Quebec in focus

Babies threatened

MONTREAL (CP) — The health and "even the lives" of Quebec's newborn babies are endangered by postal disruptions in the province, doctors in charge of a genetics testing program said Tuesday.

Detection and monitoring of infant diseases are often hampered by late arrival at laboratories of blood and urine samples, the doctors said.

Eight physicians signed a letter to the editor of a local newspaper calling for the end to "tyranny" in the post office which they said is jeopardizing a genetics program run by the Quebec Network of Genetic Medicine.

Not guilty plea

QUEBEC (CP) — Capt. Jean-Claude Giroux pleaded not guilty Tuesday to charges of criminal negligence relating to the death of six cadets in an explosion of a grenade at nearby Valcartier Canadian Forces base last July 30.

A preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 19 by Judge Louis Fortin of Sessions Court. He was released pending the hearing.

In March Coroner J.-Armand Drouin found Capt. Giroux criminally responsible for the death of the cadets when a grenade exploded during a class in arms handling.

Concern at centre

MONTREAL (CP) — Administrators of Marian Hall, a treatment centre for emotionally-disturbed girls, met Tuesday with a representative of the Quebec social affairs department to discuss the "alarming" number of violent incidents which have forced staff members to call police 62 times within the last three months.

The incidents include 19 wrist slashings requiring hospital treatment, 15 cases of self-mutilation, five fires, 28 smashed windows and 17 attacks on staff with knives or scissors, said an official of the centre in suburban Beaconsfield.

Discrimination

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Tuesday he would not be surprised if charges of discrimination in the hiring of workers at Montreal's Olympic worksite are at least partly correct.

The Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) said Monday that only members of the powerful Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) are being hired on the site.

Replying to a question from Robert Burns (PQ—Maisonnette), Mr. Choquette said an investigation into similar charges by the Centrale des Syndicats Democratiques (CSD) showed that there was some discrimination against CSD members.

For that reason, the minister said, it would not surprise him if the charge by the CNTU is at least partly true.

Letter carriers back on the job for a day

OTTAWA (CP) — Letter carriers will be back on the job today as a "sign of good faith in bargaining" Roger Decarie, president of the Letter Carriers' Union, said Tuesday night.

Mr. Decarie said the selective strike action of the union, which began Monday, would be called off "for one day only" while post office and union negotiators held a "very important meeting."

While Mr. Decarie did not elaborate on what he expected to happen at the meeting, Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey Tuesday asked the union president to appeal to his workers to return to their jobs rather than hinder a possible settlement with further strike action.

Mr. Mackasey said the two sides were very close to agreement on the major issues of length of agreement and a cost-of-living formula.

The union has asked for a cost-of-living clause to protect wages from inflation and Mr. Mackasey has said the government team accepts the concept in principle.

But, the government has resisted such clauses in previous contract talks. The only cost-of-living clause given so far to federal employees was to information service officers in an arbitration award.

ONE-QUARTER OFF

About 4,000 of the 16,000 union members were on strike Tuesday, halting mail delivery and pickup in many regions with the Atlantic area the hardest hit.

Letter carriers were on strike in St. John's, Mount Pearl and Stephenville, Nfld.; Halifax, Sydney and Dartmouth, N.S.; Saint John, Moncton, Fredericton and Bathurst, N.B.; and Summerside P.E.I. and parts of Quebec. The selective strike action also hit Edmonton and Vancouver in the west while mailmen in London and Thunder Bay, Ont., were also off the job.

Government and union negotiators have based their discussions on a conciliation report, prepared by L. O. Clarke, which proposed raised of 70 cents an hour back to Jan. 1; an additional 30 cents July 1; 40 cents Jan. 1, 1976, and 30 cents July 1, 1976.

Average hourly wages now are $4.44. The pay increase would total $68 a week over a proposed two-year agreement.

The treasury board nominee on the three man conciliation board rejected the Clarke report as inflationary.

The union nominee signed the report but said there should be a cost-of-living allowance and an additional 40 cents an hour raise Jan. 1, 1976.

Longshoremen holding up grain

Bill drafted to end strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The government drafted a bill Tuesday aimed at ordering an end to the current strike by 2,200 Quebec longshoremen.

Quebec farmers have had difficulties getting feed grain since the strike began three weeks ago.

Labor Minister John Munro told reporters the back-to-work bill, the second in less than a month, would likely be introduced today if a last-minute effort by federal mediator Charles Porier does not settle the strike.

Talks between the International Longshoremen's Union and the Maritime Employers Association had not resumed late Tuesday and prospects of a negotiated settlement appeared dim.

The legal strike by longshoremen at the St. Lawrence River ports of Quebec City, Montreal and Trois-Rivieres started March 31, one week after Parliament ended a three-week strike by West Coast longshoremen.

Mr. Munro said in the Commons Tuesday that negotiators in the Quebec dispute cannot agree on the issue of job security.

Progressive Conservative and Social Credit spokesmen called last week for a legislated end to the strike. But the government held off, hoping for a settlement.

WILL DISCUSS BILL

A New Democratic Party spokesman said Tuesday that NDP members were scheduled to discuss the possibility of back-to-work legislation this morning "but it is unlikely that they will support it."

Mr. Munro said the feed grains shortage was a deciding factor in having the bill drafted. He would not say specifically what the proposed act contains.

The Quebec Association of Millers asked the government Monday to end the strike. It said strikers are preventing the movement of grain at Quebec City and Trois-Rivieres.

The association said Ottawa is "not taking the plight of Quebec farmers seriously... at least nowhere near the attention given to western farmers during the recent strike by West Coast grain handlers."

Opposition MPs have expressed concern about the feed grains supply in Quebec. Truckers have been reluctant to cross picket lines to pick up grain for the feed mills.

Inquiry set on corporations

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced Tuesday a wide-ranging federal inquiry to check the growing power of business corporations.

The royal commission is to inquire into corporate growth, mergers and acquisitions and will report back to the government in about a year, Mr. Trudeau said.

The commission is to recommend legal measures for protecting the public against abuses by big business, Mr. Trudeau said.

Its chairman will be Robert Bryce, a veteran civil servant and former deputy finance minister. He now is an adviser on federal-provincial relations in the prime minister's office. Two other commissioners are to be appointed later.

Mr. Trudeau said the decision to appoint a royal commission resulted partly from the takeover bid made late last month by Power Corp. of Canada Ltd., based in Montreal, for Argus Corp. Ltd. of Toronto. Both have extensive shareholdings in varied industries and together they would form a business empire with interests ranging from food retailing to publishing, insurance and transportation.

The government already regulates corporate activities through the Combines Investigation Act. It makes it an offence for companies to combine to restrict trade, but is generally ineffective against large conglomerates with widely spread holdings in several industries.

In a telephone interview, Mr. Bryce said the main thing, will be to look at the conglomerates because they mainly fall outside the regulation of the Combines Act.

Mr. Trudeau said the government will not ask for a suspension of the Power proposal to take over Argus while the inquiry is conducted. He said he is neutral about the proposed deal, which is being opposed by Argus shareholders.

Currently, part one of a two-part bill to amend the Combines Investigation Act is before a Commons finance committee. It is intended to strengthen existing prohibitions against misleading advertising. But a second stage, dealing with mergers, monopolies and interlocking directorships, is to be introduced later.

Former corporate affairs minister Herb Gray, who introduced the current version of the first-stage amendments to Parliament in late 1973, said the commission may become a delaying tactic, preventing the second stage from being introduced.

He fears the government will have to consider the commission's report and that will set the bill back.

But Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said the government will proceed with the current proposals. If the commission report recommends further amendments, they can be introduced into the stage two amendments at any time during parliamentary consideration, he said.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic parliamentary leader, was told by Mr. Trudeau that the banking industry will be included in the inquiry.

Washington (AP) — The immigration and naturalization service cleared the way Tuesday for admission of up to 129,900 Indo-China refugees to the United States.

Congress, meanwhile, deferred action on use of U.S. troops for final evacuation of U.S. citizens and others from South Vietnam.

At the same time, U.S. citizens and their dependents were reported leaving Saigon in increasing numbers.

Attorney-General Edward Levi invoked emergency procedures to waive normal immigration processes for the 129,000 refugees, including 50,000 South Viet-names whose lives would be considered endangered by a North Vietnamese conquest.

A spokesman said U.S. Embassy officials will determine which South Vietnamese are eligible for admission to the United States.

Viet Cong rejects bid for ceasefire

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government today proposed an immediate ceasefire and negotiations for a political settlement to end the Vietnam war, but the Viet Cong rejected the proposal.

It was the first overture to the Communists by the Saigon government since the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu on Monday night and his replacement by his 71-year-old vice-president, Tran Van Huong.

"The proposal fools no one and will hardly help the Americans out of their defeat," said a statement issued by the Viet Cong delegation in Saigon.

Similar proposals had been made previously by Thieu, but the Communists rejected all of those, saying they would only deal with an entirely new government in Saigon.

The head of the Viet Cong diplomatic mission in Paris, Pham Van Ba, indicated Tuesday that the elevation of another member of the Thieu regime to the presidency had not improved chances for a ceasefire.

"Mr. Tran Van Huong is not Mr. Nguyen Van Thieu, but he is his brother," said Pham.

Thieu's resignation has produced no visible change in the power structure in Saigon and the former president still is occupying the presidential palace.

Meanwhile, Communist-led forces sweeping down South Vietnam's central coast captured another provincial capital.

Strike follows riots in Rome

ROME (Reuter) — Millions of Italian workers went on strike Tuesday to protest right-wing violence after four days of rioting in several major cities.

The general strike, ranging in length between 30 minutes and eight hours, was originally called to back trade union demands for increased government investment to safeguard employment levels.

However, Luciano Lama, head of the Communist-dominated Trade Union Confederation (CGIL), said in a speech at Terni that "the demonstrations are above all a response to Fascist provocation."

There were no initial reports of violence as the organizers' marshals kept firm discipline among the crowd of workers and left-wing students.

There were similar, though smaller, demonstrations in most other major cities. However, the only report of trouble came from Naples, where police said a group of right-wing extremists beat up a 17-year-old student under the mistaken impression that he was a left-wing activist.

At the same time, "it should be made clear that if somebody wants to live in the province of Quebec, (that person) will have to live in French."

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices closed barely higher in most sectors after early gains in heavy trading Tuesday on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Analysts said some investors think the economy may recover in the second half of 1975, while others feel it may take longer to regain its strength.

Investor behavior may have been influenced by news that inflation in the U.S. slackened in March, said one broker.

MANAGER TRAINING PROGRAM — Leandre Fauteux, recently elected President of the Eastern Townships Chapter of the Canadian Management Institute for a second term, has announced the details of a program to train prospective managers.

Management course develops potential

"In 1975, the Eastern Townships Chapter of the Canadian Management Institute will make special efforts to recruit new members who meet eligibility requirements even though they have not followed any C.M.I. courses. Their competence will complement that of the other members and the Institute will therefore be significantly updated.

"In addition to a program of regular courses which are given through Canadian Universities, and to seminars and industrial visits which we organize, the C.M.I. is preparing, through the intermediary of the Chapter which I head, a meeting to be held in May 1975," said Leandre Fauteux. Recently elected President of the Eastern Townships Chapter of the Canadian Management Institute for a second term, he is Manager of the Domtar Converted Papers Mill at Windsor. This meeting will enable the executives of Eastern Townships companies to meet the delegates of different sectors, regional development managers and the President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, for example, in order to discuss the latest business management principles.

A PERSONAL TESTIMONY

Leandre Fauteux in no way resembles a superhero who has an answer for every question and to whom one should turn when faced with a problem. To the contrary, he gives the impression of a moderate man for whom good judgment is much more important than technical aspects. Several years ago, conscious that it was becoming increasingly imperative to acquire a theoretical training in the field of management, he registered in a course offered by the Canadian Management Institute at McGill University in Montreal. In 1968, after 4 years of night school, he finally obtained his certificate. Since then, he has acted as a director of the Association, first on the Membership Committee and then as Vice-President of the Montreal Chapter. He was elected Eastern Townships Chapter President for a first term in 1974 and re-elected a few weeks ago.

BROADENING THE HORIZON

"One of the greatest benefits of the course given by the Institute through Canadian universities is that it is the same right across the country. If you move from one province to another, there is no difficulty in continuing the course and obtaining a certificate from a university where you might have only attended the last semester," adds Leandre Fauteux.

The purpose of the courses is to develop the management potential of company executives. "Not only should we prove to managers of local industries that the course presently given at Bishop's University is worthwhile but also that it is a necessary one for any person who wants to be up-to-date in matters of management," Leandre Fauteux says, however, that an even more important aspect than the course itself is the time devoted to studying or to the work which is required by the two hours of theory taught each week.

PEOPLE MANAGEMENT

At the Institute, motivation is given a very important place. "The greater the motivation of the people, the closer the relationship between their personality and their work. They will be happier, their performance will be improved and their relationships with the people in their immediate environment will be more cordial." This is an experience in itself. And also a challenge for the person who does not possess all the necessary resources to properly carry out his work as a manager. That is why a satisfactory theoretical training combined with personal experience is most important.

And this is also the reason why people who, like Leandre Fauteux, decided to take their destiny in hand are so proud that they did

Canadian steel market strong

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Businessmen are skilled in changing to meet the demands of the market place but are still novices at coping with major shifts in government legislation, J. Peter Gordon, president of Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Stelco), said Monday.

"Generally, there is sufficient warning of market changes to enable prudent management to reduce its firm's exposure to the consequences," Mr. Gordon said in an address to the annual meeting of Stelco shareholders.

"We rarely receive adequate warning of impending changes in regulations affecting business," he said.

"But while we are prepared to accept this uncertainty, I do not believe that the Canadian business community can remain efficient if it must continually adjust not only its plans but its operations to a deluge of often-conflicting changes in federal and provincial legislation."

Mr. Gordon said he expects domestic demand for steel to remain strong this year, and was hopeful for an improvement in the Canadian economy by late 1975.

Last year, he said, steel was in such short supply that international prices frequently rose to levels three times those of Canadian mill quotations. But recently, the international steel market had softened, particularly in flat rolled and finished products used in the automotive, appliance and housing industries.

But despite these weak spots, "Canada probably has the strongest steel market in the western industrialized world today."

Stelco earlier reported record levels of sales and profits because of high demand for steel that rose about 12 per cent over 1973 levels.

The company's sales exceeded $1 billion for the first time, and net revenue was more than $100 million.

Mr. Gordon said this achievement was dampened by the fact that inflation distorted the results.

Text of his remarks were released before delivery.

