“Mommy, Me Too Piano?”

By Zachary-Cy Vanasse

Fresh off her appearance at this summer's Montreal Jazz Festival, multi-language singer and pianist Florence K is now coming to Magog's Le Vieux Clocher.

As Florence K tells it, music has been a part of her life from the day she was born. Her musical parents, her mother an opera singer and her father a guitarist, had her surrounded by music in her earliest days, and at the age of just three she asked her mother, who was a piano teacher, “Mommy, me too piano?”

At just six-years-old she made her television debut playing Brahms lullaby on Radio-Canada's “Démons du Midi.” She continued to play piano through her childhood and into her teen years; she turned to classical singing in the latter part of the 1990's.

While studying for her DEC in Modern Languages and Communications, the young musician took the opportunity to learn a variety of languages, studying Italian, Spanish, German, Arabic and Portuguese. The melding of her new knowledge of world languages and her new-found love of singing helped create the diverse songscape she now performs.

Her love of languages and the cultures of the world grew even more thanks in large part to a singing role on the European Tour of Night at the Proms, which starred her mother Natalie Choquette as well as others accompanied by a symphony orchestra. The tour included stadium performances in Belgium, Holland, Germany, Denmark and Switzerland.

Tickets are still available for Words and Music, Saturday's musical contribution to the Letters From Knowlton event. The concert will take place at Galerie Bistro Carpe Diem on August 1 at 7 p.m. and will feature the musical and poetic talents of Sarah Biggs, Ian Ferrier and Amos Joannides.

Sarah Biggs, a fifth-generation Townshippier, lives in West Brome with her husband and two daughters. Her second album of original songs, Rising Sign, was released in 2007 and she is working on a third. "My intention is to reflect my Eastern Townships roots, to capture that Appalachian foothills feel," Biggs says of her music. "This is my heart's home." To hear samples of her music visit her website <http://sarahbiggs.ca>.

Ian Ferrier, poet and musician, is well known across Canada, Europe and in New York on the performance literature scene. He co-founded the poetry/music label Wired on Words which won a Standard Broadcasting Award in its first year. Ferrier currently resides in Montreal where he hosts a monthly Words and Music literature series, now in its ninth year. He is also a member and past president of the Quebec Writers' Federation. For more information on Ian Ferrier visit his websites <http://ianferrier.com> and <http://mysapce.com/pharmakinmtl> or e-mail at poets@wiredonwords.com.

Amos Joannides is a former Massey-Vanier student who spent his formative years in the Townships. His musical style included pop and hip-hop influences, as well as folk and flamenco. Joannides recorded his first album My Name is Amos with Westbrome Records. For more information or to hear tracks from his album visit his website www.amosj.com.

Tickets for Words and Music are $10 and can be purchased at Brome Lake Books (450-242-2242), the Chamber of Commerce (450-242-2870) or at Lac Brome Town Hall (450-243-6111).

Jacques Lecours: Our Newest Contributor at CIDI

You Gotta Love it!

By Maurice Singfield (with a little help from his friend)

When we truly believe in something, it's quite natural to want to help, sustain and develop the things we love. Jacques Lecours is such a person.

As a town planner for 40 years, Lecours worked for a number of towns and cities throughout the Laurentians and the Townships including St. Jerome, Lachute and St. Eustache.

"Communities have to plan their land use otherwise development goes left and right, in all directions," explains Lecours. "Sewers, water mains, recreational facilities and industry have to be in the right place in order to prevent sprawl."

Lecours' expertise also lies in heritage planning and environmental protection, skills that have guaranteed him employment over the years. At the age of 25 he started his own firm and ended up working at Hydro Quebec for twenty years before taking his retirement.

"I became Hydro's heritage guy," says Lecours. "Hydro takes its old installations, such as generating plants, very seriously and wants to ensure that buildings retain their original look as technology is updated."

Lecours says that Hydro collects old machinery in order to better understand the evolution of technology, and that heritage planning involves not only the buildings themselves but the terrain they are built upon. Of course, there's always the issue of environmental protection, which Lecours is equally qualified to deal with.

After years of renting houses for ski getaways in the Glen mountain region

COURTESY CIDI

Jacques Lecours, CIDI's newest rock 'n' roll wannabe of Brome Missisquoi, he decided to retire in our corner of the Eastern Townships.

"In order to stay out of trouble," says Lecours, "I play the piano, do theatre improv at Sutton, and take drawing, history of jazz and Spanish courses at the Bishop's campus here in Knowlton."

Why do I feel good about Lecours having an interest in the arts & science of living? In a way I have benefited directly from his curiosity, seeing that he has become the latest host of CIDI's Around Town, sharing the duties with Dewey Durrell and Chuck Christie.

The CIDI weekly show deals with topical issues, such as politics, business, the environment and the arts in and around the Town of Brome Lake. Being who he is, Lecours has found yet another thing to do, in his quest to "stay out of trouble."

Currently he is the chairperson of Rue Principale in Brome Lake, a project based on Mainstreets U.S. in the States. It's a community-based revitalization program aimed at developing the downtown centers of Knowlton, Foster and Fulford.

Two years ago, the three year program was set up by the Town of Brome Lake and its Chamber of Commerce, creating four committees working in the areas of economic development, cultural development, promotion and town planning. To date it has about 200 volunteers working together and has given the community an opportunity to talk things out as far as its future, immediate, medium and long term direction and aspirations are concerned.

"Already we have seen results," says Lecours. "Knowlton has some new businesses and an action plan has been adopted by the chamber of commerce and the town, setting out all of the things that need to be done."

As well, we have been active in the festival of lights, the creation of Brome Lake Day and the Letters from Knowlton literary festival."

But why is he interested in radio?

"CIDI is a very useful component of our community," Lecours points out. "Cohesion within a community comes from communication and I can't think of a better way to bring it together."

"We live in a region that is spread out, so the more we know about each other the more cultural and social development takes place."

