

THE WEATHER

Showers and thundershowers are the forecast for the next 48 hours, the result of a depression hanging over the province, centred halfway between Sherbrooke and Quebec. Today's high will be near 16, tonight's low near 8. Tomorrow's high should be about 18. Showers should taper off tomorrow and Wednesday, with clearing and sunny skies predicted for Thursday and Friday.

Chicago crash tied to broken bolt

CHICAGO (AP) — The discovery that a broken bolt caused an engine to fall from the American Airlines jetliner involved in the worst aviation disaster in U.S. history has resulted in the plane's manufacturer and U.S. safety investigators calling for inspection of other DC-10s for a similar defect.

Langhorne Bond, head of the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), is reported to be considering grounding all DC-10s now in service in the U.S. following Friday's accident at O'Hare International Airport.

All 271 persons aboard Flight 191 and two persons on the ground were killed when the wide-body aircraft lost an engine, flipped over and crashed shortly after takeoff. The blaze which followed the crash could be seen for several kilometres.

Home addresses of all the passengers have not been determined. However, there has been no indication that any Canadians were aboard.

275 IN SERVICE
There are currently about 275 DC-10s in use by 41 airlines around the world, said an official of McDonnell Douglas, manufacturer of the aircraft.

Wardair, a Canadian carrier, has two DC-10s, but an official said on the weekend that it has no plans to pull them out of service.

The FAA was expected to issue a directive today calling for special inspections of many, and possibly all, DC-10s in use by U.S. airlines, said Jerome Doolittle, an FAA official.

Crash photog mobbed

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian who took pictures of the air crash at Chicago on Friday in which 273 persons died says reporters battled for a chance to offer him money for the film.

Michael Laughlin of King City, Ont., said there was a scuffle in front of the Chicago Tribune building when reporters spotted him trying to enter.

Laughlin, a part-time pilot, said he is an amateur photographer and took the pictures with a borrowed camera.

He photographed the American Airlines jet at O'Hare airport just as one of its engines flew off moments before it crashed.

Runners kick off Festival

By NELSON WYATT

SHERBROOKE — Two members of the Quebec Police Force from the Sherbrooke and Quebec detachments arrived in town on Friday to deliver a message of goodwill from the Quebec Carnival Committee and provide an athletic kickoff to the Festival des Cantons celebrations.

Organized to promote good relations between the police and the public, as well as physical fitness, the policemen had just completed a 215-mile relay run that brought them from the Quebec City Hall to the Terrill Street inauguration ceremonies, in Sherbrooke. Taking a total of about 32 hours, the run involved a total of about 20 QPF agents and passed through 40 towns and villages, including Thetford Mines, Richmond and Drummondville.

The participants were encouraged to set their own pace in the journey with the average amount travelled by a runner amounting to 50 miles per man. The average time for travelling a mile was between five and nine minutes, with 1000 miles set as the goal for the 24-man group.

The relay run was organized in conjunction with the QPF detachments in Sherbrooke and Quebec City, the Festival des Cantons and the Quebec Carnival committee. It proved the opening event for the annual week-long Festival des Cantons celebrations.

Weather was a big factor in keeping the crowds down to 30 per cent of last year's total. The inclement weather of the last three days undoubtedly discouraged many of the visitors to the festival who would have come from the other parts of the area.

Despite the wet weather and the various problems resulting from it, organizers labeled the first weekend of the event a huge success and credited the Festival's new location on the Plateau Parc to account for a large measure of that success. Organizers said that they had received a number of compliments on the move, which provided proof enough for them that they had made a wise decision.

Morin: Envoys painting false Quebec picture

QUEBEC (CP) — The federal government has been using Canadian embassies overseas to spread a false image of the country's political situation says Claude Morin, Quebec's intergovernmental affairs minister. Canadian ambassadors have been offering their opinions on federal-provincial relations to audiences in host countries overseas, Morin told a national assembly committee last week.

Morin quoted from a February, 1978, address to the Athens Lions Club by A.J. Andrew, Canadian ambassador to Greece. The speech, delivered in English, suggests the Parti Quebecois introduced its plan for an independence referendum only after being elected as the provincial government in 1976.

A free-lance reporter for the Providence, R.I., Journal, Ian Vorres, wrote an article on the address May 31 of that year, noting it had been the topic of much discussion in the European diplomatic circles, Morin said.

Vorres quoted an important Canadian diplomat in Europe as saying diplomats had "sat on the fence long enough. It is high time a Canadian ambassador speak up."

Vorres's story also said Andrew delivered the speech without prior approval from the Ministry of External Affairs in Ottawa. The ministry later not only approved the address, but had copies distributed to other Canadian diplomatic delegations, Vorres wrote.

Morin said he wrote federal External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson in June, 1978, to bring the affair to his attention.

Jamieson replied that he had not seen the speech in question, but added it was his policy "that Canadian representatives overseas offer a faithful and objective interpretation of provincial government policies."

Morin also distributed copies of speeches by Canadian ambassador to the United States Peter M. Towe and the ambassador to France, Gerard Pelletier to the members of the parliamentary committee.

He also criticized the Canadian delegation in Dakar, Senegal for giving an image of Canada "as being a vast French-speaking country."

The Quebec minister said the federal government refused the province permission to open a diplomatic mission in Senegal last year because it did not want this impression changed.

OTTAWA GREETES CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Joe Clark was greeted by hundreds of cheering Progressive Conservatives at the airport Sunday as he made a triumphant return to the capital where he will become prime minister a week today.

In a brief speech from atop a luggage counter, Clark promised a government that "would keep in touch" with the citizens it represents.

He underlined the pledge by taking three airplanes to get to Ottawa from Jasper, Alta., where he has been since Tuesday's election discussing the transition of power from Pierre Trudeau's Liberal administration to his own.

Clark said he took commercial flights, turning down a trip on a government jet, to show he wanted to run a government that was neither aloof nor isolated.

Surrounded by about two dozen Conservative winners — and one or two losers — he told the crowd he was "ready to get to work."

"Our work together has just begun," he said to cheers of "Joe, Joe, Joe."

"We have a country to unite and a country to build — and we are going to do that."

Clark's government is to be sworn in June 4 when he is expected to name his cabinet.

Among those greeting Clark were potential cabinet members including John Fraser, in line for the labor portfolio, Walter Baker, party House leader in the last Parliament, and James McGrath, party social affairs critic.

Parents seek ban on classroom politics

QUEBEC (CP) — Roman Catholic parents' committees in Quebec want partisan politicking banned from high schools.

Delegates to the organization's weekend convention adopted a resolution presented by a Gaspé Peninsula parents' committee accusing the Parti Quebecois of attempting to establish student information groups to promote sovereignty-association.

The resolution also called for a ban on visits by politicians to schools during provincial election campaigns.

Federation president Jean Pontbriand, a Montreal policeman, said young students are easily influenced and do not have all the facts necessary to judge different political options.

Don Jamieson accepts Nfld draft

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — William N. Rowe, Newfoundland's embattled Liberal chief who faced the double task of fighting a provincial election and retaining his leadership, stepped aside Sunday in favor of Don Jamieson.

Jamieson, one of Newfoundland's best known political exports, accepted with fighting speed the Liberal leadership bestowed on him Sunday by the party's executive and caucus, and prepared to take on Premier Brian Peckford's Progressive Conservatives in the June 18 election.

The 58-year-old Jamieson, who lost his external affairs portfolio when PCs under Joe Clark won last week's federal election, said he would hold a strategy session with Newfoundland Liberals after he arrives here early this week.

"Because Mr. Jamieson is now available on the provincial scene, I have decided to lay aside my own personal ambitions and my own chance to become premier at this time," Rowe said at a news conference late Sunday.

"I have invited Don Jamieson to become leader of the Liberal party and to lead us to victory in this election."

"I have told the Liberal caucus and the executive board of the Liberal party that I would vacate the leadership on the condition that Mr. Jamieson is made leader of the party. I have told them I would do this for no other person."

"Mr. Jamieson has accepted my invitation and the Liberal caucus and executive board has unanimously

North Shore youth among fatalities

A 15-year-old Harrington Harbor youth killed shortly after midnight Saturday when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver on the Gaspé harbor road is one of three Quebecers dead in weekend fatalities.

The Quebec Police Force Gaspé detachment said they have few clues to the identity of the driver of the car which struck and killed Rowsell. The investigation is continuing.

In other fatalities, a 66-year-old Ursuline sister was killed when the car she was riding in overturned on Route 20, near St. Thomas d'Aquin shortly after noon Saturday. Dead is Cecile Drolet, of the Ursuline convent in Trois Rivières.

A seven-year-old Val d'Or lad drowned in Siscoe Lake Saturday afternoon. Dead is Arnold James Pudifin, of 769 Sullivan Road.

A 24-year-old man who drowned Sunday near Kelowna, B.C., when a home-built raft overturned was among at least 23 persons who died during the weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday night local times showed 19 traffic fatalities, one other drowning and one death in a house fire.

One person drowned in Quebec and two died in traffic accidents.

Alberta reported five traffic fatalities, Ontario three, Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan two each and Newfoundland and New Brunswick one each.

Prince Edward Island and Manitoba reported no fatalities.

The survey excludes industrial fatalities, slayings and known suicides.

Snake man glad it's over

HARTBEESPOORT, South Africa (AP) — "There will be other challenges in the future but I'll never go back into the snake cage," carpenter Jack Snyman said after spending a record 50 days with 24 deadly serpents.

He emerged from the cage at 5 p.m. Sunday, drank a victory glass of champagne and said:

"Thank God it's over. In the final countdown I was very nervous I'd get bitten... There were times that I closed my eyes and thought to myself, now there I go. This is it."

"It's one thing to catch snakes and another to have them creeping all over you and sticking their tongues in your nose."

