and ordered the postmaster relieved of his duties and stated that prosecutions will likely follow. Archbishop Paul Emile Leger issued a critical statement on that matter, in which he said: "As spiritual leader of his diocese, he disapproves of all measures of violence, as well as those that are contrary to our constitutional freedoms in carrying out the apostolate."

We highly disapprove of these various interferences with other religious bodies, but this latter interference and distruction of mail matter of another religious body, is about the last act that could be passed by without comment.

It is high time that the dignitaries of the Catholic Church made it known to their followers that all people have a right to believe in whatever type of religion they choose. That they will not tolerate interference of any kind with persons of other faiths and that they look with great disfavour on practices of this nature. As long as each side is obeying the law of the land, then it is not up to anyone, no matter whatever belief he may have, to interfere with those of a different belief. If the law is not being upheld, then the police or other authorities should see that the proper steps are taken. If you do not choose to have anything to do with a certain belief or religious following, then they should be ignored. It is not the right and proper thing to interfere or try to disrupt any religious body from carrying out what that body believes in. If people believe in their religious faith, they are not going to be persuaded against it. If the Catholic Church has taught what is right and proper, then it has nothing to fear from what some other religious body may say about it, or against it.

Any church, no matter what its belief or teachings, should remain with its beliefs and not interfere with matters out of its sphere. It is supposed to teach the difference between right and wrong and if this is correctly interpreted, then the postmaster would have refused to have been a party to the crime he admitted. The priest may have attempted to have tried him, but he should never have condoned the act, much less have assisted in it.

Will We Ever Fathom The Communist Mind?

WE have come to recognize that everything of a Communistic nature is tied up with Russia and we are inclined to think of all such as Russian. To a certain extent this is true, the Bolshevic idea originated in Russia and later became more commonly known as Communistic. It is only natural then that we should believe Communism and Russia as one and the same. Yet Communism has invaded more than one country and taken into its folds more than members of one nationality. It is thus that we find in Korea an enemy that is of two nationalities — North Korean and Chinese — yet both are alluded to as Communists.

Once Russia was allied to us as a partner in the war against Hitler. We trusted her as far as we could and we helped her by sending equipment and supplies so that she could fight against an invader who was a common enemy. We met with her officials and tried to find a common ground of understanding as to the best way to combat and extinguish this enemy. Never once was there perfect agreement and always there was confusion as to the actual issues and their final outcome.

We have since become aware that the Russians are terribly hard to understand and to know why they pursue a certain course that always seems to lead nowhere. In the Korean Cease-fire talks we have again come up against the wall of complexity that surrounds all dealings with Communists. We cannot say these talks have been with the Russians, for they have not, but they might as well have been for the pattern followed is identical.

On the other hand we hear of Stalin trying to offer the dove of peace to the world and in his speeches telling the world that Russia only seeks peace. Peace with no compromise seems to be the only peace possible. Such a peace would mean that all people, all countries of the world would be subjugated to Russia to do with as and how she pleased. Under such conditions it would have to be peace, for there would be no opportunity for anyone to make war.

In this Korean Cease-fire matter, were we to give the Communists all that they care to demand and to want nothing for ourselves, there would be no difficulty whatever. There would be peace to that extent that the fighting would be over in Korea. How can we act for peace under such circumstances? The dove is held in front of us, while a knife is held at our back. We say give us peace and immediately we would be stabbed to death. The whole thing is trickery and we must be as cunning as those who apply it. Every approach, every angle of a communist must be analysed before we give dissent or assent.

A child of Thomas Dupuis of Fort Covington, 2½ years old, was drowned in the Salmon River, which runs immediately back of his residence, on the 9th inst.

The weather the past week has been remarkable fine, and most favourable for potato lifting and cutting corn. In this vicinity and on the clay generally corn is next to no crop. On the gravel it is turning out a middling yield. Potatoes are not doing so well as looked for, and wherever the land was wet, are very poor with a good deal of rot. In this neighbourhood they will not be average. The land is on the dry side for the plow, but pushing farmers have it going. The experience of the past season should cause a more strenuous effort to get a good breadth of Fall plowing done.

A considerable quantity of peas has gone forward to Port Lewis, though hardly enough to make it pay keeping a barge waiting so long. Yesterday 93 cents per bushel was paid. The farmers complain of the want of facilities in shipping the grain, the bags having to be carried some distance. The Plank road is getting badly cut up near McNab's by the traffic.

October 18

At the auction sale of Mr. James Marshall, Trout River, on Friday, 11 cows were sold for $370.00, averaging $33.63 each.

James Switzer of Elgin has bought the dwelling house of T. K. Milne in this village. Reported price, $1600. Mr. Wm. Sangster, who bought the lot from Mrs. Barrett that lies south of it railway siding, had the front of it laid into lots, 50 by 100 feet. He has sold two of them, those next to the track, to Mr. Smith of Franklin, County, for $350.00 each. In the deed a clause is inserted forbidding for all time the sale of intoxicating drink on them.

November 1

On Thursday after Mr. Crevier sold 50 acres in Dundee, belonging to the estate of the late Peter Fraser. It was bought in by Mr. Somerville to cover a claim he had, and was sold by him to Samuel Miller for $1300.

On Friday, Mr. D. M. Macpherson sold 15,000 boxes of cheese of September and October made at a shade under 11¾ cents per pound. The purchasers were Messrs. A. A. Ayer and Co.

A large number of turkeys, though not as many as in past years, have gone from this country to New England for the Thanksgiving market. The price paid in this village was 8 cents per pound live weight.

November 29

A project has been started in this village to start an Organ Factory with a capital of $30,000 in $100 shares. The list has been prepared and already an encouraging amount of stock has been taken. The name is to be the "Huntingdon Organ Co."

December 20

Geo. McClatchie has nearly completed a new saw-mill, situated on the Chateauguay between Athelstan and Powerscourt. Besides sawing, he will bore out logs, his business in the pump line requiring greater facilities. Mr. Prevost has arranged to add a run of stones for flouring and another for feed to his mill.

L. R. Baker was re-elected Mayor of Beauharnois last week by acclamation and A. Lefebvre, G. Montpetit and Mr. Boyer chosen councillors also by acclamation.

That very rare event a golden wedding was celebrated in New Ireland on Thursday evening. The happy couple who have lived to see the 50th anniversary of their marriage were Mr. and Mrs. John Reid. Some two score of friends assembled to do honor to the occasion and after a sumptuous repast a most pleasant evening was spent in social converse enlivened by songs. Several appropriate presentations were made. As Mr. and Mrs. Reid married young, have just passed the three score and ten, and are in the enjoyment of good health, their numerous well-wishers trust they may live to celebrate their 60th or diamond wedding.

At the sale of the bush land on the 4th range of Jamestown on Saturday, belonging to Mr. James Brodie, there was keen competition and the whole was disposed of in six lots. The highest price for one lot was $52.50 per acre and the average for the whole was $43. Considering that the bush is of an ordinary description and valuable mainly for cordwood, the price paid was extraordinary.

The building of the new school at Marshall's, Trout River, was sold yesterday to Thomas Clyde for $690.

The mill yard of Mr. Anderson's on the Gore is well stocked with logs, over 10,000 being on hand. It is the only yard in the district that can boast of being full.

February 28

The Auction Sale of James Mack of Athelstan, realized $2,000. The stock considering that they were ordinary, went very high. The cows, 29 in number and including a nuber of old ones, averaged $35.51 each. Mr. Mack left immediately for Illinois where he has bought a farm.

At the sale of George Biggar, 10 cows sold for $30. At the sale of P. Sullivan, Newfoundout, cows sold from $30. to $40.

Two young men in St. Anicet who have been in the habit of robbing hen roosts to supply the means of gratifying their thirst for fire water, were about to be arrested last week for taking some 15 hens from Widow Paradis, but managed to get the matter settled by returning an equal number. One of the parties is very respectably connected.

Thomas and Hugh Macquire cut 27 cords of wood in two, and part in three in less than 4½ hours at the Trout River cheese factory, with a circular saw. The wood was mixed. Can anyone beat that?

Should The Church Be Pacifist?

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

Judging by the mass "Peace" demonstrations of Communist Youth held in East Berlin, one might imagine that Stalin and the Soviet leaders who organized the display were pacifists. According to reports, the demonstrators held aloft gigantic portraits of Stalin and other Communist demigods, mingled with large plaster-cast doves as symbols of peace. The young people had been well drilled for the occasion and had memorized slogans of "Friendship" which they shouted in chorus, interspersed with cries of hatred for the Americans.

These demonstrations and the world-wide organized "peace" movement have impressed many sincere Christians. Such a movement, they say, should be welcomed by the churches, whose gospel is "Peace on earth, good will toward men." The answer to that is in the last four words, "good will toward men." There can be no peace anywhere without good will. Domestic, social, national or international peace depends entirely upon good relationships between individuals, social organizations and nations. And we must judge the sincerity of the Soviet "peace" campaign by the nature of the will behind it.