Well said, but I but wonder if Lecours isn't a rock 'n' roll star wannabe at heart. When he showed me his guitar, keyboard and amplifier music room in the upstairs of his home in Knowlton I was blown away. One never knows what to expect from a retired town planner who takes music appreciation courses. Maybe he wants CIDI to play his tunes? And why not? That's what we're here for, there is always room for new people and we welcome them gladly and gratefully.

Florence K Coming to the Townships

It was only once Florence K returned from Europe and landed a gig as a pianist in Old Montreal that she returned to the piano, though not to her classically trained roots. Instead she quickly began to find a love for pop and jazz.

While attending the University of Ottawa and earning a degree in communications, she would eventually finish at the University of Montreal, she continued to play regularly in Old Montreal. The bar gigs demanded she continue to widen her musical knowledge. Her evolution grew from not just music in a variety of languages, but now to many genres. If a clientele demanded a certain style, she wanted to make sure she could do it.

A stint in Morocco singing with a group called Baltic Avenue is where she feels she truly began to gain stage experience. Her worldly travels, her extensive knowledge of languages and her ability to find a comfort zone in nearly any style of music were all evident on her debut album "Two Hands, One Piano," from which she gave the proceeds to Cystic Fibrosis Association of Outaouais.

Her debut album with her label Red Blues

Productions was a live album recorded at the Lion D'Or in Montreal because she has said "the most real and magnificent musical moments, the most beautiful solos and the deepest emotions are expressed live, on stage."

Following studio albums and tours around the world, Florence K is still in the early days of her musical evolution. One can only expect that the more she sees of the world, both musically and literally, the more she will continue to incorporate into her music. She has said that she wants to continue to learn languages and improve on some of the ones she only has a basic knowledge of.

She can also be expected to grow outside of the music. She was named an ambassador for UNICEF Quebec and has said she wants to educate the people in her home province on the condition of the children across the world being deprived of fundamental rights.

Check out Florence K in these early years of what is expected to be a long and expansive career at Le Vieux Clocher in Magog on Sunday, August 2. Tickets are $30 and can be reserved through the Vieux Clocher Magog by calling 819-847-0470. Showtime is scheduled for 8:30 p.m.

Dog lovers are a contradictory bunch. We bring home an adorable little bundle of fur called a puppy, aiming to make him a shining example of good citizenship. The applause would be deafening! Other dog owners will be envious! Little Pupsie would learn not to jump on people, not to burrow beneath anything embarrassing, and to never, ever climb on furniture.

And then he's taught to jump, burrow, and climb on furniture. It's called "agility", and in the new book "Dogged Pursuit" by Robert Rodi, you'll read about one man's leap into a growing sport, and what it taught him about himself and his dog.

During a dinner party some years ago, Robert Rodi was telling fellow diners woeful tales of "raising a fiendishly intelligent, demonically driven Shetland sheepdog." That was when Rodi learned about agility, a dog-and-human competition consisting of hurdles, tunnels, weaving poles, teeter-totters, and platforms. Rodi started working with his dog, Carmen, and she was quite good at it. Unfortunately, she suffered a career-killing injury and had to be retired.

But agility was in Rodi's blood now. He needed a new dog.

After applying online for other dogs in his Chicago area, Rodi found Dusty, a scruffy, funny-looking "cryptic blue" Sheltie available from a nearby rescue group. Although Dusty seemed to be almost indifferent to agility training, Rodi set out to make the pooch a pro.

Following agility classes, Rodi entered Dusty into competitions around Chicago, joining the All Fours agility group. The group was friendly enough, but Rodi felt uncomfortable, out of place, like he didn't belong. And although Dusty had won a few ribbons early-on, he started acting as if he didn't know what he was doing anymore and his scores were embarrassing to Rodi.

Agility was turning out to be more irritation than enjoyment.

Willing to try anything for the elusive alphabet soup that follows a champion's name, Rodi consulted his teammates. He hired a "dog whisperer" and tried aromatherapy for the both of them. He tried to keep positive and focused for Dusty's sake.

But anyone who's ever loved a dog knows that you can't teach a dog something the dog doesn't want to learn. When Rodi took a break - literally - everything leaped into place.

"Dogged Pursuit" is funny and sweet, a true dog-lover's tale with one near-caveat: while it initially appears that author Robert Rodi sees Dusty as a means to an end, it quickly becomes obvious that he adores the pup. But while his readers are learning that, Rodi tells a story every dog owner has lived - that of trying to make a dog do something he won't do for you, but is perfectly willing to do for someone else.

As the human Mama to a long line of like-minded canine couch potatoes, I looked very forward to reading this book, and I'm happy to say it's a tail-wagger.

If you've been jumping from book to book, in search of something good to read, get this one. "Dogged Pursuit" is the pick of the litter.

Watching Discovery Channel's annual "Shark Week" specials makes one wonder if the station is in cahoots with a swimming pool company.

The 22nd annual festival of dorsal-finned predators could keep the hardest surfer on land. Stunning photography makes viewers feel as if they're there, which is terrifying, especially because this year's films are especially bloody. Yet for those who can't get enough of sharks, it's the place to be.

The week launches Sunday, Aug. 2, with "Blood in the Water," which carries a viewer discretion warning. The first known shark attacks in the United States occurred off New Jersey during a heat wave and polio epidemic in the summer of 1916. Swimming in the ocean was still a relatively novel concept, and no one knew of sharks attacking humans.

It's against this backdrop that the film — hewing closely to period fashion, settings and language — unfolds. As the film repeats throughout, these attacks inspired the story of "Jaws." In 12 days, five people were attacked, four killed.

As a lifeguard watches, a man flails in the waters off Beach Haven. A lifeguard rescues him, and the victim is brought into a hotel, where his physician father couldn't save him. Most doctors were not yet trained in administering transfusions, and the 25-year-old man bled to death.

