WATCHING THE WOLFE — Workmen are putting the finishing touches on the $1,350,000 Wolfe Bridge, expected to be finished in late spring. Construction has been going on since last August to replace the old bridge that was ruled unsafe.

Sherbrooke police lease ambulance to serve area

By DAVID SHERMAN
 (Record Reporter)

SHERBROOKE — Police have leased a stationwagon type ambulance to handle emergencies, following the shutdown yesterday by the city's only ambulance company. A special meeting of city council directed police Monday night to provide the service after receiving a telegram from Ambulance Metropolitan Sherbrooke informing the city it would close at 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Pierre Gregoire, the company's owner, said yesterday that creditors had seized all the ambulances. He added that the company has lost over $67,000 in the last year and has not made any payments on outstanding loans for the last 11 months.

Sherbrooke Police said yesterday afternoon they had not received any calls for aid as yet. Requests from elderly people were being forwarded to Salon Funeraire Belisle. Arthur Belisle said yesterday he was still waiting for news about his permit from Quebec City. Ambulance Arthur Belisle Inc. operated at the same address last year, but is not listed in the 1977 phone book.

Mr. Gregoire said he has not heard as yet from the city which last night sent a telegram to Quebec asking the social affairs ministry to intervene.

"I haven't heard from them at all," said Mr. Gregoire. "Maybe we'll come to some understanding. I would like to know if they'll sit down and talk about it. Maybe we'll come to an agreement. We can't go any further."

A spokesman for the social affairs department said they had received several calls concerning the problem. He said there were several possibilities open but it was too early to decide which alternative is best. The Conseil Regional de la Sante et des Services Sociaux (CRSSS) has been contacted to provide information on the population and ambulance use in the Sherbrooke areas. He said the social affairs ministry is also waiting to hear from Mr. Gregoire to determine the nature of the problem.

Some of the options being considered are to find a new company to take over, having the city subsidize the Ambulance Metropolitan Sherbrooke or for the government to subsidize directly. A decision should be made by tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Gregoire said he and a group of drivers at Ambulance Gerard Monfette took over the ambulance company to separate it from Monfette's funeral service. All his workers have been temporarily laid off.

"My 14 boys and I, it's all we have. Some of them have been working 10 years. We knew our business and we were equipped pretty good."

Mr. Gregoire said it was impossible to make ends meet even at the new rates. He said overhead, salaries and maintenance costs $73 each time an ambulance goes on a call.

QUEBEC (CP) — Two previous governments did it and stirred up a hornets' nest, and today is the Parti Quebecois government's turn to introduce language legislation.

But unlike the governments of the Union Nationale in 1969 and the Liberals in 1974, the Parti Quebecois appears confident as it tables its Charter of the French Language in Quebec.

The charter, Bill One, will essentially embody proposals set down in the government's white paper on language policy tabled last April 1, cabinet spokesmen have said.

Premier Rene Levesque has expressed doubts about some provisions of the white paper, and has said it may be particularly difficult to enforce a requirement that English-speaking Canadians moving to Quebec from other provinces send their children to French schools.

In recent weeks, however, Levesque has told reporters that the best approach may be to stick closely to the white paper in drafting legislation, then change certain clauses if convincing arguments are presented at public committee hearings.

In Montreal today, Le Devoir quoted cabinet sources as saying the bill will likely abandon a proposal that corporations be required to plead before the courts in French only.

On the whole, however, the cabinet is convinced that it will not have to fight the heavy rearguard action which forced previous governments to fend off attacks from both French-speaking nationalists and English-speaking Quebecers within their own ranks.

In 1969, two Union Nationale members bolted the party to sit as independents to protest what they considered an inadequate effort by their leaders to affirm the rights of French.

And in 1974, several English-speaking Liberals spoke against their government's language bill, and two were suspended briefly from the party caucus for voting against it.

The reaction of francophone nationalist groups to the government's detailed policy paper has been tame. Criticism has been limited to one or two details.

SATISFY MEMBERS
 Cabinet members have apparently succeeded in appealing radical elements in the party who demanded such things as measures to eliminate English schooling.

If reaction to the language white paper is any indication of what is in store for the actual legislation, it seems the main critics will be the Liberal opposition, the English-speaking community and business.

Liberals say the policy is authoritarian and coercive, arguing that, once made law, it will violate the rights of individuals.

Spokesmen for the English community, while acknowledging the primacy of French in Quebec, say the policy pays lip service to minority rights while proposing the forced disappearance of their culture in the province.

Business spokesmen have said that head offices located in Quebec will not be able to meet requirements for greater use of French and that restrictions on admission to English-language schools will discourage transfers of staff from outside the province.

Policy proposals outlined in the white paper included:
 —Official texts of laws and court judgments will be in French, but English translations will be available.

—Except for temporary residents, all newcomers to Quebec after the law is passed will have to enroll their children in French schools.

—Once the law is passed, English schools will be open only to children whose mother or father attended English elementary school in Quebec.

—Under pain of fines, loss of government permits, grants and contracts, and other sanctions, companies of 50 or more employees will have to obtain a certificate by 1983 attesting to the seriousness and effectiveness of their efforts to promote the use of French and to hire French-speaking management staff.

—Collective agreements and arbitration rulings must be in French.

—All official documents of the government and related agencies, municipalities and school boards—even those catering mainly to an English-speaking clientele—must be in French except in matters of public safety or when addressed to outsiders.

Public hearings will be held on the bill within 30 days of its tabling, Levesque said last week.

Shaw will back bill on first reading

QUEBEC (CP) — William Shaw (UN—Pointe Claire) told the Quebec national assembly Tuesday he intends to vote for the Parti Quebecois government's Charter for French Language on first reading.

"I will vote for the first reading of the bill on the principle for the need for such legislation, and the need to replace Bill 22," he said.

The legislation, intended to replace the current Official Language Act known popularly as Bill 22, is expected to be introduced in the assembly today and to receive approval on first reading.

Bills introduced by the government usually receive the unanimous consent of the house but must pass two more readings and receive royal assent before they become law.

Shaw qualified his approval by saying he would "fight vigorously to defend the rights of my community."

"If the final legislation does not respect our reality, we will fight it in the courts, and we will mobilize our community to resist it in our municipalities, in our school boards and as individuals."

Business blackmailing Quebec says Payette

QUEBEC (CP) — Lise Payette, Quebec minister of consumer affairs and financial institutions, says the business world is engaging in a "shameful blackmail" of the provincial government.

Mrs. Payette said in an interview Tuesday that "for six months we have all made efforts to explain to the business world what we are trying to do for Quebec."

"I went myself to meet with the Conseil du Patronat du Quebec, and I must admit that it was a difficult evening for me because they are people I usually do not try to see."

The conseil, an influential employers group including both French- and English-speaking representatives, has criticized the Parti Quebecois government on matters ranging from reform of the labor code to language policy.

The government has the responsibility to continue a dialogue with all elements of society, Mrs. Payette said, but "they will have to understand that they must stop playing personal interests against the interest of Quebec."

and I guarantee you that we will succeed."

He said he recognized the need of French Canadians "to establish your pre-eminence as a people in this province."

But at the same time he appealed for respect for the English-speaking minority's need "to be considered as a vital, articulate collectivity that will not be considered second-class citizens."

Shaw, the only English-speaking member elected by the Union Nationale last November, is a founder of the Preparatory Committee for an 11th Province, which advocates secession by English-speaking areas of Quebec if the province becomes independent.

Bid made to cap oil gusher

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — A seven-man crew went aboard Bravo rig in the North Sea's Ekofisk field today and resumed preparations for an attempt to cap a runaway gusher spewing out 36,000 gallons of oil an hour.

"Weather conditions are fine," said a spokesman. "It is clear and there is a slight southern breeze which has reduced the concentration of gas in the platform area and reduced the danger of explosion."

Capping efforts were thwarted once by a gale and twice by too little wind, which caused a buildup of suffocating gases and chased the workers from the Phillips Petroleum Co.'s Bravo rig on Tuesday.

A Norwegian government official told reporters: "The capping operation has a real chance of success and we generally take a conservative position on these things."

Capping experts Boots Hansen and Richard Hatteberg of Houston, Tex., and four Phillips men worked for six hours on the rig Tuesday.

Wearing fire-resistant overalls and using brass tools that do not create sparks, the crew installed and tightened bolts on the blowout preventer. They also put in place two hydraulic rams which are to snap together and pinch the pipe closed during the capping operation.

WIND DIED DOWN

About 1 p.m., Hansen radioed the wind had died and was no longer carrying off the gases escaping with the oil.

A spark might cause an explosion and fire that would probably collapse the rig and set off the flow from 14 other wells that discharge through Bravo.

Nearly five million gallons of oil are estimated to have gushed from the 10,000-foot-deep well since it blew out Friday night during maintenance operations. So far, there was no threat to any of the countries around the North Sea.

Norwegian officials said the spill covered an area of 150 square miles and its nearest point to land was about 170 miles from the west coast of Norway.

Backs down slightly on UIC bill

OTTAWA (CP) — At a time of record high unemployment, the government said Tuesday it will back down a bit on a contentious bill to tighten the qualifying standards for unemployment insurance benefits.

Manpower Minister Bud Cullen said the government still proposes to increase the qualifying period from the current eight weeks of work out of the previous 52.

But, for the first time, the qualifying period would vary with regional unemployment rates, ranging from a minimum 10-week qualifying period where the jobless rate exceeds nine per cent to a maximum 14 weeks where the unemployment rate is six per cent or less.

Opposition critics said the proposal will do nothing for those who cannot find even eight weeks of work in a year.

Cullen said at a meeting of the Commons manpower committee that his new proposals amounted to "a good compromise". The bill, as originally drafted, would have increased the qualifying period across Canada to 12 weeks out of 52.

Cullen also said benefits will be paid for a longer period in regions with the most extreme unemployment problems.

HIGHEST LEVEL
 Statistics Canada reported earlier this month that the unemployment rate for March, adjusted for seasonal factors, was 8.1 per cent of the work force—the highest recorded level since the government started compiling monthly statistics in 1953.

MPs from the most economically-depressed areas, including Liberals, have harshly criticized the proposed bill to tighten up the unemployment insurance program when the jobless rate is so high.

Some Liberals were mollified by the changes announced Tuesday.

Maurice Dionne, from the New Brunswick riding of Northumberland-Miramichi and chairman of a group of 13 Liberal MPs who opposed the original bill, said he was pleased with the proposed changes.

But Liberal George Baker from the Newfoundland riding of Gander-Twillingate said that even with the changes, more unemployed persons in his province will be cut off unemployment insurance.

Based on current regional unemployment rates, Cullen said the minimum 10-week qualifying period for benefits would apply in all the Atlantic provinces and all of Quebec, with the exception of the Montreal region. It also would apply in southern British Columbia, which has a listed unemployment rate of 9.1 per cent.

A requirement of 13 or 14 weeks would apply in Ontario and the Prairie provinces. It would be 11 or 12 weeks in other areas.

Cullen said his proposed amendments will reduce savings under the bill to $135 million a year from $275 million a year but "the government considers that the proposals are justified in terms of providing the necessary income protection to individuals in high unemployment regions."

WILL PAY LONGER

A complicated amendment changing the proposed new benefit structure will allow the Unemployment Insurance Commission to pay a maximum 32 weeks of additional benefits in areas where the regional unemployment rate exceeds 11.5 per cent.

The bill, as originally proposed, allowed 20 weeks of additional payments in areas of high regional unemployment.

All together, total benefits for a person with a long attachment to the labor force would be paid for 50 weeks. Cullen said under the new proposal, a person who had worked only 12 weeks in an area of extreme unemployment could receive up to 44 weeks in total benefits.

Morin in France

PARIS (Reuter) — Claude Morin, Quebec minister of intergovernmental affairs, began a three-day official visit to France today, the first by a member of province's Parti Quebecois government.

Officials said Morin, whose main task is to prepare a visit later this year by Quebec Premier Rene Levesque, was meeting Foreign Trade Minister Andre Rossi today.

He will see President Valery Giscard d'Estaing on Thursday and Premier Raymond Barre, Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud and Paris Mayor Jacques Chirac on Friday.

Morin's talks will concentrate on seeking closer economic ties between Quebec and France.

The Quebec minister spelled out his aims in an interview with the influential Le Monde newspaper.

"We hope that relations between France and Quebec will be given a greater economic content," he said.

Parizeau doubts study will be made public

TORONTO (CP) — Jacques Parizeau, Quebec finance minister, said recently a new federal-provincial study will show what Quebec has gained or lost from Confederation, but he questioned whether it would be made public.

The study of the national accounts, broken down by province, has just been completed. Parizeau said it was massive.

In a speech to the closing banquet of a conference on Ontario's economic outlook for 1977, he said the study will help "to clarify the issue of what exactly Quebec has gained recently but lost over the period in its dealings with Ottawa, what other provinces have a surplus or a deficit."

Ottawa and the separatist Parti Quebecois recently have produced conflicting statistics about fiscal benefits Quebec has received under Confederation.

Parizeau said the politicians have the figures in the new study but questioned whether "the public will eventually have them or will they remain confidential and experimental."

He described it as an interesting document, adding that all provinces but one—Quebec—have agreed to have the main table published.

"But will the set of tables be published that is labelled 'Federal government, including Canada Pension Plan, revenues-expenditures, and surplus or deficit, by province, 1961-1974, preliminary-confidential-experimental?'"

Last week, Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough entered the fray with a report in the provincial budget that showed Quebec had benefited more than it had lost in Confederation. In his speech, Parizeau said Ontario and Quebec will be in close economic contact "no matter what the political structures are."

Last week, Ontario Premier William Davis said it would be foolhardy for Quebec to believe it could have independence and economic union with Canada at the same time.

Parizeau told his audience it would be improper for him to come to Toronto to discuss such matters. "Who am I, indeed, to suggest while I am in Ontario, that this province should act or react in a way that has been condemned by its own premier?"

At a news conference earlier, Parizeau said Quebec would cooperate with Canada as much as possible on national problems, such as inflation and unemployment.

"As long as we're in Canada, we're going to try to make a good job of it."

Executives at British Leyland Motors Canada Ltd. must answer their own phones.

"If I find anyone screening anybody's incoming calls around here, they've had it," said John Mackie, who recently succeeded Donald Pocock as president.

"When customers want to say something about our products, it's important that they know we are accessible."

The decree is part of a determined philosophy by the Burlington, Ont.-based firm to enhance Leyland's reputation in Canada.

"Let's be factual about it," Mackie said in a recent interview. "The general impression among many Canadians about British Leyland is unfavorable."

"There is a feeling that Britain, after being No. 1 in the industry after the Second World War, had the opportunity to stay on top and blew it."

That was in the early 1960s

Says President of British Leyland Motors Canada Ltd.

"It's important they know we're accessible" and then the British automobiles gave way to the Germans and Japanese, forcing Leyland to go back to the drawing board.

By 1968, however, the Canadian subsidiary was moving forward, said British-born Mackie, now a Canadian citizen.

First, it insisted that the parent company design cars to meet Canadian requirements in terms of cold-weather starting, heating, rust-resistance and general performance. Next, it set up a new Canadian distribution system and, finally, consolidated its dealer organization.

"The result is that over the last 10 years, the degree of serviceability for all our products across the country has improved beyond measure," said Mackie. "We're out of what I call the naked light bulb era when dealer franchises were being jockeyed about from one gas station to another."

We've stopped the rot. We're still here and trading profitably—with pre-tax earnings of more than $1 million last year."

British Leyland is the largest single manufacturer of automobiles in the United Kingdom. After absorbing many famous but failing auto firms, Leyland too became a victim of Britain's stop-and-go economy, labor strife and low productivity.

It was subsequently taken over by the Labor government.

GROSS $60 MILLION The company's non-manufacturing Canadian subsidiary markets an average of 11,000 to 12,000 units annually, grossing about $60 million in 1976. Its models include the Mini, Marina, MG, Triumph, MGB and Jaguar.

Later this year, the company will enter its Triumph TR-7, a wedge-shaped sports car with a price tag of about $6,200, in road rally competition.

But there will be more than sporting hopes riding in the cockpit. In effect, the TR-7 will symbolize Leyland's determination to rebuild the credibility of the British automobile industry.

"But still the only way we can achieve complete credibility is by word of mouth and by demonstrating that the cars we're offering represent good value for money," Mackie said. "It would be easy for me to buy a full-page ad and say we make the best cars in the world. But who the hell is going to believe it?"

The company, however, has no illusions about selling a lot of cars.

"The nature of our business as a specialist supplier is to make vehicles available to certain market sectors where we can do our thing best."

He expects higher sales this year for the subcompact Mini and Marina and hopes to sell 600 Jaguars. Last year, the company sold a record number of Jaguars—just under 500, a 16-per-cent increase from 1975.

Profits have suffered and cement stocks are depressed

TORONTO (CP) — Nearly everywhere he turns, Denis White is reminded of what he does for a living.

White, vice-president of Lake Ontario Cement Ltd., sees the company's product embedded in tall skyscrapers down to and including the sidewalks below, but he also sees problems besetting the cement and concrete industry.

"Concrete, I think, is becoming the most universal building material in the world," he said in an interview. "They use it for almost everything you can think of."

"As long as the economy continues to grow we grow with it. We rely on capital investment and housing."

But capital investment in new commercial and industrial facilities has been dropping off during the last two years and housing construction has slowed in recent months.

As a result, the cement industry has been performing badly, White said. Profits have suffered accordingly and cement stocks have become depressed.

While the cement industry's revenues account for only about 0.5 per cent of all goods and services produced in Canada, it manufactures a product essential to the construction industry. And the latter employs about 700,000 people and accounts for about 15 per cent of Canada's gross national product.

Statistics Canada says total shipments of Portland cement—the most common in this country—and associated masonry both inside Canada and to the United States were 10.8 million tons last year.

That compared with 10.7 million tons in 1975 and was down from 11.6 million tons in 1974, a record year.

The Canadian Portland Cement Association said recently that cement consumption by itself fell 1.5 per cent in 1976 and was likely to increase by only two per cent this year.

Lake Ontario Cement's single plant accounts for about five per cent of the industry in Canada.

The biggest is Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd., with 11 plants across the country producing about 40 per cent of Canada's output.

John Redfern, a vice-president of that company, said sharp increases in energy costs have hit the industry hard.

At present, the cost of energy represents about 20 per cent of the price of a bag of cement, Redfern said. Increased concern for the environment has also forced the industry to spend millions of dollars to find ways of reducing dust pollution.

Other spokesmen said the industry started to slide badly during the 1975 recession.

The huge Olympics project had helped it in eastern Canada, but not any longer. In the west, Alberta is probably the most buoyant province.

The industry there has been shipping more into the U.S., where less efficient plants were having trouble meeting demand.

"UPDATING" AUTOMOBILES — Updating is now easy to describe in a few words. Basically, it is a practice whereby an existing car which is eligible for registration as a particular model year, and which remains unsold at the end of that model year, is redesignated as belonging to the following model year. Thus, a car manufactured in January of 1972 would normally be registered as a 1972 vehicle, since the 1972 model year traditionally begins in September, 1971 and ends in August, 1972. If this particular vehicle is unsold in September of 1972, when the new model year begins, and if updating is permitted, the car may be registered and sold as a 1973 model.

Damages have been awarded by the Quebec Small Claims Courts to several car owners who claimed to have suffered losses as a result of their unwittingly having bought updated cars.

There's one sure way to check the age of a car, at least every car manufactured since January 1, 1971. Since that date, the maker has to attach to every car what is termed a compliance plate, which certifies compliance with all applicable Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards at the time of manufacture. The plate also states the month and year of final assembly of all domestic and foreign models. It is found on the edge of the driver's door or door post.