Fund reinvestment challenge

TORONTO (CP) — In the style of oil-rich Arab countries, Jannock Corp. Ltd., a widely-diversified Canadian firm, announced Monday it has $20 million to spend and wants to find something to invest in.

"There are very few companies in Canada today with $20 million to spend and we are in an enviable position at this time," Jannock president G. G. Kirkland told the company's annual meeting.

"Throughout last year, we have been searching for areas of business which offer above-average growth potential."

He described reinvestment of these funds as "the main challenge facing the management of Jannock during the coming year."

Meanwhile, he told the meeting that Jannock has agreed in principle to purchase Diamond Clay Products Ltd., Burlington, Ont., and has also begun negotiations to sell the firm's fish operations in Newfoundland.

He said purchase of Diamond Clay for an undisclosed amount will add 80 per cent to Jannock's brick-making capacity and "make us the largest brick manufacturer in Canada with four plants."

Jannock also owns Canada Brick Co. Ltd., Mississauga, Ont. and St. Lawrence Brick Co. Ltd., Laprairie, Que.

EARNINGS DROP

Mr. Kirkland reported that Jannock's earnings for the first quarter of 1975 would be low compared to net earnings of $1.9 million or 29 cents a share in the first quarter of 1974.

He blamed the lower earnings on a three-month strike at Atlantic Fish Processors Co. Ltd. operations in Newfoundland and on below-normal sugar sales for its subsidiary, Atlantic Refineries Co. Ltd.

He said the sale of Atlantic Fish to a private buyer, not identified, would relieve the company of losses incurred over the last year because of strikes and poor market conditions.

Atlantic Fish had a loss of about $500,000 in 1974.

Mr. Jannock said the purchase of Diamond Clay, second largest producer of clay brick in Ontario, should be regarded as an expansion of an existing business.

Uniroyal Inc., the No. 4 producer, said its profits were down 69.6 per cent this year from the first quarter of 1974.

The commission said its policy since Jan. 1, 1975, has been to require a single prospectus filing for each fund and not to accept multiple filings.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A late bout of profit-taking sent industrial shares lower on the Toronto stock market Tuesday, but other sectors managed to close with modest gains.

The industrial index, widely-based indicator of market trend, had been up more than half a point at its high for the day but lost ground late in trading to close at 187.79, down .44.

The index gained in nine of the previous 10 sessions, touching a nine-month high of 188.69 last Thursday. Analysts said the strong advance had tempted some investors to take profits.

Gold rose 5.24 to 383.14, base metals 7.3 to 74.56 and western oils .35 to 169.25, remaining at a high since Aug. 15.

Advances closed slightly ahead of declines.

was unchanged.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — New fears of an upswing in U.S. short-term interest rates broke an early-session rally on the stock market Tuesday, and prices closed lower in heavy trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials finished down 1.72 at 814.14 after being up more than seven points in the morning.

NYSE volume totalled 26.12 million shares, up from Monday's 23.96 million. Standard and Poor's 500-stock index dipped .14 to 87.09.

What stocks did:

	Tues. Mon.
Advances	698 992
Declines	761 463
Unchanged	383 375
Total issues	1,842 1,830

Early-session strength, a carryover of Monday's advance, was aided by government figures which showed that inflation had slowed to a 3.6-per-cent annual rate in March, about half February's pace.

But as the day progressed and the rally bogged down, fears increased regarding the upswing in short-term interest rates that began last week.

Profit-taking knocked the NYSE's most-active stock, Polaroid, down 2 3/4 to $29 3/4.

Commonwealth Oil Refining, in second place, dipped 3/4 to $11. After the close the company said it would oppose a previously announced tender offer by Tesoro Petroleum at $11.50 a share.

Oil stocks were mixed as earnings reports flowed in. Texaco slumped 1 1/2 to 23 1/2 in active dealing after the firm said first-quarter earnings dropped 66 per cent from a year ago. But Exxon, whose net slipped 11.1 per cent, picked up 1 1/2 to $78 3/4. Getty Oil, one of the more volatile in the oil group, jumped 7 1/4 to $167.

Most groups were mixed, but golds showed improvement despite slight bullion price cuts abroad. ASA, Ltd., gained 3 1/2 to $70 3/4 and Homestake rose 1 1/2 to 45 1/2.

Among the glamors, Texas Instruments fell 3/4 to $102 3/4, IBM 1 1/2 to $211 3/4 and Walt Disney 2 to $42.

The NYSE's composite index fell .10 to 46.14. The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market was down .54 at 78.54.

The American Stock Exchange's market-value index dipped .10 to 84.26 as the most-active issue, Anixter Brothers, gained 1/2 to 7 1/2. Among Canadian issues on the New York Stock Exchange, McIntyre was up 1 1/2 to $48, Dome 1 1/4 to $46 3/4, Campbell Red Lake 1 1/2 to $29 1/2 and International Nickel 1/2 to $27 1/2.

Activities at Galt

By Joanne Brown

For five weeks at noon, with the help of Ms. Peggy English, a number of Level 2 and 3 students have prepared to enter public-speaking contests in the area. On April 2nd a contest was held in the school, in which Nancy Williams placed 1st, Susan Armstrong 2nd, and Andy Lyon 3rd. On April 14 a contest was held at the Kiwanis Club in which one boy and girl representative was allowed from each school. Nancy Williams won first place in the girls' division.

On April 15th at the Optimist Club, contestants from Galt and BCS were entered in a competition. Galt won first, second and third places in the girls' division (Susan Armstrong, Janice Vaudry and Nancy Williams) and in the boys' division Andy Lyon and Danny Davis took second and third place.

Last Wednesday Blue House celebrated the birthday of Ms. Joan Bryson, Blue House Principal. Enough cake was purchased to feed each of the 400 house members present at this assembly during home room. The money for the huge cakes came out of the house council's budget.

Another 'Reach for the Bell' competition was held on Wednesday, this time between Yellow and Red house. Yellow defeated Red by a score of 105-30. Next week Orange and Green houses will compete.

On May 2nd the choir will hold its annual spring concert. Tickets are available from choir members. Money collected from this and the band concert held two weeks ago will go towards tomorrow's exchange trip. Band and choir students will be gone for four days, returning this Sunday.

Last Tuesday the English history 320 class presented the 'Flop of the Year Awards', a quite entertaining effort to raise money for a class trip to Ottawa this June.

More raised for Home

SAWYERVILLE (BP) — The final money-raising project for the Dixville Home by the Lennoxville Optimist Club was held here Saturday evening, with $350 being taken in at the dance.

Vernon Dougherty, president of the club, said it was really touching to see the jam-packed Sawyerville Elementary School gym, with everyone out to support the worthwhile cause.

The grand total is over $21,000 but how much the final amount will be will have to be determined after all pledged cheques are received. Mr. Dougherty said their books are being upset a bit by people sending in more money than they had pledged, but added the problem would gladly be straightened.

The Optimist Club would like to give special thanks to Larry Hill of CKTS who was emcee for the evening and gave out records during the dance, the Hackamore Band who donated their talents to supply the live music, The East Clifton Women's Institute who provided the lunch, and Art Bennett and Charles Kingsley, both of whom gave strong support to the project.

"It just goes to show what can be done for a meaningful cause," said Mr. Dougherty, "...it's a terrific feeling of satisfaction."

School board

Tax collections outlined

Ed. Note: The following is an article prepared by the Eastern Townships Regional School Board regarding school board tax collections.

School tax bills to individuals and corporations are mailed from the offices of the local or sector school boards once a year to cover the school year which extends from July 1st to June 30th.

Regional school boards do not impose or collect taxes; they are funded by the local, or sector school boards.

Since the school year, July 1st to June 30th, is not the same as the calendar year, January 1st to December 31st, it is sometimes confusing to taxpayers to receive a tax bill in October or November. School boards are urged by the department of education to issue their tax bills before December 1st of each year. If this is not done, the government imposes a penalty on school boards on money borrowed from banks to finance its operation pending the receipt of tax dollars.

Information printed on the tax bill advises the taxpayer of the terms of payment, rate of interest applied to all arrears, and the bank at which payments may be made. It is preferable to have bills paid at the board office, where no service charge is required, and where errors or changes of address may be noted by the personnel in the tax department. Confusion and difficulty for both parties is experienced if changes in address are not promptly reported to the board office. It could result in property or land being put up for tax sale, and additional costs to the owner to recover his/her property.

By law, any land or property on which taxes have not been paid must be submitted for tax sale.

Property or land that is classified neither Roman Catholic or Protestant is posted on the neutral list, and the tax revenue is shared on a per-capita basis (number of pupils of school age) by both Roman Catholic and Protestant School Boards.

In the past it has happened that two tax bills were issued in the same year. This will not happen in the future unless some government regulation requires the school board to change the present system of tax collection.

October crisis film slated for television

On April 28, the National Film Board production "Action: The October Crisis of 1970" will be telecast nationally by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation over both the English and French networks. Rarely has a program been telecast in both official languages on the same evening, a press release states.

This one and half-hour documentary on the events leading to the kidnapping of the Senior British Trade Commissioner in Montreal, James Cross and the kidnapping and subsequent murder of Pierre Laporte, the Minister of Labor and Immigration, will be seen at 9:30 p.m. on the English network and at 9:00 p.m. on the French network.

"Action...", directed by the award-winning filmmaker, Robin Spry, has been widely acclaimed as one of the most important Canadian documentaries of all time. Motion magazine termed the film "a blockbuster" and according to the Montreal Gazette, Spry put "Quebec's unrest of the last three decades into perspective, a brilliant perspective that no one will ever forget seeing."

Although the film is concerned for the most part, with those days in October, 1970 when Laporte and Cross were kidnapped; when the FLQ made known their demands; and when the War Measures Act was enforced for the first time in peacetime Canada, "Action..." goes back to the time when separatism first became a force in Quebec.

Spry leads up to the events of 1970 with accounts of the Murdochville strike; the reign of Maurice Duplessis; the early beginnings of the FLQ and the subsequent rash of bombings in Montreal.

The film recalls the Queen's visit to Quebec in 1964 and the famous "Vive le Quebec Libre" speech of Charles De Gaulle in 1967. It tells of the St. Jean-Baptiste riot of 1968; of the founding of the Parti Quebecois; the Montreal police strike and the 1970 victory of the Liberals over the P.Q. party leader Rene Levesque commented "don't forget that this is a defeat which feels like a victory."

"Action: The October Crisis of 1970" is a film that is important for all Canadians, not only as a historical document that puts into perspective one of the most critical periods in the nation's history, but because it is a film which stimulates thought on the whole political system and the validity of its powers.

Sorcerer's Apprentice

The overwhelming majority in the British House of Commons that voted in favor of Britain's continued membership in the European Economic Community could not conceal the deep chasm that has opened both within the ruling Labor party, and probably the nation as a whole. Prime Minister Wilson is the sorcerer's apprentice, who has conjured up the spectre of a referendum, a device unknown to British constitution and never tried before. And now he does not know how to lay this pernicious ghost. This is a sad commentary on the development of this once-astute politician who has made a career out of political survival, always bending with the wind that at any one time, prevailed within the Labor party to carry him to, and keep him on, the top. Now, however, Mr. Wilson's luck seems to be running out.

On Wednesday a majority of the Labor MPs voted against the government motion (to stay in the Community), while about 40 members, more than one-tenth of the Labor party caucus, either abstained or stayed away from the House. Mr. Wilson is thus leading a minority of his divided party. Nor can it be certain how far the pro-Community vote in the Commons reflects the individual attitudes of the voters who are expected to troop to the referendum in June. A recent public opinion poll indicates a small majority among the population is in favor of staying in Europe, but a referendum is an experience for which there is no precedent in Britain, and nobody can tell how many will in fact bother to vote. Those who feel very strongly about the question undoubtedly will vote, but the grey majority may well remain silent.

Anti-Europeans are found in both parties, but while the Conservatives, especially after the departure of Enoch Powell, have among them only a narrow right-wing fringe that opposes British membership in the Community, the ruling Labor party has come increasingly under the control of its extreme left wing that has skillfully exploited the European question in a barrage of Marxist propaganda, which very often has little in common with the basic issue of whether or not Britain should stay in the Community. The referendum has thus become a demagogic device whereby the Labor party Marxists endeavor to secure support for their own designs that would radically alter Britain's present social institutions.

The split between the social democrats within the Labor party and the Marxists has now become inevitable and, as the Wednesday vote showed, the answer can only be found in a coalition government. Mr. Wilson was indeed saved by the vote of the Conservatives and the Liberals, the two parties that considered the country's future more important than a partisan advantage. Had these parties abstained Mr. Wilson would have fallen. Next time he may not be so lucky.

All not well in NATO alliance

LONDON (CP) — The aim of the upcoming NATO summit meeting is to rally Western unity in advance of the ambitious East-West conference on European security, but it will take a fine bit of diplomatic salesmanship to convince even its own members that all is well within the alliance.

For a start, France has said the meeting proposed by Britain and seconded by the United States is unnecessary and undesirable. President Valery Giscard d'Estaing will not attend, nor will he even send his prime minister to the Brussels meeting late next month, leaving France to be represented by Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues.

Elsewhere, two other NATO members—Turkey and Greece—are at each other's throats, with their prime ministers recently engaging in a burst of sabre-rattling across the Aegean Sea.

