Local Farm Forums Rally at Agricultural Hall

The Farm Forums of the Shawville district held a rally meeting in the Agricultural Hall with members from the Forums at Bristol, Knox, Seventh Line, Fifth Line, Yarm and Radford present, and the Shawville Ministerial Association as special guests, of which Rev'ds Keilty, Stote, Fokes, McFarlane, Holmes and Dean, were able to be present.

The broadcast from Ontario headquarters was on "The Community and the Church" and this was followed by a discussion among all those present at the local meeting.

Such questions as what the Church can do for the community, and whether the Church has failed to meet its opportunities were dealt with; also how the community can make the Church an effective factor for the improvement of rural life.

Mr. S. W. MacKechnie, president of Pontiac County Farm Forums was in the chair, and Mrs. Hillis Graham, County Secretary, took the minutes.

Shawville Wildcats Defeat Calumet Mines - Campbell's Bay 6 to 4

Shawville Wildcats won for the first time in the Pontiac Hockey League series at the local arena on Wednesday of last week, by defeating the Calumet Mines - Campbell's Bay team by 6 to 4.

The game was the fastest witnessed on Shawville ice this season and was very keenly contested throughout.

Shawville led in the first period by 2 to 0, and the game was tied at the end of the second at 2 all, but in the third frame Shawville forged ahead to take the game at 6 to 4 Scorers for Shawville were, Hobin 2, R. McCredie, H McCredie, Corrigan and H. Dale one each; for the visitors MacDonald counted twice, Johnston and Rivet one each.

The teams were:

Shawville — Goal, C Dale; defence, Richardson and Graham; forwards, Corrigan, White, Gibson; alternates, Hobin, H. Dale, Knox, Morrison, Diotte, R. McCredie, H McCredie, Dagg.

Mines - C. Bay—Goal, Somerville; defence, Johnston and Ranger; forwards, Nauss, MacDonald and Buckley; alternates, Tait, Lacourse, Rivet, St. Pierre, Blais, Coyne, Campbell, Bennett.

Aylmer Trim High School Team

The Equity's High School reporter has not furnished an account of a hockey match between Aylmer hockeyists and the High School team. We understand Aylmer won out by a score of 9 to 6—perhaps the indifference.

Fort Coulonge Increase Lead

Fort Coulongs lengthened their lead in the Pontiac League on Monday night by defeating the Shawville Wildcats 11 to 3.

The Wildcats went to the lumber town without Knox, who fractured his collar-bone and Gibson, H. Dale and Diotte were unable to make the trip.

Dusting Time

The best time for dusting row crops is when the air is still, so that dust does not drift away from the plants, and also to prevent poison dusts from being distributed on leafy crops growing nearby, which may be ready for harvest.

Dusting in the evening or early morning, when the dew has formed on the plants, usually makes the dust stick well to the plants and gives them good protection. Beans, however, should not be dusted when wet, as any handling spreads some diseases to many healthy plants.

George S. Nesbitt Dies at the Home Of his Daughter, Mrs. B. C. Horner

Following an illness of one month, Mr. George S. Nesbitt, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. C. Horner, Main Street, on Monday evening.

He was born in Rupert, Que., the son of Mr and Mrs. James Nesbitt, and lived in the district most of his life. He was married in 1903 to Miss Louisa Taber, of Wyman.

Surviving him are his wife; two daughters, Mrs. B. C. Horner, of Shawville, and Mrs. Gordon McMillan, of Noranda; two brothers, John and Joseph Nesbitt, of Rupert; two sisters, Mrs. A. J. O'Hara, of Perth, Ont; and Mrs. T. Yule, of Salvador, Sask., and two grandsons.

Canning Sugar Ration Announced

The Ration Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board anncunces that the ten spare "F" coupons in ration book No. 3 may be used to obtain sugar for canning, commencing June 1st next. Each "F" coupon will entitle the housewife to purchase one pound of sugar, but those who want to do more canning than this quantity will provide, may supplement their allotment by using their "D" coupons for sugar, instead of for preserves.

Housewives who prefer commercially packed jams and jellies may exchange the special "F" sugar coupons for preserve coupons upon application to their local ration boards, but those planning on home canning will not have to apply to the ration board but may simply use the spare "F" coupons as they become valid.

Egg and Poultry Processing Affected by Board Order

Custom slaughtering and dressing of poultry and separating of eggs for use in processing frozen eggs have been designated as services and brought under price ceilings by two orders issued recently by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board's foods administration. Both orders became effective Jan. 29th.

Exclusive of any packaging costs the maximum charge per bird which may be made for custom or commission killing and dressing poultry is specified as 8 cents for chickens over 3 pounds; 5 cents for chickens 3 pounds or under; 7 cents for fowl; 15 cents for ducks; 20 cents for geese and 12 cents for turkeys.

Without packaging or freezing costs, maximum charge permitted for breaking use for use in processing frozen mixed eggs is 1¼ cents per pound with an addition of ¼ cent per pound where other ingredients such as salt, sugar, etc are incorporated in the mixture. For breaking and separating eggs for processing into frozen whites or yolks, maximum charge allowed is 1½ cents per pound.

Greatest Threat to Beef Production

The health of beef cattle depends first upon the selection of strong, healthy breeding stock; second, the proper feeding with a better understanding of nutritional requirements, particularly as to minerals and vitamins in a balanced diet. Fat producting feeds are not necessarily sufficient to produce a healthy state unless judicially supplemented by these essential aids. Third, proper sanitation and hygiene throughout the life of the animal. Fourth, the prevention of all contagious or infectious diseases which will respond to timely vaccination.