Snyman, a bearded 25-year-old bachelor, stayed almost motionless in the glass-walled cage as black mambas, puff adders, Egyptian cobras and boomslangs slithered freely over his bed and him.

But he could hardly control a wide, happy grin seconds before he made his exit.

He sat completely still with his hands clasped firmly together, turning his head ever so slightly to watch the boomslangs curled around a tree stump behind him.

His eyes sparkled through his dark-rimmed glasses, despite an average of four hours sleep a day throughout the ordeal at Hartbeespoort Snake Park, about 65 kilometres northwest of Johannesburg.

Snyman took the Guinness Book of World Records' snakesitting title when he broke the 36-day record set in 1975 by another South African, Trevor Kruger, who died two weeks later in an auto crash. Then he decided to stick it out two more weeks to make any future assault on his record more difficult.

BIRCHTON

Mr. and Mrs. H. Patton of Kinnear's Mills were overnight guests of their daughter, Mrs. Nick Turchny, and Mr. Turchny, on Friday, and called on her sister Mrs. Basil Prescott, and Mr. Prescott, next day, then on to Lennoxville to receive their household effects from Kinnear's Mills, at their new home in Lennoxville.

Master Ian Prescott spent Saturday, May 19, with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Prescott.

Madeline Picard Kerr and husband Raymond Kerr of Galt, Ont., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Picard. The marriage of Judy Carmen Halsall and Gary Douglas Spring, was solemnized in the Birchton Church on May 19, with Rev. Gordon Simons, the officiating clergy.

Miss Gail Harron of Calgary was guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Harron, while here to attend the Halsall-Spring wedding.

The Community regret that Mrs. Oscar Desruisseaux has found it necessary, due to health problems, to close her home in Birchton, where she has been a very active part of the Community for close to sixty years. She is now with Mrs. R. Cilles and her mother, in Sherbrooke.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Alex MacDonald, nee Mona Herring, and to her family in the passing of husband, father and grandfather, on Sunday, May 13. Mother's Day was brightened for Mrs. B. Prescott, when son Sidney and grandson Ian, of Bulwer visited her and Mr. Prescott.

The Turchnys spent a weekend with her parents in Kinnear's Mills, and are pleased with the prospect of the Pattons coming to reside in Lennoxville.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Lowry of High Forest visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Jackson on Sunday.

News Briefs

Canada ready for Skylab crash

HALIFAX (CP) — Plans are being made to handle any debris that may fall on Canada from the American spaceship Skylab even though there is only a slim chance of the debris hitting Canada, an official of Emergency Planning Canada said in an interview.

Lesley Lynn, a public affairs spokesman for the agency, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) have alerted Canada to the possibility of debris from Skylab, which is falling from its orbit, landing in Canada.

Cyclists stop traffic

QUEBEC (CP) — About 30 cyclists blocked traffic on a major downtown artery for a short time Saturday to mark the beginning of provincial Bicycle Week. Cyclist groups in Montreal and Quebec want municipal governments to exclude automobiles from downtown areas and public parks to make the cities "more human."

Students sue teachers

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Superior Court has rejected a request by teachers at St. Jerome junior college to stop a small claims court from hearing a student damage suit. The students are seeking $490 each from the teachers' union and the education ministry for "loss of knowledge" suffered during a teachers strike in April, 1978.

Pope consecrates new bishops

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Pope John Paul on Sunday consecrated 26 new bishops from 12 countries — including Canada — and stressed his special interest in the church in Eastern Europe.

The Pope, who leaves for Poland this week on the first visit by a pontiff to a communist country, told the new bishops he could not talk about each of their countries.

Mauritanian premier still missing

DAKAR, Senegal (Reuter) — Searchers have failed to find any trace of a military plane which crashed off the Senegalese coast killing Mauritanian Premier Ahmed Ould Bouceif and 10 other persons, rescue officials said today.

Planes and ships searched in vain Sunday after the turboprop, twin-engine de Havilland aircraft plunged into the Atlantic during a sandstorm.

Gold hits $272 an ounce

LONDON (AP) — Gold rose $1.50 an ounce and hit a record $272.125 at the opening in Zurich today. The U.S. dollar also strengthened.

The London market was closed for the Spring Bank Holiday.

Cloutier: Clark in excellent position

MONTREAL (CP) — Francois Cloutier, one-time education minister in the government of former Liberal premier Robert Bourassa, said Sunday Joe Clark is "in an excellent position" to deal with the present situation in Canada.

Cloutier, on a stopover here after a plane trip from Paris, said Clark's open-mindedness about Quebec, "his intelligence and his analysis of the problems place him in a better position than (Pierre) Trudeau to find solutions to the constitutional crisis."

Salvadorian Catholics urge truce

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — The Roman Catholic archbishop of San Salvador said Sunday negotiations between the government and opposition groups are "necessary and urgent" to end the bloodshed in El Salvador.

Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero spoke for the first time in the Metropolitan Cathedral since May 4 when it was occupied by militant members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc. They left the cathedral Thursday.

Aussie confident of Soviet promise

ROME (AP) — An Australian labor leader says it will take some time for Soviet officials to work out the mechanics of their promise to him of reduced visa restrictions for Soviet Jews and freedom for 12 imprisoned Jewish dissidents.

But Robert Hawke, who claims he won the pledge in talks last week with Soviet officials in Moscow, says he is confident the Kremlin will not renege.

Victims may remain nameless

CHICAGO (AP) — Some victims of the worst air disaster in U.S. history might never be identified because many teeth may have been destroyed and bodies are so dismembered that fingerprinting may be useless, experts say.

"You usually use fingerprints, dental records and after that clothing," Chicago area FBI spokesman George Mandich said. "But there isn't much left out there."

Schreyer dives near Pole

ICE STATION LOREX (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Edward Schreyer, donning scuba gear and oxygen tanks, plunged into freezing water to explore the underside of polar ice only 50 kilometres from the geographic North Pole.

Schreyer made three dives last week for a total of 20 minutes under the ice while visiting this Canadian scientific outpost with John Parker, commissioner of the Northwest Territories.

Elwood Driver, vice-chairman of the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), said Sunday that the board voted unanimously to recommend that engine-support systems on all DC-10s be inspected immediately.

Ray Towne, an official of McDonnell Douglas, said Sunday in Long Beach, Calif., that the company has asked airlines to inspect their DC-10s.

American Airlines mechanics inspected the engine-support systems on a dozen of the 30 DC-10s in its fleet on the weekend, said airline official Art Jackson. All were found "in good shape," he said, and the rest of the planes were to be checked today.

FINDS BOLT

The inspection calls followed the recovery Sunday of the three-inch bolt, part of the loadbearing assembly that held an engine to the wing of the plane. Safety board investigators using metal detectors found the bolt about 2,400 metres down the runway, Driver said.

accepted my recommendation." EXTENDS WELCOME

Peckford said he welcomed Jamieson to the campaign.

"It's a new twist to the situation," Peckford said. "I look forward to a clean campaign based on the issues."

"The central issue has not changed. The central issue is who can best deal with Mr. Clark on the fisheries and the offshore."

Jamieson said in an Ottawa interview he had intended to wait a few weeks before deciding whether to stay in federal politics, which he first entered by way of a 1966 byelection, or switch to the provincial scene.

"But, the decision to call the (Newfoundland) election of course immediately changed the whole perspective. I'm glad the Liberal party has chosen to move in this direction."

Peckford announced the election Friday, a move that spoiled Liberal plans to hold a leadership convention July 6-7. The convention, intended partly to clear the air of complaints about Rowe's handling of leaked police reports last year, now appears to have been shelved indefinitely.

A fatigue crack in the bolt caused the engine to drop from the left wing on takeoff, officials said. "We know it (the bolt) had been cracked for some time," Driver said.

Driver said it was a good assumption that when the bolt broke, it allowed a support pin either to come out or break. Safety board officials said, however, the loss of the engine should not have caused the crash.

Investigators were checking the possibility that when the engine rolled over the wing — as it is designed to do in the event of a separation — it hit a critical portion of the aircraft's wing, fuselage or tail, causing the plane to veer out of control.

Flight 191 crashed in a grassy field about one kilometre from O'Hare International Airport and burst into flames. Some victims were burned beyond recognition, and may never be identified, investigators said Sunday, taking pictures.

"We're looking at the way in which the wreckage lays," said Bob Buckhorn, a safety board spokesman. "We hope this will tell us when it started to come apart."

Specialization doesn't pay, Bishop's grads told

By JAMES DUFF
LENNOXVILLE — Graduates of liberal-arts universities like Bishop's may find it harder to find a first job than the 'premixed products' of other institutions, but they stand a better chance of leading fulfilled lives, Bishop's Principal Dr. Christopher Nicholl told the university's convocation Saturday.

Referring to the university's tutorial heritage as one of Bishop's most valuable traditions, Dr. Nicholl criticized the proliferation of university systems 'as training schools for the ever-multiplying swarm of professional corporations'.

Funding is available, Dr. Nicholl added, for "university programs designed to satisfy, in the shortest possible time, the profiles of skills which will ensure the most economical insertion of the graduating cog in the machine."

The net result, said the Bishop's principal, is that students are being accepted, trained, and graduated with an acceptable level of knowledge on an ever-narrowing front. "unconsidered growth leading to the incoherence and inhumanity of the multiversity, whose faculty members have in many cases become so narrow in their interests that they no longer understand one another, and whose undergraduate students are often pawns, left to seek what guidance may be available from teaching assistants whose principal concern is their doctoral research."