All their slogans of "friendship" and Communist ideals cannot dispose of the fact of the iron curtain and of the disruptive and hate-promoting activities of Soviet agents in every country in the world. They may hold aloft their plaster-cast doves as symbols of their peaceful intentions, but we cannot forget that the Soviet Government has shot down every real dove of peace that has been flown toward Moscow. We cannot forget that for the last six years the Soviet delegates to the United Nations have used the councils of that body for broadcasting vehement propaganda of ill-will, and have thwarted every attempt to fulfil the main purpose which was to unite all the nations in a pact for world peace.

Since writing the foregoing, I have read the report of Anthony Eden's speech at Chicago, and President Truman's "Eight Points" to prove the Soviet's good faith. Mr. Eden said: "The machinery (of the U.N.) which we devised may not have been perfect, but I know that it was and still is capable of achieving its purpose, given the WILL to work it". Mr. Truman called upon the Soviet to "Stop flouting the authority of the U.N. Cease supporting armed aggression in defiance of the U. N. Cease supporting subversive movements in other countries. Join in good faith in the earnest effort to find means of reducing armaments and controlling atomic energy in the interests of peace."

Those are not the words of "warmongers". They are merely a restatement of the specific objectives of the United Nations when it was established six years ago. The good faith and the good will of the Western nations were plainly shown in the demobilization of all their military forces after the war. Britain, the United States and Canada immediately scrapped their mighty war machinery and closed down the enormous munition industries which they had built up to win the war, not only for themselves, but for all other allied countries, including Russia.

In the face of these recent historical facts, how can anyone doubt the good will and peaceful intentions of the leaders of the Western powers, much less accuse them of "warmongering"? We were all sick and tired of war, and we went to extreme lengths of good will and patience to maintain the friendliest relations with Soviet Russia. We have repeatedly turned the other cheek to the smiter, only to have it smitten again. What should be the Christian Church's attitude toward this situation? Should a Christian be a pacifist in the face of conspiracy and military aggression? That question was decisively answered in a letter to the United Church Observer. The letter was signed C.H.H., the initials of Mr. Hale, the former editor of The Orillia Packet, and it concludes:

"It was the Master Himself who said: 'When a strong man armed keepeth his palace his goods are in peace'. And in defending Himself before Pilate, He said: 'If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight'. The statesmen of the democracies are dealing with the kingdoms of this world."

The Week At Ottawa...

OTTAWA -(CP)- It's pretty hard calling the shot in the Korean war these days. Trying to guess when all the Canadian troops will be able to come back home is out of the question. Nevertheless, there are good prospects that 1,000 men now serving in the Canadian army in Korea will be home by Christmas.

The army last week made a couple of announcements about troop movements.

First of all, starting this month, Korean veterans will begin coming home and be replaced by men from Canada's para-troop formation. The first battle-tired soldiers to come back will be men of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Under this "rotation" plan, a soldier will qualify for return home after a year abroad, less if his staying involves more than one winter. The bulk of the 25th Brigade now in Korea will winter there, but the Patricias arrived in Korea first, last December.

At the same time the army opened the door for another 600 Korean veterans to return to Canada. It announced it wanted that number of battle-hardened soldiers to return from Korea to help build a second paratroop formation — Canada now has only one. This formation, according to the army, is to come into being for Canadian defence "within a few months."

The Korean veterans for the paratroop formation are to be obtained on a volunteer basis and officers predicted the response would be immediate, spontaneous and sufficient.

Paratroop Training

Those who volunteer for paratroop training must pass physical and re-enlist for three years in the regular army. Then they will be flown home at a rate of about 50 a week, given 30 days leave and report to Rivers, Man., for paratroop training.

The aim, says the army, is to have them trained as paratroopers by the time their own units come back from Korea next year "and assume an operational role in Canada."

Thus with paratrooper volunteers and soldiers on "rotation" leave, there should be well over 1,000 home by Christmas. The bulk of the 25th Brigade, however, will probably spend this winter in Korea because they didn't get there until spring. They will come home as soon as possible next year. The men will move by companies.

To replace those Patricias who come home the army will send two of the four rifle companies, headquarters company and certain other troops from the 1st (23rd Brigade) Battalion of the Patricias. Later it will send the support company of the 1st Battalion and rifle company from the 3rd (Replacement Group) Battalion at Wainwright, Alta.

This movement is expected to start some time in September or early October.

Trade Deficit

It's been some time since Canada could proudly boast of trade surpluses — that it exported goods with more dollar value than the goods it imported.

In the first six months of last year we were $5,000,000 on the wrong side of the world trade ledger. It was termed unusual.

However, the Bureau of Statistics last week reported the deficit has snowballed to $340,000,000 in the first half of 1951. At the same time, the Bureau was unable to report on rapidly expanding, almost ballooning, Canadian foreign trade. The country's total trade for the first six months of this year reached a record $3,865,000,000, up almost one billion dollars over the corresponding period of 1950.

Imports — mostly from the United States — rose to an all-time high of $2,102,400,000 from $1,453,000 in 1950. Exports did not match this pace, climbing only $300,000,000 to a postwar record of $1,762,000,000.

An upsurge in purchases from the United States with an extremely weak countering balance in sales was given as the main reason for the world trade deficit. Also blamed was a weak, meandering trade with Britain, resulting in a sharp slump in trade surpluses. Further, there was a continuing demand in Canada for raw materials and finished goods partly to help Canada become a more powerful industrial country.

Grain Transport

Last week a special government committee set up to handle western grain movements awaited word from the Canadian Wheat Board on the amount of wheat it wanted moved.

The committee is attempting to solve a tie-up of shipping on the Great Lakes. Western grain authorities have termed "inadequate" the Great Lakes shipping available for an anticipated record 582,000,000 bushel wheat crop.

J. C. Lessard, Deputy Transport Minister, said if the Wheat Board requests a bigger wheat movement than can be handled with transport currently available, the special government committee may take action to divert more ships from priority iron and coal.

Our Periodical Press

Canada needs magazines which will interpret world events, give information and entertainment, and help to bind together the people of this far-flung nation.

Our civilization, and our Canadian culture, are the result of ideas and the communication of ideas from person to person. The magazine is a splendid medium for conveying ideas. Its pages are not filled with "quickies" to be read on the run, but with considered and thoughtful discussions.

One could divide the contents of most magazines into three broad classes: fiction, fact and discussion. The periodical which is published weekly, bi-weekly, monthly, or quarterly is not a purveyor of spot news. It has articles, stories, essays, sketches and editorials. Its function is to elaborate, explain and interpret. Its editorials try to fashion opinion with respect to the contemporary world. Its serious articles provide supplementary or enriching information which enable us to understand news and events. Its fiction entertains us and its advertising informs us. The bound copies of magazines kept by libraries have become an important part of the written record of Canada's growth, culture, and prospects.

We are a critical audience, not easily deluded, and we are not satisfied with colourless writing about vital subjects. Our standards are rising with our education. Magazines have to be alert and enterprising to keep a step ahead of us.

What Magazines Do

Magazines deal with national affairs, thus helping to build up a Canadian point of view; they inspire community enterprises, and they build a social mind. Their pictures showing beautification of parks, streets and houses; their articles on playgrounds, hobbies and clubs; their campaigns for tolerance: all these contribute to the improvement of living everywhere in Canada. Their autobiographical and biographical articles, usually of the inspirational kind, set standards of achievement and of culture.

Politically, too, their influence is strong, though they may be neutral in politics. They have attained their present position in an atmosphere of democracy, free speech and a free press. It is natural that they should be the upholders of the freedom of the individual within the framework of a parliamentary system as free as that of any government on earth.

There are some black sheep in the flock. Damage is done the generally good reputation of magazines by a few which publish irresponsible material or pictures and articles that are immoral.

Communities everywhere in Canada have found it necessary to invoke laws against smutty magazines. These flimsy publications possess no literary or artistic merit. They tend to lower the cultural values of those who read them, and they create inferior standards of morals.

There is a wealth of wholesome periodical literature available, appealing to everyone from small tykes to millionaire tycoons. More than 600 periodicals are distributed regularly by Canadian publishers, including general magazines, women's magazines, trade journals, and weekly, monthly or quarterly publications dealing with the interests of farmers, churches, schools, labour organizations, artists, writers, professional people, and a score of other special classes.

In addition there are some weekly publications in newspaper style which have practically the same kind of reading matter and illustrations as the general magazines. These are not to be despised, because at their low price and with their universality of appeal they make themselves the art, letters and science of the common people.

