Memorial Plaque Dedicated At St. Andrew's Church

A memorial plaque in memory of The Reverend J. B. Maclean, D.D., was unveiled and dedicated at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Huntingdon, last Sunday morning. The special act was performed after the service of Thanksgiving.

The Rev. A. S. Reid, D.D., of Rockburn, a long-time friend of the deceased, gave a brief summary of the life and ministry of Dr. Maclean who served in St. Andrew's Church for 37 years.

The Memorial was unveiled by Mr. J. Henry MacLean of Toronto. It was received and dedicated by the minister, Rev. J. M. Grant. The plaque was donated by Harry C. MacLean of Cornerbrook, Nfld., and J. Henry MacLean, nephews of the deceased.

Excellent Crop Of Apples

The apple growers in this district are harvesting an excellent crop of McIntosh apples as well as other varieties. Apples are of excellent quality, perhaps not quite as large as they would have been had we received a greater amount of rain during the growing season. Some of the orchards have a few pear trees, usually the Bartlett variety. Mr. J. O. Tremblay, St. Anicet has three small pear trees and this year picked a little over five bushels of excellent pears. Many of the pears were unusually large. An ordinary pear weighs from five to six ounces. One of the large pears picked at Mr. Tremblay's weighed 15 ounces.

Boy Killed While At Play At Ormstown

A rather tragic accident occurred at Ormstown in the late afternoon of Friday, October 7th, when a boy was shot and killed instantly. The victim was John Winter, age 13, son of Ross Winter, R.R. No. 2, Ormstown.

Johnny was playing with a friend out in the yard of the home and they were playing at shooting at a target. There are several versions of what happened, but this appears to be the one. Johnny went up to the fence to replace the target, when the gun in the hands of his friend went off and he was killed. The youngster did not know there was a shot in the gun and he was very much upset to see what had happened to his best friend.

The accident happened at about 5.30 p.m. and Dr. G. L. Sutton was called and pronounced the young lad dead. A verdict was later given of accidental death, after Provincial police had investigated.

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the United Church and Johnny's class, Grade 9 of Ormstown High School, attended the service in a body. On Tuesday morning at the regular assembly at the school, a basket of flowers was placed in view and the whole school observed one minute's silence in respect of the school mate.

FRASER FISHERMAN 70 YEARS ON RIVER

VANCOUVER (CP) Marco (Mike) Vidulich lives for fishing, and fishing is his life.

After 70 years of fishing on the Fraser River the 81-year-old man has many memories.

He remembers the Indian families arriving at the canneries every June for the fishing season, when he was a boy.

"They came in 70-foot-long war canoes, two or three families in a canoe. They lived in the long company houses. The women worked in the canneries and the men fished in company boats for $2. a day."

Good Old Days

He remembers seeing a mile of golden sockeye salmon glistening in the setting sun, one summer evening in 1909, covering the Fraser from bank to bank.

"You hit fish with your oars when rowing, there were so many," said his wife, Katherine.

Mike was the first man on the river to operate his own gas-powered boat, 54 years ago. He built the craft himself with $60 worth of lumber, and it paid off as he was able to triple his trips to and from the river mouth.

Brings Back A Fine Buck

Above is a Buck shot by Ernie Legault of the Gleaner staff, while on a hunting trip to Notre Dame du Laus, on Saturday, October 8th. The deer weighs 210 pounds, so will provide some choice meat for a few weeks, at least. Shown in the photo is the hunter, and the deer on top of the car.

School Board Has Problem Regarding Future Use Of School Buses

A regular meeting of the Huntingdon School Board of Commissioners was held in the library of the High School, on Thursday evening with all commissioners present except, D. Rennie.

A number of bills were read, passed for payment and some correspondence was also dealt with.

In the latter was a directive from the Director of Education which had regard to the use of school buses. It was stated that the law must be applied to this and that school buses could no longer travel outside the school municipality to which they belonged.

Mr. Melnyk, Principal, said this immediately posed a problem for the school staff. The Teachers' Association had again agreed to sponsor inter-school contests of various natures such as basketball and a schedule had been drawn up for the season. The question now arose how were the players to get to and from the points where the games would be played. It would not be permitted to use the school buses according to the directive, unless some sort of permit could be obtained. It was out of the question to use private cars on account of the risk involved to the school board if an accident occurred. One other way to overcome this would be if some sort of blanket insurance could be obtained to cover the risk involved.

Members thought that perhaps one bus might be used, the one owned by the school, as no charge is made to convey the students at any time and it wasn't a money making proposition. The bus even though it would be out of its municipality would still be used on school business.

It was decided to send a resolution to the Protestant School Boards Association and to the Director of Education asking that a permit be issued to operate at least one bus for the extra curricular travelling and especially in view of the fact that no charges made to anyone for this means of transportation.

It was further decided that enquiry would be made into the possibilities of getting blanket insurance which would cover private cars and the school board in the event of accident while transporting students on extra curricular activities.

The Principal was given permission to purchase a new duplicating machine and supplies, providing it could be obtained at the price that had been quoted to him.

A questionnaire was circulated among the parents of Grade XI students with regard to the annual trip to New York. The questionnaire asked parents to state if they were in favor of the idea and several other relative questions and it had to be mailed back to the Principal. The result was that all but one agreed there should be a trip and the one dissenter on being contacted agreed finally. The means of the financing the trip was agreed as the student raising the money as they had in the past. Therefore the procedure will follow other years and the students will plan to go on the trip. The Board agreed with the plan.

The question of the hot lunch program was brought up and it was agreed to start the program on November 1st.

The meeting was adjourned to October 19th in order that the homologation of the Tax Roll may be dealt with at that time.

Ten dozen tea spoons were presented to the School Cafeteria by the Dewittville W. I. and brought in by Com. McIntosh. The Board expressed appreciation of this gift and remarked upon the usefulness of it and a hope that others would make gifts of this nature toward the cafeteria project which had proved very successful last year. Gifts of all kinds could be of considerable benefit in keeping the cost down and the price of the meals at a reasonable figure.

The meeting adjourned until October 19th.

Friday and Saturday of this week will be observed as Scout Apple Days, an annual event used by the Scouts to raise funds. On these days the Huntingdon Boy Scouts will go around the town and try to interest people in buying the apples they will have for sale.

The public is asked to support this effort on the part of our Boy Scouts. It is a good life that the Boy Scout is learning and he should be encouraged to keep it up. So Buy An Apple this Friday and Saturday from one of the Boy Scouts.

Huntingdon W.I. Has Interesting Meeting

The Huntingdon W.I. met on Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Bernhardt with a good attendance of members and a few guests. Roll call was answered by the members naming a Canadian City and its locality. A letter of appreciation was read from the Huntingdon Agricultural Soc'y., for the work done by this branch in connection with the distribution of seeds and help given at the school fair. A notice of a meeting to be held in Montreal, under the auspices of the Unitarian Soc'y. on Oct. 19th. was read. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend and hear an illustrated lecture by Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova. The Treas. reported a balance of $91.36. Food Sale netted $47.31 and $100.00 had been given as a scholarship. The members extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. Chas. Reid for the time and effort she puts into the school fair. Mrs. Bernhardt introduced the special speaker, Mr. Allan Graham head of the Immigration Staff in Huntingdon and district. Mr. and Mrs. Graham had spent two and a half years in India with headquarters in Delhi. He gave a most interesting talk on conditions there. Some of the highlights of the talk were; Indian history goes back 5,000 years, manner of dress has not changed in 1,000 years. The Grahams landed at Bombay which City has a pop. of 3 million. In 1947 India was given her independence. Abject poverty is very common but anyone who can possibly afford servants does so. Educational facilities are improving and the average Indian is quite smart. 360 dialects are spoken but English is the official language. Life is held very cheaply and when a person dies naturally or otherwise the body must be cremated within 6 hours. The present City of Delhi is the seventh which has had that name, the previous six having been destroyed. There is a university there 1,000 years old. There is also a very modern hospital run by the Philadelphia nuns. There were many more interesting items but space does not allow of a report. Pictures of India were shown. Mrs. Chas. Reid moved a vote of thanks. Refreshments provided by Mrs. Bernhardt and Mrs. Perkins were enjoyed.

Dunn Cemetery At Franklin Centre Greatly Improved

The work at the Dunn Cemetery has been almost completed and shows quite an improvement.

This is a very old cemetery, having been in existence over 100 years. Jeremiah Dunn, one of the earliest pioneers to this community came from Yorkshire, Eng., in about 1827 and took up a large acreage of land which was settled by himself and some of his sons. He set aside a piece of land for a private burial ground, in which the first person buried was a friend of his, James Richardson, who, while visiting at his home took sick and died in 1842. He also permitted the following neighbours to use this as their burial ground: The Broders, McDowells, Hendersons, Coreys and Arkseys, also Brooks and Penningtons.

Jeremiah Dunn died in 1867 and since his death it has been cared for by his descendants who were living here.

A meeting was called by his great-grandson, Mr. Jerry Dunn, of Athelstan, on the 28th of June in the United Church Basement for the purpose of organizing this cemetery. Rev. A. Barnes acted as chairman. The following Board of Trustees were elected: Messrs. Clarence Dunn; Benj. Pennington; Jerry Dunn; Mrs. Stewart Moneypenny; Mrs. Eddie Elliot; Mrs. Harold Stevenson, and Mrs. Omar Harvey. Mr. Clarence Dunn was elected Chairman of the Board and Mrs. Omar Harvey was appointed Secretary-Treasurer. This meeting was followed by a short business meeting of the Trustees at which Mr. Jerry Dunn asked permission to make some necessary repairs in the Cemetery as he saw fit. The cost to be covered by money he held in trust for the Dunn family. Permission was granted him and he has to date removed the stone wall with which it was originally surrounded and put a fence around it after the wall was buried. Then he had the north portion of the cemetery levelled and is now waiting for the delivery of some good top soil in order to sow grass seed. He had some assistance from his nephews.

It is desired by the Trustees to raise a fund, so that there will be permanent care of this Cemetery now and in the future. This with other matters will be discussed at the next meeting of the Board.

C. E. Petch Injured In Fall From Apple Tree

HEMMINGFORD — Around 6 p.m. on Friday evening, September 30th, Mr. Petch was picking apples high up on a 20-foot ladder when the large limb on which the ladder was resting suddenly broke precipitating Mr. Petch head first to the ground. Help quickly arrived and Mr. Petch was taken to his home where he was given a thorough examination by the Doctor, who found no broken bones but a very severe bruising of the head, face, shoulders and arms. Mr. Petch's eye-glasses were broken by his fall but fortunately the eyes were not injured by broken glass. The Doctor's prescription of a week of absolute rest and quiet in bed has been faithfully followed and, in fact, Mr. Petch is still in bed but now is able to receive, and welcomes, short visits from his friends. He is of the opinion that the exceedingly dry weather this summer has made the branches very much more brittle and this, no doubt, was the cause of the accident.

To help cheer the invalid, Mrs Petch was very pleased to welcome her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. L. Marshall who has been vacationing in Europe since May and is now on her way home to Vancouver.

Young Jay Anderson together with his father, and mother, Mr and Mrs. Alan Anderson of Buffalo, N.Y., cousins of Mr. Petch, stopped by en route to Scotland via jet plane from Dorval. Jay is pursuing his studies at Aberdeen University.

Daughters Mrs. Donald Case and husband, Mrs. Garth Beck and husband are staying at the Petch home for the week-end.

Social Evening at the Anglican Hall

A very happy party was held in the Hall of St. Luke's Anglican Church on Wednesday evening, October 5th, when the members of the congregation met together to welcome home from their honeymoon the minister, The Rev. David Rogers and his bride.

To the strains of the wedding march played by the organist, Mr. L. Barkes, the young couple were met by the People's Warden, Mr. E. Denman, and escorted into the Hall where Mr. Denman made a short speech of welcome. Mrs. A. Round presented a beautiful corsage to Mrs. Rogers and then the members present were each introduced and offered their congratulations.