Look for the compliance plate. It will tell you the real age of the car. If the date there doesn't square with what you're being told about the car's model year, ask the salesman for an explanation - and tell him you'd like something off the price. If a new car has been around for a long time after manufacture, it is possible there may be some physical deterioration. And anyway, if the model year doesn't correspond with the date on the compliance plate, you may run into an extra bit of depreciation when you go to sell it again. This will depend, among other things, on the actual condition of the vehicle at the time of re-sale, and the business practices of the dealer to whom you are selling it.

If you have any questions as to whether a compliance plate is being properly used, write to us and we'll bring this to the attention of the Ministry of Transport. The Motor Vehicle Safety Act, which it administers, has stiff fines for tampering with the plate. Write to us too if you find someone advertising as a current model what should be a previous year's model. We'll investigate any allegations of misleading advertising and, if there is sufficient evidence, court action can be taken.

Instead, market characterized by investor buying

Moving away from speculator buying

WINNIPEG (CP) — Increases in the price of gold since last fall have been accompanied by moves away from pure speculation in gold futures, says the chairman of the gold committee of the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

"The market has really been characterized by investor and industrial rather than speculator buying," says Robert P. Purves.

Purves offers a number of reasons for this shift, both economic and political.

On the economic side, money from oil-producing countries in the Middle East is being converted from "black gold" into the real thing.

The first profits from petroleum price increases after 1973 often went to develop domestic industry or into ventures in Europe and North America, Purves says. Now investors are returning to the classic formula of putting their surplus wealth into gold.

PERFORMANCE DULL Meanwhile, the New York

Stock Exchange has had a lacklustre performance in recent months. There are fears in some financial circles that President Carter's emphasis on employment may lead to renewed problems with inflation.

"Recovery from the recession we've had hasn't been as dynamic as it might have been," says Purves.

On the political side, investments in gold have been linked to uncertainties in southern Africa and fears that upheavals might affect about half of the world's supplies of gold.

The trend away from pure speculation really several years ago, after the United States lifted its long-standing prohibition on holdings of gold by private citizens and the novelty of gold futures wore off.

More recently, gold has been sold by Soviet-bloc countries and China, and the International Monetary Fund began having monthly sales last year to finance interest-free loans to developing countries.

Purves says these major sales have not depressed prices because of the continued strong demand for gold.

HAVE BEEN CAREFUL.

The Chinese and the Soviets have been careful in their gold dealings, he adds. As countries with large gold reserves, they have a vested interest in keeping prices high and help do this by "feeding gold out very quietly and effectively."

Instead of dumping 200 tons of gold on the market all at once, the Soviet Union might buy gold from the IMF "very visibly" and then sell more than it bought through discreet channels.

Prices on the Winnipeg futures market have been hovering around $150 an ounce in U.S. funds, compared with about $100 last September.

Purves says this is good news for gold-producing communities such as Red Lake, Ont. Some Canadian mines reported losses last year because prices were below the break-even price of $120 to $130 an ounce. Higher prices in the export

Cautious investment recommended in mining and metals issues

Cautious investment is recommended in mining and metals issues until copper prices show signs of firming. This is the advice of the Toronto-based investment firm of Moss, Lawson and Co. Ltd.

"A strong stock market performance historically has required a favorable copper market outlook. At this juncture, there is no indication that this will be the case—this year, or next," Moss Lawson says in a recent newsletter.

However, investors should not be hasty in shedding metals holdings. A careful review of the specific industry's outlook should be taken before considering their sale.

Some metals remain solid investments despite the general malaise in the marketplace.

Aluminum, lead, molybdenum and uranium "exhibit strong fundamentals," the newsletter says.

And while copper and nickel continue to pose serious problems, zinc markets appear ready to reverse their recent weaknesses.

OFFERS SELECTION On the advice of their own mining and metals markets market also should help improve Canada's balance of payments situation.

Canada must update its mineral policy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada is being required to update its mineral policy to meet social, political and economic aspirations, both domestic and foreign, says Geoffrey Hjordleifson of the federal ministry of energy, mines and resources.

He told the annual meeting recently of the Geological Association of Canada that minerals are no longer simple economic tools to be considered as just another factor of production.

"They have taken on increasing political and social connotations, both within and outside the world's industrialized communities. We have entered the era of world resource diplomacy," Hjordleifson said.

Canada is faced with developing a national mineral strategy responsive to the national system and regional aspirations and to negotiating Canada's position in the scheme of international affairs.

A national mineral strategy would have to grapple with some resolution of the federal-provincial jurisdictional dilemma, Canadian reliance on the U.S. economy, and Canada's traditional support of a private enterprise market economy. SEES LIMITS Opportunities for high growth rates will be available only to very specific minerals, such as uranium and coal, he said.

Contrasting views on world mineral reserves were expressed at a Resources for the Future symposium held in conjunction with the convention.

Leo Miller, vice-president of Texasgulf Ltd., told delegates that the world has virtually limitless supplies of mineral reserves, and as demand grows, the geological and mineral industries will react to meet this demand.

However, Brian Skinner, a professor of geology at Yale University, said that by the end of this century there will be serious shortages of mercury, silver and tin.

Paul Bailly, president of Occidental Minerals Corp., said that exploration effectiveness in terms of dollars spent for the value of minerals discovered has declined sharply in the last 20 years—by 50 per cent in Canada.

The Dow had fallen nearly 28 points in the past three trading days. Monday's 12.47-point drop had left the average at a 15-month closing low.

Analysts said the depressed prices of many stocks attracted some cautious buying at the outset Tuesday, but the advance stirred up little support in the face of inflation fears and continuing uncertainty over last week's energy proposals from President Carter.

Standard and Poor's index of 400 industrials eked out a 0.3 gain to 107.57, but the 500-stock composite index slipped 0.4 to 97.11.

The biggest trade of the day was a $14.85-million block of 550,000 American Home Products shares at 27. The stock stood at 27, down 1/4.

Continental Oil, also active, gave up 7/8 to 35 1/2. The company reported first-quarter earnings of 95 cents a share, down from $1.40 in the like period a year ago. Getty Oil, by contrast, rose 2 1/2 to 181 1/2. On Monday the company posted a 42-per-cent earnings increase for the quarter.

U.S. Steel fell 1/4 at 45 1/2; Bethlehem Steel steady at 34 1/2, and Arco up 1/2 to 28. Natomas added 1/4 to 38 1/2, and Merck picked up 3/4 to 51 1/2.

Butterfield contract ratified

ROCK ISLAND (IH) — Members of Border Lodge Tax deadline set at May 2

QUEBEC (CP) — Tax-payers in Quebec will have until May 2 to file their provincial tax returns, the Quebec revenue department announced Tuesday.

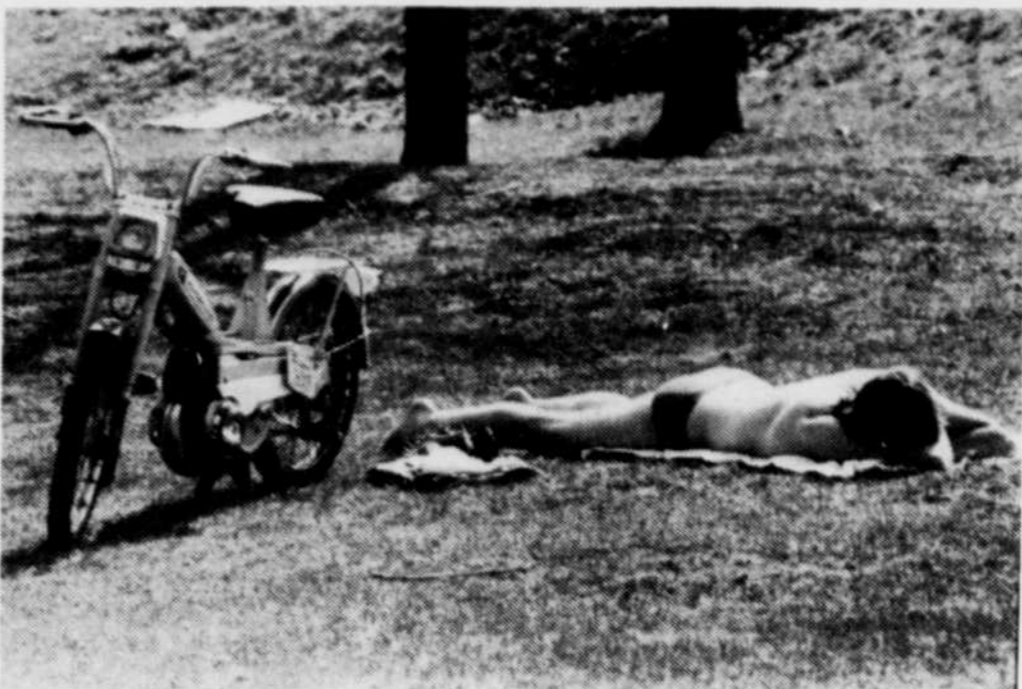

No. 1896 International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers last night ratified a new three year contract with the Butterfield Division of Litton Business Systems of Canada.

The new agreement includes wage increases amounting to $1.09 an hour, with a 10 per cent bonus twice a year. The contract is retroactive to Feb. 22, 1977.

Also in the three year pact were improvements in disability benefits, insurance and the retirement plan. Seniority for four week vacation had been reduced from 20 years to 15 years.

Two hundred and two members cast their vote.

Board moves to support firm buying former Coaticook school

LENOXVILLE (GB) — Lennoxville District School Board last night appointed an officer to vote for Les Immeubles de L'Estrie opposing a Coaticook zoning bylaw forbidding the establishment of a multi-family dwelling in one of the town's wards.

The firm, planning on converting the old Coaticook School into a multi-family dwelling, was opposed by citizens in surrounding areas and Coaticook council subsequently passed a bylaw putting a damper on the project.

Lennoxville District School Board, titular holders of the school on April 12th when the bylaw was passed, were requested to appoint an officer to vote the way Les Immeubles de L'Estrie would instruct them. The school had been sold in late October but legal formalities were slow in being effected.

member, said that the school occupied a tract of land with its own zoning. A vote against the bylaw would permit the firm to go ahead with its projected multi-family dwelling project.

Upon legal consultation the Lennoxville District School Board resolved to appoint the required delegate to vote on the bylaw.

Board members deferred a final decision to grant sick leave with pay days to its support staff until final budget figures for next year could be established.

Support staff at Lennoxville District School Board and the Eastern Townships Regional School

Board are non-unionized but both boards have been following norms established for unionized members of other boards.

Granting paid sick leaves for five days during a budgeted year would cost the Lennoxville District School Board an additional 6,000 inadmissible dollars. Implementing the plan at the Regional Board level could cost over $25,000.

Administrators and board members at the local and especially at the regional level are uneasy about withholding support staff fringe benefits since a move on the part of support staff to unionize would require boards to grant the benefits.

LES school committee notes

OPEN HOUSE AND QFHS

The Open House held at LES on March 30 proved to be a busy, bustling affair. The school was gaily decorated and the staff and students obviously worked hard on all their projects and displays.

There was a large turnout of family and friends and everyone seemed to enjoy himself greatly. Our committee members who staffed the QFHS booth and Mrs. Barbara Kerr, our area representative, were pleased to receive thirty-nine applications for membership.

This is a good start and we hope those of you who are interested in Home and School will contact Susan Meggs at 569-2698 about joining this worthwhile organization now. It's never too late!

LIBRARY — MEDIA CENTER

Last year the LES school committee decided to launch a fund-raising campaign to renovate our present library facilities. The many reasons for the undertaking of this particular project are as follows: Our present library is divided into two separate areas. A small primary library on the first floor and the upper elementary library on the second floor. Department of education norms do not permit a librarian so we must depend upon staff and volunteer assistance to man the two areas.

The whole concept of "library" has changed over the past ten years. It is becoming more and more evident that other forms of media should be made available to the children. Material such as film strips, tapes, 35mm slides as well as posters, pictures, etc., which are used by classroom teachers should be accessible to the children on the same basis as books.

The Media-Center should become the heart of the Elementary school; a place where children can utilize every research technique available.

To accomplish this end we must renovate to get more space and centralize to capitalize on supervisory personnel. Unfortunately such types of projects are not high priority items at the level of the department of Education and they must come about as a result of local initiative.

To date we have raised $1300. We have had two contractors estimate our construction costs and both have estimated between $1600 and $1700. To further soundproof this area the cost of a carpet, following government norms, is estimated to be $1900. This leaves us a balance of $2,300 to be raised. If this goal is achieved by June of this year, it would enable us to see this worthwhile renovation completed by the Fall.

WALKATHON

Our school committee is holding a Walkathon for the LES students on Friday, April 29 from one to two-thirty P.M. in the residential area of Lennoxville (if the weather is inclement the date will be changed to Monday, May 2) the proceeds will go to the Library Renovation Fund. The Walkathon is our second fund-raising event of this year; our first was the Toy and Book Sale held in December, and the final event will be the Spring Garden Sale on May 27.

Please encourage your children to participate in the Walkathon; they will be well supervised, and do try to sponsor as many students as your pocketbook will allow. The children will request pledges based on a flat rate for the walk, rather than pledges based on an amount per mile. We hope this will facilitate the collection and counting of the money. Sponsors are welcome to donate their money prior to the Walkathon.

SPRING GARDEN SALE

On Friday, May 27, between seven and nine p.m. the school committee will be holding a garden sale in the Small Gym at LES (the entrance is on Academy St., opposite the Fina Gas Station). This is our final fundraiser for this year. We will be selling an assortment of houseplants, perennials and vegetable plants (specifically: cherry tomatoes, regular tomatoes, cauliflower and broccoli). Please bring cartons, or other suitable containers, in which to transport your purchases.

If anyone would like to donate houseplants or perennials would he or she call Mrs. J. Cowans at 563-5193, or Mrs. S. McConnachie at 567-0914, as soon as possible so that we have an idea of how many plants to expect. We are counting on the cooperation and support of our whole community to realize our goal of $2,300 and give our children a better Library. We need your help!

Waterloo issues bonds to cover budget deficit

WATERLOO (GB) — The Municipality of Waterloo, holding a large number of special meetings, authorized by resolution a number of important loans throughout the month of April.

In order to cover the costs of repairs to Lewis, Court, North, Orchard, Allen and West Streets the Municipal Council has authorized a loan of $20,407, to cover extra expenditures incurred by a slowdown in the emission of bonds to finance the project.

A loan of $67,677, has been authorized by the Municipality of Waterloo to cover the additional costs incurred by the 1973 construction of an arena in the locality.

A $4,730, loan to cover expropriation procedures of a property on Foster street, a $5,258, loan to cover water and sewage works on Carnation Street, and a $228,912, loan to cover budgetary deficits for the 1976 fiscal year were also unanimously adopted by Council during the month of April.

Total loans amounting to $306,599, will be guaranteed by the emission of bonds by the Municipality of Waterloo in the customary manner.

Since the annulment of the Quebec Anti-Inflation Board and due to demands from various municipal union members to increase wages curtailed by the former Board the Town of Waterloo unanimously resolved to "pay municipal employees according to their last collective agreement starting March 17, 1977 to December 1977." The resolution goes on to say that "it is understood that salary readjustments will cover only this period, that is after the Anti-Inflation Board ceased to exist."

In other municipal affairs, a letter received by the Municipality from Foster and Lewis St. residents complaining of the state of two vacant lots on which two houses burned was acted upon by Council who sent letters to former proprietors indicating that the sites should be cleaned to prevent ashes and debris from cluttering neighbouring properties.

A March 28th letter from the Quebec Environment Protection Service indicating the presence of high bacterial content in the Town's water supply was immediately remedied by the Town Council with the installation of a new chlorination unit proposed by the Ministry of the Environment.

Asbestos show surplus

ASBESTOS (GB) — Financial statements for the 1976 fiscal year show that the Municipality of Asbestos showed a surplus across the board.

Revenues from the administration of municipal activities showed revenues of $2,430,804., and spending of $2,985,994, for a revenue exceeding spending by $33,897. Surplus for the 1975 fiscal year indicated a surplus of $119,824, for a combined surplus of $464,721, in 1975 and 1976.

Municipal revenues from the sale of electrical power totalled $757,501, while spending amounted to $737,941, for a net revenue of $19,560, during the 1976 fiscal year. Total surplus revenues for the 1975 and 1976 fiscal years from the sale of electrical power total $28,256.

Other municipal transactions included the purchasing of a new patrol car for the Municipality of Asbestos at a cost of $6,588. The City had looked into the possibility of renting a car, and had also received quotes from two other sources.

Confirmation of a grant from the Commissary of Youth, Recreation and Sports, having been received, Councillors voted unanimously to ask for the first half of the grant to be spent during the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Estimated expenses for recreation in 1976-77 will total $52,414, for phase 1 of a recreational development project and an estimated $38,500, more will be spent for phase 2.

According to regulation 685 the municipality voted to close the following streets: St-Jean-Baptiste, Chasse, Du Roi, Jeffrey, Coulston and Frontenac Avenue due to the expansion of mining concerns in Asbestos. The municipal ordinance will become law on approval by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and the Quebec Municipal Commission.

Remanded on custody

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — An arraignment in the case of Ghislaine Pouliot-Mercier, 41, of Cowansville, was adjourned to May 24 following an examination by a local physician who determined she was unable to answer two accusations of attempted murder on her invalid son Jacques, 17, on April 23 and 24.

Police said she attempted to feed her son an overdose of tranquilizers on Saturday and then attempted to strangle him with a nylon stocking on Sunday.

Mrs. Mercier was ordered remanded on custody in Sherbrooke for a period not exceeding 30 days to allow preparations of a psychiatric profile by Dr. Pierre Gagne.

Danville Council

DANVILLE (DS) — The town council voted to adopt the financial report for the year ending December 31, at the April 20 meeting.

Also on the agenda was the procedure for adoption of By-Law 349 for the borrowing for public works. All persons interested in a public vote on the by law should make representation at city hall on May 4 and 5 between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Audobon Lecture Society

Mrs. Fran Howe, one of the most active members of the Green Mountain Audobon Society of Vermont, as well as an active member of the National Audobon Society is giving a lecture under the auspices of the Missisquoi Historical Society in the Anglican Church Hall at Stanbridge East on Thursday, April 28.

The lecture starts at 7:30 p.m. and will be followed by a social evening during which refreshments will be served by the ladies. A small admission fee will be charged.

Mrs. Howe is a widely known personality on the W.C.A.X. T.V. program Across The Fence on channel 3, Burlington, Vt. Anyone interested in Nature Study and especially about our native birds should not miss attending this lecture. Mrs. Howe is an authority on birds, having made a study of them for years. This coming event has created a great deal of interest and a good turnout is expected.

Amnesty international meet

STANSTEAD — The first meeting of Amnesty International, CanUSA Section, will be held Friday, April 29 at 8 p.m. at the home of Roy and Joan Pierce, Dufferin Road, Stanstead.

Amnesty International is an organization of more than 97,000 people in 78 countries who are attempting to aid prisoners of conscience all over the world, and to abolish torture. Its tools are financing investigative research through dues to bring repression and mistreatment to light, and writing letters each month bringing the massed concern of thousands to bear on captors and torturers. At this meeting, guest speaker Anatole Serge, a new Canadian of Russian background, will speak on "The Solidarity of Man". A survivor of a concentration camp, Mr. Serge, a great supporter of Amnesty International, will be coming from Montreal to speak.

Also on the agenda will be firming-up the structure of the organization, acting on information gathered by the provisional executive group, Jean-Luc Blanchet, Sandy Fitterer, and Jean Riley. Plans for our first letter-writing blitz will be formulated.