Women's Magazines

Among the magazines with broad appeal come those generally referred to as "women's". All topics that could conceivably appeal to women are covered, and they carry in addition much material that interests men and children. People's appetite for these magazines is insatiable.

Women's magazines, addressing themselves particularly to Mrs. Housewife, are built on the idea of service to women and to the home.

There is no gainsaying the fact that the general content of women's magazines, articles and pictures, has had a great influence on the culture and living standard of the nation, and on its health and good taste, and in addition there have been campaigns and crusades in women's magazines that have influenced Canada's homes and communities for good.

As a market-place, women's magazines are pre-eminent. They are studied and considered intensively, not merely read. Even those readers who cannot afford gowns, styles and beauty preparations designed for the well-to-do are helped in their choice of less expensive substitutes.

Farm Periodicals

Farm periodicals have a long and honourable record. In pioneer days farming called for industry and perseverance, and the lore of agriculture was passed down from father to son. Nowadays, science and the need for skilled management combine to make farming an industry that requires constant study by its people.

Particular problems beset the farmer today. The Saskatchewan grain grower cannot sow an extra acre without taking into consideration what his opposite numbers are doing in Argentina and the United States. The depression, the war, and the disinclination of young people to stay on farms have all conspired to add to the difficulty of farming. These problems have been taken up by the farm journals.

Besides providing practical farm knowledge and explaining new methods, these magazines lead in the effort to bring about improvements in the rural way of life. They give world-wide information of interest to farmers, and their interpretation of world happenings in terms of farm interest makes them an important force in moulding public opinion.

Business and Trade Papers

Business, merchandising, industrial and technical papers are regarded by executives as essential tools. They are worth many times their cost to men who study them and take advantage of the information they provide. No "true experience" story in a trade paper is printed with the thought that you can go and do exactly likewise with precisely the same success. But many a man has increased his business and boosted his assets by taking someone else's bright idea and giving it an original twist before applying it to his own needs.

These merchandising and technical periodicals are current textbooks for the segments of business they serve. They present up-to-date "how to do it" material authoritatively. They crusade constantly for higher standards of business ethics and production performance. They provide a meeting place in print for discussion of methods and processes. They supply an advertising medium directed precisely at the specialized market they serve.

Of more than 200 business, trade and technical papers, at least twelve have flourished in Canada for over 60 years, and newly found wants are met from time to time by new ones.

Other Special Magazines

Specialized in a different way are the scholarly, or "highbrow", magazines. With comparatively little circulation, they give expression to the wisdom of scholars and philosophers, and remain periodicals for the elect and the select. But they do add in one important way to the culture of Canada. It is not enough for the scholarly magazine to report that a condition exists, and it does not content itself with praising or condemning: the scholarly magazine must inquire into the why, the how, and the effect of the new condition. It must ascertain the function of the event in the scheme of life, and it seeks to appraise the effects in terms of Canada's future.

In the same class, so far as circulation and accomplishment are concerned, are the "little magazines". They perform a service not given by any other kind of publication: the opportunity for new writers with innovations of style or material, to get into print.

Some of these little magazines are snobbish. Some delight in parading their eccentricities. Often they are annoying to the lay reader. But they have a record of reputable accomplishment.

Three investigators looked into these little magazines in 1946, and reported, according to James Playsted Wood in his "Magazines in the United States", that these unsung periodicals had discovered and sponsored about 80 per cent of the important novelists, poets and critics who began to write after 1912.

What do People Want?

It is most difficult to ascertain what people want in a magazine. Most surveys have been made by commercial interests, and do not contribute to social inferences.

Probably the reasons for having magazines in the house would surprise us. Some are there because they were given us for Christmas; others because we just wouldn't be without the inspirations their contents give us. Some may be tastefully disposed on end tables to impress visitors; others are on bedside tables for the restful pre-sleep hour. And now they have started to appeal through perfume; the American Museum of Natural History recently printed a magazine with specially prepared ink which gave off a piney odour.

Editors' opinions about readers' wants differ widely. All are trying to provide a general menu that will satisfy the desires and tastes of a multitude of subscribers. If circulation increases, the editor may take it as a sign that the magazine is on the right track; if it falls, the readers are not satisfied, and it is time for a shakeup.

That is, for the general magazine, stating a problem in too easy terms. The general magazine is noted for the variety of its contents, as well as the quality and quantity, so the editor must ask: what class of item is not pleasing readers? Is the factual reporting not competent? Is the fiction section in a rut? Are the departments living up to their service objective? Does the editorial section lag behind public opinion, or is it too far ahead? Is the magazine generally too soothing, or too startling?

These are just some of the headaches of the magazine editor. In addition he has the inescapable danger of being caught on a limb by swiftly changing conditions. The magazine goes to press weeks or even months ahead of its date. Its articles must anticipate what is likely to happen, and they must be written so that they appear as if written on the day of publication.

About Fiction and Science

Fiction is a magazine standby. It takes the reader out of the familiar and sometimes drab actualities of life into more romantic and alluring scenes. In this fiction world the good end happily and the bad have a rough time; all women are beautiful and all men handsome.

Fiction is important socially. It would be difficult for any of us to say how many of our beliefs, opinions and sentiments and how much of our general knowledge we have imbibed from fiction. Our whole approach to human relationships and our appraisals of our fellow men may be based on impressions formed in reading novels.

A great deal of the fiction that has appeared in general and women's magazines in Canada has been noteworthy for its excellence.

Many articles in general magazines have to do with science. We are a science-minded people, conscious of the significant and sometimes startling changes that are being wrought in our lives by scientific advance. But just what is science? Is it the record of achievement, or does it include prediction?

It is said of Jules Verne that he was incensed at the American public because it insisted on classing his stories as tales of adventure. He desired them to be recognized as prophetic stories based on scientific facts, as, indeed, they were. This may justify much that is printed in current magazines, fantastic though it may appear. After all, the absurdities of the comic strips in past years are today's commonplace gadgets.

The magazine can give a discovery background, colour and significance. Trained writers who are specialists in the handling of science news explain the event, and industrialists, medical men, engineers and academic people tell what it will mean in everyday life.

It has become the fashion to classify the pages of magazines under headings that refer to the reader's professional or leisure-time interests. Usually each department has its own specially qualified editor, a person who realizes that the power of his page lies more securely behind the print than in it. The most scrupulous attention is paid to correspondence.

It is this personal service that gives many magazines and farm journals their outstanding hold on their readers. Hundreds of persons who have tried to diagnose the appeal of a magazine from its printed pages have remained baffled by the remarkable confidence displayed by readers. The secret of these magazines is that they help personally thousands of readers; they are not inanimate printed sheets, but vital forces in the lives of people.

Writing for Magazines

It is easier to write in some ages than in others. In a dark and ignorant period, moderate knowledge will entitle its possessor to a considerable share of fame, but to be distinguished in an age like the present requires striking qualities of mind and exceptional knowledge.

Nearly everyone has a finger that just itches to write something that will appear in print. Some have a rage for saying something when they have nothing significant to say, but it must be recognized, on the other hand, that many persons who could contribute acceptably to our knowledge and thinking refrain from doing so.

If you are a moderately-well educated person with something significant seeking expression your first task is research for facts. You can find the needed detail in thousands of magazines and books available in school, church, public and private libraries.

Having gathered the information, relate it and your philosophy about it to the needs and interests of those you hope will form your audience. Don't try to copy anybody's style; read widely and let your own style develop. Say what you have to say just as simply as you can, without being long-winded.

Then send your manuscript to the magazine you choose. There is no more powerful lever to open the magazine door than a manuscript that says something of interest to readers of that magazine. No influence is needed to bring it to attention of the editor: he is looking for it.

Payment for magazine articles has been steadily rising in Canada. In twelve months recently the editorial departments of eight leading Canadian magazines spent $581,600 in purchasing material from Canadian authors, writers, artists and photographers. One Toronto publishing house spent a million dollars in 1949 to edit its group of magazines and business papers.

Foreign Competition

Canada is a young country whose domestic magazine press provides a strong nationalizing influence, the mucilage to help our ten provinces to stick together, but we have been deluged with United States periodicals.

We are not an insular people, we are catholic in our taste and broad in our wants. We demand the right to choose the best we can find. These traits make it exceedingly difficult for our magazine press. With a population of only 13 million persons from which to draw subscribers, it must compete in quantity and quality with a press that has a potential audience twelve times as big.

The Brief of the Periodical Press Association presented to the Royal Commission on National Development in the Arts, Letters and Sciences, said this: "So far as Periodical Press Association is concerned, Canadian publishers have no desire to impede the exchange of ideas, the flow of international information and entertainment. They feel they are capable of standing on their own feet, of playing their part in the development of Canadianism. All they have asked at any time is that they should have an even break in their own land with competing publications; that they should, in such matters as excise and other taxes, enjoy precisely the same freedom as that enjoyed by competing imported publications."