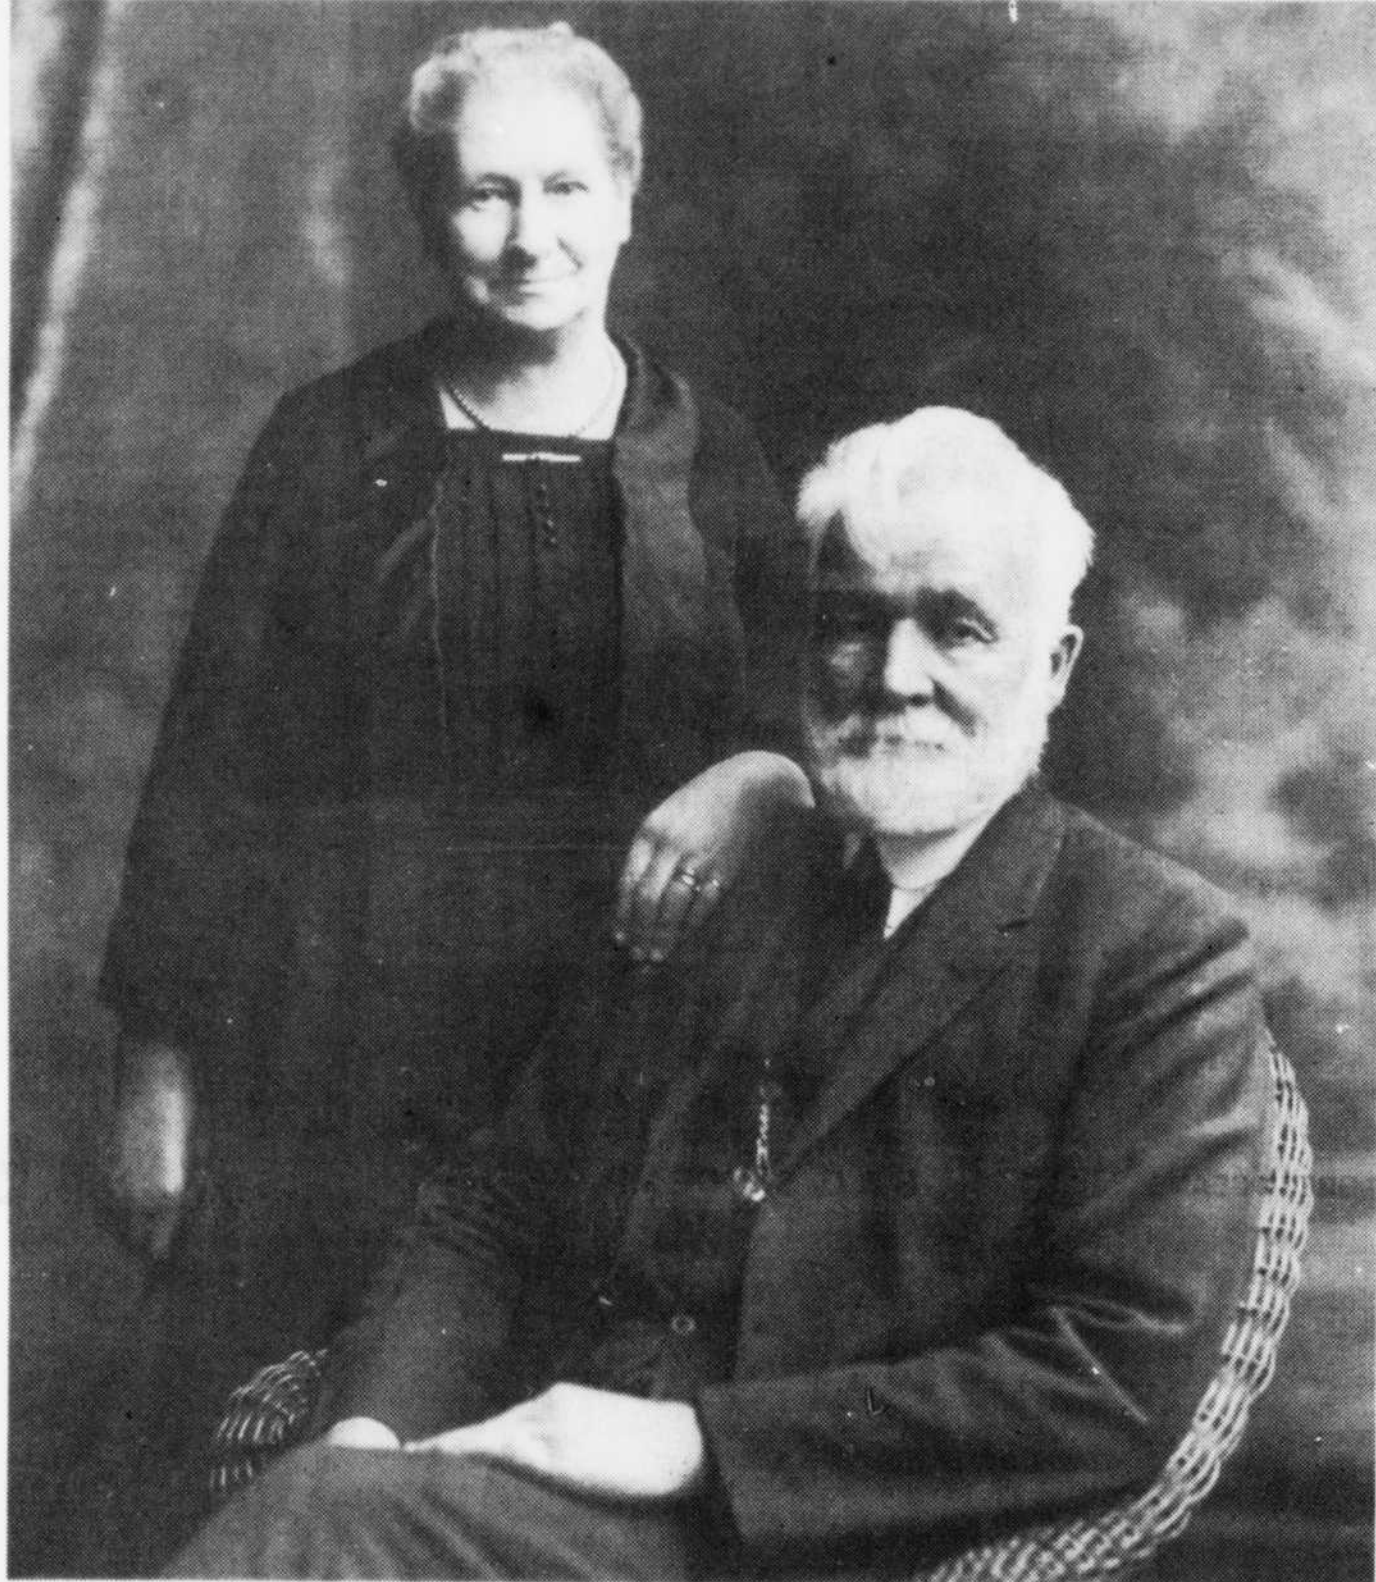

And the situation regarding Portugal, recently freed from 50 years of authoritarian rule and now increasingly within the grip of left-wing and Communist elements, is even more uncertain.

Nevertheless, British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan remains convinced the summit is vital to planning for the climactic European security conference later this year in Helsinki, when the West meets the Warsaw pact countries.

The Americans have picked up the idea with enthusiasm with President Ford and State Secretary Henry Kissinger, dispirited over Indochina, eager for an opportunity to reassert U.S. influence in world affairs.

The French view, apparently, is that major concerns these days centre on Vietnam and the Middle East, outside NATO's sphere, and that all real NATO questions were dealt with only last June at the Ottawa ministerial meeting.

LUMBER TYCOON — The well-known lumber tycoon William Bown and his wife, Mary Herring, are shown above. Mr. Bown was one of the pioneers of the lumbering industry in the Eastern Townships. His wife died in 1930 and he died in 1933.

Lumber industry begun by pioneering ET family

By H. CARL MAYHEW

Ed. Note: The following is part one of a four part series outlining the Bown family and their contribution to the development of the lumber industry in the Eastern Townships. The article was written by Carl Mayhew of Ayer's Cliff who also sent in the photographs accompanying the article. Part two will appear on next Wednesday's Editorial Page.

As one travels along the Victoria Road now from Bown to Canterbury, he rarely thinks of what it was like 140 years ago — a blazed trail through dense woodlands. Or even 80 years ago when the lumber business was booming around Bown's Brook and Long Swamp. As this great business in timber was started by two of the Bown brothers, the story cannot be properly told without a brief history of the Bown family.

John and William Bown emigrated from England to the United States in 1819 and settled in Ohio. Two other brothers, Henry and Thomas, came to Canada the next year and settled in Brompton, west of Sherbrooke.

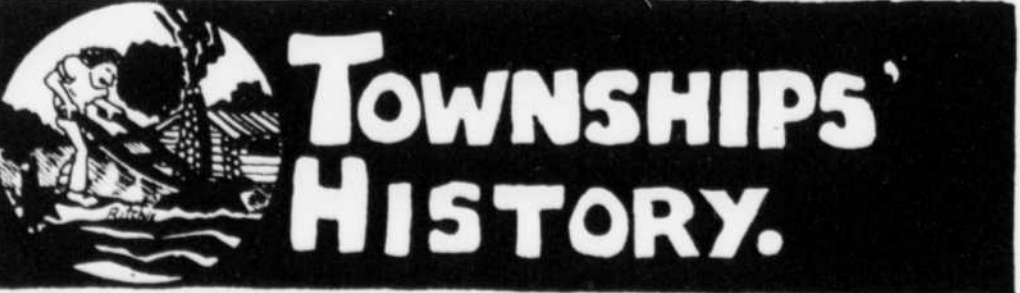

About this time a sister, Caroline Bown (Mrs. Henry Beckett), also came and settled in Sherbrooke. Henry Bown married Jeannette Wilcox, lived there a few years, had a son, Wm. Henry born Dec. 18, 1828, then moved to Ohio to join his brothers.

This left only Thomas Bown who moved from Brompton in 1836 and settled on the Victoria Range Road about four miles East of Bury. Here he set up a small store and hotel for the use of the many settlers who were flocking in to Bury (called Robinson then), looking for lots all along the road which enlarged it a great deal. Then Thomas Jr. and William decided they would go into the lumber business, which they did by buying Ebenezer Sharman's sawmill at the Brook.

Ebenezer had built this mill about 1860 on the brook which crossed the road one and one half miles east of

In this way the sawing went on continually and they were able to cut 1,000 board feet of lumber a day. As the story goes, the operator could sleep while the saw was making a cut, and when the saw neared the end of the cut, the sound of a latch which automatically stopped the carriage, would awaken him to reset the machine for the next cut and so on. In this where the first Bown homestead was located.

This was an up-and-down sawmill powered by a wooden water wheel and consisted of a single narrow saw blade in a frame which moved up and down by means of a crankshaft below the floor. Circular saws were not in general use at that time.

It was about 1874 that Wm. and Thomas bought this early type mill. They were still living at home and took turns tending the saw. Most of the sawing was done in the spring when the water was high, so one of the partners would come and saw for 12 hours and then the other would take the next 12 hour shift.

process the log was held in place on the carriage by an iron dog driven into the end.

Thus to avoid having the saw strike this iron, the carriage had to be stopped about two inches from the end. This two inches on every board not finished by the saw was split and was known as the "stub-short" or "stub-shot".

About 1876 Wm. Bown bought out his brother's interest and Thomas moved to Lennoxville where he established a sawing and wood-working business. Before Thomas Jr. left Bown he had married Florence Bompas, daughter of George J. Bompas, a cousin of the famous Bishop in the North.

Poetry

The Old Country School
 How many attended an old Country School
 In the days e'er school buses were here?
 Surely many remember those days very well
 With memories even more dear.

What a thrill in the Fall, to gather our things
 Pens and pencils, scribbles and books,
 Our lunch in a shortening pail - yellow or red
 Which today would draw second looks!

A new Teacher this Fall — Oh, what is she like—
 Has anyone seen her around?
 Let us hurry — she'll be there, to unlock the door,
 Our feet hurried, and scarce touched the ground.

The school yard was weedy, the grass had grown long
 All during the hot summer days,
 But a few games of "tag," or "hide-and-go-seek"
 And the growth was soon worn away!

Country children we were, up with the dawn,
 Most with chores to do, before break of day,
 So when recess came round, our lunch buckets came out...
 And at noon ... the piper we paid!

In Winter, a box-stove heated the school,
 All around it, our clothes draped to dry,
 Cause at recess and noon, we skated and slid
 And my, how those minutes did fly!

In the mornings, our ink-wells were frozen and hard,
 On the stove we set them to thaw —
 Sometimes they would break, or a cork splatter and pop,
 And Teacher at us then, would "jaw."

Our clothes, often Big Sister's, or hand-me-downs,
 Not chosen, but rather bequeathed —
 We thought nothing of it — we all were alike,
 No word of complaint did we breathe.

On the day the "Inspector" called at our school,
 We were nervous, as nervous could be;
 Our teacher so calm, gave her staunchest support
 As he called us to stand up and read.

The plumbing, alas — — non-existent 'tis true,
 Was a wee building out back of the school;
 Our water supply was a tank on a bench
 And sometimes it wasn't too cool.

Then after our long days were over,
 (Four o'clock then was the rule)
 We'd trudge off home, through snow to our knees,
 Often quite a long way from the school.

What friendships were formed — friends that remained,
 What secrets were shared — oh so sweet,
 There's none can replace an old school chum, at all
 No matter how many you meet.

What precious memories we hold of those days,
 They live ever bright in our minds,
 And for those who went to an old Country School
 No more wonderful thing could you find.

The old Country Schools now are a thing of the past,
 By Regional Schools they've been replaced;
 But to us, who attended them, they'll live ever on
 With dear memories time cannot erase.

Record Yester Years
 20 YEARS AGO TODAY

BLACKPOOL, England — An Anglican bishop yesterday lambasted "bright young things" who seek equality with men.

Declared Rt. Hon. Anthony Hoskyns-Abraham, Bishop of Lancaster, at a meeting here:

"I do not believe in equality of sexes — and I never will.

"What do most bright young things today mean by equality: the freedom to behave as man behaves?"

"Then try to add their natural female vices to the natural vices of men and then they feel that they have reached man's status.

"They haven't. They have sunk below it."

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

Lake Massawippi is becoming an unhealthy place for those who seek to take fish by illegal means. The Record learned that during the present week four nets, aggregating nine hundred and fifty feet in length, have been seized by Fish Warden Alger Percy of Bacon's Bay.

Mr. Percy, who has been keeping a keen watch on that end of the lake since the ice went out, became aware that there was some action on the opposite shore, and, continuing to investigate, satisfied himself that nets were being placed in the deep water along the west shore. By means of grapples he succeeded in locating them and drawing them to the surface, nearly one thousand feet in all. They contained a few fish, but had not been in the water long enough to do very much damage.

Mr. Percy then undertook to round up the poachers. He found an old boat which they had used, and was on hand later when they arrived in an automobile. Their surprise and disappointment was naturally great when they found that their illegal work had been discovered. The seizure of the nets, the number of the automobile and the identity of the men, who are said to come from the Magog district, have been reported to the Massawippi Fish and Game Club. It is understood that the matter has been placed in the hands of the club attorneys, and proceedings for the prosecution of the defendants are to be undertaken.

Brompton Lake and Lake Memphremagog, it is well known, have been netted for years and stripped of their lake trout and other fish. These, in many cases, have been shipped to the markets in Montreal, and it would appear that they have now similar designs on Lake Massawippi.

Let's talk about it.

MINCED BEEF—A GOOD BUY

Minced meat "hamburger" is now available at pre-inflation prices, and it's a bargain. Now is the time to take advantage of lower prices to lighten the food budget and try out a variety of easy-to-prepare meals. Minced meat is a natural for all kinds of culinary delights, so use your imagination!