Owners should be vigilant at all times to recognize any disease conditions that might suddenly or gradually enter the herd, so that prompt measures can be taken to check the spread of these diseases, thus protecting the remainder of the animals from infection, and preventing needless losses. Efficient beef production is more important to the nation this year than it has ever been before. Livestock diseases are the greatest threat to beef production at this time. Only by constant vigilance can disease losses be kept down, and production kept up.

Hydro Preparing Post-War Program

Service To Be Extended To Additional 5,000 to 6,000 Farms In Ontario

Rural Ontario will provide an annual market for about $4,000,000 worth of electrical appliances and equipment and accessory materials after the war ends, Dr. T. H. Hogg, chairman, Ontario Hydro Power Commission, stated last week.

Hydro is already preparing its post-war program of rural electrification, and representations have already been made to the Federal Metals Controller to release additional materials during the present year.

If this request is granted, the Commission hopes to extend service on existing rural lines and add new short extensions making Hydro available to an additional 5,000 to 6,000 farms, thus aiding food production for the war. The plan calls for construction of 300 miles of line.

Two Advantages

Under the new rate structure to rural users, Dr. Hogg states 97 per cent. of rural consumers have received reductions in cost of electricity. Existing consumers on farms are using an average of only about 12½ per cent. of electricity they might consume. Dr. Hogg said there are two basic advantages to be enjoyed by using electricity to a greater extent on the farms. First is an increase in production with a minimum of farm help; and second, farmers can make their farms more comfortable and convenient places on which to live by installing not only a water pumping system but modern household appliances and equipment.

Dr. Hogg emphasized the interdependence between industrial labor and the farmer. In post-war days there must be recognition of the fact that industrial workers and farmers are equally important to the stability of our economic system.

A Reading Course For Winter Months

In 1930 William Lyon Phelps listed what in his opinion were the "best books in the world": The Bible, Homer's "Odyssey," Dante's "Divine Comedy," "On the Nature of Things" by Lucretius; Goethe's "Faust," Dickens' "David Copperfield," Hugo's "Les Miserables," Virgil's "Aeneid," Milton's poems and Shakespeare's plays. How many of us have read them? If Winston Churchill is a master of the English language it is because he is intimate with the best in English literature, says The Lethbridge Herald. How would it be if we took Phelps' best books as a reading course for the winter months?

BLACK DAWN

By VICTOR ROSSEAU

CHAPTER XV
SYNOPSIS

Dave Bruct, out of a job, arrives at Wilbur Ferris' Cross-Bar ranch. Curran, the foreman, promises him a job if he can break a horse called Black Dawn..... When he succeeds, he discovers Curran expected the horse to kill him. A girl named Lois rides up, angry with Dave for breaking "her" horse. She refuses to speak to Dave even when he uses his savings to pay off the mortgage on the small ranch she shares with her foster father, a man named Hooker. When Hooker is killed by a shot fired through the window, Lois has Dave arrested for murder. But when the local people, encouraged by Curran, attempt to lynch him, Lois and Black Dawn save him, but Lois is wounded. They are now back at Hooker's ranch house.

"You think I'm goin' off to leave you like this?" Dave said.

"I didn't think you would. But I'm going with you. And we've got to start right now. They may be on their way here."

"Where to?"

"There's a place I know where they won't find us. It's a cave in the mountains I found once, long ago. You'll be safe there till they get tired of looking for you, or think you've got clean away."

"You ain't strong enough to ride, Lois."

"I reckon I'm all right. Give me your hand." She struggled up into a sitting posture. "I'll be all right," she said, slipping to her feet. "See!" she swayed for a moment, and Dave put out his hand anxiously, then stood firm on her feet. "First of all, you want a gun. Mr. Hooker had a forty-five and a box of cartridges under his bunk. See if you can find them."

* * *

Dave went into the adjoining room and found the gun which he thrust into his holster. He went back and found Lois trying to lift a slab of bacon from a hook beside the door.

He lifted it down, got some flour and coffee, and carried them outside. Lois came to the door.

"Black Dawn will come when I call him," she said, "and Mr. Hooker's horse. We'll be all right. The saddles and reins are in there." She pointed toward the shed behind the cabin, its outline just visible in the dense darkness. Then she whistled twice.

A moment or two later Dave heard the sound of a horse's hoofs scrambling up to the edge of the mesa. In the light that came from the cabin he could see the big stallion coming at a slow lop toward the girl. Behind him was the vague outline of another horse—Hooker's.

Feeling his way into the shack, saddled Hooker's horse, while Lois did the same to the black. Then Dave wrapped the package of food in his slicker roll and placed it behind the cantle.

"Listen!" Lois whispered.

Straining his ears, Dave could hear the sound of horse hoofs somewhere below. There must have been at least half a dozen animals, to judge from the showers of shale that were being dislodged. The posse was upon their trail.

* * *

Dave darted into the cabin and put out the light. He had no doubt it had been seen. A yell from the lower mesa indicated that fact, and there sounded the thud of horses galloping over the stretch.

"We're just in time," Lois whispered.

Dave swung her into her saddle and mounted Hooker's horse. Curran and his men were close at hand now, but they still had to surmount the slope that ran to the Dave found two saddles and bridles. He brought them out and topmost mesa. And the next instant the black was moving silently away into the scrub, and Dave's horse was following.

The horses knew the trail in the darkness, for they picked their way through what seemed an almost impenetrable growth of stunted jack-pine and aspen. The fugitives had been just in time. They could not have been more than a hundred and fifty yards from the cabin when there came an outburst of savage yells, and the rattle of a fusillade of gunfire.

"We got yuh, Bruce!" Dave heard Curran shouting. "We saw that light. We know you two is thar. Come out and take it, or we'll burn the shack over yore heads. We got you surrounded."

But the black and Hooker's brown horse had already penetrated the tangle of undergrowth and were ascending a trail running steeply up the mountains.