Magog divers inspect lake bottom

MAGOG (CC) — This past week, two divers of the newly formed "Anacando Scuba Diving Club" ventured the ice over Lake Memphremagog, from the Magog end of the lake.

They reported the waters as extremely clear and, relatively high, a good sign at this time of year. Rolond Lussier, a club director and new member Pauline Gagnon also made note of fish sightings.

Interested spectators asking why the divers entered the lake so early, were told it was an effort to discover the legendary serpent Anacando, which Indians believed lived in the Memphremagog. The belief has been perpetuated over the years and, even now some persons insist a serpent exists, but those who know the Memphremagog treat the myth mildly, stating that if so, it must be friendly.

The new diving club, already in action, is taking on members and invites all serious divers. Inquiries should be directed to Eric Whitehead at 843-8444, 843-4408, 843-3792 or 843-2694.

WA-WMS meet

MELBOURNE — The W.A. and W.M.S. groups of L'Église des Cantons de l'Est met in the church hall on Wednesday, April 20 at 7:00 p.m.

Mrs. Lucien Perron, president of the W.A. group opened the meeting with the singing of hymn 185. Mrs. Lucille Vidal read the minutes of the previous meeting and Mrs. Ray Gifford gave the financial report and stated that the recent rummage sale brought in a very satisfactory sum of money.

A short discussion then followed, concerning the usual Mother's Day Tea held every year at this time. It was decided that this year on May 7th, commencing at 3:00 p.m., a food sale would take place, also fancy work articles would be displayed, but the tea would be sold at the counter and there would be light cafeteria refreshments available.

The meeting was then brought to a close with the Auxiliary Prayer.

W.M.S.

The W.M.S. meeting opened at 7:30 p.m. with the president, Mrs. Real Larochele welcoming the guests, the W.M.S. group of St. Andrew's Church, Upper Melbourne, who joined the group for an Easter Thank Offering service, which was published in the "Glad Tidings" and written by Christina Newstead, the theme being "The Strife is O'er".

The call to worship and opening prayer was given by Mrs. Larochele. The reader was Mrs. Gerald Fortier. Hymns sung were numbers 410, 194, 212 and 216, with Mrs. Dorothy Oakley at the organ.

The offering was received by Mrs. Lucien Perron and dedicated by Mrs. Larochele.

A very interesting article followed, taken from the Easter issue of "Ideals" where all members and guests participated in the reading. The article entitled "The Apostles of Jesus Christ" which presented the portraits of Christ and the apostles by the noted Spanish Artist, Jose Fuentes de Salamaca was read. The character of each of the men who followed Christ was subtly captured in these portraits of ink drawings and proved very instructive and of great interest. With each portrait was a written Bible reading and a character description of each of the Apostles and also included was a reading of Isaiah 53, on the afflictions of Jesus Christ; The Crucifixion, in Mark 15 22-26; and The Resurrection, Matthew 28: 1-8. Mrs. Dorothy Oakley presented a poem from the War Cry, entitled "The Centurian at the Crucifixion".

Mrs. Larochele called on Mrs. Fraser Converse, delegate at Synodical in Brockville, Ont. on April 13 and 14 to present the highlights of the meeting, which she did with great ability and captured the interest of all with her posters, and in closing, read a poem.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed by all.

Israel's new PM

Premier Yitzhak Rabin has done the honorable thing in finding a legal loophole that allows him immediately to retreat into obscurity. The affair of his wife was unfortunate, both for this honest soldier-turned-politician, and for the ruling Israeli Labor Party. The currency restrictions are not very popular in Israel and the bulk of Israelis do not think their transgression to be much of a crime. But a premier's wife is in the position of Caesar's wife: She has to be above suspicion, and whatever the Israeli law on caretaker cabinets, Mr. Rabin could not have carried on in his post, bereft as he was of both political and moral authority.

Nor was this a time for Israel to remain rudderless, even for the short time that is to elapse until the May 17 election. There is the prospect of the Geneva conference — an international conundrum — that has to be prepared with infinite care. The situation in Lebanon remains dangerous, there being little doubt that the Palestinians will persist in their attempts to reoccupy the old Fatahland along the Israeli border, from which so many murderous attacks were launched against Israeli towns and villages. In Beirut tensions have again been rising, and the Israelis cannot shrug off the reconciliation between the Palestinians and King Hussein of Jordan, however tenuous the new cease-fire between the two arab antagonists may appear. Further south, Soviet machinations in the Horn of Africa — with a new Cuban contingent reported on its way to Eritrea — threaten to close Israel's access to the Indian Ocean and thus imperil her oil supplies.

The new premier, Shimon Peres, is a man of vision, who is expected to be particularly adept at taking bold diplomatic initiatives, rather than reacting to given situations as was the case of Premier Rabin. On the other hand, Mr. Peres was deeply involved in the Suez War of 1956 and had a direct experience of the American pressure that forced Israel out of Sinai in return for guarantees, which, ten years later, proved inoperative. Mr. Peres remembers this well and he will be a difficult man to persuade that written guarantees are a suitable substitute for Israel's own defences.

Whether his more hawkish posture will restore the electoral fortunes of the Labor Party, which has been suffering from a surfeit of financial scandals, remains to be seen. The right-wing Likud movement has been exploiting both Mr. Rabin's political weakness and Labor's personal misfortunes; added to this, Yigael Yadin's new party, the Democratic Movement for Change, continues to gather strength.

Indeed, it may well fall to Mr. Yadin's new party to decide whether Labor, which has been in power uninterruptedly since the founding of the state, will remain in power after the May election, or whether for the first time the balance will swing to the right, and Israel will have a rightist administration. With a plethora of parties contesting the election, held on the basis of proportional representation, it is unlikely that any one party will emerge with an overall majority. The negotiations to arrive at a coalition formula promise to be even more protracted than usual, and Mr. Peres thus has the prospect of a longish spell in office, whatever the electoral fortunes of his party.

Polyvalent schools the best Quebec has had

By NICHOLAS FONDA
Mankind's concern with education is longstanding. Aristotle once said that an educated man is as different from an uneducated man as a living human is from a corpse. The Greek philosopher was speaking of education in its widest sense. What distinguishes man from the rest of the animal kingdom is his ability to transmit his knowledge to his off-spring. Parents have invariably striven to give their off-spring a better education than that which they themselves received. This concern has long been institutionalized in the form of schools.

Governments throughout the world take a great interest in the education of their youth and the arrival of a new government is invariably followed by some change in the educational sector. The most recent example of this is the recently published White Paper which is the Parti Quebecois' first major piece of legislation. But while the importance of education is universally recognized the methods and aims of any educational system are constantly being questioned. It seems that somebody is always unhappy with what their kids are being taught. It is not the need of a school but the role of a school which is being questioned. While we look to schools to provide our children with that little something extra to make their lives more comfortable and rewarding than our own, we also look to schools to instill into our children those virtues and attributes which we value most. Schools are thus entrusted with a dual responsibility which are at times contradictory: they are asked to be both progressive and traditional.

The school's dual role is translated into a daily routine by the subjects offered in the curriculum. The study of History, Religion, English and French are essentially daily doses of tradition and heritage. The language we speak, the religious beliefs we embrace and the aims and action of our forefathers all serve to give the individual student a sense of belonging to his community. Traditionalists tend to bemoan the fact that students graduating from our schools have a poor command of their language (be it English or French), that history is not taught with any depth and that the Bible is seldom, if ever, read in Religion class. Traditionalists can put forward a strong case that it is a deterioration in our religious beliefs, our sense of history and language that is causing many of our social ills.

On the other hand subjects like mathematics, physics and chemistry are being taught with a depth which neither our forefathers nor ourselves ever experienced. Those who measure progress in terms of technological advances would gladly do away with the teaching of history and religion so that students might receive a more solid grounding in the field of science. We need only to think of how much more enjoyable it is to watch a 26 inch colour TV than to listen to an old radio to see what science can do. People who believe in a more progressive educational system can argue very cogently that our world has become a better place to live since Latin was dropped in favor of electricity on the high school curriculum.

The dilemma is not made any simpler by the election of a new government. Every new government changes the Department of Education, very often undoing the work of the previous regime. Bill 22, passed by the liberal government two years ago was necessitated by a marked erosion of the French culture in Quebec. Laurin's educational policy is going to emphasize not only the French language but also the teaching of Quebec history. (So far religion has not been mentioned by the PQ government, but then Catholicism has become almost as unacceptable a word as English.) Yet Bill 22 (and the recent White Paper) to a large extent negated the now forgotten Bill 63 passed less than a decade ago. Bill

"We look to schools to instill into our children those virtues and attributes which we value most."

63 permitted parents to send their children to the school of their choice which was an effective way for francophone children to learn English and thereby step more easily into the big money of the business world, which at the time was synonymous with progress.

In the opinion of the last two governments Bill 63 seriously undermined the culture and heritage of the province. It is not for me to say that Bill 22 and the White Paper (when it finally becomes law) will undermine the Quebecois in the business world, however I would not be surprised to see another Bill 63 introduced in the national Assembly in ten years time.

All of which raises the question of what role should our schools play? The ideal school would have to be traditionalist enough to please those with a strong sense of tradition and progressive enough to appease the progressivists. It would have to graduate students who could read Caesar in the original Latin, fully explain the consequences of the Durham report (Canadian History), and write a precis of a Jacques Ferron tale. This same student would have to be able to solve a polynomial equation (mathematics), analyse a saline solution (chemistry) and repair a household radio (electricity). The student would be well versed in the three Rs and equally well versed in areas like carpentry and motor mechanics that require a certain degree of manual dexterity. The school would instill into the student a sense of tradition and also equip him to enter a competitive world.

When Quebec embarked upon its regionalization program some ten years ago and built massive schools in Richmond and Lennoxville it was just such a school that was envisaged. Yet despite the fact that Richmond Regional and Alexander Galt High Schools (and numerous other polyvalents throughout the province) are equipped with carpeted classrooms and high quality workshops the students who are graduating from these schools are not of the caliber that we envisage as ideal. Universities complain that high school graduates are largely illiterate; business and industry have to retain graduates of the metier programs and we all worry about school vandalism. Why are the students lacking in discipline? Why can't they read and write? Why can't they step out of school and into the labour market?

The discipline problems in the Townships have so far been limited to relatively minor incidents: kids litter the cafeteria, smoke in the washrooms, skip the odd class, and occasionally destroy (or steal) some school property. Urban Montreal has not been quite as lucky. There have been incidents in which teachers were beaten up by students and at least one case where a gun was found in a student's possession. Hopefully we will never see cases of this sort here, but the situation is not rosy. One teacher I spoke to said that things will be much worse in five or six years. "I can see the entire student body just up and walking out leaving us with an empty building. It's difficult enough to teach without having your respect and responsibility constantly being called into question. How can we talk about quality education and then turn around every three years and walk out on strike?"

For the most part transgressions against school rules have been treated lightly. A rule is broken, a principal reprimands the student and the incident is forgotten. Perhaps punishment should be dealt out more severely, yet somehow that is not possible. We live in a society that has long become tolerant to law-breakers. A doctor commits a crime by performing an abortion and he is treated like a hero; policemen leave their desks and patrol cars and are appeased so that they will go back to work; a man is convicted of murder and eight years later is back on the streets. Would it really make sense to suspend an adolescent from school for smoking in the washrooms?

The problem of literacy is similarly one shared by society at large. Advertisers have long since given up the struggle with English spelling. When was the last time an ad didn't spell night n-i-t-e? Newspapers can be excused the odd typographical error but cannot be excused their indulgence in bad grammar. Lines like, "Wilson and Jones is both out for the season," should not be printed. A plural subject takes a plural verb. But who is Johnny going to believe, his English teacher or the coach of his favorite hockey team? It is possible however that the misspelling and bad grammar of the press has never really affected our students.

Television is not only as informative and entertaining as the printed word, it is also much easier to cope with. There is no such thing as "a word I don't know" on TV. It's all there in pictures, in living colour and if Daddy watches TV all night, I should too. It is sometimes difficult to explain to an English class why we should read To Kill a Mockingbird when it really would be so much easier to watch it on TV.

The metier programs being offered by our large polyvalents are not successful. While the metier student will get a good grounding in metal work or carpentry or whichever field he chooses, his chances of entering the labour force in his field of specialization are slim. All too often he will find himself being re-trained or having to make a go of it in an area he never dreams of entering. One employer explained that he'd rather invest six months training a youngster to do a job the way the company wants it done than to spend two years breaking a youngster of habits he learned elsewhere. On top of which it must be said that jobs these days are scarce.

While polyvalent schools face a good many problems and come up short they are still the best schools this province has ever had. It is true that their graduates cannot quote from Hamlet or conjugate Latin verbs but many more kids read and write today than did 20 years ago. The general level of literacy has gone up, not down. The schools strive, as they always have done to instill discipline, to maintain a sense of heritage and to encourage progress. I often suspect that the problem with our educational system lies elsewhere. All too often we build schools to reflect our dreams and find that they mirror our reality.

Two different worlds in the Townships

STANBRIDGE EAST, Que. (CP) — Two small communities in the flat, tranquil farmland southeast of Montreal are located only a few miles apart but in their reaction to Quebec's new language policy they live in different worlds.

Stanbridge East has been an English stronghold for generations while some of the 1,700 villagers in nearby Ange-Gardien still resent the fact that English settlers to the region in the mid-18th century snapped up the richest farmland.

The character of Stanbridge East was established when the first United Empire Loyalists paddled up the Hudson River into Lake Champlain and trekked overland to settle here in the Eastern Townships region.

As other English settlements gradually became French, the 900 people in Stanbridge East stood firm, even though one-third of the town's population now is French.

"I've been in the store business for 22 years and I don't talk a word of French," said Donald Blinn, general store owner and mayor of this community.

DISLIKES POLICY
The mayor said the town is unhappy with the Quebec government's recently released white paper on language policy.

Blinn speaks with pride about how French-speaking people in the town have been assimilated into the anglophone tradition. "All the French people here speak English," he said. "They don't want Quebec to separate." He complimented a francophone friend who was brought up in both languages: "You'd never even know he was French."

All the town's business is carried on in English, and Blinn will not change that. "They'll just have to take me to court," he said.

Courts in the area, business and industries all operate in English.

The mayor's views were echoed by Edwin Rychard, 65, who said: "They are trying to demolish the English language in the province of Quebec and I can't understand it."

The townspeople laugh about the time someone tried to change the name of Pike River, a town a few miles away, to St. Pierre de Varannes. Everyone still calls it Pike River.

QUESTIONS ATTITUDE

But Rev. John Carr, pastor of the Anglican church in Stanbridge East, who came to Quebec with his wife from the United States five years ago, questions the hard-line attitudes of his parishioners.

"The English people here are probably a bit spoiled," he said. "They've had it fairly easy all along. Things that have always been expected of the French now are going to be expected of the English."

"We understood when we came here that a fact of life in Quebec is that it is overwhelmingly French — 80 per cent."

He said he was shocked by the "hypocrisy" of Canadian bilingualism. "We'd assumed it was a bilingual country. When we found there was little or no French in the nation's capital, we thought maybe the French people have a point."

Less than 20 miles north of Stanbridge East, perhaps a half-hour drive, is the town of Ange-Gardien (Guardian Angel).

"There is just no English spoken here," said Gaetane Berard, the wife of a local farmer.

POLICY ACCEPTED

With few exceptions, residents approve of the Parti Quebecois language policy. Lingering resentment is sometimes voiced against the early English settlers who grabbed the rich lands to the south and west and left the less fertile flatlands here to the French.

"I think the English have always been privileged in Quebec — more so than the French in any other province," said Rev. Onesime Beauregard, the parish priest.

"It took a long, long time for the English to realize the needs of the francophones. When I was in college you couldn't buy a bilingual stamp."

Those who have doubts about the language policy are in a minority.

"If the government ever tried to make us send our kids to school in French, we'd turn around and go back to the U.S.," said Laurier Bedard, whose four children attend English school in nearby Cowansville.

The family returned to Quebec after spending 16 years in New England. It is one of only three families in Ange-Gardien with children being taught in English.

JEERED BY SCHOOLMATES

The Bedards are referred to as "les Americains." Sylvio Bedard said the other children in the town call him "tete carree," or square-head, a derogatory nickname for the English.

Winnie Premont is unilingually English, and as a result her entire family is called "les Anglais," even though her husband Lucien is a French-speaking Quebecer.

She cannot help her husband with family business and banking affairs because "this is a French town and everything is conducted in French."

But Mrs. Bedard said her family is more concerned with the future of their farm than with the debate over languages.

"You know, I don't hear people talking about language or politics much around here," she said.

"We have confidence in Premier Levesque, but as for the future, I can't say."

"I'm not necessarily for separation or against it. I'll wait and see. There's too much work to be done on a farm to worry about it."

What happened to the spirit of Expo 67?

MONTREAL (CP) — Ten years after Expo 67, what happened to the sense of Canadian unity apparently generated by the fair? Or was it ever there?

Those who were involved with Expo during its brilliant six-month run have occasion these days to wonder.

Many shared the feeling expressed at the time by an Ottawa Citizen editorial:

"Expo is more than an international exhibition—it is a death knell for Quebec separatism."

"People across Canada used to joke about Quebec ever achieving anything. With Expo, Quebec has come of age and separatism and other short-cuts will phase out."

Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien, who was Expo's director of operations, said recently he does not think the fair created a sense of national unity.

"We were kidding ourselves," said Beaubien, now president of Telemedia Communications Ltée., a major Quebec broadcasting chain.

Pierre de Bellefeuille, who was Expo's director of exhibits, said "only the people behind it saw Expo as a binding force for Canada." BICKERING IN OTTAWA

De Bellefeuille, a journalist who now sits as a Parti Quebecois member in the national assembly, said, "You have to remember that support for Expo from the other provinces was something less than enthusiastic."

"There was a lot of bickering in Ottawa and among the business community; among officialdom, there was a great deal of resistance."

The fair served more to promote the ideal of human brotherhood than the unity of Canada, he said. From 1964 on, English Canada never ceased to have doubts about Expo which it saw as "a plum for Quebec."

Supporters of Quebec independence decided to call a truce during Expo in the interest of the fair's theme of human friendship, said de Bellefeuille, whose job was to act as liaison between the Expo corporation and participants in the fair.

"It was beyond politics." One of those who has no doubts about Expo's effect is Robert Shaw, Expo's deputy commissioner-general.

GOOD FOR UNITY "In my opinion, Expo was good for Canadian unity," he said. The fair had a tremendous impact then and still has some effect.

The temporary halt in separatist terrorist bombings in Montreal that summer was presumably because of the fair's atmosphere, said Shaw.

Andrew Knieswasser, who was the fair's general manager, said in a telephone interview from Toronto that he had been thinking about Expo since Nov. 15, when the Parti Quebecois government was elected.

Knieswasser, president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada, said Expo was "one of the rare opportunities when we did a careful inventory of our history and talked about everything good about living in our world in 1967, and living in Canada."

"Unity, in our country, with our size, is something we have to work at every day."

OPENED EYES Rather than making Quebecers proud to be Canadian, Expo may have opened their eyes to an international scene which has been marked since the Second World War by the emergence of smaller countries as independent nations.

Daniel Latouche, a professor of political science at McGill University, said: "Expo contributed to giving young Quebecers the desire to have a country of their own."

"Expo showed people that Quebec was like a country, or quasi-country."

There was a feeling that meetings between Quebecers and other Canadians at Expo would lead to better relations, said Latouche, who worked at the youth pavilion. Instead, they found they had little in common.

Although the terrorist bombings in Montreal which began in 1963 were halted during the six-month Expo run, explosions began hitting the city again in the weeks following the fair's closing at the end of October.