How much will you need?

Generally, a pound of minced meat is sufficient for 4 servings. If the recipe calls for ingredients such as protein-rich soya grits, rice, noodles, or vegetables, you may stretch it to 3 extra servings.

Here are some of my suggestions to get 6 servings from a pound of minced beef:

- mix with a 2-oz. packet of protein-rich soya grits to make a meat loaf.
- mix with canned kidney beans (14 oz.) for a quick "chili con carne".
- mix with two cups of cooked rice for stuffed peppers.
- mix with powdered skimmed milk and eggs to make meat balls.
- mix with a can of vegetable soup (10 oz.) or home-made vegetable soup and bread crumbs.

Minced meat is more perishable than roast or beefsteak and should not be kept for more than 2 days after purchase. But you can safely freeze the fresh meat, or meals made with minced meat, for 2 to 3 months. When thawing, place in the refrigerator for about 12 hours per pound instead of immediately exposing to room temperature.

Let your imagination run riot with minced meat!

Easter tea

An attractive display of spring flowers set the theme for the annual Easter salad-bar tea, held recently at the Church of the Advent hall, under the auspices of the St. Agnes Guild.

Daffodils and pussy-willows centered the individual tables. The tea table, which held a lovely arrangement of yellow mums and carnations with yellow tapers, was presided over by Mrs. D. Atto, Mrs. E. Nelson, Mrs. C. McLachlan and Mrs. H. Lemay. Miss Margaret Darby was cashier.

Undoubtedly the highlight of the tea was the salad-bar itself, where guests helped themselves to the endless variety of tempting dishes. Mrs. James Wark and Miss Vena Davies supervised this area.

Taking charge of the gift and handiwork table were Mrs. Douglas Price and Mrs. Percy Bick; the mystery parcels by Miss Susan Adams. A food table, sponsored by St. Margaret's Guild, was looked after by Mrs. A. Carrier and Mrs. L. Gillam.

The waitresses were Linda Decoteau, Cynthia Nutbrown, Ann Sturtevant, Catherine Wark and Brenda Westman. Assisting in the serving rooms were Mrs. M. Badger, Mrs. R. Loughheed, Mrs. D. Lavalliere, Mrs. I. Nutbrown, Mrs. P. Oxford, Mrs. M. Sevigny and Mrs. E. Trussler.

Celebrates 80th birthday

BROOKBURY — Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Thibodeau entertained at their home in Montreal in honour of Mrs. Thibodeau's mother, Mrs. Luella Weir, of Brookbury, who was celebrating her 80th birthday.

Those present to celebrate this occasion with Mrs. Weir were Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Weir of Timmins, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Ken MacLeod, Martin and Myles of Bishopton, Mrs. Lloyd Pehlemann of Scotstown, and Mrs. Ivy Pankovitch of Lennoxville.

Mrs. MacLeod, Mrs. Pehlemann and Mrs. Pankovitch are all Mrs. Weir's daughters and Mr. Patrick Weir of Timmins is her son.

Other guests at the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Mark MacLeod and Eric; Mr. Matthew MacLeod; Mr. and Mrs. David Raine of Scotstown; Dr. Robert Raine of Victoria, B.C. and Miss Nancy Pehlemann and Mr. Carlos Fonesca.

Mrs. Weir shared her birthday cake with her daughter, Ivy, who was also celebrating a birthday.

Mrs. Weir received many cards and gifts with good wishes from her friends in the Townships, in Montreal and Timmins, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken MacLeod called on Mr. and Mrs. K.A. MacLeod in St. Lambert.

Farewell Tea

MARBLETON — On Saturday, March 29, 1975 Mrs. George Weston of Bishopton entertained at a tea in honor of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Roy Weston, who will be leaving soon to live in Lennoxville.

Mrs. Weston was called to the home under false pretenses and found friends gathered from Marbleton and Bishopton. After recovering from the shock of the surprise Mrs. Weston entered the spacious living room where a social hour followed, while delicious refreshments were served by Pat Weston assisted by Sherrie Cryan.

Out of town guests were Sylvie Laberee and Carol, Sherrie and Steven Cryan.

85th Birthday

MOE'S RIVER — Mr. Archie Hughes celebrated his 85th birthday on April 7.

Congratulations, Mr. Hughes!

Fashion and Beauty Tips

Comfortable cords
 Velvetene corduroys for men and women — tweedy corduroy skirts and pants with pale corduroy jackets in khaki are big, comfortable fashions for late summer and fall.

Boucle beckons
 The sweater jacket is definitely a hot favorite in Europe and there is no doubt it will be on our shores, too. Boucle, the soft, loopy knit, is popping up on the sleeves and collars of these sweater jackets.

Care for cuticles
 Treat cuticles gently if you want to have lovely hands. Never push cuticles back harshly with a metal tool or cut the cuticle. Cutting makes the cuticle hard and may injure it. If you have a hangnail snip only the loose tag of skin. Rub petroleum jelly into cuticles every night to keep them soft and avoid roughness and other problems.

Denim does it
 A famous jazz man is supposed to have told a rich dilettante who asked what "swing" was: "If you've got to ask, baby, you'll never know."

Sophisticated scents
 Fragrance not only makes people nice to be near but has a way of lifting one's spirits, too. Having discovered this, Americans are becoming more sophisticated in their use of perfume — especially the classics from the great French houses to express characters, moods and fashions.

Cardigans for fall
 Cardigan jackets with contrast stitching featuring monograms and other motifs in Oriental Jacquard woven on the back will be worn for fall with double-knit skirts and polo necked sweaters.

Annual meeting held by UCW

Over 200 women, representing 31 churches or districts of Eastern Quebec experienced a day of fellowship, business, worship and song at the annual meeting of the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterial of United Church Women held at Lennoxville United Church on April 16th.

Mrs. Phillis Smith, president, welcomed the members and guests and opened the day with prayer. Mrs. Geraldine Smith of the Lennoxville UCW welcomed everyone to her church. Mrs. Leslie Humphries read the names of members who passed away during the past year and called for a minute silence and offered a prayer in their memory.

The annual reports showing a very active year were accepted as printed. The treasurer's report showed that the groups of this Presbyterial had contributed $14,044 to the Mission and Service fund in 1974. Mrs. Eleanor Baldwin took the chair for the election of officers and thanked those retiring and welcomed the new executive.

Mrs. Pat Warren gave the report of the nominations, and the following slate of officers were elected for the year 1975: Past President, Phillis Smith; President, Laura Gaudine; Exec. Vice-president, Hilda Archer; 2nd Vice-President, Zen Judson; Recording Secretary, Jeanette Jarvis; Corresponding Secretary, Muriel Prescott; Treasurer, Hannah Mallalieu; Area Vice-Presidents for Richmond; Jean Pepler; for Scotstown, Daisy Allison; for Thetford-Mines, Que., Margaret Tweedie; for Sherbrooke-Stanstead, Mildred Miller; for Waterloo area, Dorothy Harrowing. Committee Chairmen: Church in Society, Muriel Cass; Christian Development, Margaret Williams; Nominations, Marion Mayhew. Portfolio Secretaries: Community Friendship and visiting, Miriam Fuller; Literature and Communications, Sara Surjadinata; Press and Publicity, Frances C. de St. Croix; Stewardship, Marion Laberee; Supply and Welfare, Agnes Mayers; Archives and Memorials, Jean Humphries. Editor of the Presbyterial publication, Happenings, will be Phillis Smith with Carolyn Bernard as assistant editor. Rev. Gary Stokes led the installation ceremony and congratulated the new executive.

Mrs. Sara Surjadinata gave a literature flash describing some of the study material and packets available for sale or orders, and was on hand at the book tables for the many interested buyers at the noon hour.

The highlight of the day was the presence of the guest speaker, Sister Kay Duffin of the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame. She is Assistant Chaplain at the Loyola campus of Concordia University in Montreal.

Her message was that we must take time to pray and have personal communication with God, and in so doing be more open to what God has to do with our lives. With this time, we can receive renewal of our convictions and can say truly it is the work of the Lord which we are doing. Sister Kay brought this thought forward again, that people should listen to God, as she led the afternoon closing worship expressed in song and dance. Mrs. Pat Warren introduced Sister Kay and appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Muriel Cass.

The offering for the day will be forwarded to the World Development Service and Relief Fund which is sponsored by the Anglican, Catholic, Lutheran, Presbyterian and United Churches.

Mrs. Zen Judson spoke of the 50th Anniversary Fund of the United Church of Canada and how church people have said, "Let us celebrate by doing things for others."

There are three projects which reflect specific areas of concern, and Mrs. Judson introduced three people to identify them. Mrs. Margaret Williams spoke for the afflicted children of the world. Miss Louise Caron of Moe's River spoke as a member of a Youth Exchange group between Canada and the Third World. She was chosen to represent the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbytery and is looking forward to sharing her experiences of her trip to Africa upon her return.

Professor Richard Joli from Sherbrooke University, speaking for the Educational Development in the Third World, told of his experiences and impressions while on a two year stay in Africa. Rev. A. Cameron, Chairman of the presbytery Anniversary Committee, thanked the speakers for their presentations, and UCW groups are urged to support this fund to assist developing countries with their gifts.

News about Summer Event 1975 was given by Mrs. Laura Gaudine. A project of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference of the United Church, this event being held at University of Ottawa on August 15, 16, 17th, is open to men, women and youth for a registration fee of $35. Dare to Share is the theme and the theme speaker will be Rev. Robert G. Lindsay, Division of Missions in Canada. The music will be under the direction of Ron and Kris Flusmeier. A full program of interests from which to choose is planned. The registrar is J.E.D. Whitmore, Box 5, Manotick, Ont.

During the annual meeting Mrs. Rena Lassembe, Sawyerville, expressed the thanks of the members to the guests and many others who made the day so delightful. Rev. Douglas Warren gave the benediction before the ladies left to take their various messages and impressions back to their home churches.

Rev. Burn Purdon led the gathering in lively singing in the morning and afternoon as well as contributing music in the closing worship.

NORMA RODGERS

Former Bury girl wins two awards

A grade 12 student at Miramichi Valley High School, Norma Rodgers, 17, took two awards in the senior chemistry division at the third annual New Brunswick Science Fair held at the University of Moncton last weekend. She is the daughter of Anna and James Rodgers, formerly of Bury, Quebec.

One award was granted to the best senior and the other from the Canadian Institute of Chemistry.

"I belong to the science club at Miramichi Valley. We started our project the first week in January and I was assisted by Ann Hubbard, 18. It was more or less a combined project but could only be registered in one name," Norma said.

"My project was related to what we were taking in Chemistry at the time."

"I graduate this year and I've already been accepted at Mount Allison University for a Bachelor of Science majoring in Biology; while Ann has decided to work for a Bachelor of Home Economics," Norma said. Norma and her family are now residing in Newcastle, N.B. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacLennan of Sherbrooke, Que. and the late Alex MacLennan of Scotstown and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Rodgers of Kingston, Ontario.

Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hubbard of Newcastle, N.B.

Ann Landers

Husband not dad

Dear Ann Landers: After 21 years of child-support payments plus a lot of love, worry and heartache, my husband found out that his daughter from a previous marriage is not his child. Linda had a blood disorder and had to take several tests. My husband went to give blood for her and then the truth came out.

His first wife (the girl's mother) was always wild. He married her because she told him she was pregnant with his child. He believed her.

Now my husband is in a state of depression. He feels like a sucker. His ego is crushed. To make matters worse, the girl is determined to find her "REAL" father!

I married this man when Linda was only three years old. Although her mother had custody I had to fit her into every weekend, every holiday and vacation. My own little girl always felt like "second best." It was a heartache for me.

Is there any way my husband can get some money back? His ex-wife doesn't have much but I think she owes it to him to go to work and pay him back. Advise, please. — Glendale, Calif.

Dear Glendale: Your husband did what he believed was the honorable thing. And there is always the chance that his ex-wife did not intentionally trap him. She may have believed he was the father of her child.

No one can turn back a clock or a calendar. My advice is to forget the past and stop eating yourselves up. Your husband can see a lawyer if he wants to, but you can't get blood out of a turnip.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you settle an argument, please? Is it a breach of etiquette to send a sympathy note to a woman whose husband committed suicide? I say yes. My friend says no. What do you say? Your word will prevail. — Counting On Ann

Dear Counting: It is not a breach of etiquette to send a sympathy note to a woman whose husband had committed suicide. In fact, under such circumstances it is even more important for the survivor to know that friends are thinking of her.

Isolation during such a traumatic time can be devastating. By all means let the bereaved woman hear from you.

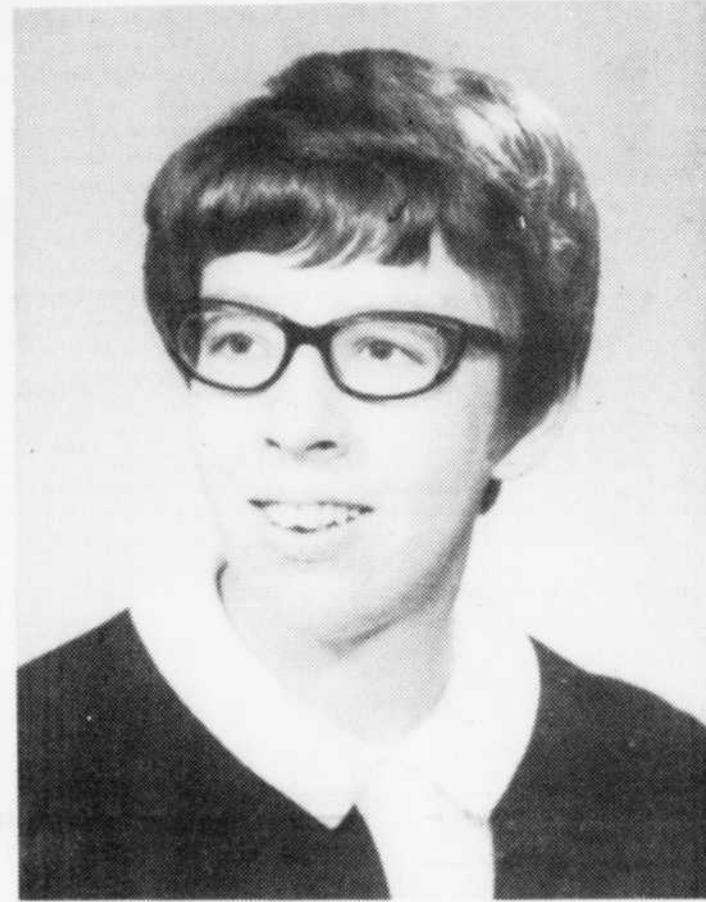

Dear Ann Landers: What is wrong with a woman in her early 70s who is very wealthy and divorced, lives in a fine hotel downtown, sits in the lobby every day loaded with diamonds and does nothing but talk to people (gossip)? Her second-most-favorite subject is sickness and death. She takes particular delight in seeing someone carried from a hotel on a stretcher, preferably dead, so she will be among the first to know. This isn't hearsay, Ann. I've watched her by the hour.