A happy social evening was followed by a delicious buffet lunch. Then Mr. Denman, with a few well-chosen words, presented Mr. Rogers with an elegant black leather bag and Mr. Ross Smith, the Vicar's Warden, presented Mrs. Roger with a well filled purse. Both Mr. and Mrs. Rogers voiced their thanks and appreciation for their delightful gifts.

The Rural Dean, the Rev. W. Bonathan of Longueuil, who is also Mrs. Rogers' father, and the Rev. Selwood of Clarenceville, each had a few words to say appropriate to the occasion and then Mrs. C. E. Petch, on behalf of the Women's Auxiliary, welcomed Mrs. Rogers to the Parish.

The Rev. David Rogers, during the comparatively short space of time he has been in this village, has endeared himself to many people outside his own congregation and now, with a charming, talented wife at his side, he is wished God-speed and a happy future by all those who were unable to voice their sentiments personally.

Fire Prevention Week Being Observed In Huntingdon

It is awfully difficult to write a Fire Prevention Week article. Everything has been said many time before and it is hard to give old world a new twist.

And yet, notwithstanding the many times that the various messages of Fire Prevention have been placed before the eyes and ears of the Canadian public, Canada's per capital fire loss record keeps getting worse each year!

What is it in our make-up that causes us to be so careless with Fire, as a nation? It has to be a lack of care, because experts in the field of Fire Prevention tell us that well over 90% of all fires are caused by plain old fashioned carelessness!

The modern man of the house will heed a manufacturer's warning and locate his television set so that it is well ventilated, to avoid heat build-up. The same man, however, will dispose of hot furnace ashes in wooden or cardboard containers without giving a thought to the possibility of his careless action causing a fire!

The modern housewife will drive her children to and from school to avoid any chance of their being hit by a car. The same woman will then return home and try to take spots off a favourite garment by rubbing them with gasoline, completely oblivious to the fact that such rubbing generates enough heat to explode gasoline vapours!

Many people wouldn't drive a car with bad brakes or faulty steering. The same people however, think nothing of using 30 ampere fuses in the wiring circuits of their homes, apparently not caring that in so doing they have effectively muzzled their electrical watch-dog!

We are always glad to see our children return home from school and settle down in the house for the evening. We feel that they are safe at home. Are they?

Of the 82,421 reported fires in Canada last year, 66,464 occurred in homes!

Of the 556 lives lost in fires

Correction: — In last week's column by Mrs. Lord, Attention has been drawn to the wording of a sentence in a paragraph pertaining to the Spash Party and Teen-agers behavior. This was a definite type-setting error and the Chateauguay Gleaner wishes to apologize to Mrs. Lord for any embarrassment caused her.

The error read" ... as they do think highly of me and all of you". It should have read" ... as they do think highly of one and all of you"

SEEK OLYMPICS

Pinewoods, B.C. (CP) — Boards of trade from Penticton to Surrey have initiated a promotion drive to have Manning Park selected as the site for the 1968 Winter Olympics. The boards are urging development of the 200,000-acre mountain playground.

On Building Character

Character is of vital importance to young people leaving school and university to enter upon their life work. It is by character that they will be judged by their friends, their employers and society.

The term "character applies in common usage to the distinctive array of qualities setting off one individual from all others. The word comes from the Greek, meaning "a distinguishing mark, impression, engraving." It signifies what nature and our training and our habits and our thoughts have made us. When we say that a person has "character" we pay him a compliment.

Some people say that knowledge is power. It is more correct in this vigorous and complex age to say that character is power. Mind without heart, intelligence without conduct, cleverness without goodness: all these have dangerous flaws.

This is a side of life to which young and old need to pay attention if they are to achieve happiness and peace of mind. The development of character has not kept pace with the advancement of science and technology. Human impulses have remained becalmed and almost changeless while the physical surroundings of human beings have been transformed.

Moral strength and backbone need to be brought up to the level of our increasing intellectual enlightenment and our ever-widening control over physical things.

Some people have a false idea of character. They think of it as being like the angels and cherubs of a great painter like Fra Angelico, portraying goodness without personality. But the person of noble character has validity and actuality; he knows that he is filling a vital need and meeting his obligations to himself and to society.

There is no need to seek examples in remote history. We may see people of character in our everyday lives, among teachers and students, among foremen and workmen, among neighbours, friends and family. They give an impression of completeness, poise and sincerity. They are, or will become, the motive power of society. Our true aristocracy is not of blood or fashion or talent, but of character.

Real, not assumed

The person of character endeavours to be really what he wishes to appear. Character deals with substance, not show. It is complexion, not cosmetic: the outward expression of an inner reality, not something stuck on from outside.

The person of weak character is like a chameleon; he takes on the color of his surrounding. He may not offend profoundly against social laws, but drift serenely because he is making for nowhere. He may, indeed, have many of the attributes of the man of strong character, but his average is dragged down by one or two weaknesses.

A common type of feeble character is shown by the person who credits himself for his successes, but blames his environment for his failures; he is an optimist about himself, and a pessimist about all other people; he admires the superman, and believes that he too could be a great leader if people would only recognize his merits.

By contrast, the person of sturdy character has a good sense of proportion. He is not blown hither and yon by whims, desires and fads. He will not knuckle down under any situation that affronts him until he has done all in his power to change it.

Such a character cannot be manufactured overnight. It is built over a period out of material of two sorts: the solid kind, supplied by observation, reasoning and study; and the lively and livening kind brought by the imagination.

Character, as Goethe put it once for all, grows only in the stream of the world. Everyone has a basic and urgent need for self-realization and satisfaction, but he cannot attain these in a vacuum. We are not only individuals, but units in society.

A person of good character does not try to evade his duties to society, nor does he allow himself to become negligent of them. He will not drop a lighted match and start a forest fire; he does not leave an obstacle on a highway to menace the lives of motorists; he does not display that abominable form of arrogance of thinking himself above the laws which apply to all other people.

The man of character knows that his greatest signifiance must consist in his contribution to the lives of others. The more complex, the more highly-organized our society becomes, the more it requires competent, self-respecting, well-rounded individuals to make it work.

Principles and standards

What are some of the features that mark a person of first-rate character? Possibly most important is that he has learned the ideals and facts of life philosophically: that is, so as to discover principles. The habit of his mind is to refer to standards. He discriminates between the good and the shoddy.

Principles act as a sort of psychological gyroscope, keeping us in balance. Everyone will not have the same set of principles, but everyone needs something to which he sets his back and declares "Here stand I; I can do no other."

Part of character is to recognize the imperative nature of duty. Complete freedom to follow every impulse would dissolve character, but inner discipline builds it.

Nicholas Monserrat sums up duty, obligation and responsibility in his book Three Corvettes, telling about war time on the Atlantic: "You're woken up at ten to four by the bosun's mate, and you stare at the deck-head and think: 'I can't go up there again in the dark and filthy rain, and stand another four hours of it.' But you can, of course: it becomes automatic in the end. And besides, there are people watching you."

Broadmindedness

The person of good character is broadminded and tolerant. Great-mindedness is the ornament of all the other virtues. Through it a man reflects the sensitive spirit that is death to the immaturity of prejudice.

What is broadmindedness? It is looking at ideas and facts from all sides, comparing statements, reports, and beliefs honestly and eagerly. When Charles Darwin came upon data unfavourable to a theory he was considering, he hastily made a note of them, because he knew they had a way of slipping out of memory a little more readily than welcome facts.

As to tolerance, a writer tells about attending a dance in a country where there had been a revolution. The lights were turned out during the playing of the new republican anthem, because, as one leader said, "this is a social affair and we don't want to see who won't stand up."

A good principle, found in people of character, is to wait until the evidence is in before passing judgment. We cannot make up our minds intelligently if we judge by single facts wrenched from their context in a man's or a nation's life. Whence came the facts? Have they undoubted validity? Have you tested them against the common sense of your own experience and your knowledge of things in general? Have you considered in a kindly way, as Alan said in Robert Louis Stevenson's Kidnapped: "Them that navenae dipped their hands in any little difficulty should be very mindful of the case of them that have."

If we analyse what we know of the person who has an admirable character, we shall find one of the ingredients to be self-forgetfulness. He is thoughtful of others. He respects other people as persons. He considers not only wherein a friend or an employee has fallen short, but also what that person has positively achieved or endeavoured.

Gentleness

Sometimes we hear people lamenting the chivalry that is gone. They find among the tumbled castles and buried swords of the Middle Ages a code called knightly honour, for which they pine.

The gentle person today is one whose nature has been fashioned after the highest models. He finds that gentleness in society is far more powerful than loudness or force, and far more fruitful. It pushes its way quietly and resolutely, like the tiniest crocus in spring which raises the clod and thrusts it aside by the simple persistence of growing.

Gentleness is combined with strength and authority in the person of excellent character. Great-minded men are not high and mighty toward people of humble stations. There are many tests by which a gentleman may be known, but there is one that never fails: how does he exercise power over those who are subordinate to him?

This gentleness is in the vast field of conduct quite outside legal commandments and regulations. It is an area well known to the person of good character but largely unexplored by others.

Dependability

The person of sound character has not only talent but the power to make his talent trusted.

Trustworthiness is a vital factor in character. The man of character is not constantly reflecting whether he shall be honest or not; he is honest by habit and as a matter of course. He does not give promises lightly, but lives up to those he does give.

An integral part of dependability is modesty. The man of good character does not allow his head to be turned by the flourish of trumpets sounding his praise. He does not try to give all the answers or to speak as an authority on every topic. He knows that there is truth in Solomon's words: there is more hope for a fool than for a man wise in his own conceit. He measures his achievements by those of his equals and superiors: it is not only false reasoning but stupid to measure by comparison with lesser people.

There was once a Roman general who lost perspective. When he captured a small city he allowed his army to salute him as emperor. His contemporaries laughed, because they said he must despair of a nobler achievement since he made so much of this little success.

But the man of character is not so humble as to be afraid to show his abilities. There is no worse crime against our human heritage than to waste our talents.

All the virtues and principles so far mentioned, and others suited to the individual nature and circumstance of every person, contribute to the self-reliance which is so evident in people of strong character. When a man of character faces a stiff fence he either sails over it or wallops himself over it.

Motive and harmony

How are the principles and virtues co-ordinated so as to form to our character? It is motive that gives form and intensity to our efforts, and motive is the thought of a desirable end. It runs through our mixing with people and our solitary meditation, our dominance and our shyness, our conformity to conventions and our idiosyncrasies, our affection for things that are good and our ruthlessness against things that are bad.

The habit that results from following our motives is not mere custom, but a way of willing, of deliberate choice. Self-respect, application, integrity — these are not beliefs, but habits. "Could the young," as William James wrote, "but realize how soon they will become mere walking bundles of habits, they would give more heed to their conduct while in the plastic state. We are spinning our own fates, good or evil, and never to be undone."

Character includes a kind of harmony, a sort of Golden Mean by practising which we keep our balance. The most profound need of personality is that the individual should realize himself as a harmonious whole, balancing his qualities and abilities so as to constitute, in the common phrase "an all-round man."

Harmony should not be mistaken for a soothing, placid condition. Quite the contrary. It is the source of great energy, of active and meaningful participation in the world of reality. It is an attribute of maturity.

A mature person behaves in a reasonable way, observing self-restraint so that restraints do not have to be imposed. He sees through nonsense in politics, economics, science, and the other preoccupations of life, and feels it to be his duty to resist it. He can find new outlets for his energies when they are blocked in any particular direction: it is only the neurotic person who feels "I must have this or nothing."

Can we improve character?

Some people are fatalists, and will seriously question the ability of a person to change his character in any way as a result of conscious effort. That is a doctrine of pessimism. Traits of character are not inherit solely, but are built within our environment.