Favorite targets before Expo were symbols of federal government presence, whereas after the fair they included symbols of economic power such as the Montreal Stock Exchange building, where 27 people were injured in a blast.

TREMBLAY SUSPICIOUS One Quebecer who looked at Expo with a suspicious eye was Jean-Noel Tremblay, cultural affairs minister in the Union Nationale government of the time.

He said the day before Expo opened that "the great event which could be an occasion for international brotherhood is in danger of being a pretext for creating artificial national unity."

The Canadian government was trying to profit from Expo "to sell us Confederation at any price."

Tremblay now is working on a provincial government contract, examining the situation of French-Canadian minorities outside Quebec and Quebec's relations with them.

A seed of future developments came when Rene Levesque quit the provincial Liberal party two weeks before Expo closed.

The St. Jean-Baptiste Society, still a prominent nationalist group, said in the fall of 1966 that Quebecers should boycott Canada's Centennial celebrations for reasons of "national pride."

The group described Confederation as "a major obstacle to the political, cultural and economic progress of Quebec."

LED NEW PARTY

One year after Expo closed, the Parti Quebecois was formed as a party with Levesque as its leader. Now he is premier.

The St. Jean-Baptiste Society, still a prominent nationalist group, said in the fall of 1966 that Quebecers should boycott Canada's Centennial celebrations for reasons of "national pride."

The group described Confederation as "a major obstacle to the political, cultural and economic progress of Quebec."

But the group said the boycott should not include Expo because it was "not the principal event of the Centennial celebrations but rather an event marking the 325th anniversary of the founding of Montreal."

Pierre Bourgault, leader of the Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale, said the month before Expo opened that no demonstration was planned to protest the Queen's visit to the Expo site.

The group, a forerunner of the Parti Quebecois, said it considered the fair site to be international territory.

PROUD OF FAIR The day after the fair opened, the Montreal chapter of the St. Jean-Baptiste Society expressed pride in the "magnificent and gigantic achievement."

However, the group objected to the playing of God Save the Queen at the opening ceremony. It said this showed "an old colonialist attitude."

After the fair had been open for two weeks, Bourgault said Expo gave Quebecers the impression that they were living at the same rhythm as the rest of North America while they are only a small, poor community which is "collectively dispossessed."

NEWSPAPERS LIKED IT

Editorial opinion among most Montreal newspapers was positive. La Presse devoted its entire front page on opening day to a color photo of Expo.

"For once reality makes the dream seem pale," the newspaper said in an editorial three days later.

"Expo 67 seems to promise a success beyond the most optimistic hopes."

In an editorial opening day, Montreal-Matin said: "Doubt has given way to confidence and it is such a new feeling that the air of Montreal has taken on a quality that we did not know."

Le Devoir publisher Claude Ryan said in his opening-day editorial that "it is a happy event; for Expo is, in a very real sense, a great Canadian achievement."

Newman blasts English Quebec business

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Newman, editor of Maclean's magazine, says the Canadian business establishment is strengthening separatism by withdrawing from Quebec.

Canada's business leaders have gone into "a kind of protracted sulk" over Premier Rene Levesque's separatist policies, Newman told the Canadian Club on Monday.

"They have withdrawn vital growth funds, cut Quebec right out of their capital investment plans, abandoned the province to its own dark devices. This, in my view, is an error of monumental proportions."

He said those who control much of Quebec's accumulated wealth have been moving out of the province for decades.

But since Levesque's election, "some of the province's mobile upper-middle class has started to make plans for moving out."

He said a recent, still-secret study by a group of concerned Montreal corporations showed that if the 10 large head offices still in Montreal were to move out, about 11,000 top jobs and an annual payroll of $400 million would go with them.

"By opting out of the struggle for the future of this country," Newman said, "English Canada's establishment has handed Rene Levesque his greatest strength—the acquiescence of those who should know better."

He said the only hope for a unified Canada is "the rallying of Canadians from all provinces into a non-partisan movement dedicated to the idea of preserving Confederation, even if in radically altered form."

The alterations would have to include at least a new constitution.

But English Canada's main battlefield must be "in the soul of its people and the minds of their leaders," he said.

"It was the poets, painters, writers and singers of Quebec who gave the people enough self-confidence to push Rene Levesque into office."

"No comparable federalist movement exists—yet this nation will perish without one."

He argued that English Canada has plenty to be proud of.

"In the past 110 years, we've civilized a sub-continent, taming one of the world's harshest geographies; attained for ourselves a high standard of comfort and contributed more than our share to the defence of freedom in two world wars."

He said it still is possible to reverse the separatist trend.

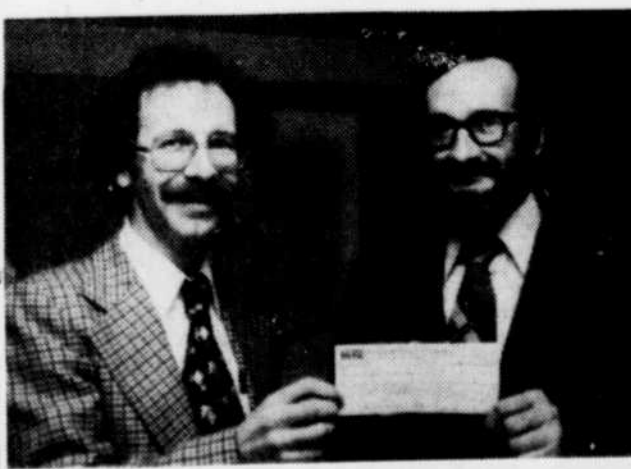

"If Jack Horner can become a Liberal, nothing is impossible." Horner, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Crowfoot for 19 years, became a Liberal last week and was named a minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet.

Birthday congratulations

Congratulations are extended to Miss Ellen Byers of the Grace Christian Home, Huntingville, who will mark her 100th birthday on Saturday, April 30.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Bryant of Austin announce the engagement of their only daughter, Margaret, to Mr. Sidney Daigneault, son of Mrs. Hilda Daigneault of London, Ontario. The wedding will take place June 25th at St. Paul's United Church, Magog.

Marriage announced

Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Hastings and Mr. and Mrs. Sam MacDonald are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their children, Deborah Ann, to John MacDonald, on Saturday, May 21 at 3:30 p.m., St. James Anglican Church, Paris, Ontario.

40th Anniversary

BEEBE - Mr. and Mrs. Harold Taylor were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Silvester, Sr., when they all went out for dinner, observing the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, which was on April 24.

Returning from dinner, they were invited to spend the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Taylor. On arriving they were greeted by approximately 30 relatives and close friends, much to their surprise.

The evening was spent playing cards, some danced while others enjoyed a visit.

On behalf of the assembled guests, Mrs. Richard Lewis presented her parents with a purse of currency and extended wishes for many more happy years together. Thanks were voiced for the gift.

A special cake made by Miss Leona Shepard in open book design was decorated by Mrs. T. Archer. This was placed on a table flanked by lighted candles.

Attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. R. Lewis, Morgan, Vt., son-in-law and daughter; Mrs. F. Taylor, Lennoxville, Harold's mother; Mrs. C. Adams, Beebe Plain, Vt., aunt; Mr. and Mrs. M. Labor, Derby Line, Vt. Others from the Three Villages.

Refreshments were served to terminate the pleasant evening. Several pictures were taken.

96th Birthday Dinner

BEEBE - Mrs. Arlene Ewan entertained on April 23 honoring her mother, Mrs. Jennie Watson, who was observing her 96th birthday.

A delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings was served. The special cake, made by the celebrant's daughter, Mrs. Ray Jones of Knowlton's Landing, being iced in white, pink and yellow roses, white doves, silver beads and top inscription, "Happy Birthday Mother, 96", was also served.

Attending the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones, Knowlton's Landing, Mr.

and Mrs. Hibbard Ingalls, Katevale, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Colt, Ayer's Cliff, and Mr. and Mrs. Reg Curtis, Beebe Plain, Vt.

Several afternoon callers arrived, who extended best wishes to the celebrant, who was presented with many lovely gifts and a large assortment of beautiful cards from friends and relatives far and near.

Among the afternoon guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Palmer of Rock Forest who with Mr. and Mrs. R. Curtis were supper guests of Mrs. Ewan and Mrs. Watson.

Kay's Kitchen Korner

By Kay Taylor

Here is a nice recipe kindly sent by a reader.

AUDREY'S COCOANUT CAKE

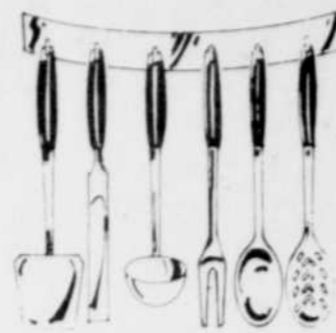

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup white sugar
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped walnuts
 1 cup coconut
 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ cups graham wafer crumbs (if crushing yourself, you will need 25 singles)
 1 cup milk
 1 egg
 2 tablespoons butter
 2 tablespoons flour
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon baking powder
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
 Combine sugar, coconut, nuts, egg and milk and mix; then add crumbs and mix well. Then add remaining dry ingredients and mix again. Put in an 8 x 8 greased and floured pan and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

ICING

1 cup brown sugar
 2 tablespoons butter
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk
 Boil 3 minutes, remove, cool, then add $\frac{3}{4}$ cups icing sugar, vanilla. Beat until smooth and spreadable.

From the same reader:
SPICED APPLESAUCE CUPCAKES

Preheat oven to 350 degrees
 Bake 20-25 minutes
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup white sugar
 1 egg, beaten
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sifted all purpose flour
 1 teaspoon soda
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1 teaspoon nutmeg
 pinch of cloves
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
 1 10-oz. tin of applesauce OR $\frac{1}{4}$ cups (if homemade)
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup raisins
 1 tablespoon applesauce
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup icing sugar

Cream butter and sugar, add beaten egg, beat until fluffy. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with applesauce to butter mixture.

Reserve the one tablespoon of applesauce for the glaze. Fold in raisins. Fill muffin tins two-thirds full. Bake 20-25 minutes. Cool on rack.

FOR GLAZE

Combine applesauce and icing sugar and brush on cupcakes. Should yield 18 cupcakes. Thanks for two more of your splendid recipes.

Here is a glaze for your ham that I particularly like.

Skin thoroughly a cooked ham and score in diamonds. Then spread with a paste made of 3 tablespoons dry mustard and vinegar. Mix together one cup brown sugar, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup dry bread-crumbs, $\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons condiment sauce, $\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons vinegar. Spread this over the first mixture (of mustard and vinegar). Dot thickly with cloves (I do not care for too much of this) and dust with Paprika. Bake at 350 degrees till bubbly and brown. Caution: Watch carefully as if you cook too long the glaze will be too hard and will crumble. If you remove it at the right stage this is very good.

Keep the recipes coming! Sincerely, K.

Hall, Pine Street, Magog from 2 o'clock to 5 o'clock p.m. The girls have worked hard and are hopeful that the public will support their effort. A home baked food table as well as other goodies will be on display. The proceeds will be used to finance a camping trip to Upper Canada Village.

DEAR POLLY - Use a well washed discarded toothbrush to smooth out make-up around the hairline and to remove any that clings to the edge of the hair. The toothbrush will also smooth every wispy hair around the face after you use hair spray, and gives it a finished professional look. - MARY B.

DEAR POLLY - If your ballpoint pen does not write but has ink in it, try holding a lighted match near the tip for just a little bit. Be careful that the tip does not burn and fall off. - KRISTI.

DEAR POLLY - My Pet Peeve is with those who package three patterns in one package. Often I have to buy a blouse and pants pattern as well as the desired skirt pattern. Seems to me costs could be cut considerably for the customer if each pattern was packaged and sold alone, as they were years ago. I realize all prices have skyrocketed but in this case the saving in paper would be considerable. - MRS. J.A.F.

DEAR POLLY - Sometime ago we had a fire in our home and were left with the smoke odor all over. A store that sells chemical sprays and so forth suggested that we pour ammonia over charcoal, put this in containers and place one in each room. They were right. This was the cheapest, and it really worked. - ELSIE.

DEAR POLLY - After the legs on pantyhose that have abdominal control are worn out, I cut off the legs at the bottom of the reinforced section just below the start of the sheer part. The top that is left is great to wear under a bathing suit and will drip dry just as fast as the suit does and is easy to rinse out, too. - ELIZABETH.

DEAR POLLY - I got so tired of getting runs in my pantyhose and finally noticed that most of them started in the feet. They were doubtless caused by the hose rubbing against my shoes. The next time I bought a new pair, I put them on and outlined the feet (just below the line of my shoe) with clear nail polish. Now when a run starts in the foot it will not go beyond the nail polish line. I have used nail polish for years to stop runs, but this other idea is new.

This summer I started hanging my clothes out of doors to dry, instead of using the dryer. But I did not like the inconvenience of having to go back and forth to the clothespins bag. Finally I had the idea of making a temporary pouch in my T-shirt by using two clip-on clothespins. I fill this pouch with clothespins and just reach into it every time I need one. The T-shirt is not harmed either. - LORELEI.

Benefit Dances

ROCK ISLAND (IH) - The evenings of April 15 and April 23 saw two very successful benefit dances held for persons whose barns had been burned by fires.

The April 15 dance was for Ted and Jenny White, present owners of the former Jenkins farm at Ruiters Corner whose barn burned one night, also valuable rabbits they were raising for medical research purposes and sold to individuals, plus his cages and so forth.

This dance was held in the IOOF hall, donated by the fraternity for this worthy cause. Music was donated by the Border Mountaineer Orchestra.

Although not too well known, people donated a sizable sum of money to enable the Whites to get their business started once again as they had no insurance on the building.

Dance refreshments were also donated and the large number of people had a grand evening of fun and the satisfaction of knowing they were assisting some one in their time of trouble.

This benefit was organized by Erwin and Rheta Taylor, Leslie and Janey Webster assisted by others. A donation box was at the door for the dance and the organizers received many donations for the benefit.

The presentation was made to the Whites at the dance by Erwin and Leslie and remarks of appreciation expressed by all involved as well as Ted and Jenny.

April 23 a benefit dance was held in Sunnyside school gym for George and Sylvia Peasley whose barn and a number of head of cattle burned on April 7. Music was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Camille Gilbert, Janey Webster and Albert Nutbrown also by paid musicians.

Edward Hyatt and Mrs. Alfred Middleton had designed a barn, a miniature of the barn and silo that was destroyed and as some 375 people came to the dance they "dropped currency" in the hay loft door and signed the guest book, in charge of Mrs. Middleton.

George and Sylvia were presented with a floral corsage and boutonniere. At intermission, refreshments donated by relatives and friends were served in the school cafeteria that was chaired by the school cook, Mrs. Joyce Jarvis, who donated her time. Assistants were women from the sponsoring groups, the Ayer's Cliff Club of the Quebec Farmers Assoc., and Tomfobia IOOF Lodge, Rock Island.

Canusa Flower Shop in Beebe donated a flower arrangement or a choice of garden plants that were sold by tickets. This totaled close to $150 and Mrs. Erema Taylor of Apple Grove was the lucky winner. She is choosing the garden plants to a total of $15.00.

Douglas Johnston presented this money as he was convener of the sales. Edward Hyatt, Grand master of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, IOOF and a member of the Tomfobia lodge presented the "barn with the currency gifts". Both he and Mr. Johnston spoke pleasant remarks and told a few stories.

George and Sylvia voiced with great feeling their appreciation for this benefit on their behalf, to everyone who had assisted them the night of the fire, those who cared for their animals that were taken from the burning barn, the foods brought to them, and all who did anything in any way to make the evening of April 23 such a memorable event and gave them courage to start anew with another barn Eugene Naylor spoke the appreciative remarks in French.

People came from many points of the Townships and from "south of the border" with relatives from Ontario to make it a delightful evening for all.

ANN LANDERS SAYS

Find it in your heart

Dear Ann:

Eight years ago I became aware that my husband was cheating. He swore he loved only me and just happened to be oversexed. Well, nobody's perfect. He had many good qualities so I decided to look the other way.

When I found out he was having an affair with my mother I almost lost my mind. He said she was the aggressor, that they had had a few drinks - the old story. I tried my best to forgive him (Mom was divorced, lonesome, etc.) but when I learned it was an ongoing thing I couldn't look at my mother again.

Now Mom is in a nursing home terminally ill and I can't bring myself to visit her. Should I FORCE myself to go and forgive her before she dies even though I'd feel like a hypocrite? There is no love in my heart. Mom has never said she was sorry. My husband doesn't ask about her and hasn't gone to see her. He says she was just one of many 'flings'. I need your help, Ann.

Lou
 Try to find it in your heart to forgive your mother. If forgiveness isn't there, go to her anyway and make the gesture. Hopefully, forgiveness will come later. One thing is certain, dear, you will not have a chance to walk this way again.

Dear Ann:
 In reference to the 25-year-old woman who wanted to have her tubes tied: The woman's husband was pestering her to have a second child and her nine-month-old baby was driving her crazy.

You said, "Twenty-five is awfully young to make this irreversible decision. Wait till the baby is three years of age. By then you'll probably be enjoying him immensely and want another child."

I'll bet that woman's husband never changed a diaper or gave the baby a bottle or a bath. Dollars to doughnuts the entire child-rearing job fell on his wife.

When the youngster gets older, Dad will probably say, "Go away, I'm trying to read," or "Don't bother me, I'm watching TV." Then, after Mom struggles to get the kids off to bed, guess who turns into a tiger at 10:00 p.m.?

I'll bet most of the women who wrote to say they wished they'd never had kids are married to men whose biological contribution to fatherhood was the only one they ever made. Our two kids are a joy, but what a happier time it would have been if "Dad" had given me a little help.

Glad I Quit At Two

Dear Glad:
 I was chewed out unmercifully by women critical of my advice to that 25-year-old mother who wanted her tubes tied. Hundreds told me I was wrong to discourage her - that she knew better than I how many kids she wanted. At least 50 women wrote, "MYOB, Annie" - and maybe that's what I should have done.

Dear Readers:
 I have just learned that "A Prayer For Parents" sent in by a reader, "author unknown," was actually written by Dr. Garry C. Myers, a noted psychologist and parent counselor.

Anyone who wishes a free copy of the prayer can obtain it by writing to Highlights for Children, P.O. Box 269, Columbus, Ohio 43216.

CONFIDENTIAL TO Twice-Chewed Cabbage:

You are wise to believe only half of what you hear - the trick is to know which half.

MR. DRESS-UP, or Ernie Coombs, has been entertaining children for 12 years. He also tours the country with shows built around TV characters that usually play to sold-out houses. His friends Casey and Finnigan are seen every week day at 10:30 a.m. on the C.B.C.

Mr. Dressup goes to Frobisher Bay

Mr. Dressup, the favorite TV personality of preschoolers, goes to Frobisher Bay in the Northwest Territories this week. It's at the invitation of the principal and pupils of Nakasuk School there.

Mr. Dressup (he's the Ernie Coombs) has been delighting the young ones and their mothers for over 12 years on CBC-TV weekdays at 10:30 a.m.

He flew from Montreal, on Monday and, of course, he's accompanied by Casey and Finnigan and puppeteer Judith Lawrence. Also on the travelling party is Hedley Read, executive producer of Mr. Dressup; John L. Kennedy, head of CBC Children's TV and lighting man Ian Challis, all of Toronto.

A full itinerary, planned for the visit included, on arrival, a tour of the local school with a supper that night hosted by the local puppet group. Tuesday was an exhibition of seal skinning and kids' eating raw meat followed by a visit to the daycare centre and a tour of the far northern community.