The utter silence of the mountains now. Dave and Lois riding side by side over the uplands. A sense of joy in Dave's heart such as he had never known. He leaned toward Lois.

"Yuh feelin' better?" he asked. "It ain't far to that cave yuh spoke of, is it?"

"Not far now," she answered, and he noticed with apprehension how weary her voice sounded.

Lois, in the lead, turned Black Dawn aside, and Dave perceived, in the faint starlight, a narrow trail that ran away from a ravine through a spindling growth of aspen. The horses were going down a deep slope now, bracing their shoulders firmly, half walking and half sliding. It was evident that they had been along this trail before.

He gathered the girl into his arms and staggered into it.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

RATTLESNAKES, moccasins and copperheads belong to the New World tribe of pit vipers, but only recently has definite progress been made in determining what part these facial pits play in the snake's life. Now it seems that they are highly developed sense organs, responding to heat and air vibrations.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

February 13.

JESUS ON THE MOUNTAIN AND IN THE VALLEY

Mark 9: 2-29

PRINTED TEXT, Mark 9: 2-8 17-27.

GOLDEN TEXT. — I believe; help thou mine unbelief. Mark 9 24.

Memory Verse: God . . . careth for you. 1 Peter 5: 7.

Time.—Autumn A.D. 29.

Place.—The transfiguration took place on Mt. Hermon, far in the north of Palestine; the healing of the demon — possessed boy took place near the southern foot of this mountain.

The Invited Three

"And after six days Jesus taketh with him, Peter, and James, and John, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart by themselves. And he was transfigured before them." Our Lord took with Him the three who also were with Him in the Garden of Gethsemane. It was while our Lord was in the act of prayer that he was transfigured. The word transfigured implies more than a change of mere outward semblance.

The Transfigured Lord

"And his garments, became glistering exceeding white, so as no fuller on earth can whiten them." The business of a fuller in ancient times was to cleanse and whiten linen garments.

The Heavenly Visitors

"And there appeared unto them Elijah with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus." We should carefully note that Peter did not selfishly ask that a tabernacle might be built for himself, but only for his Lord and the two visitors who had come from the other world. Matthew tells us that they were so awed and afraid that they could not bear the glory of the scene. They were amazed and stupefied.

The Voice From Heaven

"And there came a cloud over shadowing them: and there came a voice out of the cloud. This is my beloved Son: hear ye him. And suddenly looking round about, they saw no one any more, save Jesus only with themselves." The representatives of the Law and the Prophets depart. The whole scene was changed in a moment and only Jesus, as the disciples had known Him, was seen. As the disciples lay prostrate and stupefied with terror, and Christ touched them and spoke His word of cheer, they were relieved of their fears and lifted up their eyes again.

The Disciples' Failure

"And one of the multitude answered him Teacher, . . . bring him unto me." We have seen the Saviour's compassion; here we see how great was His forbearance—'how long shall I suffer you?' In His words—'bring him unto me'—we hear the note of love, of authority, of confidence. He did not turn away in spite of the faithlessness of those present, but confident of His inherent power to cure the hardest case calls for the love to be brought forward.

The Evil Spirit's Work

"And they brought him unto him . . . but if Thou canst do anything, have compassion on us, and help us." This was the work of the evil spirit within the youth. When the devil within him saw Jesus about to work, he matched his power against Christ's—

Faith, Not Power

"And Jesus said unto him, if thou canst! All things are possible to him that believeth." The father had said. 'If Thou canst do anything'. Jesus says, 'If thou canst believe.' The question was not, 'Is there power', but 'Is there faith.'

"Straightway the father of the child cried out, and said, I believe; help thou my unbelief." How can we fully and freely believe? First we must confess the faith that we have, as this man did. Then we must appeal to Christ to be helped against our unbelief, as this man did. Finally, we must bring the case to Christ.

Christ's Healing Power

"And when Jesus saw that a multitude came running together . . . . But Jesus took him by the hand, and raised him up; and he arose."

Christ's words center no more into him shows the completeness of the miracle and Christ's care for the future of this youth. In the grip of Christ there was power, healing power. The weak exhausted lad found himself possessed with new life and vitality when his hand was grasped by Christ. He was lifted; but even as he was raised he found himself able to rise with the new strength which had entered into him.

The Colonel's Lady

By Helen Montgomery

"There may be girls nowadays who feel poorly equipped to cope with Army life, but I am a little vain of my position of Most Ignorant Army Bride of All Time, and I have no notion of giving it up without a fight."

This is the way the Colonel's Lady, Helen Montgomery (Jones) begins her story of life as an Army wife; the most amusing book we have seen in many years.

Married in 1924, when Lieutenant Jones was just graduated from West Point, they spent a short time at their first army post in the United States and then sailed for China. Despite domestic crises precipitated by their lack of knowledge of the Chinese language — on one occasion they were served "fried eggs and cream cheese" instead of "frogs legs and green peas" — they were enchanted with the land and its people.

After their return to America the Jones were moved from one post to another, struggling always to make a lieutenant's pay do for themselves and their three children. In 1935 the tide turned, Lieutenant Jones became Captain Jones and they started up the ladder that has ended in a Colonelcy.

Battling Basutos

Basutos who are greatly esteemed as fighting men in our African army, have one big "defect" which will tickle military men greatly. They actually love drilling so much that they do it their spare time as amusement.

The result is that, to find suitable punishment for minor delinquencies, C.O.'s have solemnly to forbid the offenders to take part in any drills, regular, extra or voluntary. It sounds very odd, but the fact is officially vouched for.