The opportunity to blame heredity is congenial to persons who do not wish to change. They seem perfect to themselves, and their faults are so lovable to them, that they resent the notion of making a few repairs.

Some people fear to venture out into the broad life of maturity because they cannot tell, never having tried, whether they are sure-footed. Or they may be weaklings who think of themselves as refraining from contact with the world for some exalted reason, whereas the truth is that they stay in the background because they have lame paws.

Intelligent people do not fancy themselves to be perfect, but they are not unduly troubled by the fact that they are not. Perfection is a completion, without growth or expansion, whereas excellent character is the result of many recommencements.

To know where to start is an important part of learning, so it is worthwhile to take an inventory showing where we stand today. It is refreshing to step a little aside, out of the crowd, and calmly take a prospect of things: to give, as Edgar Guest said, "the man you'd like to be a look at the man you are."

What is a man of superior character? Is it not true to say that he is one who pursues the true, the beautiful and the good? For what else is there that is really worth pursing in education, in family life, in society?

Life is movement

The way to build character is not to loiter about old things but to seek and do new things. Good character is not a dwelling upon past excellencies nor a yearning after things as we wish them to be, but an acceptance of things as they really are with a

Letters to The Editor

Mrs. Ross Ovans,
R.R. 2, Howick, Que.,
October 10, 1960

Dear Sir,

The following is a letter I would appreciate having printed in the letters to the editor. It is a incident which happened today, Thanksgiving Monday.

When are we really safe? It seems to me that in the province of Quebec too many hunting licences and guns are being sold without ever knowing if the hunter knows anything about his equipment or sport.

It now appears to be necessary to post "no hunting" signs on one's lawn and then are not completely free of hunters. We cannot post a public road.

While working in the flower bed with my husband, two small children, also a dog, a car stopped directly in front of the house (which is only 20-25 feet from the road) and a brazen hunter got out with his gun to shoot a pheasant which was walking on the road. A bird for which there is no open season in this area, secondly was not a wild one but a neighbours pet.

Minutes later a group of people peacefully walking on the road passed the same spot as the bird. What would have happened, had those people come along a minute or two sooner? It would have been reported as another accidental shooting.

I believe strongly that there should be a law against hunting in residential areas without having to post "no hunting" signs on lawns. This is not the first such incident to happen in this immediate area.

P.S. We are able to produce the licience No. and car make if proper authorithies are interested.

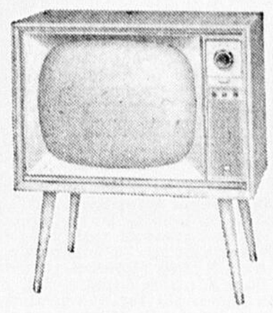

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ross Ovans.

PORT ALFRED, Que. (CP). — Citizens of this Saguenay River port have honored the region's pioneer settlers in an annual ceremony at the monument erected to the first 21 settlers, who arrived in 1838.

C. E. Petch Injured....

Sorry to learn that Miss Anna Lownsbrough is a patient in the Champlain Valley Hospital following a severe heart attack.

Mr. Willie Ryan, a patient in the Barrie Memorial Hospital for the past week, returned home on Sunday feeling very much better.

Mr. Rufus Fisher has had the cast on his leg removed, but still needs a little help from his crutch to go around.

Mr.and Mrs. Ralph Marshall and Karen of Ottawa are spending Thanksgiving week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hadley and Mrs. Jessie Hadley.

Mrs. J. P. Simpson has just returned from a delightful trip through Vermont where, she says, the beautiful autumn colouring has to be seen to be believed.

Our Globe-Trotters

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hawkins and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Dumouchel flew to Paris, Wednesday, October 5th, for a two-week vacation in Europe. They were to be met in Paris by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fortin, who left two weeks ago by the more leisurely sea-route.

Mr. D. B. Woolley left Dorval Sunday afternoon en route for London and Vienna returning by way of Germany, Belgium and Amsterdam; a combined business and pleasure trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Radley are taking a month to motor across Canada to Vancouver (where they will visit with relatives) and back.

It is hoped you travellers have with you your cameras and plenty of film so that we stay-at-homes may share your travels in the grey cold months ahead!

Improvements

With the tearing down of the old Curry house and the erecting of the new Catholic High School, the grounds around St. Roman's Church and between the Cemetery, Ball Park and School were beginning to look very dilapidated. Now, however, all that has been changed. A beautiful green lawn flourishes before and behind the High School with shrubs bordering the walks. An elegant and strong link-chain fence encloses the north side of the Cemetery facing the Ball Park. The wrought iron fence across the east end of the cemetery has been re-erected and strengthened and, most important of all, the whole surface of the yard from the Elementary School to the north wall of the Church has been asphalted. A great improvement to the appearance of our village.

Obituary

The late Mrs. Mabel Keddy

The many friends of Mrs. Mabel Keddy were grieved to hear that she had passed away during the early hours of Friday, September 30th. She had been in indifferent health for some years but always had a cheerful smile and a ready sympathy for others.

Born in Roxham in 1879 Mrs. Keddy, or Mabel Glass as she was then, taught school in Quebec and also in Saskatchewan, where she went after her marriage to Ernest Keddy. For the interested listener she had many a story to tell of ranch life in the early days in Saskatchewan.

After the death of her husband and eldest son she returned to make her home in Hemmingford, bringing her second son Clifford and a daughter Grace (Mrs. Alan Maynard of Champlain, N.Y.). Now there are also seven grandchildren and one great grandchild.

She was a faithful member of the United Church and the W.M.S. and in 1932 joined the Women's Institute and was immediately made Secretary-Treasurer, which office she held until 1940. Her keen interest in, and enthusiasm for, the work of the Institute led to the award by the Hemmingford Branch of a Life-Membership in 1947 and her chief regret during these past few years of failing health was at having to miss so many meetings. She was very much grieved earlier this year at the sudden death of her brother, John Glass, who had continued to farm on the old home farm down at Roxham.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. K. Murray at the Hemmingford United Church on Sunday, October 2nd. and the many beautiful flowers were a tribute of the love and esteem of her family, neighbors and friends. She will be sorely missed.

The pall-bearers were Walter Keddy, Lynwood Cookman, Halton Kennedy, Charles Smith, George M. Brown and Arthur Peacock and the interment was in the family plot in the Roxham Cemetery.

The late Mrs. W. J. Johnson

Hemmingford lost another old resident in the person of Mrs. W. J. Johnson who, after four years of very poor health, passed away on Tuesday, October 4th, at the Patterson Nursing Home, Huntingdon, where she had been a patient for some time. Mrs. Johnson née Phoebe Mabel Moore was born 79 years ago on a farm north of Hemmingford on the Campbell Road and lived there until she went to work in Montreal. There she married William Johnson and in 1920 they returned to live in Hemmingford Village. Mrs. Johnson's husband predeceased her some 18 years ago and she leaves one sister, Mrs. Charlotte Jackson, Hemmingford; one daughter, Ruth, Mrs. Lamberton of Mooers, N.Y.; one grandchild and one son Kenneth, a veteran of the last war and now for several years past the Postmaster of Hemmingford.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. K. Murray at the United Church on Friday at two p.m., the pall-bearers being Arthur Peacock, George J. Brown, George M. Brown, Chas. Barr, Henry Paré and William Warner. There were many beautiful floral arrangements from the family, friends and neighbours and Mrs. Johnson was laid to rest in the Hemmingford Cemetery.

view to influencing them. When the sun goes down, that is the end of a day, and the man of bold character is already marching into the new day dawning.

Progress in time and knowledge will require progress in thinking. The person of admirable character has learned to revise his concepts of good and bad, beautiful and ugly, what to desire and what to avoid. He is not easily swayed by wishful thinking, but applies his constructive dreaming in action.

What is it that prevents a person of undoubted constructive and intellectual ability from attaining a life of character and accomplishment? One of the most common causes of failure is this: he contents himself with being a Don Quixote in imagination, seeing visions and great causes, but he remains a Hamlet in achievement by debating and postponing.

Excellence of any sort is beyond the reach of indolence. A man must have the spunk and spine to put across his ideas. He needs, as General De Gaulle put it: "that sense of reality which guides audacity." The consciousness of power develops out of effort and the encountering of difficulty. No timid aspirations will suffice. As Milton said in his immortal Aeropagitica: "I cannot praise a fugitive and cloistered virtue, unexercised and unbreathed, that never sallies out and sees her adversary."

The man of character has the energy to do things, to score a knockout over inertia. He is glad to write in his diary day after day, as Columbus wrote in the log of his first voyage across the uncharted Atlantic, "This day we sailed on."

Character is not built by storing up abilities and virtues as we might store bonds and stock J.-P. Trepanier Gleaner certificates in a safety deposit box. We must reach outward. The man who is building a self-reliant character would rather play one piece of music than listen to a hundred recitals; he would rather strike out on a corner lot than be a spectator at a world series game.

Persistence in trying is more likely to win out than sitting around waiting for the lightning of inspiration to strike. Byron, despite his club-foot, learned to dance perfectly, the stuttering Demosthenes became a perfect orator, and Beethoven, losing his hearing, fought his way to incomparable music.

We need zest in living. The man of sound character finds his days far from tedious. He approaches new phases of life eagerly, welcomes experience, tempts life to give him as much as he can bear. He has no time for gloom.

To build character requires courage and endurance. Those who enjoy the view from the top of a mountain do not whimper about the scratches they suffered on the way up.

There are various types of courage, and all are part and parcel of character. The wrestler who wipes the dust from his shoulders and grapples again with his adversary; the man who has the courage to live his beliefs; the man who holds in face of every danger the post he has taken up because he is convinced that it is right to do so, or because his chief put him there: these typify the courage of the man of noble character.

A philosiphy of life

We do not build character by laying a layer of transcendental thought upon another layer, cemented by a sort of philosiphical adhesive. Character is a code of values. A man can be judged only by what he sees value in.

By philosiphy of life we mean whatever it is that gives meaning and direction to our everyday affairs. If we have no guidance of this sort, we are still immature. We find ourselves unable to measure our attainments against the possibilities of our environment; we have no inner court to which we can appeal for judgment on our actions.

The philosophy of life of the person of superior character will be something like this: after examining a problem, situation or proposal in a broadminded, evidence-seeking way, he will decide what he ought to like and what he should dislike. He weighs gains against losses, knowing that he can't have one without the other. He knows that it is not concrete words like money and power that give dignity to character and happiness to individuals, but misty words like honour, love, loyalty, trust and faith.

What does the search for distinctive character hold out as a reward? To have a mind that rises above fortune's threats and promises; to accept all that happens as if you wanted it that way; to be neither open-armed nor runaway in the face of danger; to be shaping your fortune instead of waiting for it; to pursue life with clean hands, spurning every opportunity to take advantage of someone else's sacrifice or loss.

The best measure of our success in life, said H. G. Wells, is the ratio of our accomplishments to our capabilities. Abraham Lincoln put it this way: "I am not bound to succeed, but I am bound to live up to what light I have."

The reward for building character may not be anything of material value, even though being a person of character contributes toward material gains and enhances their value. We should recall that the prize given at the Olympic games of old was only a garland made of the leaves of the wild olive. The Greeks cared more for honour than riches.

Fire Prevention Week...

in Canada, last year, 233 were children!

Are you still certain that your children are safe at home? Or do you feel that you should carry out the following check list on your property:

1. No fuses in use over 15 Ampere rating.
2. No rubbish or litter stored in attic or basement.
3. No fireplace used without spark screen.
4. No "homemade" wiring installations.
5. No overloaded electrical circuits.
6. No hot ashes in other than metal containers.
7. No flammable cleaning fluids.
8. No frayed electrical appliance cords.
9. No oily or paint soaked rags in workshop.
10. No smoking in bed.