Soon others would be attacked. The film weaves facts into the narrative. For instance, an extremely strong swimmer can cover 5 miles per hour.

"Even Michael Phelps cannot outswim a shark," Andy Dehart, a shark specialist with the National Aquarium in Washington, D.C., says in an interview.

Dehart says questions linger over what type of sharks attacked in 1916.

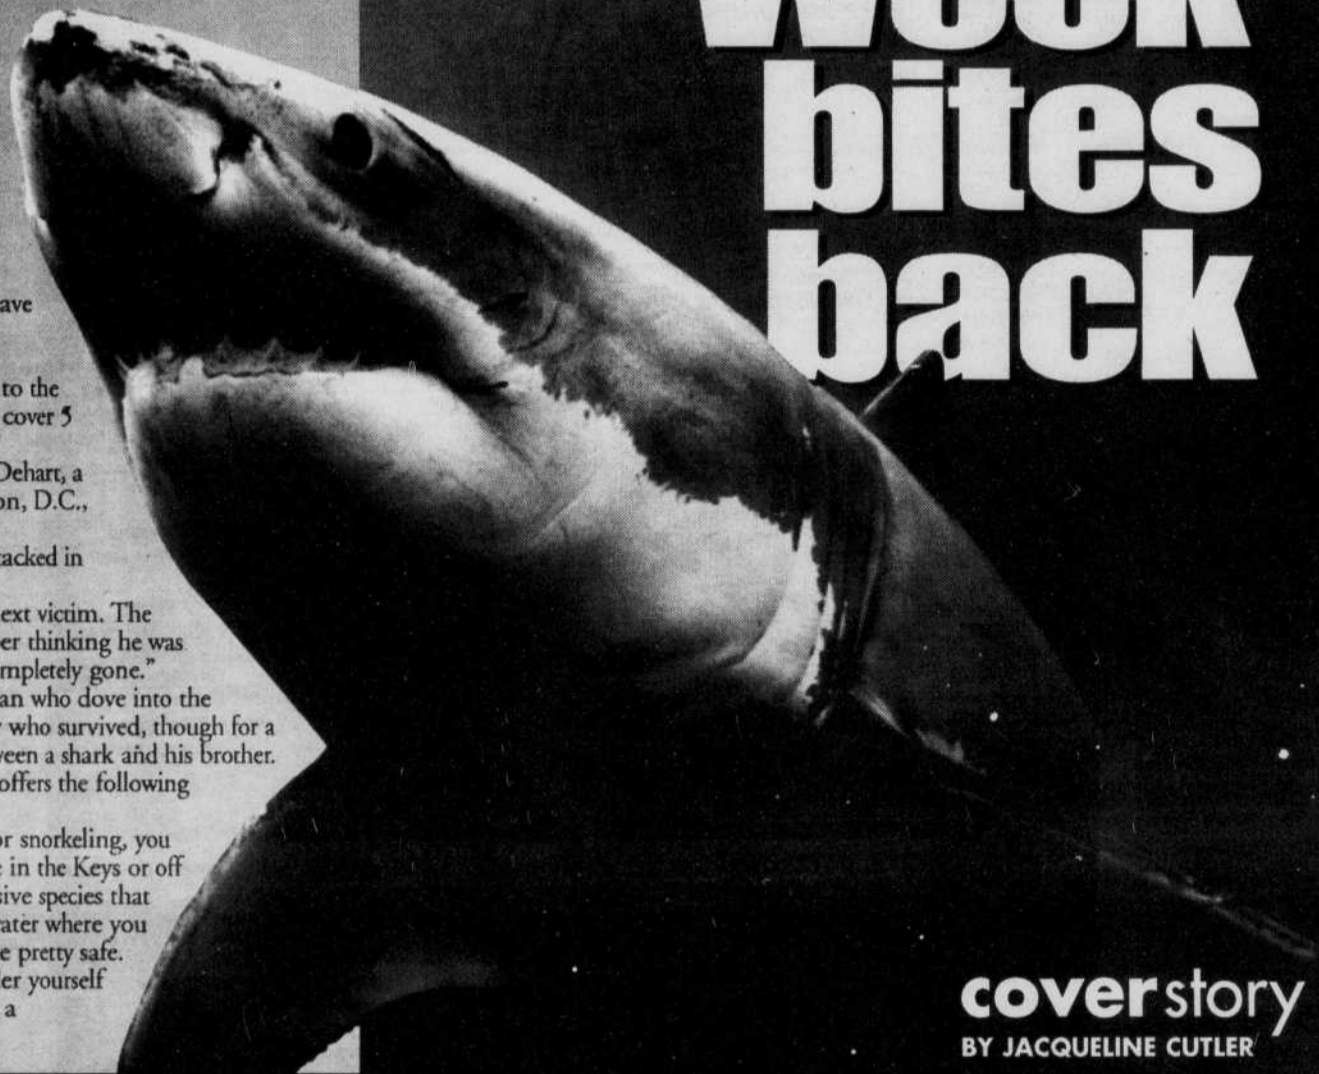

After the young man bled to death, an athlete was the next victim. The lifeguard who pulled him from the water says, "I remember thinking he was very light for a big man, then I saw his lower legs were completely gone."

Another young man was soon killed, as was the Samaritan who dove into the Matawan Creek to save him. The last attack was on a boy who survived, though for a few horrid minutes he was the object of a tug of war between a shark and his brother.

Dehart, fascinated by sharks since he first saw one at 5, offers the following advice should anyone find themselves close to a shark.

"In most places in the world, if you are out swimming or snorkeling, you are extremely safe, in most cases," Dehart says. "If you are in the Keys or off the coast, they are most likely small, extremely nonaggressive species that have rarely been implicated in any attacks. If you are in water where you can see 30 feet away, these are great circumstances. You are pretty safe. My personal advice is observe sharks' behavior and consider yourself lucky and enjoy the experience just as you would viewing a mountain lion from a distance."