Although he is satisfied with the ability of Bishop's University to produce graduates of a sound degree program, Dr. Nicholl said he had his doubts about the ability of Canadian universities in general to produce graduates who can organize their thinking, as opposed to merely being able to develop thoughts on paper. He welcomes the resumption of intramural debating at Bishop's as a forum where students may sharpen their thinking and speak ing skills, and expressed the opinion that if it is required of graduates that they be able to organize their ideas and express themselves clearly, "we will be giving them a competence which will be of far greater help to them in holding down a good job than any amount of information or technique imparted with a view to preparation for a particular field of work."

One consequence of the size of a university like Bishop's, Dr. Nicholl added, is that it needs to identify areas of research, "particularly in the sciences and business administration, in which the coherence of our academic community will be an advantage to us and in which large-scale technical support is not required."

One example of what Dr. Nicholl meant was Saturday's graduation of former Psychology Department head David Smith, who received his Bachelor of Fine Arts degree as part of a sabbatical project which may culminate in the introduction of a new course at Bishop's.

"I was due for a sabbatical, and in the back of my mind was the possibility of setting up a course in the psychology of aesthetics," the former dean of the psychology department said.

Dr. Smith, who completed the Fine

Arts course in a year, said his presence in the classroom posed no problems beyond the first few days.

Besides a total of 177 graduate and undergraduate degrees granted at Saturday's convocation, an honorary doctorate was conferred on Brigadier-General Jean-Prospere Gautier by Bishop's Corporation President Dr. Jim Ross.

B. Gen. Gautier, a major in the Sherbrooke Fusiliers during the Second World War who finished the war with a distinguished record, was honored in recognition of years of work with the university and other Townships institutions.

From Little House by Katharine Snow

Just about this time of year when I was a girl, we would be writing our June exams at Mont Notre Dame Convent. We always wrote them in mid-May because the papers had to be corrected and the marks determined before the closing of the school in June.

It was a very serious period in our young lives! By the time we had achieved the seventh grade we were taken into the great music hall to write these exams. We would arrive on the designated morning to find our desks had been moved from their familiar settings in the classrooms to the hall. They were placed in rows, a strategic number of feet apart. We would be ushered in one by one, solemn little girls in black, each allowed a penholder, two nibs, one blotter, one eraser and a bottle of Carter's Blue-Black Ink, the only color the nuns assured us that a lady ever used.

There would be prayers before the papers were handed out, frantic supplications at the door of Heaven, impassioned promises that we would work harder next year - if only we could pass!

The nuns prayed too. They would walk up and down between the desks, watchful and silent, fingering their rosaries. Every year our teacher told us that she prayed explicitly for our success. Possibly, she had a double-edged intention - with our success assured, she would be free of us in the coming year!

Once the exams were finished, we were immediately plunged into preparations for the Closing Exercises of the school. This was an affair that commanded at least three weeks of arduous planning and rehearsal. We would be drilled relentlessly. We were re-taught to walk, to talk, to stand, to sit, to curtsy and to smile.

It is amusing to think that even then, the familiar French-English problem was with us. As our champion we had a tall, gaunt Irish nun, grey-haired and militant. The French girls had as their patroness a slim, cool-eyed aristocratic nun, equally fond of battle. Whether by design or not, our Mother Saint John would get us to the first rehearsal a few moments behind the other class. As a consequence, the French girls would be seated in the first two or three rows. This would be the red flag to the good Sister. She would leave us in ranks with a terse command to stay put while she would sail forth, down the length of the hall, black veil flying out behind her, ready and eager for the skirmish, demanding to know "what all the Frinch girls were doing in the front rows!"

Once engaged, the argument was spirited. We would be brought forward and all of us, the pawns in their game, would be shuffled backwards and forwards until finally their annual compromise was reached and we were placed to their mutual satisfaction. Mother Saint John would tell us afterwards that such seating was the only correct way to do things.

"An English, a Frinch, an English, a Frinch!" Thus was the dilemma settled at that time.

The day of the actual event was usually the hottest, most humid of the summer. The mayor of Sherbrooke and many civic dignitaries were invited as well as members of the Roman Catholic hierarchy. There was, of course, a guest speaker, our parents and a throng of long-suffering relatives and friends.

It was a long-drawn-out affair. There were prayers, speeches, tributes given, tributes acknowledged, flowers presented, recitations by each grade (Frinch and English), musical selections and finally the awarding of the diplomas, certificates and prizes.

I marvel now when I am told of the limit of a child's attention span and of how he must not be expected to show a sustained interest in anything after about ten minutes. This would have been news to the nuns!

On that extremely hot afternoon at Mont Notre Dame we sat, fifty or sixty girls ranging in age from seven to seventeen, absolutely motionless throughout the entire programme. We sat ramrod straight on the edge of our chairs. No human back ever encountered a chair back. We wore the heavy, pleated, fully lined costume dress, black cotton stockings and black silk gloves. We had never heard of air conditioning and the sisters always regarded too many open windows as suspect.

Usually the French girls did not understand English and the English did not understand French, so the various speeches lacked any type of mutual stimulation or humor.

Still, we sat through that long afternoon, feet placed precisely, the heel of one resting against the instep of the other and hands folded neatly in our laps.

Our good teachers warned us that God would certainly be quick to see any stirring of finger or foot. Most especially, He would be pained by the unthinkable act of touching face or hair. Thus we sat immobilized, disregarding the cold trickle of perspiration down the back of our legs, the damp clamminess of hands stuck together in our laps! Better by far, we thought, to endure the slow agony of a fly crawling across one's forehead or around an eye than to move and invite the displeasure of a watching God!

When the afternoon was finally over, we were released for the summer. In retrospect, the most remarkable thing about being young was the quantity of time at our disposal. The days seemed filled with the luxury of hours. We had time for everything.

How sad and strange it is to discover that as one grows older, time somehow grows shorter!

Weather holds off

Festival's craftspeople mood relaxed

By BARBARA VERITY STEVENSON
"I like to make people laugh," Pino Noel says and that's why his sign says "street clown" in his kiosk at the Festival des Cantons.

It also says "leather" and that's mostly what you'll see there - his skirts, belts, vests. There's also a very original puppet he made and on the wall are photographs of Pino in his clown outfit.

I can see he laughs a lot and his eyes are merry, but what exactly do street clowns do, I ask him. "I jiggle, turn somersaults, play my harmonica and I do magic tricks," he tells me. The streets of not only Sherbrooke, but Vancouver too, have witnessed his pranks. Laughed too, probably.

Too bad he wasn't in clown get-up Saturday when I wandered through the Festival's artisans. But if Pino had suddenly tumbled out of the crowd, I wouldn't have been surprised.

The atmosphere is fun and friendly and flowing. Clowns and non-clowns all fit in. You move along with the people and pause to view handicrafts, chat with exhibitors. They're a friendly group, happy to talk about themselves and their crafts.

Stop and talk to Rita Roberge and Jeanne Dupuis, two chic grandmothers from East Angus who've tried all sorts of crafts at the cultural centre there and have settled on batik. Now they teach it and are displaying a wide range of lovely silk scarves and wall hangings.

It's the festival's ambience that Mme Roberge likes. It's her third year there and she wasn't planning to be back this year until she heard it would be up on Parc St. "It's more of a celebration here. It was too commercial downtown - asphalt and buildings. Here there's greenery; you don't know you're in the city," she says.

Across from them is Cesar Augusta Ortega Eggart who is from Peru and has lived in Sherbrooke four years. He has exhibited at Montreal's Place Bonaventure and finds the same sort of atmosphere here. "Everyone is talking and celebrating. That's Quebec," he says.

The kiosk costs him $100 for the festival's 10 days and luck will tell whether it turns out to be worth it. He is selling beautiful silver jewelry.

Then down the way is Jacqueline Lajoie, a gentle lady from Lac Megantic, who is exhibiting for the first time. She thinks everything is going well. She is one of the many newcomers who are from regions of Quebec not usually represented at the Festival. There are also some from Montreal and Drummondville.

This year the Festival's artisan has been boycotted by the Metiers d'Art des Cantons de l'Est, the group of professional handicrafters which usually runs that section of the festival. In past years there has also been friction between the group and Festival organizers.

But it's good to have new ideas and new people involved, one exhibitor said. And it gives someone like Jacqueline Lajoie the chance to take part in the festival. She had applied to be accepted by the Metiers d'Art but was turned down. She was told the technical and artistic quality of her macrame were high enough, but they didn't like the lack of color in her work.

She thinks the quality of Festival exhibits is high. Many people want to exhibit, so organizers can pick and choose, she says.

And generally they've done a good job. There is a lot to enjoy and admire, much in the tradition of Quebec, the ceinture flechees, cabinet work, quaintly dressed dolls. There are also a few tacky-tacky exhibits, but not many.

Organizers might have cut down on leather and pottery exhibits and included more variety such as needlework and quilting. But one does also see engravings, some beautifully sewn clothes - some of chamois, soapstone carvings and enamel on copper.

So there's lots to see and plenty of quality, but what really matters is being a part of it, moving along at an easy pace under the trees, pausing to talk, learn a little, and who knows, maybe the strains of a harmonica will rise above the crowd. And there will be Pino pirouetting in the lanes and pathways of this year's Festival.

Protective helmets were a must - especially at the end of the course - as a large number of youngsters participated in the annual soap box derby races on Terrill St. Whammo!

Monique Payette of Montreal explains the art of ceintures flechees.

Pino Noel, leather crafter and street clown, laughs and likes to make people laugh.

Malouf probe aims for September conclusions

MONTREAL (CP) — When Montreal was granted the 1976 Olympic Games in 1970, Mayor Jean Drapeau pledged the city would hold "modest" Olympics to show the world that staging the event could be profitable.

On Thursday, almost 10 years after the mayor's bid was accepted, a three-man inquiry committee under Superior Court Justice Albert Malouf wound up a nine-month public investigation of how a "modest" estimate of $120-million for the Games became a $1.33-billion deficit borne by Montreal and Quebec taxpayers.