A home which passes the above check list with flying colors can pretty well be considered a "fire-safe" home. A "yes" answer to any of the above questions spells danger, unless the condition is remedied immediately. Of course we can't guarantee that you will never have a fire, no matter how careful you are! After all lightning does occasionally strike a building and cause a fire; and short of a complete lightning rod installation, there isn't much that can be done from a preventive point of view as respects lightning.

Lightning, however, is a lowly fourth on the list of the most common causes of fires. The others, in order of statistical precedence are: Men, Women and Children. The home where the everyday common sense rules of Fire Prevention are observed by every member of the family, is extremely unlikely to ever suffer a fire.

Why not make sure that your house is in the "fire-safe" category? Then you can really feel that your family is: Safe At Home!

Fire Chief J. L'Heureux and his firemen are trying to make the citizens of Huntingdon fire conscious as far as prevention goes. Chief L'Heureux has contacted the schools and organized fire drills to see how quickly a school can be emptied in case of fire. He has had posters posted in conspicuous places calling attention to the danger of fires. The Firemen's Club has organized a contest in the schools for the best drawing showing fire hazards and such and how to avoid them. For this each school receives $10 to be divided as prizes among the students who make the best drawings.

On Saturday, October 15th, the firemen will have a parade as a close to Fire Prevention Week and they will hold a bingo in the Knights of Columbus Hall for the amusement of the public and to raise funds for their club. The firemen have added much equipment to the fire fighting apparatus in this manner and this help to make them more efficient when it comes time to fight a fire.

Do your part during this week to prevent fires. Take a careful look around for all possible hazards and then go to work to see that they are removed.

Federated Charities To Hold Drive For Funds In This Area

The Valleyfield Welfare Council has for its principal object the co-ordination of the various agencies in the area covered by the counties of Beauharnois, Chateauguay, Huntingdon, Vaudreuil-Soulanges.

Operating on the lines of the "Federated Charities" as in the larger centres, such as Montreal, etc. The Council takes upon itself some of the financial responsibilities of these agencies, and in so doing it replaces other solisitations previously made by several of these organizations, such as: the National Institute for the Blind, Camp Bosco, the Ladies of Charity of Valleyfield, les Dames Patronesses de l'Hotel Dieu, Valleyfield, and the Regional Social Services campaign at Chateauguay. The Council also gives financial aid to the Social Services of Beauharnois, Dorion, Huntingdon and Valleyfield, who have not yet had invidual drives of their own.

The Welfare Council is legally constituted under the "Companies Act" of the Provincial Gov. ernment, and is affiliated to the Canadian Council of Federated Charities.

By its affiliation with the latter organization it has a wealth of valuable information at its disposal and is therefore in a position to give expert advice and guidance to the several agencies in the region, so that they may be operated with the utmost efficiency and avoid duplication of effort. The Council also encourages Research into all social problems and at the same time it makes studies on new problems as they arrive and is able to suggest means to combat these new problems. For example: — Since coming into operation last year, the Council has organized a Psycho-social Centre which gives Vocational guidance and counsel on several social problems as well as habilitational help; it has also social problems as well as re-put into operation a School for retarded children which now has 45 children attending, divided into 2 classes. The Psycho-social Centre and the School are both located at 110 Larocque Road, Valleyfield. The objective of the Welfare Council drive last year was $123,000.00, the amount collected being $107,913.10, this being 87.9% of the objective. The objective for 1960 has been fixed at $127,000.00 and it is sincerely hoped that this sum will be realized before the closing date of the campaign which has been set for November 10th.

Marriages in Canada have been declining in number since 1957. The 1959 figure — 127,000 — reflects today the "hungry 30s" when the birth rate was low.

—o—

Average wheat yield on western Canada's summer fallow land in 1959 was 19.4 bushels per acre against 11.8 bushels on stubble lands.

—o—

With other fuels taking over from coal, Canada in 1959 produced elss coal than at any time in 50 years. The 1959 figure: 10,554,803 tons.

—o—

Shipments of Canadian-made motor vehicles in 1959 rose 2.5 per cent over 1958 to 368,587 units.

A record 486,000 babies were born in Canada in 1959.

Fire Towers Now Supplied By Copters

EDMONTON (CP) It's the time of year again to catch up on the knitting for at least one man as fire watchers again head for their isolated peaks in 89 Alberta points.

The lands and forests department will keep men at these posts until late fall, and until they return to civilization the men will have plenty of time to catch up on the hobbies — reading, painting carving, and the like. One is reported to have become a proficient violinist, and another is a whiz with the knitting needles.

Fading from the scene is the traditional packhorse which up to now accompanied the lookout man to his post. The department has found that a helicopter can fly in minutes a trip that took the packhorse a whole day.

Fast Trips

One example is Ram Lookout, some 50 airmiles from Rocky Mountain House. A helicopter from the camp ground near Shunda Ranger Station can make the trip in 10 minutes — pack horses required at least a day.

Perched upon a granite pinnacle at an altitude of 7,100 feet, Ram Lookout commands a view of 400 square miles of timberland, with steep slopes on all sides leaving an area of less than half an acre for the cabin and radio antenna.

The sighting azimuth, most important of the watcher's equipment, is set in the centre of the floor and dominates the one-room frame cabin. This instrument can establish an accurate geographical line of any smoke sighted, and by cross-sighting with another tower can locate precisely the site of the fire. A radio keeps the watcher in constant touch with the lands and forest office in Rocky Mountain House.

A watcher reports not only actual fires, but also the fire hazard conditions in his area. The fire watchers are carefully selected, and usually are middle-aged men in good health, with keen eyesight, able to adjust readily to conditions of isolation.

HAM PATTIES

With the apple harvest in full swing here in Quebec, a wide variety of delicious apples become available for your eating and cooking enjoyment.

Our most versatile apple, the Quebec McIntosh, which, by the way, produces a juice of unexcelled taste and quality, is ideal for the preparation and cooking of ham patties.

Ham patties can be dry unappetizing — so try these. The flavourful Quebec McIntosh and the tangy juice keep them moist and tasty!

2 cups leftover ham, chopped
1/3 cup breadcrumbs
2 eggs, beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
A pinch of pepper
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
5 tablespoons ham or bacon fat
2 Quebec apples
1 cup apple juice
Grated rind and juice of 1/2 a lemon
2 tablespoons brown sugar.

Mix the ham, breadcrumbs, eggs, mustard, salt and pepper. Shape in six flat patties, the size of an apple slice. Slice the unpeeled apples into 6 thick slices. Sprinkle one side lightly with sugar. Place in hot fat, sugared side down. Brown lightly on both sides, without overcooking the apples.

As they are ready, place in bottom of shallow casserole. Quickly brown the ham patties in the remaining fat and place each one on a slice of apple. Blend the grated rind and juice of lemon with the apple juice and brown sugar. Pour around the patties. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in a 325° F. oven.

Precious plants may be safely left while you are away on holiday. Water each plant well, then slip the pot into a polythene bag and tie the top around the stem. This keeps moisture in the soil.

BUYING AT HOME

CHEAP BOOKS IRK RUSSIAN VISITOR

HALIFAX (CP) A Russian ship captain thinks pocket novels sold in Canada are unfit for children.

Captain Peter Mitrofanov, skipper on one of two Russian vessels that visited here recently, said he thought technical books in Canada are very expensive, while the pocket books are very cheap.

Captain Mitrofanov, who met Mayor Charles Vaughan during his six-day stay in Halifax, chatted freely about various things he had seen here.

"In Russia, we don't allow such silly things as these pocket books, and I think they should be for adults only," he said.

He also had some views on housing in the Halifax area. He said he thought the city was well planned, and commented on the Mulgrave Park low-cost housing project, started here late last fall.

The project, designed to provide housing for people displaced by redevelopment of substandard areas, will cost around $5,000,000. being shared between the city, the province and the federal government.

The Russian captain viewed a model of the project and said he thought it was being done economically.

"In Russia," he said, "it has been found that four-storey buildings are most economical."

Ramblers Lose 13-2 To St. John Eliminated From Play-off Chance

In a rough, fight-filled game, played in St. Johns, Sunday, Chateauguay Ramblers came out on the short end of a 13-2 score.

St. Johns Broncs took an early first quarter lead and held on for the rest of the game which saw some of the rougest play of the season.

Chateauguay scored a touchdown on the last play of the first half which was disallowed, the officials ruling that Kit Walsh had rolled over the line. Had this score counted, Chateauguay would have led 8-7 and the rest of the game might have gone differently.

Except for the last minute of play, the first half was pretty well all St. Johns, with Ramblers showing little of the spirit they had displayed the week before against Granby. Behind fine blocking an end runs and through large holes in the line, St. Johns, with Choquette, Vanslet and White carrying, on the march, scored at the ten minute mark of the first quarter. Bob White scored on an end run from 5 yards out. Wayne Knight converted putting Broncs ahead 7-0.

In the second quarter, largely thanks to penalties, Ramblers moved to the Broncs 30 yard line from where Bruce MacDonald hoisted a booming punt deep into the end zone. Pinard conceded the point bringing the score to 7-1.

Then in the final minute of the half, Vince Petrelli at quarterback for Ramblers, on their own 30, hit Kit Walsh with a long side-line pass at the St. Johns 30.

With time for only one play, Petrilli again hit Walsh with another strike and he fought his way over the goal-line. The referee ruled that Walsh had rolled over the line and disallowed the touchdown. The play was hotly disputed by Ramblers and they left the field talking to themselves.

Chateauguay came out for the second half fighting mad and immediately marched from their own 5 yard line in four plays and two penalties down to the Broncs 10. Two passes then missed and an attempted field goal by Bill Betts was wide but went to the deadline for another single bringing the score to 7-2.

Ramblers got the ball back a few minutes later and again marched deep into St. Johns territory only to have one of Bob Moore's passes intercepted in the end zone to stop the drive.

From then on, St. Johns tightened up and held Chateauguay completely in check, with the game turning into a slug-fest along the lines.

With five minutes gone in the fourth quarter, St. Johns moved into Ramblers territory and Choquette scored on an end run from the ten. The convert missed, closing out the score at 13-2.

Passing Glances: Bruce MacDonald, with plenty of time, got away fine kicks all afternoon. His long kicks kept St. Johns out of Rambler territory most of the afternoon.

The rough play was pretty well evenly distributed between both teams. Don Hamilton was tossed out late in the game for taking too obvious a swing at a Bronc, who was swinging him by his face mask. Nowalkoski of the Broncs was put out of the game in the first quarter for some other ungentlemanly conduct. All in all, a game which saw some of the hardest hitting in a long time.

Ramblers cannot make the play-offs now and play Valleyfield next week in Valleyfield in a "nothing" game. Valleyfield has been eliminated for some time now.

The crowd at St. Johns was very small owing to the World Series game on T.V. A number of Rambler fans made the trip and joined the Majorettes in cheering on the team.

The St. Johns football field, situated in the baseball park was only 100 yards long, a situation which wasn't noticed by the press box observer until well into the first quarter.

The elections will be held on Thursday, October 20th, one week after the closing date for nominations with polling stations being set up in two locations. Property owners may vote at either the Colonia Sales Office at the corner of Lockart and Lang Streets from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., or at Vetville Community Hall from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The following is the list of candidates up to October 6:

At the last general meeting on Thursday, October 6th, a short talk was given by three representatives of Northern Oil, followed by questions from the members on heating, etc. The results of the recent voting by the members indicated Northern Oil to be their choice for the coming winter. Dickens if you are available.

Teen Agers Meet Dean Morgan

Mrs. Lord

Another successful Sox Hop dance can be added to previous successful ones, with a hundred teenagers attending last Friday night. Guest for the evening was Montreal's own Teen Age singer, Dean Morgan. The teenagers all agreed that Dean is a very friendly, likable person, spending the evening signing autographs for everyone. Also chatting and joking with all the boys and girls and remarked that they were all very nice and hoped to visit with them again in the future. One teenager thought she would like a lock of Dean's hair and came prepared with a pair of scissors and snipped off a noticeable piece of hair from the back of his head. Dean Morgan then really showed what a nice fellow he really is as he ran his hand across the back of his head and laughed. It's a good job none of the others had the same idea or the poor fellow would now be bald, as it is, he has one bald spot for a while.