Every night, "Diamond Lil" (as she is called behind her back) takes her position at the bar and proceeds to drink until she is so plastered someone has to lead her to her room and open the door. Do psychiatrists have a name for this kind of sickness? Please answer in the paper. A lot of people would enjoy seeing you reply. — St. Louis Lady

Dear Lady: That "sickness" is a combination of many things — alcoholism, loneliness, boredom — none of which are easy to live with. The woman sounds pathetic, and the only difference between her and millions of others is her money.

Incidentally, you seem to have a lot of spare time on your hands, Sister. The name for YOUR sickness is Nose Trouble.

 There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

MARGARET J. ROSE, R.N.

Sherbrooke nurse awarded bursary

Former Peterborough Civic Hospital staff member, Margaret Rose, has been awarded a $1,500 bursary by the Centennial Committee of the Peterborough Civic Hospital. Miss Rose was a staff nurse in the Emergency Department in 1972 and 1973 before being granted an educational leave of absence to complete her Bachelor of Nursing Degree at McGill University.

The overall aim of the award, said Elton Marshall, the Chairman of the Award Committee, is to encourage the post-graduate education at the university level of the Civic Hospital nurses. The award is supported equally by the hospital, the hospital's Nurses Alumnae Association and the Hospital Auxiliary Association.

Prior to enrolling in McGill, Miss Rose was educated at Sherbrooke High School, the Sherbrooke Hospital School of Nursing, Dalhousie University and Champlain College, Lennoxville, Quebec. Miss Rose expects to graduate from McGill in May 1976.

Before coming to Civic Hospital in 1972, Miss Rose held various positions of responsibility at Sherbrooke Hospital including Acting Director of Nursing. Mr. Marshall said that the award did not obligate Miss Rose to return to Civic Hospital after her graduation from McGill, but is merely to promote nurses' education in Canada.

Convicts help youth avoid jail

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Youth Research Project (CYRP) is not your ordinary venture designed to keep youthful offenders out of jail. The success or failure of this project rests with four convicts at nearby Collin's Bay penitentiary.

Lawrence Buttle, John Mooney, John Jamieson and John Prince have decided that the best way to keep young people out of jail is by providing experienced counselling when they first run into trouble with the law.

They are serving time for crimes ranging from armed robbery to non-capital murder with terms from 10 years to life. Three of them started their criminal records while still juveniles.

"We all feel we would like to help kids at the time they first get into trouble rather than wait until they are in prison," said Buttle.

"We are not the Music Man coming in to save Kingston," added Mooney. "We just want to save some kids from going through the same trip we did." BUDGET MEAGRE The CYRP operates on a shoestring budget, gaining some support from both Collin's Bay and St. Lawrence College here. In addition, the group sponsors films at the college and collects and sells postage stamps to bring in extra revenue.

The project was started a year ago while the men were prisoners at Millhaven maximum-security penitentiary near here but the number of restrictions in force there severely limited what the group could do.

However, their activities have expanded since the group was transferred last year to Collin's Bay, a medium-security institution.

Now the group is gathering data about youthful offenders, studying Kingston's welfare system and interviewing a range of people from family court judges to the offenders themselves.

The group expects to use the data they collect to determine the scope of future activities. They will need to decide whether to concentrate on prevention, treatment or alternatives to the court and penal system for dealing with young offenders.

Experience within the penal system is not the only background the four men have on which to base their project.

"We realized we'd better get some education, otherwise I don't think anyone would listen to us," said Prince.

All four men are taking university courses and are free from prison work duty. Prince has earned a law degree and a certificate in criminology and now is majoring in psychology with Buttle at Queen's University through courses provided at Collin's Bay.

Jamieson is majoring in criminology and Mooney is studying computer science. To complement their project, all four are taking child-care courses at St. Lawrence College.

Aside from lack of funds and the security restrictions placed on them by the prison, the men feel their greatest setback was a January escape by a Collin's Bay prisoner.

Barry Forsyth was a project member before he commandeered a prison bus at gunpoint and escaped. He has since been charged with shooting two Ottawa policemen.

HOPE FOR RESULTS "Everyone who had anything to do with him was questioned," said a prison official. "The CYRP members may have felt they were under a little more pressure because they were so closely associated with him."

Despite these problems, the group expects to show concrete results this fall when its formal goals will have been established. A pilot project should be drawn up by that time to demonstrate new methods in juvenile delinquency prevention and treatment.

Within a year, it hopes to launch the pilot project in Kingston.

Jamieson said the project will operate at a grass-roots level and the goals will be simply defined.

"If we can keep just one kid from ending up here, I'll feel our work is successful."

Profiting on the Prophet?

'Mohammed' stirs Moslem controversy

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Somewhere in Libya they are making the biggest movie in years. And the most expensive.

Michael Ansara, who is part of the cast, came back for a few months in between his scenes and told me about the problems and progress. The movie is "Mohammed — The Messenger of God," the life of the Arab prophet who founded Islam.

Ansara has been working on the film for a year and the end is not yet in sight. Ansara and Anthony Quinn are the only Americans in the cast. The others come from all over — Irene Pappas is Greek and there are Arabians and English.

The film, Ansara says, will cost around $20 million. He says Quinn alone will earn $15 million from his work.

"Mohammed — The Messenger of God" has stirred up a furor in the Moslem world. Ansara says there are factions within that religion, as there appear to be within all religions. And one faction, which he describes as "puritanical," is strongly opposed to dramatizing Mohammed's life. This, even though Mohammed will never appear on screen, in deference to the religion's precept against showing him.

Because of this dispute, the company was kicked out of its first location, in Morocco. They had been working there for months and had built a fantastic set. But the anti-film faction got to the Moroccan government, persuaded them of the justice of their cause and they were booted out.

"We were given a week's notice," Ansara says. "When the week was up, a force of armed Moroccan police appeared and we had to leave."

The man behind the film is a Syrian-born American film maker, Moustapha Akkad. He is both producer and director. But, behind him, is Arab oil money. There is plenty of that around and this is their entree into the movie business.

Ansara says that, despite the film's enormous cost, it is certain to make its money back by showings in the Moslem world alone.

"Throughout that part of the world," he says, "movies are the only method of relaxation for the people. If you want to see a movie in Libya you have to make reservations weeks in advance. I understand that is true throughout the rest of the Moslem world, too."

The excitement over the film permeates the Mideast. The Moslems are eagerly awaiting this first large-scale movie made expressly for them. Ansara says the film should make a profit there and anything it earns throughout the rest of the world will be gravy.

He says it should be big here, too, because it is an immense film, with battle scenes featuring thousands of extras — something the American screen has not seen in some years. But it isn't easy working over there. Ansara says there were a few days in Morocco when the temperature hit 150 degrees.

"It feels as though your brain is frying," he says. "If somebody asks your name, you have to really give the question some deep thought before you can answer. You keep drinking water, yet you perspire so much you never have to go to the bathroom."

For his scene during that warm spell, he was clad in a purple robe. He says that in 10 minutes the purple had become black because of his intense perspiration.

The combination of heat plus strange food and water knocked him out of commission for a few days.

"It was terrible," he says. "You just lie in bed and can't do a thing. I guess it was just the change in diet, with different bacteria, but it was almost like malaria."

He says that, so far, working in Libya has been easier. But there they are far from civilization, working out in the desert and living in the abandoned quarters of some oil-drilling company.

One obvious question is how the film will be received around the world, in view of today's ticklish Mideastern situation. Ansara believes the movie should be — and will be — judged solely on its cinematic merits.

"I don't expect any problems," he says. "This is an apolitical movie. It is purely historical drama and has nothing whatever to do with today's situation."

Nevertheless, to guard against any possible adverse reaction, Akkad has hired many English Jews, both as actors and in his crew. He also has Moslem religious leaders on hand, to attest to the authenticity of the story. The ecumenical company is getting along well.

For showing in the Moslem world, there is a completely different Moslem-speaking cast. Each of the principals has his Moslem-speaking counterpart. First, the English-speaking actors do the scene, then they step out and the Moslem-speaking actors step in and do the same scene.

Ansara, who has long been one of Hollywood's most reliable actors, is getting his biggest break in this film. As the possessor of the second-biggest part — he plays one of Mohammed's strongest opponents — this film could boom his career.

"I think," he says, "this movie could be a tremendous help to me."

He had a difficult time, a few years ago, when he and his wife of 15 years Barbara Eden split up.

"The first six months after we separated," he says, "were very difficult for me. I suppose that's only natural, after being together for 15 years. But I've gotten used to it and now I'm enjoying my bachelorhood. This is the first time in my mature life that I've been free."

Doing this film has, of course, helped him forget. When your brain is frying, there isn't much else you can think about.

New power behind the Saudi throne

Crown Prince Fahd: liberal and pro-West, maybe . . .

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A month ago, a friend visiting Saudi Arabia spent an hour one evening in a private conversation with Prince Fahd and several of his friends.

Impressions of that discussion seem worth reporting, since it appears that Fahd, now Crown Prince and heir apparent to King Khalid, will be the strong man of the new government.

Saudi Arabia of late has been the swing country in the Middle East and in the world oil cartel as well as bankroller of Egypt. Fahd and Khalid in the months ahead may have a strong say not only in the production and pricing of world oil supplies but as in questions of peace or war. Their decisions could have a profound influence on our lives.

The talk that evening in Riyadh ran strongly on the Soviet threat and whether the West would awaken to that danger. And on whether Europe and the United States would stand fast, or weaken and leave the Arab countries and Iran to fend for themselves.

There was no doubt of the personal philosophy of these men or their sympathy with the United States and their distrust of the Russians. But there was in the conversation a strong view of fatalism, a worry that the West was blind.

There was no illusion that Saudi Arabia or the other Arab countries could go it alone against the USSR. Thus their close watch on the West and its determination shown in Asia, Europe and elsewhere to support allies. Everything hangs, they agreed, on how the West reacts.

Fahd, for himself, said he was watching Iran as a bellwether, to see if the Shah would compromise with the Russians and their allies, the Iraqis. He seemed to expect the Iranians to accommodate.

Whether there was a connection or not, Iran did compromise, abandoning the Kurds in a deal with Iraq, after it became apparent opposition in the United States to further aid might send South Vietnam and Cambodia down the drain.

THE GLORY AND THE POWER: King Khalid, left, is reported to have little interest in public affairs. His half-brother, Crown Prince Fahd, right, has long planned an active role in the Saudi government.

The Iranians, Fahd observed, were more pragmatic than Arabs. But of course, as he said, they are not Arabs. Fahd seemed to make these remarks in some admiration of the Iranian pragmatism and in a mild depreciation of Arab emotionalism.

My friend found Fahd to be an intent listener. As each man in the group spoke, Fahd would look squarely at him, straight at his eyes and his lips, closely following the words. He listened, and nodded in agreement, more than he spoke.

Fahd, who speaks excellent conversational English, is known here as executor of the April, 1974, U.S.-Saudi Cooperation Agreement. Three of his four sons were educated in this country — at the University of California.

American Middle East analysts say he "has a cogent grasp of foreign and domestic issues," which in the parlance of U.S. bureaucracy means that as they read him, Fahd basically sees things the way we Americans do.

In State Department files he's evaluated as intelligent, capable, sensitive and hardworking, meaning again that he tends to react, diplomats believe, as they do.

Fahd is viewed as a man who favors a more open society in Saudi Arabia, with little love for his country's political feudalism. He reportedly would like to transform his oil-rich country into a constitutional monarchy, with a legislative body and limitations on royal absolutism.

He has a reputation, in short, of being the most liberal member of the royal family, continually pressing for reform, for social development, the improvement of living standards and for a rapid expansion of industry and agriculture. As education minister from 1963 to 1966, he worked determinedly at the expansion of educational facilities.

Canadian Communist Party leader not discouraged by dwindling membership or lack of party support

EDMONTON (CP) — For half a century William Kashtan has dedicated himself to advancing the cause of communism in Canada. He says he can see steady progress.

Mr. Kashtan, 65, joined the Young Communist League in 1927 and became leader of the Communist Party of Canada in 1965.

The product of a "working class family," Mr. Kashtan said he began reading Karl Marx at the age of 12 and became a Communist because of a "general feeling of dissatisfaction."

"Generally the workers hadn't the affluence one talks about and still don't have it. Their conditions led to the feeling that there was a need for change."

"What assisted me in this regard was reading literature which my dad had brought home, including The Worker, which was published by the Communist party at that time."

"Reading the paper opened my eyes to the fact that there was a different way of seeing things, that one didn't have to accept poverty and indignity as a way of life, that there's a different kind of world possible if men set their minds to it and worked at it."

RECALLS LEAN YEARS

Mr. Kashtan, who lives in Toronto with his wife Della, remembers the lean years as a young party organizer in Toronto and Montreal. He was paid $4 a week and had to depend on friends for a room for the night or spend it in an all-night restaurant.

He remembers when the party was illegal in Canada and had to organize under another name or secretly. Authorities were never friendly to Communists, he said in an interview, and one of his earliest memories was of police breaking up an open-air meeting in Toronto.

"They threw me in a police van with two black eyes and I was charged with assault and battery of the police and I got 30 days in jail."

"I remember going down to Windsor when the auto plants were being shut down (during the Depression) and it was an eerie sight. Those big plants and not a worker to be seen. We had demonstrations every day, parades up and down the city asking for relief. And at that time, as now, a cold-blooded approach was taken by the establishment."

THRIVED IN DEPRESSION

The Depression was the party's most active period and a time when its strength was the greatest, he said. It now has about 5,000 members. Since the Depression, the party has had a poor reception from Canadian voters but Mr. Kashtan said this isn't discouraging.

"We don't measure our success by elections. . . . We motivated ourselves by what we estimated to be the important question needed to be solved at a certain stage of development. . . . It's a measure of a people's development that they may support parties that have been betraying them all along. But we never betrayed the Canadian people. . . . Sooner or later it will

Supreme Court interested in more press coverage

OTTAWA (CP) — When the Supreme Court of Canada takes its noon lunch break, most of the nine judges walk to up-town hotels or private clubs for their meal.

