Incoming snow storm likely to make Easter egg hunts difficult

Record Staff
SHERBROOKE

It won't be a very spring-like Easter this year as Environment Canada is predicting yet another dumping of snow for the Eastern Townships with some areas expected to receive at least 10 centimetres (four inches) of the white stuff.

Following an all-too-brief warm patch at the end of this week, temperatures will begin to cool.

The storm will be fed by a humid low-pressure system coming from the central United States.

The cold start to the month of April follows a month of March whose average temperature was considerably below normal, although warmer than March 2014, which was, itself, the coldest March in 30 years.

In contrast, the March snowfall of 31 centimetres was less than half the average of 78 centimetres.

So far, Sherbrooke has accumulated 251.3 centimetres of snow (eight feet two inches) this season. The highest accumulation in the province was at Mont-Ste-Anne, which has received more than 400 centimetres of snow so far this winter.

U de S grad students hold noontime protest

GORDON LAMBIE

Members of REMDUS, the University of Sherbrooke graduate students union, marched to Sherbrooke MNA Luc Fortin's office to protest provincial austerity measures.

By Gordon Lambie
SHERBROOKE

A group of more than 100 students from the University of Sherbrooke's graduate students' union REMDUS marched from the school's campus to the office of Sherbrooke MNA Luc Fortin on Thursday. The protest was held in conjunction with much larger scale demonstrations taking place in Montreal and invited groups from all sectors to come and participate, although ultimately only the one student group showed up. According to the SPS the organizers filed a clear plan in advance and the march leaders could be seen clearly co-operating with local police throughout the demonstration.

Loveliest of trees, the cherry now
Is hung with bloom along the bough,
And stands about the woodland ride
Wearing white for Eastertide.
— A.E. Housman, as cited in Rosy's Garden

Easter's early this year. And it's far too early to be puttering about in the garden, but green thumbs are nonetheless well into plotting their planting. The little boy in the 2013 picture book, If You Hold A Seed (by Elly MacKay, filed in the Lennoxville Library at C-88) has the right idea: he knows about advance planning. One seed may take years to reach maturity. "And if you wait... And wait... The tree will grow."

But at the beginning, it is a tiny little thing. And "if you wait some more, one day, your wish" for a sturdy branch to sit on, to share with your own son, "will come true."

The illustrations here are lovely, as is the sentiment. This is for beginner readers, but best read with a grown-up to snuggle with.

A tree is a very different beast from a garden, and there are those who love trees but will never get the flower or veggie growing bug. But it's still fun to follow the obsessions of others! Consider this eight-page academic essay, from 1984, titled The Identification Of A Plant In The Unicorn Tapestries. It chronicles biology detective Lawrence J. Crockett's quest to identify a single plant, as woven hundreds of years ago, in a series of works now hanging in a New York museum.

The plant is "of rosette growth with stalks bearing peculiarly dropping structures, each like a saucer held on edge with battlemented borders, the 'saucer' attached in one case near the centre, in another near the top.... It is one of several small plants to which no clue can be found.... It is clear that, in Northern Europe, botanical representation such as that in the Unicorn Tapestries was an important step toward the later scientific study of plant life."

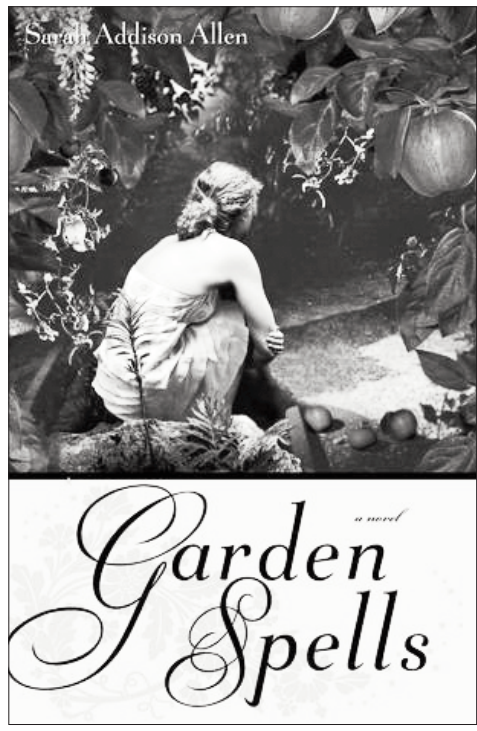

The paper is an entertaining bit of investigative work (one of the hundreds of books and articles recently made freely available online by the Metropolitan Museum of Art) and concludes that the mystery plant is – ta-dam! – a sawfruit (Biserrula pelecinus).

Crockett must have one heck of a garden. Perhaps it even looks something like the garden tended by Jilli and her friend Jim (aided and abetted by Fiercely the dog):

We counted the days.
Two.
Four.
Eight.
And all the days that came next.
Our garden was growing!
Tiny green strings popped up with tiny shiny leaves.

The threesome watch for slugs, and water, and weed, and worry, because of the legend of the fearsome Garden Monster (words by Patricia Reilly Giff, pictures by Diane Palmisciano, 2014, filed in C-64). They hope to eventually harvest the fruits (and veggies) of their hard labours! And to show them off in the annual Vegetable Parade.

But for a truly astonishing garden, a garden that has taken a lifetime to nurture, check out Granny's garden. That's precisely what little Rosy does, and she is enchanted by the beauty and variety. "Do all the flowers have stories?" asks Rosy. "Most do," answers Granny.

Some are personal stories, such as the locket filled with dried violets that Granny wears about her neck. Those violets were given to her when she was seven years old, by the man who became her husband.

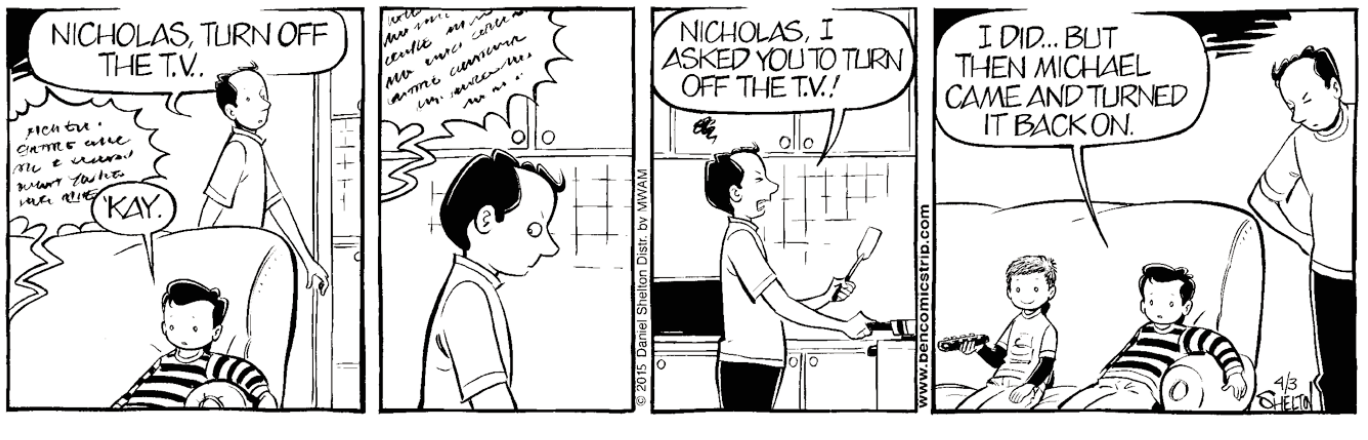

Tulips were originally from Turkey. The name Delphinium comes from dolphins. Dandelions look wonderful when pressed. Use roses to make rose water, and mint for salads.