In the evening Mr. Dressup gave a performance for the youngsters and parents of Frobisher. In the following days a trip to Pengerton or Dorset is planned, also a discussion with the high school students on how Mr. Dressup is produced. As well there will be filming including Mr. Dressup and the Nakasuk kindergarten kids.

Preceding Mr. Dressup and his party to Frobisher Bay was Doug Williams, production assistant and Doug Hunter, cameraman from Winnipeg. Their week earlier arrival was to get on film the special Toonikytyme festival, a festival of single dog sleigh races and games. Toonikytyme is an Inuktitut word for the people who preceded the Inuit in the Baffin area, considered to be the real historical people known to archeologists as the Dorset culture — a people supposed to have been exceedingly strong with very long arms. The remains of their small round stone houses are found in many places in the Eastern Arctic.

It is hoped a film clip of the arrival of Mr. Dressup in Frobisher Bay will be shown on the CBC-TV news at noon on April 28.

The film to be shot on the occasion of the visit will be aired on the new fall season of Mr. Dressup programs seen weekday mornings at 10:30.

UCW meeting

BULWER — On Tuesday evening, April 12, the Bulwer U.C.W. held their April monthly meeting and tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Little in Sand Hill.

Sixteen women answered the roll and the president welcomed two guests. Five men joined Harry in the den for the evening.

The president, Mrs. Rothney, opened the meeting with a reading, "One Talent".

Mrs. Douglas Grapes led the devotional period. She gave two short readings on Good Friday and the Resurrection and led in prayer. Mrs. Gerald Low read the scripture, Mrs. Morris Smith read a story entitled "The Devil and the Daffodil".

Routine business was dispensed with and the treasurer's report showed a healthy balance, but it was decided to have two tables at the Flea Market, sponsored by the Cookshire Elementary School Cafeteria, at Cookshire on April 30. A food table and a handicraft table.

Summer Event is to be held at Bishop's University on July 15-16 and 17 and it's hoped that as many as possible will attend.

Items from Happenings were read.

The visiting committee reported a busy month as usual, with five boxes of goodies being packed for Easter gifts, also a box of candy.

The next meeting will be held on May 10 at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Gustafson at Moulton Hill.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Little and her co-hostess, Mrs. Morris Smith.

CTV plans big week

The CTV television network is running a loaded schedule for the next week, and many of the programs are worth noting. It starts Thursday night with the "Magnificent Magical Magnet of Santa Mesa."

Michael Burns is Freddie Griffith, a young scientist who invents a disc to solve the world's energy problems but it backfires on him in the comedy-drama special at 8:00-9:30 p.m. EDT.

Freddie Griffith is the scientist who wants to donate his invention to mankind. It is an amazing disc that provides a solution to many energy problems, but his employers, realizing the financial potential of his discovery, decide that Freddie will change his mind about giving it away, or they will get rid of him.

Also starring are Susan Blanchard, Harry Morgan, Keene Curtis, Tom Poston, Conrad Janis and Jane Connell.

"The Magnificent Magical Magnet of Santa Mesa" is directed by Hy Averbach.

From Hollywood, the centre of the film and television industry, "Maclear", 9:30-10:00 p.m. on CTV, reports on the increasing cultural mindlessness of an industry where mediocrity abounds with violence, sadistic sex and exploitation films which seem to reflect the general malaise of North America.

This is the new pollution swamping our continent, a mental smog that is culturally asphyxiating us all. "It is the movie and television pap for which," says Maclear, "they've even coined a new word — schlock. And L.A. schlocks it to the rest of us."

The public appetite for movies and movie legends has never been keener, with box office receipts in the U.S. alone a record two billion dollars. This from promoting movies with savage stars and perverted dreams even made from the leftover film of other schlock.

The program also takes a pointed look at television where soap operas and sitcoms are getting more bed-ridden and doom-filled. Network television grosses four billion dollars a year and Maclear offers that the word is appropriate — gross.

"Arguably," comments Maclear, "the product we accept shapes us. Certainly the cheapening of values enriches Hollywood."

Talent is out and commercialism is in. President of New World Pictures, Roger Corman, makes 50 million dollars a year from his films and is called the "King of Schlock." He argues that "...the commercial element will get people into the theatre."

"One concludes," says Maclear, "that Hollywood's absurdity is our own, our acceptance of its inanities. Hollywood, at least for now, reflects the general malaise and reinforces it — a kind of deadening escapism. Hollywood, no longer a repository of dreams, is just an emptiness of mind."

For more than two decades, Tony Bennett has been North America's leading jazz and pop singing stylist. Without peer, he is a dream-maker of international renown and Saturday, April 30, 7:00-8:00 p.m., he returns to Television in "Tony Bennett And The Young Generation", with a winning selection of melodies that complement his unique artistry.

His special guests for this one-hour entertainment special are The Young Generation dance troupe, and the program includes the songs of some of the greatest popular writers in music's history.

The leading exponent of good listening music, Bennett is possessed of an incongruously raspy speaking voice but a butter-soft tenor that projected him to international stardom, bringing applause and kudos from other renowned performers and critics. The philosophy that brought him to centre stage around the world is simple — "I just try to make people dream. If I can make people forget and get carried away — that's what I like to try and do."

Venomous sea creatures, many of which have populated the earth's oceans since pre-historic times, are the subject for exploration on the next episode of "Lorne Greene's Last Of The Wild", titled "Silent Killers", telecasting Sunday, May 1, 5:00-5:30 p.m. EDT.

These silent killers come in countless varieties of shapes and sizes. Stonefish, lionfish, sea snakes, jellyfish, sea urchins, carnivorous snails and sea cucumbers all have the ability to poison their prey.

Some stun their prey, others paralyse, and some kill outright. For man, the effect of these poisons is generally uncomfortable, often painful, and occasionally fatal. Every year, more people are seriously injured or killed by this group of underwater poisoners than are killed by the sea dwellers humans most fear — sharks.

Veteran daytime game show host, Peter Marshall, is the Man of the Hour on CTV Television Network's "Dean Martin Celebrity Roast", Sunday, May 1, 9:00-10:00 p.m. EDT.

Taking part in the program are host Martin, Red Buttons, Foster Brooks, Rip Taylor, Vincent Price, Karen Valentine, Paul Lynde, who has a special coming up on CTV, Jimmie Walker, star of CTV's "Good Times", Jack Carter, Jackie Gayle, Rose Marie, Orsen Welles, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Wayland Flowers and Madam, Joey Bishop and Ed Bluestone.

The program was taped at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas before an audience of more than 1,000.

Enjoy tour to Florida

KNOWLTON (KT) — Mr. and Mrs. George Sharman and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Roberts left on a most enjoyable tour to Florida on March 19, returning to Montreal on April 3rd. This was by courtesy of the Brome Lake Duck Farm as a mark of appreciation to both Mr. Sharman and Mr. Roberts for many years of faithful service to the company. Leaving from Holiday Inn at 9 a.m. Saturday morning, they crossed the border at Champlain, N.Y. and stayed overnight at Maple Shade, N.J. to continue across the State of Virginia and entering North Carolina the next day, where they stopped overnight at Dunn.

On the third day of their trip they travelled across the States of South Carolina and Georgia before entering Florida. Driving through Savannah, the oldest city in Georgia (founded in 1733), the overnight stop was at Jacksonville. They then travelled along the east coast of Florida, arriving at Miami Beach during mid-afternoon. Here, they were guests at the Thunderbird Resort Motel for the next week. Taking it easy on the first day, they enjoyed the dog races at night, a favorite pastime of local residents. On Thursday they left by motor coach for Lincoln Mall and visited numerous shops and boutiques. On Friday, there was a trip to Parrot Jungle where a large collection of parrots and other exotic birds live freely. Colorful macaws and cockatoos performing acts such as bicycle riding and roller skating in the Parrot Bowl proved most entertaining and in the afternoon there was a visit to the Seaquarium where a variety of acrobatic performances by porpoise and sea lions were fully enjoyed.

On Saturday, travelling north, they crossed the States of South and North Carolina and entered Virginia towards evening, staying in Chester. Through Pennsylvania the next day, a stop was made overnight at Pittston. Sunday, the border was crossed at Thousand Island International Bridge, the party arriving in Montreal in late afternoon. A most wonderful holiday was enjoyed and friendships formed with co-passengers on the bus, some of whom it was found were familiar with this area, or came from close by.

HUNTINGVILLE — Recent guests of Mrs. Mae Sawyer were her sister, Mrs. Ellen Wallbridge, Stanstead, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert McCaffrey and Miss Amy Stark, Utica, N.Y. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Billing and family were visiting their aunt, Mrs. J. Billing, on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Graydon Parker, Lachine, were visiting Mrs. Parker's mother, Mrs. J. Beattie. Mrs. Johnson accompanied them.

Those from the Home who are able to get outside, are enjoying these few days of sunshine, and are all looking forward to warm weather.

and other friends on Saturday evening. Mrs. Barber of Sawyerville and two nieces of Gaspe were visiting Mrs. Elliott on Monday. Mrs. Maurice of Vermont, formerly of Lennoxville, and Mrs. Harold Munkittrick were visiting Mrs. Statton. Miss Suchard of Grace Chapel, Sherbrooke, who is always a welcome visitor at the Home, spent Saturday afternoon visiting the residents. Parents of Mr. and Mrs. John De Grace from the Maritimes, were weekend visitors of their son John and his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Buchanan, Cap de la Madeleine, visited his mother, Mrs. Buchanan and also visited other relatives and friends.

Prosperity Rebekah Lodge

COWANSVILLE — At the regular meeting of Prosperity Rebekah Lodge No. 32, a fitting tribute was paid to Schuyler Colfax, author of the Rebekah Degree, by the Degree Captain, Sister Donna Luce.

The Rebekah Degree is a degree of Odd Fellowship established in 1851 to cultivate and promote social and fraternal relations among the families of Odd Fellows and the Lodges, and to extend these influences in our communities, local, provincial, national and international. It is founded on the Bible and teaches the Brotherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.

Our objects are to visit the sick, relieve the distressed and in every way assist our members when in trouble or sickness. To aid in maintaining homes for the aged of which there is one in West Brome, Que.

Our Emblems are the Three Links which represent Friendship, Love and Truth.

To be eligible to join a Rebekah Lodge a woman must be eighteen years of age, believe in a Supreme Being and be of good moral character, and in sound health. Odd Fellows in good standing are also eligible to join a Rebekah Lodge.

Unfinished Business
Donations were sent to help form a Theta Row group in this district; to the Planning Board; the Presidents Projects; the Girl Guides and the Children's Hospital Telathon.

New Business
A request for a transfer was read from Sister Lee Clark and granted.

A notice of an Easter Luncheon was read to be held on April 14 in "The Hall" at 11 a.m. sponsored by the Eastern Star.

Brother Steve Hunt gave an interesting report on the wheel chairs. He explained to the new members that these chairs are available at his home, to be loaned out (free of charge) to anyone in the community regardless of race, color or creed. The only requirement is a five dollar deposit which will be returned when the chair is returned. He stated that it is very important that these items be returned as soon as they are finished using them, as there is a waiting list. We also have crutches, canes, walkers and commode chairs. Steve has been a valuable member of the Planning Board for years and encourages all Lodges to donate generously to this worthwhile project.

Sister Irene Williams, Past President of the Rebekah Assembly of Quebec, and representative to the International Association of Rebekah Assemblies, gave a few more highlights of her trip to Denver, Colorado, where she attended the I.A.R.A. sessions.

Past Noble Grands night to be held on April 18 and all members were requested to attend, when voting will take place for Assembly Warden.

Card Party prizes were won by: Ladies 1st, Elizabeth Pow, 2nd, Helen Damant, Consolation, Carole Soule.

Gents: 1st - Roy Jenne, 2nd - Junior Harvey, Consolation - Roy Monette, Floating Prize - Mrs. Mary McCutcheon and John Hall, 1st Door Prize - Mrs. Symington, 2nd - Mrs. Hilton Smith.

Afghan - Jim Collins; Lace Doily - Elaine Ball; Cushion - Roy Monette.

WI meeting

STANBRIDGE EAST — The April meeting of the Stanbridge East Women's Institute was held in St. James Church Hall on the afternoon of April 7, with twenty-two members attending.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary Mrs. C. Harvey, and approved. The treasurer, Mrs. M. F. Tait gave her report, stating a healthy balance after several bills had been paid.

The Branch was reminded of the Tweedsmuir competition to be held in 1979, in Saskatchewan. Tentative plans were made to enter in the "Community History Kit" and the Afghan categories. An S.O.S. was received from the C.A.A.C. and a donation was voted them, to help offset deficits. A wonderful collection of articles was brought in by Mrs. K. Creller for Cansave; pencils, crayons, coloring books, small toys and numerous knitted articles. These she picked up or made, herself, during the year; a lady of nice surprises, our Mrs. Creller. Plans for the May auction of plants and bulbs were discussed, and this is hoped to be a great success.

Convenor's Reports.
Agriculture: Mrs. J. Jetten alerted us to the dangers of too many pesticides and weed killers being used presently on our farmlands. She mentioned that many fatal accidents result in the improper use of these chemicals. This report opened a discussion about the disappearance of many of the natural pest-controls: birds, beneficial insects.

Citizenship: Mrs. A. Stote read her annual report since she had been absent at that meeting. She then told us of Ms. Roberta Jamieson, the first North American Indian woman to become a lawyer in 1976. Ms. Jamieson is from the 6th National Reserve in Brantford, Ont.

Education: Mrs. F. Corey said that young people were more and more encouraged to go back to the roots, and find out about our Canadian Heritage from the people who helped make it. Paper money was first used in Quebec when the French ship was late. Ordinary playing cards were given out to the soldiers until the money arrived and the playing cards were redeemed. Violence on television was also brought up and the unhealthy influence it has on children.

Home Economics: An ecology-minded Mrs. Paquet mentioned the garbage problem which is becoming more and more crucial. Recycling is the only way out of this rather messy situation. Over-packaged foods are the most important contributors to the pile-up, and cost the consumer more. The products to stay away from if you are concerned with cutting down on garbage at home are: flashy, wasteful packages, any kind of disposables and any products that are not durable.

Publicity: Mrs. D. Ouellet dispensed with a formal report and gave time to discussing plans for entertainment at the 65th Anniversary dinner to be held in June. Several ideas were brought up, and the Branch agreed that something would be settled on.

Welfare and Health: Mrs. J. Moore read a piece on the use of animals for study of human health problems. Burns being a large part of the research, they are also working actively on aging processes and transplants. Some games were played after the reports. Mrs. F. Corey and Mrs. C. Harvey explained them, and it made for a good time. One was a sort of question and answer along the lines of the old spelling bees. The other was to compose a telegram, using as first letters of each word the letters from "April Fool". Some rather amusing telegrams came up. Mrs. Corey presented a gift to the one whose telegram was judged the most original.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess: Mrs. J. Moore and her assistants, Mrs. J. Paquet and Mrs. R. Fortin.

STANBRIDGE EAST
K. D. Tree
 There was a large attendance in all three churches on Easter Sunday. They were all beautifully decorated with spring flowers.
 The Missisquoi Historical Society's Annual Sugar Party, although held rather late this year, turned out to be the usual success it always is. The weather was all that could be asked for and many enjoyed a spring walk in the woods under ideal conditions. There was no sap available for boiling but Clifford Rhicard very kindly had water in the evaporator with a good fire going, so that the uninitiated could have an idea of how maple syrup was made. There was plenty of snow available as a large snowdrift in the woods had been covered with tarpaulins to keep it from melting.
 Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey McAllister and daughter Amy of Ingewood, N.J., were Easter guests of Mr. and Mrs. King Shepardson. Mrs. McAllister is Mrs. Shepardson's sister. This is an annual event for the Shepardsons and always greatly enjoyed.
 Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brown have returned from an extended western trip, having spent some time with their son David and his family in Seattle, Wash.

 Miss Brenda Heney's many friends here are sorry to learn of her having suffered a bad fall, the result of which was her right arm broken in two places. She was taken to the B.M.P. Hospital in Cowansville and on her release from hospital will convalesce at the Nesbitt Home in Cowansville.
 The flowers on the altar, on Sunday, in St. James Anglican Church, were in memory of Carl Gregory Tree, placed there by his parents.
 Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bedee were Mrs. E. Doyle of Toronto and her brother Mr. D. Harper of Montreal. While here they enjoyed taking in the M.H.S. sugar party.
 The largely attended funeral of Mrs. Calno Primmerman was held on April 15, in St. James Anglican Church, Rev. George D. Sandilands of Bedford, officiating. Rev. Sandilands, who is the Protestant Chaplain of the Lagace Hospital where Mrs. Primmerman passed away, spoke very comforting words about her. In his remarks he said that he had never met Mrs. Primmerman previous to her admission to hospital, but during her stay there he had come to realize what a wonderful devout person she was and also to admire her for her true Christian beliefs, unafraid to meet her Maker. It was at her request and that of the family that he conduct the service. The funeral hymns were Abide With Me and The Old Rugged Cross. The bearers were her two grandsons John and Neil Rhicard and two nephews Bernard Chevalier and Robert Krans. Cremation followed the funeral and the ashes will be interred in the Pigeon Hill Cemetery.

 Mrs. D. O'Connell of Montreal was a recent guest of Mrs. Ruby Moore of the day.

The weather was ideal and the children enjoyed the kite and ball games, while the older ones gave them rides on their motor bikes. Later, some of the not-quite-so young tried their hand at driving the bikes through the fields.
 Tables had been arranged in the area in front of the camp and the food had been kept warm until all arrived on the small arch in the camp.
 Later, all was tidied up and the camp will soon be closed again until next Spring, but, to those who had aided Russell during the "rush" of the season, it was a nice "thank-you", and, to the others, some from a distance, a real enjoyable day and an opportunity to visit with many whom they seldom see.

will be sorry to learn that he is a patient in the Toronto General Hospital, having a serious heart condition. All wish him a speedy recovery.
 Also hospitalized at this time is Mr. Gerry Element, a patient at the C.H.U., Sherbrooke.
 Mrs. Vi Dixon and Mr. F. Frost of Godfrey, Ont., are guests of Mrs. Dixon's brother, Mr. Roy Monahan and Mrs. Monahan. While here they will also visit other relatives and friends in the area.
 Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Maynard Perkins at the death of her mother, Mrs. Levia, which occurred at her winter home in Florida on Thursday.
 Misses Kathy Stevens and Gertrude Simmt of London, Ont., were Easter weekend guests of Miss Stevens' parents, Mr. and Mrs. E.G. Stevens.
 Mr. and Mrs. John Foley and son Paul were Easter holiday guests of their elder son, Mr. Pat Foley and Mrs. Foley in Montreal.
 Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Allan Sutherland at the death of her aunt, Mrs. Effie Elliott, a former Asbestos resident. Mrs. Elliott had been in poor health for some time and was a resident of the Youville Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bellevue of Chomedey were guests of Mrs. J.W. Bellevue on Saturday and also visited other relatives in town.
ST. ARMAND
 Mrs. G. Kidd
 Mr. and Mrs. James Grevatt of Chateaugay, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grevatt and Mr. and Mrs. N. Surridge, of Montreal spent the holiday weekend at their summer homes here.
 Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Rutherford of Granby were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G.S. Wade on Saturday.
 Mr. and Mrs. E.H. Naylor and Mrs. P.C. Luke attended funeral service in the Stanbridge East Anglican Church on Friday for Mrs. Calno Primmerman of Pigeon Hill who passed away at the Bedford Hospital, following a lengthy illness.
 Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dagesse, who, last week, celebrated their golden Wedding Anniversary.
 Mr. and Mrs. Allan Barnes of Montreal spent a day recently with Mrs. Barnes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Symington.
 Mr. and Mrs. F.A. Field were Easter Sunday guests at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Field in St. Lambert.