An exception is Mr. Justice Brian Dickson of Manitoba. His next hour is set aside for his private French lesson and a few sandwiches.

A few years ago members of the Quebec bar grumbled about a unilingual Supreme Court. To argue in French was a waste of time, some Quebec lawyers said. But now it is generally agreed that most of the court is bilingual.

The three Quebec judges—Louis-Philippe Pigeon, Jean Beetz and Louis-Philippe de Grandpre—are obviously at home in both French and English. Chief Justice Bora Laskin, among other judges, appears comfortable speaking both languages.

To meet requirements of the Official Languages Act, a translation system was installed in the Supreme Court. But it has been used only a handful of times. The court takes the position it is bilingual and has no need of translation.

LAWYER MUST ASK

The rule now is that translation is provided only if a lawyer asks for it. The most recent use of the translation system came last October when lawyers for abortionist Dr. Henry Morgentaler requested that argument in French be translated into English.

That later proved to be an embarrassment for the court. French-language reporters complained that there was no translation of the English arguments.

Told of the complaints, Chief Justice Laskin agreed that perhaps in the future reporters covering important appeals might also have the right to request translation.

This is in line with the wishes of the chief justice that the press be encouraged to pay more attention to court proceedings.

With recent changes in the Supreme Court Act approved by Parliament it is likely that more reporters will be covering the court.

AUTOMATIC APPEAL OUT

The changes do away with automatic civil appeals involving $10,000 or more. Rarely did such appeals have much public interest or deal with important legal questions.

Before the changes became law last January, more than 300 such appeals remained for the court to hear. They will clutter up the docket for at least another two years.

From now on any person wishing to appeal a decision of lower courts must first convince the Supreme Court that it involves an important question. It is the view of the government that the judges in future should concern themselves only with weighty constitutional or legal principles and have more time to ponder their decisions.

Both the government and the bench have rejected suggestions that the Canadian court follow the example of the United States Supreme Court and consider only written briefs when motions for leave to appeal came before it.

U.S. COURT DIFFERENT

The U.S. court rejects thousands of such motions every year in the privacy of its conference room.

The Canadian court also rejected time limits for motions and appeals. In the United States each side is limited to 15 minutes of argument.

In the Supreme Court of Canada oral arguments can continue for days and many times inexperienced lawyers will reexamine their arguments. Chief Justice Laskin in recent interviews said he is prepared to run such risks for the benefit of the free and easy conversational debate that is a feature of most Supreme Court appeals.

There is a 15-minute time limit on motions but rarely is it enforced. Judges may remind lawyers of the time limit but it is often coupled with the remark that the court is willing to hear all of the arguments a lawyer may have.

With the personal appeal of Chief Justice Laskin for improved press coverage of the court and with law changes ensuring that only important cases be heard by the judges, Canadians are almost sure to become more aware of the vital role played by the Supreme Court.

Impotence and prostate problem

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — About two years ago I had a prostate gland operation through the urethra. Since that time I have become impotent. Is that a result of the operation?

I have read that testosterone can be given to overcome it. Would it help? Does it swell the remaining prostate and cause more trouble to develop? Is anything better in the hormone line that can be taken to remove the impotency?

DEAR READER — There are many causes of impotency. Some young men have it on a psychological basis, often from inexperience and lack of confidence.

Impotence can also be caused by many other medical problems besides psychological factors. Diabetes is a classic example. By affecting the nerves necessary to a response, impotence develops. For a more complete discussion of impotence write to me in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019, and ask for my report on impotence. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents to cover costs.

About half of American men at age 75 are impotent. This may have something to do with our living habits that result in fatty cholesterol deposits that in turn affect the male sex organs as well as causing heart attacks and strokes. It follows that about half of men in this age group are not impotent. A gradual decline in male hormone levels can contribute to impotence. However, men with relatively low male hormone levels often function well, so it is not just a matter of hormones in every case. When a man has had some unsatisfactory experiences and loses his confidence, then he may get over his lack of confidence just by the faith he has in any medicine he takes, whether that is bark of a so-called magical tree or male sex hormones. The brain is a very important factor in performance. Older men can lose confidence, too, just as well as younger men. Loss of sexual capacity in both men and women is often a sign of depression. This is one more reason why a person at any age with this symptom needs medical attention.

It often happens that men who are in the age group to need prostate surgery are also in the age group when impotence is more common. The impotence then may follow surgery, not because of the operation, but because it was going to happen anyway. There is a very low incidence of impotence after the type of prostate surgery that you have had.

Doctors are reluctant to give much male hormone to men who are in the age group to develop cancer of the prostate or those who have already had some form of prostate difficulty.

It is true that if there really is a deficiency in male hormone that giving testosterone may help.

Prince Charles visits NWT

OTTAWA (CP)—A trip to a maple sugar bush and a special performance by the National Arts Centre Orchestra highlight the first full day of Prince Charles's visit to Canada recently.

The Prince of Wales, who arrived Sunday, is on an 11-day tour which will take him 8,000 miles through the Northwest Territories before his departure from Winnipeg, April 30 to HMS Hermes, docked at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he is a communications officer.

The 26-year-old prince, heir to the British throne, is making his first solo visit to Canada. On earlier trips, he accompanied the Queen and Prince Philip.

Today, Prince Charles is to visit a sugar bush near Chelsea, Que., just north of the capital, to watch sap boiled down into maple syrup and maple sugar.

In addition, he will tour the national aeronautical collection, an exhibit of Canadian aircraft in hangars at Rockcliffe air base, visit the city halls of Ottawa and neighboring Hull, Que., and hear a special concert at the arts centre.

The prince looked tanned and fit after a trip to the Bahamas, where he had been visiting his great-uncle, Lord Louis Mountbatten.

HAS PRIVATE DINNER

Following arrival ceremonies, including the usual military honors, he drove to Government House for a press reception and private dinner with Gov.-Gen. and Mme. Jules Léger.

Several hundred persons were on hand for his arrival and other spectators lined the route of his motorcade from the airport to Government House.

The prince leaves Wednesday for the North, after a carefully orchestrated Ottawa schedule that will see him visit a local recreation centre, meet justices of the Supreme Court of Canada, tour the Parliament Buildings, lunch with Prime Minister Trudeau and take part in several receptions and official functions.

Then, the bachelor prince leaves for a dash across the Northwest Territories that will touch 13 northern centres.

His stopovers will include a visit to gas drilling sites on King Christian Island in the high Arctic, a dive beneath the pack ice at Resolute Bay with Dr. Joseph MacInnis—a specialist in submarine dwellings—and a series of native exhibits, including a carnival on Great Slave Lake just outside Yellowknife, N.W.T.

NDP to change structure

SASKATOON (CP)—The structure of the federal New Democratic Party must change, the four candidates for the party's leadership agreed Sunday.

They called, as they had a night earlier at a meeting of party members in Regina, for a change in policy emphasis from social to economic concerns—primarily the need to extend public ownership of the Canadian economy.

At the same time, they urged the building of a stronger federal party structure to work for the election of a national NDP government.

The four—Rosemary Brown, British Columbia legislature member, former Toronto MP John Harney, Yorkton-Melville MP Lorne Nystrom and Ed Broadbent, NDP parliamentary leader—were here as part of a federal tour before the July leadership convention in Winnipeg.

The need to emphasize economic, rather than social policies, was stressed by speakers at the afternoon meeting attended by about 200 persons.

Ms. Brown, 45, said it was time to quit "tinkering with the system."

"The commitment to our own economy, the commitment to control it, is a commitment we can not modify in any way," she said.

FOR PUBLIC DIRECTION

Mr. Broadbent, 39, called for more public direction of investment decisions in the country. He said energy investment, such as the Alberta oil sands Syncrude project, is a good example of investment decisions being taken without sufficient public direction.

Mr. Harney, 44, said the party should offer a plan for an "alternate society," and 29-year-old Mr. Nystrom called for more government intervention in the economy and more federal policies which would aid the West, including a better transportation system and strengthened and expanded marketing boards for western produce.

All spoke in favor of a stronger federal NDP presence, including a regular party publication and more full-time federal workers. Mr. Harney, defeated in the 1974 election and an unsuccessful candidate for the party leadership when T. C. Douglas stepped down, came out the strongest.

Unless the party works as hard as possible to obtain power federally, its dreams of realizing a new society will never be achieved, he said.

With the electoral defeats of 1974, the current fortunes of the party are not good, he said.

REMARKABLE how even unsightly commercialism can acquire charm with age. These metal and wooden signs advertising nickel cigars, cigarettes and "chawin" tobacco, are among the nostalgia displayed in the "Signboard Bar" in Kansas City's Crown Center Hotel. The hotel sits atop Signboard Hill so named because of its being covered with garish billboards decades ago.

Expos edge Pirates 4-3 in close duel

MONTREAL (CP) — Dave McNally got ninth-inning relief help from Dale Murray, quickly becoming a fast friend, and Pepe Manguel scored the winning run on a passed ball as Montreal Expos squeezed past Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in National League baseball action Tuesday.

The game, before a sparse crowd of 5,239, marked the second occasion in six days that Murray has finished up McNally's work for a victory over the Pirates. McNally was the winner in a 7-4 verdict in Pittsburgh last Thursday.

The 32-year-old left-hander, acquired in the off-season from Baltimore Orioles of the American League, also praised rookie left fielder Bombo Rivera, a ninth-inning substitute, for his dash to the fence to turn a home run ball by pinch hitter Duffy Dyer into a triple.

McNally, now 3-0, said there was "no doubt" the one-out clout was destined to tie the game before Rivera's stab.

"I knew the wind was blowing that way," said Rivera, "and I thought I'd better go fast to the fence. I was there when the ball hit me in the glove."

STIFLED THREAT

Larry Demery, a pitcher, came in to run for Dyer and Expos manager Gene Mauch signalled for Murray, who struck out Rennie Stennett and got Richie Hebner to line to third baseman Larry Parrish for the final out.

"McNally might have fled Stennett out to centre, and what good is that?" asked Mauch of the sacrifice fly possibility. "Great pitchers don't want to come out, but great pitchers want to make sure their team wins the game."

Manguel, leading off the sixth, reached second on an error by first baseman Willie Stargell, watched Larry Bittner draw a walk and moved to third on Parrish's sacrifice bunt. Manguel came home when Pirates catcher Manny Sanguillen was charged with a passed ball.

Al Oliver's first home run of the year, a towering shot over the right-field fence, gave the Pirates a 1-0 first-inning lead, but the Expos scored three runs in the second on Larry Lintz's two-run single and Tim Foli's base hit.

The Pirates tied the game 3-3 in the sixth when Hebner was hit by a pitch, Oliver singled and Richie Zisk drove them home with a single.

Pittsburgh's Jerry Reuss, 0-1, is scheduled to pitch today against Woodie Fryman, 1-0, in the finale of a two-game series.

Yanks blank Red Sox 5-0, Jenkins tosses two-hitter

Pitcher Doc Medich had a cold Tuesday but he didn't let the virus affect his right arm as he pitched a three-hitter for a 5-0 New York Yankees victory over Boston Red Sox.

"I woke up with a cold," Medich said. "It started yesterday when my lungs became congested. I took some aspirin before the game. I was bothered a little in the early innings, but it went away as things progressed."

Elsewhere in American League baseball action, Fergie Jenkins' two-hitter gave Texas Rangers a 2-1 win over Oakland A's, Baltimore Orioles beat Milwaukee Brewers 1-0, Chicago White Sox defeated Kansas City Royals 7-3, Detroit Tigers beat Cleveland Indians 6-2 and Minnesota Twins defeated California Angels 7-1.

Medich was locked in a scoreless duel with Rick Wise until Bobby Bonds delivered a run scoring single in the sixth inning. Bonds homered in the eighth following a suicide squeeze bunt by Elliott Maddox and New York added two more runs in the ninth on Chris Chambliss' RBI double and Sandy Alomar's triple.

Munich mistakes will help us, says Guy Toupin

MONTREAL (CP) — If terrorism hits the 1976 Olympic Games, Montreal security forces will not make the errors that lead to 14 deaths at the Munich Games three years ago, the security head of the Olympic Organizing Committee said Monday.

"In Munich mistakes were made," Guy Toupin told a committee briefing. "The German police admitted this. But we're trying not to make the same mistakes."

Toupin said that in the event of a terrorist act at the Games, his department will follow the recommendations of a German police report issued after the 1972 Olympics.

The Munich tragedy occurred when the Arab terrorist Black September organization killed nine Israeli athletes after 23 hours of negotiations failed.

Five of the eight Arab guerrillas also died in a shootout with German police at Munich airport.

Deflected shot gives Habs win

MONTREAL (CP) — The record book will show that Guy Lafleur scored at 17:06 of the first overtime period Tuesday night to give Montreal Canadiens a 5-4 win over Vancouver Canucks, which enabled Montreal to take their best-of-seven quarter-final series 4-1.

But it was not Lafleur who put the puck past Vancouver goaltender Gary Smith. It was Vancouver defenceman Dennis Kearns who deflected a Lafleur pass to Yvan Cournoyer from the left wing boards into the short side.

Anyone wanting to know how Kearns felt about the turn of events just had to watch his mad dash to the sanctity of the Canucks dressing room while the rest of his team-mates lined up to shake hands with the Canadiens.

Lafleur, however, had plenty of time to explain the goal.

"The puck somehow ended up in the corner and I went after it," explained Lafleur. "I saw Yvan all alone in front of the net yelling and I tried to pass it to him. I tried to make it a hard one so he could tip it in but it hit the guy's stick."

Lapointe is nominated for CCM Trophy

TORONTO (CP) — Two goaltenders and a centre are in the running for the first CCM Trophy, to be awarded annually to the outstanding performer in the three major junior hockey leagues.

Nominated for the award to be presented during the Memorial Cup junior hockey championships at Kitchener, Ont., May 3-11, are:

—Goaltender Normand Lapointe, Trois-Rivieres Draveurs, Quebec Major Junior A League;

—Centre Doug Jarvis, Peterborough Petes, Ontario Major Junior A Series;

—Goaltender Ed Stanowski, Regina Pats, Western Canada Hockey League.

The selection is based on the player's proficiency, his participation in activities other than hockey, gentlemanly conduct, sportsmanship, leadership qualities, ability to communicate and his scholastic standing.

Three sportswriters or broadcasters from each of the three leagues nominate a player from their league.

The preliminary winners were announced at a news conference by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) Tuesday.

A secret panel of hockey writers and broadcasters selected by the CAHA will select the final winner.

PLANS TO MOVE

QUEBEC (CP) — The World Hockey Association plans to move its headquarters to Toronto within the next two months, league vice-president Bud Poile said Thursday. The head office has been in Los Angeles since the league started up three years ago.

who we are," said Canucks coach Phil Maloney.