Rosy's Garden: A Child's Keepsake Of Flowers, by Satomi Ichikawa (1990) is packed with colour, recipes, lore and poetry. This is a picture book for more advanced readers (and adults seeking whimsy and ideas for the garden). This book is also a great way to mark April's celebration as poetry month.

The four-CD set, American Grown: The Story Of The White House Kitchen Garden And Gardens Across America, authored by American First Lady Michelle Obama (2012, filed in Audio Books) is an odd little mix. It collects up the history of White House gardens (the first few American presidents grew their own). Then there are tales of children helping with planting, weeding and eating, profiles of gardeners and community gardens (often presented by participants;

Bishop's and U de S host entrepreneurial forum

By Gordon Lambie
LENNOXVILLE

In a joint venture between the University of Sherbrooke and Bishop's University, the BU Campus was host to a special forum on entrepreneurship and creativity on Thursday.

Organized by the Quebec research fund, the City of Sherbrooke and the two universities, the forum was a invitation-only event for students, professors, entrepreneurs, and researchers in the field to share ideas on how better to support new businesses and startups in the province of Quebec.

"I saw (this event) as an opportunity to bring the rest of the province to Bishop's and to Sherbrooke, to model our collaboration with [the University of] Sherbrooke and to signal the importance of entrepreneurship for Bishop's; in teaching, in mentorship and support for entrepreneurs in the region and student entrepreneurs, and in our research and innovation agenda," said Bishop's vice-principal academic Miles Turnbull.

"Co-hosting this event is especially timely as the Mayor of Sherbrooke promotes Entreprendre Sherbrooke and the importance of the two universities in the economic development for the city and for the townships as a whole."

The objective of the forum was to rally key stakeholders in the domain of entrepreneurship from across the province in order to, together, reflect on the challenges facing entrepreneurship research and creativity today.

Julie Fredette, BU research officer, explained that the forum invited in a series of guest speakers with specialized knowledge in the field to present to the participants.

After those presentations, those in attendance were subdivided into mixed conversation groups for three workshop sessions focused on a variety of discussion questions.

The questions focused on different aspects of research in the realm of entrepreneurship and how better to support it going into the future. One person per group then shares the discussion of their small group back to the whole. The ideas shared aloud will then be made into a working document to serve as the foundation for a new funding project for entrepreneurship in Quebec.

"What we're finding is needed is professors who have experience and contacts in the field," Fredette said. "However, the more time devoted to developing those kind of connections the less is spent on more traditional forms of research."

That offset, she explained, creates a sometimes debilitating disconnect between the world of small business and the academic research that should be supporting it.

When researchers cannot get academic recognition for the work they put into entrepreneurial research and creativity, it seriously undermines the support that research should be providing to small businesses.

Sherbrooke, Fredette explained, is a city that provides a unique opportunity to focus in on the work needed because of the fact that it has two universities that have put a focus on entrepreneurship.

Through bodies like the Dobson-Lagassé Centre at Bishop's, that bridge the academic and entrepreneurial worlds, the city stands a good chance of capitalizing on the local business climate to make the region a hub of entrepreneurial innovation.

Daniel Nadeau to co-chair Centraide campaign

Record Staff
SHERBROOKE

This year's next annual Centraide Estrie fundraising campaign will be co-chaired by Daniel Nadeau, co-founder and CEO of the Sherbrooke-based Nadeau Bellavance public relations and communication firm.

Daniel Nadeau is deeply passionate about culture, politics, sociology, and history and has over 30 years of experience in public relations and communications. He has also been the recipient of numerous awards from the Quebec Society of Public Relations Professionals.

Nadeau Bellavance has chosen to support Centraide as part of its 15th anniversary celebrations. In explaining this decision, Nadeau says, "Centraide is also celebrating its fortieth anniversary this year. Since 1975, Centraide Estrie has worked with poor people in our region and when we give to Centraide, we help 67 organizations and eight community projects to pursue their mandates. As a result, nearly 60,000 people will receive help to get out of situations of violence, addiction, isolation, and poverty. I intend to use all my energy and all my talents to help make Centraide's 2015 fundraising campaign a great success. I always have helping to improve my community and giving back at heart, as it has given me so much."

The Centraide campaign will be officially launched in the fall and by then the members of the Campaign leadership will have solicited corporate leaders in all sectors of economic activity to try to convince them to contribute to the fall campaign by a corporate donation and by organizing a fundraiser among their employees.

Centraide Estrie is an independent organization managed by a board of directors that is representative of the community. More than 1,000 volunteers are involved in the organization of its annual campaign to help 60,000 disadvantaged people in the Eastern Townships.

Four looking to climb Jacob's ladder

Record Staff

Four candidates are vying to replace outgoing Brome-Missisquoi MP Pierre Jacob as NDP candidate for the riding prior to the April 18 riding nomination meeting. Jacob recently announced that he would not seek a second term.

The most recent entries into the race are former Sherbrooke bureaucrat François Gingras and Sylvie Jetté, a professor of nursing at the University of Sherbrooke, long-time NDP activist and co-founder of the local riding association.

Gingras and Jetté join Catherine Lusson, who is currently an assistant to Jacob at his Magog office, and TV host and columnist Yves Mondoux, who tried his luck with the NDP in Sherbrooke in 2008. Mondoux, of Austin, became known for his show Complètement Marteau.

The nomination meeting will take place April 18 at the Lakeview Inn in Brome Lake.

Magog police dealing with April fools

Record Staff

The start of April brought with it another group of fools for the Memphremagog police to deal with.

At about 5:40 a.m., police intervened on Main Street West with a 59-year old man breach of conditions for having come into contact with another individual whom he was forbidden to contact. This followed a complaint of harassment in late January.

He was brought to the police station and was detained until his court appearance.

At around 6 p.m. Wednesday, Memphremagog Police stopped a vehicle at the intersection of the des Aurores Avenue and de la Plage Southière Road. The driver, a 54-year-old man, was arrested for driving while impaired by alcohol and taken to the station to submit to breath tests. He failed them twice, registering more than twice the legal limit of alcohol in his blood. He was released on a promise to appear in court.

Finally, at 10:45 p.m. Memphremagog Police located an abandoned vehicle in the ditch belonging to an individual from the Sherbrooke area. The police reached the owner by telephone but the latter refused to talk to them. The man was located not far from his vehicle and reported his vehicle stolen. The man was visibly intoxicated and was arrested for driving while impaired by alcohol. Brought to the station, the 25 year-old man failed the breath test twice. He was released with a promise to appear where he could face charges of public mischief for having filed a false police report in addition to those connected with driving while impaired.

On April 2, at about 3 a.m., police intervened at a construction site where two young men had broken in.

When arrested for break and enter, it was evident that the men, both 21 and known to police, had consumed beer and were intoxicated. Since there was nothing reported stolen at the time of this writing, they were taken to the police station and kept detained while police continued their investigation.

Obama's voice is just one of many in this collection). A White House chef offers tips on how to choose the freshest veggies in stores. A beekeeper talks honey. Obama notes that there are small towns in the U.S. with nothing but a corner store selling processed foods for supper. Ugh.

This book also launched Obama's assault on obesity, where she encourages children to eat fresh from the farm, and to get out and exercise.

Farmers and gardeners who are old hands will find little new here, but children will enjoy this four-hour series. (Obama's worries about obesity are well-intentioned, and certainly at some point fat leads to health problems. But kids, remember that being fat is not itself a horrible thing: you can eat well and exercise, and still be overweight. Our bodies are all created differently. Feel good about who and how you are.)