 The community was shocked on Saturday morning when it was learned that one of our neighbours, Mr. Edouard Chevalier, had passed away suddenly on Friday night, while attending a supper and sugar party in L'Ange Gardien. Funeral Service was held in the Catholic Church here on Monday morning and was very largely attended, testifying to the high esteem Mr. Chevalier was held throughout the entire area. Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Chevalier and family in their sudden bereavement.
 Mr. and Mrs. Henry Symington and Miss Judy Wendover were in Chateaugay, N.Y., on Saturday where they visited Mrs. Symington's mother, Mrs. James Arthur.
 Mrs. R. Lapointe has returned to her home here after spending the winter months with relatives in St. Jerome.

Dando who passed away at the B.M.P. Hospital on Saturday, April 9. Funeral service and interment was at Cambridge, Galt, Ontario.
 Thought for the Week (from St. Paul's Church bulletin)
 "I try to watch the words I say,
 And keep them tender, sweet,
 For I never know from day to day,
 Which ones I'll have to eat!"

WEST BOLTON
Mrs. B. Mizeer
 Easter guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Quilliams, were Mr. David Quilliams and family from Bowmanville, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gay on their return from Prince Edward Island, where Mr. Gay was called due to the death of his mother. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Amott of Howich and two daughters were guests at the same home.
 Mr. Donald McIntosh and friend from Toronto were Easter weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mizener.
 Friends were sorry to learn Mr. Gardiner Booth was taken by ambulance to Sweetsburg Hospital. All wish him a speedy recovery from the stroke.
 Mr. and Mrs. Ferraro from South Passendara are spending some time with Mrs. Ferraro's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Bleinkhorn. Also Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bleinkhorn and family were Easter guests at the same home. Also, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mosley, Mrs. May Hines, Mrs. Coleen Crouse and family of Knowlton.
 Mr. George Marshall and Billy of St. Joachim, were Easter guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Booth.
 Mr. Avery Booth of Sherbrooke has also been at the home of his parents.
 The Sunrise Service at the Creek Church on Easter Sunday was well attended. At the regular morning service, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Graves of Bondville was christened by Rev. Peter Joyce.

DANVILLE

Mrs. Margaret E. Frost 839-2185
 Once again, as the sugar-season draws to a close, Mr. Russell Frost entertained some 60 relatives and friends at an outdoor "pot luck" dinner at his sugar camp and then, in spite of a very hearty meal, all did justice to the delectable sugar-on-snow in the afternoon.

A Mother's Day Luncheon is to take place on Sunday, May 8, in the Knowlton United Church Hall at 12:15 p.m. The affair is planned for families, to treat their mothers to a luncheon. Admission will be by ticket only. For further details, please phone Joyce Pratt at 243-6747.

Good wishes are extended by local friends to Mr. Gardner Booth of Foster who is a patient at B.M.P. Hospital. Also "get-well soon" wishes go out to Mrs. Booth who is ill with the grippe.

Local friends also extend best wishes to Mr. Bruce Bailey of West Brome, who has been a patient at B.M.P. Hospital since Easter. He is recuperating well and is expected home by the time this memo appears in print.

Friends are most sorry to learn that Miss Mona Charters is a patient at B.M.P. Hospital and many good wishes are extended for a speedy recovery.

Mr. George Marshall of Warden and Mr. Curt Peters of Waterloo were visiting Mr. Gardner Booth at B.M.P. on Sunday afternoon and later were supper guests at the home of Mrs. May Hines and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Moseley.

At St. Paul's Church it was noted that The Deanery Chapter (all wardens and Lay Delegates) were meeting on Monday, April 18 at Grace Church, Sutton with Canon Cecil Royle the guest speaker at the supper meeting.

Also on the bulletin board at St. Paul's—An Ecumenical Service for peace in Northern Ireland took place on the afternoon of April 17 in St. Patrick's Church, Montreal, at which the preacher was Bishop Kenneth Maguire. Notices were also on the board regarding the Missions (latest issue), the annual Anglican Youth Camp, also a "Festival for Life" in Ottawa on May 5-7. Please check the board for items of interest.

Special birthday greetings go out to Mr. Harry Barber on the occasion of his 94th birthday on April 21st. Also to Mr. Robert Taylor who will observe his 84th birthday on April 28.

Local friends extend sympathy to the members of the family of Mrs. Harold

West Sutton

Mr. Leo Meunier has been a heart patient at the BMP Hospital in Cowansville. Mr. Theo Grenier has been a patient there also. We wish both these men a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley O'Brien spent a day in Sherbrooke on business.
 Mr. and Mrs. Jim Johnson of Montreal was visiting her brother, Mr. George Robinson and family, while here to visit her brother, John Robinson, who is at the Patch Home in Brome.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Methot and sons of Lachine spent a few days here at the Robinson Home.

Mr. Ethan Perkins and son Brian, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Marion Perkins of Dunham, spent a couple of days in Spencerville, Ont., with their brother and uncle, Mr. Heslam Hooper and family.

Several families here have been suffering with the "Old Fashioned Flu" and under doctor's care. Get well wishes to them.

Farmers who made sugar this year have reported a wonderful crop, both in quantity and quality.

Most of the cottages around this area were opened over the Easter weekend and holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Sammie Evans of Knowlton were guests at the Robinson home here.

Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson were calling on his brother, Mr. John Robinson, at the Patch Home in Brome.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Robinson and family were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Roland Sherrer and family, Dunham, recently.

Mr. Eric Russell of West Brome was an evening guest of his aunt, Mrs. Geo. Robinson, and family.

If you're out of shape, you're out of the running.

Bury school history - 8

New schools built after 1846

By MRS. HERBERT ROWELL
(Record Correspondent)
Gilbert's Mills,
Upper Brookbury

According to the old records, it was decided in 1845 to build new school houses; one was near the town line between the township of Bury and the township of Lingwick at the far end of the Brookbury Road. This was District No. 4 for many years until 1873; then the district was divided, this part was then District No. 9.

In March 1853, it was decided to build a new school in this district from taxes from the British American Land Co. Tender for building this school was given to Geo. P. Ward.

Some of the teachers who taught in this school were Ann Jane Bown, Ellen Hepburn, Miss Cook, Matilda Bailey and Martha Clark.

Twenty years later in 1873 when a petition by James Weir and John Ryan resulted in the division of this district which included lots 24 to 41 on Range 10 and lots 25 to 41 on Range 11, Upper Brookbury or Tupperville. John Ryan donated the piece of land on which the schoolhouse stood on lot 26 Range 11, as long as it was used for school purposes. He was voted $16 to fix up the building. Maria Hepburn was engaged to teach.

A few years later it was decided to build a new school in this district. The contract was given to Jesse Hunt, Mr. Walter and A. Gilbert for $325 to be ready in Nov. Wm. Wyatt was building inspector.

Pupils attending this school in 1877 were: Ann Downes; Fred and Emma Gilbert; Mary, Eva, Charles, George, Esau and William Grey; Angus, Marian, Mary Ann, Christie, Norman and Margaret MacDonald; and Kenneth MacIver. Their teacher was Annie Wilson.

Subsequent teachers were Lucy Ord, Edith Armstrong, Susan Leonard, Viva Stokes, M. G. Cook, Ellen Ingham, Annie Ward, Augusta Andrews, Susie Berwick, Miss Bailey, Agnes McKenzie, Clara Murray, Myra Worby, Minnie Cowling, Elizabeth Keenan, Lily McLean, Alice McLeod, Clara McGill, Mrs. Bennett, Miss Fraser, Stella Mayhew, Lily Duffield, Della Bishop, Julia Tupper, M. Simons, Eva Murray, Olive McLeod, Margaret Sisco, Beatrice Farrell, Miss Montgomery, Agnes Buchanan, Grace Bennett and Mrs. L. H. McConnell.

In 1894 specifications were given for extensive repairs and painting to the school, outhouse and fence and 1915 modern desks were bought for a capacity of 24 pupils.

In 1921, Brookbury districts were redivided from three districts to two. Districts Nos. 4 and 9 were annexed as far down as the Methodist Church, and from there down joined with the Thompson District No. 12.

In 1924 and 1925 school was held in Hiram Downes' house instead of using the old school at Gilbert's Mills with Pearl Card as teacher. The following year school was held in the old cheese factory in Brookbury. The Community Hall was also used.

This district was then annexed with the other Brookbury Districts and pupils attended the new Brookbury Consolidated School.

The school house was sold by auction to Mr. A. Newman, who later resold it. A Mrs. Sisco lived here and it was later destroyed by fire.

Hardwood Flat
In 1876, John Fisher and Isaac Lawrence presented a petition to have a school built in their area. John Fisher gave the land, 80 ft. by 60 ft. on the southeast corner of his farm. William Ellis was given the contract to build the new school for $220, to be ready by Nov. 10th, 1878.

The first teacher was Miss Lucy Ord and the first scholars were: Isaac 15, David 12, Albert 10, Elhanan 8 and Samuel Lawrence; Annie Sutor 12; May 14 and Alice 11 Paradis; Alvin 17, Edward 15, Lewis 13, Malvina 12, Martha 10, and Easter 7 Fisher; and Sarah Parsons 8.

The following term the enrollment had increased by several children of later arrivals in the community; Emily 8 and May 6 Ford; Bertie 9, and Frank 7 Fuller; Emma Fisher 8; Maggie Lawrence 8; Ira Johnson 8; James and Frederick Reed, Russell Algier 12, Angus Tracy 9; Lydia 10, Munro 8, and Rotus 6 Booth.

Subsequent teachers were Margaret Hepburn, Mr. Wardrop, Amelia Lefebvre, Ellen Ingham, Jennie Bates, Minnie Stokes, Elizabeth Pehlemann, Winnie Hawley, Elizabeth Keenan, Miss Herring, Lily McLean, Annie Olson, Carrie Todd, Myrtle Algiers, Emma Brady, E. Hughes, T. Walsh, Mrs. I. Robertson, L.F. McKinnon, Margaret Fraser, Isabel

Cameron, Doris Ross, B. Crawford, Evelyn Bennett, Phyllis McClintock and Ruby Card in 1926.

This school like most of the others, served not only in its educational capacity, but for other purposes. From its beginning religious services were held weekly by the Methodists, and in 1894, Rev. C. B. Washer of St. Paul's began holding services fortnightly at 4 p.m. His first service was held in June, while the men in the neighborhood were doing their annual road work. They all stopped work and came to the service in their work clothes.

The annual Christmas tree was an event also held in most of the schools. This was a community affair when a fine program of dialogues, tableaux, recitations, songs and music was put on by local talent.

During the summer months a Sunday School was held in the school house and a library of well chosen books was acquired. In 1893, major repairs were done to the school.

In 1927, this district was annexed to Bury and students transported there. Arthur Herring was the first school van driver in the district. The following year the school was sold by public auction for $75 to Arthur Worby. The school and the shed were later moved to Bury and made into 2 small houses, the homes of Fred Aubrey and Carl Clark on Tamba St.

As they were being moved, being hauled by teams of horses and mules, Andrew Hamilton was overheard to exclaim, "Now Might See, Would ye look what they're doin', with their mules, horses and jackasses!"

Gould Station
Around 1889 it was decided to build a school in Gould Station, the new district No. 11, as a result of a petition by Richard Cowan. The district was formed from parts of Districts Nos. 5, 6 and 10. Robert Goodin's tender for $325 to build this school was accepted, with Norman Nicholson as building superintendent.

Commissioner Bown chose the site for the school on the former Harold Coates place on the crossroad joining the two Gould Station Roads, just above Mrs. Percy Coates'. This school sat on a ledge beside the road and the drinking water was carried from a spring across the road, known as "Watson's Spring".

A special tax of 34 mills was levied on the district to pay for it. Mary Ann MacDonald was hired to teach the first term of four months at $15 a month.

In the following years teachers were: Georgie Boyle, Malvina Murray, Annie McLeod (Mrs. E. Conley), Miss Maloney, Ellen Ingham, Elizabeth Keenan, Lily McLean McLeod, Christina Wilson, Gladys Lefebvre, Ethel Sherman, Annie McKewie, Jessie MacMillan, Mabel Ward, Mabel Reid Macmillan, Margaret McLeod, Bernice R. Bennett, Annie McLeod, Etta Smith and Flora McLeod.

In July 1910, the teacher, Jessie MacMillan wrote a letter requesting that the schoolhouse be moved as soon as possible. Alexander McLeay and James Groom were appointed to buy land for the new site beside the MacKenzie Chapel.

This land including where the Chapel stood is now part of the MacMillan farm.

Students writing final exams in May 1917, were as follows: Grade 7, Elwin Coates 86 per cent; Grade 6, John MacLeod 96 per cent; Earl Reid 90 per cent; Grade 5, Irene MacLeod 85 per cent; Grade 4, Eleanor MacLean 93 per cent; Myrtle Coates 79 per cent; Lillian Churchill 85 per cent; Evelyn Mayhew 83 per cent; George MacLeod 84 per cent; Grade 3, Walter MacMurray 63 per cent; David Coates 90 per cent; Norman MacLeod 76 per cent; Clifford Garneau 81 per cent; Grade 2, Gladys Buchanan, Catherine Murray 79 per cent; Owanda MacLeod 73 per cent; Angus Smith 81 per cent; Willard Mayhew 73 per cent; Grade 1, Jack Garneau and Margaret Buchanan.

Those absent during exams were: Harold Coates - Gr. 1, Jennie Coates - Gr. 3, Ethel Coates - Gr. 4, Margaret Smith - Gr. 4, Willie Morrison - Gr. 6.
When the schools were consolidated in 1926 this district was joined with Canterbury.

The school building was sold by auction that same year to Malcolm MacLean for $100 who used it as a boarding house for the men who worked in his mill. It was later torn down and the lumber used in a house in Lennoxville. (Continued tomorrow.)

Card of Thanks

GOODE - I would like to thank all my relatives and friends who came to visit me, sent flowers, gifts and cards while I was a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital. A special thank you to Dr. Paulette, Taylor and McDougal and all the staff on the second floor and in the I.C.U. for the wonderful care I received, also to the kitchen staff for their tasty meals. I would like to thank Pastor Kaiser for his many visits and prayers, also many thanks to Jennie Spaulding for her kindness. I would also like to thank you all for the lovely Sunshine basket and food that was sent to me after I returned home. I'll always remember your kindness.

Deaths

SANBORN - We would like to thank the Doctors Pincott and Mendelsohn, and the staff of the 3rd Floor, who assisted in the care of our wife and mother, Ona Sanborn, during her stay at the B.M.P. Hospital; and for the many kindnesses shown by our relatives, friends and neighbours at the time of her death. Our thanks to the bearers, to Rev. W. Davidson, to the members of the Ladies Guild who served lunch after the funeral; for messages of sympathy and floral tributes; and especially, for those donations made to the Canadian Cancer Society and the Memorial Fund of Holy Trinity Church, Iron Hill. Your kindness was much appreciated and will long be remembered.

Obituary

CLARA E. LONGMOORE of Montreal
(formerly of Leeds Village)

The death of Clara E. Longmoore occurred on March 27, 1977, at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital following a brief illness.

Born in Leeds Village, Que., the daughter of Thomas Longmoore and his wife Elizabeth Smith. She was a member of St. James United Church, Montreal, and a highly respected member of the teaching profession.

Miss Longmoore achieved a high degree of success and fulfillment, having spent her younger years in Ste. Foy, Loretteville, Maple Grove and Price. Later she joined the Outremont Protestant School Board on which she served for many years.

Her greatest joy was to hear from a former pupil, many of whom kept up an avid correspondence with her or visited her whenever possible.

She will be sadly missed by all who knew her because of her kindly disposition.

She leaves to mourn her loss, two sisters, Stella and Cora of Montreal; a brother Douglas and sister-in-law Mary of Dorval; four nieces, Mrs. John MacLeod (Helen) of Kirkland Lake, Ont., Joan Nutbrown of Brampton, Ont., Mrs. Robert Cullen (Marilyn) of Aylmer, Que., Mrs. David Rae (Diane) of Nuns Island, Que.; two nephews, Keith Nutbrown of Danville and Brent Longmoore of Dorval.

The funeral service was conducted in the Chapel of Wray-Walton-Wray by Dr. Fiddes and Dr. Grant.

The hymns rendered by the organist were The Old Rugged Cross and How Great Thou Art. The congregation joined in the singing of What a Friend We Have in Jesus and The Lord Is My Shepherd.

Following the funeral service, the Lockwood Funeral Home received the remains in Danville, Que., for interment at a later date.

Lecture delivered to historical society

KNOWLTON - Guest speakers at the fifth and last of a series of Bromie County Historical Society's Evening Programs were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Herring, Lennoxville on April 13. They described with the help of beautiful slides their 1975 trip to East Africa. To journey with the Herrings to a distant country via their excellent slides and interesting commentary is a feast of entertainment indeed.

Nairobi, Kenya was the central point from which they set out on two separate tours, travelling wing-shaped routes, firstly towards the west over to the lake region in the Great Rift Valley and secondly, eastward through eastern Kenya and to the Indian Ocean back to Nairobi. Thus the term wing safari took on a double meaning as the longer distances were covered by a British Trilander, a sort of combination airplane and helicopter which held about 10 people. Small buses with open hatch roofs from which they could take pictures were used to take the tourists through the parks.

The Herrings spare no efforts in getting good views of all kinds of life, scenery, camp and lodges and modes of travel, all of which was a wonderful over-all picture of the country itself. How else could many of us get a close view, through a person to person means, of sleepy lions with many cubs just waking in the early morning, great herds of zebras, springboks and impalas all grazing together, hippos in the lake asleep among the reeds trying to keep cool, magnificent giraffes who curiously watch mankind from a distance, the sacred ibis, or a tree 2,000 years old?

One learns that regulations are very strict in these parks and that the animals must not become accustomed to people; no chances are taken and it is only rarely that the tourists are allowed to walk out. Their black guide, Phillip, took them out once to get a close-up of some giraffes. Man has done as little as possible to disturb the environment; the camps and lodges are naturally designed to fit into the landscape.

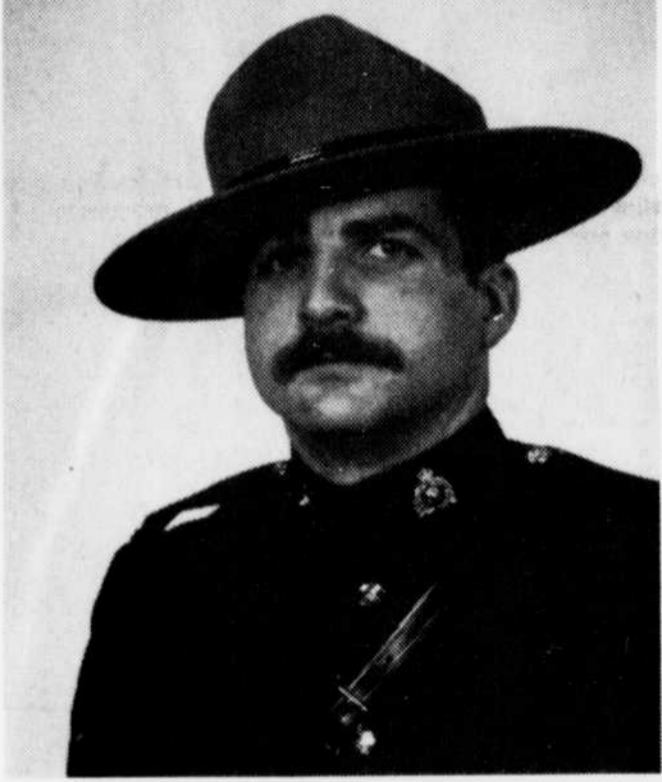

The slides showed one such lodge designed by an American architect built amongst huge strange looking boulders and another owned by the Agha Khan was perched on a ridge. Pools have been made in strategic places outside the tourist lodges in the parks where the guests can view the animals as they come for a drink in the early morning.