Montreal coach Scotty Bowman said it was a tough series.

FINISHED FIRST
 "They are a better hockey club than most people gave them credit for. They won first place in their division."

Peter Mahovlich, who scored two goals for the Canadiens, said his team had a little more polish around the net — "that's what won for us."

The Canucks scored the lone goal of the opening period with John Gould tipped Chris Oddleifson's shot past Ken Dryden while Lafleur was serving a tripping penalty.

Mahovlich tied the score on a three-way passing play with Bob Gainey and Lafleur at 1:40 of the second session and Cournoyer put Montreal ahead 3-2 taking Murray Wilson's lead pass and beating Smith at 4:21.

But Paulin Bordeleau tied the score 84 seconds later and the Canucks grabbed a 3-2 lead at 10:38 when Andre Boudrias tipped the puck in from close range.

Dailey's point shot eluded Dryden at 5:36 of the final period but Mahovlich's second goal at 8:01 and Guy Lapointe's effort at 10:54 on a delayed penalty call forced the game into overtime.

The Canadiens now will meet Buffalo Sabres in a best-of-seven semi-final set beginning Sunday night at Buffalo. Both teams finished with 113 points during the season, but the Sabres get the extra home game in the series because of more wins.

The Canadiens have only managed a tie in five games against Buffalo this year.

Nordiques stop Saints 4-1 in opening tilt

QUEBEC (CP) — Coach Harry Neale of Minnesota Fighting Saints figures that if they are to beat Quebec Nordiques his charges will have to put out a better effort than they did Tuesday night.

The Saints dropped a 4-1 decision to the Nordiques and fell behind 1-0 in their World Hockey Association best-of-seven semi-final series.

"If we don't show more enthusiasm Thursday night, this is going to be a short series," Neale said.

Despite Neale's disappointment in his team's performance, the Saints trailed 1-0 until the third period was half over.

Stellar goaltending by John Garrett, who stopped 31 of 32 shots directed his way in the first two periods, kept the Nordiques at bay.

Only Jeannot Gilbert managed to beat Garrett with a 10-footer at 15:21 of the first period.

But the Nordiques scored two goals 32 seconds apart near the mid-way point in the final period to salt the game away.

LECLERC SCORED

In the final session, the Nordiques had only six shots at Garrett with Renald Leclerc, Gilbert and Rejean Houle scoring.

CGSA to assume full charge of Turfgrass conferences

TORONTO — Jack Heywood, President of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, Len Goldson, Chairman of the Association's Green Section and Jim Wyllie, President of the Canadian Golf Superintendents Association wish to announce that as of April 18th of this year, the CGSA will be assuming the responsibility of conducting the National Turfgrass Conference in Canada as well as the other Conferences held by the RCGA in the past, mainly the Prairie and Atlantic Provinces Conferences.

Some 26 years ago, the Royal Canadian Golf Association instituted the National Conference at Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph as a means of upgrading the greenskeeper to the important position he holds today as Course Superintendent as well as making for better playing conditions at its Member Clubs.

Since then, much has been accomplished to the point where it has attracted Superintendents and Greens Chairmen from across the country, as well as people from private enterprise and government involved in improving their knowledge of turf culture.

The best speakers in North America as well as Canada have made up the program. Also, in latter years an Exposition area provided the opportunity for those attending to observe and inspect current materials and equipment used in course maintenance.

The Canadian Golf Superintendents Association, formed ten years ago, has worked in close cooperation with the RCGA during that time to make the National Conference the success it has been, as did the various Provincial Superintendents Association.

McGee's win moves him up in money list

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jerry McGee's victory in last weekend's Pensacola Open projected him into eighth place among the money winners on the pro golf tour.

McGee's $25,000 first prize lifted his season's earnings to $65,545 and pushed him over the $300,000 mark for his eight-year career, figures released Monday by the PGA Tournament Players' Division show.

The three earnings leaders—Johnny Miller, Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf—did not play at Pensacola and their positions remained unchanged. Miller has won $149,476, Nicklaus $149,242 and Weiskopf $112,488.

Flyers to offer unique contracts to Parent-Clarke

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers are planning to offer unique lifetime contracts to two of their National League stars, goalie Bernie Parent and centre Bobby Clarke.

Owner Ed Snider said Monday no contract terms have been completed but that "it would be a lifetime payout of a contract over a certain number of years."

"It would be a precedent as far as our club is concerned," Snider said. "Most of our players would be eligible for a similar contract at a certain point."

The Flyers, behind Parent's brilliant goaltending and Clarke's leadership, won the Stanley Cup last year and have advanced to the semi-finals of Cup play this season.

Snider termed as pure speculation a published report the deal will provide the 30-year-old Parent with $40,000 a year for the rest of his life if he plays at least six more years.

Snider said he had "no idea of the value" of the contract, that no figures had been agreed upon and that the deal won't be discussed "again until after the playoffs."

Lahache suspended

Defenceman Floyd Lahache will sit out tonight's game with a one game suspension following his ejection Monday night for supposedly spearing a player in front of the Laval net.

Following Floyd's ejection from the game in the second period, Robert Desormeaux, used sparingly in the playoffs, got his chance to prove his abilities. He assisted on two goals, including Peter Marsh's winning marker, as well as giving a few good fists to Philippe Bellemare during a third period exchange of punches.

Brendan Lowe will be the fifth defenceman in tonight's match. He has played only once in the elimination series to date.

Sherbrooke coach Ghislain Delage's hope at the beginning of the playoffs for a simple 12 victories is almost realized and if he has anything to do about it, it will come true on Friday in Game 4. After Monday's game, he predicted the series would conclude after four matches but Laval has pulled off upsets before meeting Sherbrooke in the playoffs. It will be a miracle, though, if Laval coach Jacques St. Jean can rally his Nationals to four straight wins. They did it before, but not when they were down by two or three games.

Game time is 8 p.m. tonight and if all goes well, it will be the final home tilt of the current season at the Sports Palace. A packed arena is expected for the final home send-off to the Beavers, who should be in Kitchener, Ont. in two weeks time vying for the Memorial Cup.

Brome-Missisquoi Farmers Association holds meeting

COWANSVILLE — The Brome-Missisquoi Branch of the Quebec Farmers' Association held an interesting and instructive meeting at the Heroes' Memorial School on April 15.

To clarify a point it was explained that the Quebec Farmers' Association is essentially the English sector of the Francophone Union des Producteurs Agricoles, the UPA which was formed mainly for guidance and help to non-French speaking farmers and agricultural producers. It operates in harmony with the parent union.

A lecture on the development of Barn Hay Drying was given together with illustrated slides, models, etc., by an expert in this phase of farming, Bernard Levac of the St. Hyacinthe research station. Mr. Levac's presentation was followed by an illustrated lecture by Dr. John Ogilvie of Macdonald College, whose subject was Animal Waste Disposal Techniques, and the numerous methods of utilizing to the best general and economical values for recycling and fertilization of farm lands.

Of paramount interest in this branch of farming was the immediate, and long-term effect on environment as it affects the rural areas adjacent to towns and cities. Dr. Ogilvie noted that with the growth of rural area development, manure disposal has now reached a stage where it must be properly handled, for the farm producer as well as his new neighbours in the rapid and expanding growth of new housing developments. Many of his observations were amusing as well as thought provoking.

To the many members of the QFA who attended the gathering, some of the newer methods of animal fertilizer management were real eye-openers. The ever increasing run-off of liquid fertilizer to streams and river courses was shown to be of a serious nature and of concern to the general environment. Practical advice on animal waste disposal was given and shown to be of good farm management when intelligently and faithfully followed, particularly on a long term program.

A question and answer period followed Dr. Ogilvie's lecture, and many members and friends present aired their questions and views on numerous farming items. Some of the lady members present served coffee and doughnuts, always a pleasant item on the program, to encourage conversation and a get-acquainted opportunity.

At the close of the meeting Fred Albers, a Director of the QFA thanked the two speakers and the ladies, for their parts in making a pleasant evening for all present.

Other branches of agriculture will be discussed at subsequent meetings, and it is hoped that members who missed this gathering will make an effort to attend in future together with friends, since the QFA is striving to help all phases of farming operations. Strength of numbers will help all concerned in the information and presentation of farm problems to the Quebec government.

Consumption of beef, pork and veal up; lamb is down

Per capita red meat consumption in 1974 rebounded to 164.3 pounds, but still fell short of the record high of 165.8 pounds set two years earlier. Beef consumption reached a record high, according to Statistics Canada.

For a number of years, beef consumption has shown steady gains. From a level of about 70 pounds per capita in the early '60s, beef disappearance totalled 94.7 pounds in 1974.

Pork consumption was 59.9 pounds per capita last year, up from 57.3 a year earlier. Veal consumption rose to 3.5 pounds in 1974, while mutton & lamb declined to 2.5 pounds from 3.7 in 1973.

Total output of red meat from livestock slaughtered in Canada in 1974 was 3.6 billion pounds, a new record high. Beef output amounted to 2.0 billion pounds, with pork at 1.3 billion.

FIRST QUARTER REVIEW
In that one of the main messages from the January Agricultural Outlook Conference was for fewer hogs & more cattle in 1975, first quarter marketings developed along this line. Some of the highlights of the quarter follow.

—Cattle slaughter (federally inspected) averaged 63,754 head per week in the first quarter, up 16.6 per cent from a year earlier. Western slaughter rose almost 20 per cent, with the East up 12 per cent. Lower average carcass weights tempered the gains in total output of beef.

—Prices for A1, 2 steers slid during the quarter, with the Toronto - Omaha spread narrowing considerably. Cow prices recorded some strength during the quarter, but averaged well below a year ago. Cow marketings during January - March were about 20 per cent above a year earlier.

—Both imports and exports of beef and veal were lower compared to a year ago. Imports of 34 million pounds were down 24 per cent, while a 72 per cent cut dropped exports to 3.4 million pounds.

—Hog gradings for the first quarter were 13 per cent below a year earlier. Western output dropped 27 per cent, with the East off only 2 per cent.

—As the quarter progressed, hog prices (Index 100) came under pressure, closing in the $50 range at Toronto compared to the high $50 range back in January.

were down three million from last year.

POULTRY
First quarter poultry meat output in Canada totalled 179.6 million pounds, down 12 per cent from a year ago. Broiler chicken production fell 11 per cent, roaster chickens dropped 20 per cent and light turkeys dropped 17 per cent.

Looking at broiler chicken, a recent report from Agriculture Canada indicates the cut in marketings has not brought about any significant decline in stocks. The report indicated the competition from beef - large supplies at quite attractive prices, has hampered the demand for chicken especially since retail prices have been maintained at very firm prices.

WORLD MEAT
It is estimated by the American Meat Institute that world meat output will increase by about 3 per cent this year, compared to a year ago. A 7 per cent increase in beef and veal is in prospect with substantial increase in the US, Oceania, and the USSR. Canadian production will also be higher. On the other hand a 3 per cent decline in pork output is forecast, due to sharply lower North American production.

Gardens don't have to be in the yard

By Allan A. Swenson

Indoors and outside, on porches and patios, you can garden productively in baskets, tubs, buckets, bowls and even bathtubs. Others have and are.

Vegetables, especially new and specifically bred varieties, perform well under intense cultivation. Window boxes are making a big comeback, and for good reason. You can create mini vegetable gardens even on a simple windowsill.

For vegetables, you'll need a container large enough to hold the plants when fully grown. With Tiny Tim tomato, for example, the containers can be as simple as several conventional clay pots.

For windows, anything from plastic trays to cut-off quart milk cartons can be used. Five-inch pots, for example, will hold radishes, bunching onions, and many types of herbs from parsley to chives. For larger plants, a 5-to-10 gallon plastic trash can be used.

Baskets and trash containers can be used as is or modified to suit your needs. Even the old plastic laundry basket, no longer needed now that you have a clothes dryer, can be lined and made productive.

If you use solid containers, allow for drainage. Put an inch of coarse gravel, stones, broken clay pots in the bottom of each container. No plants can survive waterlogged roots for long. So whether you place containers in racks, hang them up, place them off the floor or on it, remember drainage.

To pick a spot to grow vegetables in containers, apply the simple rule of good sun each day for six hours and your plants will thrive.

If sun just isn't in your sky that much, there are ways to compensate. Artificial light works well. Plant lights have been scientifically designed to substitute for the sun's beneficial rays.

After light comes soil. It can be soil you have brought home bucket by bucket, but it can also be synthetic soil.

If you can, use soil and organic matter. We like two parts soil, one part composted humus, one part peat and a cup of 5-10-5 per bushel total mix.

For a copy of my new book, send name address and check or money order for $1.50 (plus 25 cents postage) to "Inflation Fighter's Victory Garden", c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Dept. A, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Allow three weeks for delivery.

For container gardens, starting seed indoors to grow your own transplants is fun, but it does take time and effort. Local sources usually have prestarted vegetable plants.

If you are going to plant outdoors on balconies, patios, porches, plan to harden seedlings of lettuce, cabbage and other leafy varieties gradually before you set them out. This means withhold water and lower the temperature for a week or better yet, two. Don't move tomatoes, peppers and their tender relatives out until the sun is warm and there is no frosty night in sight.

Plants in containers get hungry faster than ground-bound plants. Apply one level teaspoon of 5-10-5, the basic balanced fertilizer, per square foot of soil. Soil-surface scratching is all that is required. Watch your plants; if they are not responding, if there is yellowing of leaves, you may need more frequent feeding. Don't overwater. Don't water so late in evenings that plants stay wet at night. That encourages plant-disease spores to develop.

Cut, snip, pull, or pick vegetables before they are fully mature. They will be more tender, tasty, and juicy. We always keep a seed catalog or two on hand, along with seed packets. Both are handy guides for measuring the size and time for picking the fruits of your mini-basket, -box, or -plot labors.

Beef seminar

A beef seminar will be held Friday, April 25 at the Le Baron Motel, Sherbrooke with simultaneous translation service available.

The seminar is sponsored by the Quebec Beef Cattle Association and the Quebec Animal Production Council. Registration is at 8:30 a.m. and topics to be covered are as follows: Situation of the Beef Industry; The Utilization of pastures in the production of Beef (Mr. Gaspard Lalonde); The utilization of hay, silage & cereals in the production of Beef (Mr. Ghislain Pelletier); The utilization of by-products in the production of Beef (Mr. Milton Hooper); Grass-land potential in Quebec (Mr. Maurice Hardy); Conservation of forages (Mr. Michel Fortier); The Economic picture of the Beef Production in the Frame-work of Crop Production (Mr. Jacques Lebeau).