Against foreign competition, Canadian magazines are making splendid progress, and their proportion of total magazine sales in their home market has doubled in 20 years.

Magazine Influence

Magazines are looked upon as reflectors of every human interest; it would be well if they were also to a still greater extent dispellers of ignorance and prejudice. They do not need to be crusaders after the style of certain magazines in the United States which earned the term "muckrakers" — although those magazines started movements which society now approves. But Canadian magazines can influence public opinion by the direct discussion of significant public affairs.

They are important, not only as sources of information and entertainment and advertising, but, in a phrase used by Mr. Floyd S. Chalmers in his address as President of the Periodical Press Association last year. "As moulders of the national destiny." He went on to say: "The primary purpose of our Canadian magazines, business papers and farm papers is to increase the efficiency of our people as producers and traders; and to add to the richness and colour of their lives; and above all to promote among our people a spirit of Canadianism."

An institution is only the lengthened shadow of a man, and a magazine is the lengthened shadow of its editor. Great editors have not been obsessed with giving the public "what it wants". They have taken strong, and sometimes daring, ventures; they see in their high post an opportunity to illuminate affairs; they make no bones about being the staunch supporters of every righteous cause and the implacable enemies of things that degrade and corrupt.

Not all that these editors select for publication is of equal worth by any standard of judgment; not all of it has significance in our time or for the future; not always is the social force of the magazine usefully applied. But Canadian magazines do, on the whole, discharge their responsibilities within their means. It is in the national interest to encourage and support them.

We live in two worlds. One is the world of reality, the world of hard economic and political fact. The other is our mental world, in which we paint idealized pictures of the real world, and make decisions on the basis of these pictures.

Our magazines, by bringing together the two worlds for us, can help us achieve more logical thought, arrive at sensible conclusions, and live happier lives.

LEAP OF DEATH IN AN OPEN TOP CONVERTIBLE

Will he make it? This death-defying leap of 80 feet through the air is one of the 25 thrilling acts to be seen at Valleyfield Exhibition Grounds on Sunday, Sept. 2nd, at 8.30 p.m., when the Hollywood Dare Devils perform under the auspices of Valleyfield Baseball Club.

The Leap of Death or Aerial Criss-Cross is presented at Valleyfield, at the Exhibition Grounds at 8.30 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 2nd, under the auspices of the Valleyfield Baseball Club, by the Congress of Hollywood Dare Devils, and is executed by the iron nerved "Buddy" Young, and as his 1951 open-top convertible goes hurtling through space, another open convertible stock model passes directly underneath, and at the wheel is Young's nerveless associate, Tex Saxon. This will be the original attempt to perform this stunt with open convertible cars and for those who have witnessed this chill packed thriller by the Congress of Hollywood Dare Devils in 1950, it will again prove that there is no stunt humanly possible that these iron nerved drivers will not try in their efforts to keep their thrill loving public on their feet and applauding. This spectacular act is a rendezvous with death, and is the closing feature of the Congress of Hollywood Dare Devils show, climaxing a thrill packed production in which 25 individual heart-disturbing acts are presented.

Beauharnois

BEAUHARNOIS — The Ladies' Aid Society and Women's Missionary Society, St. Edward's Presbyterian Church, entertained at Tea for Mrs. J. W. Kilgour who attended her 88th birthday Sunday. Best wishes are extended to Mrs. Kilgour from many friends.

Beauharnois came into its own Saturday when the completion of No. 2 Plant Quebec Hydro was officially recognized. Premier Maurice Duplessis officiated at the opening ceremony, an impressive religious blessing conducted by Bishop Caza gave an added touch of grace to the importance of this significant event in the history of Beauharnois and the Province. A feature article in the Gazette by Tracy S. Ludington and special mention in the Editorial of the same journal added distinction with detail on this rich power expansion development. With an extra 760,000 h.p. to the already flourishing 600,000 h.p. the plant completed will rate a 1,360,000 h.p. The extensiveness of this project is too huge for the ordinary layman to grasp. The tremendous full scale operations in work, time and money towards a final goal of achievement has been a gigantic one which will not be completely fulfilled until 1953. A luncheon was held in the Beauharnois Hotel with many in attendance. Premier Duplessis, Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal, Mayor H. Roy, Bishop Caze, Mr. and Mrs. Max Sauer, George Kingsmill, R. MacGregor and others, many of them Beauharnois men.

The clang of the school bell is being heard all over Canada, as Labour Day draws nearer and the resumption of school looms ahead. An activity in each centre becomes more noticeable as mothers are returning home with family in preparation for school outfits, exercise and text books. The summer was probably disappointing to most as far as weather in its most disagreeable phase nevertheless most of us have returned rested and the weather never seems to hinder the children's enthusiasm throughout their vacation time. Good luck to all you new little pupils in your entry into a most important part of your future. To those already experienced in happy school day connections we wish good progress, good health throughout the terms ahead of you.

Ormstown

St. Paul's United Evening Auxiliary

ORMSTOWN — The monthly meeting of the Young Women's Evening Auxiliary of the United Church took place at the home of Mrs. E. Sault, on Thursday, Aug. 23.

Instead of a regular meeting, however, this affair proved to be very amusing and entertaining. Each lady entered wearing a specially designed chapeau. This spectacular display of headgear consisted of fresh (?) garden vegetables, old lamp shades, pots and pans, strainers, plastic toys, crepe paper, a tea pot and tea bags, buttons and bows. Of course there was a prize for the most original and becoming hat. Irene Hamilton's took the cake. Anne Forrester played the piano for a gay sing-song, Catherine McCormick conducted a most difficult (to us anyway) but informative quiz game, and there was a memory test, too.

Mrs. Sault provided the ladies with delightful fruit salad and there were several kinds of homemade cake. It was a very enjoyable evening for everyone.

Next month's meeting is to be held at McDougall Hall on Friday, September 14, and will be strictly business.

Saturday evening, August 25th, about forty-five ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. William Rice for a miscellaneous shower in honour of Miss Myrtle English's approaching marriage. Miss Shirley Rice and Mrs. Cameron English were joint hostesses for this occasion.

Entering to the Wedding March played by Mrs. E. C. Todd, the bride-to-be was seated in a gaily decorated chair of yellow and white, whereupon Masters Murray English and Albert Rice as the bride and groom, respectively, pulled in a wagon and hamper filled to overflowing with beautiful and useful gifts. When the gifts had been passed around, Myrtle thanked everyone and asked them to visit her in her new home.

After playing several games, delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, whereupon the guests departed for home wishing Myrtle much happiness in the future.

Howick

HOWICK — The Georgetown Y.W.A. held their monthly meeting at Mrs. Wm. Gordon's home, on Aug. 22. The early part of the evening was spent in quilting on a new bedcover. The meeting was opened by the singing of Psalm 36, followed by a Scripture lesson read by Mrs. James Wilson. Mrs. Edwin Brown led the meeting in prayer and Hymn 417 was sung. Nineteen members responded to the roll call with a Bible verse including the word "Trust." A new member Mrs. William Morrison was enrolled and welcomed. Mrs. Robertson who is at present visiting at her mother's home was also a guest of the meeting. Mrs. L. Baskin read the minutes of the last meeting and the supply secretary gave a satisfactory report. Business was discussed and Miss L. Robertson read the excerpts from Miss Lyla Hamilton's diary which gave more accurate information to plan the Y.W.A. Silver Anniversary meeting in October. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Peter Peddie's home on Sept. 19 in the evening. All members are asked to bring a soft toy to the next meeting.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and Food Committee, Mrs. Glenn Whyte, Mrs. Wm. McArthur and Miss Kerr.

It was noted that India has abolished the Liquor Traffic and is demanding total prohibition. Our liquor bill for Canada far exceeds the money spent on education or on food and yet we are sending missionaries to India!

C. N. E. Bank Display Teaches New Family-Financing Plan

Bank of Montreal men and women answer the personal financing and banking questions of visitors to their booth in the Canadian National Exhibition, just opened in Toronto. The first bank display ever set up at the C.N.E., the B of M booth last year attracted more than a quarter-of-a-million visitors and supplied information on Personal Planning to 27,000 of them. More than 5,000 people sat down with the bank's personnel to discuss their financial affairs and banking problems. Since the introduction of Personal Planning at that time, over 100,000 persons have individually sought information on this new money-management system. The experience of many of them indicates its unique effectiveness in meeting the high cost of living.

Planning is Needed To Combat High Living Costs

TORONTO — "A good plan, it is practical and we find it easy to operate." This is what a shipping clerk and his wife, who are fighting the high cost of living with an annual salary of $3,100, told the Bank of Montreal about its new technique of money management, Personal Planning. And that is why the B of M is featuring Personal Planning for a second year at the 1951 Canadian National Exhibition, just opened here.