The four lucky winners of the Spot Dances were: Janet Clark and partner Raymond Aucoin, and Donna Smeal and her partner Bill Davies. Dean Morgan presented each of the lucky winners with his hit record "Promised Land of Love" also his autographed picture. For the record, Dean's recording "Promised Land of Love" is not on the present hit parade, but was told it is very very good. The excitement was terrific before the Sox Hop and more so afterwards. Beforehand there was a mad scramble to find the autograph books and discussions on what to wear so as to look their best (which, incidentally, they did indeed) and with telephones ringing continually. Afterwards, of course, was the thrill of having met Dean Morgan and finding him to be such a wonderful person and having had their picture taken with him. The next Sox Hop will be held Friday October 28th, three weeks between dances instead of two as Vetville Hall is not available due to previous commitments, but will be available two weeks running for the Sox Hops then.

Maple School Lose 3-1 To Monkland High In Soccer Fixture

(By MRS. MURIEL LORD)

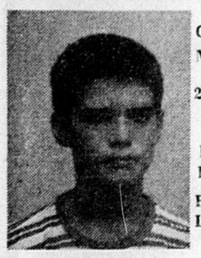

Maple School 1, Monklands 3

Tuesday, October 4th, at Monklands Sports Field, Maple suffered their second defeat, when losing 3-1 to Monkland High. Unlike the week before, the two teams were more evenly matched. Luck, however, was not with Maple, as they had 80 percent of play throughout the game, but they could not get the ball into the Monkland net, until the 20th min. of the second half. Gerry Kezar, once again the Maple "star", broke through the defence, and from close range, beat the Monklands keeper with a fast, low shot. Other stars were Benny Neilson, Bill Davies and Kent Mitchell. The team, on the whole, played very well. Maple are now in a league, and up to writing, they are still waiting for the schedule to come through.

October 4th, a meeting was held at the request of Prudential Construction with the executives of the Prudential Home Owners' Association at the Jean Talon office of the builders.

The meeting was more or less a repetition of the Benny Bedzow's meeting of a week ago. The executives were asked to be patient and have faith with the builders.

It was agreed that another such meeting should be held next month with the executives, wherein progress could be compared.

It was learned that the land near the United Church in Parkview will be rented by the municipality for a skating rink. One night will be reserved for hockey and another for skating. It is hoped by councilman Pitre that the people will cooperate.

The land for a playground was appropriated last month. It will be located in the vicinity of Maple Crescent on Parkview Blvd. across from the United Church. The playground and skating rink are to serve both Prudential as well as Parkview.

It is absolutely essential that such recreational facilities and more be made available to the youngsters, particularly when one takes into consideration the fact that last year approximately 24 youngsters from the Chateauguay Center area were detained in a neighbouring jail. Apparently, moving to the country is not sufficient to prevent delinquency, but rather, each and every adult should do their part in providing new interests for the youngsters, so that their energy may be diverted in a manner acceptable to society and that the children will grow up to be an asset to their community instead of a nuisance.

Dance Tickets for the Hallowe'en dance may be had by calling Mr. Graham McCulloch, OX 2-2303. The association sponsored dance, promises to be quite a success. Numerous prizes plus a special door prize will be given to the lucky winners at the dance. Prudential Construction Company have donated two 26 oz. of rye and two 26 oz. of Scotch to be given as prizes.

The dance is to be held at the Chateau-Gai Motel on Saturday, October 29th and the decorations are expected to be fabulous.

The Chateauguay headquarters for Bedzow & Co. has been transferred to the new house next to Tony's Restaurant. Now, when Charlie runs out of cigars he can just run next door.

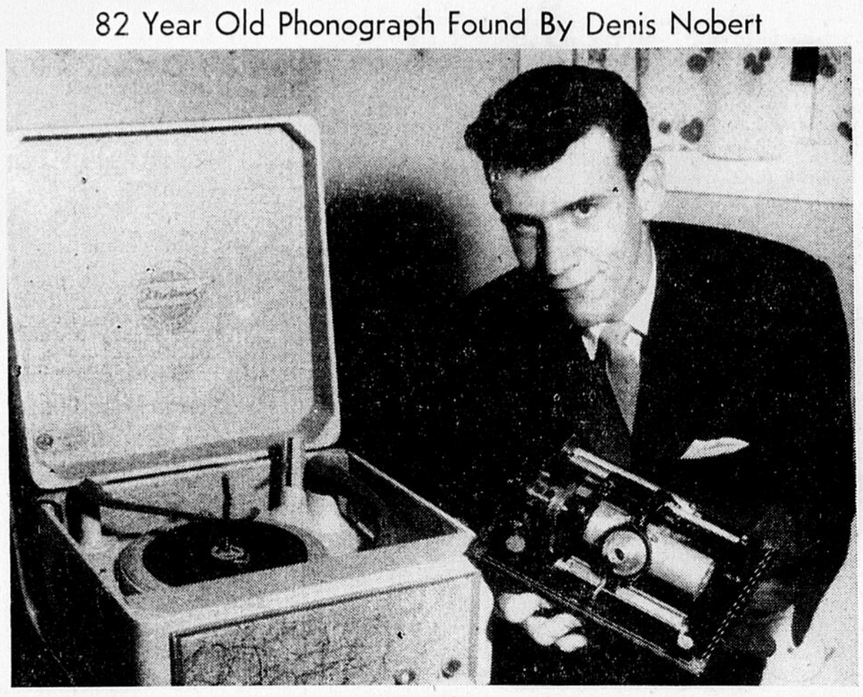

Welcome new residents of Adam and Drolet, glad to have you as neighbours.

An invitation to the people of Prudential has been extended by a member of the town council to meet with the council of Chateauguay Center on October 17.

Something to Think About!

How many public meetings have you attended recently that started with singing of "O Canada?" Not many? Well, why not suggest that it be done. Patriotism is not something to be forgotten just because one lives in the suburbs. We should show that we are thankful to be living in a free and democratic country, where it is possible to own your own home.

82 Year Old Phonograph Found By Denis Nobert

Past and Present: Denis Nobert, 17, 134 Haute Riviere, Chateauguay, found an Edison phonograph manufactured almost 82 years ago while looking for paint brushes in the basement of his home. He is shown above, comparing the Edison phonograph with a modern record player. A plate on the old machine identifies it as an "Edison Standard Phonograph, Model C, manufactured under patents of Thomas A. Edison, et, Als, at Orange, N.J., U.S.A., Oct. 27, 1888." The machine, the plate declares, is vended only so long as every possessor of the machine admits the validiay of (the above enumerated) patents. This grandfather of Hi-Fi record players cost $18 at the time of original purchase.

Letter to The People.

Sends English Newspaper Account Of Long Military Service

(By D. M. Watson)

Mr. Gordon H. Pollard of Vimy Apartment Building recently received, by mail, a clipping from the Western Evening Herald Plymouth, Devonshire, England, referring to the Royal Artillery Pageant held in Plymouth in celebration of "Battle of Alnia" by a field battery of 29th Field Regiment, Royal Artillery. Mr. Pollard has written to the editor of the Western Evening Herald a challenge to Alnia Battery Royal Artillery to see if they could outdo his family record with the Royal Regiment of Artillery. The following is his letter.

Dear Editor,

As my own family has been closely connected with the Royal Regiment of Artillery for over one-hundred years, I was very much interested in the article referred to. I, at present, have in my possession, my father's medal, granted to him for service in the China War of 1860 with clasp "Taku Forts 1860" and with the inscription on the outer rim "Driver John Pollard, No. 3B, BDE. R'Art".

I also have his long service and good conduct medals inscribed on rim "666 Sergt. J. Pollard. D.S.R.A." (D. S. meaning District Staff) awarded to him while serving at Paignton, Devonshire, where I was born. The China War Medal has no Regimental number so I can only conclude that regimental numbers had not been given to soldiers 100 years ago.

I, myself, enlisted into the Royal Artillery at Fort Rowner, Hants, on 19 March, 1898, at the age of 14, from the Duke of York's Royal Military School, which was then in Chelsea, London. I later served with the 14th Company Southern Division, R. A. (which later became 97th Coy. R. G. A.). We embarked at Southampton on the 3rd of February, 1900 and on arrival at Cape Town one month later, we were equipped with 5 inch 50 pounder guns, previously used by the Elephant Batteries in India. Our means of traction was "Trek Oxen" hence our nickname of "Cow Guns".

After the South African War was over, I transferred from R.G.A. to R.F.A. and served with the 82nd Battery R.F.A., both in South Africa and India, later being posted to England for a spell of home service. It was while soldiering at Aldershot with the 40th Battery, 43rd Bde. R.F.A. that World War I broke out. Being with the first Division, we of course were first to land at Boulogne, France on August 16, 1914, 11 days after war was declared. Of the original 200 men who landed with the battery on August 16, there were not many left when we were withdrawn from the line on 22nd November, 1914. About 50 survived. We were awarded a special medal "1914 Star" with clasp, "5th August-22nd November, 1914. "This should not be confused with the "1914-1915 Star".

I was lucky enough (or should I say unlucky) to come through both wars unscathed. I have six medals of my own and my Father's two in my possession now, all of them awarded to us while proudly serving with the Royal Regiment of Artillery. My only brother, No 24777, Battery Sergt.-Maior Charles H. Pollard was killed in action at Tilloyhood, near Arras, France, on 16 August, 1917 (note the 16 August again), while serving with the 327 Siege Battery R.G.A., after serving 20 years continously with the Royal Artillery.

This letter perhaps might not interest anyone except a Royal Artilleryman, and I can tell you now that in those days we were mighty proud of our Regiment. I write this letter wondering if anyone else may have as good or perhaps better record of service with the Royal Regiment of Artillery.

Father, John Pollard, to pension after serving 21 years

Son. Charles H. Pollard, Killed in action. Served 20 years.

Son. Gordon H. Pollard, to pension after serving 21 years.

I have all records to prove Total 62 years.

this. Can anyone else better it? Come on Alnia Battery. Show us your stuff.

Yours very truly,
Gordon H. Pollard
Late R.A.A./26949.

Mr. Pollard added a P.S. to his letter that he was enclosing a photo of himself, taken about 7 years ago, showing his own and his Father's medals.

We wish to assure Gordon that his Vetville comrades will be anxious to hear about the outcome of this Challenge and are proud to have a Veteran with the above record with us and wish him the best of luck.

Kinsmen Club Launch Police Ambulance Fund Drive — Licorice All-Sort Sale One Of Three Projects

The Chateauguay Kinsmen Club are undertaking to raise sufficient funds to provide the Police Force with an ambulance for the many emergency calls they are required to answer each year.

In order to meet their objective, the Kinsmen have inaugurated three separate fund raising projects, the first of which has been under way for the past week. This project, under the direction of Chairman, John Mercer, is the sale of two pound boxes of Licorice All-Sorts to the public at a price of $1.00. These boxes of candies are available from members of the Kinsmen Club and any member of the Police Force. Police Chief Rousseau reported that in the three days since his men had received their supply of Licorice, 168 boxes had been sold and that they were awaiting futher supply from the Kinsmen.

On Saturday and Sunday, October 15 and 16, Chateauguay Kinsmen will set up a booth at the intersection of highways 3 and 4 for the purpose of selling the All-Sorts.

Another project with the Ambulance fund as its objective also is the Halloween Dance to be held October 28 at Desgroseilliers Hall. Tom Guthrie, Chairman of the Dance Committee says that a top notch orchestra will play and asks that as it is a Halloween dance, as many as possible should come in costume. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes and tickets for this dance may be purchased for $1.00 from local Kinsmen.