Views taken in a crater where they were 10,000 ft. above sea level showed it to be a natural zoo. Here they spent a day and were put up at a lodge on the edge of the crater. German tourists who were travelling in their own triple deck buses (they carry their own hotel right along with them) were there at the same time. On this same tour westwardly they did fly over cultivated areas in Kenya where there were coffee and tea plantations and native compounds.

From Nairobi their eastwardly tour took them south to view beautiful snow-covered Mt. Kilimanjaro and then out to the Indian Ocean to Mombasa. Here the people were mostly Moslems and the tourist group had a Mohammed guide named Ishmael. It was very hot here and everyone rested in the middle of the day. The hotels were next to the water with many palm trees around them and in the narrow streets the women were wearing black veils. Sand dunes line the coast outside the towns. A show was shown in which Mrs. Herring said, they were taken sailing along down the ocean coast to a neighbouring village.

The last part of the tour took them north over the Equator towards Mt. Kenya. They landed in one area where they met tall black people wearing colorful blankets, wide beaded collars and bones in their ears. These people had to be paid to pose for a picture. Before flying back to Nairobi they were shown the Mt. Kenya Safari Club, a little bit of Hollywood in Africa; where people were bowling on the green and peacocks were wandering around. The last slide was a beautiful view of snowcapped Mt. Kenya.

Mr. and Mrs. Herring were warmly thanked on behalf of the Society by Mr. Murray Mason. Refreshments were then served and a social hour concluded the evening's program.

GRADUATE - Constable David Harper has recently graduated from the R.C.M.P. Academy at "Depot" Division, Regina, Saskatchewan, and has been posted for active police duty to Ottawa, Ontario. Constable David Harper is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harper of Windsor, Quebec.

Derby Line reading-athon a success

DERBY LINE (IH) - The second read-a-thon at the Derby Elementary school has been completed with much success. This special program is to create interest in reading by students and therefore promotes competition in reading books.

The results are as follows: Beginning Primary - Teachers - Miss Patricia Miller, Mrs. Donna Landroche, Mrs. Jeanette Poulin, Miss Ruth Darby; the student winners were Sharon Cote, Cortney Currier, Angel Lawson and Sarah O'Neil Middle Primary - Teachers - Miss Patricia Keeler, Mrs. Melody Aldag, Mrs. Linda Kiser. Student winners were Christopher Higginson, Timothy Maple and Lisa Whipple.

Upper Primary - Teachers - Miss Jeanne Boucher, Mrs. Marian Alley, Mrs. Ellen MacIver and Miss Mary James; student winners, Stephanie Rhodes, Troy Bowen, Peter Gray and Cindy Joseph.

Grade 4 - Teachers - Miss Barbara Mackay, Mrs. Muriel O'Gorman, Mrs. Nancy Perkins and Mrs. Muriel Bly. Student winners, Lisa Hastings, Heidi Girard, Leo Gosselin and Wally Limlaw.

Grade 5 - Teachers - Miss May Willard, Mrs. Margaret Erwin, Mrs. George Tetreault and William Nelson. Student winners were Carman Amyot, Emily Wolfe, Raymond Labrecque and Carole Patenaude.

Grade 6 - Teachers - Robert Cargill, Lester Butterfield, Mrs. Phyllis Buchanan, Student winners, Mark Guillette, Linn Letourneau and Dianna Blais.

The grade winners were Sharon Cote who read 55 books; Christopher Higginson read 90; Stephanie Rhodes, 63; Lisa Hastings, 30; Carman Amyot, 46; Mark Guillette 55. Each of these six were presented with a book purchased with money donated by the school Parent Teachers Club.

To all the class readers mentioned a pen was presented to by the school student government. This important program to an elementary student was under the direction of Patricia Quinn, librarian, and Marilyn Hardy, Incentive Grant B Reading director.

The youngsters read books from the school library and from the children's section in the area libraries.

Obituary

MRS. L. MOSHER of Ayer's Cliff
Mrs. Lawrence Mosher, a life-long resident of Stanstead County passed away on March 23, 1977, at CHU.

The funeral was held from Cass Funeral Home, Ayer's Cliff, to the Beulah United Church in the Village for the service at 2:30 p.m., the afternoon of Friday, March 25.

Rev. Ron Coughlin officiated and Mrs. Nelson Pierce played the organ music before and after the service.

The bearers were six nephews: Breaky Mosher, Wallace Mosher, Bertie Mosher, Arnold Rever, William Rever and Allan Rever.

Interment took place in the family plot in Ayer's Cliff cemetery.

The former Ruth Arlene Rever was born in Tomifobia, on April 2, 1910, the eldest daughter of Walter and Ellen (Smith) Rever. She lived her early life in the Village and attended school there.

In November, 1930, she was united in marriage to Lawrence Mosher and to this union was born eleven children: Wendell of Ayer's Cliff; Dewey, of Brown's Hill; Colen of Irasburg, Vt.; Mrs. L. (Beulah) Boisclair, Mrs. A. (Ruby) Grenier, both of Ayer's Cliff, Mrs. R. (Hilda) Routhier, Nashua, N.H., Larry of Melbourn, Leonard, deceased and two died at infancy.

Lawrence and Ruth lived their married life in Ayer's Cliff, where she was known as a good neighbour, their home was always open to relatives and friends and her family are left with many memories of a happy home life.

The numerous floral pieces were silent tokens of the esteem in which she was held and a large number called at the Funeral Home to extend sympathy to the family, and filled the church for the service.

Mrs. Mosher is survived by her husband, Lawrence, their children, 19 grandchildren, and one great-grandchild, a sister, Mrs. Lee (Mildred) Brown, and a brother, Harold Rever, both of Rock Island, and more distant relatives. Four brothers and a sister predeceased her, Wallace, Lawrence, Theodore and Kenneth, also a sister, Muriel, at infancy.

Relatives and friends attended the funeral from Ayer's Cliff, Massawippi, Beebe, Rock Island, Tomifobia, Irasburg, Vt., Nashua, N.H., Richmond, Melbourn and Sherbrooke.

IT'S NOT VERY LIKELY THAT SHERBROOKE'S Richard Sevigny will be finding the puck behind him very often tonight, as the Sherbrooke Beavers travel to Quebec City for game number three of their QMJHL final series against the Remparts. The Remparts have only been able to get by Sevigny four times in the first two games of the series. Above is one of these rare occasions. Michael Breen (2) and Mark Semertgakis (17) look on as Michel Goulet (24) signals the Quebec goal.

O'Reilly scores in second sudden-death period

Bruins edge Flyers 5-4 in overtime

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Terry O'Reilly's goal after 10:07 of the second sudden-death overtime period gave Boston Bruins a 5-4 victory Tuesday night over Philadelphia Flyers and a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series.

Don Marcotte flipped the puck from behind the Philadelphia net to O'Reilly, who poked it past goaltender Wayne Stephenson and sent the Bruins home for the next two games with a commanding lead. The third game will be in Boston on Thursday night and the fourth on Sunday.

The teams played 35 minutes of scoreless hockey from the time that Jean Ratelle scored his fourth goal of the playoffs to give the Bruins a 4-4 tie. Ratelle's goal came at 15:16 of the second period.

Stephenson and Boston goaltender Gerry Cheevers turned back all scoring bids until O'Reilly tapped the winner past Stephenson.

During the scoreless third period, the Bruins, who won 4-3 in overtime on Sunday, managed just one shot on Stephenson while the Flyers took eight at Cheevers. In the first overtime period, Philadelphia outshot Boston 11-8.

Before O'Reilly's game-winning goal, Boston had taken six shots in the second overtime while the Flyers got only three.

Peter McNab gave the Bruins a 1-0 lead at 13:45 of the first period with his third goal of the playoffs when he fired a 25-footer from the slot that went over Stephenson's left shoulder.

Moose Dupont tied it for Philadelphia at 14:53 of the period on a 50-foot wrist shot through a screen that beat Boston goaltender Cheevers on his stick side. It was Dupont's first goal of the playoffs.

The Flyers went ahead 2-1 at 5:35 of the second period when Orest Kindrachuk poked one past Cheevers from in front of the net. Jimmy Watson had taken a shot from the left point that was stopped by Cheevers, but the puck stopped inside the crease. Before Cheevers realized it was behind him, Kindrachuk scored. Philadelphia increased its lead to 3-1 at 7:58 when Bob Kelly laid a perfect pass on the stick of Paul Holmgren, who ripped it past Cheevers from the top of the right circle, again on the goalie's stick side.

SHOOTOUT BEGINS

Then, the game turned into a real shootout, with four goals in one minute and 38 seconds.

Gregg Sheppard started the scoring when he took a pass from Wayne Cashman and beat Stephenson from 18 feet up the slot to reduce the Flyers lead to 3-2.

Exactly one minute later, at 15:01, McNab flipped the puck from behind the net. It hit Mike Milbury and glanced past the startled Stephenson to tie the score 3-3.

The tie lasted just 15 seconds, as Philadelphia's

Gary Dornhoefer took a pass from Rick MacLeish and fired it past Cheevers from about 20 feet to send the Flyers ahead 4-3.

But 23 seconds later, it was deadlocked again when Boston defenceman Rick Smith sent Ratelle in with a pass that opened up a breakaway. Ratelle virtually walked in on Stephenson, beating him on the lower right side of the net.

The last three goals came in a total of 38 seconds and tied the NHL playoff record for the fastest three in history. Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens did it April 13, 1965, in a game at Toronto.

The four goals were just five seconds shy of a fastest four playoff goals on record. Philadelphia and Toronto scored four times in one minute, 33 seconds last April.

Allan Cup

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Brantford Alexanders defeated St. John's Blue Caps 5-3 Tuesday to win their best-of-five Eastern Canada Allan Cup series three games to two.

The score was tied 3-3 in the third period until Guy Smith scored to put Ontario ahead. Later, with less than two minutes to play, Jack Eggers scored an insurance marker.

Bouchard scores split decision victory over Marcotte Jr.

MONTREAL (CP) — In spite of being knocked down in the third and fourth rounds, Gerald Bouchard of Montreal scored a 12-round, split-decision victory over Fernand Marcotte Jr. to take the Canadian middleweight boxing title on Tuesday night.

The championship fight was the main event on a six-bout card at the Paul Sauve arena.

Marcotte scored well in the early rounds and appeared on the way to a successful title defence when he knocked Bouchard to the canvas as the bell sounded to end the third round.

Bouchard was dazed again in the fourth round and the referee stopped the action to give the challenger a standing eight-count.

Bouchard survived a knockdown later in the fourth and came on strong in the fifth against a seemingly-tiring Marcotte.

"Marcotte has the experience but I have the desire," said Bouchard after the fight. "I wasn't worried about the knockdowns. I knew I was in great shape and could take him in a long fight."

Ringside observers felt Bouchard took the fifth, sixth, seventh and 12th rounds easily with the eighth, ninth, tenth and 11th rounds about even.

Judge Jean-Marie Pellerin scored the bout 57-55 and judge Jacques Mailhot 55-54, both for Bouchard, while judge Jean-Claude Theroux scored it 56-55 for Marcotte.

The contract for the fight stipulated that should Bouchard defeat Marcotte, a rematch would be held within 90 days.

Lightweight Cleveland Denny of Montreal won a unanimous, six-round decision over Willie Davis of New York, N.Y., in the first fight of the evening.

Another six-round preliminary saw veteran Arthur Jones of Montreal take a split-decision win over fellow Montrealer Michel Rouleau.

Middleweight Alain Turanne of Montreal scored with a left hook in the sixth round for a knockout victory over Rick Zarbatany of Montreal. That fight was also scheduled to go six rounds.

General manager preaches restraint

Canada manages 3-3 tie

VIENNA (CP) — General manager Derek Holmes and coach Johnny Wilson preached restraint during Team Canada's eight-game European tour earlier this month.

Their words generally fell on deaf ears until Tuesday night.

The Canadians, criticized in earlier games for poor sportsmanship and retaliating with their sticks after being hooked or held, stuck to hockey in their fourth game of the World Hockey Championship and tied Czechoslovakia 3-3.

It took a brilliant performance by goaltender Tony Esposito, who stopped 26 shots, and top efforts from Ron Ellis, Rod Gilbert, Wayne Merrick, Al MacAdam and Pierre Larouche to provide Canada with the draw.

"It was a tremendous team effort," said Wilson. "Every player really exerted himself. I would have to say it was the best 60 minutes of hockey we have played in Europe."

PAIEMENT RESTRAINED

Wilf Paiement, who was criticized for his aggressiveness which resulted in a tournament-leading 24 minutes in penalties after the first three games, stayed out of the penalty box.

However, referee Raimo Sopponen of Finland handed four of five minor penalties to Canada including a two-minute spearing sentence and a 10-minute misconduct to Walt McKechnie for arguing the call.

The Canadians were whipped 11-1 Sunday night by the Soviet Union. It was the worst defeat Canada has suffered in world tournament play.

"It's very pleasant," said Alan Eagleson, chairman of international hockey for Canada. "As far as I'm concerned a tie is a reasonable result against a team like Czechoslovakia which has been walloping everybody the way the Russians walloped us."

The tie for Czechoslovakia dropped them into third place with a 3-0-1 record. The Soviet Union and Sweden share the lead with 4-0 records.

Canada and the United States are fourth at 1-2-1, while Finland is 1-3, West Germany 0-3-1 and Romania 0-4.

In another game Tuesday, Finland nipped the U.S. 3-2 as Timo Sutinen scored the winning goal at 17:44 of the final period.

The Czechoslovaks led 2-0 midway through the second period on goals by Marin Stastny and Jaroslav Pouzar before the Canadians started to hustle, forecheck and buzz around goalie Vladimir Dzurilla. It paid off with three goals by Pierre Larouche, Merrick and Ellis within 80 seconds.

Milan Novy tied the score with his fifth goal of the tournament at 1:01 of the third period, deflecting Bohuslav Ebermann's long drive past Esposito.

The Canadians insisted the play was offside. It looked that way from the press area, but the referee and linesmen Martin Erhard of West Germany and Nico Toemen of The Netherlands had other ideas.

Action resumes tonight with Romania meeting West Germany and Canada playing Finland.

Canadiens blank Islanders

MONTREAL (CP) — New York Islanders cannot say they have Montreal Canadiens where they want them in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series, but there is no question the Islanders feel they are far from finished against mighty Montreal.

Third-period goals by Jim Roberts, Larry Robinson and Peter Mahovlich and the shutout goaltending of Ken Dryden carried Montreal to a 3-0 triumph over New York Tuesday night and a 2-0 lead in the series which resumes Thursday night at Uniondale, N.Y.

"We have been in this position before," said coach Al Arbour outside the New York dressing room. "We've been down a couple of games before."

"I think we can come back and I think our players believe the same thing. We started off a little slow in the first period and after that we were grinding them and grinding them. We had them looking pretty good."

The teams were scoreless for close to 48 minutes before veteran utility forward Roberts put Montreal ahead with his first point of the playoffs after stealing the puck from defenceman Jean Potvin.

Robinson's shot deflected off Gerry Hart's skate into the goal at 11:31 before Mahovlich wrapped up the victory with a power-play goal at 19:24.

"They had a break on their first goal," Arbour said. "And on their second goal, the puck wasn't even going close to the net and it hits a skate and went in."

"It was a case of breaks deciding this game. I thought in the last part of the second and in the third period, we were coming on very well."

The Canadiens are not about to admit they have the Islanders on the ropes. They know the Islanders have come back from deficits in the past to win series and Dryden said he was sure the Islanders would not be down after Tuesday's loss.

"I would expect that right now the Islanders are extremely upset and disappointed," said Dryden. "By tomorrow they will be less of that and maybe a little bit more encouraged. 'PLAYED WELL.'"

"They played extremely well, knowing they forced us to play extremely well."

While the Islanders did not appear discouraged in the least, a few were incensed with the work of referee Andy van Hellemond.

The most vocal of the group was Denis Potvin, who was speared by Mahovlich in the second period and was forced to leave the game with a muscle spasm in his right leg.

"The only problem we faced tonight was the damned refereeing," said Potvin. "I think it has been the worst I've ever seen."

New York's Pat Price was the target of jeers from the Montreal fans in the third period after he slammed Rejean Houle to the ice. Houle suffered a dislocated left shoulder and is finished for the season.

Expos trade

MONTREAL (CP) — Tim Foli was traded by Montreal Expos of baseball's National League for another shortstop, Chris Speier of San Francisco Giants.

Foli, who was hitting .175 in 14 games with Montreal this season, was considered to be a major reason in the disharmony of the 1976 Expos.

Foli openly defied manager Karl Kuehl in Philadelphia last May and after the incident the Expos appeared to become a dispirited and unhappy group. Kuehl was fired and replaced by Charlie Fox last September. Fox then moved on to the general manager's role with Dick Williams taking over as manager.

Speier, who has played in only six of the Giants' games this season, has a .176 batting average.

The 26-year-old native of Alameda, Calif., had been with the Giants organization since 1971. Last year he hit .226 in 145 games and drove in 40 runs.

Says Alan Eagleson

Federation trying to blame Canada

VIENNA (CP) — Alan Eagleson says the International Ice Hockey Federation is trying to blame Canada because the world hockey tournament has turned into a "lousy flop."

Eagleson, chairman of international hockey for Canada, said at an unscheduled news conference Tuesday: "We made it clear from the start that we were coming with a club I thought would be a fourth-place team that might get into a third-place club."

"I can't persuade the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association to stop business to please Guenther Sabetzki and I don't intend to ask."

Eagleson was commenting on reports that Dr. Sabetzki, president of the IIHF, would ask the federation's Congress, which meets here May 2-4, to refuse sanction of the 1980 Canada Cup if Canada did not provide assurances that it would send a better team to the 1978 championship in Prague.

After the news conference, Sabetzki met Eagleson and told him the Canada Cup series is not on the agenda for the federation meetings and would likely be discussed at a later date.

SAYS EAGLE LIED

Earlier, Walter Wasservogel, secretary of the IIHF, said Eagleson lied to him about the strength of Canada's team.

"He promised me this would be a very good team," said Wasservogel, also president of the organizing committee for this tournament.

"Look at them. It is the worst possible team Canada could send."

Wasservogel, who made his comments before Canada and Czechoslovakia fought to a 3-3 draw Tuesday night, said the poor performance and conduct of the Canadian team against Sweden and the Soviet Union will cost the tournament about $300,000 in lost revenue. Canada lost 4-2 to Sweden, then dropped an 11-1 decision to the Soviet Union.

"Already people are lining up to ask refunds for these tickets to Canada's games," said Wasservogel.

BOUGHT TICKETS

But Eagleson said Canada had purchased about $75,000 worth of tickets for the tournament. More than one-half the tournament's attendance has been for games involving Canada.

Eagleson, executive-director of the National Hockey League Players Association, said: "We've got the best team possible under the circumstances and if we can win a few games maybe he (Sabetzki) would feel differently."

"If they want to kick us out of the world championships, it'll be their loss, not ours."

He said he is upset with a few players.

"I've spoken to Wilf Paiement and Walt McKechnie about their conduct on the ice but if I burn too many backside over here it'll be pretty tough to get the players to come over here again."

This is Canada's first appearance in the world tournament since 1969. The country pulled out early in 1970 when the IIHF would not allow it to use nine pros.