The Lennoxville Library has a good little collection of gardening how-to books, filed in Non-Fiction at 712. There's information on design, container gardening (for those with window boxes or fire escapes), and more.

Now, grown-ups, here's one last book just for you: Garden Spells, by Sarah Addison Allen (2007, filed in Adult Fiction). The Waverlys are a family of witches.

Claire Waverly is a caterer who makes rather special food from her garden: "Claire had added flowers to the garden to give her something do at night when she was so wound up that frustration singed the edge of her nightgown and she set tiny fires with her fingertips."

Then there's 79-year-old Evanelle: "When Claire was young, Evanelle would stop by to give her a Band-Aid hours before she scraped her knee."

This is a novel about gardening and food. It's a story of estranged sisters trying to mend the rift. One lives in fear, fleeing a horrific spouse, the other flees a romance with a lovely man out of fear.

How does your garden grow?

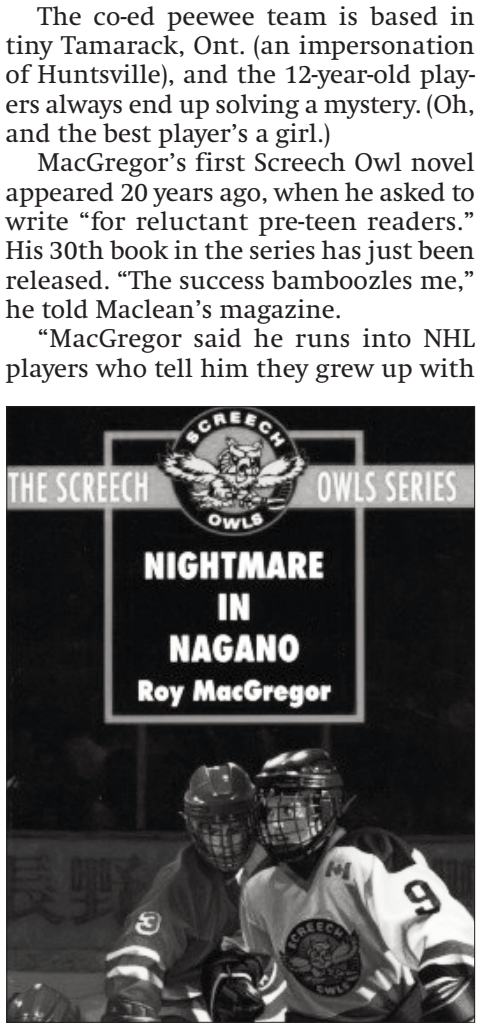

The Screech Owls' Last Game?

Sports writer Roy MacGregor says that, at 66, he believes he's written the last of the hockey games to be played by The Screech Owls.

The co-ed peewee team is based in tiny Tamarack, Ont. (an impersonation of Huntsville), and the 12-year-old players always end up solving a mystery. (Oh, and the best player's a girl.)

MacGregor's first Screech Owl novel appeared 20 years ago, when he asked to write "for reluctant pre-teen readers." His 30th book in the series has just been released. "The success bamboozles me," he told Maclean's magazine.

"MacGregor said he runs into NHL players who tell him they grew up with the books and remain fans. The series hooks readers with the hockey, but keeps them with clever writing and jokes about dinosaur turds and frozen underwear. 'Adolescent humour. I'm a specialist at it,' he laughed."

Need some peewee hockey in your life? Start with section C-152 in the Lennoxville Library. MacGregor writes for adults, also; check the online book catalogue!

The Folio Award

Amil Sharma's second novel, an at-times tragic family saga which he spent 13 years writing, has won the annual Folio book award. A judge called it a "lucid, compassionate, quietly funny account of one family's life across continents and cultures....

"Family Life is a masterful novel of distilled complexity: about catastrophe and survival; attachment and independence; the tension between selfishness and responsibility. We loved its deceptive simplicity and rare warmth."

The UK-based Folio Prize is open to any English-language author.

This year's shortlisted titles were 10:04 by Ben Lerner; All My Puny Sorrows by Miriam Toews; Dept. of Speculation by Jenny Offill; Dust by Yvonne Adhiambo Owuor; Family Life by Akhil Sharma; How to Be Both by Ali Smith; Nora Webster by Colm Toibin; Outline by Rachel Cusk.

Farewell To The Poet

Nobel prize winner Tomas Tranströmer has written his last poem. The Swedish writer died last month at the age of 83.

The Swedish Academy's Peter Englund said: "One of the secrets of his success around the world is that he's writing about everyday stuff. The economy of words that you can see in his poems is manifested in the economy of his output; you can get the core of his work in a pocket book of 220 pages. You can get through it in an evening."

The poem C Major has been described as a work which "both describes and summons up pure delight."

Here's the last verse of that poem:

A music broke out
and walked in the swirling snow with long steps.
Everything on the way towards the note C.
A trembling compass directed at C.
One hour higher than the torments.
It was easy.
Behind turned-up collars everyone was smiling.

Book Ends

Every Saturday, children aged 5 to 11 are invited to a reading and crafts workshop. It's bilingual, free, and scheduled from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

$77 million settlement proposed for families of Lac-Megantic victims

By Giuseppe Valiante
The Canadian Press
MONTREAL

Smoke rises from tanker cars in downtown Lac-Megantic, on July 6, 2013. The law firm representing the families of 47 people killed in the 2013 Lac Megantic train crash says it has received a financial proposal that would see them split $77 million in compensation.

Relatives of people who died as a result of the Lac-Megantic train derailment could receive their share of a $77-million wrongful-death settlement as early as August, says one lawyer.

Creditors and the courts still need to approve the plan before money is disbursed, U.S. attorney Robert Keach said Thursday.

"The hope and the goal is that we would see money in the hands of claimants in August of this year or the latest in early September," said Keach, the court-appointed trustee in the bankruptcy filing of the rail company at the centre of the derailment.

An oil-laden train owned and operated by Montreal Maine and Atlantic Railway derailed and exploded in Lac-Megantic on July 6, 2013, killing 47 people and destroying much of the downtown.

A firefighter who helped pull bodies from the rubble later committed suicide and has been counted among the 48 people whose families will split the $77 million.

The settlement is part of a larger sum of $300 million cobbled together from companies, including Montreal Maine and Atlantic Railway, involved in the derailment.

The lawsuit was filed in Illinois because many of the firms are American and also due to the fact the state has no limits on payouts to victims.

Nearly two dozen companies including oil-exploration firms, tank-car owners, Irving Oil and Montreal Maine and Atlantic Railway agreed to pay the families of victims as well as creditors such as the Quebec and Canadian governments, Lac-Megantic property owners and other people who suffered trauma.

Also listed as a contributor to the $77.2 million is Edward Burkhardt, president and CEO of Rail World Inc., which owned Montreal Maine and Atlantic Railway before its assets were sold.

Keach said Burkhardt has agreed to personally pay money to victims, but confidentiality agreements prohibit the sum being made public.

Notably absent from the list of companies that have agreed to pay claimants are Canadian Pacific Railway and World Fuel Services Corp.

Peter Flowers, the U.S. attorney representing families in the wrongful-death suit, said Thursday he intends to file lawsuits against CP and World Fuel next week.

"We intend to go full speed ahead to make sure that these other two companies are held responsible," he said in an interview.

"And the only thing that they listen to is a court system that holds them responsible."