The third project, is a Christmas Cheer Rafle, being conducted by a committee headed by Art Voyame. Tickets will be distributed for this by Kinsmen members in the near future.

The need for a regular ambulance in the Chateauguay area, by the Police is emphasized by the fact that in little over a year, the police have answered 75 emergency calls from all three municipalities in the area, requiring the use of the police car to take people to hospital. The proceeds of these fund raising campaigns will provide a suitably equipped vehicle to answer all emergency calls, thus relieving the regular police Station Wagon for duty elsewhere.

A special Bank account has been opened to accept donations toward this project. Anybody wishing to contribute any sum, large or small may send their donation to "Emergency Car Fund" Banque Canadienne Nationale, Chateauguay Center. Your generosity in providing funds to carry out this project will be greatly appreciated.

The committee chairman gave their various reports. Dick Pratten gave his report on the Protestant School Board meeting, while John Downing gave a resumé of what has been happening at the Catholic School Board meetings. The rink and the membership committees also reported.

Don't forget the general meeting at the Chateau-Gai Motel, tonight Wednesday, October 12th at 8.30 sharp.

In the period 1953-58 certificates of Canadian Citizenship were granted 326,304 new Canadians. But one look at Canada's sparsely settled areas and the economic smallness of the home market indicates the great need for more of these people.

Historical Notes Gleaned From "Sellar's" History

When a settler had a yoke of oxen, or could "change works" for one, he would go on felling the trees on an acre or so without regarding how they lay, and then, choosing a dry time, burn the brush and smaller limbs. The field would then be a blackened fallow, covered with the charred trunks of the fallen trees. A bee would be called and these would be hauled by oxen and rolled into heaps, to be burned into ashes. Any way it could be taken, the work was dirty and exhausting, especially in hot weather, when the settlers, black as negroes, toiled in piling the logs together to burn them.

In the land, thus cleared, potatoes or corn was planted with the hoe, and perhaps a handful or two of wheat dragged in with a bush. The virgin soil never failed to respond with a generous yield, and the best crops ever known were procured by this rude cultivation. Insects or blight of any kind was unknown, and the only enemies were the wild beasts of the woods, which at night would help themselves to a late supper off the settler's clearing. The farming of the backwoods was unique. When the first crop of potatoes was taken up, fall wheat, either red or white chaff, was sown, and for many years never failed. The clearings, imbedded in the woods, were sheltered from the blasts of winter, and the snow lay deep and even until April, so that winter-killing was impossible. From the same cause, the soil was kept moist in summer, and the sunlight warmed it without producing drouth. The humidity of the atmosphere, caused by the ever-present bush, was the best possible for plant-life. Then the virgin soil was not only rich in vegetable food but free from those weeds that are now the farmer's plague. After hilling the potatoes, the settler had no need to hoe them. Harvest was thus described by an Irish settler of Godmanchester: "Whate as high as your head, and when you scraped away the dirt where you planted potatoes, you found them like a hen's nest". Plentiful as the yield was, when the clearings were small potatoes had to be carefully hoarded, and with the setting-in of cold weather the seed-end was carefully cut off each mess as selected for food, and laid away for spring, thus saving the cutting of whole potatoes for planting. When the land came to be passably clear between the stumps, timothy was sown, and it grew wonderfully, the crop being often so abundant that it had to be spread on the stump-tops to cure. Clover was then almost unknown. Haying was most laborious, from the unevenness of the land and the number of stumps, and, owing to the greater moisture of those days, was later, sometimes extending into September. Toiling under an August sun, the mower would halt to take off his shirt and wring it, dripping with perspiration. One more nice in his ways, took a spare shirt with him, so that one was always drying. Of the feats in mowing in those days, big stories have come down, but that men have cut 3 acres in a day for a wager is undoubted. The grain was reaped with the sickle and stooked, Old Country fashion. About 1835, John Gilmore and David Cairns, left Huntingdon on a visit to relations in Ohio, where they saw, for the first time, a cradle. Cairns was so delighted with it, that he brought one back, which led to their adoption, and the disuse of the toothed hook. The first blight to visit the wheat was smut, which was a dreadful catastrophe, as the mills then had no means of cleaning it, and the bread was as black as if the flour had been mixed with soot. Following the smut, came rust, and to it (though I am now beyond the days of first-settlement) succeeded the fly, which rendered the growing of fall wheat impossible, and led to the adoption of Black Sea wheat. It was so difficult to thresh, that something more powerful than the flail was needed, and it was found in the niggerhead — a heavy log about 10 feet long, studded with oak pins. The wheat was strewn on the barn-floor, or a clean bit of ground, and a horse dragged the niggerhead over it. The first threshing-mill was brought to Trout river by David Elder.

A very interesting subject is opened up on coming to speak of fruit-trees. The first apple-trees were brought from Caldwell's Manor and vicinity, and so easrly as 1812 there were trees in bearing in Hemmingford and Franklin, and ten years afterwards they were being exchanged for grain with the new settlers. In 1828 there settled on the river below Huntingdon John Cassidy, who was a gardener by trade, and he started a nursery. Unquestionably, however, almost all the trees came from the American side of the line, and consisted of natural fruit. Owing to the difficulty in fencing, orchards were not a success with the early settlers, and, on the clay, apples were not plentiful until of late years.

The live-stock was drawn mainly from the French parishes, and therefore Canadian horses and Canadian cows were predominant, and for their size there is nothing better in the world. The lumbermen were of some service in introducing heavy teams and imported many large yokes of oxen from the States. The first impetus to the improvement of cattle was the obtaining of bulls from Henry Hoyle of Lacolle, who was a noted breeder in those early times. The sheep were generally good, being off imported stock obtained from the Scotch farmers on the island of Montreal. As the settlers became able to pay for service, a number of horses, more or less thoroughbred, came from the United States. As early as 1835 the father of the Somerville brothers sent them as a present a Clydesdale stallion and several Leicester sheep. The horse was badly bruised in the voyage and had to be left at Lachine to recuperate. He was of grey color and a good specimen of his breed. The settlers were unable to patronize him and after holding him for a season or so, John Somerville sold him to a resident of Ottawa for $200, who resold him for a good figure, and he died from bursting a bloodvessel while going west. In 1845 John Someville brought out another Clydesdale, a black, named "Clyde", which left numerous progeny. He was sold subsequently to Robert Graham of Hinchinbrook. Another horse brought out with him was secured by Mr. Dodds of the Island of Montreal, he tossing with Mr. Graham for the choice. The one he selected was the handsomer of the two but proved to be inferior as a stock-horse.

The boys, Wayne Dombroski, Jackie Jupp, Wade Gilmour, Terry Dunn and Steven Bosshart enjoy swimming along with the many other attractions of the "Y" each Saturday from 9.30 a.m. until 2 p.m. One poor father cools his heels during this time either window shopping, running errands for wife or reading a "who-dun-it" to pass the time. Every minute of every day for the past 12 months someone, somewhere, has bought a new Ford Falcon

FALCON FORDOR SEDAN—one of Ford of Canada's fine cars . . . built in Canada

Remarkable record for a new car, isn't it? But then, the Falcon is a rather remarkable car.

It has honest room for six, combined with handy size and dimensions that make it terrific for driving in traffic, a pleasure to park. It delivers up to 35 miles to a gallon, with 85 lively horsepower designed for Canadian roads and loads. (There's an optional 101 horsepower engine available in the '61 Falcon if you want even snappier performance.) The Falcon runs so smoothly and quietly you sometimes forget the engine is on. Trunk room is generous, visibility practically unlimited. And as for style, in all modesty, it really is a beauty!

433,440 Falcon owners (one for every minute of every working day) live all around the world. One of them lives in your neighbourhood. Why not have a chat with him yourself?

Editorial Notes

The Schools Have A Problem

AFTER many years of it not having been noticed, someone has been studying up on the laws and has come up with a matter which is going to present a problem to most schools in this and other areas in Quebec.

At a meeting of the Huntingdon High School Commissioners, the past week, discussion centred on a directive received from the Director of Education with regard to the use of school buses. It has been the practice of schools to use their buses for extra curricular activities such as taking the students to various inter-school games and sports; on tours to outside points, such as Montreal, Ottawa and so forth. The directive points out that this will no longer be tolerated as it is against the law.

Right at this time the schools are organizing such sports as basketball and hockey and making leagues among the schools to make games more interesting and more competitive. This of course means that the players have to get to and from these points. Formerly, the school bus would be used for this purpose — now, this is out, so what can be done, how will it affect inter-school competitions of all kinds?

It used to be that owners of private cars would either loan, or drive their cars to take students on these trips. But since it was discovered that in the event of an accident both the driver, or owner of the car and the school board could be sued, most people will not do this any more. Accidents can be quite costly today and the person who through the goodness of his heart drives his car in such manner, may wind up in debt for the rest of his life. The recovery is, that if the owner of the car has not enough to cover the accident the school board must pay the balance. Therefore not too many people will take the chance of driving or loaning their cars, despite their willingness to be of assistance to the students and the school.

School buses are insured against accidents and it was therefore considered the safest way to transport students to the various points of extra curricular activities, but apparently it is against the law for these buses to go outside their own school municipality. It might be arranged that a bus from one municipality could meet another from another municipality, effect a transfer and thus overcome this transportation problem within the extra-curricular areas. This is something that would have to be worked among the various school boards to see if it would be feasible. But in this way there would be no encroachment of the law.

However, we feel that strong representation should be made by all school boards to have special permits issued to allow the school buses to continue this means of transportation. It must be remembered that no charge is made for carrying the students on these trips and it is not a money making proposition. It is purely a means of carrying the students and they are actually on school business, even though they are outside their own municipality.

It is a matter which all school boards should study immediately and seek to have remedied by some means or other.

The School Population Continues to Grow

THERE was considerable discussion when the new addition to Huntingdon High School was proposed and during the time it was being built, that it may be too large. Then suggestions were made that it be larger and a new site be found with a view to future expansion.

Some thought that the addition was going to have too many rooms, it was said in the beginning that there would be two rooms which would not be in use and could be there for further accommodation if and when that became necessary. Even when the now old part of the school was built in 1939, there was some speculation as to how it would be filled. So it is really an old argument.

At a meeting of the school board last week, the matter came up in quite an ordinary manner, that more room was necessary for the teaching of a certain grade. It was proposed that the lab table be moved to another part of the chemical lab. in order to accommodate the class that is using the room. Some of the board members asked why the room was being used this way. The Principal said it had to be that way and it had been that way for some time now, as there was insufficient number of classrooms to accommodate the students. He said that every piece of available space in the school was being utilized in classroom use. There was no discussion on the matter other than moving the table so that it could be easily put back and into use when required.

The thought struck us, how long can this continue without having once again to enlarge this building. It has happened in many districts and this problem is continually cropping up when least expected. The school population is growing. In almost every grade in the entire school today there are an A and B with two teachers. With say nine grades, this means 18 classrooms or space for such, to say nothing of other room space that is required, so it is not hard to figure what space is required in the schools of today and that what seems to be a large school or an addition, is sometimes inadequate right from the start. It is quite probable that if the school population continues to increase, more school building will be necessary in a few years time. We hope our town grows and expands and present indications this year would seem to point that it will. But with expansion there must come the need for more facilities to look after our citizens present and future.

Are Car Manufacturers Seeing The Light?

IT would be too much of a revolution if all car manufacturers were to suddenly change all their models to a smaller and more economical design. Last year they introduced the so-called compact cars as an addition to their lines, or they imported a smaller type model and added it to the lines carried.

The "compact" did not catch on as well as might be supposed, but some of the imported small models sold very well. It may be supposed that the reason the "compact" did not sell so well was the fact that the price was very little under the regular models and the size was not so much different, while the extras were not included as they are on the imported small cars. They were perhaps a little more economical and gave a little more mileage, but still short of the economy of the "small car".