USA Network still wants to 'Psych' you out

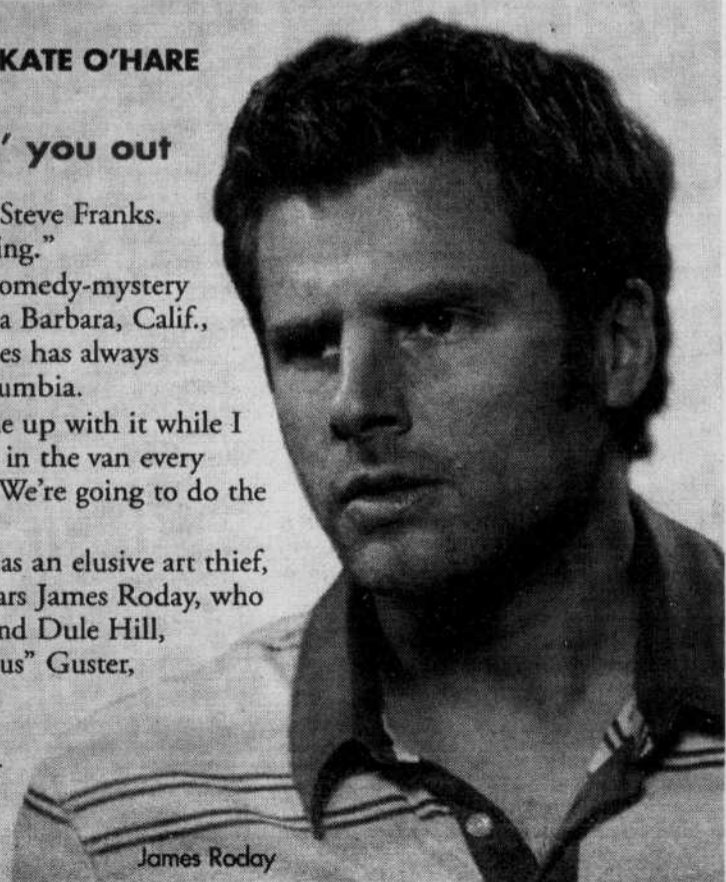

"I just left the mixing stage," says "Psych" creator Steve Franks. "We mixed our season premiere, which is very exciting."

On Friday, Aug. 7, USA Network's faux-psycho comedy-mystery series returns for a fourth season. It's still set in Santa Barbara, Calif., but the season premiere episode is set where the series has always been filmed — the Canadian province of British Columbia.

Says Franks, "(Producer) Andy Berman and I came up with it while I was directing the sea lion episode last year. We were in the van every day, going to all our sets, and we kept saying, 'OK, We're going to do the British Columbia episode.'"

Guest starring Cary Elwes ("The Princess Bride") as an elusive art thief, "Extradition: British Columbia" also allows series stars James Roday, who plays fake psychic and private eye Shawn Spencer, and Dule Hill, who plays his childhood pal and partner Burton "Gus" Guster, to show off their best snow-bunny looks.

As to what the overall plan is for the year, Franks says, "We're just trying to take what we did last year and build on it. We went a little darker here and there; we got a little more emotional."

Esteban Powell

Esteban Powell is a big fan favorite among viewers of the A&E Network drama series "The Cleaner," on which he plays wisecracking recovering meth addict Arnie Swenton. The self-deprecating young actor insists, however, that his show's writers do a lot of the work for him.

"It's funny, people always ask me, 'How do you relate to the character?' and I have to say most of the time it just comes from the brains of the writers," Powell says. "Also, I have a lot of experience being around people dealing with substance abuse of some kind. It's much more tolerated and talked about than it once was. I don't have to go out and shoot heroin or smoke speed on a regular basis to be able to find what's funny and interesting about this character."

BY JOHN CROOK

Powell grew up as a self-described latchkey kid in Houston, where he was raised by a single mother who found a nearby theater company to keep young Esteban busy during her work hours. Acting clicked for the boy, and by his sophomore year at a local performing arts school, he had landed a role in Richard Linklater's indie film hit "Dazed and Confused."

"I made about as much in two weeks as my mom had made in the entire year," Powell recalls. "The dream that was sold to us in high school was Broadway, because theater can be done anywhere, but I decided to move out to the West Coast and take a shot out here."

He did the starving-actor thing before landing a role in the 1996 ABC Saturday morning kids show "Bone Chillers," which also starred Linda Cardellini ("ER"). That show gave him the financial stability that had eluded him, and today he owns his own new-media production studio, The Soundfilm Company.

"Discovery: Shark Week," dsc.discovery.com/convergence/sharkweek/sharkweek.html

The home page for Discovery Channel's annual programming event contains goodies for shark lovers young and old. There's a quiz to show you what kind of a shark you are, an examination of the inner workings of a great white and another quiz to test your shark knowledge. There are also features on shark myths, sharks in the movies, shark attacks, shark finning and which sharks have the top five bites.

"Travel Channel: Man vs. Food," www.travelchannel.com/TV_Shows/Man_v_Food

You might say that Adam Richman travels on his stomach. For his series, this native New Yorker travels all around the country and samples regional dishes and local delicacies. Richman also shoots a video blog — or a vlog — that's on the site. There are also slide shows of the gastronomic adventures, a facility to get mobile alerts, a section where Richman answers questions, missing scenes, polls and social media linkage.

celebrity q&a

BY JAY BOBBIN

Marg Helgenberger

OF 'CSI: CRIME SCENE INVESTIGATION' ON CBS

Q: When you've seen other stars of "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" move on, do you get such thoughts for yourself?

A: Well, I won't lie – in terms of those three actors being gone, I'm still adjusting to that. I'm incredibly fond of all three of them, and it's a process, letting go; I can't just move on, though one has to. I hope I'm accepting of Laurence and Lauren (recent cast additions Laurence Fishburne and Lauren Lee Smith) and whoever else might be on the show.