Skip-Bombing

The new technique of skip-bombing was brought to success in the battle of the Bismarck Sea and in the Mediterranean, says the New York Times. Skip-bombing is a cross between dive bombing and shelling. Sometimes the bomb is aimed to bounce on the water and ricochet into a ship's side, and sometimes the bomb is dropped earlier so that it bounces, falls into the sea and strikes the target below the water line. In a third method the bomb is released at a higher level close to the ship to strike before a vertical dropping position is attained. At Pantelleria low-flying planes skipped bombs into caves which were used as underground hangars.

The Husky

The husky is a dog native to northern North America from Alaska to Labrador. He is usually wolf-gray in color (indeed, he has some wolf blood in him) and is much used for a draft and pack animal.

The name husky is said to be derived from an Algonquin Indian word for eskimo. In the early days the white Missionaries called the Labrador natives "huskemaws," a form of the word esquimaux. Curiously enough, the name husky was first applied to the natives themselves and only later on came to be identified with the eskimo dogs.

SHORT-CUT ON THE ROAD TO ROME

At an unnamed Italian port Allied troops file aboard an invasion ship enroute to the surprise landing behind the German lines, south of Rome. Expecting a bitterly opposed landing, Lieut Gen. Mark Clark's forces were themselves surprised when the beachhead was established with very little resistence.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

* * * * *

If this war teaches us anything at all it certainly should make us realize how interdependent every country, every race, every industry and every individual is upon the rest of the world. It is true from the highest to the lowest. No man—or nation—can live unto himself alone. We find evidence of that every day—in the home, on the farm, on the battlefield and on the sea. And so often it is the little things that count — little people, little jobs and little boats. Yes, especially little boats.

* * *

Do you remember the scene in "Mrs. Miniver" where the little boats rescued the men from Dunkirk? Little boats—not battleships or destroyers, but small, unimportant pleasure yachts and fishing smacks. And do you realize how dependent we still are upon the little boats for the safety of our loved ones and for the shipment of everything they need on the battlefront. No, it isn't the little boats that carry the men and supplies, but it is the little boats that make it possible for the bigger boats to ride the seas with their precious cargoes.

* * *

All these thoughts have come to me as a result of some verses I received last week. They were sent by a reader of this column who, apparently, wishes to remain anonymous. Here is the poem:

"THE HOUSEMAIDS OF THE SEA"

By David B. Cunningham

The little boats of the fishing fleet,
Emily, Susan and Jane,
Sail out with steadfast hearts to meet
Danger and death and pain.

Not theirs to battle the great Graf Spee,
But they must softly tread,
As they keep the mine-strewn sea lanes free
From Penzance to Malin Head.

They proved their valour long ago,
When Drake was matched with Spain,
And now from Devon to Scapa Flow,
They prove it once again.

As, out where the lurking sea-mine floats,
They gamble with death and life—
The little salt-lipped fishing-boats
From Grimsby, Hull and Fife.

They seek their safety on bended knees,
For they see their duty plain,
And sweep the floors of the coast-wise seas—
Emily, Susan and Jane.

That poem almost makes me homesick. I can see those little boats—not as they are now but as they used to be. I can see the herring boats along the quay at Yarmouth . . . trawlers coming into the dock at Harwich and little boats with red sails off the coast of Somerset — "red sails in the sunset."

* * *

Oh well, this is 1944, and we are a long way from England — and on a farm, and we do find a few little things to keep us occupied from daylight to dark. Last week it was things like cleaning stove-pipes and chimneys. You see we have finally come to the end of that soft coal I have done so much talking about so we really went after those pipes in a big way and then while I was cleaning flues and stoves Partner was scraping the chimney. I wish you could have seen the pair of us when we were through! And actually, we didn't have any callers. Three times I went over the dining-room floor on my hands and knees—twice to wash it and once to wax it. And after that I scrubbed the kitchen floor. The next day I wouldn't have gone down on my knees for a fortune. That job done I set up a quilt for the Red Cross and invited some friends in to help with the work. We didn't get it finished so that will be another job for this week.

* * *

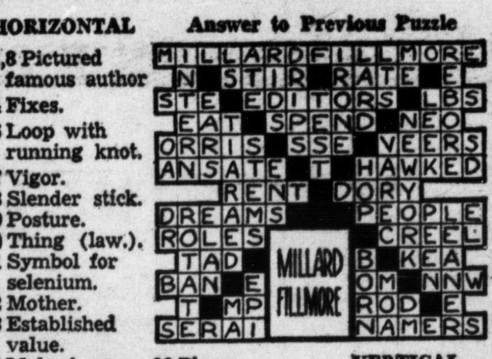

We are still enjoying the most marvellous weather. It almost seems too good to be true — we keep wondering what has happened to Canada—"Our Lady of the Snows". Some farmers are beginning to shake their heads—there is a water-shortage—and what is going to happen to the wheat and clover? That is what every farmer would like to know, but whatever is likely to happen, worrying about it won't stop it.

Fool Eye

Trees, telephone poles and other tall objects appear to the eye taller than they actually are. A 30-foot pole standing erect appears to the human eye much longer than a similar pole of exactly the same length lying on the ground.

The tendency of the eye to exaggerate the height of vertical objects gives rise to many optical illusions, says the Better Vision institute. This overestimation of vertical lines is explained by the fact that the eyes are accustomed to moving in a horizontal plane at eye level. This can be demonstrated easily by counting off with the eyes 10 feet vertically on a wall, and then 10 feet horizontally. It's much easier to move the eyes across the wall.

Palermo Busy Port

Most of the trade of western Sicily passed through Palermo. The city's 410,000 people were sellers and shippers of the products of Sicily's fields, vineyards and orchards—lemons, oranges, wine, sumac (for tanning and dyeing), almonds, and spaghetti and similar flour paste products.