Several hundred freely volunteered testimonials have been received by the B of M since it introduced Personal Planning last year. A business executive, with an annual income of $7,000, wrote to say, "Mrs. H---. and I have found this to be the most sensible approach to budgeting we have ever come across and have put it into practice successfully for the last few months." A grocery clerk, with an annual salary of $1,800, told the B of M, "My wife and I thought the plan might be too involved to try, but now it's working out fine."

What the average person likes about this unique money-management system, bank officials find, is that it helps him to save despite the high cost of living. And what keeps him personal-planning is that, unlike ordinary budgeting, this system does not bore its users. It is a practical, stimulating idea that can be readily tailored to the particular circumstances and desires of the individual.

At no time since its introduction has there been an indiscriminate hand-out of literature. Personal Planning was presented for the first time at last year's "Ex" when the B of M became the first bank ever to sponsor a C.N.E. booth. At least 250,000 persons stopped to study the displays. Well over 25,000 asked for further information and received Personal Planning booklets. And more than 5,000 sat down with the bank's personnel at the booth, to discuss their domestic financing and banking problems.

SURPRISING DEMAND FOR LITERATURE

At the conclusion of the C.N.E., individual requests started coming in — by mail and across 570-odd B of M office counters throughout the country. Here again the bank observed its rule that individual booklets would be given out 'on request' only. Over 100,000 have been distributed.

The public at large does not often accord budget plans such a degree of approval. Personal Planning, however, seems to have found a new way to success. It first shows how budgeting can be made agreeable, even stimulating. It then explains how the budget can be worked out more easily.

The Personal Planning booth has been set up, as it was last year, in the "Design for Living" section of the Coliseum building. The trained staff in attendance is ready to answer queries on banking and personal financing. And those persons not attending the Exhibition but interested in Personal Planning can obtain any information they wish on this subject from their neighborhood B of M branch.

St-Onge. The children's exhibits were very good. Some fine specimens of carrots, beets and cucumbers were brought, but just a few onions, beans and one sample of corn, which was shown, was good, but the time seemed to have passed for corn and lettuce.

Mrs. St. Onge and Mrs. McLeod were the judges. Prizes were awarded 22 children. Because of the difference in the soil—one part practically clay—and the other loamy, two classes of vegetables were made by the judges, to give each competitor a credit award.

A quilt which had been made of new material purchased from the collection taken at each meeting was sold to a visitor from Montreal, Miss Dean and the amount raised will be used to purchase necessary supplies. The Barrington group have a particularly fine record of work done and a large number of quilts are sent in each year. The work convener understands such supplies were very acceptable when disaster by fire, etc., hit our province.

On Saturday afternoon the Barrington Branch of the Red Cross were hostesses at a shower for Miss Ann Brown whose marriage takes place in the near future. The members met at the home of the Misses Brown of Hemmingford. The guest of honor, greatly surprised, was led to a chair prettily decorated in mauve and yellow. Mrs. Richard Fisher, president of the society, asked Ann to accept an end table and lamp as a token of appreciation from the members, for all the help she had given the Barrington Branch. After a pleasant social hour delicious freshments were served to the ladies by Mrs. Rufus Fisher and Mrs. Derrick, assisted by the Misses S. and M. Brown. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the afternoon and left wishing Ann every happiness in the future.

On Friday evening, Aug. 24, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Grundy, a shower was held in honour of Miss Ann Brown, whose marriage takes place on September 8th. 23 ladies were present. The rooms were decorated in pink and white. The bride-to-be was presented with a large plate glass mirror and other small gifts. Delicious refreshments were served by Miss Laura Grundy, Mrs. Alex. Dewar and Mrs. Allan Fisher. Ann thanked everyone for their lovely gifts and all left wishing her much happiness in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Greig of Ormstown were Sunday, August 19th, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Fisher.

Up to Reds When Cease-Fire Talks Resumed

Gen. Marshall Issues Warning on Sincerity of Soviets Regarding Peace

The United Nations commander in Tokyo, General Matthew Ridgway, has told the Chinese Communists in a blistering note that it's up to them whether the Korea cease-fire negotiations are to be resumed.

The Reds broke off the Kaesong talks last week, charging that a United Nations plane had attacked Kaesong in efforts to "murder" the Red delegates. Ridgway at the week-end said this charge as "so utterly false, so preposterous and so obviously manufactured" that it did not merit a reply.

Ridgway said the next step was up to the Communists, and he gave them a hard choice. His message went to Kim 11 Sung, North Korean premier, and Gen. Pen Teh-Huai, commander of Chinese Red forces in Korea.

It said: "When you are prepared to terminate the suspension of armistice negotiations...I will direct my representatives to meet with yours, with a view to seeking a reasonable armistice agreement." The feeling around Ridgway's headquarters was that the supreme commander is pretty certain the Reds wanted to keep on talking.

Marshall Is Stern

Russia is opposed to all the democratic nations' objectives, and Korea or any other crisis should be regarded as only one phase of the world struggle which must be won before world peace is assured. That was the view expressed by General George C. Marshall when the great soldier, now U.S. defence secretary, officially opened the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

"In this business in Korea," said Gen. Marshall, "we have conclusive proof of the futility of expecting sincerity on the part of the Soviets in our efforts to pursue peace."

Gen. Marshall, first American ever to open the C.N.E., was introduced by Canada's defence minister Brooke Claxton, who said Canada and the United States have one aim in both the national and international spheres — the establishment of freedom and justice.

Good Canadian Officers

A group of officers-in-training at the Camp Borden Army camp was told by Defence Minister Claxton last week-end that Canada wants "nothing second-rate" about her armed forces. Mr. Claxton said that in the past four years there has been criticism that officers' training standards were set too high.

The emphasis on high standards, he said, "has been justified by the fine record of the troops in Korea." He estimated Canada has a total of 26,292 army officers, of whom 10,323 are on active service and the rest either in the reserve or in training classes. Another 57,000 veteran officers saw service in the last war. He said still more are needed "so as to ensure, at any time, adequate numbers to meet any need."

Iranian Impasse

The talks between Britain and Iran, over the old dispute on nationalization of British-operated oilfields in Iran, have collapsed for the second time. The new breakdown of talks promises more trouble for Iran's ailing prime minister Mohammed Mossadegh.

Since British cabinet minister Richard Stokes returned to London, Iranian foes of Premier Mossadegh are speaking up again, and he faces a battle for control of the Iranian parliament in election shortly. The growing political strife, unemployment and business slump is bound to stir up Iran as a result of the loss of oil revenues, which made up half the Iran government's budget.

Nationalizing the operations of the Anglo-Iranian oil company made Mossadegh the hero of the hour in his country, which blames most of its troubles on the British oil company. But so far Mossadegh has not made good on his promise of a life of ease and comfort for the Iranians now they control their own oil resources. And politicians and newspapers who supported his oil policy are asking for the promised rewards.

Big Foreign Aid

The United States Senate this week received a huge, $7,535,000,000 foreign aid bill. The measure was unanimously approved first by the senate's foreign relations and armed services committee last Friday, carrying $6,013,000,000 in military aid and $1,522,000,000 in economic assistance for Western European nations in the North Atlantic pact and other friendly powers.

But the senate committee by 11 to 4 rejected a proposal to attach the St. Lawrence seaway and power project to this measure. Efforts had been made to push the St. Lawrence pact into the aid bill since it was last rejected by itself.

California Crash

American F.B.I. experts and Civil Aeronautics Commission officials are probing the crash near Oakland, Cal., of United Airlines' newest-type airliner, a big DC-6B which plowed into a fog-shrouded hill causing death of 50 persons.

The F.B.I. would not comment on whether its own inquiry was routine. The big transport had cost about $1,000,000 and was put into service with six sister ships only on Aug. 1. Its capacity load was 58 passengers, five crew members and 6,000 pounds of mail. The 44 passengers killed in California included 33 men, nine women and eight children.

The Executive Committee of the British Labor Party in a new manifesto says that "our first duty is to save World peace—no other aim can take priority over that." The Sturdy Elm "Indian" Tree is Still Standing by Road Near Malone N.Y.

Believed to be the last "Indian" tree in the Northern New York area, a sturdy elm stands near the roadside of the Malone-Chasm Falls road, about six miles south of Malone, near the home owned by Dr. John C. VanHouten, commonly known as the Badore place.

The tree, which is more than four feet through, is estimated to be well over a hundred years old.

One sturdy limb, well over a foot in diameter, branches from the trunk a few feet from the ground, curves sharply downward for a few feet and then shoots up as any normal branch. The peculiar bend is what stamps the tree as an oddity and stamps it as an Indian marker of early days.