The Malouf commission is aiming to complete its report and recommendations by September, when its mandate expires.

Scores of witnesses have laid the blame for the cost overrun on lack of information and expertise, inflation, labor problems, waste, and conflicts between local and European engineers overseeing French architect Roger Taillibert's creations.

Testimony at the commission repeatedly focused on the role of the mayor, his insistence on preserving Taillibert's designs regardless of cost and his continued assurances to the provincial government that the Games would not exceed budget expectations. MAYOR RESPONSIBLE Engineering consultant Duncan Robb testified the mayor was responsible for million of dollars in cost increases for not having made the right decisions while acting as project manager.

Drapeau also first forgot, then came up with a contradictory version of a meeting with Robert Bourassa, former premier of Quebec.

The former Liberal premier said they discussed financing for the controversial $95-million Olympic Village which housed athletes for only two weeks. The mayor at first denied such a meeting had taken place, but other witnesses testified they were there.

Village contractors from the firm Les Terrasses Zarolega were later charged with defrauding the provincial government.

The Malouf inquiry also revealed questionable links between Drapeau's former righthand man, Gerard Niding, and the engineering firm charged with producing the plan for Taillibert's $850-million Olympic Park in the city's east end.

The firm, Regis Trudeau et Associes, came under heavy questioning when it was revealed that the firm's president had paid for construction and furnishing of Niding's luxurious country home.

TAKEN OFF JOB

Regis Trudeau et Associes was finally taken off the job, the inquiry was told, when it became clear the firm was not capable of completing plans. However, the city paid the company its full fee and waived any legal recourse.

Engineers, administrators and workers revealed the near-chaos that dominated the construction site as the June, 1976, deadline neared. Costs soared as administrators desperately scrambled to complete projects, hiring extra equipment and staff.

Labor relations directors at the Olympic site revealed they hoped for strikes by construction workers at the stadium, so they could blame the unions if the Games did not take place. They also admitted to exaggerating reports of sabotage by workers.

Last week, Roger Taillibert defended his design. He outlined his 1974 agreement with the city which tied his fee to the final cost of the games — his 4.95 per cent meant he could have earned $42 million for his efforts.

The architect finally settled for $6.8 million from the province, but hinted when he appeared as a witness that he might still take Montreal to court over the contract.

Canadians welcome down-home government

OTTAWA (CP) — A few minutes after Joe Clark left Jasper, Alta., Sunday for a triumphant return to the national capital, the fan belt fell off his Greyhound bus. An embarrassed hush fell over the aides and reporters accompanying the prime minister-elect, who has indicated he intends to shun limousines whenever possible.

"What's wrong with the bus?" two-year-old Catherine Clark asked unabashedly.

"It's just got a hangover like your Aunt Jane," replied the sister of Clark's wife, Maureen McTeer.

Several members of Clark's entourage, including the red-eyed bus driver, had been partying until daybreak in the luxurious Jasper Park Lodge where Clark stayed since his Progressive Conservatives won the federal general election Tuesday.

Fifteen minutes later, the bus was rolling again down the Yellowhead Highway in Clark's western Alberta riding towards Hinton.

ROLLER COASTER

"Welcome aboard, Mr. Prime Minister," the pilot of a Gateway Airlines Hawker-Siddeley 748 said before taking the passengers on a roller coaster ride through turbulent airspace over the foothills of the Rocky Mountains.

"It's been a pleasure to serve you," a stewardess gushed, as she stood in front of Ms. McTeer holding a used air sickness bag.

In Edmonton, the party transferred to an Air Canada flight — Clark having refused to use a government-owned Jetstar favored by Pierre Trudeau, outgoing prime minister.

Clark believes Canadians tired of what he calls the arrogant style of Trudeau and that a more down-home prime minister is wanted.

While flying to Toronto on a Lockheed 1011, stewardesses brought children into the first-class compartment two at a time to get Clark autographs.

In Toronto, the Clarks had to wait for 90 minutes before boarding a plane for Ottawa. CHANGED SEATS

That plane had no first-class compartment and the Clarks had to change seats once before they were accommodated.

The other passengers, noticing the new arrivals, fell silent until Catherine once again broke the mood.

"Do you have any gum?" she shouted to Aunt Jane a few rows behind her.

Alas, Miss McTeer had no more gum but David Jenkins, a millionaire businessman from Edmonton serving on Clark's transition committee, handed her some.

Finally, nine hours and 4,000 kilometres from Jasper, Clark landed in Ottawa. Several hundred supporters greeted him at the airport shouting, "Go Joe, Go Joe."

During brief remarks, Clark said: "We decided to fly back on the national airline rather than take advantage of the government aircraft that might be available.

"One of the things I want our government to do is keep in touch with the problems other people experience."

Disappointed

Editor:

...Was very disappointed in your write-up about our Arts and Crafts show in Sawyerville. I don't know if your reporter has something against us, but she didn't do a very good job on that one. Jealousy maybe!!

Your guitar maker had a full page where we, with over 50 very clever people in all lines of art and crafts had scarcely a showing. She even got the name of our artist (water color, charcoal and oils) wrong. I know we are a very small town, but people attending our Fair from a distance said it was the best display they had ever seen.

It was not done for profit as nothing could be sold, but to interest our young people in a hobby that they could be happy doing instead of loitering on the streets.

Glass houses...

Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Claude Morin has accused the federal government and the Department of External Affairs of painting a false and negative picture of the Canadian political situation.

He referred in particular to a speech in Athens by the Canadian ambassador there, to the effect that the PQ downplayed its independence aims until after the 1976 provincial election.

While we don't hear too often what the Canadian diplomatic corps says about the state of politics in Quebec and Canada, we are only too aware of what Quebec's various spokesmen have said — and are still saying — about the raw deal Quebec is getting within Canada.

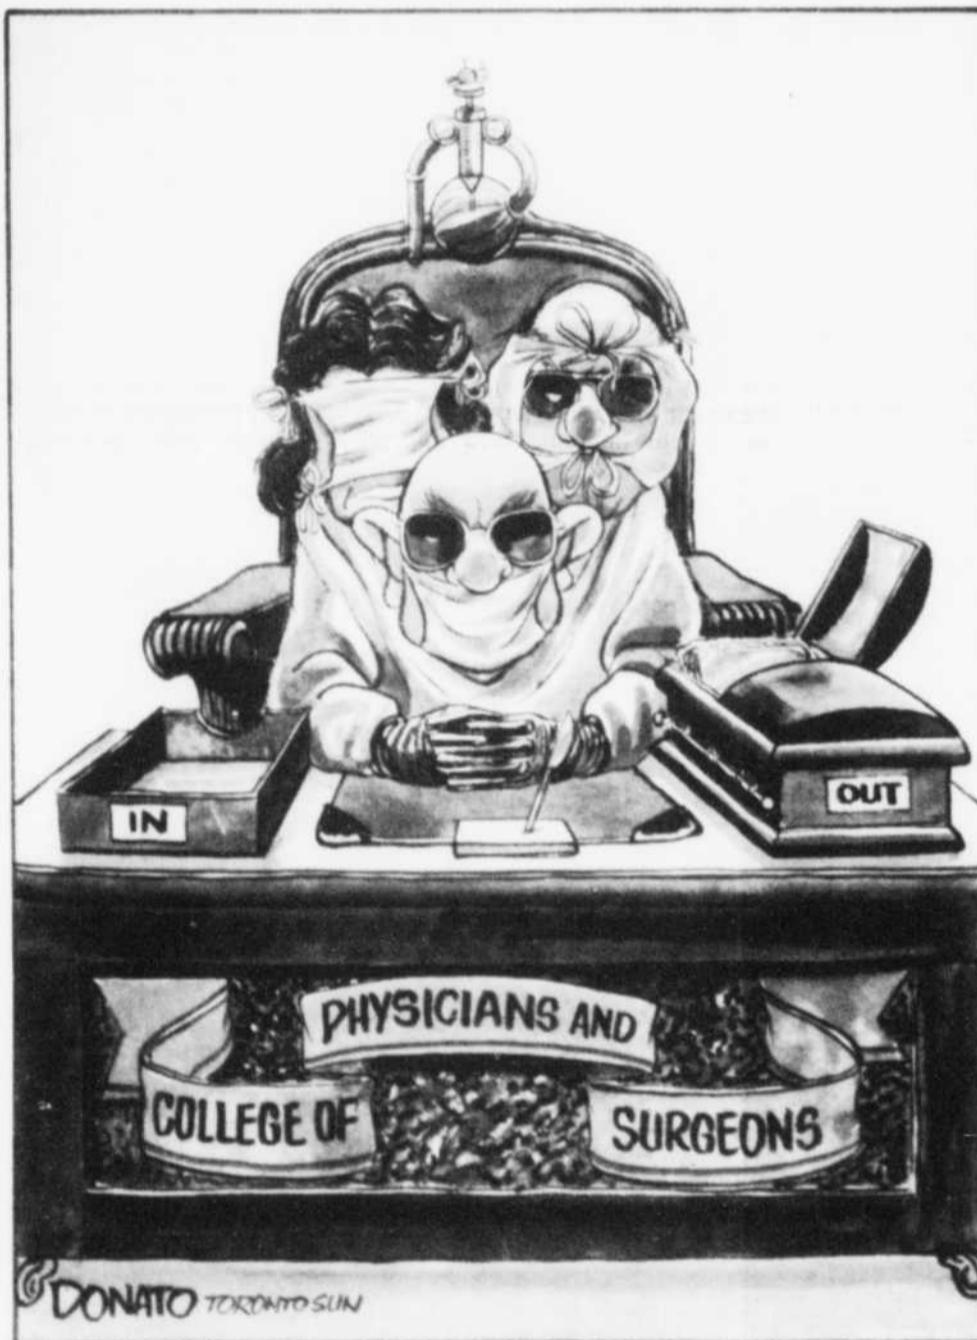

There's no doubt whatsoever in our mind that the Parti Quebecois soft-peddled its referendum and independence goals before and during the 1976 provincial election. There are too many journalists — both English and French — who feel the same way for it to be a figment of some ambassador's imagination.