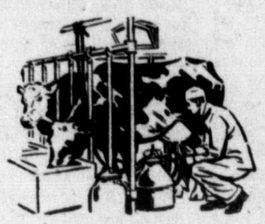

Phoenicians founded the original town; Greeks named it Panormus (all harbor) from the big bay at the settlement's front door. After the Phoenicians had their day, Palermo felt the heavy hand of Romans, Barbarians, Byzantines, Arabs, Normans, Swabians, Spaniards, and Bourbons.

More FOOD NEEDED

As Victory Draws Nearer

As the United Nations invade the Axis-dominated countries, famished populations as well as our fighting forces must be fed. The need for food increases as victory draws nearer.

Canadian farmers are confronted with a heavy task, which may be made easier through the use of bank credit. The Bank of Montreal stands ready to make every reasonable loan which will promote an increase in food production in the world emergency.

America Harvests Rubber

The first natural rubber produced on an industrial scale in the United States has been harvested by the U. S. Forest service less than a year after the nation's guayule rubber program was begun.

The agriculture department announced that harvesting of the guayule took place in the Salinas valley in California on a government-owned plantation. It estimated the initial harvest at about 600 tons of raw rubber. The harvesting was done on about 550 acres.

The report disclosed that the army made an investigation 13 years ago into the possibilities of the guayule plant as a rubber resource in event of war. One of the two officers making this report was Maj. Dwight D. Eisenhower, now a general and commander in chief in North Africa.

Winning Hog House

A "war winner" hog house combining ideas embodied in numerous small, one-litter field houses has been designed by E. T. Robbins, livestock specialist, and Deane G. Carter. It is six by six feet at the ground, has three-foot sloping sides, perpendicular rear end and a slightly sloping roof covered with one strip of roll roofing. Strong, tight, dry and cheap, the house is suitable for any farmer to build at home with native or milled lumber and available roofing material. It is made without any floor, since the ground is warmer in winter and cooler in summer than a floor would be.

Use Ladders Safely

Here are five points emphasized in the safe use of ladders: Do not leave tools or other heavy articles on top of a stepladder from which they may fall; in using ordinary rung ladders, place them only against solid and stationary backgrounds; the foot of the ladder should be one-fourth of the ladder's length away from the wall against which it is leaning; when ascending or descending a ladder, always face it and use both hands; use only ladders in good repair. Never use one with missing or broken rungs or steps.

Ho-Ho-Ba

The jojoba bush (pronounced ho-ho-ba) may provide a new source of wealth for Mexico's semi-arid regions in the northern states and in lower California.

Reports in the Mexican press say the jojoba bush has been found to produce an excellent liquid wax. The jojoba nuts which yield the wax, according to the reports, have been commanding as high as $200 a ton for export to the United States.

Experimentation in the cultivation of the nuts under irrigation has been started near Florence, Ariz. The jojoba bush is considered adapted for growing in Arizona and New Mexico as well as south of the Rio Grande.

Studded With Villas

Situated on Italy's north coast near the western tip of the island, Palermo looks across the Tyrrhenian sea toward Italy. From the road up Mt. Pellegrino, bold headland to the north, the city is seen spread on the seaward side of the broad, fertile plain of Conca d'Oro (Golden Shell) facing a spacious bay.

The surrounding countryside is studded with villas, the city with parks and gardens green with palms and bright with flowers. Balmy Mediterranean climate at its best—mild and sunny—won Palermo profitable patronage as a winter resort.

Apple Honey Freshens

"Apple honey," a new phase of cigarette manufacture since the war, is now being produced from Nova Scotia apples. The apple honey, a form of syrup, made out of a former waste product, is used to protect the freshness of the tobacco in cigarettes and takes the place of glycerine, now in great demand for war purposes. Research work is being carried on to see if the syrup can be used in bakery products, cosmetics, and as a syrup base for drugs and laxatives. Research workers have used it as a spread on bread and pancakes and find the taste agreeable.

Sulphur Dust Prevents Attack From Chiggers

One very annoying pest that seems to thrive in warm summer weather is the chigger. In some sections the grass and woods are infested practically the entire season. While it is difficult to protect completely from their attack, there should be no delay in dealing with them. Prompt action is necessary to prevent severe itching, scratching and sometimes infection.

During the worst of the chigger season entomologists suggest the daily dusting of bodies of children with fine sulphur. Sulphur dusted on the clothes and legs of adults, when it is necessary for them to spend some time in the brush or weed-covered areas, will give some protection.

But when children have been exposed to chiggers, give them a hot bath as soon as possible afterwards. Lather their bodies all over with a good mild soap, rubbing it onto the flesh with a coarse wash cloth, and then rinse well to dislodge any chiggers that may be on them.

To stop bites from itching, try dilute ammonia water, strong salt water or bicarbonate of soda mixed with water. Touching each bite with colodian (new-skin) also relieves itching. If these bites become infected, physicians recommend the application of a mild antiseptic such as mercurochrome or a solution of iodine.

Anti-Noise Regulations

Methods of enforcing municipal anti-noise ordinances vary considerably from city to city, though they are limited in most communities to police warnings and nominal fines. Educational campaigns have been successful in many cities in securing co-operation of the public in observing anti-noise ordinances. In a few cities, jail sentences have been imposed, however. Fines imposed by many ordinances, also, range up to $500. More than 50 per cent of the nation's larger cities have anti-noise ordinances. In addition, many cities have traffic, nuisance and other ordinances designed to regulate noise to some extent.

Turbulent City

Messina, Sicilian city with a history as turbulent as it is long, is absorbing a new kind of punishment —this time from bombs dropped by Allied planes. Just across the strait of the same name from the toe of Italy, the city is drawing fire as the terminus of the ferry bringing munitions from the mainland for Sicilian airfields.