Put Your Lazy Pickup To Work With UNI-HOIST Dump Conversion.

If your pickup just sits there on its axle snoozing while you're lifting and straining to unload it, you need the UNI-HOIST electric/hydraulic dump attachment — a sure cure for lazy pickups.

All over America, standard pickups now earn their keep by doubling as dumptrucks with this rugged, easy-to-install dump accessory.

Flip a switch and UNI-HOIST turns your dozing pickup into a dumptruck...unloading 2 tons in 16 seconds while you rest. UNI-HOIST fits all standard U.S. pickups. It bolts on easily, without welding and there's no change in the body lines to make your pickup self-conscious.

Give your pickup muscles — and save yours. Save time and money too, with more possible hauling trips.

Beef cattle improvement mere chance?

By JANET COTTON
(Record Reporter)
SHERBROOKE — Speaking at the annual Meeting of Quebec Beef Cattle Breeder's Association on Friday, Dr. William Holtman told producers that "artificial insemination can no longer be an emotional issue. It is time for constructive thinking and constructive action to build an industry of which we can be proud. We can no longer play games with the genetic improvement of our beef cattle."

Dr. Holtman noted that 90 percent of the semen from beef bulls in the Quebec Artificial Insemination (AI) Center is being used on dairy cattle, making herd improvement in beef cattle a mere chance. He said that beef producers have been neglecting the fundamental economics of the commercial producer and the basic purpose of raising beef cattle.

"The basic role of the A.I. industry is to provide a means whereby cattle producers can make progress at a much faster rate than is possible by using only natural service. The main value lies in its use as a tool for improvement of livestock. The usefulness of this tool on a small or large scale should never be overlooked or minimized."

Artificial insemination can change a herd from an average performance level to the best in the breed in only one generation. Through A.I. there is the potential for producing quality cattle and making a real contribution to the beef industry, but producers are not taking advantage of this. Dr. Holtman said that attitudes, breeder and breed association resistance and production techniques are the main stumbling blocks.

Dr. Holtman said the myth still exists that a breeder can produce the best genetic improvements in his herd without using A.I. Many breeders still hope to make that "magic combination" or buy that "outstanding" young bull that will change his herd.

In Quebec most breeders are part-time farmers and beef breeding is not their principal interest; consequently they do not realize the value of A.I.

Taking on the economics of A.I., Dr. Holtman said it allows the breeder to use bulls at an extremely low service cost — bulls that he cannot even consider purchasing. The cost of insemination is low because the provincial government subsidizes the industry.

In closing, Mr. Holtman said, "Just go to the barns and you will see for yourself the poor quality of the majority of calves that we are producing. We have a job to do, so let's get to work and get it done."

Dr. Wilfred Holtman trained in education of animal breeding and worked at the Lennoxville Research Station in 1966-67. He was a professor in animal breeding at Laval University from 1968-76. Since December he has been responsible for beef programming at the A.I. Center in St. Hyacinthe.

BEEF PRODUCERS are being encouraged to consider artificial insemination to improve herd qualities. A critic says Quebec cattle are being bred more for their looks than their taste. Story above.

Quebec responds to organic farming

Dr. Bertrand Forest, agronomist and general director of Research and Education at the Quebec Department of Agriculture, describes the publicity surrounding what is known as organic agriculture and its products as "misleading" and declares that it is time to introduce a bit of logic into the debate on this subject.

For soil fertilization, promoters of organic agriculture advocate the use of organic fertilizer and natural minerals only — (composted manure, crop residues, green manure, lime-containing seaweed, ground bone, horn and rock, and natural phosphates). They believe that only those micro-organisms responsible for the decomposition of organic matter can, through their selective and regulating action, provide plants with adequate, balanced and healthy nourishment and they contend that organically grown crops are more resistant to disease, that such crops taste better and are better for the health.

Dr. Forest's response is that organic agriculture is neither a new nor an original concept but a return to outdated methods of agriculture characterized by low yields. The attitude of those who believe in this form of agriculture is paradoxical at a time when it is hoped that world starvation can at last be conquered.

It is only through modern agriculture — falsely described as "chemical" (because of the use of chemical fertilizers and pesticides) — that mankind can be provided with an abundance of high-quality foods. Scientific research has clearly established that: —the long-term result of incorporating manure alone into arable land, without the addition of chemical fertilizers, is a decrease in fertility and yield;

—the rational use of chemical fertilizers and pesticides allows for better harvests without in any way altering the soil biology or the chemical composition of the plants;

—chemical fertilizers and pesticides do not diminish resistance to crop disease or the quality of grains, fruits or vegetables.

Dr. Forest comments on the situation: "Organic agriculture, based on the exclusive use of organic fertilizers, is not an impossibility since it was the only form of agriculture practised before the introduction of inorganic fertilizers around 1850. One should not blindly accept, however, the principles of organic agriculture since several of them stem from a rather naive and backward mentality."

"Under these circumstances, returning to the agricultural methods used prior to technological civilization would entail increased food prices to compensate the decrease in productivity. Such an increase cannot be justified by any argument, especially not by claims of greater nutritional value, which has never been proven."

"If we take into account the demands of agriculture and our present knowledge, we find that chemical,

DR. BERTRAND FOREST is the general director of Research and Education at the Quebec Department of Agriculture. He is responsible for the training of technicians and agricultural producers at the St-Hyacinthe and La Pocatière Institutes of Agricultural Technology.

inorganic fertilizers are essential to return to the soil those elements which have been removed by crops. Pesticides are also a necessity or, if we are to respect all opinions, "an unfortunate necessity."

"The excesses and abuses which lead to mineral deficiency in the case of organic agriculture and to soil poisoning in the case of chemical agriculture must be guarded against. In both cases, the final result may be poorer quality soil."

"We must find a happy medium by returning to the soil what has been removed from it but no more than it can absorb. Crops must be protected without harming the environment. We must use the most effective method of food production for a constantly increasing population. Those who wish to use organic farming methods are free to do so with their eyes open, but without deceitful publicity."

Growing bird seed is for the birds

OTTAWA — Growing bird seed would be more popular with farmers if the birds would wait until after harvest.

"The two species grown for this purpose are sorghum and millet," says F.S. Warren of Agriculture Canada's Research Station here.

Although millet is easy to grow in Eastern Canada and sorghum is especially suited to southeastern Ontario, growers are discouraged from planting the crops because of extensive losses to birds. Freeloading birds harvest as much as half the crop in some areas.

"Canada imported 372,000 pounds of sorghum seed and 600,000 pounds of millet from the United States in 1975 because farmers here weren't growing enough to meet the demand. But in some cases, transportation is costing as much per pound as the crop," Dr. Warren says.

The demand for wild bird seed exceeds the supply in many urban centers and a few farmers are finding growing seed on contract is a profitable enterprise despite the freeloaders.

Hybrid grain sorghum — a three-foot tall, corn-like plant with seeds usually borne in a dense spike at the top of the plant — can be harvested with a grain combine.

Millet, the smallest seed in a wild bird feed mix, is also harvested like grain. The only varieties licensed in Canada — Crown and Empire — were developed at the Ottawa Research Station in 1937 and were used mainly for forage or for blending with flour. No longer used for these purposes, the seed is marketed only for bird feed. One grower last year harvested 3,000 pounds of each variety from only 10 pounds of seed each.

The Ottawa Research Station maintains seed of the two millets and last year tested 50 varieties of sorghum and millet obtained in a seed exchange with China. "Most seemed well suited to local conditions," Dr. Warren says. "The seed will be maintained here and researchers may obtain samples on request."

it takes only a short while to produce radishes, spring onions and leaf lettuce from seed, so one should not sow the whole area with those fast growing seeds. Some vegetables will take as much as 140 days or even longer to mature from time of seeding. Thus, it is better to start those seeds indoors and grow them into little plants suitable for planting outdoors at the proper time.

How do you know if the soil is ready to accept your transplants? What I like to do is take a handful of soil and squeeze it; when it crumbles and drifts through your fingers, it is ready to accept your plants, if it holds like a mud ball, wait a little while until it dries out and warms up a bit. I had an old gardening friend who told me that if you could keep your finger in soil for three minutes without it feeling cold, then it is the time to plant.

Some still like to start their own seeds indoors rather than buying plants from the garden centres. Using any type of soil has presented a problem. Plants would "damp-off" because the soil hadn't been sterilized. When you visit your favorite garden centre, department store or seed shop, ask for Vigoro Sterilized Potting soil or Seed Starting soil, and you'll know your seed will germinate without the problem of "damping-off".

I like to use old soup tins to start my tomato plants. Punch holes in the bottom, add a few stones for the drainage, add sterilized potting soil, put in three tomato seeds; then, as they start to grow, pick out the two thinnest ones and grow on the strongest. When you place them outdoors, leave them in the tin, and allow about one inch of can to be above the soil line. What is the reason for the one inch of can to be above the soil level? Well, it is going to keep the cutworms from cutting down your tender young plants. It acts as a collar around the plants. Use plant food in a solution, and it will take the shock of transplanting from your plants.

Seedlings will require watering, but don't use a forceful spray. It is always wise to lightly sprinkle the flat. Place a few sheets of newspaper over the flat and add water to it. The paper absorbs the water, allows it to get to the soil, and keeps the seed-flat dark so that you may expect faster germination. I like fairly warm starting area, around -20 degrees C (60 degrees F).

When you get those plants outdoors in the soil, water them daily until they really get growing. Once into the ground they will dry out a lot faster. If you can transplant on a shady day, so much the better, but if they have to go in on sunny days, shade them for a day or two until they make a good root system.

Plants are like people, they require care and attention, and the more they get the better they produce. So, water during dry periods, cultivate, keep the soil open, remove weak growth, keep the rows open (but use care when doing so as not to disturb the root system). Spray with a combined insecticide and fungicide to let the plants grow into healthy specimens, and fertilize.

CANADIAN ADVERTISING ADVISORY BOARD

Marketing boards are following guidelines

OTTAWA (CP) — Most farm product marketing boards with "substantial price-setting powers" comply with guidelines set down by the anti-inflation board, the board announced Monday.

The board released results of a study of a select list of farm marketing boards ordered by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald following an agreement among federal-provincial finance ministers to monitor their activity.

The anti-inflation board determined that marketing boards for fluid milk, turkeys and broiler chickens, run by the provinces, and federally-administered boards for industrial milk and eggs wielded the most power with respect to setting prices.

"Other marketing boards, not included in the program, generally have either less substantial price-setting powers or no such powers at all," the board said in a news release.

Although marketing boards are not required to adhere to the guidelines of the anti-inflation program, the board devised a voluntary restraint formula in co-operation with the various supervisory bodies.

SOME REFUSED
The provincial governments in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Quebec refused, however, to participate in the study for fluid milk, turkeys and chickens. The board said producer prices set by marketing boards in all other provinces were in line with the voluntary restraints program.

In Newfoundland, prices are not determined by marketing boards and in Prince Edward Island there is no board for turkeys or chickens.

For industrial milk, that used to produce skim milk powder, butter and cheese, producer returns were over the guidelines "by a very small amount" caused by a miscalculation, the board said.

The Canadian Dairy Commission, the federal regulatory body, has been advised of the discrepancy, the news release said. There are currently more than 100 marketing boards in the country, most operated at the provincial level.

The formula used by the board for marketing boards was similar to that used by other groups in the economy, the news release said.

Whelan announces new stabilization levels

OTTAWA — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan announced last week the 1976-77 stabilization levels for hogs, corn and soybeans.

The support price for hogs marketed between April 1, 1976, and March 31, 1977, is $50.28 per hundredweight. There will be no support payment to hog producers for the 1976-77 marketing year because average market returns for the year reached more than $58 per hundredweight.

The support levels for corn and soybeans (September 1, 1976, through August 31, 1977) are $2.18 per bushel and $5.10 per bushel respectively. In metric terms, these support levels are $85.43 per tonne for corn and $187.39 per tonne for soybeans.

"Although the marketing year for corn and soybeans is not yet completed, current price trends suggest that growers will have higher average returns than the support levels," Mr. Whelan said.

"Hogs, corn and soybeans are three of the named commodities under the Agricultural Stabilization Act. The Act provides a minimum support for them at 90 per cent of the average market price of the previous five years plus an index for changes in the cash costs of production.

"The support levels are there to help producers when their returns are low. Fortunately, prices this year have been reasonable for hogs, corn and soybeans and producers of these commodities do not require stabilization payments."

The 1975-76 support level for hogs was $46.44 per hundredweight; for corn it was $2.11 per bushel and for soybeans it was $4.35 per bushel.

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN to dream about manicured lawns, luscious tulips and fresh vegetables.

Quebec to subsidize cattle

SHERBROOKE (JC) — The Quebec ministry of agriculture will be directly subsidizing beef cattle farmers for each superior quality bull and cow. Conrad Bernier, Director of Animal Production Services in the ministry told beef producers at their annual meeting here Friday.

Mr. Bernier was in Sherbrooke to explain the ministry's stand on the improvement of the genetic potential in beef herds. He told producers that the subsidization would increase the number of subjects registered in performance testing, and allow the farmer to see which of his animals have the best genetic potential.

The ministry will be demanding that producers register all of their beef cattle herds in performance testing. Mr. Bernier said this was the only way to establish a valuable selection program which will permit the improvement of the potential in Quebec's herds.

Mr. Bernier said that for too long the mentality of the Quebec producer had centered on the appearance of animals for show with little consideration given to the quality of meat or the rational and economic development of the animals. As he said, "We must avoid past errors and persist in discovering the necessary means for the implantation of a beef industry which will decrease our dependency on other problems. The Minister of Agriculture wants to create a beef industry that is competitive and profitable for Quebec agriculture."

Marsh World

ZERO TILLAGE — This concept of cultivation involves seeding directly into the previous year's stubble, thereby eliminating summerfallowing. With proper management, it increases grain yields, reduces erosion, and improves soil friability and fertility. By reducing spring cultivation, this technique can also greatly improve the nesting success of ducks which choose to nest in stubble fields.

UCW meetings

WAY'S MILLS — On Tuesday, April 12, the Way's Mills U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. James E. Dunn with the President, Mrs. C. D. Pedersen, in the chair.

The worship service began with listening to a recording of Amazing Grace sung by Sharon Stevens, great-niece of the hostess, with background music by the Keystones. Mrs. Pope read the Scripture. Mrs. Mayhew chose as the meditation, "Expectation as Joy."

The hostess was in charge of the program and she chose the skit An Interview with St. Peter from the magazine Exchange. Mrs. Dunn, as St. Peter, wore an Eastern costume as she was interviewed by Mrs. Cass. The president then led a question period concerning Easter symbols and customs which proved the ladies had done some research.

At the business session plans were made for the mission festival to be held by the Ayer's Cliff-Magog charge on May 18. Articles were brought for Dr. Burgess and also for the July Sale.

The study of Justice not Charity was continued and the proposals brought forward in the chapter dealing with progress toward a new economic order were indeed thought provoking.

On Wednesday, April 13, the regular date of the local meeting, the President and two of the members attended the Annual Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterial U.C.W. meeting in Cowansville.

The next meeting will be on May 11 at Carlee Farms. This was decided at the social hour while all enjoyed delicious refreshments served by the hostess.

BISHOPTON — Mrs. Douglas Gilbert entertained the Bishopton U.C.W. with a dessert meeting. Mrs. Rufus Stevenson opened the meeting with the Purpose and U.C.W. Creed repeated in unison and a prayer.

Mrs. S. N. Bishop led the Devotional period with reading and prayer. Roll call was answered by 9 members repeating a Bible verse.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Plans were made for the Strawberry Supper to be held June 25th.

Mrs. Ralph Gilbert gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Ralph St. Pierre read thank-you notes from Mrs. Knight George, Mrs. G. Simons, Maplemount Homes, and reported cards and letters mailed. Thank-you was received from Charles Hardcastle with a donation of a hand made Lazy Susan. A donation was also received from Mr. Fritz Leonard.

Mrs. Ralph Gilbert, Mrs. Rufus Stevenson and Mrs. Oral Downes attended the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterial annual meeting in Cowansville.

The meetings will be on the first Tuesday of each month in the future, with the next one at Mrs. Ralph Betts' home.

CLEVELAND — The April meeting of the New London group of the United Church was held on Wednesday, April 13, in the church parlor, with eight members and one visitor, Mrs. Marjorie Hawker.

The President Miss Bernice Beattie was in the chair and welcomed members and visitor.

The devotion was taken by Mrs. Clarence Pease.

There were 13 Wales Home calls and eight local. Mrs. Ralph Healy and Miss Heather Healy visited the Wales Home for the month of March.

A quilting was planned for May 10 and everyone was asked to be there early.

Food was solicited for a church supper to be held on April 27, with a sale table of plants and miscellaneous articles.

In memory of the late Chesley Banfill, $20.00 will be donated to the Memorial Fund.

A thank-you note was received from Mr. Leslie Taylor.

A donation of Esmond blankets were received and sold by auction, Mrs. M. Hawker acting as auctioneer. She was thanked by Miss B. Beattie.

A donation was received from Mrs. Ethel Soloman, Mrs. Royce Taylor's name being drawn for next meeting. Last month's donations were brought in by Mrs. Gladys Perkins and Mrs. Ralph Healy.

A donation of $10 was given to the Guides and Brownies.

The meeting closed with the benediction and refreshments were served by the ladies.

Free Parking Tokens to Customers. Park in Big Forks City Lot, rear of store.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Boris Schapiro points out that the winning bridge player must be able to guess right when the losing player guesses wrong.

Of course, the winning player isn't really guessing. He is making an intelligent decision, while the loser is making an unintelligent one.

South liked his hand but had a slight problem about what to do over East's four-spade opening. Five hearts might be an inadequate bid, but he made it anyway.

West jumped to six spades and when it came back to South he had a real problem. Was West bidding six spades as a gamble or did he really expect to make it? Finally, South came to the conclusion that West surely held a strong club suit for his bid and that his (South's) king of clubs was a sitting duck. South went to seven diamonds. North corrected to seven hearts and South was down three for a loss of 800 points.

At the other table East and West were allowed to play in six spades after a very different bidding sequence. South opened the king of hearts and shifted to a diamond, won by East's king. The ace of spades disclosed the trump break. West ruffed a heart, picked up trumps, led a club and had his slam when the king showed up in the right spot.

Ask the Jacobys

A Pittsburgh reader wants to know if it is a misdeal when a card is exposed during the deal, or if that card must be an honor to cause the misdeal.

The answer is that if any card is exposed during the deal that it is a misdeal, but that some social players don't enforce this rule if the card is not an honor.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Pleasurable pursuits that are expensive are likely to disappoint you today. Inexpensive activities will prove the most fun.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Put the needs of those you care for above your own today. Your rewards lie in charity to others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It can be a very good day if you stifle the urge to engage in oneness with your pals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If there's a business situation to be attended to today, try to complete it in the proper surroundings, not over lunch or dinner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Follow your logical instincts today. Avoid a tendency to give a statement or claim more credence than it deserves.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Gains are likely today through more than one source. However, if you build your hopes too high, you could be let down a bit.

SCORPIQ (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone may bring up what they tout as a really big deal in a gabfest with friends today. Don't jump in before investigating.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Second thoughts are essential before making any major decisions today. You'll see angles you have overlooked.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It would be best today not to mix social acquaintances with work associates. Someone could feel like a fish out of water.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may feel the inclination to take a calculated risk today. If so, at least modify your financial investment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Go to the people you're sure have the facts today, not to one who is a good conversationalist, but no expert.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Early in the day your mind will not be attuned to your responsibilities. Later you'll recover any lost ground.