Calls to CP and World Fuel Services were not returned Thursday.

Keach said he also is suing CP and World Fuel to recoup money for creditors and victims of the tragedy. He said if he cannot reach a settlement with the companies he'll take them to trial and "ultimately they are going to lose."

He said his lawsuit focuses on the classification of the oil that was being transported the night of the tragedy.

"We firmly believe that if this oil had been properly classified this accident could have been avoided," he said. "The issue of classification and who knew what and at what time is important."

Flowers said his goal is go get as much money as possible from CP and World Fuel.

"No money is enough money," he said. "Would you ever trade any amount of money for the death of your family member? — I wouldn't."

A spokeswoman for Lac-Megantic said the town's lawyers are reviewing the settlement proposal and will wait until next week to comment.

There is a separate, criminal case ongoing related to the train disaster.

Train driver Tom Harding and two other railway employees are each facing 47 counts of criminal negligence causing death — one for each victim.

The case has not yet gone to trial.

A conviction carries a maximum life sentence.

REMDUS

"We demand that Mr. Couillard come to the institutions to talk to those his budgetary exercises impact directly," said REMDUS president Steve St-Pierre, upon the crowd's arrival at the King Street office. "We will not stop mobilizing and fighting for what we believe in."

Fortin's staff met with St-Pierre briefly, as is their policy.

According to the MNA's press attaché, Elizabeth Nadeau, the meeting was very peaceful.

"Mr. Fortin's staff listened to the protestors' demands and will relay them to him," Nadeau reported.

The students dispersed shortly after arrival.

Editorial

There was never much doubt about what little Ottawa plans to do with regards to COP 21, but playing hide and seek with the provinces is close to contempt.

The waiting game

François Tanguay

On April 14, the provincial premiers will be meeting in Quebec City with the Paris Climate Summit (COP 21) on their agenda. Among the discussion points will be putting a price on carbon emissions. Only two have a carbon tax so far: British Columbia and Quebec. Ontario may just announce that it, too, is taking the carbon route during the meeting. Clear signals regarding the announcement have been coming from Queen's Park in the last few weeks. This would mean that more than half of all Canadians would be in on the carbon market while Harper continues to avoid even mentioning the subject. Canada is one of the very few OECD nations that have not met the March 31 United Nations deadline for setting emissions target reductions, as was agreed in Lima, Peru last year.

Environment minister Leona Aglukkaq dismissed mounting pressure earlier this week with a lame excuse: "Considering the importance of our contribution, Canada wants to have the best picture possible coming from the provinces and territories before setting out formally its goals." A fascinating comment coming from a government that has repeatedly claimed that Canada's emissions are not significant on a global scale. She goes on to state that Canada's position will be made known before the meeting begins in Paris.

Don't hold your breath folks, Ottawa will just add up the provincial totals and eventually turn them in a national position. No further reduction will be announced, no vision for the future whatsoever, just a blind "Dubya" stare.

Since it's already been made clear that the previous reduced target will not be met, let's not waste any more time this hide and seek strategy will deliver serious results. Canada will go to Paris with nothing to show, unless... the Conservatives are driven out of office just a few weeks before in mid-October.

Quebec environment minister David Heurtel, who will host the April 14 meeting along with Premier Couillard, urged Ottawa to go forward this week. Ottawa, he said, must recognize the importance and the urgency to act. Heurtel says he actually contacted Ottawa twice on the subject in the last in the last months, with no answer from the Hill. Then Wednesday, putting aside his own contradictions, Premier Couillard, speaking for the 27 members of the Alliance of Federated States, urged again Ottawa to come out with solid engagements. The Federated States are subnational governments that include Bavaria, California, Quebec and 24 other such administrations. The signatories urge all national governments to take the lead and to act as sovereign states should.

There was never much doubt about what little Ottawa plans to do with regards to COP 21, but playing hide and seek with the provinces is close to contempt.

The fact we, as a nation, have no environmental backbone is not news, but hiding behind the provincial agendas is an all-time low. Ottawa is so against the grain on the international front it should at least admit openly to being indifferent to climate change.

The fact is there is no scientific evidence of any sort to back Harper's denial tactics. The mounting core of evidence cuts any possible escape from the international community's mounting impatience with this government.

My take is simple: what are the provinces waiting for to speak aloud and clear on this unacceptable stance. After all, not even the oil and coal provinces are this deep in denial. Of course, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia have reasons to walk softly on a price for carbon, but none of them is in denial like Ottawa is. The waiting game that has become Harper's non-stance on climate is fooling no one, pushing Canada even further to the back of the class on climate issues.

Dear Editor:

To everyone who purchased a "bouquet" of daffodils we wish to express our sincere gratitude. Daffodil Day, March 26, 2015 was a huge success! We surpassed our goal of $20,000!! We are thrilled to announce that our flower sales totaled $20,624!

This successful campaign which encompasses Ayer's Cliff, Birchton, Bury, Cookshire, Earlstown, Hatley, Huntingville, Lennoxville, Milby, North Hatley, Sawyerville and the surrounding areas would not be possible without the time and dedication of the drivers, canvassers, distributors and any other volunteers who have helped with this worthy cause. Too, we would like to acknowledge the keen support of radio station CJMQ and The Record in promoting this year's campaign.

Together, we can make cancer history!! Thank you everyone for your generosity.

This is not only because sorrow cannot be cured but, more importantly, because sorrow should not be cured. Sorrow is a natural response to loss.

ONE COLUMN, FOUR VOICES

Opening to the Spirit

The word of the week is: Sorrow

By Revs. Mead Baldwin, W. Lynn Dillabough, Lee Ann Hogle and Carole Martignacco

1) "Those who go out weeping, carrying seed to sow, will return with songs of joy, carrying sheaves with them." (Psalm 126) So many of our psalms start off with lamentation and sorrow, but end on a high note.

Although we resist the notion, it does seem that sorrow is an inevitable characteristic of the human condition. We spend a lot of energy trying to protect ourselves from heartache, but sooner or later it catches up with us. How could it not?

We are all finite. Those we love either die before we do or they die after. We don't all die together so someone is always the one left behind. Relationships end. What we imagined was permanent we discover was only transitory. Hopes get crushed, dreams don't come to fruition and disasters occur. To live is to be subjected to many a sorrow. Are we then to take a less personal approach and remain unattached to others and indifferent to outcomes? To this I would say a resounding no! To be human is to touch and be touched by others. Khalil Gibran tells us that the degree to which our hearts mourn what we have lost is a testimony to the depth of the joy we once knew.

In the midst of our sorrows let us give thanks for the joys.

2) All My Puny Sorrows was an exceptional book written by Miriam Toews, shortlisted for the 2014 Scotiabank Giller prize. I didn't read it. The reason I mention the book is because I don't believe there are such things as puny sorrows. All sorrow is real and can have lasting impact. The loss of a loved one, the failure for our dreams to materialize, the breakup of a deep relationship, the physical pain of a chronic illness, all these sorrows have an effect on our lives.

Today, Good Friday in my tradition, we tell a story of sorrow, the death of Jesus. We retell his words, "My God, My God, Why have you forsaken me?" We extinguish candles and leave the church without a hopeful benediction. Our sorrow is real.

Sorrow is a universal human experience. I find comfort in knowing that Jesus shared our sense of loss and loneliness. Sorrow, however, is a station on our travel through life, it is not the destination. We experience the darkness of life and are empowered to reach out to others in our world who also feel sorrow; the homeless, the victims of bullying, the refugees, and travel with them to a new place of light and hope. We do not remain on "Good Friday", but it is an important part of our journey. How does sorrow affect your lives?