Furthermore, there are many journalists and observers in Canada today who feel they were completely taken in by the PQ's sincerity in 1976, who argue to this day they were used by the Parti Quebecois.

In any case, visitors to Quebec's various information offices in the United States and Europe are given a message which we believe to be highly questionable; that Quebec is a small, beleaguered population of Francophones battling overwhelming odds to preserve what culture it has. The fact that nearly a quarter of the Canadian population is French-speaking and that the French culture has long since spread beyond the borders of Quebec seems to be conveniently lost.

Before Mr. Morin hastens to criticize the message others are spreading about Canada, he should try to present Quebec's reality a little more honestly.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Tracking down a rumor's source

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The smear technique — spreading harmful and unsubstantiated gossip about a political enemy — has been a standard feature of Washington life since the early days of the Republic.

In Jefferson's day, the practice was to slander an adversary in the public prints with a letter signed with a pseudonym. A century and a half later, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover smeared Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. with malicious reports on his sex life.

The trickiest thing about any smear is trying to track it to its original source. It's like trying to pick up quicksilver with a fork.

But Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is determined to attempt the impossible. For three years he has been doggedly trying to find out who was responsible for a State Department memorandum that slandered former Greek exile leader Elias Demetracopoulos. McGovern's avowed aim is to "find ways to assure that such methods are not repeated."

So far, the Senate's Man of La Mancha has managed to identify two career State Department officers as the ones responsible for writing and circulating the scurrilous memo. But the names of those who actually inspired it may never be learned.

The twisting trail of the Demetracopoulos case started in the fall of 1971 when the "blind" memo — unsigned and attributed — was delivered to then-House Speaker Carl Albert and to the House Foreign Affairs Committee by a State Department congressional liaison officer. The least damaging reference to Demetracopoulos asserted that he was a clever journalist who for years had "caused friction in Greek-American relations."

Within days, Demetracopoulos got wind of the memo and fired off a blistering protest to Foggy Bottom. A week later he got an ambiguous reply from David Abshire, assistant secretary for congressional relations.

Abshire didn't tell Demetracopoulos he had sent an "Eyes Only" memo to White House Counsel John Dean, informing him that the information in the damaging memo was "derived largely from CIA sources" and consisted of "raw and unevaluated reports" that might be inaccurate. Having failed to "mollify" Demetracopoulos, Abshire solicited Dean's opinion on a proposed follow-up letter of apology, which was later sent.

When Demetracopoulos learned of the memo to Dean, he suspected he was the target of a smear attempt by officials in the White House who supported the junta, and his effective lobbying against the colonels had moved the Nixon administration to consider deporting him back to Greece and the junta's tender mercies.

The author of the memo, McGovern learned early on, was George T. Churchill, then the desk officer for Greece. The request for it came from the Speaker's office and was relayed to Churchill by Kay Folger, a department liaison officer. She was recently interrogated by the counsel for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Interestingly, information similar to that contained in the Demetracopoulos memo later turned up in a New York Times article by David Blinder and in a book called "The Power Peddlers." In a series of written interrogatories, Churchill admitted meeting with the book's authors, Russel Warren Howe and Sarah Trotter, but denied either showing them the memo or reading to them from it. Both the book and the article are currently the subjects of investigation by the House and Senate CIA oversight committee.

Our own investigation has turned up the man who apparently urged the Speaker to get information on Demetracopoulos. He is Leonard Greenup, a friend of Albert's and a retired diplomat who had served in Greece, where he met Demetracopoulos. Greenup told our associate Joe Spear that he was concerned about the Greek patriot and suggested that Albert "might want to find out more" about him.

Greenup denied that anyone had put him up to the approach to Albert. Demetracopoulos disagreed and scoffed, "I believe the participants were pawns in somebody's game."

Footnote: Dean could not recall the memo from Abshire. Folger had no comment. And Churchill said he didn't want to go beyond what was already on the record.

Hazardous Duty: Pity the poor bureaucrat. Everyone picks on him, from hidebound superiors to scandal-seeking columnists and irate taxpayers. The psychological pressure became so great at the Environmental Protection Agency's field office in Research Park Triangle, N.C., that a local psychological counseling clinic was hired to treat the 1,500 EPA employees — at government expense, naturally. Any employee can check in at the clinic on his own request. The fees are $120 for the first visit and $60 for succeeding shrink sessions. An EPA official was unable to tell us how much the program has cost so far, or whether it has improved employee performance. But they're thinking of expanding it agency-wide, he said.

Strange Thank-You: The virtue of catching cheaters in the federal bureaucracy is often its own and only reward. But Jake Lapin, a 22-year civil servant, found that trying to get the money back could be dangerous to his career. After $450,000 was riggered off by Navy officers and reservists in Hawaii, 12 of whom were convicted, Lapin needed his bosses at the Naval Audit Service to seek restitution as required by law. He got nowhere, retired under protest and then sought his job back. Despite an appeals board ruling to the contrary, the Navy won't have him, and the money remains uncollected by the Treasury.

...sets new record

Laliberte takes demi-Marathon in record

By NELSON WYATT
SHERBROOKE — Local boy Jacques Laliberte proved this weekend that he was the grand master of the demi-marathon, beating 508 other runners and the former race record of 72 minutes and 50 seconds with a finishing time of 69 minutes and 28 seconds. The sixth time that the marathon has been run, this is the first time that a Sherbrooker has won it.

Laliberte came in ahead of Marc Corcoran of the Club des Centaures, Drummondville's Pierre Richard and veteran runner Withlock, beating them all by about three minutes.

Pacing himself throughout the 21-kilometre event, Laliberte had high praise for his opponents. Deeming Corcoran an "excellent runner", the contestant in the YMCA Old Montreal Marathon added that colleague Guy Racine was also in fine form. While he said that he had "followed the rhythm of the course" for much of the race, Laliberte said that he had stepped up his speed at the foot of St. Roch hill and used the reserves of speed that he had been holding back.

While he found this tactic depleted his reserves of strength and tired him quickly, he said the day's excellent temperature made the end of the run easier. A seasoned athlete, Laliberte said that he had made a nervous start at the beginning of the race but once he had progressed a short distance, he calmed down and got a feel for the course.

Two members of the Club des Coureurs also placed well. Louise Voghel held her personal record in the women's class and maintained a finishing time of 86 minutes and 27 seconds. Her nearest rival, Club des Centaures member Francine Jobin followed with a time of about 87 minutes and third place went to Lizanne Bussieres of the Club Athlos of Granby. Ms. Bussieres finished with a time of 88 minutes and 40 seconds.

All of the 102 card-holding contestants finished the marathon's 21-kilometre length. Among these was runner Mark Thompson who took ill during the course and was put aboard an ambulance. True to the grit and determination showed by his confreres, though, Thompson insisted on being released and finished the race alongside everyone else.

Though not staged on such a grand scale as such events as the mammoth Boston Marathon, the Festival des Cantons event still drew a high calibre of contestants. Men that would normally drive to the office in the morning in a three piece business suit pulled the proverbial switcheroo and donned their sweatshirts to huff and puff their way through Sunday's run. The watchword, however, despite the competition among the contestants, was trust and teamwork.

short notes...

Bermuda downs Canada 5-2

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada was knocked out of Olympic soccer Sunday when Bermuda pummeled the national soccer team 5-2.

It was the second of a three-game qualifying round for the 1980 Moscow Olympics. Canada had to win by four goals to advance to the second round after being thrashed 3-0 in the opening round last month.

Although the Canadian team played well from the start, it failed to finish its scoring opportunities.

Bermuda's Ralph Bean scored the first of two goals before a crowd of 5,000 at Lansdowne Park with 6:32 left in the first half.

Coastal bids for Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Coastal may have run himself into a contending position in the June 9 Belmont Stakes with a 13-length victory in the 26th running of the $54,700 Peter Pan Stakes at Belmont Park on Sunday.

Czaravich, who would have been the race favorite, was scratched the morning of the race when trainer Billy Turner discovered that his colt was running a temperature. His racing plans were uncertain pending the horse's recovery.

Cooke sells out

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times says sports entrepreneur Jack Kent Cooke has sold Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League, Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association and the Forum arena for $68 million.

The newspaper, citing a source close to the negotiations, said Cooke had sold the properties to California realtor Jerry Buss and that formal announcement of the deal could come as early as this week.

Watson PGA's man to beat

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus concedes that Tom Watson is the man to beat on the current Professional Golfers' Association tour.

"Tom is playing so much better now than anyone in the game," Nicklaus, the badly beaten Muirfield Village host, said Sunday after Watson's victory in the Memorial golf tournament. "He's going to have to play poorly for somebody to beat him."

Watson was the sole player to handle Muirfield Village in deplorable weather. Some called his 69 in Friday's windy, rainy, 5 C. temperature a miracle.

Hull down on Chicago

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Hull said Sunday his "mixed emotions" about the Chicago Black Hawk management may prevent him from rejoining the National Hockey League club for the 1979-80 season.

"I've talked to Chicago but we haven't come to a conclusion yet," Hull said. "I really don't know yet if I want to play next year. The low calibre of play and the poor attitude of the players and the coaches have been the main reason behind the bad attendance at games. The fans just haven't been entertained for a while and they're just not used to it."

Doyle sent to minors

CLEVELAND (AP) — World Series hero Brian Doyle was sent to the minors by New York Yankees on Sunday to make room for right-handed reliever Ron Davis, who was recalled from Columbus in the International League.