I'll put it to you this way: It's not necessarily that the thrill is gone, but those early days of being driven by adrenaline are long gone. Now it's about keeping the standards really high. It's really about coming back to the truth, being respectful and not exploitative. There's no shortage of bad (people) in Vegas, on the show as well as in Sin City itself.

Q: Is series creator Anthony Zuiker still a presence on the "CSI" set?

A: With all these spinoffs, I think he ended up taking charge of "CSI: NY" for a while. I don't think he's even involved (directly) in that show anymore. I'm not really sure what he's doing these days.

Q: Do you have hopes for where "CSI" still could go?

A: There are still some stories out there that when I express them to the writers, they get excited. I love the noir aspects to our stories, and I think we could do a modern-day "Chinatown." Not a lot has been done about water rights, and I'm fascinated by how that all goes down.

Q: Is Eric Szmanda from "CSI" related to Jonathan Togo from "CSI: Miami"?

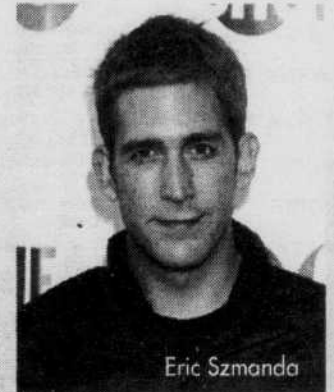

–T. O'Neil, Windsor, Ont.

A: Szmanda is from Wisconsin and has two brothers named Rob and Brett. Togo is from Massachusetts. The two aren't even distantly related.

Q: I see that Kristen Johnston has made several cameo appearances since she co-starred on "3rd Rock From the Sun," but has she done any acting?

–Alan Hurlbut, Wichita, Kan.

A: "Cameo appearances" and "acting" aren't necessarily mutually exclusive, but since her Emmy win for playing alien Sally Solomon on the NBC sitcom, Johnston did a multiple-episode arc on "ER" and also appeared on such shows as "Sex and the City" and "The New Adventures of Old Christine." Johnston's movie work of late has included "Music and Lyrics" and "Bride Wars." She had been aiming for a return to weekly television in a Fox version of the British comedy series "Absolutely Fabulous," but the network ultimately didn't pick up the project.

Spencer Shay from 'iCarly'

Since the dawn of TV time, whenever characters have been artists, they had to don a beret and vaguely French clothes.

Among the reasons to love Nickelodeon's "iCarly," airing Saturdays, is that it doesn't stoop to clichés in writing, acting or wardrobe. Spencer (Jerry Trainor), Carly's guardian and older brother, is an artist.

And he dresses as a 21st century Seattle-based artist in his 20s would. In this case, that means jeans and funny T-shirts, layered with thermal and Western shirts. He looks like a guy whose profession requires him to weld, paint and sculpt.

"Let's get crazy," Trainor says, describing Spencer's look. "Let's call it nouveau abstractionist northwestern splashy."

Costume designer Kris Dangl based Spencer on a Nickelodeon set designer, Josh Inch. "We used to call him the millionaire playboy," she says. "He is the sexiest, ruggedest – a real guy. There's nothing feminine about him. He's a real dude with that low-key boyish quality."

Since clothing logically needs to reflect where we live, Spencer's are "totally northwestern," Dangl says. "It's kind of like that rugged, unrefined intellectual thing that John Corbett used to have on 'Northern Exposure.' And it allows his goofiness to just shine through."

To stop Trainor's natural goofiness from seeping through, she would have to garb him in a lead suit. Instead, Dangl shops in the small funky shops of Venice, Calif. But she also buys at Nordstrom and Fred Segal.

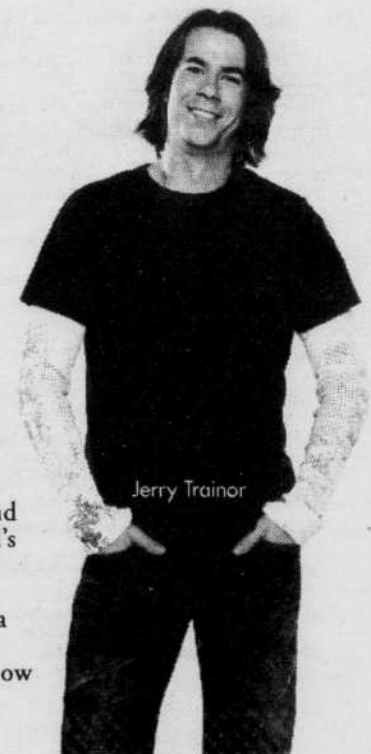

Jeans are vital to Spencer's look. "He doesn't mess around with his jeans," Dangl says. "He has one style of jeans until he is done with them, then tosses them in trash. I started with Lucky jeans and now it's Diesel."

His T-shirts are from Woot Shirt, Planet Funk and Threadless.

"I just really make sure his T-shirts are something an artist would appreciate," Dangl says. "I recently got him a T-shirt that said, 'Get some exercise,' and it shows a stick drawing of a human being chased by a T-Rex. There's a whole part of the script this week where Jerry is obsessed with the 'beavcoon,' a beaver raccoon. I found a T-shirt of an armadillo with a bull's head."

Western shirts come from Urban Outfitters. As for shoes, Spencer is a loyalist.