Change and misfortune have been Messina's lot. Rule has shifted at least ten times in the last 3,000 years. Since 1743 the city has weathered four catastrophes.

Latest and most ruinous blow was the earthquake of 1908. Most of the buildings were leveled and upward of 77,000 persons killed. The United States generously aided the sufferers.

The new city was planned to withstand earthquakes. It has wide streets, no buildings are over two stories high and all factories are included in one area. This "zona industriale," along the coast south of the harbor, makes a conspicuous bomb target. The harbor has been called the busiest under the Italian

No splashing of oil—no greasy, insanitary, fly-attracting mixture of oil and milk, making a mess of both machine and floor. The oil necessary to the operation of a Renfrew goes in at the top and remains inside until it is time to change it.

This is only one outstanding feature of the Renfrew Separator. Others include the low supply tank, ease of operation, close skimming — and highest quality and performance at a reasonable price.

OTTAWA REPORTS

That Canadian System of Meat Rationing Has Been Adopted By Australian Government

Australia, which recently went on meat rationing, has adopted the Canadian system with only minor variations, according to Paul Malone, press attache, Office of the High Commissioner for Canada, at Canberra, who was in Ottawa last week.

As here, sugar, butter and tea have been rationed for some time and many foods are in short supply although Australia is producing more than at any time in her history. The farm labor shortage which Mr. Malone says is probably more acute than anywhere in the world has led to some progress in greater mechanization. The country's aboriginal population, though not large has come to the rescue of the sheep stations, and the curious fact that they work better for women than for men has been discovered. Women apparently have more patience and the little black men fall for the feminine approach, "Now, don't you think this is the better way?" Australia is supplying all the basic foods for the U.S. fighting services in that area on reverse lend lease basis.

The federal Government premium on hog carcasses announced previously went into effect Monday, January 24. The Minister of Agriculture, the Hon. J. G. Gardiner, also tells of a number of changes in the system of hog marketing as a result of discussions between the Bacon Advisory Committee, the Advisory Committee on Agriculture, the Meat Board and the Agricultural Food Board.

The procedure under which a basic price was established for B1 hog carcasses and prices for other grades determined by applying discounts, except in the case of Grade A carcasses for which a premium was paid by the packers, will be discontinued. Hogs will be purchased on the basis of their carcass values in the various grades. Government premiums will be paid in the case of Grade A carcasses at $3.00 a carcass, and in the case of Grade B1 at $2.00 a carcass. The premium of $1.00 formerly paid by the packers on Grade A carcasses will be paid on the carcass grade value for export bacon.

The number of grades has been reduced by consolidating some of them. The grades now adopted are Grade A, Grades B1, B2, and B3, all B grades to sell at the same market price. Here is the list of grades and weights:

Grade A	140 to 170 lbs.
Grade B1	135 to 175 lbs.
Grades B2	125 to 134 lbs.
Grade B3	176 to 185 lbs.
Grade C	120 to 185 lbs.
Grade D	120 to 185 lbs.
Lights	119 and under.
Heavies	186 to 195 lbs.
Extra Heavies	196 and over.

Effective January 21, the miller's practice of imposing conditional sales of flour with sales of millfeed on feed dealers who in turn imposed these on farmer customers, is prohibited by Wartime Prices and Trade Board. The tremendous increase in demand for millfeed has brought many complaints which the new order seeks to adjust by relieving distributors from obligation to accept any specific quantity of flour or cereals when placing mixed car orders. They in turn will be able to supply millfeed requirements to the amounts available without imposing any conditions of flour purchase on their farmer customers.

Finding repair parts for models or makes of farm machinery no longer manufactured poses a problem for the war-harassed farmer. Often local or regional farm machinery distributors can give leads as to where these are obtainable. Failing this the distributor may order from a foundry that will make the part to order. To be sure of getting a correct fit in a specially made part, examine the part to be replaced for a serial number, or make a pencil rubbing for a clear impression of its height, depth and shape. Better still send the broken or worn part to the dealer. Do order well in advance of need. These special orders take time.

THE WAR - WEEK — Commentary on Current Events

Germany Builds High Wall Of Hate Which Will Remain When War Ends

In its hectic endeavor to hold off invasion Germany has constructed strong fortifications around the periphery of Europe and on the frontiers of the fatherland, says The Cleveland Plain Dealer. The whole aim of German life today is to live within Fortress Europe and postpone the inevitable. It seeks to keep the armies of the free world outside the borders of the Reich as long as possible.

There is no doubt that this wall will be breached. Before long the armies that will liberate Europe will invade the soil of Germany. But in his desperation to suspend the consequences of the war it launched Germany has built another wall that will not so easily be pierced. It is a wall that in the postwar years will keep Germany confined, isolated and a third-rate power in the affairs of nations. It is the wall of hate.

Section by section Germany has constructed this edifice that will become its own prison. First was Austria, then Czechoslovakia, then Poland, Denmark and Norway. Then the Netherlands, Belgium, France, and finally the Balkans and Russia.

Work of Germans

Each portion of this wall was built from a blueprint of treachery. It's materials are the lives of thousands of free men who insisted on liberty for their homelands. It is topped with the barbs of a hatred born of broken homes, slave labor, hostages, larceny, misery, starvation and death.

No armies can demolish this wall. It is not open to attack. It is invisible. It exists in the minds and hearts of millions of men, women and children. Yet, intangible, as it it, it is the most real thing in the whole of Europe, much more real than the fortifications which the armies of the United Nations will shatter to break onto the domain of Germany itself.

No armistice, no peace treaty can eliminate this barricade. It will exist for years, nay, for generations as the one European frontier that can be neither obliterated or even rectified. No enemy raised this ring around Germany. It is the work of the Germans themselves. And the consequences of its building will be far reaching.