Doyle alternated at second base for the Yankees in the 1978 playoffs with Kansas City and in the World Series with Los Angeles Dodgers.

Brahma rider gored to death

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A Brahma bull rider was killed Friday night as about 10,000 horrified spectators looked on during a rodeo at the Forum.

Mickay Whitley, 21, of Halfway, Ore., was thrown by the animal, then gored and trampled, rodeo officials said.

He had been riding an 1,800-pound bull named McClintock during the second day of the four-day $44,000 Forum championship rodeo when he was thrown half way through the mandatory eight-second ride.

He died during surgery in hospital about a half-hour after the accident, a hospital spokesman said.

Berbick TKOs McLeay

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Trevor Berbick of Halifax scored a seventh-round technical knockout over Earl McLeay of Calgary on Saturday to claim the vacant Canadian heavyweight boxing title.

George Chuvalo of Toronto, who had said he would be champion for life, was stripped of the title earlier this year for refusing to defend it against Berbick, 27, who had been named the top contender.

England takes Scotland 3-1

LONDON (Reuter) — The vital role a goalkeeper plays on the thin line dividing success from failure was evident in England's 3-1 victory over Scotland in the final match of the British soccer championship Saturday.

The victory avenged a 2-1 defeat at the hands of the Scots when the two countries last met at Wembley two years ago and gave England its second successive British title.

SuperSonics aren't cheering yet

SEATTLE (AP) — Gus Williams says Seattle SuperSonics can't start celebrating yet.

He knows Washington Bullets, the defending National Basketball Association champions, play best when their backs are against the wall.

"Rick the Racer" beats Old Guard in Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The one they call Rick the Racer ushered in a new era Sunday with a victory over the old guard in the 63rd running of the Indianapolis 500.

"It's almost unbelievable," said 27-year-old Rick Mears after overcoming the throttlejamming efforts of A. J. Foyt and the Unser brothers — Al and Bobby — who, among them, have won nine Indy races.

"I had my hands full a few times out there," Mears said. "We had a little trouble with the tires midway through the race. We had a slow leak in one of them. But the crew did a heck of a job. Everything just got sorted out and we won it — my gosh."

Mears, who was never worse than sixth, watched keenly from the cockpit of his eight-cylinder Penske-Cosworth race car as the Unser brothers and Foyt, in quick succession, succumbed to mechanical problems.

First it was Al Unser, the defending champion and a threetime winner at Indianapolis. The younger Unser led on 85 laps before a cracked transmission seal ended his race, as well as his bid to join Foyt as the only four-time Indy winner.

Then it was Bobby Unser who moved on top and appeared unbeatable as he stayed ahead until 18 laps from the end of the 200-lap event. That's when his dreams of a third Indy triumph ended with a sudden loss of power as his car's fourth gear broke.

As Bobby, who is Mears's team-mate, suddenly dropped back in the pack, there was Foyt, the wily veteran who has called Mears "the next A. J. Foyt." The hard-charging Texan moved past Unser and into second place.

He was a full lap behind Mears, but the younger driver said: "I knew Foyt was back there somewhere and I wasn't going to forget about him."

SCHECKTER TAKES MONACO GP

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — The Monaco Grand Prix is the social event of the racing season, a glitter of yacht and nightclub parties — not to mention the thunder of racing engines — presided over by Prince Rainier and Princess Grace.

But Sunday's Grand Prix, the 37th in 50 years, proved once again that under the glamor, the city-street circuit is an exhausting challenge, demanding the ultimate in driver skill, accuracy and sheer courage, and in car preparation.

It is a circuit for heroes, and Grand Prix stars proved it again. South African Jody Scheckter — the local hero as a Monaco resident — took his second triumph in three years, leading from start to finish.

His team-mate, Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., observed team discipline to back Scheckter in second and set up a potential 1-2 finish for Ferrari until his transmission failed after 54 laps. However, Scheckter said later there were moments he thought the young Canadian "came a little too close."

The victory gave Scheckter a clear lead in the world drivers' standings with 30 points, compared with 24 for France's Jacques Laffite, who finished fifth Sunday.

Dragster blast kills two

UNION GROVE, Wis. (AP) — At least two persons were killed Sunday when a dragster exploded, throwing debris into the stands at the Great Lakes Dragaway.

Two persons were dead on arrival at hospital in Kenosha and several other persons were injured, hospital public relations director Karen Bradley said. The injured, she said, were being evaluated and the names of the dead were being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Witnesses said a flywheel came off the car and went into the stands in two pieces. Bystanders at the track identified the driver as Clayton Harris and said he appeared to have escaped serious injury. Harris's hometown was not immediately available.

Gymnast coach predicts second place

WINNIPEG (CP) — National team coach Boris Bajin says Canada should be able to finish in second place in gymnastics at the Pan-American Games.

The United States is the favorite in gymnastics, but Bajin said Canada should be able to beat all other competitors at the games in Puerto Rico.

Bajin, of Toronto, was pleased with the level of performances at the Canadian national gymnastics competition which wound up here on the weekend.

Greybeard takes Swiftsure

VICTORIA (CP) — The yacht Greybeard from the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club was the first vessel to cross the finish line Sunday in the Swiftsure yacht race.

Greybeard sailed into the harbor shortly after 10 a.m. PDT (1 p.m. EDT) in the 265-kilometre race to the Swiftsure light ship off the west coast of Vancouver Island and back.

Next to finish was the vessel Warrior from Seattle, followed by Outragous from Bremerton, Wash.

A murmur of anticipation swept through the enormous Speedway crowd on the 190th lap as the day's sixth yellow caution light brought out the pace car after last year's runner-up, Tom Sneva, smacked the third-turn wall.

Under the bunch-up rule adopted here this year, that meant Foyt was within reach of Mears as the green flag was dropped for an all-out sprint with four laps to go.

But it didn't happen. Not only did Foyt slow down in the last two laps, but he wound up coasting across the finish line with a big grin on his face, waving to the cheering crowd.

"There was no way I could get him," Foyt said with a shrug. "I was just glad to finish second after I dropped a cylinder in the last few laps. Then, on the last lap, my motor quit."

Mears clocked an average speed of 158.899 miles an hour and finished 48.91 seconds ahead of Foyt, whose average was 158.260 m.p.h.

Danny Ongais wound up a distant third, followed by Bobby Unser, Mike Mosley, former Indy winner Gordon Johncock and Howdy Holmes, the only rookie in the race. Rounding out the top 10 were Bill Vukovich, one of two drivers added to the starting field Saturday in an unprecedented extra qualifying session, Tom Bagley and Steve Krisiloff.

Eldon Rasmussen, a native of Standard, Alta., now residing in Indianapolis, got his Manta-Offy through 89 laps before experiencing a broken exhaust header. He finished 23rd, while Cliff Hucul of Prince George, B.C., got credit for 22 laps before his McLaren-Offy was sidelined with valve failure and finished 29th.

Janet Guthrie, the only woman in the race, was the first to retire to Gasoline Alley. Her car's engine gave out 13 minutes into the race and she was credited with three laps.

Mears, from Bakersfield,

Calif., didn't get his first look at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway until two years ago. Last year, Mears — who made the jump from dune buggy racing to Indy cars — got into his first Indy race by becoming the fastest rookie in Speedway history and earning a front-row starting berth at better than 200 m.p.h.

Beside's Sneva's bump with the wall, the only other accident involved Rice, who spun out earlier in the race and came to rest against the second-turn wall. Neither driver was injured.

The other four yellow lights were flashed for tow-ins and debris on the track.

Mears was the first driver to win from the pole position since Johnny Rutherford in 1976.

Wheelchair athlete Gilles Martin one of three handicapped runners in Saturday's demi-marathon, finished the course in better time than most of the field.

Vets: 'There's still lots the Legion can do'

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Dan Wilkinson of Toronto had both his legs blown off while serving in Italy in the Second World War.

George Wakeford of Owen Sound, Ont., was wounded by shrapnel in France during the same war and says he hasn't had two consecutive days without pain since.

Fred Buckingham of Stratford, Ont., served in the Canadian Corps of Cyclists in the First World War and went through the battle of Arras without getting a scratch.

These three, along with about 1,400 comrades, in Sudbury recently for the Ontario Royal Canadian Legion convention, are firmly convinced the legion still has lots to do.

Wilkinson, who lost his legs in a minefield at 19, is especially interested in the community work of the legion. He says there is so much to be done for senior citizens or with children.

Wakeford, now a clerk in small claims court, is chairman of the Last Post organization which buries war veterans who die with no relatives or money.

He's particularly interested in veterans affairs and survived the D-Day landing with the North Shore regiment.

"Then later I got shrapnel in my spine and haven't been without pain for two days in a row."

But that doesn't stop him and he thinks there is lots the legion can do in areas such as national unity.

"I don't mean politically, of course, just to make sure everyone is treated the same." Buckingham, who turns 80 soon, still walks like a soldier, has good eyes and doesn't miss a word.

He joined the legion in 1932 and before that belonged to the Great War Veterans organization.

TURNED DOWN AT 40

The only thing about the services that still irks him is the fact he was turned down for service in the Second World War.

"They said I was too old at 40... imagine."

He's keen on the bursaries the legion provides for young persons who want to go to universities.

There are not many First World War veterans left — there were only half a dozen at the convention — and Buckingham says he used to attend battalion reunions when there were 700 or 800 there.

"Now there are 75 or 80 of us left."

National unity was one of the major items dealt with by the convention. Many legion branches have decided to twin with branches in Quebec.

"We fought in the same war, for the same country," one delegate said during discussion of a unity resolution which will go to the Dominion convention.

And the members still like fun. There was as much tinkling of ice in glasses at night as there was of medals during the day. All delegates wore their grey flannels and blazers and many had rows of medals.