According to tradition, Indians throughout Northern New York used to tie a young tree groundward so that it would point toward water — usually at the junction of streams. That signified a good camping site, plenty of drinking water and an abundance of fish.

The bent branch of this particular tree points directly to the junction of the Salmon River, which at that point is a small spring brook.

Old histories of this area record that in the early days the county Indians frequently camped just south of what is now Malone, and possibly their tepees were raised in the valley below the hill on which this tree stands.

So far as is known, this is the lone "Indian" tree in this section of New York State. One other such tree, also an elm, stood near Trout River where a small brook emptied into it near the Malone-Trout River road. This tree, however, was cut down several years ago by a road crew to straighten the highway.

— Farm and Garden, by Harold F. Brown.

FROM INDIAN DAYS — This elm tree, near the roadside on the Malone-Chasm Falls, N.Y., highway, is over a century old. Indian history relates that the Red Men used to tie a branch of a young tree groundward, so that it would point toward water, usually at the junction of streams. This was to signify a good camping site. As the tree grew, it acquired its odd shape.

Up To Reds...

statement is aimed at the Leftwing rebel group led by former Cabinet Minister Aneurin Bevan, which argued that Britain's three-year armament program is too large. The policy document says that the arms bill cannot be changed unless the World situation changes, and that the cost of preventing war is only a fraction of what war itself costs.

New Communist Note

A new Chinese Communist note offered to resume the cease-fire talks in Korea if Gen. Matthew Ridgway would admit that a U.N. plane bombed Kaesong, site of the Armistice negotiations, on Aug. 22. The U.N. Commander has already said the Communist charge is false and that no allied plane was near there at the time. A spokesman at Ridgway's headquarters said Tuesday: "The Communists can either continue the talks or break them off. We are ready for anything they choose to do."

Fighting Flares

Attacking Red troops forced United Nations units back nearly two miles north of Yanggu, as fighting erupted on the Eastern front Tuesday. Various engagements were fought at scattered places as rain clouds afforded cover for the attacking Communists and at the same time reduced U.N. aerial action.

Montreal Cottons, Dominion Textiles May Have Strike

From reports this morning (Wednesday) the plants of the Montreal Cottons, Valleyfield and those of the Dominion Textiles Ltd. at Montreal, may be strikebound by nightfall.

The workers are considering a strike vote on the basis of several demands made by the Union on behalf of the workers in connection with the above plants. One of the demands is for an all round 25c an hour increase in wages.

It is presumed that if the demands are not met by the companies involved, that the strike will be called for tonight.

HOWICK — The monthly meeting of the Howick United Evening Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Spedding on August 21st. The president opened the meeting with prayer which was followed by the singing of a hymn. The devotional was given by Mrs. Spedding. The roll call was answered by a verse containing the word "reap". The Study Chapter on Japan was read by Mrs. Emma Montgomery. Mrs. Lloyd Allen read a poem entitled "What the Old Cow Said". The meeting closed by repeating the Mizpah Benediction in unison, after which refreshments were served.

Despite Weather...

the performances began the non-reserve sections were filled with patrons. The track fence was lined with spectators during the races and in the evening fair-goers stood three deep at the fence to see the Hamid Showtime Revue.

Concessioners on the midway had asked for just one good day and they got it. Although overcast in the morning there was hope in weather predictions for bright skies later on. The race card for Thursday, for many, was the most popular of the race meeting because it featured the free-for-all. The crowd showed more excitement than has been witnessed in several years as numbers rose to their feet on several occasions and shouted in favourites when the heats were close.

The cattle parade was held in front of the grandstand on Thursday night before the Hamid Showtime Revue and was the best ever seen, it being the biggest and best livestock show ever held at the Malone Fair.

Everything came to an end on Saturday afternoon when the Hell Drivers gave one performance. The week's programme was juggled considerably to give play to popular harness events thus cutting off one of the two Hell Drivers shows scheduled.

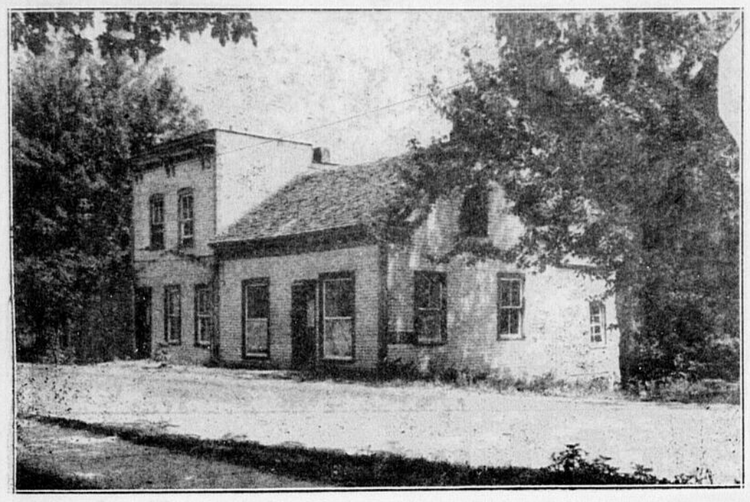
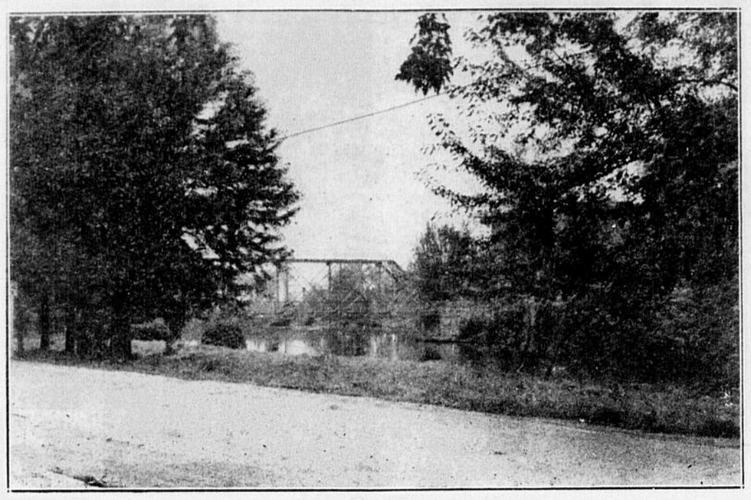
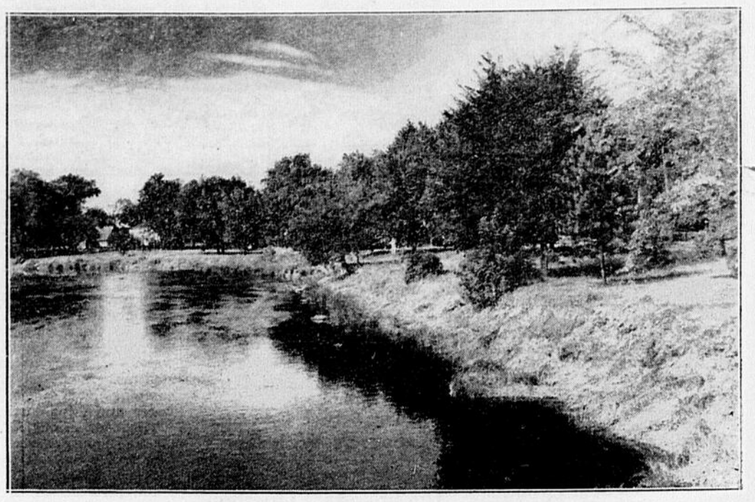
Removing the Unsightly To Make Way for Beautification







Since the publication of various photographs with regard to Chateauguay Street, Huntingdon, there has been serious comment on the part of community-minded citizens to the effect that they believed the ideas to be constructive and worthwhile. In this set of views, The Gleaner has gotten away from the purely business section of the street in an endeavour to show the improvement that can be made when unsightly properties are removed and a little beautification replaces them. In the left hand view practically everyone will remember the old Finlay property and how unsightly this was and it being so close to the street. This was removed by the government and it now looks like the view in the centre photograph. A clear view of the river Chateauguay is now to be had and the trees take on a more natural setting. In the right hand view is shown the rear of where the Finlay property stood as taken from the Lorne Avenue bridge and looking up the river. Chateauguay Street is running at the extreme right and partially hidden by the trees. Note what an improvement has been made in this section in just a few years. The section of Chateauguay Street to which we have previously alluded, could be made to look just as well with the removal of the buildings from that side of the street.