The announcements for the new models for 1961 are now being made and it is interesting to note the claims that each manufacturer is making for his particular make. Some are saying the cars are a few inches shorter and a few inches narrower. The styling has been somewhat modified, there are not so many fancy looking fenders, the lines are much smoother and not so rakish. This in a way presents an economy, as repairs do not come so high when parts of the body become damaged and have to be replaced.

Others are stressing new economies which mean savings over a period such as less frequent oil changes; brakes which adjust themselves; mufflers which wear and last longer; lubrication which lasts almost the life of the moving parts; bodies which need no further waxing to keep the finish; underbody parts protected from rot from driving in all weather.

The driver and owner of an automobile all know how much can be saved in maintenance by these items mentioned above. They mean savings and less cost of upkeep. It would thus seem that the car manufacturers are paying attention to the things that the car buyer has been looking for and why he has turned to the "small car". More economies are still needed to make the cars sell better. Another innovation is the new guarantee being given with some makes — a full year, or 12,000 miles, whichever happens to come first. Some drivers will travel more than others, so the warranty will mean more to everyone. Such is a consideration that will be welcomed.

We still say that Canadian cars are too big and many a garage has to be made larger and thus means more expense. The larger car is less handy to park and a less number can be parked in a given space. The price is still in the higher bracket, although some manufacturers have announced some slight reductions. The practice of pricing many necessities as extras, is something the manufacturers will have to consider. When the customer buys a car, he likes to know the price complete and not to be told that this is extra and that is extra. Here again is where the "small car" fits the customer's budget, it is quoted complete and states what it offers.

To meet the competition that has been forced on the automobile trade the manufacturers must study the needs of the buyers more and a step in the right direction has been made with the 1961 announcements. We believe that even these things should see a trend upward in new sales this coming year. Plainer, sturdier, more economical and serviceable cars will woo the buyer more than the futuristic designs and fancy looks, which the buyer now knows is costing him too much money and does not bring him any more value.

Importing Unemployment

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

"There is still no substitute for hard work," says the Truro Daily News in an editorial commenting on an article appearing in the magazine Business Week surveying the situation in West Germany. The article finds that German businessmen are "extremely confident of their general competitive position in the world today. Exports are high and still rising. They expect to go on winning a larger share of the world market." The magazine observes that some of the explanation lies in the fact that "the nation is to a considerable degree business oriented. Businessmen have a powerful voice in government councils. The government has labored to create a favorable business climate, particularly in tax policies."

But that is not all. "The Germans," we are told, "seem to be naturally-born, driving workers. The energy and determination they once poured into political and military expansion is now funnelled into economic effort. Germany's business managers offer evidence. They put in longer, harder hours than most of their counterparts in North America. Britain and France. In return they get high reward."

What has Canada to learn from this example of hard work? With more than 300,000 unemployed, we have not enough work to go around. But that is because we have transferred a large portion of our work to other countries by importing goods which we could make ourselves. We buy these goods because they are cheaper than our own; but in fact they are dearer, for what we save in our pockets on the transactions, we have to pay out in higher taxes to maintain those 300,000 in idleness. And that is not the whole story. By employing workers in other countries to make things we can make ourselves, we are exporting Canadian capital, upon which we depend for the promotion of our industries and the maintenance of our boasted high standard of living.

There is no need to raise a high tarriff to shut out these "cheap" goods from our home market. We could refuse to buy them and, better still, we could work harder and reduce the cost of their production, which would in turn reduce prices and the cost of living. Labor unions have it in their own hands to do all this. They base their demands for higher wages and fringe benefits on the rising cost of living, and then proceed to increase that cost still further by raising the cost of production and services, such as railways and other means of transportation and distribution... There is no substitute for hard work.

The Week In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage announced this week creation of a Royal Commission to investigate the 16-year adminstration of the former Union Nationale government. The interim leader of Union Nationale, Yves Prevost, said the Commission is a good thing.

Specifically the Commission is to inquire into the 1957 sale of the publicy-owned Montreal Gas Distribution system to private interests and purchase of shares in the new corporation by government members and officials. It is also to examine purchasing practices of the Colonization Department and the Purchasing Bureau.

Colonization minister in the former Union Nationale cabinet was J. D. Begin. The Purchasing Bureau somes under direct authority of the provincial cabinet.

But Mr. Lesage told a press conference that the way was clear for the commission to investigate other aspects of the Union Nationale administration if it wished. Orders-in-council could also be passed by the cabinet directing the commission to look into specific subjects.

Mr. Prevost said at a press conference "We want the truth and justice to come out". Some of the findings would not be too startling, he said, if factors of human errors, possible in the administration of a $500,000,000 annual budget, were taken into account.

Government ministers had to make many descisions every day and often worked under considerable pressure.

The Union Nationale party will appoint attorneys to represent it before the Royal Commission, Mr. Prevost said. The truth would be known, he said, because all witnesses called on to appear before the commission would be allowed a full opportunity to be heard.

Mr. Lesage named three men to the commission. They are Mr. Justice Elie Salvas, 63, appointed to the Montreal Superior Court in 1941; Howard-Irwin Ross, 53, a Montreal chartered accountant and member of a firm of business administration experts; Jean-Marie Guerard, 67, a Quebec City lawyer active in charity work.

Appointed to act for the commission were two lawyers, Gerard Levesque of Quebec and Jean-Marie Nadeau of Montreal who was killed in a car accident near Drummondville a few hours after Mr. Lesage's announcement.

The commission has nine months to report its findings in the natural gas sale and a year for its look at the Union Nationale administration.

The sale of the gas system to Quebec National Gas resulted in the so-called natural gas scandal.

The Huntingdon Gleaner

Gentlemen:—

In the Montreal Star, the issue for Wednesday, September 28th, 1960, there appeared on page 1, two articles, one referring to a statement made by Mr. Lester B. Pearson, the other a statement attributed to N'Krumah, the President of the new state of Ghana.

These men live in areas very different in circumstance to each other and referred to quite different circumstances yet their utterances were closely akin in relationship to world welfare.

Mr. Pearson, on being asked his opinion in regard to the speech of Prime Minister Diefenbaker before the General Assembly of the United Nations, replied: "It hurts me to say this, but it was magnificent".

We feel, and must believe, that the statement: "It hurts me to say this", was in the main a humorous reference to his relationship to the Prime Minister as Leader of the Opposition. However, Mr. Pearson had quite some time ago, given it as his opinion that the function of "The Opposition" was to oppose. We therefore are led to believe that no matter how necessary to the welfare of Canada may be certain legislation brought forward by the Party in power, (the Government), the duty of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition is to oppose the adoption of that necessary welfare legislation.

Surely that is not the real duty, or required function of the Opposition? To oppose harmful legislation, to suggest better ways of implementing that legislation, pointing out errors, yes, but certainly not opposing, simply because they are the Official Opposition. If it does really hurt to know that the Government has done something magnificent, then I feel that the Opposition does not really understand their place in the affairs of their country. Such a statement pre-supposes that Mr. Pearson would have been glad, "tickled pink", if the Prime Minister, making a speech which comes before the attention of the whole world, had made an "ass of himself". Such cannot be good for the future welfare of Canada and I feel would be bad for democratic operations.

Possibly this is why democracy is losing its appeal.

Now let us look at the statement of President N'Krumah of Ghana. Ghana is one of the newer of the Nations having representation at the General Assembly of the United Nations, and, quite possibly, does not yet know just what is the real function of that body; so may possibly be excused for his action; but it should not go unnoticed. When speaking to a group of Asians and Africans he proposed the formation of a "Neutralist Block", "so that they would become a strong third party (or force) not to be buffeted by great power quarrels and ambitions".

If the United Nations is to become the sounding board of various blocks, each seeking the attainment of its own selfish ambitions, it will most certainly become anything but united. The United Nations General Assembly was designed to discuss the ambitions of all powers and endeavour to so arrange situations that the rights of all concerned might, willingly, be safeguarded. Of course the United Nations, and especially at its present session, has for a long time, been anything but that; but because it has not been what it should be, is no reason to make it even less effective.

A multiplicity of blocks would only result in the formation of power groups, combining for particular advantage, and the "rights" of the human race would be still further disregarded. President N'Krumah, and all the nations too soon become a part of the United Nations group, should be well informed as to the real function of that assembly, and see more of its real functions adopted by all of its members. It is really a world parliament. If our national parliaments were at all times to seek the real welfare of their nationals, we might then hope, and expect, that the United Nations, in their various assemblies, would do likewise.

We can excuse N'Krumah, and the presidents of the newer members, for their unawareness, but if the Opposition of a so-called civilized country, is really hurt when it must admit that its political opponent has done something magnificent in local or world affairs, there can be no excuse for them.

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA, Oct. (CP) — Federal and provincial leaders began searching for a way to bring the constitution home to Canada.

Early results led to forecasts of success. Proposals for change submitted by the federal government were reported to be more appealing to the provinces than Ottawa expected. It would end a series of embarrassments for Canada and Britain.

Ever since the British North America Act was enacted in 1867, Canada has had to go begging to Westminster every time it wanted a change in the Act — the base document of Canada's constitution.

Several years ago a change was made to allow constitutional amendment in Canada on matters affecting the federal government only. But not so for federal-provincial matters. Each time an amendment is desired in that respect, London's approval must be petitioned.

It's not London's fault. The Statute of Westminster gave Canada the power to change its constitution. But the federal and provincial governments have never been able to agree over all those years — on a way to go about it.

Plain Talk

About 60 Atlantic province mayors attending a civil defence course at Arnprior, near Ottawa, heard some plain talk about possible nuclear attack. Some of it was almost alarming.

Experts from the Emergency Measures Organization, the federal civil defence agency operating from Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office, laid down these facts:

The federal government is spending $40,000,000 this year on preparations for a nuclear war — not through the conviction that there will be such an attack, but because it feels the possibility of one cannot be ignored. There is $4,000,000 set aside to aid provincial municipal governments.

Canada is stockpilling $18,000,000 worth of medical supplies for use in event of attack. In addition, the government has "packaged" — specially boxed — equipment for 200 emergency hospitals, each of them containing 200 beds and three operating rooms.

Sites for nuclear shelters for the federal and all 10 provincial governments now are being tested. They will be huge underground layouts from which a bombed-out country could be directed.

Next year, the Canadian army will begin installing more than 2,000 "nuclear detonation and fallout reporting centres" across Canada. In a nuclear attack, they would locate the blast, determine the bomb's size, the height of the burst and the fallout danger, then pass the information to provincial and federal control centres.

Prices Rise

Canadian living costs reached a record high Sept. 1. The consumer price index rose 0.4 percent to 128.4. It is based on 1949 price levels equalling 100.

Main upward pressure came from 1.3-per-cent advance in food prices during August. There were sharp increases in egg prices and higher prices for fats, oranges, some beef cuts, bacon and canned salmon. Fruits and vegetables were cheaper.

There also were increases of 0.2-per-cent in the index covering clothing and household operations, and 0.1-per-cent in shelter index, reflecting rents and home-ownership costs. The shelter index now stands at a record 144.2.

Railway Dispute

The dispute between the railways and their 111,000 non-operating employees seems to be coming to a head.

Cause of the dispute is a conciliation board proposal for a three-stage wage increase that works out to about 14 cents an hour over a two-year contract.

A strike vote is being conducted among the non-ops — the CNR and CPR employees who work in the railway offices, shops, freight sheds and on track repair crews. They are represented in the battle by 15 different unions.

One leader of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CLC) told a rally in Moncton, N.B., that only an overwhelming strike vote would persuade the government to get the railways to settle the dispute.

"The people of Canada, through Parliament, have set limits on What the railways can earn," he said. "The people of Canada, through a conciliation board, have stated what they think you should earn, and the railways say they won't give it to you."