3) Heaviness. Tears. Loss. Pain. Despite all of these feelings, sorrow is not an illness. Although sorrow shares a lot in common with what we know as clinical depression, they are very different. This is not only because sorrow cannot be cured but, more importantly, because sorrow should not be cured. Sorrow is a natural response to loss. I worry sometimes that we have medicalized this normal human experience.

Fully experiencing our sorrow, as a response to great loss, is often the final act of love that we can perform. I remember burying my dog in the woods behind our house, falling to my knees in the dirt and sobbing with my whole body. The sorrow that I felt was a testament to love and the tears that fell on her fur the last gift that I could give. That sorrow still connects us. We are all connected to the loved ones that we have lost. Sometimes moving beyond sorrow feels like betrayal and we are not ready to let go.

We don't need to wallow in our sorrow and we don't need to run from it, either. We certainly don't need to treat it or have it taken away by medicine. The only medicine for sorrow, as we have always known, is time.

4) "Joy and woe are woven fine, A clothing for the soul divine. Under every grief and pine, Runs a joy with silken twine." William Blake, in Auguries of Innocence. Early in my teens I memorized Blake's poem, hardly imagining how useful it would be throughout my life, or how often those words of wisdom would comfort me in facing my own or others' sorrows, griefs and losses.

Sunday mornings I often quote it now as an introduction to our brief ceremony of Joys and Sorrows, acknowledging how sorrow and joy are "woven fine" like the warp and woof of our lives into a magnificent tapestry. After the opening hymn, we invite any who have a joy or sorrow to share to come forward and light a candle, and to speak what is in their hearts for all to help carry. And we see that it is true, a sorrow shared is sorrow diminished, as a joy shared is magnified. Sometimes in the depths of grief or sudden loss, it's all one can do to simply come forward and light a silent candle. We end with a symbolic candle for all those joys and sorrows, and those that remain unspoken, and recite an affirmation of the power of loving community to heal our hearts.

Week after week, I've observed how this simple ritual binds us together. Over time, we see how sorrow gives way to joy in every life, how we take turns grieving and celebrating. Sometimes the same person will light two candles, one for joy and one for sorrow — two sides to the same coin of life. And the gift of belonging to a beloved community is that sorrow shared is diminished, and joy shared is magnified. And sorrow is seen, not as an interruption to life, but integral to the human condition. Blake's words continue to comfort, as the poem goes on: "It is right it should be so, We were made for joy and woe, And when this we rightly know, Through the world we safely go."

One word, four voices - now add your own voice: How do you experience sorrow in your life; what helps and heals?

Police Chief Alfred Couture is seen standing in front of the car. In 1889, the town had three police stations, and the one pictured above was located on London Street. No distinction was made between police officers and firefighters at the time.

HuDost: True friend of the shared breath

Maurice Singfield

One never knows what to expect when doing on-location recording for the STOP! Show. At times everything from sound to video capturing may be subject to last minute surprises; poor lighting, faulty cables, hardly any time for setup, etc...

When we were in Sutton this past January for the recording of HuDost's concert at the Salle Alec & Gérard Pelletier performance hall (operated by Le Coeur du Village, a not-for-profit based out of Sutton), the biggest surprise of all were the artists themselves.

The key people in the band are Moksha Sommer and Jemal Wade Hines. "We're the benevolent dictatorship that's the core," explains Moksha. "We have a lot of the same musicians involved and work with a lot of different people, and it will be kind of different formations at different times. So, we are the completely psychotically committed core members."

HuDost (a Sufi greeting meaning "true friend of the shared breath") plays a variety of venues from small to large outdoor festivals and prefers to expand its sound when possible by adding other musicians to the group's lineup. The fact that the Sutton showroom is small and intimate, required Moksha and Jemal to have a "less is more" attitude.

"The evening's performance featured the two of us in our most naked, stripped down form as a duo and we were far more acoustic than usual," says Moksha. "We actually call our music neo-folk-world rock because it's such a wide array of different styles."

Having listened to Trapeze, a CD they released in 2009 with an abundance of great sounding tunes, I had grown accustomed to their sound as a band and had no idea what to expect that night in Sutton.

"Some of our performances are as a band, where we incorporate musicians of varying sensibilities and backgrounds and often include performance art and dance," says Moksha. "As a duo our instrumentation includes vocals, harmonium (Indian Pump-Organ), Shahi Baaja (Electric Indian Auto-Harp), guitars, Bazouki, Dulcinet, percussion, and a slew of sonic ambient effects. Our music blends Pop and Rock with traditional Sufi music, Bulgarian, Croatian, Macedonian and Balkan folk music, Farsi, Turkish, Arabic, and Folk.

Included in their set list were a couple of covers, but mainly the original works of Moksha and Jemal stood out. Their melodies, arrangements and vocals are outstanding.

"I was born in Tennessee and grew up in Florida playing punk-rock music, rock music and that kind of thing," recalls Jemal. "I'm an instant gratification kind of guy...A month or two after buying my first guitar...I wanted to be in a band. What better way to start? You don't have to learn anything. You can just turn up the amps, get a bunch of pedals and make noise.

At some point I became a "Dead Head" for a while. The whole psychedelic music scene brought it more into the jamming/improvising aspect of things. We like to make it different every time."

"I was born in the hospital at Cowansville and am a total Townshipper," says Moksha. "A lot of my training was classical and Eastern European...I was with a couple of different groups that primarily focused on Eastern European music...I was also able to study in Turkey and in India.

We actually met at a festival in North Carolina. It was a Rumi festival (Rumi the Persian poet) and it was a wild festival of busloads of crazy Turks...who all became our friends. Really wonderful people, and it was a whole celebration of poetry, music and dance. That was sort of the point (in our relationship), that there where the first inklings of love and creative connection."

Eastern European melodic stylizations are often present in their vocal and instrumental arrangements. Even when playing a straight-up sounding country folk piece the mix of cultures is present.

"Our latest album "HuDost & Steve Kilbey – The word is..." is a collaborative record with Steve Kilbey, primary singer/songwriter and bass player for the Australian band The Church," explains Jemal. "...It's been a very long but creative process...We also have Jon Anderson from 'Yes,' on the CD, which is very exciting. He co-wrote one of the songs and sings on it as well.

'Yes' became one of my biggest influences, especially Jon, and I'm not a bass player but if I was I would want to play like Chris Squire."

"Speaking of direction," says Moksha, "our next album to be released soon is called Sufi Kirtan a world chant project...it's the integration of sacred phrases from a few different traditions. We've written the bulk of the melodies and arrangements on that CD."

For those of us not familiar with the term Sufi Kirtan let me break it down: Sufi — an adherent of any of various Muslim mystical orders or teachings, which emphasize the direct personal experience of God and Kirtan — (Hinduism) — devotional singing, usually accompanied by musical instruments.

Benson enlists young and old in latest tribute to Bob Wills

Country Connection

Jessie Aulis

For the last 45 years Philadelphia-native Ray Benson has been the leader of the Austin-based band Asleep At The Wheel. As a band they have been keeping the name and music of Bob Wills (and his Texas Playboys) alive and well.

The Western swing sound (a mix of jazz and country) was created in the 1940s by Bob Wills. The band marks its anniversary with a new tribute to the King of Western swing and his band, Bob Wills and His Texas Playboys.

Grammy winners Ray Benson and Asleep At The Wheel have just release another album titled Still The King. With this brand new collection, Benson and Asleep At The Wheel bring together a stellar cast of Texas music peers and a new generation of Americana artists inspired by one of Texas' favourite artists, Bob Wills.