"He has never not worn a pair of low top Converse," Dangl says. "Just always Converse – black."

what we learned from tv lately

BY BEVERLY FOSTER SEINBERG

Amber Marshall

"GUILT BY ASSOCIATION"

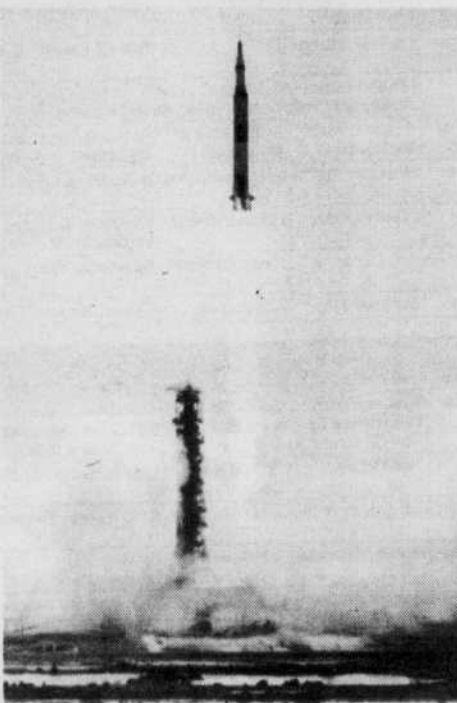

The old saying is right: You are judged by the company you keep – sometimes by an actual judge.

"SOUTH PARK: BIGGER, LONGER & UNCUT"

Don't mess with Canada.

"HEARTBEAT"

Don't neglect your children for a new romance. If your partner can't accept that the kids come first, he's not worth it.

David Tennant and Freema Agyeman

"DOCTOR WHO"

Cloning may be quicker and easier than making offspring the old-fashioned way – but it's not as much fun.

"TEAM AMERICA: WORLD POLICE"

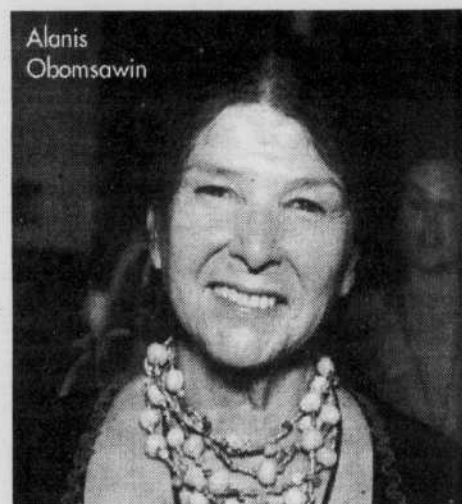

Everything goes better with a montage.

"THE GRAPES OF WRATH"

Ma Joad nailed the Mars and Venus thing decades before John Gray: A man lives in "jerks," while a woman's life flows like a river.

"DOC ZONE: FLY ME TO THE MOON"

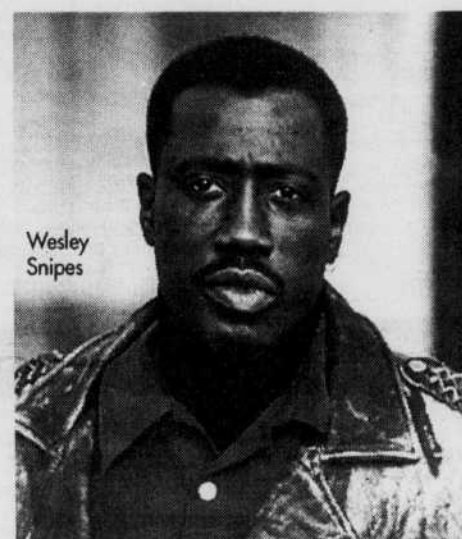

U.S. entrepreneur Dennis Hope has made millions selling real estate on the moon. About $20 gets you a deed to an acre of lunar land.

Alanis Obomsawin

"STORYTELLERS IN MOTION"

Abenaki documentarian Alanis Obomsawin is one of the last filmmakers to work full time for the National Film Board of Canada.

Wesley Snipes

"PASSENGER 57"

Law enforcement officers always get their most exciting cases just when they're about to retire.

"HEARTLAND"

Hollywood starlets are shallow little twits who use ordinary, hard-working, salt-of-the-earth people for their own amusement.

scary waters

Jennifer Lopez

"Jaws"

"Open Water"

"Creature from the Black Lagoon" (1954):

This is one of those movies we think we know even if we haven't seen it because it's always copied. In this, scientists go on an Amazon expedition and encounter a terrifying hybrid from below. "There are many strange legends in the Amazon," Lucas says. "Even I, Lucas, have heard the legend of the man-fish."

"Jaws" (1975): If only killers from the deep came with warning music! That soundtrack won John Williams one of the film's three Oscars. The story of a New England shore town gripped by fear because of a giant man-eating shark had people screaming in the theaters. "What we're dealing with here is a perfect engine, an eating machine," says Hooper (Richard Dreyfuss), the marine scientist. "It's really a miracle of evolution. All this machine does is swim and eat and make little sharks." So effective was Steven Spielberg's adaptation of Peter Benchley's book that some were even afraid of pools after "Jaws."

"Anaconda" (1997): J.Lo isn't the scariest thing in this movie. Nope, that mantle belongs to the world's largest and deadliest snake. A documentary crew (Lopez plays Terry, the director) picks up a stranded man in the Amazon. Have we learned nothing from monster movies of the past? Never pick up someone in such a dangerous situation! Then there are such lines as Terry saying, "Snakes don't eat people." Paul Sarone (Jon Voight) the snake hunter, replies, "Oh, they don't?"

"Open Water" (2003): Possibly the scariest of the bunch, because this horrifying tale is based on a true story. A couple on a Caribbean vacation signs up for a boat trip on the open sea for a day of scuba diving. Now, it's bad enough when a bus doesn't pick you up, but when the boat abandons you in shark-infested waters, life is awful. And it can happen. All it took was someone counting wrong on the boat's roster, and by the time the resort realized its mistake, it was too late.

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

Sammy Kershaw will be performing at The Orleans County Fair in Barton, Vermont, Saturday August 22, 2009, 8:00 p.m. The fair in Barton is well known by Townshippers and it's only a few miles away.

This show is a must-see for traditional country music fans. Indeed, Sammy Kershaw is blessed with a voice that is an exceptional instrument. Often compared to George Jones, Kershaw has an inner sense of what country music is all about. However, rather than building a career as Jones' clone, Kershaw has carved his own niche with his brand of fresh sounding traditional country.