Effect on Neutral Countries

Today people wonder what to do with Germany after the war to prevent a repetition of warfare another generation hence. Certainly some definite steps must be taken to control the force of the pan-Germans, the Junkers and the National Socialists under other labels. But whatever is done will be as nothing compared to what the Germans have done themselves.

Consider for a moment the next generation. In its schools in Poland, in Czechoslovakia, in Norway—in every country on the continent—it will read the history of these years. Yet the mere reading of factual accounts, without any effort whatsoever on the part of teachers and elders to breed hate, will keep this wall around Germany intact.

The story of these times will have similar effects in those countries which were neutral in this war and on those which were neutral in the World War, in the false belief that Germany could be trusted. Denmark, Norway, Holland, to mention but three, which looked with something of approval on German aims in 1914, have learned a bitter lesson. Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey tomorrow will not be taken in by Germany.

Germany Encircled

Who, after what has happened to Europe — probably the most terrifying experience since the invasions of the Mongols and the Tartars—will have any faith in Germany's promises? What country will enter an alliance or conclude a treaty with the new Germany, whoever may be at its head or whatever may be its political professions, without a mental reservation and a physical preparation for treachery?

Germany cried out falsely against 'encirclement' when any small nation of Europe tried to defend itself. Today Germany is encircled as never before in history, encircled by bonds of its own creation.

This wall of hate will remain when the battles are over. It will remain for future generations. And behind it, condemned to live as a third-rate and ever-suspected power, Germany will lead the life of the great suspect of Europe. This is the one bit of justice in the great injustice which Germany sought to work against the world. This time even Germany may realize that it is self-condemned.

A Huge Sunflower Crop In Manitoba

Though few Manitobans know it, their province grew something like 14,000 acres of sunflowers this year—almost half the Dominion total of 29,000 acres, says Maclean's Magazine. To most Canadians that may mean little except that it sounds like a lot of ground to devote to flowers And so it is—but it pays off.

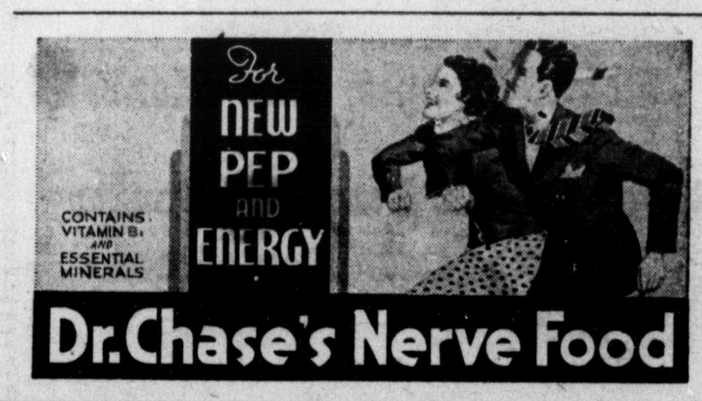

Sunflower seeds are a valuable source of edible oil and Canada's supply, now limited, needs all the bolstering it can get. Cultivating sunflowers is a profitable undertaking, too, for cash returns run as high as $35 an acre. For wheat it is only about $29; oats $28 and barley $21. Returns from flaxseed, the only other oil crop of importance, run about $18 an acre.

Sunflower oil may be hardened or hydrogenated to produce shortening. In its refined form it is used as a cooking oil. It finds a multitude of other uses in the preparation of such edible foodstuffs as mayonnaise and sandwich spreads, Sunflower meal, besides being one of the highest protein foods, has commercial possibilities for human consumption. In many respects it resembles the soybean. Roasted, the seeds are good eating and have been in high favor for years with people of Russian extraction.

Sunflower protein may be processed to produce an egg white substitute for use in baking. Other possibilities include its use in the plastic and nylon-type textile field.

The future of the sunflower, officials say, appears almost as bright as the flower itself.

Battle casualties in the Canadian Army in the Mediterranean area reported up to November 23, 1943, were 3,533 all ranks, National Defence Headquarters has announced.

Volunteer Army

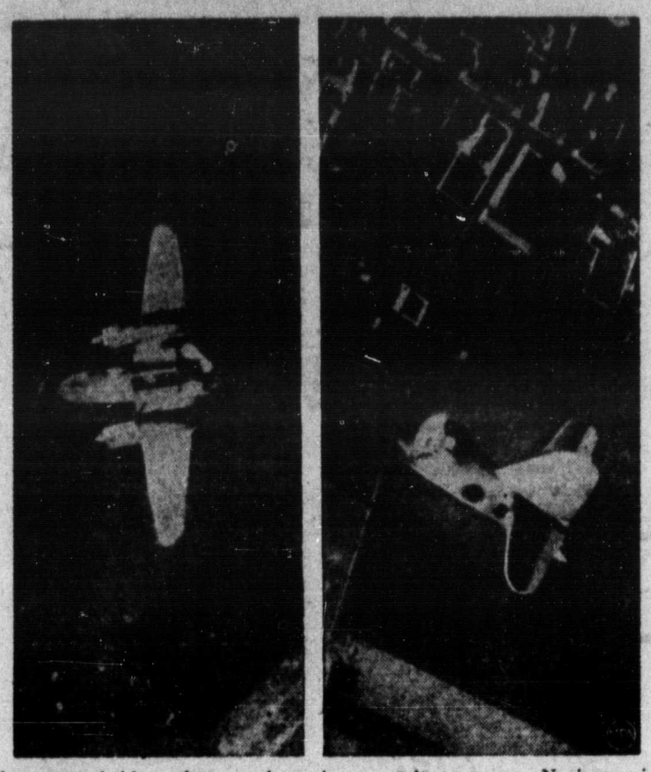

Sir Srinivasa S. Arma, managing editor of a Calcutta political paper called "Whip," said recently that India now has the world's largest volunteer army, consisting of some 2,000,000 men and a fighting spirit which will help to keep the Japs awa from their borders.