What happened to the homesteader?

When settlers in Canada first cleared land for cultivation early in the seventeenth century, farming was a backbreaking business for man and beast. Farmers grew enough for their own families, and any extra they were lucky enough to have they traded with neighbors.

By 1900, 80 percent of the Canadian population was living on farms. The Canadian Pacific Railway had opened up the prairies, which with the help of harvesting equipment were becoming a breadbasket for Canada and for industrialized Europe. Grain flowed out at the rate of 10 million bushels a year. Butter and cheese were exported in the new refrigerated ships. Thanks to technology, agriculture became an export industry catering to specific known markets around the world and it is still the most important primary industry in Canada. Today this country is an important part of the global granary, shipping wheat as far as Russia and China in huge quantities.

Between 1940 and 1967 the average farm size in Canada jumped from 237 to 404 acres. Since 1946 farm productivity has risen by approximately 70%. Everything points in one direction: increased efficiency. Farmers are producing more food for Canadians and a large amount for export that more than balances our imports of the foods and fiber we cannot produce. At the same time improved practices and processing technology are keeping the nutritional qualities of food high and the cost relatively low. Only in the United States does an average person spend less of his income on food than a Canadian; an American spends about 18 percent of his income on food, a Canadian spends about 19 percent, and most Europeans about 24 percent.

Abundant high quality food is the goal of modern agriculture. Large-scale production, plus constantly improving techniques to produce the crops, makes this possible. But the development of large areas of crops also provides an ideal environment for pests, such as insects, weeds and rodents which compete with man for the crop.

Man is in competition with these pests for food, and sometimes the pests win. In the early '20s grasshoppers invaded fields around Medicine Hat and Lethbridge, Alberta; the only plant to survive was the tough thistle, and the hoppers even stripped bark from fence posts. Canada loses 40 percent of the annual potato crop, 31 percent of the oat crop and 18 percent of the wheat crop to disease, insects and weeds. Whole stands of trees can be completely defoliated by insects.

Under these conditions, pest control is absolutely necessary as a means of protecting the huge areas of crops and the large number of high quality animals upon which the Canadian farmer, the Canadian consumer, and the Canadian economy depend.

Bermuda makes the most of its land

HAMILTON, Bermuda — To modify a time-worn American saying, "Scratch a Bermudian and you're likely to find a farmer."

That statement was truer many years ago when agriculture was Bermuda's livelihood, but is still valid when applied to today's Bermudians — a people close to the land on their tiny island home in the middle of the North Atlantic.

You couldn't call them agrarians by any means since the economy of their 21-square-mile island is based almost entirely now on international tourism. Only 33 persons, out of 53,000, call themselves full-time farmers.

But a surprising number of those remaining 52,967 Bermudian residents maintain home garden plots — some of them running into several acres and requiring small-scale mechanization.

A golfer visiting Bermuda once remarked that everywhere he looked and thought there ought to be a golf course, there was a golf course. The same is equally true of Bermudian farms.

You find them abutting churchyards, carved out of rocky hillsides, scooped out of hollows totally inaccessible to farm machinery, even in front yards. Many are bound by pink-fringed oleander and hibiscus hedges.

According to a recent Bermuda Department of Agriculture survey, there are about 900 separate fields in Bermuda. Nearly 800 of these are less than an acre in area and of those, 520 are postage stamp sized plots of less than half an acre.

With a year-round growing season, Bermudian vegetable farmers can get two or three crops out of their fields, making the 701 arable acres of land on the island seem larger than they are.

What does all this mean to a Canadian visiting Bermuda?

Bermuda supplies about a third of its vegetable and citrus fruit needs. The larger growers also supply fresh produce to local hotels and restaurants, meaning that almost any time of the year (July and August are sparse farming months) local produce, undiminished in flavor by long overseas voyages, is available for visitors' tables. Potatoes, carrots, broccoli, squash, lettuce, onions, cabbages, beans, grapefruit, lemons, limes, oranges, bananas, loquats, paw paws — all are part of the richness of Bermudian agriculture.

BERMUDA FARM — In a world so accustomed to mechanized farms, this scene from a Bermudian field is almost overwhelming in its simple serenity. Bermudians farm every available acre of land on their 21-square-mile island making many plots irregularly-shaped and inaccessible to farm machinery — the result, much tilling still is done with a single-bladed plow and a sturdy, dependable draught horse. The harvesting, sometimes as many as three times a year, also is done by hand.

Bill of Rights just another Act of Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — Most people agree that taverns are ideal breeding grounds for arguments. So perhaps it isn't surprising that the greatest debate over the law-making role of the Supreme Court of Canada should have started in a colorful drinking spot called the Old Stope in Yellowknife, N.W.T.

That favorite haunt of serious drinkers has since burned down, but it still was in its heyday one night in the mid-1960s when Joe Drybones, a Dog Rib Indian, took aboard too much beer. He was promptly fined $10 for being drunk off a reserve, contrary to the Indian Act.

Mr. Drybones probably was happy to let matter go at that. But Mr. Justice William Morrow of the territorial Supreme Court saw the case as a perfect example of how the Canadian Bill of Rights should be applied.

To begin with, there are no reserves in the Northwest Territories where an Indian may satisfy his thirst.

More important, from a legal point of view, the liquor sections of the Indian Act left Indians open to harsher jail sentences and fines than the territorial liquor laws that applied to other northerners.

CONFLICT SEEN
 Such discrimination appeared to be in conflict with the Canadian Bill of Rights.

For almost 10 years Canadian courts ignored the Bill of Rights. But in 1969 in a landmark decision the Supreme Court applied the law and ruled that liquor sections of the Indian Act should be erased because they denied Indians equality before the law.

To many conservative legal minds the Supreme Court had seized a new weapon to strike down laws passed by Parliament.

In the past the high court judged the validity of laws only on whether Parliament or the provincial governments had exceeded their authority under the British North America Act, this country's constitution. Now, argued the conservatives, an additional test was to be added—whether laws infringed on the rights and freedoms enumerated in the Bill of Rights.

The Bill of Rights plainly stated that every law of Canada, passed before or after the Bill of Rights, must conform to it unless Parliament stated this was not to be the case.

FOLLOW U.S.
 One side argued that the Canadian Supreme Court now should follow the example of the United States Supreme Court and strike down laws that infringed on civil liberties.

The other side argued that the American court was guided by freedoms guaranteed under the U.S. constitution. The Canadian Bill of Rights, on the other hand, was just another act of Parliament.

In the 1970s the two points of view were expressed by the then head of the Canadian Bar Association, Arthur Pattillo, and Toronto law professor Sidney Peck.

Said Mr. Peck: "It now is open to the court to hold that an act which Parliament is clearly entitled to pass . . . is invalid if it infringes on a human right or fundamental freedom guaranteed by the Bill of Rights."

Replied Mr. Pattillo: "When I read of persons suggesting that the role this court should play in constitutional cases should be similar to the role which the Supreme Court of the United States plays, I become greatly concerned."

"Surely this is the role to be performed only by the legislatures and Parliament."

DEBATE INTENSE
 Nowhere, it seems, has the debate been more intense than in the conference rooms of the Supreme Court of Canada itself.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin went so far in one appeal as to put the Bill of Rights almost on the same footing as the British North America Act, a statement that did not find favor with seven of the nine judges of the time.

The chief justice indeed has been among the few dissenting voices in all of the constitutional cases in which the Bill of Rights has been argued.

Judge Laskin would disallow any evidence gathered by police that infringes the rights of citizens. But the court majority has held to the Canadian common law, which says evidence, no matter how gained, is admissible in court at the discretion of the trial judge.

Judge Laskin, in another celebrated case, would allow Indian women who marry non-Indians to retain their Indian status as do Indian men. The court majority decided otherwise.

PARLIAMENT SUPERIOR
 In short, it would appear that most of the present court judges are content to bow to the superiority of Parliament.

If the Indian Act dis-crimines against Indians, says the court majority, then it may do so because of BNA Act provisions that allow Parliament to do so.

And if a federal cabinet decides to enforce only certain portions of a law passed by Parliament, as it did in Criminal Code amendments dealing with drinking drivers, then it is up to Parliament, not the courts, to remedy the situation.

In passing laws compelling drivers to take breath tests, Parliament also approved a provision that drivers be given samples of their breath to contest the findings of police testers.

Because no way has been found to carry out this provision, it has yet to be proclaimed by the federal government.

"It is beyond the power of courts to review the manner in which the executive exercises its discretion," said Mr. Justice Wilfred Judson in one majority-court decision.

Here's why we say 2+2+2 Multi-Cord is the best bias-belt made: 2 body plies of Du Pont 66 Nylon ensure twice the 'Run-Soft, Safe Warning Time' possible only with Nylon (See Nevada Test results posted in our stores); 2 body plies of non flat-spotting Polyester for smooth-riding comfort; 2 belts of Kevlar (Fibre B) to hold tread firm from squirm and achieve almost double the mileage of many other tires.

Kevlar—the amazing new Aramid cord developed by Du Pont expressly for tires—provides longer mileage and a softer-than-steel ride. Won't kink like steel, or fail like glass under abnormal compression. Five times stronger than steel, its relative lightness means less unsprung weight per wheel, resulting in fewer front-end repairs. The culmination of years of research!

Multi-Cord 2+2. Drop Polyester from our 2+2+2 tire, use giant Nylon cords instead and this simplified construction retains most performance features of its big brother 2+2+2—at considerably lower cost. 33,000-Mile Treadwear-Rated!

"I object to the exclusivist character of the state of Israel. That they (Jewish immigrants) can come from the Ukraine and live there any time they choose. But I, one who was born there, I can't go at all."

"A secular democratic Palestinian state means that I am again a minority living in a country that is not mine."

— A. Reginald Eaves, safety commissioner of Atlanta, the city with the highest handgun homicide rate in the nation, telling a House subcommittee on crime that guns purchased for protection kill far more people than guns in the hands of criminals.

"Too much (film nudity) is like painting a canvas with just one shade of red, so that it becomes merely a piece of wall that has been framed. If nudity is to be used, it should be unexpected and brief. Anything else loses impact, and all the

— Actress Raquel Welch

"I don't know just what there was that had that much importance. Is the kind of information that was available worth $350 million?"
— Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho), chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence asking whether it was worth the CIA spending millions of dollars to salvage the remains of a sunken Soviet submarine in order to inspect eight-year-old intelligence codes.

"Virility is a euphemism for sadism."

Wary Hollywood finally buys Filmex

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — After four shaky years, Filmex, Hollywood's very own film festival, has arrived. This year, the promoters won't lose very much money, in fact they may even break even.

That may not sound too much like an arrival but it is. For some mysterious reason, film festivals have always done well — every place but here, the historic capital of the film industry. Down through the years, there have been several previous attempts at a Hollywood film festival. None of them have worked.

Four years ago, Filmex started. There was about that first one something of a shambles. On opening night, they screened Peter Bogdanovich's "Last Picture Show," and afterwards, there was a reception that was something like the mob scene in a DeMille picture. Thousands tried to jam into a room that could hold a few hundred.

This year, by contrast, everything worked as smoothly as a well-oiled machine. The opening night attraction was the new Barbra Streisand film, "Funny Lady." And afterwards, there was a gala black tie event and everybody attended in comfort and serenity.

The first year, most of those who attended were the bearded and beaded young film buffs.

This year, the old Hollywood guard was present, paying tribute to the entire industry via the festival. "We now have the support of the film industry totally," says Gary Essert, the director of Filmex. "And we also have the support of other industries, as well. One of our programs was sponsored by Arco, another by Eastman Kodak." Essert says it has been a long, hard fight to get industry cooperation for the event. That first year, only one studio (Warner Bros.) cooperated. Gradually, through the next three years, the others fell in line. This year, the last studio (Universal) came through, and now every one of Hollywood's major studios are cooperating.

"The European festivals are mostly for film people. They are really only showcases of films, for the purpose of making sales to exhibitors. But ours is for the public. We are designed to screen films the public would otherwise not have a chance to see."

There was a natural suspicion among Hollywood studios and celebrities toward the upstart event. Nobody knew the men involved and the entrenched biggies worried that they might get taken by the unknown newcomers. Besides, what was in it for them?

They've learned since that what was in it was prestige. Filmex has come to represent the best, or at least the most interesting, in cinema.

They have learned, particularly, that Filmex differs from the average film festival, particularly those circus-like European festivals. "The European festivals," Essert says, "are mostly for film people. They are really only showcases of films, for the purpose of making sales to exhibitors. But ours is for the public. We are designed to screen films the public would otherwise not have a chance to see."

This year there were 88 programs of films, spread over a 14-day period. They expected the attendance would surpass last year, when more than 60,000 — twice as many as attended any other festival in the world — bought tickets.

Filmex program was varied. There were free programs in the morning and paid programs in the afternoon and evening. There were new films, old films, American films, foreign films, TV films, commercials, collegiate films. There were lectures and symposiums.

And one of the continuing features was the film marathon. Essert says that feature grew out of the famous U.C.L.A. film "orgies," when students would show films in an all-night binge. The first Filmex had a 12-hour marathon of Hitchcock films. The feature caught on and has grown and this year there was a 50-hour (for $5) marathon of science-fiction films.

One important point about Filmex is that it is not designed to show the latest films of the great European directors. There has been some criticism that Filmex does not always show the latest Fellini and Godard films, but Essert says that's not the point of the festival. "Those films," he says, "are generally available commercially. Our purpose is to exhibit films that are not generally available. We stay away from the ones that the public has a shot at seeing in theaters."

The festival has a nine-person Film Selection Committee which labors all year long. They go to Europe individually in the summer and fall, seeing every film they can then, through November, December and January, they screen their imports here before making their final selections.

This year, for the first time, there were films from India, Iran and Greece. They have been trying, for three years, to get the Indian films. Essert says the bureaucracy in India is unbelievable and it took three years to wriggle through the red tape.

"Now we're working on getting a Cuban film," he says. "We've screened some and they're good but we just can't get them so far."

Many countries are still unrepresented. That's because their films are produced for home consumption and would not travel well. Essert says Red China's films are either dance programs or variations on the same political theme — the victory of the people over the enemies of the state. Not the stuff for a film festival.

Filmex awards no prizes — "we don't want it to become a circus, like Cannes," Essert says. But the picture that is chosen for opening night is virtually a prize winner, and now the studios are vying for that honor. This year, for the first time, studios submitted entries for that position, and Columbia is advertising "Funny Lady" as "the film that opened Filmex."

It's another sign that Filmex has arrived.