This album is the third in a Wills' song trilogy from Benson and AATW, a project that took years to complete. This latest collection may be the best of the three as far as music performances and package design are concerned.

Benson enlisted a wide variety of well-known performers. He selected some younger acts such as the Avett Brothers, Old Crow Medicine Show as well as legends like Willie Nelson and Merle Haggard, plus other Texas friends like Lyle Lovett and Robert Earl Keen.

Two of country music's mainstream, George Strait and Brad Paisley join in too. Among the guests on this album are also two Texas Playboys veterans (members of the original Bob Wills' band), saxophonist Billy Briggs, 92, and 87-year-old Leon Rausch, who joined Bob Wills' band in 1958 and was his featured vocalist until the mid 60s, when a stroke and a series of heart attacks, ended the band leader's career.

The finished product offers a great balance between the old and the new; artists in their twenties play alongside those who have been onstage for decades and the musical selection is great.

Benson saw the album as an opportunity to include some younger musicians and to bring Wills' work to new generations. This album should please both those who are discovering Western swing and lifelong listeners.

In this tribute to the King of Western swing, there's not a disappointing track out of the 22 tracks included on the album.

The CD opens with "Texas Playboy Theme," featuring original Texas Playboy member Leon Rausch. Saxophonist Billy Briggs, now over 90, also makes an appearance during "Twin Guitar Special."

Also showcased are the voices of Lyle Lovett and Amos Lee before moving into Old Crow Medicine Show's fast fiddling in their rendition of "Tiger Rag."

Elizabeth Cook's lends her foggy vocals to "I Had Someone Else Before I Had You," and "My Window Faces the South," with Brad Paisley, which also stand out for their toe-tapping material.

Some of those songs were written 80 years ago, they still sound fresh and should find some real supporters in 2015.

Such brilliant collaborations produced a masterpiece that fans will love.

Benson and the band usually have a brighter and livelier modern sound but here they go back to the laid back Wills style and they sound good.

There's a lot of emphasis on steel guitar, fiddle, piano and sax while you also hear harmonica and brass on some songs. Guitar, mandolin, banjo, drums and bass are still present but are used to support the other instruments.

The musicianship is absolutely impressive here. The band covers more than 20 Bob Wills tunes. There's the well-known "Faded Love," "Time Changes Everything," as well as tunes that are less known such as "Ding Dong Daddy from Dumas," "Silver Dew on the Bluegrass Tonight."

Asleep At The Wheel and George Strait team up and provide an excellent delivery of "South of the Border (Down Mexico Way)." This album comes as an admirable introduction to the infectious sound of Western swing for newcomers to the style.

All those songs were hits for Bob Wills, except the closer "Bob Wills is Still the King," which was written by Waylon Jennings and is performed here by his son, Shooter Jennings.

The arrangements are spectacular and the album never sounds over produced. They kept the raw swing feel and never lost the essence of Western Swing Music.

The packaging is beautifully done with originality and creativity. The CD box is designed to look like a box of Bob Wills cigars and it opens to reveal the CD and a pocket, which contains a wonderful 20-page booklet of photos of Bob Wills and the AATW band.

It also includes two pages written by Benson and track listings, with comments also by Benson. There's a lot of information included here.

Four of the nine Grammy awards that Asleep At The Wheel has won in its 20-plus album career were awarded for two previous album-length tributes to Bob Wills.

There was the 1993 Asleep At The Wheel Tribute to the Music of Bob Wills and the Texas Playboys, and its 1999 follow-up, "Ride With Bob." This new release will be such a wonderful addition to your collection.

Wednesday's Phoenix win confirms that there will be a Game 6 in the series, which will be at the Sports Palace on Monday night.

Phoenix hoping to return home with series lead

By John Edwards
Sherbrooke

The Sherbrooke Phoenix have a chance to return home from their weeklong trip to Charlottetown with the upper hand in their first-round Quebec Major Junior Hockey League series.

Game 5 in the best-of-seven series is set for tonight at the Eastlink Centre in Charlottetown. The teams go into the game tied at two games apiece, after the Phoenix held on for a 2-1 victory in Game 4 on Wednesday night.

On Wednesday, a two-point night from Jérémy Roy led the Phoenix to the win over the Islanders.

Roy opened the scoring with a power-play goal at the 1:16 mark of the first period, the only goal of the first period.

He picked up an assist on Tim Wieser's game-winning goal, at 15:06 of the second. Wieser's marker, his second of the series, was also on the power play.

Luc Deschenes replied for the Islanders late in the second. In the third period, the Islanders fired 17 shots at Phoenix goalie Alex Bureau, but the office stayed closed.

Charlottetown outshot Sherbrooke 39-31, with Bureau, a surprise starter, making 38 saves to pick up his first career playoff win. Daryl MacCallum, starting in place of the injured Mason McDonald, made 29 saves in a losing cause.

Sherbrooke was 2-for-3 on the power play, while Charlottetown was 1-for-5.

Wednesday's Phoenix win confirms that there will be a Game 6 in the series, which will be at the Sports Palace on Monday night.

Tickets for Game 6 are now on sale at the Sports Palace box office.

Game 7, if needed, would be Tuesday night at the Sports Palace, also with a 7 p.m. faceoff.

Grapes and Haskell named Galt athletes of the month

Record Staff
Lennoxville

Brianna Grapes from the senior girls basketball team and Hunter Haskell from the senior boys hockey team have been named the Piper Athletes of the months for March.

Grapes averaged 12 points, six assists and six rebounds per game during the month while helping her team win the silver medal in the RSEQ AA league play offs.

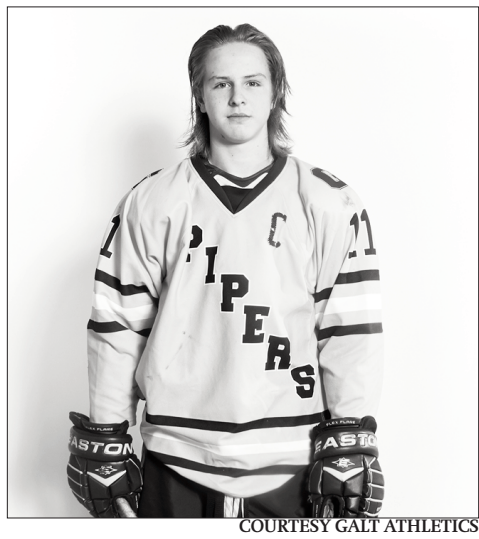

The shooting guard hit many clutch shots throughout the month, including three pointers. The 15-year-old leads by example on and off the court. She constantly works hard on perfecting her basketball skills during lunch hours, basketball concentration and practices. The Waterville resident is also on the honour roll list for her academic achievements. The Grade 10 student will return next year and provide more great leadership and, hopefully, championships.

Haskell helped lead the Pipers to an ETIAC playoff championship while recording five goals and three assists in three games. The veteran centre logged heavy minutes on the power play and penalty kill as well.

The 16-year-old used his blazing speed to create space and scoring chances for his teammates.

The Stanstead native will return next year and his leadership and experience will be vital for the young team to be successful.

I told him it's called "tough love" and that I refuse to watch him destroy himself

FRIDAY, APRIL 3, 2015

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I have a 30-year-old son. "Brad" was the perfect child, loving and affectionate, until the age of 16. That's when I divorced my drug-addicted husband. I sheltered the children as much as I could from what their father was doing.