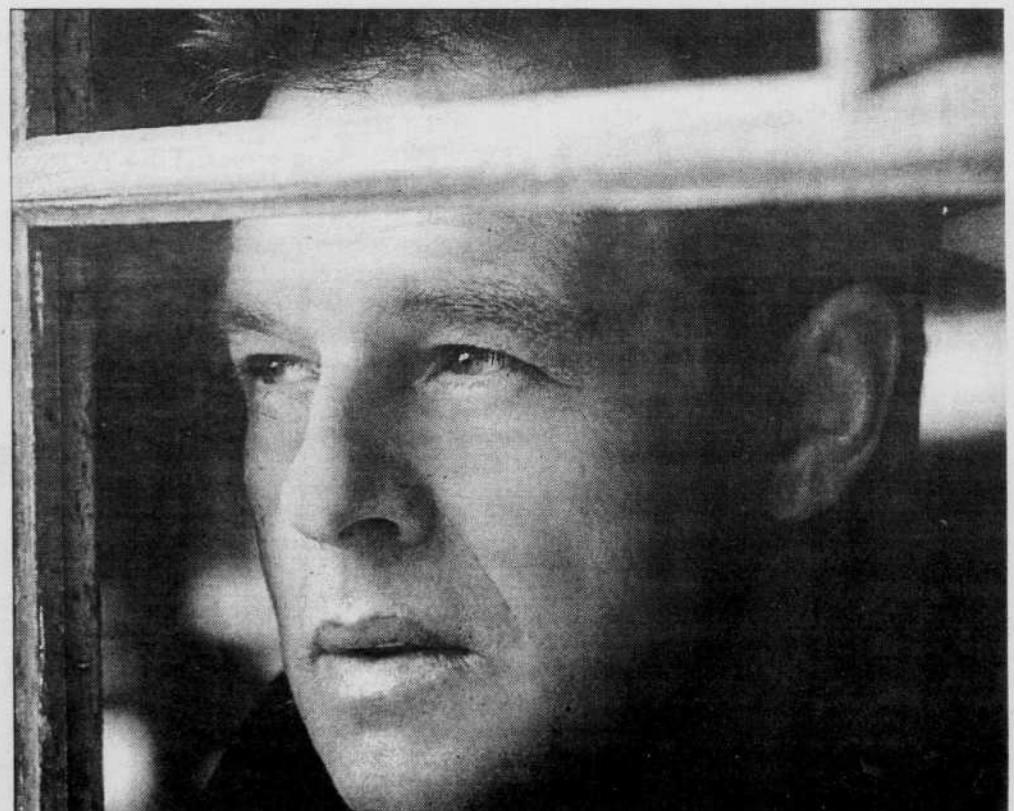

Honky Tonk Boots, the last album released by Sammy Kershaw is plain old country that will rock you off your feet or get you singing along. The production highlights his great vocal abilities, but do not compromise the traditional country style that makes him a great musician.

Independently produced, the album testifies to Kershaw's commanding voice that breathes and nuances country music exactly the way it should be. With a set of mostly well-chosen songs, it easily compares to some of Kershaw's best CD's on Mercury Records which proves that the record label is only a small part in someone's career.

Since his debut in the early 90's, he has released ten studio albums, with three RIAA platinum certifications and two gold certifications among them.

More than twenty-five singles have entered Top 40 on the Billboard Hot Country Songs charts, including the Number One hit "She Don't Know She's Beautiful" and ten more Top Ten hits: "Cadillac Style," "Anywhere but Here," "Haunted Heart," "Queen of My Double-Wide Trailer," "I Can't Reach Her Anymore," "National Working Woman's Holiday," "Third Rate Romance," "Meant to Be," "Vidalia," and "Love of My Life" - probably one of the ultimate love songs of the nineties.

The Louisiana native began his professional career as a pre-teen. At the age of eleven, the young man got his first guitar, a gift from his grandfather. However, his father died that same year so young Kershaw had to work a variety of jobs by day while playing clubs at night to support his family. Before he turned twenty, he had already opened for artists such as Georges Jones, Merle Haggard and many more.

Kershaw signed to Mercury in the early 90's and ran off a string of smash singles. These hits propelled Kershaw into the ranks of country's top platinum-selling artists. They were hits magnificently delivered by a twangy, memorable voice...What an entertainer!

Ayer's Cliff Fair

Close by at the Ayer's Cliff Fair, country music fans will be able to see two great country music shows this year. On Friday, August 28, at 8:30 p.m., Newfoundland native Tara Oram will present her brand of country while on Saturday, August 29 at 8:30 p.m., Canadian Country singer George Canyon will be taking the stage to offer his repertoire of originals as well as classic country. This is quite a line-up! For more information you can contact them online at info@expoayerscliff.com or you can call 819-876-7317 or 819-838-5388. You can also visit their website at www.expostantead.com

George Canyon

The response for George Canyon's new single "Let it Out," a song co-written by George and Johnny Reid, has been overwhelming. Fans love it. Finally ready, the video has been added directly into heavy rotation at CMT.

Of course, George Canyon doesn't necessarily need formal introduction with his string of hits, a shelf-full of Junos and Canadian Country Music Awards. In 2004, Canyon competed in Nashville Star 2. He was the runner-up in the competition, but became very well known in Canada and garnered much support, being the only Canadian to make the cut.

After the competition ended, he received many accolades from fans and the industry alike. These include the top 5 hit "My Name," a Juno Award for Best Country Recording of the Year (for his album One Good Friend, and, four Canadian Country Music Awards Nominations CCMA's) including Male Vocalist of the Year and the Fan Choice Award.

On January 9, 2008, Canadian Defence minister Peter MacKay appointed the Nova Scotia-born Canyon to the position of Honourary Colonel at 14 Wing Greenwood, the largest air base on the east coast.