And the right of sons and daughters to hold posts in legion branches was adopted by the Ontario group and will be passed on to the dominion.

This is one of the first years that the legion membership has dropped a little, but many fear it will drop faster and faster with the years unless sons and daughters are allowed to hold posts.

"God knows we don't want another war to get more members," said Royal Canadian Navy veteran Jim Brown of Kingsville, Ont.

And Bernadette Finucan of Toronto was one of many women veterans on hand. She served with the Women's Royal Naval Service and is especially interested in the bursaries and in public speaking contests the legion sponsors.

"And I'm miss, MISS, not Ms.," she points out.

Rick Collins of Toronto, president of the legion in Ontario, who served with the Irish Regiment of Canada, felt the convention was a great success.

The next convention, two years from now will be in Peterborough, Ont.

James Lloyd receives Masters

Capt. James Lloyd of Granby received his Masters' Degree in Business Administration at the Convocation Exercises of Dalhousie University at Halifax on May 9th.

Captain Lloyd is a former graduate of Granby High School and College Militaire Royal at St. Jean, Que.

He is the son of Connie Lloyd of Richmond, and the late Raymond Lloyd.

He is now serving in the Air Element of the Canadian Armed Forces at Halifax Base.

50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Cutting of Coaticook will be celebrating their 50th Wedding Anniversary on May 30.

Bridal shower

BURY (NR) — Miss Joyce Dougherty, a bride-to-be of the month, was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower on a Sunday afternoon recently, at the home of Muriel Boynton. Carolyn Rowell was co-hostess, assisted by Eileen Martin.

The living-room was tastefully decorated with yellow and white streamers and apple blossoms.

On their arrival, Joyce and her mother, Mrs. Stuart Dougherty were each presented with a corsage of a pink carnation and apple blossoms.

After the many useful gifts were opened and passed around, Joyce expressed her appreciation to everyone.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostesses, featuring a lovely shower cake, iced in pale yellow with white lace-like trim, topped with two parasols and tiny gifts. The cake was made and decorated by Betty Dougherty.

ADS School Committee meets

DANVILLE (JE) — The Asbestos-Danville-Shipton Elementary School Committee held their monthly meeting on May 10th.

The Chairman John Millen opened the meeting in the usual manner. Three members were absent, and the resignation of G. Hall was accepted. The minutes of the last meeting were accepted as written. The Treasurer, Eleanor Besmargian, stated a satisfactory bank balance.

Mr. Millen informed the members that reports of the Home and School Convention, which was held recently in Montreal, will be sent to all parents.

Upcoming events at A.D.S. were announced by Head Teacher, Brian Woods: the track meet on June 9th, Graduation Banquet for Level 6 on June 15th, Awards and Concert, June 20th and the Bicycle Rodeo, May 30th.

Teacher representative C. Hood reported that a group of teachers who wish to have their point of view known will be promoting a plan whereby they will be interviewed by Sheldon Phaneuf and these talks will be made public.

The meeting was adjourned by Joan Pye. The next meeting will be June 14th, at which time Janet Element will be hostess.

St. Paul's Guild meets

SHERBROOKE — The ladies of St. Paul's Guild held their meeting in the Church Hall on May 14, which was opened with prayers by Rev. H. Brazel.

Roll call was made and answered by five members. Minutes of last meeting were read by the secretary and approved by Mae Dunn.

The treasurer gave the financial report including the Lenten cards which met with the members satisfaction, with a few more to come in.

Plans were made for the strawberry tea to be held in the Church Hall on June 23rd. There will be food and white elephant sale tables. The date was also decided on the Auction sale which will be Oct. 13.

Rev. Brazel proposed a vote of thanks and appreciation to Florence Lord who is leaving our circle to enter a rest home in Bury. It is with deep regret we see Florence leave us, she has been a faithful and wonderful worker for a long time in the Church Guild. With her goes our very best wishes for her future, especially health.

There being no further business, the meeting closed with prayers by Rev. Brazel and lunch was served by the members.

The next meeting to be held on June 5.

Stuart Billing: A man of many talents

By JANET ELEMENT

DANVILLE — The old seers of Valcartier had recorded that the autumn of 1896 saw the bees "build their hives low in the trees" and the dogberries were in abundance. Unlike the cricket who "lay nothing by when the weather was warm" the men of that town with "their large and sinewy hands" gathered wood into the barn and made extra preparations of digging deeper the "village well" and cutting branches from the trees to stack against the house, to protect the basement walls and keep out the wintry winds.

Joseph and Mary Billing were involved in another proposition, for they knew that near the middle of the year 1897 "unto them a child would be born", and so they had to make plans for that great event. The months passed swiftly, the spring planting had gone according to plan, and the long sunny days of June raised their hopes of a bumper crop.

On June 30th, the midwife delivered to Joseph Billing the joyful news; Mary had delivered a nine-pound boy and she had kept his name to herself, his name was to be

Stuart. He attended school in Valcartier and worked on his father's farm until 1913, when the federal government took an option on the land owned by 65 farmers, and in the spring of 1914, after all the crops were planted, the soldiers moved in and the construction of Military Camps began, the work continuing around the clock, for "when the blast of war blows in our ears, then imitate we - the action of the tiger."

With the family, young Stuart moved to Sherbrooke, where his father bought the Allenburg Farm and after going overseas, Stuart came back to work with the Canadian Pacific Railways, working from 3 to 11 p.m. and then back to the farm, working from sunrise to 2:30 p.m.

In 1930 he married Greta Clarke from Sherbrooke and both worked on the farm until his retirement in 1962. Then he hired servants and added a fox ranch and a henry to his farm, until May 12th, 1967 when after months hovering between life and death, it was suggested to Stuart to take up a hobby.

He began to paint. A member of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, he re-named his farm "Billinghill" and began to paint signs and some of the natural beauty of Billinghill.

Over the years this led to such publicized pictures as Autumn Madness, Numpo Lake, Chilcotin (Country), Raquette Lake, Mt. Edith Cavell, all of these painted during extensive trips to the West. One newspaper from Alberta, referring to his talents, wrote of him "the vision of a man who absorbed our natural beauty and cheerfully expressed it with his brush." He had the privilege of painting the train "Royal Hudson No. 2860", the Canadian Pacific train that carried their Majesties on their tour of the West Coast of Canada. This train was said to have "carried the name and seal of its governmental sponsor while retaining the style and overall appearance of its Canadian Pacific Railways."

In the den of Stuart Billing, one can also make a selection of two dozen or more novelties that are suitable for any part of the house. His basement, says his wife

Stuart Billing and some of his work.

Greta, is like a submarine, from the ceiling to the floor, one can see some electrical utility with all the accessories.

Day in, day out, from morn till night, you can hear the humming of the saw, something attempted, something done, earns for Stuart a night's repose, and from the brush, painting some childhood memory, to his carpentry tools, making a replica of bygone days.

One can say of him as Longfellow saw of the village blacksmith — each morning sees some task begin, each evening sees it close.

Western scenes and Royal Hudson Number 2860.

More from the west and a model oxcart.

Ann Landers says

Classic case of sibling rivalry

Dear Ann Landers: I am a male, 22 years old, and definitely NOT a homosexual. This I want to point out right from the start. The incident that I am about to recall is both unbelievable and disgusting.

Last night, a friend of mine and I installed a CB radio in my car. We then drove around to see how much the CB would pick up. I decided to see how far my radio would send out.

A man answered my call. I said, "How about a radio check there, Good Buddy?"

He resented me calling him "Good Buddy" and said, "Don't do it again." When I explained I didn't know his "handle" he told me to get off the air and not to come back on again until I had learned the meaning of the

CB slang term, "Good Buddy."

A few minutes later, I contacted a woman and asked if the term "Good Buddy" had any meaning that might be offensive. She said, "When a man calls a male CBer 'Good Buddy,' it's code for, 'Are you gay?'"

I would appreciate it, Ann, if you'd check up on the meaning of "Good Buddy" in CB slang, so I may know (and others as well) the true meaning of this term. — Over And Out

Dear O, and O: That man has a hornet in his helmet. "Good Buddy" is a friendly term which carries no hidden meanings.

Dear Ann Landers: I have two daughters — one six, the other is an infant. While I was pregnant the six-year-old began having trouble in school. She started to talk baby talk — goo-gooing and ga-gaing all over the place. She also pretended she couldn't understand her schoolwork.

When the baby arrived things seemed to improve — until last week when the six-year-old hit the baby very hard, across her legs. The baby screamed. I turned my head just in time to see it all.

I asked the older one what happened. "She kicked me," was the reply, "so I hit her." This morning I heard the six-year-old playing with her dolls. She was spanking them and being very spiteful and mean. Now I'm concerned that one day she may seriously harm her little sister. Please advise me. — Arkansas Mother

Dear Mother: You have described a classic case of sibling rivalry. Make it a point to pay as much attention as possible to the other child. Praise her. Allow her to do things for the baby. Make her feel useful and needed. But — keep your eye on big sister. Don't let her alone with the younger one. (P.S.: This, too, shall pass.)

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for the letter from "An Only Daughter" who put her senile mother in a home. For 25 years I have been anguished over my mother's death, feeling guilty for "putting her away."

After mother had a stroke she was confused and unable to speak coherently. We feared she might wander away, so we employed a full-

WI Meeting

ABERCORN - The ladies of the W.I. have been very busy the past few weeks, as on May 3rd, they were hostess for the Brome County Annual Convention. The week before, the hall was thoroughly cleaned after being closed for the winter months, dishes were washed and chairs and tables arranged for the big event. A table and several yards of plastic were donated by Mrs. Lehman so this was put to good use. When May 3rd arrived all was in order.