When I transferred Brad to a public school, he got involved in drugs, quit school, became verbally abusive, did a stint in jail and more. I remarried a wonderful man who showed Brad nothing but love. Any disciplining was done by me.

When I found out Brad was doing drugs at age 21, I kicked him out of the house. He abused steroids and who knows what else. He blames me for the way he is because I kicked him out. He claims no mother would do that. I told him it's called "tough love" and that I refuse to watch him destroy himself.

I have not spoken to Brad in five months. Christmas and my birthday have come and gone with no acknowledgment. My heart is just so broken. Should I reach out to him or let him figure out life on his own? Do I wish him a happy birthday next month? I don't know what to do anymore. — Brokenhearted Mom

Dear Brokenhearted: Tough love can also be tough on the parents. You did nothing wrong by expecting your adult son to move out of the house. Even kids who are not abusing drugs ought to leave the nest by then. Brad finds it easier to blame you for what is wrong with his life than to accept responsibility for his own actions. Until he figures it out, all you can do is wait and hope. But you can send him a birthday card and also find support from others in your situation through Because I Love You at bily.org. Good luck.

Dear Annie: I was saddened by the letter from "L.H. in Montgomery," the 82-year-old woman who has been searching for love for 40 years.

My husband and I are senior citizens, 75 and 80 years old. We have been dancing (ballroom style) in senior centers and other dance organizations for 25 years. It is amazing how many friendships and relationships are developed between us "old people" when we're dancing. Of course, none of us feels old.

Please tell L.H. to check out local senior centers or those in other towns nearby. She also could check for social dance clubs (ballroom style dancing, country dancing, etc.) in her area. One of our area senior dancers teaches line dancing, which is a great way to dance if you don't have a partner. Dancing is great social interaction. I hope she can find something in her area. — Suisun City, Calif.

Dear Suisun City: Thank you for the suggestion. There are many excellent activities for people of all ages who are looking to meet others. Trying to find someone online is OK as far as it goes, but nothing beats meeting folks in person who are also participating in an activity you enjoy.

Richmond County W.I. Annual County Meeting

March 21, 2015

The annual general meeting of the Richmond County W.I. was held on Saturday, March 21, 2015 at St. Andrew's Church Hall in Melbourne. President, Vera Hughes, called the meeting to order at 9:30 a.m. followed by a minute of silence for deceased W.I. members, Sandra Truax Johnston and Kathleen Brock. Twenty-two members answered the roll call.

The minutes of the semi-annual meeting were approved as read.

Mona McGee gave the Secretary's Report. Correspondence was read. A thank you was received from Laura Bourbeau for the bursary awarded to her. An invitation to Stanstead County W.I. for their anniversary celebration. Also an invitation from the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 15 to participate in the Canada Day Parade. We also received a memory stick from Marjorie Dunlavey with a copy of the letter written by Marion Jamieson with the first few years of the R.C.W.I.

Marjorie Lancaster, interim treasurer, gave the treasurer's report. Bills were presented for travel for Joyce Cinnamon to Hemmingford, Matty Banfill expenses for sunshine for the year and for the Church Hall rental and the printing of the booklets to Cindy Jackson. Books will be audited in September 2015.

A motion was made to pay all bills.

Moved by: Cindy Jackson, Seconded by: Joyce Cinnamon All in favour.

Vera Hughes showed a chart on breakdown of expenses to QWI and a breakdown of the expenses and income for Richmond County.

Committee Chair Reports were read. Cindy Jackson gave the Agriculture Report. She mentioned that she would get the new programs to each branch. Patricia Keenan-Adank gave the Education & Personal Development report. She has received 42 essay entries from St. Francis Elementary School for the Past President's Essay contest. She mentioned that Tina Pezzi Bilodeau has replaced her as Commission for the E.T.S.B.

Health & Community Living was given by Louise Perkins. Louise mentioned the Royal Canadian Legion's Canada Day Parade on June 28 and that this is the 50th anniversary of the Canadian Flag. Publicity report was given by Mona McGee. Louise Perkins reported that 7 cards had been sent out for Sunshine. President's Report was given by Vera Hughes.

Motion: All reports were moved by the convenors and seconded by Muriel Duffy.

Unfinished Business: Richmond Volunteer Night is April 16 and each branch can send in a name.

Vera Hughes read off the list of QWI crafts for 2015. These need to be to Vera by May 20, so she can take them to Convention to be judged.

Interbranch Competition is a 6 inch clay pot decorated with cloth. Each branch has a copy.

If ordering Abby Pritchard throws, give Vera everything and she will pick them up.

All WI pins are available from Vera or Marjorie. 10 year pins cost $5 each. Certificates of Appreciation can be applied for. These are for 55, 60, 65 and 70 years. It was decided that a list be made of what pins are available in each group and these can be brought to the semi-annual meeting to be kept in one place.

Joyce Cinnamon played a CD from Karine Vallieres from the National Assembly, congratulating Richmond County on their 90th Anniversary.

Each branch should send in names of new members to Norma Sherrer at QWI for a contest.

Election of Officers: Fran Dewar acted as Chairperson for the Election of Officers.

Joyce Cinnamon from Gore gave the list from the nominating committee. All offices would remain the same except Treasurer, which needed to be filled.

Marjorie Lancaster was nominated as Treasurer.

Motion: Moved by Muriel Duffy and Seconded by Louise Perkins. Marjorie accepted .

New Slate of Officers for 2015 - 2016 is:
President: Vera Hughes

President-Elect: Joyce Cinnamon
1st Vice President: Cindy Jackson

Secretary: Mona McGee
Treasurer: Marjorie Lancaster

Agriculture: Cindy Jackson
Education & Personal Development: Patricia Keenan-Adank
Health & Community Living: Louise Perkins
Publicity & Awareness: Mona McGee

Motion: Cindy Jackson moved that all offices are filled as listed. Seconded by Alice Weare.

Bread Tags, pop tabs, and stamps go to the Veteran's Hospital in Montreal. Fran Dewar reported that 46 sailor's shoeboxes had been sent to the Port of Quebec. Also stuffed toys, puzzles, magazines and jackets can be sent.

Entertainment was put on by Spooner Pond W.I. Anne Clark at the piano and her partner, "Kermit the Frog" played by Muriel Duffy, led everyone in an Irish Sing-along. Great fun. Then Vera Hughes spoke on the Hotellerie at the CHU where cancer patients can stay for the week while going through treatments. This is sponsored by the Quebec Cancer Society. Room with bathroom accommodates 2 people and some rooms are for couples. They have kitchen facilities, entertainment, crafts, and movie nights.

Lunch was served by Richmond Young Women.

Craig Dewar donated three baskets of products to raise money for Richmond County. After lunch, names were drawn and the lucky winners were: Estelle Blouin, Eileen Mastine & Freda Coote.

New Business: Marjorie Lancaster reported on the upcoming trip to Lake Champlain on the 5th of June. If anyone is interested, please contact Marjorie.

Participation in the Canada Day Parade was discussed. Cindy Jackson and Louise Perkins will coordinate a float. Date is June 28 and is the 50th year for the Canadian Flag. A large flag was donated to us from Karine Vallieres.

Richmond 4H will be holding the 4H Rally from July 17 to 19, 2015. This will be their 100th anniversary. The theme is tractors. Vera will get more information at Convention as the W.I. will be responsible for some of the judging. Vera will contact the Agriculture Convenors later.

The QWI Convention will be on May 23. The theme is the Canadian Flag. Ellis Clark is willing to drive a van load of people to Convention. If interested get in touch with him.