Merchants Win Play-Off

On Friday night at Ormstown the Merchants made it two in a row over Franklin, to win the semi-final play-off in the Ormstown and District Softball League. The Merchants went into the lead right from the start, scoring two runs in the first inning on a Franklin error and a home run. The Merchants did not score again until the fourth when Johnnie Brook's single with the bases loaded scored two more runs. With the Merchants leading 4 to 2 at this point Rene Senecal hit his second home run of the series with two men on. This was followed with another four base belt by Monk Moniqui. Franklin came back to score twice in the sixth inning to make the score 8 to 4. In the seventh a triple by Derepentigny, a Franklin error and a single by Smith gave the Merchants two more runs. Smith had to leave the game at this point pulling a muscle in his right leg. Moniqui who had been playing third base during the game came in and pitched the last inning allowing 3 hits and a walk to Franklin on which they scoreo 3 runs making the final score Merchants 10, Franklin 7.

Walter McCallum again led the Merchant's hitters with 3 for 4. Senecal with a home run and a double was another standout. Derepentigny also collected two hits, a triple and a single. Smith pitched a very good game for the Merchants, allowing five hits and four runs in the six innings he worked. Andy Ovan was the big gun for Franklin, collecting a home run and a single.

The league finals will start on Friday night at Ormstown with the Merchants meeting Ormstown, this series will be 3 games out of five.

Girls' Game Rained Out.

On Thursday night, the Ormstown Girls' Softball Team came to the Fairgrounds to play the Huntingdon Girls' Team a return game. Everything was going fine until it started to rain. The game was called off in the last half of the 4th inning with the score for each team nearly the same.

Won and Lost By Same Score

On Saturday night the Huntingdon Royals Girls' Softball Team went to Lachine to play the Lachine Taxi girls. The girls played hard, making a few errors, it being just one of those nights, losing 16-15. The Lachine Taxi girls played a return game at the Huntingdon Fairgrounds on Sunday afternoon and were defeated 16-15, exactly the same score, G. Renaud scoring the tieing run. Sunday afternoon's game was a very good one and the stands were fairly well filled. This is the most support the town has shown at any of the girls' games this year. These girls are playing for the fun of it, and for the sport but they are also representing your town of Huntingdon.

'Way back in 1837, after repeated attempts and ultimate success in the development of the first steel plow, John Deere stated his creed—"I will never put my name on a plow that hasn't in it the best that's in me."

Down through the years, this philosophy has remained the keynote of manufacturing in John Deere factories. Their engineers, designers, and workmen have devoted their skills and energies to the development and production of quality implements—implements that boost the farmer's productive capacity and add to his profits and farming satisfaction.

Today, as through the years, the best of materials, engineering "know-how," modern production methods, and quality controls are used in the manufacture of all John Deere farm tools. Thus, when you choose John Deere, you're assured of getting dependable, long-lived farm implements, quality built through and through.

Recipes

THE COOL, GREEN CUCUMBER

When it is cucumber time it is time for making pickles. Cucumber pickles of various sorts are favourites with all Canadian families. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, have sent us two recipes for making gherkin pickles. They have also sent a recipe for nine day pickles. Generally, gherkins and nine day pickles are made from a small type of cucumber which has a dark green skin and small seeds. If the cucumbers used are over 2 1/2" in length, they should be cut in half lengthwise. In making pickles such as cucumber pickles, it is most important that they be placed in cold water or a brine as soon as possible after picking to ensure success. Holding the cucumbers at room temperature for even a few hours may result in hollow centres.

Gherkins Method 1

4 quarts small cucumbers
16 cups boiling water
1 cup salt
8 cups blended vinegar
¼ cup salt
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup mustard seed
½ cup mixed pickling spice
7 cups sugar

Wash the cucumbers, scrub well, rinse, drain well and place in a crock. Cover with hot brine made by combining boiling water and salt. Pour over cucumbers, cover and let stand overnight. Drain cucumbers thoroughly and place in clean dry crock. Prepare pickle mixture by combining the cold vinegar, salt, the 1/4 cup of sugar, mustard seed and pickling spice. Pour over cucumbers. Each morning for the next 14 days, add 1/2 cup sugar, stirring well to dissolve the sugar. When last of sugar is added, remove pickles from liquid and pack into sterilized jars. Strain pickle mixture to remove spices and pour over pickles. Seal and store. Yield: approximately 4 quarts.

Gherkins Method 2

4 quarts small cucumbers
16 cups boiling water
2 cups salt
8 cups blended vinegar
4 cups sugar
1 ounce cinnamon stick
2 tablespoons celery seed
3 cups sugar

Wash the cucumbers, scrub well, rinse, drain well and place in a crock. Cover with hot brine, made by combining boiling water and salt. Let stand for 1 week. Drain, cover with boiling water and let stand 24 hours. Drain cucumbers and place in dry crock. Prepare pickle mixture by combining the vinegar, the 4 cups sugar, and the cinnamon stick and celery seed which have been loosely tied in a bag. Bring to a boil and pour over cucumbers. For three successive days, drain off the syrup, add 1 cup sugar, heat and pour over the pickles. On the third day, pack the gherkins into sterilized jars. Remove the spice bag and pour boiling syrup over the pickles. Seal and store. Yield: approximately 4 quarts.

Nine Day Pickles

4 quarts small cucumbers
16 cups boiling water
2 cups salt
1 teaspoon alum
16 cups boiling water
8 cups blended vinegar
6 cups sugar
1 tablespoon celery seed
2 teaspoons whole colves

Wash the cucumbers, scrub well, rinse, drain well and place in a crock. Cover with hot brine made by combining 16 cups boiling water with the salt. Let stand 3 days. Drain cucumbers from brine, bring brine to boiling point, pour over cucumbers and again let stand 3 days. Repeat this and again let stand 3 days. Drain cucumbers and place in crock. Add alum to remaining 16 cups boiling water and pour over cucumbers. Let stand 6 hours, then drain and rinse thoroughly. Pack pickles into sterilized jars. Prepare pickle mixture by combining the vinegar, sugar and spices. Boil mixture for 5 minutes. Strain through cheesecloth and pour over pickles. Seal and store. Yield: approximately 4 quarts.

In pickle making, the type of vinegar used is an important factor, blended vinegar which may be purchased in most retail stores or which may be made in the home by mixing equal parts of cider and white vinegar is recommended by the home economists. The combinations of spices suggested in the recipes may be varied according to personal taste.

Household Hints

The Carpet Sweeper

When cleaning the carpet sweeper, be sure to cut all the lint and hair from the brushes. After emptying the boxes, wipe out with a cloth dipped in kerosene and also rub the kerosene over the bristles of the brushes. This will prevent dust from rising during the sweeping.

Iodine Stains

Iodine stains on white linen can be removed with a solution of ammonia and water. Soak the material in a solution composed of one teaspoon of ammonia to a pint of water, and the stain will quickly disappear.

Leaky Aluminum

Sometimes a small hole in an aluminum vessel can be made tight by placing the hole directly over the head of a large nail driven into a board. Tap gently with a light hammer at the point where the leak is.

Delicious Rhubarb

Try dicing the rhubarb, putting into covered baking pans, sprinkling with sugar, and cooking in a moderate oven until done. Cooked in this way, the colour of the rhubarb is retained.

Table Linen

A good method for testing table linen is to secure a sample and dip it into any kind of oil. The linen threads will become almost transparent, enabling one to see very readily how many cotton threads it contains.

House Plants

Try to keep the dirt loosened and cultivated around house plants. Place them all in a tub for a shower bath about once a week and occasionally feed them a little fertilizer.

Fresh Bread

Soft, fresh bread can be cut into very thin slices, and without the least difficulty, if the bread is placed in the refrigerator and thoroughly chilled before slicing.

Buttons Back in Fashion News

This year buttons are once again in the fashion news, but from the prehistoric bone pin to the present day plastic, buttons have always had an interesting story. For thousands of years, plain thorn, bone, wood and ivory pins were used to fasten clothes together. It wasn't until 6000 B.C. that man discovered metal, and some fashion-conscious woman discovered that pins could be worn for decoration as well as for more practical reasons. Brooches and pins, some with rare and costly jewel settings, remained the only clothes fasteners until the Middle Ages. (The phrase "pin money" originated because husbands gave their wives an allowance to purchase this luxury item.)

Finally, sometime in the 14th Century, a German goldsmith discovered that cloth, jewels and other materials could be mounted on buttons, and we have them till this day.

One button-custom that has endured through the years is that of putting buttons on men's sleeves. It is said that Frederick the Great originated this when he had buttons sewn on his soldiers' jackets to cure their distressing habit of using their sleeves as handkerchiefs.

Another interesting custom used in the past, was that of giving buttons as gifts. Henry the Eighth's betrothal present to the ill-fated Anne of Cleves was a set of "great buttons of diamonds, rubies and Oriental pearls". And at the court of Louis the Fourteenth, buttons set with priceless gems were high fashion.

Buttons seem to be more popular than ever this year. Women who sew are choosing a wide variety of buttons for trimming, because buttons are still one of the easiest ways of adding a distinctive and decorative touch to a home-sewn garment. And the latest word from Paris is that designers are using buttons on everything: hats, shoes and gloves as well as on dresses and suits.