Britons Get 750,000 Lemons From Sicily

Sicily seems to be handling Britain the lemon on the large scale and it is welcomed, says The Sault Ste. Marie Star. Three-quarters of a million lemons have arrived in the United Kingdom from Sicily—the first bulk shipment to reach that country in three years. No lemons will be distributed to the public. Instead they will go to men in the submarine service, Royal Air Force operational crews and inmates of service hospitals.

Nazi Bath Parade

As part of the work as prisoners of war, two Allied soldiers were detailed for duty at the showers reserved for the Germans. A company of soldiers, admirably aligned in columns of five stood at attention. They marched at a goose step and sang in chorus; each soldier carried a rolled towel under his left arm. Then they proceeded in single file to the shower room.

"Halt! Fall out! Undress!" came the orders, and they all started undressing. Naked bodies stood in file waiting for the noncom to bawl "March! Under the shower! Begin washing! Wash in front! Wash in back! Rinse yourself off! Halt!"

Then still in files, they emerged from the showers, formed in columns of five and departed, singing in chorus, almost at goose step, the little Prussian noncom in the lead.

The famed "Army Show" has been enlarged, and the cast split up into five units. These units are now Overseas entertaining troops in the United Kingdom.

Honor For Former Airline Stewardess

The recent list of Canadians honored by the King for distinguished service included Nursing Sister Edna Louise Belden of the Royal Canadian Navy, who received the medal of Associate Royal Red Cross. She is one of eight stewardesses of Trans-Canada Air Lines who have enlisted for service with Canada's armed forces. Nursing Sister Belden, whose home is in Toronto, is a graduate of Wellesley Hospital in that city. She was born in Milton, Vt., and came to Canada at the age of three, when her family settled in Espanola, Ont. She attended high school there and later graduated from LaSalle Junior College, Boston. She joined the staff of T.C.A. as a stewardess in April, 1941, and enlisted in May, 1942. Posted on operating room duty in a Newfoundland hospital, she was commended for her bravery and efficient work when a fire broke out in the Knights of Columbus building. She went overseas in September, 1943.

NURSE BELDEN

Three other T.C.A. stewardesses have enlisted in the Navy. They are Nursing Sister B. Dundee, Toronto, who was one of the first Canadian nurses to join up, Helen F. Allshire, Winnipeg, and Patricia G. Rand, Toronto. Frances C. Brennan, Winnipeg, and H. G. Broad and Frances I. Smith, Toronto, are serving with the Air Force, and Elsie M. Dunnett, Winnipeg, is overseas with the Army. Six girls from T.C.A. maintenance shops have also enlisted for active service.

Wooden Lifeboat Defies Flaming Oil

A wooden lifeboat that will not catch fire even when passing through forty-foot flames in a sea coated with burning oil has been perfected for use by crews of torpedoed tankers, many of whom perish in seas set ablaze by their burning cargoes, it was announced in Britain recently.

Its inventor, John Lamb, who was torpedoed seven times during the last war, and three companions tested it in a large pool covered with burning gasoline. The external temperature was 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and the crew within the asbestos and canvas canopy was subjected to 116 degrees, yet neither the crew nor the boat suffered.

An asbestos hood covers the boat and a fireproof canopy over the cockpit gives further protection. The boat is twenty-eight feet long, can carry thirty-three persons, has a ten-horepower Diesel engine, radio transmitter, water distiller and sails.

Wise Seed Use

Occasionally a home gardener feels that he has a poor stand of plants in his garden because he did not use enough seed. If he used old seed of low germinating power, this may be true; but usually the weather or some other condition has prevented the seedling plants from getting a good start. Gardeners are far more likely to plant the seed too thickly than otherwise. This involves extra work in thinning out extra plants; or in many gardens, it means that the plants stay crowded and never produce as much food as they might.

In buying seed, it is wise to plan the amount of seed needed for the space to be planted. The seeding rates suggested in seed catalogues or other booklets on gardening give a good margin of safety.

New Nurses' Uniforms

An entirely new wardrobe of uniforms and service clothing for the army nurse corps has been designed by clothing experts of the quartermaster corps, assisted by prominent women's wear designers, the war department announced. The traditional nurses' navy blue will now give way to olive drab in the street and general service uniform. The starched white uniform will be replaced for service in overseas theaters of operations by a brown and white, pin-striped seersucker, with the white uniform of the same design as the brown but of a poplin material being retained for service in the United States.

A Chartered Bank is

ONE WHICH COMPETES WITH NINE OTHERS

for your business

These ten competing banks are:

Bank of Montreal
The Bank of Nova Scotia
The Bank of Toronto
The Provincial Bank of Canada
The Canadian Bank of Commerce
The Royal Bank of Canada
The Dominion Bank
Banque Canadienne Nationale
Imperial Bank of Canada
Barclays Bank (Canada)

A chartered bank is the custodian not only of your money on deposit but also of your secrets concerning that money.

A CHARTERED bank is an institution where the details of your bank account are kept secret.

It is called "chartered" because its permission to do business and the conditions and restrictions under which it may do business, are contained in a charter granted and kept up-to-date by parliament, the finest democratic free institution of government that man has yet devised. This charter is an Act of Parliament laying down all of the conditions which safeguard your money.

Ten competing chartered banks are the very opposite of a State Monopoly such as would come about if all the banks were rolled into one by nationalization. Under State Monopoly, if you failed to get accommodation at the one bank, you could not go to any one of nine others to seek it. You can today.