Point of interest to be aware of is that 2016 will be the 140th Anniversary of Richmond Fair.

Patricia Keenan-Adank mentioned that the QFA is looking for an Executive Director. Patricia will call a meeting with Education Convenors to judge the essay competitions.

FWIC meet in Fredericton this year from June 9 to 13.

Semi-annual Meeting: The semi-annual meeting will be held on Monday, Sept. 28, 2015 at 9:30 a.m. at the St. Andrews Church hall. Cleveland W.I. is in charge of snacks.

As there was no further business Vera Hughes adjourned the meeting at 1:25 p.m.

Missisquoi County Women's Institute

On March 24 the Missisquoi County Women's Institute's annual meeting was held in the Memorial Hall, Stanbridge East, with the Stanbridge East Branch hosting. There were twenty-two members and one guest in attendance. Everyone met at 9:30 a.m. for coffee, tea, muffins and lots of chit chat.

President Joyce Martin called the meeting to order at 10 a.m., thanked the hostesses and everyone for coming.

Roll Call: What is your Pet Peeve? There were many interesting answers.

The Mary Stewart Collect and Salute to the Flag were repeated in unison. The agenda was accepted after several changes.

Three memorials were read by Norma Sherrer, President of Fordyce. The minutes of the semi-annual meeting were read by Secretary Betty Perry. In the future, copy of the Minutes of the annual and semi-annual meeting will be sent to each Branch President and Secretary prior to the next meeting. The Secretary then read the correspondence received and the Secretary's annual report.

Treasurer Shirley Vaughan gave an update of her Report plus the Treasurer's annual report. A collection of Coins for Friendship were taken.

Wool gathering for 2014: Dunham - 97, Fordyce - 228, Stanbridge East - 40. New Members: Dunham - 2, Fordyce - 1, Stanbridge East - 2.

The Committee Chair reports for year 2014 were given by the Chairpersons.

President Joyce Martin presented a Certificate of Appreciation to June Lemay for her hard energetic work for the Women's Institute and her composed Animal Rights Petition, which she presented to Mr. Pierre Paradis.

Break for lunch. After repeating the Grace, a delicious pot luck lunch was enjoyed.

The President called to the front Norma Sherrer and her dog Zoe (Zoe was absent) and Pearle Yates and her dog Tinker. They received Membership Certificates to the Women's Institute.

Updates were given by Norma Sherrer and Judy Page Jones for the FWIC, ACWW, and the Q.W.I. Convention on May 23, 2015.

Installation of New Officers was done, with Jean Cogswell as the new President. Joyce Martin was presented with a Thank you gift for her three years as President.

The semi-annual meeting will be held on September 23, 2015. It will be a pot luck lunch.

Courtesies were said - goodbyes said, until we meet again.

Jean Reid Page,
Publicity Chairperson

If you bid up, play up also

By Phillip Alder

Khalil Gibran, a Lebanese artist, poet and writer, said, "The teacher who is indeed wise does not bid you to enter the house of his wisdom, but rather leads you to the threshold of your mind."

That is so true.

At the bridge table, after bidding, you must apply your mind to winning the requisite number of tricks. In today's deal, South pushes into six hearts. West leads the spade 10 to South's ace. How should declarer continue?

In the auction, South's two-heart rebid was forcing, since North's two-over-one response guaranteed a rebid. When South heard about respectable heart support, he plunged into Blackwood. He upgraded for his secondary club fit.

If trumps are 2-2, there will be no problems. If they are 4-0, the contract has no chance. But what if they are 3-1? Then it looks as if declarer would need the club finesse to work. However, there is another possibility.

South cashes his heart ace, plays a diamond to dummy's ace, ruffs a diamond in his hand, leads a heart to dummy's king (getting the bad news), and ruffs the last diamond. Then declarer plays off his other two spade winners. With his preparations complete, South exits with a trump, giving East the lead.

Here, East has only clubs left in his hand, so must play away from his queen into dummy's ace-jack. Note, though, that if East still has a spade or diamond in his hand, declarer would ruff and take the club finesse.

Your Birthday

SATURDAY, APRIL 4, 2015

It's time to put your needs first. You are a naturally helpful and kind soul, but it is up to you to secure your future. Resentment will ensue if you continue to let others demand too much of your time. Make your goals your top priority.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may be surprised to learn how many people are on your side. Don't be afraid to call in favors and ask for assistance. Your efforts will not go unnoticed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You will miss an important detail if you are too impatient. Taking the time to go over your work thoroughly will prevent you from having to start all over again.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Your stress level is on the rise. Plan a pleasurable day with family, friends or neighbors. Include the younger members of your group for added fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Don't rely on others to bring you out of your funk. Treat yourself to something special. Go shopping or sightseeing, or take in a cultural or sporting event.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Let your creativity shine. You should share your talents with as many people as possible. If you maintain a positive outlook, Lady Luck will pay you a visit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Don't expect others to help you get ahead. Do your homework and take the steps that lead to success. You have the knowledge you need, so stop wasting time and get moving.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Staying on top of trends will be a key factor in getting ahead. Upgrade your skills and your look if you want to be seen as a leader.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Trust in the decisions you make. Doubts will weigh you down and impede your progress. Don't be dissuaded by the concerns or comments of others. Aim to come out on top.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Put your worries aside. Arrange a gathering of friends and family for some lighthearted entertainment. You have what it takes to be the perfect host and to bring people together.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Stop berating yourself if things don't go your way. You can only control so much, and you risk damaging your health if you dwell only on the negative possibilities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Plan a makeover or update your image. The better you look, the better you'll feel. A new look will refresh and rejuvenate you, giving you the energy required to get ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — You will wear yourself out if you fight the changes that are going on around you. Find a way to fit in rather than go against the grain.

SUNDAY, APRIL 5, 2015

Make a point to have some fun. Let go of the relationships that stand between you and success. Surround yourself with intelligent peers who appreciate your fine qualities. You will feel as though a weight has been lifted from your shoulders if you start moving in a positive direction.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Your hard work will pay off. Promote what you have to offer and present your skills with confidence. Be assertive, and focus on others' expectations and the success you desire.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — If you feel stuck in your current position, rethink your goals and plans. Giving in to fear or doubt will not lead to success or happiness.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Upgrade your skills and increase your knowledge through seminars, an apprenticeship or research. The road to your perfect future will turn out to be shorter than you think.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You need to take better care of your mental and physical health. Get adequate rest and good nutrition. Say no to the demands of others, and recharge your batteries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Actions speak louder than words. Your determination and hard work is well-known, and will lead to greater admiration and attention from others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Don't be caught off-guard. Make preparations for the week ahead in order to avoid nerve-wracking last-minute decisions. If you are organized and collected, you will be an asset for others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Diplomacy and tact will have others eating out of your hand. Plan to do something special with someone you love. Don't be surprised if an old friend tries to reconnect. Proceed with caution.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — You have the drive and determination to make it to the top. Versatility and adaptability will be key factors in your success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Someone will misinterpret your easygoing nature and try to take advantage of you. Express clearly what you will and will not do. Stick to your principles and don't jeopardize your reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Don't feel obligated to keep up with others. If you stick to your schedule, you will do just fine. Trying to maintain an unrealistic pace will wear you out physically and emotionally.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — A personal relationship appears to be gaining momentum. Planning a fun trip will add a spark of romance and adventure to your personal life. Enjoy the moment and make your intentions clear.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — You'll have trouble making up your mind. Don't make a long-term commitment, and refrain from negotiation until you are certain of the terms and conditions that are important to you.