Canyon, who has been a Type 1 diabetic since the age of 14, has given talks to children about diabetes. Now The Canadian country music singer has successfully completed The Sky's Not the Limit Tour, in which he performed private concerts all across the country for children stricken with Type 1 Diabetes and their families. It enabled Canyon to deliver an important message to the children that they must never give up on their dreams.

Now he will be resuming his summer tour and we will have the chance to see him again. Those who have seen him perform at The Piggery were charmed by his great talent and his friendly manners.

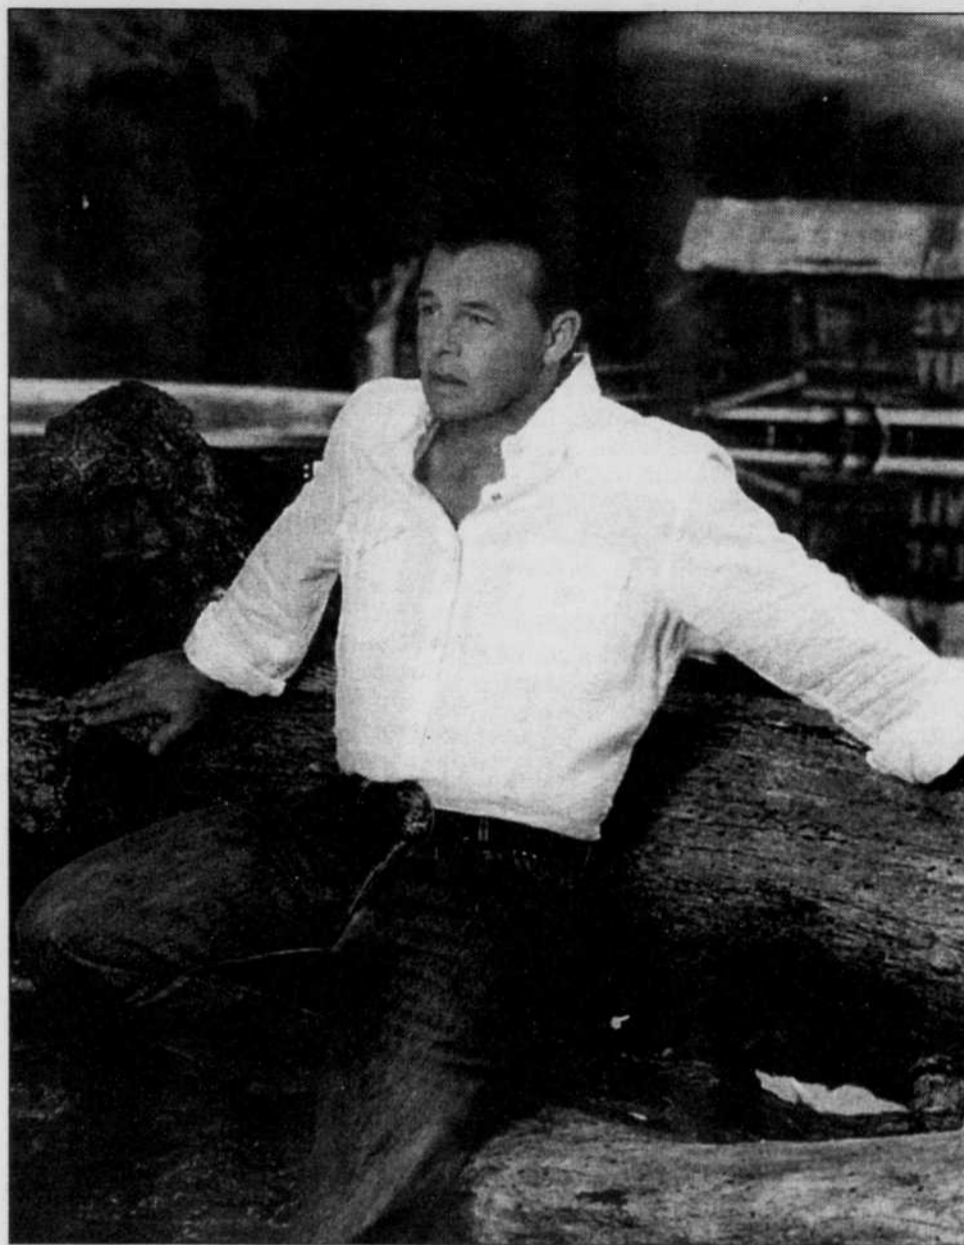

Tara Oram

The first time we heard about Tara Oram was when she auditioned for Canadian Idol in St. John's, Newfoundland for the 2007 edition of the show. She made it, but was voted off in August. But this is not where it all starts.

Tara Oram was born in Gander, Newfoundland. She moved to Malton, Ontario when she was 10 years old and then later to Brampton, Ontario where she attended high school.

During her school years, she always participated in the school's choir. At 16, the young artist was signed to an independent label and released her first country music single. She later toured with a local agency called Performers, which allowed her to sing in theatres, malls and festivals.

She spent four years touring on the Ontario country bar circuit before taking that shot at Canadian Idol. She's come by great opportunities through hard work and determination. Her efforts on Idol and starring in her own television series on CMT, called The Tara Diaries, have led to the exciting next chapter in her artistic life, the release of her uplifting debut album Chasing The Sun, on Open Road Recordings (with distribution through Universal Music).

Tara's first single "Fly Girl" celebrated her small town roots, all wrapped up in the positive message of shooting for your dreams. Her second single, "538 Stars," written by Grammy Award winning Canadian Gordie Sampson and acclaimed Nashville songwriter Hillary Lindsey, was about a father-daughter relationship.

Chasing the Sun takes its roots in country music but has many flavours inspired by different female artists. She's a talented young lady with a promising future. Do not miss the chance to see and hear her live at The Ayer's Cliff Fair.