Pauline Wilkins had made the final arrangements for the dinner to be served at the New Abercorn House. There were 53 ladies in all, who enjoyed a day out with no meal to prepare or dishes to do. It was, in all, a pleasant meeting with all joining in a question and answer period. All had been given a slip of paper with a question on it.

The quilt, lamp, rug and pillow were raffled. The wall hangings were judged by Mrs. Poulin and Angie Sherrer. All were taken by President Mrs. Slangen to be on display at the Convention at Macdonald College.

Afternoon tea was served by the Abercorn ladies and a social time was spent. Some will be meeting again soon as a bus for the Convention on May 30 has been booked.

The regular meeting was held on May 9 at the hall with eight members present.

Ethel Haggerty opened the meeting with the Collect and the roll call was an exchange of seeds or plants. The president was happy to tell us that the roof had been repaired since the last meeting. The next repairs will be the foundation as some of the stones have loosened over the years. John Payne and Francis Haggerty will look at it for us when we contract someone to do it.

Thank-you notes from Sutton School for the donation given to them, also nice cards from Edna Garland and Doris Hoyt.

BROOKBURY

Daisy A. Allison
The second in the series of card parties held at the Brookbury Hall, sponsored by the Brookbury W.I. was well attended on Friday evening, May 18. Cards were played at 11 tables with prize winners, Ladies: Elsie Boucher, 1st and Mrs. Wm. Gordon, 2nd; Gents: Napoleon Boutin, 1st and Wm. Gordon, 2nd. The last party to be held on Friday, May 25. Mrs. Stevenson thanked everyone for coming and hoped to see them again next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Pease of Valcartier were guests for a couple of days at the home of Mr. Pease's sister, Mrs. Lionel Allison, and Mr. Allison. While there, the Allisons took them to visit an old school pal of Mr. Pease's, Mr. Kenneth Gemmill, and Mrs. Gemmill at Moe's River. They also visited the Goat Farm at Way's Mills. Miss Darlene Keets and Ward Goddard were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Coleman. While there, Ralph and Faye Coleman entertained at a barbecue supper on behalf of Janet Goddard, whose birthday was on May 18. Other guests were Henry and Mary Lebourveau.

IRON HILL

Mrs. Wm. Mason
263-3005
Friends and neighbours were pleased to hear that Alan Hayes is now back home from surgery in the Montreal Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bracher were kind enough to bring Alan home from Montreal.

We were so sorry to hear that Mrs. Sylvia Beard spent several days in the B.M.P. Hospital after her fall. She is now in a nursing home in Cowansville. Our prayers and thoughts are with her as she convalesces, and we all wish her a speedy recovery. Miss Margo Swift has now completed her course and is attending Summer School in Lennoxville at Bishop's University. She visits her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Swift on weekends. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Rumsby entertained Virginia Moranville of Greenfield Park.

Mrs. Roger Mason, accompanied Mrs. Charlie Welch and Mrs. Florence Rumsby to Mrs. Gerald Campbell's home to celebrate Inez's birthday. Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Swift were Mrs. Robbie Miltimore of Sutton, also Mrs. Lance Hadlock and Mrs. Robert Howard. Mr. and Mrs. James Conway of Massachusetts, U.S.A. also visited at the same home. Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell were luncheon guests of Mrs. Violet Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mitchell at their summer cottage at Silver Lake in Eastman on Sunday, when the grandchildren, Christopher and Karen were taken out in a boat fishing, with their grandfather Mitchell and their dad.

WINDSOR

Mrs. C. McCourt
845-3416
Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Brock, Russell, Ont., were weekend guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Brock.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robinson, Ottawa, and Mrs. Bertha Kendall, St. Zacharie were dinner guests of Mrs. Irwin Robinson. Friends of Mel Lemoine were sorry to hear he was a patient at the C.H.U. and extend best wishes for an early return to good health. Mrs. D.L. Perkins, Richmond, was an overnight guest of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin McCourt and a dinner guest on Mother's Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Paterson. Mr. and Mrs. C. Nixon and daughters, Carie and Vicki of Richmond were also guests at the Paterson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGee were supper guests of Mrs. Kathleen Sanderson and Mrs. Hazel Dennis in Lennoxville, the occasion being the 93rd birthday of Mrs. Dennis. Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGee were supper guests at the home of Mrs. George Kendall in Earlistown on Sunday evening. The occasion was a family get-together, honouring Mr. and Mrs. Royal Kendall of Huntingville prior to their leaving for their future home in Ontario, and also to honour Mrs. Hazel Denis who had celebrated her birthday the week previous.

HATLEY

Mrs. Wm. Cutler

52,000 watch as Expos, Cardinals split pair

MONTREAL (CP) — To hear St. Louis Cardinals' pitcher Bob Forsch tell it, there's some question as to who should be challenging Philadelphia Phillies in the East Division of baseball's National League.

“Everybody on our club thinks we can contend with Philadelphia,” right-hander Forsch said after scattering eight hits in the Cardinals' 11-3 victory over Montreal Expos in the second game of a doubleheader Sunday.

The Expos won the opener 8-3 as Ellis Valentine drove in six runs with a three-run home run and a double before a crowd of 52,539, second-largest home attendance in the team's history after opening day in 1977.

The Expos slipped a half-game behind first-place Philadelphia with the split, but the Cardinals are only 3½ games back in third place.

RAISES RECORD
Forsch, who walked four and struck out four, raised his record to 2-4, while Expos' starter Ross Grimsley took the loss and is 4-3.

While the Cardinals' second-game offence was widely generated — only Keith Hernandez, Ted Simmons and Tony Scott drove in two runs — Valentine was a standout at the plate for the Expos.

Apert from his six runs batted in during the opener, he drove in a run with a single in the third inning of the second game to establish a club record of seven RBI in a doubleheader.

American League firsts

Bosox nip Blue Jays 1-0

Sunday was a day of firsts in the American League:

—Stan Papi delivered the winning hit in his first 1979 appearance and rookie Chuck Rainey hurled his first shutout as Boston Red Sox nipped Toronto Blue Jays 1-0.

—Kansas City's Todd Cruz belted his first major league homer, giving the Royals a 2-1 triumph over Minnesota Twins.

—Newly-acquired Ray Burris notched his first AL victory with 3 1-3 innings of shutout relief as New York Yankees edged Cleveland Indians 5-4 after dropping the doubleheader opener 5-0.

—California's Rod Carew started after a heckler in the stands for the first time in his long career and Chicago's Wayne Nordhagen, normally a catcher-outfielder, made his pitching debut as the Angels swept the White Sox 4-2, 9-1.

—The red-hot Baltimore Orioles lost more than one game in a row for the first time since April 18, dropping a 5-1, 10-3 double-header to Detroit Tigers.

Elsewhere, Oakland A's nipped Milwaukee Brewers 2-1 and Texas Rangers beat Seattle Mariners 7-3.

In Saturday's action it was Toronto 7, Boston 6; Cleveland 8, New York 4; Baltimore 7, Detroit 5; California 8, Chicago 4; Kansas City 7, Minnesota 4; Milwaukee 8, Oakland 4; Texas 2, Seattle 1.

start, scattered six hits as the Red Sox edged Toronto and pulled within two games of first-place Baltimore in the AL East.

Papi, who suffered a knee injury playing winter ball, was playing in place of shortstop Rick Burleson, who began a three-game suspension. He cracked a run-scoring double off Jesse Jefferson in the third inning following Jerry Remy's two-out single.

Royals 2 Twins 1
Cruz homered off Jerry Koonsman with a man aboard in the eighth inning to break a scoreless duel and Steve Busby allowed six hits and came within one out of his first shutout since Aug. 1, 1975.

Cruz, obtained from Philadelphia just before the season and called up from the minors earlier this month, connected after Joe Zdeb opened the inning with a double but was thrown out at third on U.L. Washington's bunt.

Indians 5-4 Yankees 0-5
Pinch hitter Lou Piniella cracked a tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning and Burris provided some much-needed relief as the Yankees ended a three-game losing streak in the nightcap.

The Indians won the opener 5-0 for their fourth victory in a row as Rick Wise spaced five hits and Paul Dade drove in three runs with a homer, single and sacrifice fly.

Loser Ron Guidry, 25-3 a year ago, dropped to 4-4 and suffered a hamstring pull.

Rainey, making his sixth start, scattered six hits as the Red Sox edged Toronto and pulled within two games of first-place Baltimore in the AL East.

Don Baylor smashed a pair of homers and a triple and drove in four runs to back Don Aase's four-hit pitching in the nightcap.

Brian Downing's two-run triple capped a three-run sixth inning rally in the opener and Dave Frost scattered six hits.

The Angels moved into first place in the AL West, one game ahead of the Twins, who dropped their fifth game in a row.

The second game was interrupted in the sixth inning when Carew started after a taunting fan in the first-base boxes but was restrained by manager Jim Fregosi and two teammates.

Nordhagen pitched the ninth inning and gave up two runs on triples by Carew and Baylor and a grounder but also notched two strikeouts.

Tigers 5-10 Orioles 1-3
Steve Kemp slammed a home run in each game and Alan Trammell drove in five runs in the nightcap as Detroit cooled off the Orioles behind the pitching of Jack Billingham and Dave Rozema, who scattered three and eight hits, respectively.

A's 2 Brewers 1
Jeff Newman slammed a game-tying homer and Milt Ramirez, playing in his first big-league game since 1971, singled home the go-ahead run in a two-run seventh inning as the A's ended a five-game skid and Milwaukee's five-game winning streak behind the six-hit pitching of Steve McCatty and Dave Heaverlo, who got the last out.

Rangers 7 Mariners 3
Buddy Bell drilled three singles and knocked in what proved to be the winning run and reliever Jim Kern earned his seventh save.

Jim Sundberg stroked a two-run double in the first inning, while Bell singled a run home in the fourth and added a sacrifice fly in the eighth.