Great Farm Gathering But No Midway

by Gilbert McMillan

I had the opportunity during the past week to attend a gathering where I had the chance to see several things that should be of interest to those trying to make their local fair a more attractive event. It was the Worcester County, Massachusetts, Farmers' Field Day.

I doubt if many of the local fairs could cover all the attractions but it was certainly an illustration of what can be done by organization and getting all groups in a community behind such a project.

What, No Midway!

Strange to say there was neither a midway nor a horse show. Last year the event attracted 10,000 people. Another odd feature was that the chief source of income was a parking fee of $1. per car, collected at the gate. All occupants of the car were admitted free. Last year this fee netted $2,000.

Another unusual feature is that only one breed of dairy cattle is shown each year and they have to raise their own prize money. But breed rivalry is keen enough so that each of the four dairy breeds in turn stages a monster show. It was the Ayrshire's turn this year and it brought out an exhibit of 160 head with 39 exhibitors, including the 4 H groups. There were 24 classes with a top entry in one of 30 head and yet the judging was put through between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

No Grounds

Without a permanent fair ground finding a location at different points within the county is the major problem. From the catalogue I quote the following:

"Beginning in September following the Field Day the directors appoint a three-man site committee whose duty it is to pick out the following year's site and with one very definite set of instructions. Find a farm that can accommodate 10,000 people, park 1,500 to 2,000 cars and provide a field of at least 25 acres for machinery demonstration."

An interesting feature of this year's site, which was a rounding knoll, was that years ago it was covered with brush and stone and barely a good pasture. This year the second cutting of hay has just been removed and it carried a wonderful sod.

Shoots Hay

The machinery display would rank with what is found at our plowing matches and I think it included everything imaginable connected with the farm, including a "Bazooka" which threw a bale of hay 150 feet at a height of 20 feet at the top of the arc.

One very noticeable feature was the part taken by what I would take to be farm boys and girls. It was one of the most hopeful signs I have ever seen for the future of their farming development.

The feeding of the crowd was a novel event and one that would not need to be attempted without some experience behind it. It took the form of a chicken barbecue over an open pit where at least 100 half chickens were cooked at once. They figured on filling 2,000 orders.

The serving was a simple process — one-half a chicken, a bag of potato chips, a buttered bun and your tea, coffee or milk on a paper plate. And no cutlery, so you ate your chicken in comfort, in farm style.

Every Operation

The different demonstrations covered practically every conceivable form of farm operation, both on the farm and in the household. The only amusement features I noted were a 4H square dancing exhibition and style show, with movies and magicians for the youngsters. There was also a military display of drill, strange to say put on by a group of colored soldiers. They were broadly cheered by this New England crowd, a rather encouraging sign in this mixed world.

While an event of this kind cannot be expected to take the place of the local fair it has a lot of fine features. It centres a lot of attention on what agriculture means to the community as I am quite sure all the attendance were not farm people. It also provides avenue for bringing all the different farm groups together once a year, and in this area there are some 25 of them.

An event of this kind is undoubtedly at the mercy of the weather but they have an elaborate system devised for postponement if the early morning is unfavorable. This, however, does not provide for a thunderstorm in mid-afternoon — but by then they have the attendance anyway.

My office will be closed from Wednesday, August 29th to Monday, Sept. 10th.

Weed of the Week — Dodder

Dodder, one of the worst weeds in Ontario, is a parasite and not a plant in the true sense of the term. It lives on a host plant and in time strangles it. For this reason, Dodder is sometimes called Strangle Weed or Devil's Gut. J. W. MacRae, Fieldman for the Crops Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, states that it is a very dangerous weed affecting legume crops not only in Ontario but throughout Canada and United States. As Dodder is very difficult to separate from legume seed, every attention should be given to this weed, particularly if we are to build up an export market for our legume seed. For this reason, he feels that every precaution should be taken to prevent its introduction to farms which are presently free from it.

Dodder is easily recognized, as it has no leaves. The yellow stems are threadlike and twine around Clover, Alfalfa or Flax plants. By sending short suckers into the plant, Dodder absorbs the food meant for its host, and in time will kill it. Another difference noted by Mr. MacRae is that once Dodder germinates and contacts its host, the "root" dies and Dodder has no further contact with the soil. The thick clusters of white flowers in turn become seed pods containing many hard, grey or yellowish brown seeds. These are difficult to separate from legume seeds when they are being cleaned.

Prevention is the best means of control. Mr. MacRae states that only seed that has been tested and graded by one of the Dominion seed laboratories should be used. He goes on to say that, at the present moment, there is no machinery that will give 100% separation of dodder from legume seeds. Under the Dominion Seed Act it is an offence to transport any legume seed containing even a trace of Dodder.

However, he suggests that at the first sign of Dodder in the crop, it should be mowed and removed before the Dodder matures seed. Another recommendation he puts forth is to burn the crop particularly if the seed has already formed. This can be accomplished by either covering the patch with about three feet of straw or sprinkling kerosene or crude oil over the area.

The most important part of the control of Dodder is to prevent it from forming seed. Summer fallowing for one year followed by a hoed crop such as corn will kill most of the seed in the soil. However, Mr. MacRae declares that the seed may lie dormant in the soil for a number of years and one should always be on the lookout for further outbreaks. In any rotation of crops following an outbreak of Dodder, care should be taken not to incorporate clovers, buckwheat or flax in the rotation for a few years, declares Mr. MacRae.

He contends that Dodder knows no bounds. Although it thrives in warm winter climates, it appears to be gradually acclimatizing itself, as it has been found in the colder parts of the province. It does not attack cereal grains or timothy, but favours clovers, buckwheat and flax. Mr. MacRae believes that too much emphasis cannot be placed on this weed and that all farmers should take every precaution to prevent its further spread.

Famous Singing Iris

A beautiful "singing" Iris has recently been perfected by Mrs. S Embleton Morehouse, noted botanist and horticulturist of Palos Heights, Illinois. Some time ago the Rev. J. Bradford Pengelly obtained some of these plants and planted them in his gardens at Victoria Ave., and Marlboro Street. The petals of the flowers have been developed into a sort of bell shape so that the winds make different musical sounds as they blow upon the petals. In a gentle breeze they sing a soft sonata, reminding one of Beethoven, while in a strong wind they sound like the Valkgrie by Wagner. On one Sunday morning a large crowd assembled to witness this remarkable phenomenon.

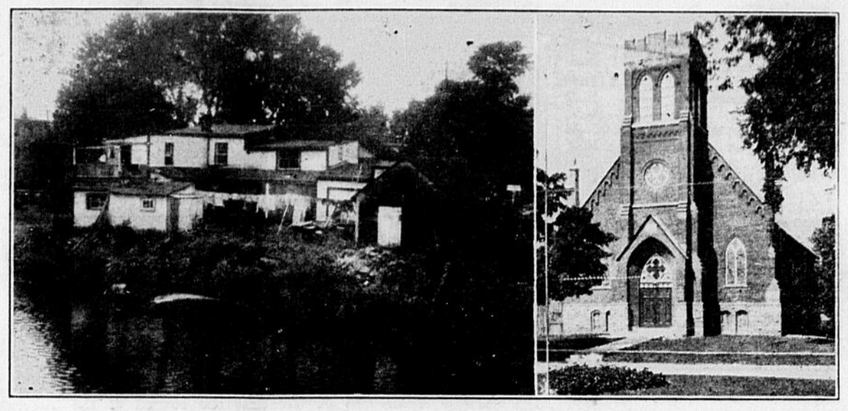
This Old Eyesore Was Removed



For many years the old building on the left was looked upon by residents of Huntingdon as an eyesore to the beauty of this part of Chateauguay Street. Situated as it was on the bank of the river and facing the Huntingdon United Church, it was seen continually. Fortunately the opportunity came when this building could be removed and the improved appearance at this particular spot was shown in a photograph published in this newspaper last week. Run down properties are no asset to any town and many such have been removed in the past few years which have added much to the general appearance of the surroundings in Huntingdon.

In Appreciation

Mrs. Saumier and I have been very pleased with your kind patronage since opening our Shoe Store in Huntingdon.

Added to your encouragement was the unexpected presentation this past week of a hand-tooled leather wallet and sum of money. Presented to me by Chief L'Heureux, it carried the best wishes from fellow employees, friends and members of the Huntingdon Voluntary Firemen.

Such warm signs of friendship are much appreciated by us in our new venture as proprietors of the Huntingdon Shoe Store. To serve you to the best of our ability will always be our aim. Our sincere thanks to all.

2. Smart brick or stone finish.
3. No more painting.
4. Total cost very little more than 1 year's paint job.