A Good Year

Works Minister Walker said 1960 will be a "good year" in house building with about 120, compared with the 1958 record of 146,700.

But the number of unsold homes is rising and the vacancy rate in rental housing is at its highest level since before the Second World War.

"The conditions of 1960 do not call for the policies of two or three years ago," said Mr. Walker, who obviously was referring to heavy direct mortgage lending by the federal government in recent years.

To keep housebuilding moving ahead, the minister recommended municipal development of new housing areas — possibly under the winter works program — and an attack on slum clearance and urban renewal.

Income Declines

Reduced marketings of western grain contributed to a decline of more than three per cent in farmers' cash income from the sale of farm products during the first half of the year.

Farm production brought cash returns estimated at $1,279,000 during the six months, the bureau of statistics estimated. The comparable 1959 figure was $1,320,000,000.

Another $29,600,000 was received in governmental payments — $12,200,000 in federal-provincial aid to prairie farmers with grain snowbound in the fields last winter, and $17,400,000 in prairie farm assistance act payments.

Returns from the sale of livestock products are estimated at about $807,000,000 down three per cent. Cash receipts from the sale of field crops were down five per cent at $445,000,000. Returns from hogs and eggs were lower.

Montreal Daily Le Devoir charged in June 1958, that cabinet ministers and other Union Nationale officials has purchased shares in Quebec National Gas.

The paper was sued for a token $1,000 by each of the 16 persons named. The cases are still before the courts.

In 1958 Mr. Lesage, then new Liberal Leader, and other Liberals petitioned Lieutenant-Governor Onesime Gagnon for a Royal Commission into the sale. This was rejected.

Such an investigation was a main plank in the Liberal Party's platform during the election campaign that brought the Liberals to power last June. Mr. Lesage said its function will be to find facts, not to especially prosecute.

He emphasized its findings would be used to determine ways of halting abuses within government. The Attorney-General would decide once the commission had made known its findings whether any person would be prosecuted.

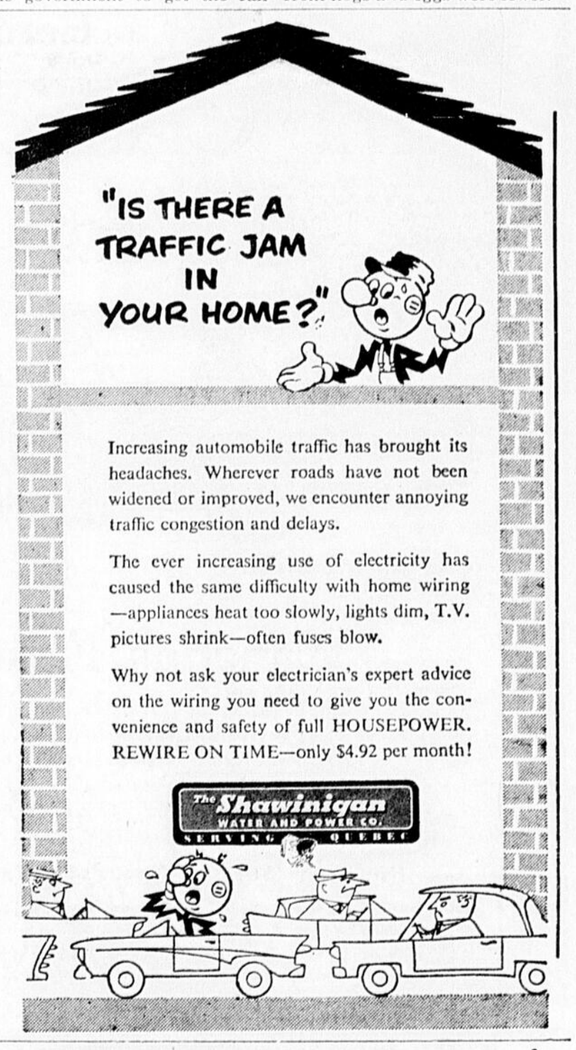

When the late Premier Duplessis' came to power in 1936 his government also instituted an investigation—through the Public Accounts Committee—of the former Liberal administration which had been in office 40 years.

The Canadian Association of Consumers, 28,000 women strong, will be emphasizing safety in the home and on the highway during the coming year.

The National Convention here this week approved resolutions calling for safety devices as standard equipment on cars and for labels on home extinguishers containing potentially dangerous fumes. It also laid the groundwork for a safety campaign to warn of the dangers of plastic bags in the home.

The association continued its appeals for improved inspection of meat and other foods. It asked the Federal Government to provide more money to the Federal Food

A columnist turned in a really terrific scoop recently, and his boss offered him a six months' vacation — with pay. The whole newspaper staff was astounded — but they were even more shocked when the columnist refused.

"For Heaven's sake, why?" the boss asked him.

"There are two reasons," the columnist said. "The first is that if I quit writing my column for six months it might affect the circulation of the paper. The second is that it might not affect the circulation."

Taillefer-Elliott Nuptials

Miss Shirley Patricia Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott of Bombay, became the bride of Edmond A. Taillefer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Naphtalie Taillefer of Huntingdon, Quebec, Saturday, September 17. The nuptial mass was performed in St. Joseph's Church, Bombay, by the Rev. Morris Dwyer, pastor.

The altar was decorated with baskets of pink gladioli and the guest pews were marked with white carnations and fern tied with white satin ribbon. Mrs. Norma Bergeron of Bombay was organist and Miss Carol Cavanaugh sang the mass.

Miss Elliott, given in marriage by her father, wore an imported French taffeta gown with fitted waist and long tapered sleeves. Her sabrina neckline was scalloped and embroidered in tiny seed pearls. Her bouffant skirt, which was also embroidered in seed pearls and iridescent sequins, fell in a chapel train. Her tulle fingertip veil was held in place by a pearl and iridescent sequin tiara. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Lorraine Brierly, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a fuchsia gown of rayon peau de soie enhanced by a scoop neckline, back bow and streamers. The pink cummerbund was highlighted by two roses of matching fabric. She wore a coronation crown and shoes of fuchsia and carried a fireside basket of bronze and yellow pompons.

Miss Suzanne Elliott, niece of the bride, and Miss Sheila Myers, cousin of the bride, were junior bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of cotillion blue silk organza over taffeta with bell sleeves. The fitted bodice had a scoop neckline and a wide lace cummerbund with velvet ribbon insert. They wore matching hats and shoes and carried fireside baskets of yellow and bronze pompons.

Miss Julie Brierly, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed in a floor-length gown of cotillion blue and white nylon over taffeta. A wide sash encircled her waist and ended in a large bow in the back. She carried a basket of blue and white pompons.

Billy Elliott was ring bearer.

Best man was Armand Taillefer, brother of the groom. Leslie Elliott and Lawrence Taillefer ushered.

The bride's mother wore a medium blue dress of chantilly lace over taffeta with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother was attired in a grey and yellow dress with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Following a reception at the Crossroads restaurant in Moira at which Rev. Father Dwyer was a guest of honor, the couple left on a wedding trip to New York City. For travelling the bride wore a brown wool suit with gold accessories and a corsage of gold and yellow pompons.

The couple will reside in Huntingdon, Quebec.

Forbidden To Bypass Stopped School Bus

The Provincial Highway Safety Committee, (Prudentia), reminds motorists that they are forbidden to bypass a school bus which has stopped down to embark or disembark school children. Remember this traffic rule, and be certain that you are not the motorist found responsible for having struck down a child. Remember that children are travelling these days by bus and slow down. They have a right to live.

Same Law For Cyclists

The Provincial Highway Safety Committee, (Prudentia), reminds cyclists that they are subject to all laws regarding stops and signalling which are set down in the Motor Vehicles' Act. Any signal calling for a stopdown by motorists must be fully observed by the cyclist, and another important rule which must be followed is that of staying on the right. The cyclist is especially urged that his area is the extreme right side of the road so that motorists will have a clear way.

Provincial government revenues from gasoline taxes, vehicle registrations, license fees and traffic fines was $504,000,000 in 1958, an average of $107 per vehicle and nearly one quarter of all provincial government revenues.

Howick

HOWICK — The Presbyterian Evening Group held their monthly meeting on October 5th, at the home of Mrs. T. Nugent.

President, Mrs. C. Brown opened the meeting. Mrs. P. Peddie led the responsive reading followed by prayer by Mrs. T. Nugent.

Mrs. C. Brown and Mrs. C. McCartney told of the Sectional meeting at Riverfield, when seven of our group were present.

Mrs. Wilburn Anderson gave an interesting account of the St. Andrew's W.M.S. meeting at Huntingdon, when Miss Margaret Kennedy gave an inspiring address, illustrated by colored slides, on her work in the Bible Mission Field of India, where she spent 21 years.

A presentation of an "In Memoriam" by the W.M.S. in memory of the late Rev. J. B. McLean D.D. was presented to Rev. Grant to be placed in the vestry.

The meeting closed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

A bale was packed valued at $140.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by the refreshments committee, Mrs. P. Peddie and Mrs. M. McCartney.

Mrs. H. R. Sherry spent Thanksgiving week-end with her brother Mr. W. Elliot.

The October meeting of the Howick W.I. was held at Fertile Creek School. 15 ladies and 8 men were present. The roll call was, a bird or insect and its use to agriculture. Among other interesting answers, we learned that because of 'those awful ants', a peony is able to bloom.

Mrs. P. Peddie reported 13 lbs of cotton for cancer had been sent away. Mrs. B. Campbell's offer of sides for a hospital bed, was accepted.

The Salvation Army truck is expected at Howick on Wednesday October 12.

$15.00 was voted towards a new school for retarded children $10 towards our cafeteria. A $25.00 cash prize will de donated as usual in Grades IX & X, for the year ending 1961.

The treasurer reported $146.54 on hand.

Mr. J. D. Lang, introduced by the president, Mrs. J. R. Younie, spoke on the subject, Government Services to Farmers, and both women and men were interested in what he had to say. He believes many farmers do not know the local agrinome and have little knowledge of government services offered. There are grants to livestock breeders which include special plans for young farmers to buy cattle. Grants to 4H Clubs; brucellosis control, manure pits, silos, fertilizer, tile drainage, power sprayers, dusters, construction of a green house, sap bucket replacement, plans and estimates for new farm buildings, to farmers sons at agriculture schools. Subsidy of $1000 per year for farmer establishment of sons. Mr. Ampleman at Ste Martine will give information and assistance at any time.

Mrs. Huntley Greig thanked Mr. Lang for such an interesting and informative talk.

Mrs. H. Greig conducted a quiz on weeds and farm implements.

Delicious refreshments were served by the Fertile Creek ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Simms spent a week at Harrington, visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bennett.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Howick Branch Canadian Legion held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert MacFarlane on Tuesday, October 4th, at 8 P.M. It was decided to place a Poppy Wreath on the Roll of Honour this year. A very nice letter was read from Mr. Welch, thanking the Auxiliary for the beautiful flowers sent to him and Mrs. Welch on the occasion of their 50th Wedding Anniversary. After the usual business Mrs. MacFarlane gave a most interesting demonstration on Christmas Candle making and other ideas for Christmas decorations. The 100 delegates from all parts of the country heard reports that the association's campaign against trading stamps had "met with mixed success". Some provinces had banned stamps, others had decided to await a ruling by The Supreme Court of Canada and others had done nothing to ban them.

Of the week's 10 murders in the province, one in Quebec City was among the most gruesome.

When found in a rooming house, the victim had her eyes gouged out and words carved on her body with a knife.

She was identified as the former Jeanne Gamelin, 38, of St. Joachim, Que., estranged from her husband, a Mr. Blanchard, who is out west. Police have identified the man who registered with her at the uppertown district rooming house under the name of Mr. and Mrs. St. Laurent. Identifictions were made difficult by the absence of all possessions except a man's under clothing and the woman's panties.
